LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, AUGUST 2, 1920.

Canadian Boys To Train For Navy And Merchant Marine

AIMS AND OBJECTS OF NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA SET FORTH AT SPLENDID MEETING — ELOQUENT AND INSPIRING ADDRESSES POINT TO CANADA'S DUTY TO EMPIRE—BRITISH NAVY PROTECTED CANADA FROM INVASION AND HORRORS OF GERMAN WAR BRUTALITY.

The great interest taken in the Navy League of Canada was evidenced by the large audience present in Griffin's Theatre Sunday evening. Those who were present will not forget the eloquent and inspiring addresses and the information received as to the part the British Navy and the Merchant Marine played during the war and the need for encouraging the boys of Canada to seek careers in the Navy and Merchant Marine. That eloquent pastor, Rev. S. Boal, Chaplain of the Navy League of Canada, made one of his fighting speeches, eloquent, inspiring and full of information and the audience hung upon every word and applauded him to the echo. Dr. J. W. Evans, Commodore of the Kingston Navy League and Commandant of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, also made a splendid speech which won many members for the Navy League.

Mayor Riggs acted as chairman and introducted the speakers in happy terms, remarking that the speaking talent was so varied as to include an Englishman, an Irishman, a Welshman a Scotchman and an American.

Mr. John Elliott and Col. W. N. Ponton made splendid addresses brief but eloquent and pointed.

From the enthusiasm evidenced at the meeting it is certain that a very vigorous branch of the Navy League of Canada will be organized in Belleville with a Boys' Brigade in which every available place will be taken and a large waiting list opened.

It was intimated by Commodore Evans that the training ship Pinta, at present at Kingston, would come to Belleville harbor soon and the boys of the Naval Brigade would show the citizens of this city what their training had done for them.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Marshall of Emmanuel Church and closed with the singing of the National Anthem. Among those on the platform were Col. W. N. Ponton, Mr. John Elliott, Capt. MacDonald of Kingston, Mr. G. H. Griffin, Mayor Riggs and the speakers.

Chaplain Rev. S. Boal, of Toronto, representing the Navy League of Canada, served many years in the British Navy and is exceptionally well-informed as to the necessity of maintaining Britain's sea power, both mercantile and naval. During the war Chaplain Boal rendered valuable service to the Empire in conducting great recruiting campaigns in the raising of funds for Red Cross and other patriotic work. Now he is injecting his great vigor and intense patriotism into the work of the Navy League of Canada and is meeting with great success everywhere.

Chaplain Boal stated clearly and emphatically the dependence of every portion of the Empire, including Canada, Australia, New Zealand, etc., on the safe communication by sea for its prosperity.

Another important point he made is that the ships for this sea transportation should be owned by Britain and her dominions beyond the sea and in this respect Canada would no doubt do her share well.

In the United Kingdom in 1912 the volume of shipping launched was nine times as great as in the United States. In 1919 in the United States it was twice as large as in the United Kingdom. In 1913 the United Kingdom possessed 41 per cent. of the world's mercantile tonnage and the United States four per cent.; in 1919 the United Kingdom had 34 per cent. and the United States 20 per cent.

Canada's First Contingent

Britain's sea power must not be permitted to languish and the Navy League of Canada can do much to supply recruits to keep the ships of the Empire adequately manned and officered. It has been due to the sailors of the mercantile marine that the sea has been free to carry our imports and exports in the midst of the horrors of the great war and also for the transport of soldiers to France. Seventeen thousand sailors perished in the deep, 23,000 were disabled and wounded and in institutions supported and maintained by the Navy League while there are 45 000 widows and orphans to be provided for. It is our duty to see to it that our heroes are not forgotten.

The Sailors' Covenant

Chaplain Boal said it was always a pleasure to him to plead the cause of the sailors—a body of men who, at the outbreak of the war numbered 200,000. When Mr. Asquith was Prime Minister, Lord Kitchener and the Admiralty sent for Havelock Wilson, Chairman of the Seaman's Union. He was asked if he would enter into a covenant with the government that the sailors would be faithful to the boys in France and Flanders during the period of the war. Mr. Wilson gave his word of honor that during the period of the war the men of the mercantile marine would not go on strike. Although the men had many grievances and were badly fed and poorly paid, they buried their grievances in the interests of the Empire. That compact was honorably carried out and during the perils of the mine-fields and submarines they kept open the arteries of the world to carry on trade and commerce.

Canada's First Contingent

"Those of us," said the speaker, "who had the privilege of witnessing the arrival of the first Canadian contingent of 31,000 men on 32 transport ships, with convoys, in England in October, 1914, shall never forget the sight." Out of 375,000 Canadians transported overseas, not a single soldier perished through enemy action.

When Lloyd George sent his famous cable to President Wilson of the United States, "Send us 120,000 men and machine guns," the United States had a great army, numbering millions, but she was unable to send them, and President Wilson cabled back to Lloyd George, "Send your ships, we'll send the men." In April, 1918, 305,000 U. S. troops were sent overseas, nearly 200,000 of them were taken in British ships.

Out of 2,000,000 American troops landing in England 1,100,000 were taken over by British sailors, which goes to prove that it was through the efforts and loyalty of the British sailors of the deep that the war was won. "Although many have asked who won the war," said Mr. Boal, "with all due respect and love for the United States we would have won the war if the United States had never come in." The seas are ours by birth-right and heritage and we shall not give up the supremacy to any nation or body of men, because the seas belong to the British Empire for all time. The speaker concluded his patriotic and soul-stirring lecture by appealing for aid for the widows and orphans and other dependants of the sailors who had done so much for us.

Chaplain Boal

Rev. S. Boal known as England's great recruiter has had the honour of receiving over 10,000 men for the Imperial forces. He has received personally the thanks of Lord Kitchener and an illuminated address by the citizens of London, England, for his services to the Empire. His son was wounded seriously at the Dardanelles and for over two years lay in the hospital at the point of death.

The chaplain is an Irishman belonging to one of the old Irish families coming from Armagh, where they lived for over 200 years. In 1849 his parents moved to England but returned back to Ireland nearly 60 years ago. At the age of twelve he ran away from his home to join the British Navy, but was so young that he was refused. In 1882 he enlisted in the Prince of Wales' Own Regiment but owing to ill health was bought out. He had three brothers who volunteered for servie in South Africa he also offered himself but Lord Roberts said he was doing more valuable work among the men. Chaplain Boal has spent years among the troops and has visited the ships to cheer our sailors, he has visited the French war ships, also the Japanese and the American and with pride he speaks of the brightness of the British sailors during the period of the war.

On September 23, 1914, he opened a recruting campaign in Ireland and later went to Scotland and later in England. He finished his glorious work in London when conscription came in force. He was asked to go to India by Major Smith, head of the Welsh battalions but owing to other arrangements with the coloured troops the plans were set aside. Early in 1917 he came to Canada recruiting for the Army and Navy. He was appointed a representative of the Navy League of Canada on its formation and since then has conducted an active campaign through the province. He is an excellent speaker and is well acquainted with the seas. He is one who loves his work and at all times breaks down opposition.

Chaplain Boal is a plain blunt man with a delightful Irish brogue, a man of the people with no suspicion of anything official about him—with earnest enthusiasm for the cause of the Empire.

The Navy League has his first and last thought and has received the thanks of Sir John Eaton and Headquarters for his services. He is a worker at all times and is familiar with all that concerns the sea.

Syndicalists Are Terrorizing Spain

MADRID, July 31.—The non-syndicalized workers on Barcelona have been suffering a reign of terror during the past ten days at the hands of the Syndicalists, who, within that period have assassinated or attempted to assassinate thirty persons.

Outrages occur at any time, day or night, in the open streets. Even in the most crowded centres of traffic an outburst of shooting happens, and stops suddenly. Then the perforated body of some man is seen lying on the ground, but the assailants have generally disappeared without molestation.

The victims, without exception, are refractory workmen who have refused to continue to pay dues to the Syndicalists, and thereupon are condemned to punishment by a small secret band of revolutionary syndicalists, which declares that the victims are guilty of saying that after they have taken advantage of the benefits of better wages and hours, secured by the Syndicalists, they desert their comrades.

Government actions in suppressing the Syndicalists and forbidding workers' meetings, has contributed to infuriate the extremist section of workmen, and a lockout threatened by the employers' union as a protest against the assassination of non-Syndicalized employees, it is feared will bring serious further outrages against the employers who recently have been comparatively immune.

Chloroform Bandits In Montreal

MONTREAL, July 31.—The gang of "chloroform bandits," as they are beginning to be known in police circles, owing to their custom of drugging their victims before robbing them, are still operating in Montreal. Last night at a late hour a man who gave his name as James Lynch, 161 Windsor street, came into the police station and complained that he had been drugged and robbed of between $500 and $600.

Lynch states that he was going along Windsor street between 11 and 12 o'clock, a short distance below the C. P. R. station. Being a stranger in the city from the United States, he was sauntering along taking in the sights. He was met by five men coming up the street abreast, and as he was going to pass them they separated three and two, going each side of him. When directly behind him, he says, one of them grabbed his wrists, another putting his hand over his mouth the other three closing around him. They jostled him into a lane, and here he states, one of the men took a small vial from his coat pocket and wetting his handkerchief with the contents of the bottle placed it over the face of the victim. The latter states that he became unconscious for a few minutes and when he woke up the men and his money were gone.

Detectives are working on the case.

SEEKING MAN FOR FIENDISH MURDER

Vancouver, B.C., July 31.—A posse is hunting in the hills beyond Mud R 20 miles from Prince George, expecting to arrest Wilhelm Ogle, a German, who is charged with the fiendish murder of Thomas Dodds, a pioneer of the district.

Ogle and Dodds had been rival litigants and recently Ogle was bound over to keep the peace. Wednesday they saw Ogle attack Dodds who was quite aged. When the police arrived Dodd's head was found beaten to a jelly. Ogle, after the murder had returned to his shack and with food and ammunition and two rifles quickly took to the hills.

It is usually the man who doesn't know the secret of success who is willing to impart it to others.

Annual Meeting Of Odd Fellows Relief

Representatives Present From Every Part of the Dominion—Most Encouraging Reports of Year's Work Received.

The annual meeting of the Oddfellows' Relief Association was held at Kingston on Thursday last and representatives were present from various parts of the Dominion. Mr. L. B. Cooper, a director, and Mr. R. H. Ketcheson, of Belleville, were amongst those in attendance. The reports presented were most encouraging in their nature.

Finance Committee's Report.

Dr. P. T. Coupland, Grand Treasurer of Ontario, presented the report of the Finance Committee, stating that upon the fiscal condition of the association much of its future success depended. He referred to the increased surplus that had been placed to the credit of the Mortuary Fund during the past year. This surplus amounted to $272,221, and was an increase of $143,000 on the previous year. The committee recommended a transfer of $250,000 from the Mortuary to the Reserve Fund, making the Reserve Fund $2,022,110. The congratulations of the committee were offered the directors and members of the association on the financial statement at the close of June 30th, 1920, this statement showing the greatest financial progress in the history of the association.

Securities of Association.

The securities of the association were examined by three members of the Finance Committee, and they reported that these securities were in complete accord with the books of the association, being as follows:

Bank of Montreal, Kingston, special deposit .... $	4,611.71
Dominion War Loan Bonds	400,500.00
Hydro-Electric Power Com. of Ont. bonds ..	15,000.00

Province of British Columbia debentures	10,000.00
Province of Manitoba debentures	25,000.00
Province of Ontario debentures	10,000.00
Province of Prince Edward Island debentures ..	10,000.00
Province of Quebec Government deposit	5,000.00
Total	$2,026,736.42

Retiring Directors Re-elected.

The retiring directors, H. White, Port Hope, Ont., J. Oliver, Toronto, Ont., and Dr. J. C. Campbell, Kingston, Ont., were re-elected for a period of three years, as were also the auditors, John Nicolls and J. G. Ettinger, for a term of one year.

The meeting unanimously adopted a vote of thanks to the officers and directors of the association, to which the President, and Mr. J. A. Minnes suitably replied.

A meeting of the directors was held immediately after the adjournment, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. F. Nickle, Kingston, Ont.; Vice-President, H. White, Port Hope, Ont.; Secretary-Treasurer, F. S. Evanson, Kingston, Ont. The resident directors were elected as the Executive Committee.

Yacht Club Willing To Co-operate

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

HALIFAX, Aug. 2.—That the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron is willing to co-operate with A. C. Ross, formerly M.P. of Victoria and North Cape Breton, now of Montreal, in his efforts to construct a yacht in this province to challenge for the America's Cup, but that the scheme as at present propounded is scarcely practical, is the substance of remarks by one of the squadron officials discussing the project. Mr. Ross suggests raising funds throughout the Dominion by public subscription, at the same time soliciting the co-operation of all Canadian yachting organizations.

Ultimatum Served

Vienna, Aug. 2.—Roumania has served an ultimatum on Soviet Russia giving Soviet three days to withdraw their troops from Roumanian territory according to a Belgrade despatch. In event of Russian failure to comply, it is added, Roumania will declare general mobilization.

Welcome Extended to Premier Meighen

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Aug. 2.—This city today left off its daily toil and turned out to welcome Hon. Arthur Meighen, the first Premier of Canada from west of the Great Lakes. There was no politics in the day's program. The City Council and the Board of Trade arranged the day's program and the city's population was augmented by thousands from Winnipeg, Brandon, Manitou and Carberry. The Premier in his speech is expected by many to make a straightforward declaration of the Government's policy.

Doubt as to Armistice.

Warsaw, Aug. [illegible] ed today in diplomatic circles here as to whether an agreement for an armistice would come in the negotiations between the Polish and Soviet emissaries at Baranovitch. It was thought that the Soviet authorities were likely to impose terms [illegible] the Poles to accept.

Polish Armistice.

London, Aug. 2.—Up to early this afternoon nothing had arrived in official British or Polish quarters here to indicate definitely whether the Russian and Polish armistice emissaries had actually come into contact. The British Foreign Office is pressing the Allies' representatives in that part of the world for any scrap of news as to what is going on, but so far without results.

Bolsheviki Advancing.

London, Aug. 2.—Hot fighting along the river Narew in the region northeast of Warsaw is reported in Sunday's official Soviet communique, received by wireless from Moscow today. The crossing of the river at one point by the Bolsheviki is announced and progress against the Poles further to the southeast in the Bielsk region is claimed. Soviet is also reported as pressing in northeast of Lemburg.

Sir Edward Kemp Returns Checks

OTTAWA, Aug. 2.—Sir Edward Kemp, now Minister without portfolio, and formerly Minister of the Overseas Forces of Canada, has written the Department of Finance returning uncashed all cheques received by him for Ministerial salary during the war period. In all the cheques amount to $25,219, covering the whole of the payments to him as Minister of Militia and later as Minister of Overseas Forces.

Previous to being sworn in as Minister of Militia and subsequently as Minister of Overseas Forces, Sir Edward was without portfolio and acted, without remuneration, as Chairman of the War Purchasing Commission. In this capacity and as Minister, he had of necessity to incur expenses from time to time and was entitled to be reimbursed by the Government but he has rendered no account for such outlays nor will he do so.

He has also refrained from drawing any of his sessional indemnity for the last four sessions of Parliament.

Sir Edward's contributions under these heads, apart altogether from his large contributions to patriotic war objects run into a considerable amount. Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, has acknowledged appropriately Sir Edward's generosity, on behalf of the Government.

Hudson Bay Factor's 94th Birthday

Colin Rankin Spent Fifty Years With Hudson Bay Company.

Colin Rankin, chief factor of the Hudson Bay Company for the last quarter of the 19th century, and with over half a century in the company's service, celebrated his 94th birthday at his home on Durocher street, Montreal on Thursday, with an informal reception to the many friends who called to offer their congratulations.

Born in 1826 at Halifax, N.S., Mr Rankin entered the service of the Hudson Bay Company at the age of 22, as clerk, beginning his career well, with the distinction of being the first Canadian to be engaged by the company, which until then had imported all their office staff from England. His engagement was accidental, for while on holiday at Fort William, Quebec, he helped out with a rush of trading with the Indians, and Hector Mackenzie, then chief factor of the Upper Ottawa, was so impressed with the carefulness of young Rankin's work that he made enquiry after him, and a few days later offered to engage him. The appointment was confirmed by Sir George Simpson, then president of the Hudson Bay Company, and Mr. Rankin entered on the long 56 years which he was to spend in the company's service. For the first twenty years he moved frequently to different districts, gaining valuable experience.

He was sent to Fort Temiskaming in 1873, as chief trader, and was promoted to chief factor two years later not long afterwards changing the head quarters of the north district from Fort Temiskaming, which was too far off the main road of travel, to Mattawa, where he remained until his retirement from the Company in 1904, at the ripe age of 78.

He then came to settle down in Montreal, which has always made an appeal to him as the commercial centre of Canada, and has made this city his residence ever since.

Mr. Rankin, as a confidential agent of the Hudson Bay Company, whose history is so intimately linked with that of Canada, was privileged to count as friends many of the prominent men of affairs in Canada. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, recognizing Mr. Rankin's first-hand knowledge of the company's activities [illegible] relating to Canadian history, repeatedly asked him to compile a [illegible] both his personal knowledge of events and the official records.

Early Days In Prince Edward County

The year 1831 seems to have been an important one to the inhabitants, not only of Picton, but the peninsula. Enterprise was the order of the day, and improvements of a public character were in various ways proposed. The Free Press of July 5th says, under the heading "Another Steamboat": "We understand that a number of the enterprising inhabitants of this village have it in contemplation to build a steamboat to ply between this place and Prescott, to perform three trips in a week. A number of merchants and capitalists have offered to take stock. We are of opinion that a boat built and owned by the inhabitants of this county would be useful not only to the inhabitants of this Peninsula, but profitable to the stockholders. We would suggest to them the propriety of having the channel in the bay at the lower end of the village cleared, so as to allow steamboats to pass up as far as the bridge."

The present English Church, standing on Church street, was the first built in Picton. It was erected by the Rev. Wm. Macaulay, aided by a partial loan, in 1825. Mr. Macaulay was the first minister; he came to the parish after officiating for seven years at Cobourg, and has remained as Rector ever since. The Roman Catholic chapel, now standing on Church street, was the first erected, in 1828 or 1829, the land having been given for that purpose by Mr. Macaulay. The new stone church was built in 1839. Rev. Mr. Fraser was first minister, in 1823; Rev. Mr. Brennan occasionally from 1832 to 1836; the Rev. Mr. Lalor from 1836 to the present time.

DISTRICT DEPUTY

Mr. W.J. Potts, Trenton's Town Treasurer and Waterworks Manager, was honored at the Masonic meeting at Niagara Falls, in being elected District Deputy. This is the third time in 60 years that this honor has come to Trenton. The late J.S. Beach and Mr. R.H. Spencer were similarly honored on previous occasions. The Masonic district includes Hastings, Prince Edward and Brighton, in Northumberland. In all those there are seventeen lodges in the district, including Trenton and Frankford.

CADET CAMP AT PETERBORO.

As announced some weeks ago, a system of local cadet camps will be held throughout military district No. 3, instead of one single district camp, as at first proposed. The first local camp was held at Rockcliffe, Ottawa, by the De LaSalle academy, early this month and proved very successful. Since then Lt.-Col. G. H. Gillespie has been engaged upon working out the details of a similar camp at Peterboro, and has succeeded in completing the necessary arrangements. He returned from Peterboro recently and states that authority has been issued for the Peterboro camp. By an arrangement with the city the exhibition grounds have been secured, and all of the facilities available will be utilized. The water being near is a great boon. The reports coming in from the school instructors within a radius of forty miles of Peterboro, are very encouraging, and it is possible that the camp will open on August 23rd, with 500 lads under canvas. Haying will be over then and the opportunity for an outing will be much appreciated by the boys. The situation in Kingston is unchanged and there is no prospect for a camp at Barriefield this year.

Doctor's Home Was Ransacked

Dr. Perry Goldsmith Has Suffered From Thieves Thrice in Year

TORONTO, July 31.—For the third time in a year Dr. Perry Goldsmith, 84 Carlton street, has made the unpleasant acquaintance with the practices of thieves. As on each of the preceding occasions, the alleged culprit is lodged in the police cells. The accused in this instance is Mickey Riordan of Euclid Place, and the charge is that of stealing a necklace belonging to Dr. Goldsmith. Riordan, it is alleged, sneaked into the Doctor's residence by the back door, found his way upstairs and ransacked a couple of rooms.

Apparently he was disturbed by something and as he was attempting to make his exit he was seen by the housekeeper, who raised an alarm. Riordan, it is stated ran out the back way and sought to gain the street by a side drive. However Dr. Goldsmith happened to be returning from a call about that time, and notified by the housekeeper, he grabbed Riordan at the gate and escorted him back to the house. The thief was held till Plainclothesman Clarkson arrived to take to the cells. The necklace was found on the stairs, where the thief evidently dropped it in his haste. Nothing else was missing.

Shortly before Dr. Goldsmith's return from overseas thieves stole about $3,000 worth of goods from his house. Some time later his motor car was stolen. In each case the culprits were apprehended.

Liquor Brings in Enormous Sums

Montreal, Aug. 2.—Orders for liquor from outside provinces continue to pour into Montreal, the sudden rush of business being doubtless due to some of the provinces' preparations to take plebiscites under the recent ruling of the Federal Government. Various estimates on the amount of money which comes into the city for booze but on the most reliable authority the figure is placed at $10,000,000 per month.

Ontario still continues to lead the van in liquor orders and the exporters are kept busy.

A large number of mail order houses which were in operation in conjunction with the importers in Montreal have now gone out of business, due to a circular recently issued by J. R. Lewis, prohibition officer for the Province of Quebec, wherein it is stated that it is illegal for the wholesaler to accept orders from a third party, they having to receive the order direct from the consumer.

Great quantities of imported liquor have come into Montreal during the past few months, but despite this fact exporters state they have considerable trouble in supplying the trade with the more popular brands.

Many beer orders have been received since the hot weather commenced, but this does not entail the work that is necessary in connection with the shipping of liquors, on account of the orders being sent direct by the exporters to the brewery nearest the consumer's home, the brewery shipping direct.

A matter which may seriously affect the business of the vendors in Montreal is the recent ruling that residents of Quebec can legally order whiskey from any other province in Canada. One of the firms in Ontario engaged in the exportation of liquor to other provinces states that it has received a great number of orders from Quebec recently, the majority, however, coming from the smaller towns and cities.

RULES SENATE DIVORCE INEFFECTIVE IN QUEBEC

Montreal, July 31.—While expressing emphatic opinion that a decree of divorce pronounced by the Senate Committee of the Federal Parliament has no legal application under the civil law of the Province of Quebec, Mr. Justice Loranger in the Superior Court declined to pass judgment on the action which was presented in court on Tuesday last, asking that W. David should be relieved from a provisional order of the Superior Court that he pay an alimentary pension of $40 a month to his wife, Dame B. Desnoyers, pending final judicial separation, and referred the Fox matter to the trial Judge.

The reason for the husband's demand was that after the interlocutory judgment ordering him to pay his wife's provisional pension he had obtained a divorce.

The reason why Justice Loranger would not decide the motion was because he considered so doing would be passing judgment on the merits of the wife's petition. Therefore, he referred the motion to the court which will have to adjudicate on the merits of the demand for a judicial separation.

Government Profits

Lord Inverforth, formerly Surveyor-General of Supplies in the British War Office, by world-wide purchases of raw materials on behalf of the government, was able to turn into the British treasury on March 31st last $25,000,000 representing profits on all transactions since 1914, according to his report recently made to the Ministry of Munitions.

While the profits were large, Sir Arthur Goldfinch, Director-General of Raw materials points out that the economic benefits were far greater. The raw materials obtained were largely used in the manufacture of military equipment with a direct saving estimated at more than $50,000,000. The purchases were of wool, hides, leather, flax, hemp and similar materials.

Insurance, generally taken out, served to more than make up losses from submarine warfare, it was stated. The record of Lord Inverforth's activities is in contrast with results obtained by similar departments in other Allied countries. Among the purchases were nearly $21,000,000 pounds of American sole leather and $2,000,000 feet of American upper leather.

Included in the chief items of textile and leather equipment for the army and navy, air force and other branches of the public service and for the Allies from August 4, 1914, to March 31, 1919, were: 61,890,626 pairs of boots; 81,538,00 yards of cotton drill; 60,917,00 yards of khaki; 16,229,000 ground sheets; 1,185,000,000 sand bags; 19,505,920 blankets; 23,775,215 jackets; 164,214,787 pairs of socks; and 20,180,810 pairs of woollen gloves.

Contracts made with British manufacturers for the goods afforded them a larger profit than they made for similar work in pre-war days, it was said, and served to speed up production.

A WAR VERSION OF ENOCH ARDEN

Kansas City, July 31.—A war version of Enoch Arden, with a different ending, was written into the records of Judge C. A. Burney's court yesterday, with Eugene E. Peel in the role of Philip Ray.

Back in 1914, according to Peel, there was an Annie Lee living at Carthage, Mo. Her name was Esther Warren. She had two suitors. Besides Peel, there was Henry Curtis. Curtis won the courtship. He married Esther in August, 1914, and Peel came to Kansas City to be away from the remembrance.

Then came the world war, and tore Curtis away from his bride. In 1915 he went with the Canadian Expeditionary forces to Belgium. From the battle of Mons came word to Esther of her husband's death.

"Gassed and died in hospital," was the official Canadian report.

Peel learned of the widowhood of his former sweetheart, and renewed solicitation for her hand. September 19, 1916, Peel and Esther were wed. They came to Kansas City to live.

In June, 1919, Curtis came home. Months in a hospital, delirious and unable to tell his identity, and marks of identification lost, was his explanation of his long absence. He had been gassed and listed as dead in action.

"Not to tell her, never to let her know," the words of Tennyson's Enoch Arden, did not occur to Henry Curtis. He found trace of his wife and showed up in the midst of a seemingly happy and legitimate married life. Esther was asked to choose. She did. Peel's request for a divorce was granted today.

TRAVELLER DEAD.

Toronto, July 30.—The death occurred last night at Grace Hospital, of John J. Byrnes, following an operation. The late Mr. Byrnes was employed as a traveller by N. M. Squires & Company, and was widely known by travelling men throughout Ontario. He was for some years a member of the Knights of Columbus. He was a son of the late John Byrnes of Collingwood, and will be buried from his father's residence, "Balcaris," at that city. He is survived by his wife, Mrs Margaret Byrnes, and by his mother, Mrs. John Byrnes of Collingwood.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"OTHER MEN'S SHOES"

The long awaited Edgar Lewis production, "Other Men's Shoes," is the feature attraction at Griffin's for three days, commencing to-night. This is the first of a series of Edgar Lewis' productions which are to be shown in Belleville and will no doubt be looked forward to with interest.

Edgar Lewis' production of such features as "The Great Divide," "The Barrier," "The Bar Sinister," "The Sign Invisible," and many others are already well-known to screen fans everywhere, and have won for him the reputation of the greatest director of outdoor stories. The theme of his stories are always clean and wholesome, yet vigorous and potent and abounding in dramatic situations.

"Other Men's Shoes" is no exception to Mr. Lewis' rule of good photoplay entertainment. Andrew Soutar, novelist and war correspondent, is the author of the story, which is skillfully woven around twin brothers who are so alike in face, figure and voice, that one can take the place of the other without detection by his most intimate friends.

The sterling young actor Crauford Kent was chosen by Mr. Lewis as the ideal type to portray the dual role and others in the cast are Irene Boyle, Jean Armour, Harold Forshay and young Bobby Connelly, the famous Vitagraph child actor.

"Monkey Business" a funny 2-reel Sunshine comedy a beautiful and interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue and a new chapter of "The Lost City" serial have also been arranged for exhibition on the same program in addition to the above feature offering.

PREMIER MEIGHEN'S MOTHER STILL BAKES HER OWN BREAD

Mrs. Joseph Meighen, mother of the new Prime Minister is a wonderfully bright and active old lady. Although she has passed the allotted "three score years and ten," she is still a most efficient housewife, even baking her own bread.

Mr. and Mrs. Meighen, senior, are at present living at Ottawa, having recently gone there from St. Mary's, Ontario, and next January they hope to celebrate their golden wedding.

Mrs. Meighen is still keenly interested in politics, and follows the debates in the House closely. Staunch Presbyterians, the Meighens brought up their six children in the doctrines of their church. One son, Edward, served as a gunner for three years of the war.

WIN FOR OSHAWA.

At Oshawa on Saturday afternoon a Central Ontario baseball match was played between Belleville and Oshawa tams. The result was very disappointing to Belleville fans who accompanied the team as they saw Oshawa trim our team by a score of 7 to3. The winning team virtually own the game in the first innings when no less than five players crossed the plate. Owing to a misunderstanding, Fred Goyer, Belleville celebrated twirler, did not reach Oshawa until a portion of the game had been played. After the 1st innings Oshawa was held down to two runs.

TELLING THE TIME.

Strange Methods Employed by Primitive Peoples.

Housewives in these days very commonly use sand glasses of the familiar hour-glass pattern for timing boiled eggs. They are employed for the same purposes in many restaurant and hotel kitchens.

The contrivance is, of course, quite ancient, dating back to the middle ages. In much later times, and not so very long ago, it was utilized for timing prayers and sermons. Even nowadays there is an occasional old-fashioned church that keeps a "prayer-glass" on the pulpit.

As one might imagine, such glasses were not beyond criticism in point of accuracy. Four of them were carefully tested recently by the writer. One, supposed to mark an even hour, took sixty-seven minutes to run out—a serious error for the congregation if the sermon was dry. Another, for three-quarters of an hour, registered only forty-two minutes. The remaining two were, respectively, undertimed and overtimed two minutes.

The sand glass, in European countries, replaced the yet more antiquated "time candle," which was marked off in sections of an hour. As a timekeeper, the candle is exceedingly ancient; it was so employed in Rome before Christ was born, and very likely by the Egyptians and Babylonians in much earlier days. Courting by length of candle was an old-fashioned custom in England.

An equivalent method of timekeeping is even now practiced by the Chinese, who employ, instead of a candle, a length of joss-stick — the same thing that Canadian small boys use as "punk" for setting off firecrackers. It is made of sawdust, mixed with a little glue and rolled into cylinders of a measured diameter. Such a stick, two feet long and marked for the hours, lasts half a day, being consumed slowly without flame.

Messengers in China, having but short periods to sleep, make sure of waking by placing a lighted piece of joss-stick between their toes. This acts most effectively at the proper moment. Doubtless it was the first and original alarm clock.

A Russian Fairy Story.

In his book on "Russia Then and Now," Mr. Francis B. Reeves quotes a story of Count Ilya Tolstoy's concerning the woods where his father is buried that expresses in a striking manner Tolstoy's message to humanity.

"My story has no setting time or space," writes the count. "Two boys roamed through the woods telling each other stories. They were talking of love; how all men will some day become brothers. Nikolenka wrote the word on a green little stick and said that before men could become brothers this word must be known. That was ages ago, when the stick was buried, and the boy said that whoever found the stick would make all men happy.

"After the passage of time peasants came to the slope and dug a three-yard grave at the summit, and the next day, when a multitude of people gathered, they lowered the corpse of a gray, robust old man. Then night comes. The whole western horizon is purple-red with fire, the sky is bathed in blood—War! Shadows of the oaks lie upon the snow when a ghost rises from the grave. In his hands he holds a green little stick. The ghost roams through houses, humble huts and hamlets, speaking the word to every one, and everyone understands.

"But the West still burns; is still aflame. The ghost hurries his steps to the westward. Confused and disconcerted people rush by. He wanted to tell them the word, but his feeble voice was drowned by the roar of thunder in the fumes of smoke. After gazing long on the furnace, the ghost wended his way back to the slope of the seven oaks. And the fire will be extinguished because the green little stick is there.

"I cannot express in any other way the message of my father to humanity. The ideas of Christ that were understood as my father understood them are eternal ideas. That is why I do not speak about peace between nations, because the idea of Christ is wider. His teaching was not peace simply. His teaching was love."

Buffalo Bill's Teeth.

When Buffalo Bill was fifty he still had all his teeth, in perfect alignment, worn down almost to the gums, but without a sign of decay. This fact is used by Dr. H. P. Pickerill, professor of dentistry in the University of Otago as an illustration of the value of primitive foods in the preservation of the teeth.

Buffalo Bill led for a great part of his life the existence of a normal savage, eating the venison which he shot and roasted in the woods and on the plains. This, according to Dr. Pickerill, gave proper play to the muscles of mastication. The teeth had much exercise and consequently never decayed, although they wore down.

Breaking It Gently.

At an amateur performance an artiste gave imitations of several popular actors, one of whom happened to be present.

Afterward the ambitious amateur sought an introduction to the "star," and asked hopefully:

"Did you see my imitation of you?"

"I did," replied the great man, promptly.

"Then, sir," persisted the aspiring youth, "may I ask you to give me your opinion of my art as shown in that impersonation?"

"Well, my boy," the great man said "one of us is rotten!"—London Tit-Bits.

THOSE WHO GO DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS

There would have been no great world war if Germany, having perfected the finest military machine possible after forty years intensive effort had not been convinced that the propaganda of pacifism which had spread over the world, actively encouraged by this same militaristic nation, had instilled a false feeling of security and unpreparedness among the other nations favorable for German designs to conquer the world.

Now that the war is apparently over, pacifism propaganda is again active everywhere and finding fruitful ground among the war-weary peoples sickened and sorrowed by the horrors of the most terrible conflicts that the world has ever experienced.

While militarism in the abstract is a thing to be feared and hated, its antidote is not unpreparedness and the propaganda of pacifism is more to be feared and distrusted.

The world must be made safe for democracy and the world must develop conditions which will make impossible the plans and plots of nations still dominated by militarism.

The Navy League of Canada is one of the forces capable of effectually combatting offensive militarism, as a powerful factor in seeing that the British Empire maintains the mastery of the seas.

The British Navy has protected Canada and the whole peace-loving world, but it is high time that Canada was assuming part of the burden of protection which that mastery of the seas can alone provide.

The Navy League of Canada will provide training for Canadian boys and open up honorable and useful careers in the merchant marine and navy for our young men. It will provide physical training which makes for manhood and character, it will provide for the comfort of sailors and the care of the widows and orphans of those who have given their lives in unselfish service to keep the seas open to the commerce of the world and the development of Canadian resources.

A Canadian merchant marine manned and operated by Canadians will be a great factor in the development of a Greater Canada and a Canadian navy acting in conjunction with and as a component part of the British Navy will ensure the freedom of the seas and be an important part in the necessary bulwark which must be erected against militaristic designs of unfriendly nations.

Every real Canadian will heartily support the aims and objects of the Navy League of Canada, which are not militaristic, but protective and constructive.

WHERE GERMANY FAILED.

"Unprecedented though it was, and lacking in no circumstance of treachery, callousness, and vindictiveness, the new German sea-gospel utterly failed, if that were its object, in intimidating a single British sailor. And despite its losses, and, in the first instance, to a larger degree, its unprotectedness, the mercantile marine, under its sturdy commanders, pursued its normal and imperturbable way. Not a sailor refused to sign on; not a master tendered his resignation. And to any one familiar with the merchant service skipper that was no matter for surprise. The products and inheritors of a tradition, proved and made fast by a thousand perils, they are the flower of a service which in the past was the cradle and nursery of the British Navy, and upon which, as this war has proved, not only the very existence of our Empire has depended, but the whole cause of our Allies and the liberty of mankind itself."

Thus writes Archibald Hurd, one of the most talented and observant of British journalists and war correspondents. Canada is no longer a colony but a part, and an important part, of the great British Empire and shares even more deeply than ever in the glorious traditions of sea and land which are part and parcel of Britain's greatness. Canadians have shown their worth in war on sea and land and should rejoice in the glorious traditions of heroism and service and endeavor to perpetuate and make them even more glorious in the days to come. One way to do this is to become active members of the Navy League of Canada, the aims and objects of which are inseparably linked with Canada's future greatness as the brightest gem in the diadem of British world-wide service for freedom and righteous.

A GREAT BRITISH HARBOR.

Shortly before the war arrangements were made to complete the works at Fishguard Harbor and these have now, in spite of many interruptions, been carried through. The northern breakwater, which is exposed to very heavy seas, has been strengthened with over three hundred tons of rubble (some of the masses weighing as much as three tons) and over 5000 concrete blocks, most of which are 40 tons weight. The eastern breakwater has also been strengthened with more than eleven thousand tons of rubble. At the end of the northern breakwater a new concrete lighthouse has been erected, with a 5000-candle power lantern which is visible in clear weather for a distance of thirteen miles. Its mechanism—revolving the optic, ringing the fog-bell, and supplying the gas—is electrically controlled from the generating station at the root of the breakwater. The end of the eastern breakwater carries an automatic flashing light using dissolved acetylene gas. The supply of gas to the burner is automatically controlled by a "sun-valve" which turns on the gas at sunset or at any time when daylight becomes inadequate for safe navigation. The gas cylinders contain enough for a whole year's supply; and for ten months this mechanism has been working satisfactorily without any attention. Fishguard Harbor was begun in 1898 and represents a triumph of British engineering over serious natural obstacles.

The Bolsheviki seem determined to put the Poles underground, individually and collectively, but the red flag of retrogression may soon have to dig in or take the subterranean route back to Moscow.

Hon. Arthur Meighen is a "Tory," shrieks the rabid Grit organs in accents of reproach. Don't worry, brothers, Sir John A. Macdonald was a Tory, so also was Sir James Whitney, Sir Robert Borden, and other great men whom Canada delights to honor for their one hundred per cent. Canadianism, and the memory of whose achievements will always be bright pages in Canadian history.

A Political Mystery
Atchison Globe

It is peculiar that Presidents don't do better. Heaven knows they receive plenty of advice from the newspapers.

By a Large Majority

Pittsburg Gazette-Times ....

Connecticut is so short of school-teachers that prayers are being offered for an increased supply. Increased salaries would doubtless assist in securing a definite answer to the petitions.

The Next Great War
New York Tribune

Another great war is plainly incubating—incubating for more plainly and visibly than did the one which burst on the world in 1914. The frontiers of unrepentent Germany and of militant Bolshevik Russia are in contact. Between the two countries is a community of selfish imperialistic interest and thus a basis furnished for an aggressive alliance.

Are the parts of the world, including the United States, which would have peace and an orderly democratic civilization to repeat the folly of 1914? Are they lulled once more to obliviousness to danger? Are they of those who have eyes yet see not?

THE POET'S CORNER

A MODERN SONNET
Ella Fanning in New York Sun

Clorinda, you're the girl for me!
I caught you Tuesday darning hose,
And even the dullest eye can see
Neat patches on your last year's clothes!
Your shoe-blacked hat home-laundered blouse.
Your gloves with well-inked finger-tips,
Your careful ways about the house,
Bring praises to a lover's lips.

I picture some safe inglenook
A kitchenette, with you the queen
I've heard you say you love to cook
The costly spud, the humble bean.
I've learned how simple are your tastes—
You're mindful of a poor clerk's purse;
Scorn her who coin on candy wastes—
Vow ices bad and lobster worse!

Ah, my Clorinda, heed these rhymes,
Of one who's love will e'er prove true—
Who, in these fearsome, high-price times,
A treasure, girlie, sees in you!
Applied Domestic Science, pet,
Your household platform's chiefest plank;
Out of the salary I get
Each week a dime we ought to bank.

A LAUGH OR TWO

Few of us realize how much we are tolerated.

If all the donkeys had long ears, what queer looking objects some men would be.

A married man never fully realizes what he is up against until after he has met every one of his wife's relations.

Plenty of Room

Boy—Was the car very crowded when you came today, uncle?

Uncle—No; I had a strap to myself.

Enough For a Honeymoon

He (proposing)—I've saved up enough to live at the rate of $10,000 a year.

She—For how long?

He—Oh, six months.

Hurried Affair

Mother (picking up Dickie who had fallen down stairs—"How many steps did you fall down pet?"

Dickie (sobbing)—"Oh, mummie, I c-c-came down so quickly I h-h-hadn't time to count."

Missed One Guess

"Bobby, your mother tells me you are a very bright boy, and she expects you to be a great man," said Mr. Blossom as he sat in the parlor waiting for Bobby's sister.

"Ma never does 'spect right. She doesnt know what she's talking about. She told dad she 'spected you and my sister would be married 'fore spring, and that was more than a year ago."

Why They Scribble

Dribbler—In my opinion a man who writes an illegible hand does it because he thinks people are willing to puzzle over it. In other words, he is a chunk of deceit.

Scribbler—Not always. Some times a man writes illegibly not because he is conceited, but because he is modest.

Dribbler—Modest! What about?

FAVOR CITY MANAGER OUTLINE HIS POWERS

Montreal, July 31.—After accepting the principle that Montreal should have a city manager, the sub-committee of the charter commission meeting here decided that among the powers which such city manager shall have shall be the supervision of all employees of the city, with the exception of a few head officials to be named later, and all heads of departments are to be appointed on his recommendation, such recommendation, to be rejected by the council, to require a two-thirds vote.

Following the steps of the charter commission, the sub-committee likewise concurred in the acceptance of the principle that Montreal should adopt proportional representation or the representation of minorities in municipal elections.

Sir H. Laporte, chairman of the charter commission, announced that he had discussed the question of Montreal's new charter with Premier Taschereau, who was disposed to grant to Montreal all reasonable demands, short of wanting to govern the province.

TWO BICYCLES STOLEN

On Saturday two bicycles were stolne in the city, one the property of Mr. Robert Elliot and the other belonging to a so nof Mr. John Leigh, superintendant of the House of Refuge. The former wheel has been recovered and the party who took it has been apprehended.

SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the County Council will be held at the Counil Chamber in this city on Thursday. The meeting is for the purpose of considering the matter of equalization which was adopted at the June session and which is not satisfactory to some of the municipalities.

AUTO TAKEN AND RECOVERED

On Sunday morning Constable Harris of the G.T.R. discovered an auto on the side of the road at the east yard of the railway. The city police was notified and the car was taken in charge and ran to the station. Later it was claimed by a foreigner who resides in the city. It had been taken away without the permission of the owner.

CHILDREN'S COURT

Children's Court was held today by Magistrate Masson, when two boys were before him on charges of the theft. One of the lads took a bicycle whilst the other stole a small sum of money. The boy who took the bicycle was given a term in the Industrial School at Mimico and the other boy will be under the supervision of Mr. Ruston, inspector of the Children's Aid Society.

LOST AN EYE

Alderman W. R. T. Wensley, who resides at 276 Bleecker Avenue, was on Saturday the victim of a deplorable accident, whereby he lost the sight of an eye. It appears that Mr. Wensley was chopping wood with an axe when a piece of wood flew up in his face striking the left eye and inflicting an ugly wound. Ald. Wensley was taken to the hospital where upon examination it was ascertained that the sight had been destroyed. The injured member has not yet been removed. The victim of the accident is a G.T.R. engineer who has been in the employ of the company for a number of years.

BARON BANK CLERK

The Rt. Hon. Wm. Baron de Blaquiere, who died in England Friday, was at one time a member of the staff of the Brockville branch of the bank of Montreal, having been a ledgerkeeper here in the early eighties. His initials are now seen scratched on the window of the bank building at Brockville. Born at Woodstock, Ont., in 1856, Baron de Blaquiere was educated there and after spending some years in the service of the bank of Montreal, in 1889 succeeded his brother in the peerage. He was also a baronet and Great Alnagar of Ireland. A justice of the peace, he also served as an officer in the North Somerset Yeomantry. Baron de Blaquiere's residence was at Bath England. He was married in 1898 to Lucienne, daughter of the late Geo. E. Desbarats, Montreal.

NINETY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY.

The oldest resident of Napanee, in the person of Mrs. Thomas Wilson, will celebrate her ninety-sixth birthday on August 20th. Mrs. Wilson has made her home in Napanee almost all her life, having spent a few years on a farm near Camden East. She was born in Canada and remembers quite well the small town of Napanee when it was hewn from the forest which surrounded the river. She is a remarkable woman for her age. She is able to do her own work about the house and has always baked her own bread. She has three sons living: John, in Boyle & Sons' hardware store; Samuel, caretaker of the Collegiate, and William, Toronto. She has seven grandchildren. She still retains all her faculties, and is very interesting to talk with.

FATALLY GORED BY HEIFER

Mr. Robert Watts, a farmer living two miles north of Wellington, was so badly injured when attacked by an angry heifer that he died on Friday night in Picton Hospital. On Friday afternoon Ewart Harnes and Gladwin Harnes were driving cattle along the road to Wellington. A two-year-old heifer became unmanageable and jumped over a fence upon the farm of Mr. Watts. Mr. Watts came to the assistance of the men. The heifer attacked Watts and Gladwin Harnes viciously. Finally it was driven off, but not until Mr. Watts had received fatal injuries, being gored and bruised. Gladwin Harnes was bruised about the abdomen but will recover. The victim of the accident was 45 year of age and was highly respected in the community in which he resided.

ENGINEER'S WIFE IS OUT WITH THE FACTS

Had Suffered From Indigestion Until Life Was a Perfect Misery, She States — Is Now Well And Happy.

"I never made a better purchase when I took my friends' advice and bought Tanlac, for my present excellent health is entirely due to that remarkable medicine," said Mrs. D. Castonguay, wife of a well-known C.N.R. locomotive engineer, residing at 125 Des Fosses, Quebec.

"For the past six years at least I had been in a very run-down condition and suffered so from indigestion that my life was a perfect misery. I just felt tired all the time and frequently had headaches that made me almost blind with pain. I was a great sufferer with rheumatism and the result of so many troubles was that my nerves got into such a state that I couldn't sleep at night. I simply had to let the housework go and thought I should soon have to give up altogether.

"Several of my friends were so much helped by Tanlac that I decided to give it a trial too, and it seemed to do me good from the first dose and now after taking three bottles I can honestly say that I am like a different woman. I have a splendid appetite and never have any trouble with indigestion. I have become so much stronger that I can do all my housework without any trouble. Headaches are a thing of the past and the rheumatism seems to have left me entirely. My nerves are now as steady as can be and I sleep so well at night that I get up in the mornings feeling fresh and strong. I have already recommended Tanlac to a great many of my friends, and am glad of this chance to tell a wider circle of people what an excellent medicine Tanlac is."

Called By Death

ALEXANDER RUSHLOW

On Saturday evening Mr. Alexander Rushlow passed away at the family residence, 22 Wharf street city after being in ill health for some time. In the year 1852 deceased was born in this city where he had resided all his life and where he was favorbly known. Mr. Rushlow was a member of St. Thomas Anglican Church. PICKLE FACTORY ALCOHOL DISAPPEARS IN TRANSIT

Windsor, July 31.—Last Friday 65 barrels of alcohol were shipped from Walkerville to the Heinte Pickle Company at Leamington. Although the goods were shipped in bond, nine barrels were found to be missing when the shipment arrived at its destination and no trace of the missing spirits has yet been found.

The barrels averaged about 43 Imperial gallons each of alcohol which is proof whiskey, and as there are about six quarts to each Imperial gallon each 540 quarts of whiskey, the whole nine containing the wherewithal for making 4,860 quarts. At ruling quotations of $10 per quart the bootleggers profit would be approximately $48,000.

LIFE ON OCEAN FLOOR.

A two-inch section of sea-bottom with its tiny animal and plant life magnified 15,000 times, has been reproduced in glass and wax at the American Museum of Natural History at New York.

It is called the Bryozoan Group, taking its name from the minute sea-animals popularly called sea-mats and sea-mosses, that it depicts.

Their shells are encrusted on seaweeds, pebbles and the shells of larger animals, and are said to be extremely beautiful in their intricate form and coloring. The "plumed worm" with its gay colors and other strange microscopic creatures, of which the average person seldom dreams, complete the group.

FRANK W. ROBINSON.

On Saturday afternoon the funeral of the late Mr. Frank W. Robinson, the talented musician of this city, took place and was largely attended. Deceased was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and a large number of craftsmen were present to pay their last tribute of respect to a brother. The G. W. V. A. band, of which the deceased was a member, was also present, in compliance with the expressed wish of the deceased, and headed the cortege, playing Chopin's Funeral March. The deceased was a highly valued member of the band, and his demise is deeply regretted by the members of that organization and by the musical fraternity in general. Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, Rector of St. Thomas' Church, officiated at the house and grave. Past Master W. Bro. Jesse Barlow conducted the burial service of the Masonic Society, assisted by Ven. Archdeacon Beamish. The floral tributes were many and beautiful in design. The bearers were members of both band and craft, being Walter Aselstine, Harry Thompson, Leon Walmsley, Reginald Hinchey, Wm. Harte and David Brown.

The Only Dessert of This Kind

There are numerous forms of quick gelatine desserts. But Jiffy-Jell is the only one with the real-fruit flavors sealed in glass.

They crush the fruit, condense the juice and seal it. A bottle of the liquid fruit essence comes in each package of Jiffy-Jell. In a moment's time you can prepare a delicious fruit dessert.

Sugar is used in Jiffy-Jell—not saccharine. And real-fruit flavors in place of artificial. It will give you a new conception of these delightful dainties.

Jiffy-Jell is often used in place of jam, marmalade, etc. Additional sugar may be used to suit the taste.

Giant Warrior of Middle Ages.

The pride and magnificence that played their part in the days of chivalry can hardly have a better illustration than the suit of equestrian armor which has recently been placed on exhibition in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York city. Sieur Jacques Gourdon de Genouilhac wore the suit in the sixteenth century, and Sieur Jacques was an uncommonly large and powerful warrior, who served under Louis XII. and Francis I. of France. As may be deduced from their armor, the knights of the period were not noticeably large men, and Sieur Jacques must have seemed a veritable giant, for a six-foot attendant at the museum has tried on his armor and is said to have "merely rattled around in it."

Assistance Furnished.

Building Versailles.

Voltaire estimated that Versailles cost Louis about £20,000,000. Mirebeau put the cost at more than £40,000,000, and Volney at nearly £60,000,000.

The exact cost never has been known and there is a popular story that the grand monarch was so scared when he saw the bills, that he tore them up, so that no one should ever know how much he had expended on it.

The work was begun in 1651, when 20,000 workmen and 6,000 horses were set to work to create the great park and build the chateau. Thirty-four years later a courtier wrote in his diary:

"There are more than 36,000 peasants now at work for the King in and about Versailles. These half clad and half starved wretches die by the dozens under the strain of the cruel tasks imposed upon them."

The family of each workman who died in the King's service received about twelve shillings compensation.

Full of Thrills.

The people who are talking of the air route from Cairo to the Cape as though there would soon be passenger services running, have got hold of the wrong end of the stick. There aren't going to be any queues waiting at the Cairo booking office for a time. But for sheer joy of adventure and turmoil of experience the African route beats to a frazzle both the trans-Atlantic flight and the journey to Australia. You land here, and elephants come nosing round the camp. You land there, and you sleep to the lullaby of lions roaring round. You land in a dry swamp and are beset by mosquitoes and centipedes. You get up and are driven by a sandstorm which propels you 366 miles in less than three hours, and at a height of 7,000 or 8,000 feet you wrestle with innumerable whirlwinds caused by the furious heat.—Manchester Guardian.

Joan of Arc a Saint

NOT for many years has the canonization by the Church of Rome of a new saint attracted such attention as the elevation to this rank of Joan of Arc in Rome a few weeks ago. The Maid of Orleans becomes the patron saint of France, at a time when France emerges shaken but confident from the greatest war in history. It is fitting that the warrior maid who nearly five hundred years ago saved her country should be thus exalted, for during the war her name was more on the lips and in the hearts of the devout French people than any other of their great warriors in the past, than any of their saints who have been canonized for centuries. Joan would have been canonized long ago, perhaps, if there had not been political difficulties. In the days when England was a Roman Catholic country the Pope could not have proceeded with the process of rehabilitating Joan without offence. For centuries, however, it has been regarded as certain that Joan would one day reach beatification, but only in our own times has the matter been resolutely taken up and pressed forward.

The first step was made some nineteen years after she had been burned at the stake, when Charles VII. entered Rouen, and in gratitude to the Maid appointed a commission to review and annul her trial. Five years later, the reigning Pope appointed a commission to perform the same task in the name of the church, and to establish the fact that Joan was actuated by the loftiest motives and was a being of unblemished life. The evidence then gathered was published and remains in the archives of the Vatican, but it was not until 1869 that a petition was made to Pope Pius IX. to canonize Joan. The request came from French bishops, but in such matters it is the custom of the church to move with extreme deliberation. New ecclesiastical commissions were appointed, and the history of the case was re-examined. In 1901 it was established by the Congregation of Rites, that Joan had not abjured her faith when being burned at the stake. In 1904, Pius X. issued a decree of heroicity. It was then necessary as a further step that there should be undoubted proofs of three miracles wrought through Joan, and this proof was accepted in 1908.

The first of them was the instantaneous cure in Orleans of a Benedictine, Sister Teresa, after a novena made in honor of Joan. She had suffered from ulcer of the stomach for three years, and was at the point of death. This was in 1900. The second to be admitted was the cure of Sister Julie of the Sisters of Providence in 1893, who was carried to the Church in Favrolles to invoke Joan for ulcer of the breast. She was cured the same day. The third miracle happened in Fruges. Sister Jeanne Marie was afflicted with tuberculosis of the bones and her case pronounced incurable, but on the fifth day of her prayer to Joan she was cured. Having accepted this evidence, Pope Pius, in 1909, formally announced the beatification of the Maid of Orleans. Another interval of ten years elapsed before thirteen cardinals and twenty-two consultators recorded their placet to Joan's canonization, and Pope Benedict XV. asked for prayers that his decision might be enlightened by the Holy Ghost. On March 26, His Holiness announced that his decision was in the affirmative, and as an inevitable sequel, Joan was canonized on Sunday.

Whether one believes in miracles or disbelieves it must be admitted that those accepted by the Church of Rome in the course of an inquiry into claims for canonization are subjected to a long and severe scrutiny. No evidence in favor of miracles would be accepted, of course, by those who deny their existence, but once admitting their possibility the evidence of the church would appear conclusive. The ablest minds in the hierarchy are in judgment, and it is said that no session of the United States Supreme Court is more august. The cardinals and consultators hear evidence presented by a representative of those asking for the canonization. In opposition is that dignitary known as the "devil's advocate," for even the church appears to admit the right of the devil to a day in court. It is the duty of this functionary to argue against the honor being granted, and to bring out any weak spot in the character of the candidate. From all such tests of successive commissions extending over several centuries Joan of Arc has emerged triumphant.

So comes true Shakespeare's prophecy uttered by the Dauphin of France in King Henry VI.: "But Joan la Pucelle shall be France's saint." As M. Jusserand observed on the occasion of the dedication of the Joan of Arc statue in New York city a few years ago, there was no greater miracle than the miracle the Maid wrought in the spirit of France. She changed France from a decadent to a warrior nation. Said Andrew Lang: "She was the most perfect daughter of her church. To her its sacraments were the very Bread of Life; her conscience by frequent confession, was kept fair and pure as the lilies of Paradise. In a tragedy without parallel or precedent the Flower of Chivalry died for France and the chivalry of France had deserted her; she died by the chivalry of England which shamefully entreated and destroyed her while the most faithful of Christians perished through the celestial science and dull political hatred of priests who impudently called themselves the church. She came with powers and with genius which should be the marvel of the world while the world stands. She redeemed a nation and wrought such works as seemed to her people, and well might seem, miraculous."

CORSET WEEK

PLAN BEFORE SPENDING

Particularly at this time, when the purchasing power of a dollar is so far below normal, a person wants to plan before spending, and the only way that you can get 100 cents for your dollar is to spend it wisely, and after thinking what you are going to get for it.

The continually advancing prices of CORSETS is now making the purchase of a pair of corsets an expensive matter, therefore it is advisable to spend a little time thinking just what you have to pay and where you will buy. This week we should like to take the opportunity of announcing to our many customers that we have received a large new stock of the best of the finest makes of corsets, such as:

Every woman knows the value of a pair of comfortable corsets to her appearance and the greatly admired lines of a rightly poised, perfectly proportioned body, gracefully unconscious of corsetry except for its delightfully comfortable support—will give charm and added value to any clothes.

We invite you to call and see our stock of Corsets and consider their points, and we shall have great pleasure in helping you find one for your figure, and we can say with every confidence that we shall be able to fit you no matter what your figure is. We have a corset for every figure.

The Corset Department is on the Ground Floor (Rear) and we have Private Rooms for your convenience. Also, Miss M. Henderson, who is a graduate of the Gossard School of Corsetry, will always be in attendance and at your service for fitting and advice, and will be very pleased to render any assistance in making a choice. Come and consult her without being compelled to buy, and get expert advice.

The leading makes of Corsets are included in the undermentioned:

NEMO CORSETS
from $4.00 to $7.50 pair.

GOSSARD CORSETS
from $3.50 to $8.00 pair.

D. & A. CORSETS
Price from $1.25 to $3.50 pair.

We also have a Special Brand of Corset at $1.50; sizes 19 to 27.

Also many other popular styles of back lace corsets at prices ranging to $5.00.

Some Very Dainty
BRASSIERES
will be found in the NEMO — GOSSARD, NUMODE and D. & A. At prices ranging from 50c. to $5.00.

End of Clean-Up of Georgette and Crepe de Chine
BLOUSES

Starting Monday we shall make an absolute clean up of our GEORGETTE and CREPE DE CHINE Blouses. These are all made in the very latest styles and are very popular at the present time, both for their durability and washing qualities. There are only about two dozen left to clear, and these are in shades of ORCHID, ROSE, WHITE, FLESH, COPEN., NAVY, PEACH and SAND. Nearly all are with a very neat round neck and all are very dainty blouses. Regular price $10.00, $12.00 and $13.50 each. In sizes 36, 38, 40.

SPECIAL CLEARING PRICE, $7.95 each.

SHOT WOMAN AS SHE LAY IN BED

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 3.—Harry W. Douglass, of Chelsea, shot and killed Mrs. Grace Rowan Cummings while she lay in bed in her apartment on Mount Auburn street last night, and turning his pistol upon himself, inflicted a probably fatal wound in the head. Friends of Mrs. Cummings said that the two had been planning to be married in September, but that a few days ago Mrs. Cummings told Douglass that she had changed her mind, and had decided not to marry him. He called on her last night and while he was talking with a young woman visitor, Mrs. Cummings retired. Shortly afterward he entered her room and the shooting followed.

PUTS RAILWAYMEN AMONG PLUTOCRATS

Toronto, Aug. 3.—Demanding a flat "no" to the increase in railwaymen's wages, which is proposed in Canada following similar action in the United States, the Farmer's Sun, in a special article, declares that these wage-earners are "in the plutocratic class," and the increases demanded are "simply outrageous."

It adds that "a farmer on 100 acres of good acrage land does well if his income, representing the wages of himself and family, and allowing nothing for interest on a $12,000 investment, equals that demanded by a railway switchman. That farmer would be considered in the plutocratic class whose yearly income on the same basis, equalled that of a freight conductor."

The Sun contends that if railroading is hazardous, so is farming, and quotes a medical man as saying that fully half of the elderly farmers in a certain neighborhood have suffered serious physical injury at some time in their lives, and that a fourth are suffering from hernia alone.

"Better a strike than a continued submission to such monstrous demands," says the article, which also uses the phrase "growingly outrageous concessions."

Czechs Nationalize Mines.

In Czecho-Slovakia, where socialization, especially that of the coal mining industry, as in England and all other countries, became a burning question, the Government, following its socialization program, already has taken the first step toward the solution of this difficult problem by its preliminary measure for the nationalization of the coal mining industry, says the London Post.

The bill dealing with the subject was passed about a month ago by the National Assembly.

For each separate mining concern employing at least twenty miners a mining council of management will be established, elected from miners and officials, and having at least three members, of which the number is to be increased according to the number of employes.

This council will be concerned with safe and hygienic conditions of working; it will arbitrate in disputes arising from wages or other matters will control the fulfilment of wage contracts, will be responsible for discipline, will act in connection with the dismissal of workmen, will submit plans for improvements in working and will control the financial accounts of the concern.

Litigation between miners and mine owners will be settled in its final stages by a court of arbitration, consisting of senates, with three members from each branch immediately concerned. The president of this tribunal must be a judge. In mines employing more than one hundred people a committee is to be formed, consisting of three representatives of the employes and four representatives of the mine owners. The committee must be kept constantly informed of the financial position of the mine.

No Fourth Needed.

A patient who sent for the doctor, remarked that "he had not the slightest faith in modern medical science." "That doesn't matter in the least," replied the doctor. "You see, a mule has no faith in the veterinary surgeon, and yet he cures him all the same."

Beginnings of History Of the English Nation May be Seen at Chester

FEW cities in England retain so distinct a flavor of medieval times as "Rare Olde Chester," on the River Dee. Winchester is hoary with age—so are Gloucester, Canterbury, Coventry and countless other places in the kingdom, but should one disembark at Liverpool with a mind intent upon studying English lands, people—and, above all, English history—Chester, sixteen miles distant, would be an ideal place in which to set out upon such a pilgrimage.

There, more easily than almost anywhere else, one can trace the very beginnings of England. Chester's ancient walls still surround the site of the Roman deva, or Devana Castra (camp of the Dee). The Anglo-Saxons called it Ceaster.

The Romans, whose occupancy lasted four centuries, selected this high, picturesque spot overlooking the river and the mountains of North Wales, for the station of their famous 20th Legion.

Excavating the solid rock to a depth of four to ten feet, upon which to found the camp, they built roundabout their defensive walls.

The Roman camp was in the form of a parallelogram and Chester followed the same lines in the original streets of the city. The four principal thoroughfares now cross at right angles the rocky Roman oblong.

After the Romans there came, in turn, the Welsh, Saxons, Danes and Normans. Chester was not taken by William the Conqueror until 1070.

In viewing the city the walls claim one's first attention. The present residents seem to live in a phantom city of the past, and almost to be a part of that medieval period in which they are so well versed. They tell you, apologetically, that only on three of their four sides do the walls follow the exact lines of those built by the Romans, and that they are not of earlier date than the fourteenth century.

But a stroll of two miles upon these great arms of masonry, which have encircled the city for seven hundred years, should satisfy the most exacting antiquarian.

As one traverses this now peaceful promenade, frequent reminders of a turbulent past are encountered. The most impressive of these — perhaps because the most tangible — is the Phoenix, or King Charles tower, bearing an inscription recording that from this tower King Charles I., in 1645, viewed the Battle of Rowton Moor, and a local chronicler relates how the king "witnessed with growing mortification and despair the defeat of his army and the overthrow of his last field force."

Besides the King Charles tower, others bordering the parapet of the old walls are the Bonwaldesthorne, and the water tower; then there are those known as Morgan's Mount and Pemberton's Parlor.

Chester Castle is rather disappointing, but much as one wants a castle to be up to the mark, everything else in Chester is so satisfying that this one "fly in the ointment" should be overlooked.

The only remaining relic of the Norman period, during which time the castle was built, is the Julius Caesar tower, a square keep, which, having been incased in red sandstone, has now no adequate appearance of age.

Chester Cathedral, like many others in England, is interesting, both in itself and for its history. Since the time of the Roman deva the ground upon which it stands has been occupied by a Christian church.

In 1541, after the dissolution of the monasteries by Henry VIII., the abbey church became the Cathedral of Chester, and remains of Norman construction, dating back to 1093, are incorporated in the cathedral, but most of it dates from the twelfth to the sixteenth century.

In monastic times the abbey was rich and of much importance. The "Chester mysteries," or miracle plays, were performed each year before its gates, when a fair was held on the feast of St. Werbergh, the patron saint of Chester. A curious custom prevailing among builders in the Middle Ages was that of carving grotesque figures — not only on the exteriors of churches, like gargoyles, but often on their interiors. Perched coyly in a corner, high up on the wall of the north aisle in Chester Cathedral, is such a joke, known as "The Chester Imp."

At Melrose Abbey—that incomparable ruin, sacred to the memory, first, of Robert Bruce and later of Sir Walter Scott and his "Lay of the Last Minstrel"—one's emotions receive a rude jolt on discovering carved upon one of the stone columns, just below its beautiful capital, a hand supporting the swollen cheek of a boy suffering with the toothache.

A reminder of more recent days is found in two flags draped on the wall of the south aisle of the cathedral which were carried by the British at the battle of Bunker Hill; not far from these are displayed the colors of the Chester Guards, borne at Quebec.

A wonderful work of restoration to be seen in Chester is that in the Church of St. John. This was a cathedral church and dates from the late eleventh century. It was occupied by a Norman bishop in 1073, but in a few years he removed the seat of his bishopric to Coventry. The church as restored to-day—a gem of Norman architecture—includes only sections of the nave and transepts that belonged to the original structure. Standing apart from it are the picturesque ruins of the ancient choir.

ON two million wheels rolls the traffic of Canada's steam railways.

As each train reaches a divisional point these wheels must be tested. For this work nine hundred car inspectors are required.

While the train crew pick up their orders, while engines are changed, while ice and water tanks are charged, the Car Inspector strikes each wheel and axle—and listens for the false note that marks a flaw.

Though he rarely finds one, the vigilance of the railways cannot on that account be relaxed—and 3,500,000 hours of labor must be paid for this service alone every year.

In 1913, the car inspector received 26 cents per hour for a 10 or 12-hour day.

To-day he is paid 67 cents per hour for an 8-hour day, and $1.01 for every hour or portion of an hour thereafter!

The wage bill of the railways for car inspection alone rose from $757,373 in 1913 to $2,260,756 in 1919!

MOST of the increased cost of railway service in Canada goes back, directly or indirectly, into the pay envelopes of Canadians and the cash registers of Canadian merchants.

Increased freight rates are imperative, not only in the interests of the railways but of the individual citizen and the community as a whole.

RECREATION GROUNDS.

When the G.T.R. Belleville baseball team defeated all comers and won the championship of Ontario, there was a strong feeling that a suitable baseball diamond and recreation ground should be provided for Belleville athletes. This feeling was so strong and general that any opposition which might have been tempted to manifest itself was swamped in the general feeling of pride felt at the achievement of our baseball boys.

Last fall it was understood that a recreation ground for all classes of sports would be secured and a number of sites were inspected by representatives of the City Council. No definite action was taken, however, and another season must pass with conditions which reflect no credit upon the city of Belleville. Visiting teams complain bitterly of the poor grounds at Belleville and the lack of comforts for players, while the press of other towns wax sarcastic at Belleville's lack of enterprise. This in the face of housing the championship baseball team and having top-notch athletes in every branch of sport shows that there is a lack of appreciation somewhere or a lack of proper organization to see that progressive plans are carried out to provide suitable playgrounds for the athletes with comforts and conveniences for patrons.

When the city gave a site to the Greater Albert College it was with the assurance that the campus or playgrounds of the new college would be at all times available for athletic contests for Belleville organizations.

Thirty thousand dollars expended to provide a free site for Greater Albert would have gone far toward making a start on the most modern of public recreation grounds, but there is no reason why the city could not have both combined.

The agricultural grounds where baseball contests take place now are included in the Greater Albert site and controlled by the Albert College management, who take twenty per cent. of the proceeds of the baseball games as rental for the use of the grounds.

There should be a definite understanding at once with Albert College officials as to what concessions they are willing to give the city in the matter of use of their recreation grounds, but as a matter of fact the city should have its own recreation grounds open at all times to the public and with facilities for all kinds of games.

New Liskeard, a small town in Northern Ontario, with a population of less than five thousand inhabitants, has established a public recreation park which would be a credit to Belleville or a place twice the size of this city. The Town Council of New Liskeard issued debentures to finance the enterprise and have made a lovely park where games of all kinds can be played, where picnics may be held, with baseball diamond, lawn tennis courts, bathing facilities, dancing pavilions, drinking water and all conveniences, and every citizen of New Liskeard is proud of the enterprise displayed. The grounds are situated upon an ideal spot high and dry upon a plateau which slopes down to Lake Temiskaming, and connected with New Liskeard, Haileybury and Cobalt with the most modern of trolley cars and equipment.

The enterprise shown by this northern community is an evidence that community contentment is regarded as one of the greatest assets possible to obtain and thus far the appreciation and patronage shown has removed any fear of financial difficulties, present or future.

There is great need of suitable recreation grounds being established for Belleville citizens, with adequate transportation facilities for those not possessed of motor cars or long-distance pedestrian proclivities.

The city is spending large sums of money on street improvements which will be a valuable asset in addition to adding materially to the beauty of the city, but the matter of suitable recreation grounds can no longer be neglected if we are to keep step with the march of progress so marked in the development of the Greater Canada now in the making.

The Highest Law

Chicago Tribune

Above the law of the land is the law of supply and demand. The Pennsylvania Railroad has already dismissed 12,000 men because it could not meet the payroll. Hundreds of thousands of factory workers are idle on the Atlantic Coast. Outside the farms the demand for labor is less now than it has been for five years. Considering the possibility of trouble, the public will remember this. Wise leaders of the railroad unions also will remember it.

The Crux of the Question

London Daily Chronicle

Certain Labour leaders are saying: "If the Irish want an independent republic, why should they not have it?" One reason why they should not is that if Ireland were independent and hostile and available as a base for an enemy, Great Britain could not be defended. All the freedom and security that her sons fought and died for in the war would in effect be lost. This is not rhetoric but commonplace fact; and if we forget it we betray our dead.

THE POET'S CORNER

THE PRODIGAL

When Summer comes to Sunny Brae
  We do not sit and dream,
For every knob must glisten
  And every pane must gleam.
The stains of storm must disappear
  From lawn and plot and path,
There must be no reminder
  Of wintry gloom or wrath.
We're busy as a pair of bees,
  There is so much to do!
When Summer comes to Sunny Brae
  Our prodigal comes too!

'Tis sweet to have home again,
  'Tis sweet to hear her say
She's been with us in spirit
  All these long months away.
'Tis good to see the pallor go
  And roses claim their own,
To see the dull eyes brighten
  Before a week has flown,
But even while she's telling us
  That Sunny Brae is best
Malignly walks beside her
  The sceptre of unrest.

The days grow very long to her,
  And when the stars look down
She sees in all their glamour
  The blazing lights of town.
She hears the salvos of applause
  That mark a programme's end,
She thrills to the approval
  Of some new, fleeting friend,
And lo! while in a sheltered nook
  Her pansies blossom on
To say it still is Summer
  Our prodigal is gone!

Hearing loud voices in the shop the baker came from his little office at the back and found his assistant arguing poisily wth a lady customer.

"What is the trouble Miss Jones" he asked sharply.

"Trouble!" retorted the assistant with a toss of her head. "This lady says she wants a cake; but, for some reason, refuses to let me serve her."

"I see" muttered the baker, although he didn't. Then he brushed the girl aside and bent over the counter politely. "Genoa, madam?" he asked politely.

"Do I know her?" retorted the customer, indignantly. "I should just think I do! And that's why I won't let her serve me. I don't want everybody in the street to know what I am having for my Sunday tea."—Exchange.

Watercress is an excellent blood purifier.

Parsnips possess the same virtues as sarsaparilla.

Bananas are beneficial to sufferers from chest complaints.

Dates are excellently nourishing, and also prevent constipation.

Tomatoes are good for a torpid liver, but should be avoided by gouty people.

Celery contains sulphur, and helps to ward off rheumatism. It is also a nerve tonic.

Spinach has great aperient qualities and is far better than medicine for sufferers from constipation.

Athletes Off to Antwerp

The Canadian Pacific Ocean Services Liner Melita sailing from Montreal on Saturday, July 24th had amongst her passengers the Canadian athletes who will represent this country in the Olympic Games, or world championship athletic events, to be held at Antwerp in Belgium this summer.

On Saturday, July 17th the final trials to decide the men who should represent the Dominion were brought off on the grounds of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association. Contests were brisk, and the exhibitions given would warrant the prediction that it is not unlikely a few Olympic honors will be brought to Canada.

The chief performance of the day was furnished by Earl Thomson in the 110 metres hurdles. The big fellow clipped one and three-fifths seconds off the Canadian record and was just a fifth over the Olympic record. His time for the distance was .15 1-5 seconds and from the manner in which he performed it is evident that there will be a further reduction in the hurdle event when this native son again competes. The previous record, .16 4-5 seconds, was established by George Barber, May 23, 1908, during the Olympic trials at Toronto.

Thomson won from a good hurdler in K. L. Carruthers. In fact an observer would be tempted to declare that Carruthers was the stylist of the pair. Thomson also performed in the jumps winning the high at 5 feet 10 inches, and the distance at 22 feet 7½ inches.

The other feature event of the afternoon was the 5,000 metres run in which four competed. Walter Knox the Olympic coach very calmly predicted that Thomas Town, the Brandon man, would prove the winner. Indeed Knox had advised Tommy to come with his trunk, ready for a sea voyage, so confident was he that the Manitoba entry would size up to Olympic form. The Brandon runner slipped along with a good rhythmic movement and had lots in reserve when he finished with a smart sprint. Altogether it was as pretty a race as old timers confessed to have witnessed on the track.

In this event the first mile was done in 4 mins. 56 secs., the second in 5 mins. 23 secs., and the third in 5 mins., 10 secs., the three miles being completed in 15 mins., 29 secs.

Some of those on the Canadian team at Antwerp will be:

Alex. Ponton, Broadview Y. M. C. A., Toronto, and Cecil Coaffee, sprints.

E. Lawrence, C. P. R. A.A.A., Montreal, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 metres.

T. Town, Brandon, Manitoba, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 metres.

E. J. Thomson, Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, 110 and 400 metres hurdles and jumps, and Penthalon.

E. C. Freeman, unattached, Toronto, 3,000 and 10,000 metres walks.

(2) A group of the athletes at the meeting.

(3) John McEachren, Manitoba, (on left) and Arch. MacDermid, British Columbia, who will represent Canada in some of the weight throwing events.

(4) Earl Thomson, a native of Saskatchewan, but now of Dartmouth College, United States. He stands 6 ft. 2 ins., is 26 years of age and weighs 190 pounds.

(5) K. L. Carruthers, Ontario, who ran second in the 110-metre hurdles. He stands about 6 ft. 3 ins.

(6) E. C. Freeman, Ontario (on left) and C. L. Barnes, Ontario, competing in the 3,000 metre walk. Freeman won by a narrow margin.

(7) Tommy Town, of Manitoba, who ran splendidly in the 5,000 metre race.

(10) Mountain goats at Banff.

(3) Rocky Mountain ponies that carry the Banff tourists to the mountain peaks.

An easy trip from Banff, Alberta, is that to Lake Minnewanka, nine miles distant. There is a good road which passes the various animal reserves where yak, deer, moose, elk, goat and buffalo may be seen in almost natural environment. The mining town, of Bankhead is beautifully situated in a pocket of the hills, a location to be envied, but decidedly looks a mining town. At the lake a comfortable chalet is found with good meals to be had and plenty of fishing. A small boat plies the waters and each afternoon sees cars of all kinds and descriptions arriving with their loads of sight-seers for the trip up the lake. The return trip to Banff may be made in two ways. There is an old Indian trail round the north shore of the lake, then the walker turns south, passes through a short draw, then down Carrot Creek till he reaches the main highway from Calgary and from there, there is a good highroad into Banff. This walk from the chalet to Banff counts up about 31 miles. To lessen the mileage, the motor-boat may be utilized and a request be made to the captain to be allowed to debark at the above mentioned draw, then walking up the draw and down Carrot Creek to the motor-road, our pedestrian (having phoned for a car before leaving the lake) sinks down into a seat of solid comfort and is bowled over a beautiful road back to his temporary home Banff Springs Hotel.

If the one on pleasure bent is a climber by love of the same, he has any amount of work cut out for him well within practical distance. Mount Aylmere at Lake Minnewanka is the highest peak (10,365 ft.). Mount Rundle with its lower wooded slopes and high, bleak, limestone walls just across the Spray River, comes next in height (9,630 ft.). This latter mountain extends in one long, straggling range for fifteen miles east, at which point Canmore has been built. Cascade Mountain, near the buffalo pasture, has an altitude of 9,800 ft. and has been climbed from its face but more frequently from its longer and easier slopes at the north. Mount Edith (8,340 ft.), to the north of Bow Valley, is seen to advantage from the Sun Dance Canyon road. To make the ascent the motor-road west is taken to about one hundred yards west of the third Vermillion Lake, where the trail to its base is well marked. Mount Norquay, (8,225 ft.) to the east of Mount Edith is said by climbers to be one of the best elevations for studying the art of climbing. Banff is a rallying point of climbers.

Many have not the strength or desire for such a strenuous vacation as walking and climbing trips. Do not think you must sit still in Banff on that account. After one's own feet come those of the little four-footed friend of the trail—the mountain pony. He is not much to look at, he is generally uncouth and shabby; but live with him, try the trail to the top of Sulphur Mountain, give him his head, do not attempt to attend to the business yourself, and he will bring you back safely. His one motto is "safety first" and he has no intention of ending his days abruptly by falling over a precipice. What is more, he never does. At Banff all trails are perfectly safe; they are Government-made, wide and free of debris and any child who can sit on a pony is safe on them.

By far the most popular means of seeing Banff is by the motor-car. The Government roads in every direction are constantly being improved and each year sees more mileage added to the already long list with improved condition of the older roads. Nothing gives a more comprehensive idea of the Bow River valley than to run down to Calgary (80 miles) by train and return to Banff in a good touring car. If there have not been long rains, the roads will be in fine shape and the run may be made in three or three and one-half hours. The incoming stranger travelling by automobile will get a better idea of the foothill country and the amphitheatre of the mountains ahead. The prairie flowers nod a pleasant welcome as you pass, the little gophers watch with such human curiosity, a coyote may be seen sneaking from one isolated nook to another. The mountains seem to come closer out of the blue haze and above them all the eye picks out one ugly frowning peak—the Devil's Head (9,175 ft.)—which stares sullenly down on those who dare to come within his precinct. As the car glides into the Indian reserve, that menacing head disappears behind the lower hills and does not come in view again.

Across the reserve an occasional tepee is seen, the children playing about it, the squaw at her work, the horses browsing on the hillside. Perhaps you see an Indian taking his load of wood to the railroad, but they are not a stirring people and if seen, do not take much notice of the passer-by. But trust them to know if you have a feather in your hat, especially if it is red. The literal entrance to the National Park is marked by a board, the road has been more carefully ballasted, and one is within the confines of the mountains. Near The Gap may frequently be seen a bunch of wild sheep feeding very close to the road. Exshaw, the cement centre is passed, Canmore, the mining town, Anthracite, which once turned out a large quantity of coal, but now is only a memory of the "gay old days", and a mile beyond a most picturesque hill up which the car winds and twists showing with each turn more and more of the beauty to come.

As the last hill is topped the environments of Banff are spread before the eye. The great sweep of country toward Bankhead, marked by spirals of steam and smoke, lies to the right; towering nearby is Cascade Mountain, at its base and sweeping westward, the animal enclosures where once the Indians camped in their hunting season, and far, far toward the setting sun are mountains on mountains whose numbers are almost uncountable.

Gliding down the long hill-slope a three-mile stretch brings the tired motorist back to Banff Springs Hotel. In the days to come the pictures of that drive will live in memory when little Banff is far away wrapped in her winter garments.

As you glide off across the lake to Niagara, or even as you sail over to the Island, try and visualize the Toronto that lined these shores on a 1st of July, 1795. Imagine the giant pines which stood on the site of the present skyscrapers, picture the primeval forest starting south of College street. Canada has fared far on the road of nationhood since the Fathers of Confederation shaped her destiny in 1867, and Toronto beginning as a tiny hamlet in the forest is the Dominion's second city. It scarcely seems credible that the infant Toronto of 1795 had a possible rival in Fort Erie, and that even as to-day, the building trade 125 years ago was afflicted with a shortage of labor and material. Nevertheless, such seemed to be the case.

In the Toronto Reference Library there is a quaint and apparently unknown little volume privately published at Philadelphia in 1795, which had something to say about "Torento," from an English visitor's viewpoint. This early traveler had come up from New York by sailing ship, stage coach and canoe.

Newark on whose site stands Niagara-on-the-Lake, was, if you please, the chief place in the province then. But both Toronto and Fort Erie were promising hamlets. It was a race between the two, according to the be-wigged ad ruffled English writer. Says he in part, "Besides Newark there are several important situations in this part of the province, which bid fair to become places of consequence—Fort Erie, the head of Lake Erie and York, called by the natives Torento."

Even then the prophetic eye of the traveler seemed to visualize the future for the harbor and the city bordering it. "York, formerly Torento," continues he, "is situated on the best harbor round the lake—along the shores of which great quantities of fish are caught. A town is here in great forwardness and should the seat of government be removed from Newark thence as it is contemplated, it will soon become a flourishing place."

"From York to Lake Simcoe a tier of lots of 100 acres each is laid out on each side of the road called Dundas street, granted for the express condition of building and improving on them within one year of the time they are taken up. Many of these places are now built upon and occupied."

The German settlement, evidently around Schomberg and the Oak Ridges, is referred to, "On the east side," continues this writer, "and joining the rear of these lots is a settlement of near 100 German families on an excellent tract of land, much of which is white oak woods. These Germans come in this summer furnished with everything necessary to make their situation comfortable. They are supported by a company which has liberally supplied them with teams, farming utensils and provisions, sent them a clergyman of their own country and is about to build them mills, a church and a school house."

Then referring again to York, he remarks, "Orchards are in a great state of forwardness for the age of this settlement, some of which already bear fruit. Peaches, cherries and currants are plentiful among the first settlers. The farmers raise great quantities of pork without much expense—and often kill the hogs out in the woods, well fattened on nuts. Many valuable streams for water-works (did he ever dream that the mighty Niagara would be so harnessed), run in every direction through the country, and on some of them are mills built, which prove lucrative to their owners, particularly sawmill, for the quantities of good timber and great demand for boards as more buildings are going on than carpenters and masons can be found to finish. Stones being scarce, bricks are greatly used in mason work."

Unfortunately none of these earlier buildings in Toronto survived as the town was burned by the Americans in 1813.

One is apt to forget that the great city of Toronto began as a soldier settlement. Remarks the traveler of 125 years ago, "This settlement was begun by a few disbanded troops after the peace of 1783, and being but little known to the people of the United States, who had imbibed an idea that this was entirely under the control of the military, few emigrants bent their course this way until they were convinced of the civil government being well established and upon a constitution happily adapted to the minds of the people. Since which members of respectable inhabitants have come in from the United States. Some have come in wagons from North Carolina."

Even in those pioneer days customs house officers kept a keen watch at the international border to prevent smuggling. Oswego, then a British possession, was a port of entry to Canada. "The high prices which hatters' fur (beaver, of which tall hats used to be made) commands in the United States is the only inducement," states the traveler, "which I could see for the smuggling past this post. For except a few articles imported from the West Indies, I found the retail shops at Kingston and Niagara selling as low as, and in many articles, particularly woolens, lower than in the city of Philadelphia."

Deer and Bear on Village Street.

In Bancroft, Hastings County, a deer was seen on one of the principal streets of the village. A dog barked at it, and it jumped the fence and took to the woods. A black bear was also seen on a Bancroft street recently.

Coal Mined Under Difficulties.

Coal deposits on Spitzbergen, halfway between the top of Norway and the North Pole, are now being mined by a Swedish company, using explosives in place of machinery. Humidity and high winds, with a winter temperature of 22 degrees, made it necessary to inclose the whole coal dump and the passage to it. The wire-rope conveyor, which takes coal from the dump at 50 tons an hour, also has its upper terminus inclosed. Navigation is open only three months a year, and the coal is stored in a 50 foot pile near the harbor. Piling for the dock had to be driven very deep to withstand the constant heaving of the ice, and the boilers of the electric-light plant, necessitated by the long Arctic night were heat-insulated to keep them from thawing the ground and sinking into it.—Popular Mechanics.

Love a Disease.

But what is this thing called "love" which upsets folks so?

It has nothing to do with the affections, in the ordinary sense of the term. Psychologists are inclined to regard it as a nervous disorder.

Two young people meet. If total strangers, or only slightly acquainted, they are much more likely to "fall in love" than if long and intimately associated. If they do so, the affections are not concerned; it is simply an attack of the mating fever.

When once love is recognized as a psychic phenomenon affecting the whole nervous system, the chief centre of which is the brain, it is possible to understand the aberrations of intelligence shown by sufferers and the absurd performances in which they indulge.

A person in love is a victim of hallucinations. He (or she) sees the object of regard in a distorted aspect.

Explorers in early times were always on the eager lookout for curiosities, such as giants, pygmies and people with tails. Above all, they were anxious to discover the fabled androgyns, which were said to combine both sexes in one individual.

The real androgyns are everyday boys and girls, who up to the age of eleven or twelve are much alike physically and in effect neuters. A boy of nine or ten does not throw a ball well; instead of striking out with his fists he pounds his adversary or pulls hair; his voice is like that of a girl.

Soon afterward there are striking transformations, differentiating the sexes, which begin almost suddenly to look upon one another from a new angle. With sex differentiations comes sex attraction and before long symptoms of the mating fever are liable to manifest themselves.

An essential element of a passion is transitoriness. It passes. Thus two people who fall desperately in love may find themselves desperately unhappy in marriage. In selecting a mate they have used emotion in place of judgment.

Couldn't Be Worse.

He was one of those fellows who thought he could do anything, an opinion shared by none of his friends.

"I can't decide whether to go in for painting or poetry," he remarked one evening to the young lady he bored with his vain chatter.

"I'd go in for painting if I were you," replied the girl.

"Then you've seen some of my paintings?"

"Oh, no!" she told him cruelly. "But I've heard some of your poetry!"

Ronald R. Sole, a young man was this morning before Magistrate Masson charged with being a vagrant. He was apprehended by Constable Harris of the G.T.R. Company. Sole is only 18 years of age and was born at New Plymouth, New Zealand. For the past five years he had lived in the United States. The Magistrate allowed the accused his liberty and he promised to leave the city.

OLD GIRLS REUNION

Mrs. Everett Lloyd of Strahan St., was hostess on Friday at an afternoon tea for her mother, Mrs. Jas. Casey of Thurlow, Mrs. Miranda Green of Toronto, Mrs. Fred Post of Dominion City, Manitoba and Mrs. W. Wells of Belleville. Mrs. Post, Mrs. Green and Mrs. Casey were young women many years ago but had not been together for more than fifty years and their remembrances of olden times caused many a hearty laugh.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL CLOSES

The vocational school at Kingston conducted under the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment has closed and the last class to complete the course on hand will go to Toronto. The equipment at the vocational school would be desirable for the Technical School, and this has caused matters to be pressed, strong representations being made to the Government to establish a Technical School at Kingston.

THE PREMIER'S VISIT

Great interest is being taken in the visit of Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, to Belleville on August 11 when he will deliver an address at the second annual picnic tendered to the popular member in the Dominion Parliament for West Hastings, E. Gus Porter, K.C. to be held at Stirling. As this is the first and only address to be delivered in Ontario this year by the Premier, important announcements of government policy may be expected and the occasion will be marked by the largest gathering ever assembled in Hastings County, as many will be present from distant points to hear the Premier. A fine program has been arranged for the occasion including interesting sports, and it is expected that the Boy's Naval Brigade of Kingston will come up on the training ship Pinta and take part in the picnic festivities.

SPOKE AT OSHAWA

Oshawa Rotarians are an enthusiastic bunch of good fellows who believe in putting the punch into everything they do. At the regular meeting of Oshawa Rotary Club, Monday, every member was present, one hundred per cent. attendance. The guest of honor Monday with the Oshawa Rotarians was E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., who gave an eloquent and inspiring address upon "Opportunity," showing how the principles of Rotary fit in perfectly with the movement upward for the betterment of humanity and the striving to attain higher ideals. Rotary also could perform good service in combatting the unrest and uneasiness in the world today which carries a menace if permitted to develop. Rotarians Schuster and Hyman of Belleville were also guests of Oshawa Rotary Club.

NEW THEATRE.

Belleville has excellent prospects for a new and modern theatre building in the near future. One of the largest and richest theatrical enterprises in the world has had an eye on Belleville for some time and it is believed are ready to build a large and handsome theatre for high-class movies and road shows. It is known that an option has been taken on a Front St. property but the deal is not finally closed.

WEDDING BELLS

McCOY—MARSH

At the residence of Mr. J. T. Delaney 25 Yeomans street, a wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Alfred McCoy and Miss Effie Marsh, both of this city were united in marriage. Rev. A. H. Foster, pastor of Holloway Street Church officiated. Whilst the couple were unattended, Esther and Constance Marsh, sisters of the bride, acted as flower girls. After the ceremony a wedding repast was partaken of. Mr. and Mrs. McCoy have taken up their residence in the city.

When We Were Black.

Were we all black once?

According to scientists, there is no doubt about it.

The explanation is to be found in the fact that there are certain glands in our bodies which have regulated our growth and shape. According to Prof. Keith, the great authority on the history of man, all men are descended from a common stock. White men, black men, red men, brown men, and yellow men arise from the one tree of life, and we have divided into three groups, white, Negro and Mongolian.

Ages ago the glands began slowly to change their method of working, and so gradually to evolve three distinct races of mankind. Each type became slowly fixed, and there came into existence the three types, white, Negro, and Mongolian. Injury to a gland brings about in us effects which we find in other races.

For instance, gland failure may make us as dark as a Negro or as sallow as a Chinaman. It may make us a dwarf or a giant. In a word these glands, of which there are enough in the human system to fill a watch-pocket, regulate our growth and shape, and, if they become diseased, may cause a reversion to the primitive type.

Phonograph Wax.

The wax made use of in the manufacture of phonograph cylinders is from the carnauba, a wax palm. The best quality comes from the young and tender leaves. They are cut at three different periods during the wax season, which extends from September to March. Two thousand leaves are required to make from twenty-five to thirty pounds of wax. The leaves are dried in the sun and then thoroughly beaten with flails to remove the wax. The raw material is melted in boiling water and strained to remove foreign matter. The strained mass hardens quickly and turns a light yellow.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—Optional retirement of civil servants at 60 years, and compulsory retirement at 65, is recommended in the draft of a superannuation scheme approved by the Civil Service Association Executive, and shortly to be published broadcast among civil servants. The draft was prepared by a sub-committee convened by Mr. C. F. Spence, Department of Interior. The scheme would affect all civil servants, payment into the fund being compulsory.

A pension is provided for the widow of a man who served more than ten years, the amount being equal to half the superannuation allowance he would have received had he been retired compulsorily. Children under eighteen years of age of a widower who dies would receive a pension, and also children of a deceased widow of a civil servant. Superannuation for life is recommended for a civil servant retired compulsorily for any cause other than misconduct, after ten years' service, the pension amounting to not more than one-fiftieth of his average salary for the last three years, for each completed year of service not exceeding 35 years.

Deduction from the pay of civil servants to provide for superannuation allowances would be at the rate of five per cent. per annum during not more than 35 years' service. The Government would guarantee the solvency of the fund, and deposit a sufficient amount to meet all demands if the

Gov't Report On Crop Conditions

The following in a summary of the weekly reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, July 27.

Fall wheat harvesting is general in most parts of the Province. The new grain is described as being a fairly good sample. Norfolk, Brant, Wentworth and Peel report the Hessian fly as having done injury to the fields. Kent, which has cut the major portion of its fall wheat acreage, fears that if wet weather continues some of the grain may start in the shock.

Many summer fallows and meadows have been already plowed for the new fall wheat. Welland predicts that the next acreage of that crop will be fully ten per cent. more than that put in last fall. Lambton states that many acres of clover land just cut have been turned under and worked for a seed bed for fall wheat, largely owing to the use of the tractor.

Spring grains, taking the province over, are regarded as looking promising. In some counties both barley and oats are beginning to turn, and are giving good indications of good heading. Some fears are expressed that owing to rank growth much of the straw is rather too soft to stand up well against rough weather. Victoria complains of injury to spring wheat by the Hessian fly, and Lennox and Addington speaks of smut in oats. Referring to serious injury to the standing crops by Friday night's heavy rain storm, Welland states that some grain fields were practically flattened to the ground as though a land roller had been run over them.

Some of the hay crop is still out, owing to catchy weather. New hay has been selling at prices ranging from $22 to $30. The second crop of clover has received a good start.

Much of the corn has lacked cultivation during the last three or four weeks owing to frequent rains and the rush of other work on the finer days. This, with the comparatively cool weather prevailing has made the fields look somewhat backward. The crop, however, has a good deal of growing time before it yet.

The Lennox and Addington representative tells of a farmer in that county who has disposed of 280 bushels of potatoes (Early Wiseman), the product of one acre, at $3.50 a bushel, or $980 for the lot. The Port Arthur representative anticipates a comparatively light yield, and says that blackleg is showing up badly in places.

The raspberry cane-borer is reported to be doing injury as far east as the county of Victoria.

Grasshoppers are said to be very numerous in the county of Grey, and a number of farmers there are using the Kansas grasshopper mixture.

Welland and Lambton speak of less cattle being on hand, but all reports are to the effect that excellent pastures are keeping both beef and dairy cattle in fine condition, and that the milk supply is generous for the season. Good vealing calves are selling around 13c. a pound.

Hogs are in strong demand, prices going as high as $20.25 a cwt.

Horse buyers are in the county of Grey looking for heavy specimens to send to Scotland. One carload has gone, and more are needed. Good animals have brought $200.

YOUNG WOMAN STRUCK BY OTTAWA EXPRESS

Montreal, Aug. 3.—Struck by the Ottawa express on the Grand Trunk Railway, Miss Dorothy Fuller, 23, Strathmore, suffered a fractured left shoulder and severe lacerations to the head. She was taken to the General Hospital where her condition is regarded as serious.

CATHOLIC PRELATES CALL ON PRINCE

Brisbane, Australia, Aug. 1.—Monsignor Cattaneo, Apostolic delegate to Australia, and Archbishop Duhig of Queensland visited the Prince of Wales last week and formally presented the homage and devotion to the throne of the whole Roman Catholic community of Australia.

They assured the Prince of the loyalty of the Australian Catholic community, and said he won the hearts of all.

Monsignor Cattaneo explained that the reason that no Roman Catholic prelates in Australia had hitherto called on the Prince was because all the senior clergy happened to be away when the prince was in their respective centres.

Largest Steer In The World

Goderich, Aug. 3.—Ex-Reeve Chas. Stewart's farm, in Ashfield township, Huron County, is the Mecca of hundreds of visitors, drawn by curiosity to drive 25, 50 or even 100 miles to see what is said to be the largest steer in the world.

"Sir Douglas Haig" is the name given to this magnificent Shorthorn, which measures 9 feet 6 inches around the chest and has a girth of 10feet 6 inches. His present estimated weight is 3,500 pounds.

It is claimed that this steer surpasses in weight the animal shown at the Chicago World's Fair.

FANS THAT WILL INTEREST

New Models Are Inspired by Egypt and Greece; Novelty From Uncurled Ostrich.

New fans are made of aigrette and paradise. These only the European may enjoy, as the bird law of America prevents their import. For export trade eagle and vulture plumes are being shown. In the effort to provide something new and interesting models are being brought out in stripped ostrich, which closely imitates aigrette and coque. The square Egyptian and the pointed Greek forms are being much used.

A novelty fan in East Indian design is made from uncurled ostrich, the delicate fronds springing from a ring of tortoise shell, which serves in place of sticks. The fronds fall in a graceful one-side sweep. The stock of the fan is of tortoise shell and from the shell ring falls a long silken tassel.

Another takes its inspiration from the fans of the ancient Egyptian beauties. This one, in the form of a square, is developed in imitation aigrette, made of ostrich feathers and mounted on shell sticks.

Pure white eagle feathers make still another new fan of Greek design. To be in keeping with the feathers of this superb bird the sticks are of onyx, set with pearls and diamonds, and the fan is carried on a platinum chain.

LINES LONGER, WAIST LOWER

Method Most Often Employed Is Draping of Sash Low About the Hips.

In all of the new clothes prepared for this spring the carrying out of longer lines appears. This is done in various ways. Perhaps the method most often employed is the draping of a sash low about the hips. This low tied sash is the favorite method of giving the straight chemise dress—which still remains in fashion—the low waistline appearance. It is only necessary to tie a softly draped piece of material about a last year's chemise frock to place it in the front rank of this spring's fashions.

For those who wish to economize, this really offers an excellent opportunity. Each woman may satisfy her own taste in the manner of tying her sash. It may be at the side or in the back; some of them even tie in small bows at the front. There is just as much leeway, too, in the size and length of these sashes, which may be puffy bows with ends that are little longer than the loops themselves, or the ends may be very long, in some instances hanging below the bottom of the skirt. Putting wide sashes on chemise dresses is a decided departure from the narrow string belts, that have girdled the chemise frock heretofore.

On the Job.

Major Pey was not much of a man for theatres. Music halls or even musical comedies he was always ready to patronize; they came under a different heading, in his opinion. But as for the drama proper, be it either serious or farcial, it bored him to distraction.

However, little Phyllis, his niece, insisted on his taking her to a theatre. So there he was. He had no alternative. He went, and what is more, fell into a heavy sleep during the curtain raiser.

When the main piece came on, little Phyllis nudged him and whispered gently, "Charley's Aunt"—just that and nothing more.

But Major Pey, rising hastily to his feet, vigorously seized the hand of an old lady who happened to be passing in front of him.

"How d'you do, madam?" he exclaimed. "How d'you do? I'm very glad to see you. And how's Charley?"

CORSET WEEK

PLAN BEFORE SPENDING

Particularly at this time, when the purchasing power of a dollar is so far below normal, a person wants to plan before spending, and the only way that you can get 100 cents for your dollar is to spend it wisely, and after thinking what you are going to get for it.

The continually advancing prices of CORSETS is now making the purchase of a pair of corsets an expensive matter, therefore it is advisable to spend a little time thinking just what you have to pay and where you will buy. This week we should like to take the opportunity of announcing to our many customers that we have received a large new stock of the best of the finest makes of corsets, such as:

Every woman knows the value of a pair of comfortable corsets to her appearance and the greatly admired lines of a rightly poised, perfectly proportioned body, gracefully unconscious of corsetry except for its delightfully comfortable support—will give charm and added value to any clothes.

We invite you to call and see our stock of Corsets and consider their points, and we shall have great pleasure in helping you find one for your figure, and we can say with every confidence that we shall be able to fit you no matter what your figure is. We have a corset for every figure.

The Corset Department is on the Ground Floor (Rear) and we have Private Rooms for your convenience. Also, Miss M. Henderson, who is a graduate of the Gossard School of Corsetry, will always be in attendance and at your service for fitting and advice, and will be very pleased to render any assistance in making a choice. Come and consult her without being compelled to buy, and get expert advice.

The leading makes of Corsets are included in the undermentioned:

NEMO CORSETS
from $4.00 to $7.50 pair.
GOSSARD CORSETS
from $3.50 to $8.00 pair.
D. & A. CORSETS
Price from $1.25 to $3.50 pair.

We also have a Special Brand of Corset at $1.50; sizes 19 to 27.

Also many other popular styles of back lace corsets at prices ranging to $5.00.

Some Very Dainty
BRASSIERES
will be found in the NEMO — GOSSARD, NUMODE and D. & A. At prices ranging from 50c. to $5.00.

End of Clean-Up of Georgette and Crepe de Chine BLOUSES

Starting Monday we shall make an absolute clean up of our GEORGETTE and CREPE DE CHINE Blouses. These are all made in the very latest styles and are very popular at the present time, both for their durability and washing qualities. There are only about two dozen left to clear, and these are in shades of ORCHID, ROSE, WHITE, FLESH, COPEN., NAVY, PEACH and SAND. Nearly all are with a very neat round neck and all are very dainty blouses. Regular price $10.00, $12.00 and $13.50 each. In sizes 36, 38, 40.

SPECIAL CLEARING PRICE, $7.95 each.

Premier Of Canada At Porter's Picnic

WILL BE AT STIRLING AUGUST 11—LARGEST PICNIC EVER HELD IN ONTARIO.

Those who attended Porter's Peace Picnic at Marmora last year will have memories of a wonderful day's enjoyment. Those of us who will attend Porter's Second Annual Picnic at Stirling, Wednesday next, August 11th, will have a day of unalloyed pleasure. The programme arranged for the day will include an array of athletic events, speeches, dancing, bands, and every known form of picnic enjoyment. Porter's Picnic will be historic in the fact that Canada's new Premier, Hon. Arthur Meighen, has chosen this time to make his first official announcement of the policy and aims of his Government. It is a peculiar coincidence that the first public utterance of Sir Robert Borden after his election to his office as Premier was made at Porter's Picnic held in Trenton, 1911. The eyes of the Dominion of Canada will be on Stirling, August 11th. West Hastings' popular member wants to see all the kiddies and grown-ups at his picnic, and has issued a wide-open invitation to everyone from everywhere. There is no charge for admission. Baskets should be brought, and where this is impossible basket luncheons will be sold on the grounds at cost price. Hot water will be supplied free of charge. Every one should be in Stirling in time for the big street parade at 1.45. Several bands will be there, Kilties, Brass Bands, etc., including the famous G. W. V. A. overseas band.

Guss wants to see you at Stirling on August 11th.

Alcohol The Motor Fuel Of The Future

Satisfactory Experiments With Natalite Which Is Sixty Per Cent. Alcohol

Alcohol routed ignominiously as a beverage, promises to be up and doing presently and to hold sway over a wider dominion than in the past. Even though is may no longer make us dizzy is seems destined to supplant gasoline to a very great extent in making the wheels of industry go round. The public at large may not be aware of it, says the Scintific American, but the motor vehicle owner knows that the gasoline has not measured up to in the past two years to the standard previously set, notwithstanding the advance in price. The big problem of automobile builders and other makers of gasoline engines has been to offset the fuel defects by so designing their engines so that they would continue to perform well despite this handicap. Some of them however, have been experimenting with natalite, a synthetic fuel containing 60 per cent. of alcohol, 39 per cent. of ether, 1 per cent. of amonia and a small amount of arsenious acid. The ether, we read, makes it possible to start the engine when cold even more easily than with gasoline; while the amonia neutralizes the natural corrosive exhaust of the alcohol, thus preventing injury to exposed metal surfaces. The arsenic is used simply to deter the overthirsty. Further, writes R.G. Skeerett in the New York Sun magazine:

"Natalite is the only one of several synthetic fuels based upon alcohol. It contributes to a smooth running motor and a low deposit of objectionable carbon results from its employment. Natalite and other allied composite fuels are of value during the period of transition from gasoline engines to alcohol motors. Their advent makes it possible to bridge a gap which otherwise would entail heavy economic and manufacturing losses and postpone the rapid developement and widespread adoption of an engine so designed that it could depend entirely upon the spirit unmixed.

GEN. PERSHING MAY HEAD OIL CO. AT $50,000 YEAR

Washington, Aug. 3.—Gen. Pershing is reported to be considering acceptance of an offer to become President of the Pure Oil Co. of Columbus, Ohio, formerly the Ohio City Gas Co., which is controlled by Brig.-Gen. Charles Gates Dawes, of Chicago, President of the Central Trust Co. The salary of the position is said to be $50,000.

PEAK IS REACHED IN HIGH PRICES

Chicago, Aug. 3.—The high cost of living peak has been reached and prices will decline slowly, according to members of the Manufacturers' and Importers' Association attending the seventeenth annual merchandise exhibition of that organization here. Excess profit tax and high railroad rates were among the things blamed for keeping the cost of living up.

Albert Levy, president of the association, said a slowing up of foreign demand would tend to reduce domestic prices.

"Some manufacturers and merchants are making a five to twenty per cent. recession in prices, but they will go no further," he said. "The people will have to bear the burden of the recent billion dollar award to the railroads, and surtaxes add to the high cost of living. Frenzied spending is slowing up, and while we are at sea as to what is ahead of us we feel the peak has been reached and may look for gradual decline sometime soon.

MARRIAGE ANNULED ON GROUND OF BIGAMY

Montreal, Aug. 3.—In a judgment handed down by Mr. Justice Loranger in the Superior Court the marriage of Marie Louise Eva Poirier and T. A. Nobert was annulled, on the ground of bigamy, Nobert having married the petitioner on April 5, 1920, when he was already married. The evidence placed at the Judge's disposal further disclosed that Nobert had married one Miss E. Houle in 1913, while his first wife was still alive, the latter dying three days after the marriage.

When Nobert's second wife found that he had been married a third time she took action againt him in the Criminal Courts, where he appeared last week and pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy, being remanded until August 23 for sentence.

BANKS OPENED ON OCEAN LINERS

London, Aug. 3.—For the convenience of travelers between Europe and the United States the London Joint City and Midland Bank, of London, has opened branch offices on the steamships Aquitania, Imperator and Mauretania, plying between Liverpool and New York.

This is a new departure in finance, and is expected to prove of great convenience for passengers travelling on business or pleasure. Financial matters heretofore needing attention before sailing can now be taken care of during trips.

Turks Give Battle To Greeks Along Front Of Sixty Miles

BITTER OFFENSIVE OPENED AGAINST GREEKS BY TURK NATIONALIST FORCES IN ASIA MINOR—GREEKS REINFORCED BY BRITISH DETACHMENTS—BATTLE LINE EXTENDS ALONG BAGDAD RAILWAY.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 4.—Turkish Nationalist forces opened a bitter offensive against the Greeks along a sixty-mile front in Asia Minor on Monday. The battle line extends along the Bagdad railroad westward from Kutshia to Simav. Greek forces in Anatolia are being reinforced from Thrace and in conjunction with British detachments advanced eastward from Ismid to Adabazar.

Twenty-Five Million For German Coal

Lloyd George Explains This Proposition For Securing Coal Was Much Better Than Sending Costly Army For It

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The vote for an advance of £5,000,000 to Germany, in connection with the Spa coal agreements, came up in the House of Commons. It is not seriously challenged and was agred to without rvision.

Labor members welcomed in the proposition what they characterized as a sensible change in the Government policy toward Germany, and a practical revision of the unworkable Versailles treaty.

In the course of his speech in defence of the plan, Mr. Lloyd George said the proposition for securing coal was much better than sending a large, ocstly army for it. He argued that Germany must pay her debts either in gold or goods. She had no gold, he declared, but coal was the equivalent of gold, or even more usable.

"However," added the Premier "Germany is unable to produce sufficient coal, while her population is unfit and ill-fed. Hence she must be helped.

"There is no doubt about the condition of Germany. We have impartial representatives there, who report the people are not receiving within sixty or sevaty pr cent. of the food they consumed before the war."

Prison Sentence For Millionaire

Convicted With 19 Other Members of the Communist Labor Party

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—William Bross Lloyd and 19 other members of the Communist Labor party, were convicted by a jury in Criminal Court of violating the Illinois Sedition Law.

Lloyd, a millionaire, who for years has been a leader among Chicago Socialists, was given the maximum punishment—from one to five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $2,000. Arthur Procter, proprietor of a Chicago book store, where radical literature was sold, was also given the maximum penalty.

Seven other defendants were given penitentiary sentences and fines ranging from $1,000 to $2,000 and 11 others were given jail sentences of one year.

The verdict was read after the jury had been out nine hours. The defence filed a motion for a new trial and Judge Hebel announced it would be heard September 25. He ordered the defendants released on bonds of the same amount they were held under while the trial was in progress.

The trial followed a probe of more than six months, which was conducted by private detectives, employed by Chicago business men. Indictments had been issued for 39 members of the Communist Labor party, but some of the men have never been found. Among those was John Reeds, radical writer.

The members of the Communist Labor party were formerly Socialists. At a party convention the ultra-radicals were expelled. Headed by Lloyd they then organized their own party. The Moscow manifesto, approving Soviet Government, was adopted for application to the United States.

The trial was one of the longest on record in Chicago courts. Much of the time was consumed in securing a jury with political views that satisfied both sides.

The last day provided a dramatic scene in the courtroom. Just before Judge Hebel insructed the jury, Frank Commerford, special prosecutor, in his final plea for conviction cried:

"If you find these men innocent, then tear down the picture of Washington from this courtroom and put up those of Lenine and Trotzky. Be honest about it. aul down the Stars and Stripes and put up instead the blood-red flag. Tumble over the monument of Lincoln. Blot from the memory of our children the national anthem and teach them to sing the 'Red International.'"

Lloyd was the central figure of the trial. He is a millionaire and lives in Chicago's exclusive residential district. He was varously referred to during the trial as the "millionaire Socialist," and the "reddest of the Reds." Much stress was laid by all attorneys on his so-called "dynamite" speech, while he said later was but an effort to be humorous.

Body Of Missing Thorold Child Found Under Pile Of Weeds

MARGARET BOUCOCK, AGED FOUR, MISSING THREE WEEKS, FOULLY MURDERED AND BODY CONCEALED — NO TRACE OF SIX-YEAR-OLD THOROLD GIRL, MISSING THREE MONTHS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

St. Catharines, Aug. 4.— The body of Margaret Boucock, four years old, the Thorold child missing for nearly three weeks, was found this morning with the clothes almost torn from her back and covered by a pile of weeds. The discovery was made in a secluded part of the Welland Ship Canal by ship canal workers inspecting a pipe line. David McBallard who was last seen with the little girl is still being held on suspicion. No trace has been found of Catharine Beecham the other Thorold child missing three months.

High Cost Of Living Affects Ministers

Belleville District Methodist and Ministers' Salaries.

The Methodists of the Belleville district are fully alive to the present emergency in reference to the Ministers' salaries. The General Conference special committee passed a resolution recommending that the salary of the country minister be increased to a minimum of $1650.00, that is, $1500.00 and horse keep, etc., and that in villages the salary be increased to $1800.00 as a minimum and in towns and cities to not less than $2000.00.

The Laymen's Association of the Bay of Quinte Conference at the last session of the Conference brought in a strong resolution supporting this measure and pledged their influence in the matter. As there were nearly one hundred laymen present it was a good augury of the success of the enterprise in the Bay of Quinte Conference. A committee of leading laymen of the Methodist Church in Canada with headquarters at Toronto have supervision of the matter.

The Shannonville Quarterly Official Board invited Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, who is chairman of the Belleville district in this matter, to visit them and take up the question. There was a full meeting of the members of the Board and Rev. Mr. Jones presided. After the usual routine of business Mr. O'Flynn was asked to address the Board and at the close of his address the members enthusiastically supported the matter. They had evidently been considering it beforehand and this meeting was the climax of their consideration. They at once advanced their minister's salary $300.00 per annum, bringing it up to the minimum standard of $1650.00 and pledged themselves to actively support the measure and to bring before their people the question and to complete an organization on the circuit to accomplish it. This is the first Quarterly Official Board in the district to endorse the proposed advance in salaries and the enthusiasm and heartiness with which the matter was taken up shows that the laymen of the Belleville district will not be behind in their work towards this worthy effort. The Shannonville circuit is to be congratulated on the splendid judgment shown by their Board in so promptly and heartily taking up this important question.

It is felt that a very small advance from each member of the church will remedy this serious difficulty and bring a great deal of happiness and comfort to the ministers of the church and a corresponding reward to the members who are working in this good cause.

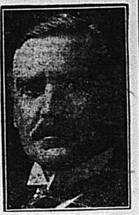
COL. BIGGAR TO CONDUCT PENITENTIARY PROBE

Kingston, Aug. 3.—Word has been received in Kingston from Ottawa to the effect that Col. O. M. Biggar, K.C., has been appointed by the Federal authorities to make an investigation into the cases of Portsmouth Penitentiary guards, hospital orderlies and others who have been recently dismissed or whose resignations have been asked for. As a result of instructions given by Hon. C. J. Doherty when he visited the penitentiary the written defence of the dismissed employees has been sent to Ottawa.

SEASIDE AIR FOR HOSPITAL PATIENTS

London, Aug. 3.—Seaside air is to be brought to the famous London hospital, Guy's, where a chamber to contain three beds for treatment of patients in an atmosphere rich in oxygen is to be constructed.

The hospital architect and engineer claims to have found a means of preventing unnecessary leakage of the air. One year's cost of the oxygen, $1,250, is to be borne by the Medical Research Committee.



SIR THOMAS WHITE.
Who Will Resign His Seat in Leeds.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie Lauds New Premier

WINDSOR, Aug. 4.—Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Canada's newly-appointed Minister of Militia and Defence, made his first outside speech since accepting the Cabinet portfolio, before a meeting of former soldiers at Essex yesterday afternoon. He was the last speaker on a lengthy platform, and although his address occupied fully an hour, the Minister was given a close hearing by the hundreds of veterans who had gathered to celebrate the Civic Holiday.

"We have a very young Government at Ottawa, but I think I may safely say that at the head of that Government we have not only one of the youngest Premiers that Canada has ever enjoyed, but a man than whom there is no abler or more brilliant in Canada," said Mr. Guthrie.

Highest Gratuities and Pensions.

"An examination of the scale of gratuities and pensions shows that Canada, though not a rich nation, has the highest scale throughout of any allied country. A short time ago the Government of the United States raised the pension for total disability to $1,200, while Canada's pension for total disability is $900. In this one instance alone Canada is surpassed, but we must consider the fact that if the man has a wife and children in the United States, he still receives $1,200, whil in Canada he receives over $1,000.

Insurance for Soldiers.

"At the last session of Parliament the Government passed a measure which is, I believe, the most important piece of legislation respecting returned soldiers ever passed. This measure provides for giving soldiers life insurance up to $5,000 at a rate lower than that of any standard company. It matters not what a man's physical condition may be, there is no medical examination, and any one who has served may obtain insurance. Although the insurance will not issue until September 1, already applications are pouring in by the hundred, and there is every indication that the returned men of Canada are going to take advantage of what the Government has done for them.

"Although when you pass out from the jurisdiction of our department you are discharged, if there is anything you want to know, or anything you want us to do for you, I can assure you that your requests will be very welcome, as will also be any suggestions which you may have to offer."

Warsaw Must Be Evacuated Last Defence Line Gone

POLISH ARMY RETREATED SO PRECIPITATELY THAT BRIDGES WERE LEFT INTACT BEHIND THEM—ALLIED MILITARY EXPERTS SAY WARSAW MUST BE EVACUATED IN TWO OR THREE DAYS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Polish, French and British military experts at Warsaw telegraphed here last night stating that Warsaw must be evacuated within two or three days. Polish experts report that the Polish army along the Bug river, Warsaw's last line of defence, retreated so precipitately that they did not destroy the bridges behind them.

Soviet Russia Must Answer Yes Or No

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

London, Aug. 4.—The British government is irritated over what it believes is Soviet Russia's equivocation over the British suggestion that the Russians halt at the armstice line of demarkation in Poland and begin peace negotiations. It has despatched a note to the Soviet government demanding a yes or no answer as to whether that government intends to listen to suggestion or not.

The note, it is reported, contains no threats and is not in the nature of an ultimatium, simply requesting a quick answer as to what Soviet Russia intends to do. After an ominous silence the foreign office this afternoon received a message from the British Mission in Warsaw but indicating that it might leave.

Not So Bad

Windsor, Aug. 4.—Although the police cells at Windsor were so full of rum runners, boot-leggers and others, last night that the authorities were compelled to send some of the defendants to Sandwich, Crown Attorney J. H. Hood of this city, is quoted in an interview today as declaring that the situation is not so bad, on the hole. In fact things are much better and they never were so bad as they have been reported in Windsor and the outside press. The crown attorney said, however, that there would be a concentrated effort to clean up the road houses which he admitted were undoubtedly bad.

Sensational Smash In Wheat Prices

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Excited general selling brought about a sensational smash in wheat prices today. The wheat market opened eight to thirteen cents lower and in some cases as much as fourteen and a half cents a bushel was temporarily cut from values. Comparative steadiness returned shortly afterwards, however, with the market then about 4½ to 5½ cents under yesterday's finish. The rush to sell appeared based largely on unfavorabel financial reports especially from the southwest.

THE ISLANDS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE

The islands of the Bay of Quinte are not numerous; but the numerous points all along; as well as the turns in the bay, recompense any lack arising from the absence of islands.

When the Mississauga Indians ceded the land along the bay to the British Government, they reserved certain points of land, and mostly all the islands between the head of the bay and Gananoque. Those excepted were Grenadier Island, and the small islands between it and Kingston, and Amherst Island.

The islands of the St. Lawrence are famed almost the world over. They are called "The Thousand Islands." But Howison says that the commissioners appointed to fix the limits between Canada and the United States, counted the islands of the St. Lawrence and found there were 1692. The islands below Gananoque belonged to the Iroquois.

Carleton Island.—The first island is Carleton Island, called by the French Chevreux, Goat's Island, situated between the American shore of the St. Lawrence and Wolf Island. It was a military and naval station during the American rebellion, at which government vessels were built for navigating the lake, and possessed fortifications. Its name is derived from Guy Carleton, Esq., "his Majesty's Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief, and over his Majesty's province of Quebec, afterward Lord Dorchester." This military post, as we have seen, afforded a retreat for the refugees, who fled from the Mohawk Valley. Says the Rev. William Macaulay; "Jay's treaty of peace, as it was called, in 1793, found Carleton Island occupied by the 84th Regiment, a body of Highlanders levied in the Carolinas, and subsequently adopted into the line." Upon the erection of the northerly line of the United States, Carleton Island came within the boundary of the State of New York. But it continued in common with other military posts, in possession of the British, until 1796. Indeed, according to the words of the gentleman whose words we have quoted above, it remained in possession of the British until 1812, when the Americans crossed and seized a sergeant's guard stationed there. It would seem that parties entering Canada were required to procure a passport here. A copy of one, extracted from the history of Dundas, is as follows, directed "To whom concerned:

"Permit the boat going from this to pass to Kingston with their provisions, family, clothing, bedding, household furniture, and farming utensils, they having cleared out at this post, as appears by their names in the margin. (John Loucks, two men, two women, three children)."—Signed "C. McDonell, P.O."

JOHN BARLEYCORN RIDING IN HEARSE

Some still believe that old John Barleycorn is dead. To be sure he's technically dead, but he won't lay down. On the other hand there are those who feel that even in his palmiest days the old boys had little on the joys of his present-day meanderings. Life to him is one sweet series of ups and downs being more particularly applicable to his course in the throats of his idols.

There is splendid evidence to hand that cases of whiskey were taken through here one night this spring. They were not taken through in any ordinary, mediocre or half-hearted way but went through in perfect splendor and absolute safety for the conveyance was nothing other than a modern motor hearst. The story is not as old as it seems, for there is the feeling among a number here that the phoney funerals are still going on, though not in a wholesale manner. A strange hearse has been noticed by some travelling country roads recently. It may have had Old John within and it may not. At any rate he did not go through once and that is an assured fact. No one knew the driver—nor did they know the hearse—but the irony fate revealed the cases stowed carefully away within—and the mysterious driver pulled safely through with his cargo of joy in the conveyance of sorrow. Sorrow then, like beauty, may of times be only skin deep, for there beneath the mourning tone of the sombre black, lay the essence of unrestricted joy as it is termed by the subjects of Old John.

Therefore, some of the strange hearses may roam the rural roads, may carry the mortal remains of some human, or they may carry just plain booze. The matter will be a difficult one to solve if it is going on regularly. There is no evidence that it is regular or even frequent, but there is evidence that it went through at the time where it was going. All that need be made as to where it was from or where i was going. All that need be said in this regard was that it was headed west.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

HUMAN FLY RECOVERING

Charles Hutchison, known as "The Human Fly," who had been engaged to climb the outside walls of Belleville City Hall, but who was so seriously injured at St. Catharines that he was obliged to cancel his engagements is still under the doctor's care. Manager Forhan of Griffin's Theatre received the following telegram from Peter F. Griffin: "Charles Hutchison, on his doctor's advice, is compelled to cancel his engagement to give an outdoor exhibition in your city. Still very weak. Advise your patrons."

Hutchison was booked to appear here in connection with the feature picture, "The Whirlwind," in which he is the principal character.

"HIS WIFE'S MONEY"

"His Wife's Money," the new Selznick picture starring Eugene O'Brien which is to be shown on the double feature bill at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday with a matinee Saturday is properly described as a comedy drama. Its story is such as to permit of the painting of real life with plenty of life and shade, and as a consequence there is both wholesome comedy and gripping drama.

Belleville picture fans are always interest in the "big things" which producers for the screen find it possible to use in telling their stories. An early incident of "His Wife's Money" shows a disabled motor boat with a beautiful girl its lone occupant, snatched from sure destruction as it hangs on the very brink of a precipitous waterfall. Deep in the bowels of the earth, later in the action, there is shown a terrific explosion which successfully uncovers a rich vein of ore which means a fortune for the hero. Still later is shown the money-mad stock exchange in New York in the thrones of a "bear" movement that means ruin and disaster for hundreds of frenzied operators. With Eugene O'Brien playing a role for which he is ideally suited, beautiful Zeena Keefe as his principal support, and surrounded by a cast of players who are among the ablest ever assembled for a picture it is not strange that the wealth of action which is indicated by these big scenes makes for drama of the kind that is rarely encountered in a picture theatre.

Charles Hutchison, the world's greatest daredevil appears on the same program in the most snsational thrillingly human story that ever pulled your heart strings like a bell rope, "The Whirlwind," a beautiful Travelogue, a funny 2-reel Goldwyn comedy and the British Canadian News Pictorial are also announced for presentation on the same program.

EX-CONVICT PLAYS PREACHER

Do you believe that a man who had served a year in prison could step into the shoes of his minister brother There is such a situation as the central theme of "Other Men's Shoes," the Edgar Lewis production which is being shown at Griffin's to-night for the last time. Stephen and Jim Browning were twin brothers as alike in face, form and voice that their most intimate friends could not tell them apart. Both were splendid men morally, but Stephen the minister, was frail of body and meek of spirit. Jim had heeded the call of wanderlust for twelve years and had gone to jail for the crime of another. When the strong brother steps into the shoes of the meek brother, interesting complications arise, for no one but his sister and brother know of the masquerade. Blackmailers threaten to besmirch his name in the eyes of the townspeople whose attitude of tolerant respect changed to whole-hearted admiration when their minister suddenly displayed a courageous, two-fisted fighting spirit. Clean wholesome, vigorous, human and dramatic, "Other Men's Shoes," has been called one of the finest productions of the year. Crauford Kent and Irene Boyle head a splendid cast in the production. An interestin Burton Holmes Travelogu of Japan, a funny 2-reel Sunshine comedy, and a new chapter of "The Lost City" serial complete a fine varied bill.

Consolidated School At Bay Side

Rev. Fred G. Joblin Resigns From Ministry to Take Charge of New Farm School.

Among a trio of young ministers who are leaving the pastorate in the Bay of Quinte Conference this summer to undertake important work in the teaching profession is Rev. Fred G. Joblin, who is expected to open at Bayside, near Belleville, one of the pioneer consolidated schools of eastern Ontario.

Before taking pastoral charge at Seagrave, Ont., after ordination four years ago, Mr. Joblin had spent many years as teacher in public and Indian mission schools. Born in the Isle of Wight, in 1873, he was educated at Bowmanville Public, Oshawa High, Whitby Model and Toronto Normal Schools. He taught three years in New Ontario, then at the Indian Boarding School, Norway House, Man. at the Indian schools at Cross Lake, and Alderville, and at Castleton. After riding the Melrose and Bayside circuits he graduated from Victoria College, Toronto.

Rev. Mr. Joblin conducted in four public schools on the Seagrave circuit, a course in religious education. This was done with the full consent of teachers and trustees, and was, of course, undenominational in character. Having a recognized place and time on the curriculum, the preacher was able to make a careful study of methods in moral training of boys and girls. The experiment was working out successfully when, a few weeks ago, the Bayside folk wanted their former pastor back as school principal. Bent on making a start towards consolidation, they are placing a large school farm at Mr. Joblin's disposal. This rural school has 75 children in attendance.

"We have here a large field for real Christian service, in a movement which is one of the greatest in our province and which will bring church, school and home into closer fellowship and unity," writes the educator, who is now looking over the ground.

DIGGER INDIAN MAY BE 144 YEARS OLD

Said to have been born 144 years ago, the year the Declaration of Independence was signed, on a spot which is now a government reservation, and which he still calls home, Domingo Jacinto, chief of a tribe of Digger Indians, was one of the spectators at the Independence Day celebration at Laguna Mountains, Calif. Accompanied by his daughter, a granddaughter and a great grandson, he evinced keen interest in the program. He is said to be older than the pines and other trees which make Lagune Mountains resort a playground for the residents of Imperial and San Diego counties. Although feeble, he can walk, see and hear without difficulty.

ALWAYS A RESTLESS RACE

Writer Has Well Described the Dominant Traits That Mark the Anglo-Saxons.

"A curious race, the Anglo-Saxon—restless, not quite knowing what it wants, with the genius of dissatisfaction more acutely developed than in any other race. He must crawl all over the earth and see what's doing. He has an uncontrollable impetus to see over the ridge. He must go and look at the North pole and the South pole, and wade through malarial forests in central Africa. He doesn't know why, but he just has to do this. Then he returns home and after a long time thinks about it all—he's rather slow in the uptake. And then one day—or more probably one night—something starts worrying him. Those women who threw their babies in the Ganges as a religious offering. Malay slaves working in salt mines for Chinese masters. People who mutiliate themselves. And one night when the Teuton and the Slav—and even the Latin—is sleeping soundly in his bed, he wakes up and thinks:

"And he finds that this disturbs his nights. And one day it gets beyond him. He suddenly picks up and goes off to interfere. He takes his golf clubs, and his ridiculous clothes, his zinc chapels. And, being a practical man, he thinks:

"'Well, as I'm going, I might as well take a few pounds of tea to sell the natives.'

"And, of course, the malevolent person will say:

Sausage Tree.

Africa is a land of strange contradictions. In many of the lower, uninhabited parts, the tropical luxuriance is beyond description, with stately fan palms, mangoes, pawpaws, bananas and plantains. In other sections it is a barren desert. Some of the forests are tall and dense with euphorbia, teak, cottonwood, tamarind and shea-butter trees that grow to an extraordinary height, while the high land for the most part is devoid of vegetation. Of all the trees there is none more curious than the "Sausage tree" which belongs to the acacia family, and which is found in other parts of the world as well. In Egypt they call it the "Labbak," or "Women's Tongues" because it "looks in at the window." Here in East Africa one frequently sees an isolated specimen left on a plantation for its shade as well as for its fruit, the long, sausage-like pods containing food for both man and beast.

Not Encouraging.

"I would like to get another suit," said Slowpay. "I am paying attention to an heiress and—"

"Paying attention, hey?" said the tailor scornfully. "Well, if you are as slow paying that as you are paying my bill your wedding will be chronicled: 'Another Octogenarian Married!'"

LONDON CONCERT PARTY.

The London Concert Party will render a unique program. There will be ensemble singing, but the individual work of the artists will be especially stressed. Miss Mitchener will be the Soprano, Miss Dewey will be the Contralto, Mr. Willgoose the Tenor, and Mr. Brouwer, the Baritone.

Miss Mitchener will appear as a soloist in several selections, in both a heavier and a lighter vein. She has an usually clear lyric soprano, which, accompanied by a vivacious manner, will greatly please. Miss Dewey is a violinist of rare ability, and will render various selections. Mr. Brouwer is one of the best baritones in Canada. He has a very robust voice. In addition to his solo work, at the evening program, he will lead Community Singing, drilling the audience in rendering together several of the familiar songs. Song Sheets will be distributed, giving a verse or two of each. This will be one of the most enjoyable events of Chautauqua Week. Mr. Willgoose will preside at the piano, and assist in other ways.

For an opening number the work of the London Concert Party is an offering that will please greatly, and will start the program with a splendid swing. They will give a full concert in the afternoon and a prelude of some fifty minutes in the evening.

Sports

PITCHED THE GAME

At Oshawa on Saturday last. Fred Goyer pitched the entire game for the G.T.R. team of this city. In the first innings he was a little erratic having arrived on the field too late to warm up, but in the succeeding innings he only allowed a few scattered hits.

WON PROTEST

At an Executive meeting of the Central Ontario Paseball League held at Oshawa last Saturday night the protest of the Oshawa Club against pitcher Clark of Cobourg was won by Oshawa. Cobourg failed to defend the protest and thus saved their $10.

Lindsay Club was not notified of the meeting of the Executive, but to the way of thinking, Secretary Nott should have banned Clark long ago. He twirled against Peterboro and another club in the league but did not win. It was generally understood that he was a "ringer" or tourist.

HATS OFF TO MILLS

When it comes to a real ball player you have to take your hat off to Mills, the Belleville catcher. Notwithstanding Oshawa's big lead on Saturday, Mills worked like a trojan until the last man was declared out in the ninth innings. His throwing to bases was perfect, and he walloped the old ball every time up. Mills is easily the classiest player in the Central League and is also the main stay of the Belleville team.—Port Hope Guide.

WON SILVERWARE

At Peterboro on Monday a Central Ontario Bowling Association tournament was held and Belleville was represented by one rink and for the second time captured the J. R. Stratton silver cup. It is a beautiful trophy and is much prized by the winners. The Belleville rink was composed of the following players:

J. Buchanan, Judge Deroche, C. H. Vermilyea, R. J. Wray, skip.

A FRIENDLY MATCH

Six rinks of the Belleville Bowling Club went to Napanee this afternoon to play a friendly match with six rinks of the Napanee Club. The following were the composition of the local rinks:

Geo. Lancaster	J. J. B. Flint
Geo. Dean	W. C. Springer
Col. Lazier	J. Buchanan
W. B. Riggs, skip	Judge Deroche skip
M. Walsh	C. Flint
A. R. Symons	W. A. Elliott

COMING TOURNAMENT

Commencing at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon next, a three days' tournament will be opened at the Belleville Bowling lawn on William street. Already a number of clubs have entered rinks and the prospects are that it will be the best tournament ever held in this city. Three beautiful silver cups are offered as trophies, being the Riggs Cup, the Ritchie Cup and the Ackerman Cup. In addition there are many valuable prizes to be competed for. The members of th local club are doing all in their power for the success of the tournament.

INTERESTING RACE

The Lindsay Warder has the following to say of the standing of the Central Ontario League team:

The race in the Central Ontario Baseball League is becoming quite interesting, and fans throughout the district are waiting for the last heat on Saturday next when Peterboro play in Oshawa.

On Saturday last, Peterboro defeated Lindsay and thus lead the League. Oshawa sprung a surprise by defeating Belleville and as the Oldsmobile town also won the protest against Cobourg, they have a good chance of tieing the League up. If Oshawa wins on Saturday against Peterboro, Belleville and Oshawa will be tied. Belleville is out of the running today unless Oshawa wins on Saturday next.

Port Hope play in Lindsay Wednesday and the fight will decide which team will finish in the cellar position.

LONG CRUISE FOR U. S. MIDSHIPMEN

Squadron Two, of the Atlantic battleship fleet, with Vice-Admiral Hilary P. Jones commanding and carrying upwards of 1,500, Anapolis midshipmen, which arrived at Honolulu recently for an eight-day visit, broke the record for the longest continuous cruise for battleships in the history of the United States navy, according to officers of the fleet.

The leg of the trip from Panama to Honolulu, 4,665 miles, is said to be the longest non-stop voyage for battleships in the navy's annals. Engine room records showed that an average speed of 11½ knots was maintained, as against the 10-knot average speed when the Connecticut, flagship of this squadron, led the Atlantic fleet around the world in 1908.

During their long voyage the midshipmen worked as regular sailors. They swabbed decks, shoveled coal and did everything that falls to the lot of the enlisted men. While in Honolulu officers and men of the fleet, midshipmen and reservists were guests of honor at numbers of entertainments from the Admiral's ball down to the private swimming party at Waikiki.

DOG'S LONG HIKE.

Two years ago Roy M. Coe and family moved to Albuquerque, New Mexico from Fort Scott, Kansas, bringing with them the family pet, Bud, a collie dog. Last November Bud disappeared from home, and although Mr. Coe advertised and offered a substantial reward for the dog's return, no trace of him was found.

The other day Mr. Coe received a message from his brother-in-law, an employe of the Fort Scott Gas Company, reading: "Bud, somewhat tired, walked into the gas plant and lay down. The dog, apparently, had consumed about eight months making the trip of approximately 900 miles. The trip to Albuquerque was made by train, consequently on his eastward journey Bud had no familiar landmarks to guide him unless he followed the railroad.

An Analysis of the "Road Speed" of a

is a tribute to its special steels

Men driving larger cars have often wondered at the "road speed" of a Maxwell.

True, in an open, straight stretch they have run away from a Maxwell.

But in any "piece of going" (and we have many such roads in Canada) in which hills, turns, curves or rough roads enter into the general average, they do not outrun a Maxwell.

The reason for this is the special steels in a Maxwell. They are made to Maxwell's own formulae, and make possible construction combining great strength with light weight.

The lightness of the weight enables a Maxwell to take a turn with more ease and less slowing up, come down a hill under better control, ascend a hill as well, and make more time over a rough piece of roadway.

The strength of its steels enables a Maxwell to stand equally as well, or better, side strains, road unevenness, etc.

In other words, a Maxwell makes speed when a larger car cannot, and thus evens up to a high average its "road speed" without breaking the speed laws.

This ability in a Maxwell is one of many that is winning new friendships daily. Nearly 400,000 of them to date; in another year 500,000.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY—

> They who are content to remain in the valley will get no news from the mountains.—Macy.

CONTENTMENT.

"Milk from contented cows" is the claim for superiority of its product of condensed milk set up by a large business concern which uses much newspaper space to make readers instinctively think of that particular kind of condensed milk when in need of that article of domestic consumption.

"Milk from contented cows" is just a development of the policy of what is called "Big Business" today. Great industrial corporations in the course of a close study of economical business methods have found that successful business depends largely upon the contentment of the human units, the arteries and pulsing heart which constitute the machinery of production, and from the humblest laborer to the highest executive a policy prevails that the productive forces of any great business must be surrounded with conditions conducive to contentment, for a contented man or woman is of far greater value as a business asset than the discontented ones whose minds are self centred in real or imaginary grievances antagonistic to their best efforts being exerted in production and development of new ideas.

From the realization of the essential policy of content has developed good housing conditions, social and club features, educational opportunities, insurances against sickness and accident, and pensions upon retirement after a certain period of faithful service.

Contentment means progress and prosperity with individual enterprise stimulated by the elimination of the menace of uncertainty.

Communities are awakening to the necessity of providing parks and recreation grounds, of good roads, of superior educational and entertainment facilities, and of better municipal government, all of which are productive of a contented citizenry and a community spirit alive with enterprise and a desire for progress along right lines.

The world is at the cross roads where old deep-seated prejudices must be scrapped and left behind and new trails blazed out with higher ideals based upon the spirit of unselfishness.

Every business enterprise and every community must get in step with the newer philosophy or stay hopelessly in the ruck of lack of progress.

A GENERAL ELECTION.

The Kingston Whig, Liberal through and through, but sane and sensible at all times, has the following to say in answer to the propaganda being waged for an early general election:

> The Toronto Globe and World are discussing this question, and the former is emphatic in demanding that the new Meighen government dissolve and go to the people, "because everybody wants an election."
> There are two sides to this question, and the government is likely to be guided by what it conceives to be in the best interest of the country. On the one hand there is evidence of a continuation of group organization for political purposes, a symptom of unrest growing out of the prolongation of the war but which is gradually subsiding. This condition has been bad for all governments, and in the event of a general election occurring in Canada during the past two years would have created a condition unprecedented in our history. On the other hand, the present parliament was elected in 1917 for a period of five years and in the absence of any issue of sufficient importance to precipitate an election, the government has every right to choose its own time for going to the country. At the present moment there is little interest shown apart from the "ins and outs." The fact that the last election was fought on the conscription issue, and the necessity to "win the war" has passed, gives some pretext to politicians to clamor for a dissolution and an election. This, however, is a point which appears to have been settled by the members of parliament themselves. Had any considerable number of them regarded their position as incongruous and withdrew their support from the government because the war was over, the country would have had another election. Nothing of the sort has happened, but, on the contrary, there is every evidence of parliament's ability to function. Under the circumstances there is no likelihood of an election until some time in the future.

It turns out that the gang who lynched a young negro near Roxboro, N.S., some days ago got hold of the wrong man. Their victim was innocent of the crime for which he suffered.

Dominion civil servants have formed an "association" affiliated with the trade unions. There is a specific provision that the association "is not to be nvolved in any trade union dispute which may arise," but the proof of the pudding is in the eating.

The Merry-Go-Round

Vancouver World

The consumer pays the freight. This accounts for the philosophy with which the railway executives of the United States, so recently put back into possession of their property have received the award of the Railway Labor Board, giving some two million employes an average increase of pay amounting to $25 a month. Application is already being made for an increase of freight rates amounting to 18 per cent.

In short, the merry-go-round has started again. The addition in wages means an addition to rates which in its turn adds to the cost of articles of consumption the whole continent over—for in this department of economics what is done in the United States one day is copied in Canada the next. It follows that by and by we shall all have reason to know that the cost of living has again advanced. Judging by the records of the last three or four years this will mean application for increased pay from the workers in other industries until gradually the general level of the cost of production is raised to such a degree as to deprive the railwaymen of part of at least of the advantage they at present enjoy.

THE POET'S CORNER

THE THINKER

Berton Braley

Back of the beating hammers
  By which the steel is wrought
Back of the Workshop's clamor
  The seeker may find the Thought.
The Thought that is ever master
  Of iron and steam and steel,
That rises above disaster
  And tramples it under heel
The drudge may fret and tinker
  Or labor with lusty blows
But back of him stands the Thinker
  The clear-eyed man who Knows
Back of the motors humming,
  Back of the belts that sing,
Back of the hammers drumming
  Back of the cranes that swing,
There is the eye which scan them,
  Watching through stress and strain
There is the mind that plans them,
  Back of the Brawn, the Brain!
Might of the roaring boiler,
  Force of the engine's thrust,
Strength of the sweating toiler
  Greatly in these we trust,
But back of them stands the schemer,
  The Thinker who drives things thru;
Back of the Job—the Dreamer,
  Who's making the dream come true.

A LAUGH OR TWO

Wanted Them Quick

Mr. Parvenue-Smith was refurnishing his library, which occupation was causing him considerable anxiety. In despair he called in an expert bookseller and after many suggestions and a final order for a complete library, he turned to his adviser and asked:

"And what is the name of the fellow who writes such a lot—Shakeshift or something like that, isn't it?"

"Shakespeare, sir," answered the tradesman.

"Yes, that's it. Get me all he's written and make a note to order anything new he may write.

Concealing a smile the bookseller suggested: "And may I suggest you have them bound in morocco?"

"Bound in Morocco?" roared the newly-made Croesus. "No. Certainly not. I want the confounded things at once."

"But I do my best," Marie insisted.

"When Mr. Gumson called for me with his golf clubs, he said you slammed the door in his face."

"Was that a golf-bag he had?"

Sunlight For All Convicts

Sun Shines in Every Cell in the Illinois Prison.

JOLIET, Ill., Aug. 4.—Sunlight for every cell and individual washbowls with hot and cold water are conveniences to be found within the new cylindrical state prison at Statesville, Ill.

The prison house, the first of its kind in the world gives one the impression on entrance of being an aviary. Every celll has been provided with 90 minutes of sunlight, coming through a skylight. This universal distribution of sunlight accomplished by a slight curve in the skylight was figured by Forest Ray Moulton, professor of astronomy at the University of Chicago.

A cafeteria system another new idea for prison life has been installed. Most of the eatables are supplied from the 2,200 acre honor farm upon which the prison is located.

The 248 cells which are all alike are built of concrete with cork insulation in the walls. The doors of the cells are double locked. They can be automatically locked by a hydraulic oil control and then the gaurd comes around and locks each cell separately. They can be opened individually.

In the center of the prison is a tower from where the gaurds can watch the movements of all prisoners.

At night the outside of the prison is lighted up with electric lights by which the gaurd in the center of the round prison house can see everything that is going on in front of the windows.

The prison is surrounded with a circular concrete wall 33½ feet high, 14 inches thick at the top and 24 inches thick at the bottom. The New York state building commission has adopted this idea and expects to enclose Sing Sing yith a similar wall.

MARVELS OF MEMORY.

Great Men Who Possessed Retentive Minds.

Capablanca's remarkable feat at the recent Chess Congress at Hastings, England, when he played thirty-five games at once, reveals an extraordinary mental grasp. Those who have seen his play say that he shows great swiftness of decision and his brain seems so constituted that this elaborate and complex game seems quite simple to him.

Taine, the French historian, tells of two American friends of his who used to play chess on an imaginary board while walking down the street.

Great men in other walks of life have also owed much to their exceptional powers of memory. Lord Macaulay could recite all the 7,758 lines of "Paradise Lost." Ben Jonson said he could repeat all that he had ever written, and whole books that he had read. Sasaubon wrote of Scaliger, the celebrated French scholar, that he never read anything that he did not remember. In three months he committed to memory all the Greek poets.

Other memory feats of a more mechanical kind are recorded. Hippias, a Greek rhetorician, was able to repeat, in order, a series of 500 words after once hearing them. He was beaten by Seneca, who could retain 2,000 names in order, and repeat the list backwards at will. Themistocles, the Greek general, was able to call by their names the 20,000 citizens of Athens; Cyrus, the Persian Emperor, took pains to learn the name of every soldier in his army. Hortensius, a celebrated Roman orator, after sitting all day at a public sale in Rome, correctly enunciated from memory all the articles sold, their prices, and the names of the purchasers.

These men had been trained to exercise their memory from their earliest youth, to fit them for public debate in the national assemblies. All these performances, however, remarkable as they are, fall short of the achievements of the once world-renowned Corsican, Guilio Guidi. This young man was a student of law at Padua, where he visited Muretus, a distinguished philologer of the day. Muretus, who had heard stories of his wonderful memory, took the opportunity of putting it to the test. In presence of a large company he dictated words, classical, barbarous, connected and disconnected, until he wearied himself, the writer who took them down, and the listeners — all except the Corsican.

Alert and fresh when Muretus ceased dictating, he repeated every word in exact order. Beginning with the last, he went over the whole list again; then he gave the first, third, fifth, in any order that was asked.

Some painters, too, have had wonderful memories. Gustave Dore painted portraits from memory. Abercrombie saw a copy of one of Rubens' masterpieces done so accurately from memory that it required careful examination to distinguish it from the original.

Paper suits made in Germany are for sale in England at as low a price as eight dollars.

DUEL MADE HER CHILDISH.

Remarkable Tragic Ending to a Love Romance.

A duel ending in the death of one of the combatants and attended by extraordinary consequences to the woman they both loved was fought at Castellon, in Spain, recently.

Two young men, named Alonso Gonzalez and Ricardo Garcia, met at daybreak to settle by the ordeal of the dagger the question which of them should be favored with the hand of Rosalia Miranda, a lace worker of great beauty. The girl herself, who had previously consented to the plan to secure her affection, was present to watch the encounter.

Rosalia, having given the signal by means of a whistle, the rivals immediately attacked each other with such ferocity that in a few moments Alonso fell dead, pierced to the heart, his antagonist being seriously wounded.

The girl, who had cherished a secret preference for the dead youth, flung herself on his lifeless form in a transport of grief, and was with difficulty induced by his victorious rival to return home. Ricardo gave himself up to the police, by whom he was detained on the charge of manslaughter.

The following day the parents of Rosalia were startled by the remarkable change that had come over her.

The tragedy had affected her brain in such a way, that she had apparently returned to early childhood, even the tone of her voice being that of a child.

She nows spends most of the time playing babyish games, and spelling out the words in a long discarded picture book, and at times breaks out into fits of infantile crying. She has no recollection whatever of the occurrence that has so strangely affected her mentality, and she cannot even be induced to partake of food except what is usually provided for the youngest child.

The curious psychological transformation which has overtaken the girl is attracting the town doctors and specialists from all parts, who are as puzzled to explain it as they are seemingly unable to restore the victim to her normal state.

CHAPLIN'S WIFE WANTS DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Aug. 3.—Mildred Harris Chaplin has filed suit here for divorce from Charlie Chaplin. She alleged cruelty.

Mrs. Chaplin recently announced she was thinking of suing for divorce, saying her husband had not been home in two months. When questioned regarding his wife's statement the comedian said: "Well, such is life in the Great West."

The Chaplins were married in Los Angeles October 23, 1918. The bride, Mildred Harris, was only 17 at the time, but was already known to movie audiences. Chaplin, too, is youthful, having been born in London in 1888. For a year or so after marriage a romantic glamor was cast about the love affair, but last winter rumors of disagreements arose, and as early as March Mrs. Chaplin talked of a separation. In April the comedian came out second best in a rough-and-tumble row with his wife's manager. The couple had one child, Charles Spencer Chaplin, jun., who died last summer, three days after birth.

Half a Pineapple For One Dessert

In Jiffy-Jell desserts the fruit flavors are abundant. For instance, half a pineapple is crushed to make the flavor for one pint dessert. This is done in Hawaii from fruit too ripe to ship.

All Jiffy-Jell fruit flavors are made from condensed fruit juice. They come in liquid form—in vials—a bottle in each package. That is true of no other quick gelatine dessert.

A few cents will serve a real-fruit dessert for six people. No artificial flavor, no saccharine. It is the most delicious fruit dessert available, and it comes in ten choice flavors.

FRITZ IN ALGECIRAS.

Spanish City Is Bridgehead to African Railways.

Fritz is waiting. For a golden opportunity. There are more fortunes to be made in Madrid, the city with a future, than even during the meteor rise of Berlin. Therefore Fritz is in Madrid.

And there are others waiting in Algeciras, the future bridge-head to the African railway system. Therefore Fritz, several of him, has taken up his abode in an inn opposite the dusty harbor station.

Fourteen years ago the kaiser's delegates to the Algeciras conference, having looked hungrily for weeks toward the African headlands opposite, finally informed the spoiled child of Europe that he could not have all he wanted. France and other people had friends as well as rights. Then the kaiser determined finally upon war.

Now, until she comes against into the political limelight, Algeciras takes a siesta in her wonderful sunshine, and fashionable Britain makes rendezvous in the Reina Cristina hotel, which to my knowledge has no counterpart in Europe and perhaps scarcely any on the habitable globe.

Here in the glorious gardens over the bay, one glow of myriad arums and white iris and roses and flowers I cannot even name, miracle-workers, the people who make the spells, take a rest. It is a country house and a country club together, and it looks across its terraced gardens toward Gibraltar and to the African mainland.

Algeciras is an English discovery served from Bobadilla junction by an English railway company and a resting place of many whose daily round for weeks on end is upon the rock opposite.

Ronda of balcony fame, up in the hills, was perhaps never as good as it used to be. It is Tivoli without its t's—trees, temple and (alas!) now torrent.

But Algeciras was never so good as it is. At sundown great white birds settle in flocks upon one tall tree in the garden and turn it into a snow pillar, and at sunrise the faint scent comes up to my bedroom window from an orange tree in fruit and flower, the same that was brought here in fruit overnight to please an English lady who wanted to "wake among oranges."

Along the cliff edge towards "Sandy Cove," where adorable English children are paddling in the sun, there is a carpet of blue crocus, edged with scarlet vetch and fringed with asphodel, while the flowering broom throws dashes of almost violet gold into the color scheme.

Down by the sleepy port dusty strings of donkeys pick their way over the cobbles (donkeys are dainty steppers), laden and overladen with piles of cork from the forest, while babies of 5 to 7 tango, and tango well, in the street to the drone of a barrel organ.

How on earth can they do it in the sun, and, where do they pick up the steps?—Charles Tower, in the London Mail.

Considerable Pelting.

While motoring with a party of friends in the far West our car crashed through a wooden railing on a high embankment along a drive near the Oregon river.

The car ran 50 feet down the bank and landed in the midst of a picnic party which was just beginning to have a feast. The big car dashed among the picnickers, made them scatter, and demolished the spread.

We congratulated ourselves that the car had not turned over and tried to explain matters, offering to pay for all damages, but the picnickers, none of whom understood English, assaulted us with the mangled remains of their banquet.

We hurried away and found ourselves considerably disfigured by the pies, cakes, pickles, jelly, chicken and broken dishes with which we were pelted.—Exchange.

IMMIGRATION WANTED

ROOM FOR MANY MORE CITIZENS IN CANADA.

Where the New-comers Hail From and Who and What They Are—Some Facts About the Opportunities Offered by This New Country, and How the Authorities Are Handling the Important Problem.

ONE of the most important problems that Canada has to deal with is that of immigration. It is probably of importance equal to the problem of conservation of the great natural resources of the Dominion, vastly important as it is. Upon the policy in dealing with the immigrants depends, to a very noteworthy extent, the future prosperity and well-being of the Dominion. Perhaps at no other time in the history of Canada did the immigration problem demand more serious care and consideration than at present.

There still is in Canada an area of land fit for tilage estimated at 250,672,810 acres. A recent estimate placed the acreage of land in the Dominion under cultivation at only 51,427,190. In the three prairie provinces—Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan—settlers are needed for 128,000,000 acres of surveyed farm lands, and these lands are equally well suited for the carrying on of mixed farming or for grain growing, the balance of 122,672,810 acres is located in the other provinces.

It has been noted that since the war there has been an increased desire among the people of a large part of the world to earn a living from the soil. How sincere this desire will prove to a large extent it is yet too early to predict or ascertain. Canada is primarily an agricultural country and agriculture is its basic industry. While there is immense wealth in the mineral and other natural resources of the Dominion, which to develop will require the union of capital adn labor, yet the assured benefit to Canada and on graduated measure to the world beyond, must come chiefly through agricultural development. Canada already is one of the great granaries of the world. Within its 3,729,665 square miles of area there is land enough to support many times the present population.

For a country with such an immense area and such a relatively small population — approximately 8,500,000 — Canada is well equipped with railways, much more so than any other British Dominion. There is at present a total mileage of 38,879 and the two transcontinental lines operated for the Canadian Government, with other branch and subsidiary lines, form the largest public utility system in the world. Add to the extensive mileage operated by Canadian National Railways the elaborate and far-reaching system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and a glance at a railway map will show a well planned network of railways in the Dominion. These with the inland canals, measuring 1,600 miles in length, and the rivers and great lakes, form highways of transportation that are of inestimable advantage to the development of the country, and afford the farmer easy and profitable means of moving his produce to market. Moreover, they have brought within profitable reach of markets millions of acres that previously were considered too far away to be developed with reasonable assurance of profit.

Another point that is worth noting is that Canada is nearer to Great Britain and the European countries than any other considerable part of the British Empire, except Newfoundland, and the Mother Country and Europe are profitable markets. Further, Canada is a next door neighbor to the United States with their population of well over 100,000,000 and the country to the south will, if the population there continues to increase in anything like the same proportion it has been doing of late years, be more dependent on the agricultural products of Canada than has been the case in the past. Highly productive land in Canada is selling at from $30 to $50 an acre, improved and with buildings. True, some farms have been sold recently on the prairies for as high as $100 an acre, but this price has included a good house and substantial barn and outbuildings, all located close to a railway, town or city.

For a few years before the outbreak of war a big tide of immigration was flowing into Canada. In 1913, 402,432 immigrants were admitted, of whom 150,542 were from the British Isles, 133,710 from the United States and 112,881 from all other countries, the total representing an increase of 1,584 per cent. over the year 1900 when the total immigration to Canada was 23,895.

As was to be expected immigration began to fall off with the outbreak of war and in 1918 from all countries was 50,270, the majority coming from the United States which contributed 40,194; from the British Isles, 4,484; and other countries, 5,592. Last year, however, there was a notable increase, the total being 117,633. From the British Isles came 57,251, from the United States 52,064, and 8,318 from other countries, or 67,363 more than in 1918—an increase of 134 per cent.

Immigrants from the United States, the majority of whom were of the farming class, brought with them cash and effects amounting to $18,419,406, compared with $7,351,847 in 1918.

Of the Americans who took up residence in Canada last year, Alberta attracted more than any other province. The number who went there was 13,883; Ontario got 12,093; Saskatchewan, 8,672; Quebec, 6,617; Manitoba, 4,465; British Columbia, 3,601; Maritime Provinces, 2,593, and the Yukon Territory, 140.

Ontario was the favorite province for the British settlers, last year receiving a total of 23,914; British Columbia came next with 8,348; then Manitoba with 5,918; Alberta, 5,867; Quebec, 5,513; Saskatchewan, 5,087; Maritime Provinces, 2,609, and the Yukon Territory, 7.

The vigilance of the officials of the Department of Immigration and Colonization is reflected in the figures for rejections and deportations at ocean ports and points along the international boundary. At the latter 20,211 persons were rejected as unable to comply with the immigration regulations.

The increase in rejections at border points was 132 per cent. over 1918. At ocean ports the rejections last year were 497 compared with only 53 in the previous year. These rejections were made chiefly on the grounds that the prospective immigrants were likely to become a charge on the Canadian public or were either mentally or physically defective, and that they had not the necessary funds on landing that the law demands.

Deportations at points on the boundary, between Canada and the United States, fell off last year, the figures being 288 in 1919 and 371 in 1918. Criminality was the principal ground for these deportations. At ocean ports there were 203 deported in 1919 as against 130 in 1918, an increase of 56 per cent. Criminals, insane and persons likely to become a charge on the public made up almost the entire total of 203.

It will be seen from the foregoing statement on rejections and deportations that the Department of Immigration and Colonization is exercising every vigilance in order that the settlers admitted into Canada may be of the most acceptable type.

At the present time the prospects point to a big influx of immigrants this year to Canada, but the Department of Immigration and Colonization is emphasizing that at present only settlers who will bring the land under cultivation, or who will serve as household workers are particularly in demand. For them there are opportunities in the Dominion, which it is proper to state, no other country in the world can offer.

K. OF C. CONSIDERS PLEA FOR BRANCH IN CHINA

New York, Aug. 3.—Delegates were arriving in large numbers today to attend the opening session tomorrow of the 38th annual convention of the Knights of Columbus. Representatives from fourteen states were already here, having come by special trains. The Supreme Board of Directors today considered a request of Joseph F. Doyle of Shanghai that the work of the order be extended to China. Business sessions will begin tomorrow morning after celebration of solemn Pontifical Mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral by Archbishop Bonzano, Papal Delegate to Washington.

30,000-BARREL OIL GUSHER DISCOVERED

Washington, Aug. 3.—A new oil gusher with a daily production of 30,000 barrels has been discovered in the Vera Cruz oil fields. The well is near the town of Maranjos, Vera Cruz. The above statement was made at the Mexican Embassy this afternoon. The Embassy also announced that several of the foreign oil corporations doing business in Mexico have, within the last few days, paid $2,500,000 in back taxes into the Mexican Treasury. Another $500,000 payment will be made within a few days.

New Telephone Rates Are Necessary

OUR existing rates for telephone service are inadequate: The revenue is insufficient to pay our operating expenses and secure the fair return required to attract new capital for extensions and additions to the system.

It is not strange that this should be the case. Our revenues are not keeping up with our expenses. All telephone materials and supplies have increased enormously in cost; wages have gone up; during the twelve months ending 30th June, 1920, our payrolls increased over $3,100,000.

To meet the greatest demand for telephone service in our history, we have made extensive additions to the system, which, under present day conditions, have involved an abnormal expense. Our 1920 expansion programme calls for an expenditure of over $10,000,000, and to meet the increasing demand for telephone service, we must continue to expend large amounts annually during the next few years.

The continued development of telephone service depends upon adequate revenue. Inadequate revenue means a repetition in the telephone business of what happened to the American railroads. You know their story. Inadequate rates stifled their development and every community in that country is suffering as a consequence. Inadequate telephone rates will produce similar results in the telephone field. It is unthinkable that this will be permitted. Adequate telephone service is of the utmost importance to the public; without it the business and social interests of every community must suffer.

The plain fact is we have reached a point where we cannot maintain a satisfactory and comprehensive telephone service unless we are assured of sufficient additional revenue.

It will be necessary to establish new rates for telephone service, and schedules, which we hope will furnish the needed relief, will be filed within a few days with the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners. These schedules will yield only reasonable assistance. The facts regarding the necessity for the new rates will be given to the public through the advertising columns of the newspapers and through other channels.

Public sentiment and public necessity demand the maintenance of adequate telephone service. Business men particularly realize the fact that increases in telephone rates are necessary in these abnormal times to insure a continuance and extension of service.

We desire to keep our business upon a sound financial basis and we believe that when you know the facts you will support us in this endeavour.

AN EXPENSIVE DRUNK.

Before Magistrate Masson this morning Clem Ellis pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. A fine of $50 and costs, $6.50, was imposed, which was paid.

PLANE PASSED OVER CITY

An airplane flying in a westerly direction passed over the city at a few minutes before 6 o'clock last evening. The machine was at a considerable height and was watched by many citizens.

ANNCUNCEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott, of Belleville, Canada, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Fitzgerald, to Walter H. Reeves, Esq., London, England. The marriage will take place on Wednesday, August the eleventh, in Toronto.

NEW LOCOMOTIVES

The 5200 class locomotives just turned out at the Longue Point shops of the Montreal Locomotive Works for the Canadian National Railways are to be employed in hauling the International Limited and other fast passenger trains on the G.T.R. between Brockville and Belleville. The locomotives are the last word in design and efficiency and are reputed to have great speed. The 1500 class locomotives which have been for some time engaged in this work here, will be transferred to similar duty at Toronto terminal.

CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE APPOINTED

At the Y.M.C.A. building last evening a meeting was held of the officers of the newly formed Navy League Association in this city. There was not a large attendance and but little business transacted. Capt. Boal was present and gave an address. A committee composed of the officers of the Association and some twenty citizens was appointed to make preparations for the campaign here on Trafalgar Day, to raise funds for the worthy object.

A NOISY STILL

Walter Commodore, tried at Sharbot Lake on Monday before S. Gordon and J W. Donaldson, Justices of the Peace on a charge of having illicitly operated a whiskey still, was acquitted after a great many witnesses were examined. The still had been in operation outside of the three months' limit within which a prosecution must be made. It was shown that the still had been in possession of many persons, being a sort of community affair and ownership could not be fastened upon any particular person. The last time it was operated everybody got drunk and when they woke up three bottles of the whiskey had disappeared, with one of their number, who had kept sober and watched his opportunity. It was alleged that he disposed of the whiskey at $8 per bottle. The existence of the still came to the knowledge of the authorities through a little incident that happened at a stilling bee. One man got pushed against the hot stove upon which the mash was boiling. He was slightly burned, a row followed and in stepped the law.

STILL UNIDENTIFIED

Efforts ar being made by Coroner Dr. W. W. Boyce, to secure the identification of a young man who was killed on July 22nd while walking on the Grand Trunk Railway tracks about fifteen miles east of Belleville. So far no trace as to his identity has been found. On his body was found a small piece of paper bearing some figures and the names of George Wellington and George Orr, Clarkson Post Office together with a small sum of money. The man's description is as follows: Age, about 25 years; height about 5 feet, 9 inches; weight about 150 pounds; black hair and eyebrows; face smooth-shaven; teeth, complete and regular; an old round skin scar about two inches in diameter on the back of the left fore-arm just above the wrist, resembling an old scald or large vaccination mark. From appearance of his hands, it is thouht he might have been a mechanic, while his general appearance indicates that he was a young man of respectable habits and considerable intelligence. An inquest is being held having been adjourned until August 6th pending indentification. In the meantime his body has been embalmed and is being held.

BACKED INTO CREEK

A narrow escape was experienced by Mr. H.H. Cossitt of Brockville, a commercial traveller well known in Belleville, when his motor car plunged through a bridge on the Kingston road, a few miles west of Brockville. The bridge is a temporary one over Grant's Creek and the spot is particularly dangerous on account of the limited space and a steep hill, occasioned by the work in progress on the Provincial highway, several cars had accidents there recently. Mr. Cossitt was driving from his summer home at Butternut Bay to Brockville and with him were his wife, child and Mr. Frank Field, of Montreal. The car stalled on a hill and the brakes failing to hold, ran backward on to the bridge crashing through the bridge railings. Mr. Cossitt swung the front wheel around so as to hold the car and the back of the car only went into the creek. Happily no one was injured.

WEDDING BELLS

McCOY—MARSH

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Delaney, Yeoman street, when Alfred McCoy, second son of John McCoy, Hillside street, was united in the holy bonds of Matrimony to Miss Effie Marsh, Yeoman street, city, by the Rev. Wallace of Thurlow.

The bride was attired in a very pretty white voile dress with hat to match and carried blush pink carnations.

After the ceremony a sumptuous supper was partaken of by friends and relatives. The many and beautiful gifts show the esteem in which they are held. The happy couple will reside at 1 North Front street.

FISHER—MODELAND

The marriage of Adelaide Beatrice, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seward Modeland to Stanlty G. Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fisher of Drayton Ont., took place on Tuesday, August 3 at the home of the bride's parents, 251 Charles street, Belleville, the Rev. D. C. Ramsay, officiating.

The bride who was given away by her father looked very pretty in a grown of white satin and georgette and wore a corsage bouquet of suuset roses and sweet peas. Miss Jean Cunningham, in blue georgette carrying American beauty roses and sweet peas was bridesmaid, while the grooms attendant was Mr. Seward G. Modeland, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served and later Mr. and Mrs. Fisher left for a short honeymoon, the bride travelling in a navy blue suit and black tulle hat and seal scarf. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Fisher will reside in Belleville.

MARRIED

FISHER—MODELAND—On Tuesday, August 3rd, 1920, at the home of the bride's parents, 251 Charles Street, Belleville, by the Rev. D. C. Ramsay, Adelaide Beatrice Modeland, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seward Modeland, to Stanley G. Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fisher, Drayton, Ont.

TEUTONS CHEERED
BY CHEAPER BEER

Berlin, Aug. 3.—The German people are cheered by the news of better and cheaper beer in sight. German breweries at last are in a position to discontinue the manufacture of weakling war beer which has long been a sore and sad subject for the thirsty Teutons.

Tomorrow full strength beer will again be on tap and filling the glass of Teuton happiness to overflowing. The cost of beer will go down on an average of 25 per cent.

Astonished Over Result He Says

"Words Are Not Strong Enough to Express My Gratitude," Says This Toronto Man.

"I have no word of praise strong enough to express my gratitude for what Tanlac has done for me," said John Howard of 45 Beverly St., Toronto, to the Tanlac representative recently.

"I hardly know where to begin in telling about my case," he said, "but for a whole year before starting Tanlac I suffered so with nervous dyspepsia I got no pleasure out of life. No matter how careful I was about what I ate trouble started soon afterwards. My food would seem to lie on my stomach like a lump of lead and then it would sour and ferment and form gas that bloated me until I could hardly breathe and I had sharp pains all around my heart. I frequently had such headaches that they almost drove me distracted and my nerves were in a terrible state. I tried everything in the way of medicines but none of them ever gave me more than temporary relief.

"When I saw so many Montreal people coming out with strong statements as to the great benefits they had received by taking Tanlac, I began to take notice, and decided to give it a trial myself. Well, I have taken four bottles in all, and it is nothing less than remarkable the way that medicine has settled my stomach trouble and built me up. I can honestly say that for the first time in many a long day I know what it is to really enjoy life and health. I can now eat anything set before me without ever suffering the least inconveniences from indigestion or gas. Headaches are a thing of the past and my nerves are as steady as a die. I sleep like a log the whole night through and get up in the mornings feeling fresh and strong. I shall always have a good word to say for Tanlac and have every confidence in recommending it to others."

EXPERT AIRMAN
FALLS 1,000 FEET

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 4.—Lieutenant Omer Locklear, famous "stunt" aviator and his assistant, Lieutenant Milton Elliotut were instantly killed here when their airplane fell a thousand feet as they were making an exhibition flight.

According to witnesses, Locklear, who was flying with fireworks blazing from his machine, either was blinded by them or by searchlights on the ground, and misjudged his altitude when he went into a nose spin, crashing before he realized he was close to the earth.

Locklear was an aviator instructor during the war. He was generally credited with originating the feat of changing from one plane to another in mid-air.

SUPPLY HUSBANDS FOR EUROPEANS

Washington, Aug. 4.—America, the only nation in which men out-number women, now is supplying husbands for women of Europe where there are not enough males to go around, reports to the immigration bureau indicated today.

Approximately 343,000 persons, mostly men sailed from the United States in the year ended with June, according to reports to Commissioner General Caminetti of the immigration bureau.

Furthermore, single European women and women widowed by the war, are rushing to the United States in the hope of obtaining husbands, reports indicated.

MUST WORK OR GO TO JAIL

Evidence of the stringent measures applied by Bolshevist organizations to curtail loafing among the workmen in Soviet Russia is contained in an account published in the London Times of a recent trial at Tula, conducted by the chief railway tribunal in connection with the "criminal" fall of production at the Tula railway works.

The commissars, administration and workers were accused, the indictment disclosing a heavy picture of loafing, criminal carelessness, inattention and cognizant 'bacon saving.

Those guilty of taking days off for the purpose of speculating, the Times says, were sentenced to ten years forced labor. A militiaman who slept at his post was sentenced to eight years. The commissars and administration for fall in production, were sentenced to three years at hard labor, while the remainder were sentenced to hard labor without imprisonment.

The Borovitch Bolshevist organization have decided to send to a concentration camp those of its members who have not participated in the "Working Saturday," a Times despatch from Moscow says.

Thousands Attend Camp Meeting

Interest in the Oak Lake Camp Meeting is growing and spindid meetings are being experienced.

Sunday, August 1st, which was the second Sabbath of this year's campaign proved no disappointment to those interested. As about five hundred people were present at 11 a.m. and most of them being desirous to have a forenoon service, Rev. Mr. Hyde acquiesced.

Rev. Mr. Wickware in his usual winsome and earnest manner led the splendid congregation in a hearty song service and the unannounced meeting of the morning will surely be remembered as one of the richest of the campains for the Evangelist showed how well he is prepared for his great work.

The afternoon saw a great throng amassd about the Tabernacle and after a few brief introductory words by Rev. E. B. Cooke of Newburgh and the usual service of song, Mrs. Cooke and Rev. Mr. Wickware gave an excellent duet and the stirring message of the afternoon followed. Rev. Mr. Hyde urged that the primary colors of the rainbow, the red, blue and yellow are types of outstanding qualities in the christian life during time and only in Heaven can the suffering and sacrifice suggested by the red be said to have given place from the bow. In this and the evening services there were several who expressed the desire to turn from a life of sin unto the Saviour and these were invited to the front and dealt with kindly and sanely and instructed in the direction of a life of righteousness.

It was estimated that between three and four thousands attended the meetings during the day. Announcements were made to the effect that workers would go out from the Camp to hold meetings Tuesday, 3rd inst., at Frankford; Wednesday at Foxboro; Thursday at Mt. Pleasant and Friday at Selby at 8 p.m. Sunday, 8th, services at 11 a.m., 2 p.m., and 7.30 p.m.

A meeting of the committees and trustees at the close of Sunday afternoon session made resolutions on behalf of the Expansion of the present effort and membership cards will be issued and a campaign carried on to enroll upwards of five hundred membrs in the Association for the future.

Evangelist Hyde will speak upon camp meetings, their place, importance, possibilities, etc. Sunday afternoon next.

LUMBER SCARCE IN NEW ZEALAND

Strong petitions have been sent in to the New Zealand government urging the placing of an embargo on the exportation of lumber andlifting of the duty on Canadian lumber until such time as the serious shortage of building materials may be overcome. There is marked shortage in building materials in general, especially lumber and cement.

These conditions have led the government to place restrictions upon the class of buildings that may be constructed in the Dominion during the next few months at least. It is announced that no building permits will be given for the erection of places of amusement, and in the cases of shops, offices and factories and other structures connected with industry as well as churches and memorial halls, the government will be guided by the reason set forth in each case by the parties applying for the permit. It is hoped in this way to meet the more urgent demands within a reasonable time.

The government and local bodies are considering particularly the provision of sufficient homes for the people of New Zealand and accommodations for the schooling of children.

BLIND AND CRIPPLED SOLDIERS SENSITIVE

This week on College street in Toronto, a man with a returned button strolled up Beverly street to where another citien had stopped to admire the wonderful shrubbery and flowers which are the pride of Gardener Ridge of the library board. The latter saw the other climb slowly up the curb and remembering Pearson Hull down the street, asked him if he desired assistance over the crossing. No the other was only waiting for a car, he said. The next thing that happened was the chap with the buttton smashing his head against the side of a passing street car—a blast of abuse from the motorman—and some tall swearing from a chauffer who almost ran the ex-soldier down. And before the incident, he had been going through the ordeal of being asked, didn't he think the flowers were wonderful! It is well known that the sensitiveness of the blind veterans sometimes has unfortunate results.

The amputation cases at Christie St. are almost similarly temperamental. They positively won't tolerate sympathy from the sisters. The sisters served overseas and know the unspeakable horrors these men went through.

Let us not forget the returned soldiers.

In a store not far from Bloor and Yonge the excuse was made by the proprietor that his delivering was done by a returned soldier. "And you know what they are," he said. The order was cancelled and a lot more future business lost right of the bat. The disappointed customer was the business head of a soldiers' club starting up.

Effect of New U.S. Ry. Rates On Transportation to Canada

CHARGES MAY BE EFFECTIVE ON FREIGHT FROM THE DOMINION INTO THE UNITED STATES, AND FROM THE UNITED STATES TO THE DOMINION.

WASHINGTON Aug. 5—New freight rates and passenger fares will be made effective on August 26, instead of August 20, for passenger fares, and August 25 for freight tariffs, United States railroad officials announced.

At the same time it was announced that the United States railroads would ask the Canadian Railway Commissioners for permission to make the new rates effective on transportation from the United States to the Dominion.

Applicaion of the new schedules to transportation to Canada, officials said will mean that shippers will pay freight charges under the new tariffs for their classification territories unless the shipment passes through more than one group of the railroads crossing the line, as an inter-territory rate, which is to be adanced 33 1-3 per cent. would apply.

Canadian railways, it was said, will apply to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to make the new charges effective on transportation from the Dominion into the United States.

Wider Membership Army And Navy Vets

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 5.—There are indications that there will be at last one strenuous struggle when, on October 11, the annual convention of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association of Canada, opens here.

Western commands are determinedly preparing to wage a big fight to bring about a change in the qualifications which entitle a man to membership in the association. It is maintained that if the desired change was made thousands of eligible men, hitherto barred from joining any such organization, would be immediately available, and would not hesitate to cast in their lot with the association.

At present to be entitled to membership a man must have served six years with the Imperial forces or have had nine years with the active militia, or must have won a war decoration.

The proposed change calls only for three years' service with the active militia or in the regular army, or six months with the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

M. J. Crehen, one of the active heads of the western commands whose opinion is shared with scores of others deeply interested in the association, asserts that three years' service is ample for if a man is going to make a soldier he should be one in that time. In existing circumstances a man may serve three years and then, as there is no organization which he may join he is lost sight of, and his experience is lost to the country.

It is to give the association the chance to keep in contact with such men as these, of whom there are thousands, that the west will put forth all its strength at the forthcoming convention.

Locally nothing is yet definitely known of the proposed $5,000,000 scheme for housing disabled soldiers, of which at least thirty days' notice must be given in order that it may be brought properly before the convention.

The committee will soon be at work on initial preparations for the gathering which is expected to draw at least fifty units to the Pacific coast.

TO HONOR PREMIER.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, will receive a welcome to St. Mary's, the place of his birth, on August 16th. Arrangements have been made for a nonpolitical gathering similar to that held at Portage la Prairie, his constituency.

Undoubtedly the Premier will take part in the pending by-election campaigns in St. John and Colchester. He will probably fix dates between nominations and polling days.

WIDESPREAD INTEREST IN PORTER'S PICNIC

Montreal Gazette: Mr. Meighen, the new Prime Minister, has started for the west, and will attend a reception by the citizens of Portage la Prairie, where his home is, today. The demonstration will be personal, rather than political, and nothing in the way of a program speech is expected. The beginning of his fighting efforts will likely be made in Hastings next week, when he is announced to attend a picnic arranged by Mr. E. Guss Porter, M.P., in an old Conservative district, which gave Canada one Prime Minister and many supporters of the policy he upheld.

Chapleau Greets Premier Meighen

He and Mrs. Meighen Visit Memorial Hall and Hospital

CHAPLEAU, Aug. 4.—Chapleau was honored today by the visit of the Premier, Hon. Arthur Meighen, and Mrs. Meighen, who received a great reception from th townsfolk here. The town band turned out at the railway station and played a selection of airs. The Premier and Mrs. Meighen were met by a deputation of the Town Council and leading citizens and escorted to the Nicholson Memorial Hall, donated to the town in memory of fallen soldiers, where they were received by Miss Jean Nicholson, niece of G. B. Nicholson, M.P., and of Mrs. Nicholson the donors, who are at present travelling in England and France.

Having inspected the whole of the building, and expressed their admiration, they were driven to the Lady Minto Hospital, where they were received by Dr. J. J. Sheahan, M.D., and the Matron, and escorted through the wards, speaking cheering words to the in-patients.

On returning to their private car on the train, Mrs. Meighen was presented with a large bouquet of white waterlilies by a little Indian girl named Jesse Egodgin, on behalf of the Principal, assistants, and pupils of the Indian Boarding School, which Mrs. Meighen gracefully acknowledged. Time did not permit a visit to the school. The Premier expressed his thanks and pleasure at such a cordial welcome from the citizens of Chapleau and congratulated them on the very fine Memorial Hall and splendid hospital they had which his wife and he had visited that day. Such buildings were a great credit to them.

Rousing cheers were accorded the party on leaving.

Luxury Taxes Are Boosting Revenue

Several Millions Already Added to Country's Income

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—The effect of Canada's new luxury taxes are clearly shown in the excise tax figures today: These taxes include luxury, sales and manufacturers' tax and while it is impossible to give the exact figures of the actual amount of the luxury tax, it is safe to say that already several millions have been added to the country's income as a result of the 1920 budget.

Collections from all sources of the Inland Revenue branch for July amounted to almost ten million dollars or an increase of over five and a half million over the corresponding month last year. On the excise tax side the amount collected last month totalled almost seven millions as compared with $969,299 for the same month last year. This abnormal increase also reflects the effect of this year's legislation. Officials estimate there will be an increase of approximately seventently million within one year.

ENGINEER'S CONVENTION

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 5.—Engineers from all parts of the United States and from Canada, 200 in number, including many figures prominent in the engineering world, attended the opening of the convention of the Universal Craftsmen Council Engineers of the World here today. The presiding officer was Walter S. Cadwell, Chicago, past grand chief. The convention will continue through this week with business sessions daily.

Declares He Has $7,5000,000 Cash

"They Did Not Break Me Yet," Boston Postage Stamp King Announces

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Prospect of a searching scrutiny of the assents of Charles Ponzi, foreign exchange wizard, became apparent when Attorney-General Allen announced that he might demand an accounting of all the assets of the Securities Exchange Company and appointed S. Spring as special attorney-general to investigate.

Other important happenings in the career of the "Postage Stamp King" also recorded today were:

1.—The largest crowd since the beginning of the run on Ponzi gathered in front of the little Pi-Alley office and showed resentment at his failure to expedite payment on notes.

2.—Ponzi issued a statement saying he neither knew the amount of his liabilities nor cared to know as he had plenty of money to meet them.

3.—Ponzi brought suit for $2,000 against Wm. H. McMasters, his former publicity agent, in an action of contract. McMasters sued Ponzi for $5000 for services as publicity agent naming the Hanover Trust Company as trustees.

Crowds Throng Office

Mounted police supplemented regular patrolmen in keeping the long line, which strung out and away from the entrance to Ponzi's little office, in order. It was pointed out that at the rate of which Ponzi is making payments, about 20 an hour it would require months to care for all note holders, said to number about 25,000.

Ponzi said that he paid out today to note holders $418,522.50, bringing the total payments since the rue started to between $4,000,000 and $4,500,000.

If a plan announced by Ponzi materialize he will organize a company, 'Capitalizd at $100,000,000 and eventually at $200,000,000 on which the subscribers will receive a conservative monthly interest, plus dividends quarterly, semi-annually, yearly from time to time."

The capital this scheme would attract would be used to promote industrial enterprises, Ponzi exclained.

"They did not break me yet," Ponzi told newspaper men.

"I am ready to pay them off as fast as they come. I do not care to tell what banks I have my money in. That is my business. I will say however that I have assets right in this country now of about $7,500,000 which dos not include securities in vaults, real estate, etc. This is cash I can lay my hands on."

Policeman Gave Life For Payroll

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—In a revolver battle with three pay roll bandits, Sergeant Frank McGurk, one of the oldest and best known members of the Chicago Police department, was shot and killed in the offices of the Illinois Vinegar Company at west 48th and South Leaitt streets. For some time McGurk had been detailed at the company's office each pay day, for just such an emergency. Today it came. He defended the firm's money at the cost of his life.

In the afternoon McGurk had acted as guard for J. T. Schroeder, cashier of the concern, while he carried $5,000 from a down-town bank to the factory. Half the employees had been paid when three young fellows, clad in overalls, came up from the basement.

They pointed pistols at the cashier and Sergeant McGurk answered their command to put up his hands by drawing his pistol. Before he could fire, each of the bandits had fired a shot into his body.

Lying on the floor, wounded, the police officer aimed five bullets in the direction of the men. The shots apparently went wild, and without any of the money, the bandits ran down stairs and out the basement entry, and escaped in an auto.

McGurk was rushed to St. Anthony's Hospital, where he died thirty minutes later. He had been struck by three bullets.

"I believe I killed one of those fellows," he managed to gasp just before he died.

KILLED AT A CROSSING.

St. Thomas, Aug. 4.—William McNames, aged seventeen, was fatally injured when an auto in which he was riding was struck by a Grand Trunk freight engine on the Hughes street crossing. The other occupants of the car, John Ritchie, Misses Minnie and Jennie McNames, and Miss Nellie Carr, escaped with slight injuries.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 5.—The Polish Government has asked the members of the Franco-British mission to return and lay before their respective governments the real situation in Poland and give their opinion as regards suitable aid. The Polish Council of Defence has sent a despatch to Moscow stating that Poland was ready to send a peace delegation to Minsk on condition that the Polish delegates be permitted to communicate freely with the Warsaw government and that the Soviet agrees to accept in principle the terms Poland will propose.

Lomza, about seventy-five miles northeast of Warsaw, has been taken by the Bolshevik forces after being defended for many days by the Poles, according to an announcement at the Foreign Office. The Poles have evacuated Brest-Litovsk, but hold the forts west of the River Bug and further south have evacuated Kovel and are withdrawing to the line of the Bug River.

Sues W.H. Russel For Cut Timber

Ontario Government Demands Damages for Exploiting Pulpwood Resources.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—Suit to recover a large amount of money from Walter H. Russell, of Port Arthur, Ont., who is charged with having cut timber in New Ontario on lands to which he had no right, will be begun shortly, according to an announcement made by Attorney-General W. E. Raney. The amount which the Government proposes to sue for was not stated by the Attorney-General. "It will be for a large amount," he is quoted as saying, "but I cannot tell now, even approximately, how much."

Hon. Mr. Raney stated that action would be taken also to cancel the patents granted by the Ontario Government to Mr. Russell. The Government's action is being taken as a result of the recent interim report made by Justice W. R. Riddell and Frank Latchford as commissioners investigating timber limits irregularities. They reported that, in their opinion, "upon the admitted facts, proceedings had been taken to cancel the patents improperly obtained, and also to recover the value of the pulpwood, and for damages generally.

The commissioners found that Mr. Russell and his companies had exploited the pulpwood resources of the province.

In the meantime the Government has seized from the Russell interests a large quantity of pulpwood, cut and ready to float down stream. It is estimated at between 15,000 and 25,000 cords.

AGED H. B. FACTOR TAKES A WIFE

On July 16, 1920, Mr. Stephen Lafricain, factor of Hudson Bay post at Fort Matachewan, was married to Mrs. Roundeye. The groom had recently celebrated his 85th birthday, the bride being sixty years of age. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Father Evain, missionary for the district of Temiskaming.

Lafricain has had a remarkable career. He was born in Ungava in 1835. He later moved to Montreal, where he received a common school education. He took part in the first Fenian Raid in 1866, being a volunteer in No. 1 Co. of the "Chasseurs Canadiens" regiment.

Mr. Lafricain is also an American Civil War veteran, having served with No. 9 Co. of the Third Regiment of New York Veteran Volunteers. He entered the service of the Hudson Bay Company on June 1, 1878, and has remained with the company ever since. Recently on the occasion of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the Hudson Bay Company, Mr. Lafricain was made the recipient of a gold medal with two bars for his forty-two years of faithful service.

Mr. Lafricain has been factor at the post of Fort Matachewan for twenty-five years, and is well-known to all travellers on the Montreal river. Among prospectors and tourists he is highly esteemed for his unfailing hospitality and courtesy.

Jockeys Heupel and McTaggart were suspended at the Hamilton Jockey Club meeting.

Peace in Ireland.

Belfast, Aug. 5.—Provided the independent status of Ireland is recognized, Irishmen will be prepared to furnish an international guarantee, properly incorporated in a peace treaty to safeguard the strategic interests of the British Empire. This, according to the Belfast Telegraph, is the proposal for peace forwarded Sunday night to Premier Lloyd George.

Keep Mannix Out.

London, Aug. 5.—Answering a question in the House of Commons today, the Premier stated that the Government's decision was that Archbishop Mannix, of Australia, should not be allowed to land in Ireland. Necessary steps will be taken to make the decision effective, he added.

London, Aug. 5.—L. Kamenoff, President of the Moscow Soviet, is reported to have sent a message to his government asking that Russia accept immediately the British proposals for an armistice with Poland.

Armistice Negotiations.

London, Aug. 5.—In a statement in the House of Commons today in regard to last night's conference with the Soviet delegates, Lloyd George said he and Bonar Law made it clear to Krassin and Kamenoff that the immediate conclusion of an armistice on fair terms was the only course which would remove the suspicion that the Soviet Government was insincere in its professed desire for peace and in its declaration that it intended to respect the liberty and independence of Poland.

Pressmen at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 5—Viscount Burnham was elected without a dissenting vote chairman of the second Imperial Press conference, which was opened in Ottawa this morning by His Excellency the Governor-General. Premier Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Opposition, spoke formally in welcoming the delegates, who number about 150 from Great Britain and all parts of the Empire. The conference will last until Saturday noon, after which the press party will continue its tour of the Dominion, beginning with Niagara Falls, Toronto and other ontario cities next week.

Self-Government For Ireland Demand Of Delegation

IRISH DEPUTATION CONFERS WITH PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE — BROAD POLICY OF SELF-GOVERNMENT DEMANDED, INCLUDING FISCAL AUTONOMY —AGAINST ANY PARTITION OF ISLAND.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Premier Lloyd George was told at his conference with the Irish deputation he received yesterday that great progress had been made among Irish Unionists during the last few months in favor of a broad policy giving self-government to the people of that island, says the Times in reporting the meeting. The deputation was unanimous and strong in its denunciation of the Government's Home Rule Bill and was also strongly opposed to any scheme for partition of the island. Fiscal autonomy was also demanded.

Painters Seriously Injured By Collapse Of Scaffold

By the collapse of a scaffold in the interior of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, in this city, at a few minutes before the noon hour today, Messrs. Clavell C. Atkins and Charles Cochrane, two well known painters and decorators, were more or less severely injured. For some days they have been busily engaged in the work of re-decorating the church and were about completing the ceiling when the unfortunate accident occurred.

The fall of the scaffold was not witnessed by any person, but the noise attracted the attention of some other workmen who were about the edifice.

Atkins and Cochrane were on the top of the scaffold and were about 25 feet from the floor. Through some defect the structure collapsed and the two men were precipitated to the floor.

Atkins fell amongst the seats in the choir loft, while Cochrane narrowly escaped falling upon the pulpit, as he lay between the railing of the choir loft and the pulpit.

Those who arrived first upon the scene were soon cognizant of the fact that both men were severely injured, and Atkins the more serious. The ambulance was called to the scene of the accident and as quickly as possible the injured men were removed to the hospital, where physicians were in readiness to give every attention.

It was ascertained that Mr. Atkins' right leg was fractured near the hip and he also complained of pains in the stomach, indicating that he had sustained internal injuries.

Mr. Cochrane was not so severly injured, as there were no broken bones, but severe bruises about the body and head.

The latest reports were to the effect that the injuries to either of the men were not necessarily fatal.

The scaffold in its fall was broken to pieces, so that it is difficult to ascertain why it collapsed.

The two men had been working upon that portion of the scaffold for some hours previous to its fall.

Among the refugees here during the war was Mr. Macaulay. In Sergeant Major Clark, of the 8th, or King's Own Regiment, was appointed clerk and naval store keeper at Carleton Island, where he remained till 1790. This was the father of the late Colonel Clark, of Dalhousie.

Wolfe Island.—This is a considerable island, 25 miles long, stretching along near the American shore, directly opposite Kingston. It contains 28,129 acres of good land. The name is found often spelled Wolf, leading us to infer that it is derived from the presence of that animal upon the island at some time. But it is no doubt after General Wolfe, who fell at Quebec. The original Indian name, as given in the document conferring a seigniory at Cataraqui upon La Salle, including this and Amherst Island, was Ganounkonesnot. The French called it Grande Island, and Simcoe, in his proclamation in 1792, directed that it be called Wolfe Island. Mr. Detlor says that "it would seem the greater part of Wolfe Island was granted to the heirs of Sir William Johnson, the Clergy and the Crown reserves excepted.

We observe a notice in the Kingston Gazette that Wolfe Island, with Pittsburgh, was conjoined to Kingston for municipal purposes in 1812.

Howe Island.—This island is situated in the St. Lawrence somewhat below Kingston. It is a large long island in front of the township of Pittsburgh, and one part of it is almost conjoined to the mainland. It is a township by itself and contains about 8000 acres. It was called by the French, Isle Cauchois, but was named by Simcoe or his advisers Howe Island.

When Upper Canada was erected into a province it was divided into nineteen counties; the seventh of these consisted of Howe Island, Wolfe Island, Amherst Island, Gage Island, with all the other islands between the mouth of the Gananoque and the point of Marysburgh. They constituted the county of Ontario.

Garden Island.—Upon the north of Wolfe Island, in Kingston Bay, is Garden Island, containing some sixty-three acres. Near the western extremity of Wolfe Island is another small island, which received the name of Horseshoe Island, and separated from the large island by a narrow channel which was named Batteau Channel is Gage Island, after Brig.-General Gage, which was also sometimes called Simcoe Island. The name given to it by the French was Isle aux Fort. It contains some 2,164 acres of rich land.

HAS CRIMINAL RECORD

A few days ago, Austin Smith, age 18 years, who gave his home address as College avenue, Toronto, was arrested by Grand Trunk Detectives Haslam and Allain in the Manitoba yards at Brockville, for attempting to steal a ride on a freight train. He appeared before Magistrate Page who sentenced him to 20 days in the county jail while his record was being investigated. Yesterday Chief Burke received a communication from Chief of Police W. R. Whatley, Hamilton, which stated that Smith was convicted in the Ambitious City, on October 17, 1918, of the theft of $97 but allowed his liberty on suspended sentence.

SILVER WEDDING

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. James Wiskin, 195 Nelson street, Kingston, celebrated their silver wedding. Their home was very prettily decorated for the occasion and many beautiful pieces of silver were received. An address was given by Rev. J. A. Waddell, pastor of Princess street Methodist Church, after which the evening was spent in games and music. A fine buffet supper was served, at which Mr. Harold Wiskin, and the Misses Ada Spooner, Anna Walker and Lillian Boyle, Belleville, looked after the needs of the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Wiskin were the recipients of many valuable presents and many congratulations on their happiness and many good wishes for a long, happy and prosperous life.

DESERONTO'S NEW POSTMASTER

The Deseronto Post has the following reference to Mr. James Fairbairn, who has been appointed Postmaster of that town: "Mr. Fairbairn's appointment gives general satisfaction to the people of Deseronto regardless of political or religious beliefs. It will put an end to all conjecture and rumor. Report had it that ex-Lieut. James Cole was a candidate for the position. The ex-high school principal was also mentioned as having aspirations. Later on, Sandy Grant, defeated member for East Hastings, was said to have had an eye on the Deseronto postmastership. Mr. Fairbairn, the new postmaster has been a resident for many years. He is a Presbyterian and president of the local Liberal-Conservative Association. Chairman of the public school board, he is close to the affairs of the town. He succeeds a man who gave good service. He has been a hard worker for his party. He richly deserves reward."

LIFE'S BRIEF JOURNEY.

'Tis a little journey,
This we walk;
Hardly time for murmurs—
Time for talk;
Yet we learn to quarrel,
And to hate.
Afterward regret it,
When too late.
Now and then 'tis sunshine—
Sometimes dark.
Sometimes care and sorrow
Leave their mark.
Often there is laughter—
Often tears,
Sometimes there are losses
Felt for years.
Yet we walk the pathway,
Side by side,
Where so many others
Lived and died.
We can see the moral—Understand;
Yet we walk not always
Hand in hand.
Why must there be friction
And regret;
Words and deeds we after
Would forget?
Why must there be hatred,
Greed and strife?
Do we need such shadows
Here in life?
'Tis a little journey—
Soon gone by,
Let's be friends together
Ere we die!

FINE LACES MADE BY SQUAWS

New Industry on Indian Reservations Said to Be Bringing Independence and Happiness.

As one associates lace making with deft fingers, it is hard to realize that the stoical squaw has the necessary digital equipment for this work. But in the Indian reservations, in the far and middle West lace making is proving a means toward economic independence for the Indian woman, the New York Tribune states.

It was through a deaconess of the Episcopal church that lace making was introduced to the Indian. Until then squaws of the first Americans had not engaged in the decorative arts except to make beaded garments for their braves. In 1890, however, the first lesson in lace making was given to Ojibway squaws near Duluth. Bishop Whipple of Minnesota, one of the pioneer missionaries of the Episcopal church among the redskins, early realized that the solution of the Indian problem lay in making the Indian self-supporting.

So successful were these efforts that today lace schools are maintained on ten reservations. Their exquisite examples in cutwork, needlepoint and bobbin lace have received gold medals at five expositions, and today the squaw, without neglecting her household duties, can earn from $75 to $100 a year.

To encourage just such activities among the Indians will be one of the purposes of the nationwide campaign of the Episcopal church. But to give economic independence to the squaw has not been the only accomplishment of the introduction of lace making on the Indian reservations. It has not only taught industry, but it has brought about cleanliness.

A report of the Sybil Carter Indian Lace association, named for the deaconess who introduced this work, records that this industry has transformed the lives of Indian women undertaking it. They can readily be distinguished from the others by their neat appearance and bright and hopeful faces.

A similar impression was obtained by a United States senator, who reported that he had never seen a happier lot of women. "They not only worked steadily," he said, "but actually laughed and chatted together, in strong contrast to the apathetic and hopeless squaws whom Bishop Whipple called upon Deaconess Carter to befriend." It is planned also to revive the old-time arts of beadwork and basketry.

The association has a prominent shop in New York, where the sales of Indian work amount to about $12,000 annually.

Choose a Needed Occupation.

Choose an occupation in which you are at an advantage. Necessary occupations insure steady employment. Food, health, clothing, household management, thrift, teaching, child care, and nursing offer traditional employments to women. The average woman can look to these necessary occupations with a fair certainty of earning an honorable and comfortable livelihood. If you prefer an exceptional occupation, and are qualified for it, do not be discouraged by initial failure. This is the age of the woman at work. The oldest and largest employments are constantly showing new and interesting developments in work for women. When the merchant begins a business he selects commodities to sell for which there is a demand. The worker should choose an occupation which offers steady, useful and well-paid employment. There seems no reason why many girls should not find employment in their father's business. Lady Rhondda is an example of the daughter who was her father's partner.—Exchange.

New Metal Produced.

A new invention, called conducting aluminum, which is said to be creating a profound impression, has been made by Dr. Georges Giulini, the most famous expert in the aluminum trade, states Consul Philip Holland, Basel, Switzerland, in a recent report. The new metal is produced by putting the ordinary aluminum through a special patented process, by which it acquires the same mechanical qualities and capacities as bronze, copper and brass without changing its specific weight. It is said that the price of the new metal can be kept within very low limits, so that, even at the prewar prices of other metals, it will be able, by reason of its smaller specific weight, to compete with copper and brass very favorably. The fact that the new metal is a conductor will make it especially in demand in the electrical trade.

Chinese Masons in Victoria.

A sea lion, a fusillade of crackers, a banquet, and the raising of the Chinese flag, indicated to the Victorian town of Echuca that a branch of the Chinese Masonic society had been formed. Chinese from all parts of Victoria attended the ceremony, and the mayor and councilors of Echuca were guests. The Chinese master of ceremonies was interviewed by returned soldiers who objected to the flying of the Chinese flag alone. Australian and British flags were at once hoisted to the top of the flagpole.

Curtailing the Time.

"I can't keep my watch from gaining time," remarked the man who is always fretted about something.

"Can't a jeweler fix it?"

"I doubt it. I begin to suspect that watch was made in one of those factories where nobody thinks about anything except shorter hours."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

DAREDEVIL HUTCHISON IN "THE WHIRLWIND"

There are those who attend the photoplay theatre regularly who get a great deal of enjoyment from the scenic investiture which the photoplay offers for their approval. While they are interested in the story which is told they are almost equally interested in the pictured backgrounds which are provided for the action. To this particular class of picture devotees, "His Wife's Money," starring Eugene O'Brien which is being shown at Griffin's to-night to Saturday on the double feature bill has an unusual appeal.

The opening scenes of the picture were taking in the beautiful Adirondack mountains with their silver lakes, tempestuous streams and unspoiled forests. Then come scenes from New York, the wonder city of the world, and finally a series of graphic pictures of a typical Western mining camp. Zeena Keefe who plays opposite Mr. O'Brien is a charming little lady. Miss Keefe, younger in years than most screen actress who have risen to distinction is, nevertheless, much older than most in point of experience. She is versatile in the extreme and the many things she has been able to do have made her services valuable in various branches of the profession. Her charm of youth, freshness and vivacity have won her friends wherever she has appeared.

Charles Hutchison, the world's greatest daredevil who appears on the same program in "The Whirlwind" is an all-round athlete and his stunts have won for him a unique place in screen work. While he admittedly performs the most daring stunts in pictures he has never yet resorted to the use of a double, and he declares he never will.

An amusing 2-reel comedy, an interesting travelogue, and the British Canadian News Pictorial will also be shown on the same program.

EASIEST WAY TO REMOVE UGLY HAIRY GROWTHS

(Beauty Culture)

Here is amethod for removing hair from arms, neck and face that is unfailing and is quite inexpensive: Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh.

BELLEVILLE CHILDREN WILL HUNT FOR TICKETS

To-morrow will be the day for the free ticket hunt for the children of the city. Some time to-night a representative of the Chamber of Commerce will place six season tickets for Chautauqua Week in the windows of six stores on Front street, and the children who can locate these tickets can claim them. This means that six children with sharp eyes will be able to see everyone of the big Chautauqua shows free.

In placing the tickets there will be no attempt to hide them as they will be placed in plain view from the street and it will b simply a matter of quick, careful inspection of every window. In order that the tickets will go to six different children, the management has decided that only one ticket can be claimed by the same child.

This ticket hunt will be a lot of fun for the children all of whom are anxious to see and hear the Chautauqua shows especially the children's shows so the children who find the six season tickets will be fortunate. There is just one thing that can be said about where the tickets will be placed and that is that they will be in stores located between the upper and lower bridge and on both sides of the street. The Chamber of Commerce man says to get out early because lots of sharp ones will be busy locating the free tickets.

TO BRING OCEAN TO THEIR DOORS

Welland, Aug. 5.—Transportation was the paramount issue discussed at the second day's sessions of the Niagara District Industrial Congress in Crystal Beach and Welland today. The problem was discussed by railroad, marine and highway men from various standpoints. The needs and advantages of the Niagara district in particular and the province in general were dealt with by the speakers, including Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor; A. P. Zimmerman, Industrial Commissioner of the C. P. R.; A. R. Bromley, General Freight Agent of the Michigan Central; Chas. J. Sales and J. J. Morsman of the Wabash Railroad, Mr. Fitzsimmons of the G.T.R., and Major Alex. C. Lewis of the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association.

The slogan "Bring the ocean to your doors" was emphasized by Mr. Lewis as the inevitable policy for both Canadian and American interests, regardless of local considerations.

HAD MET HIS KIND BEFORE

"Uncle Joe" Cannon's Withering Rebuke of Lobbyist Who Thought to Make "Bluff" Good.

Joseph Guernsey Cannon, more affectionately known throughout the length and breadth of the land as "Uncle Joe," is nearing his eighty-fourth birthday. He loves his fellowman and is one of the most affable members of congress toward strangers. But Uncle Joe hates "bounders" and lobbyists and is still young and vigorous enough to resent their attempts at familiarity, says the Washington Star.

For the benefit of a couple of men with legislative axes to grind whom he was endeavoring to impress with his own importance around the capitol, one of the well-known lobbyists held up "Uncle Joe" near the cigar counter in the house restaurant. "Hello, Uncle Joe!" he exclaimed. "Haven't seen you for some days. You sure are looking fine. Won't you have a cigar with us—one of your old favorites?"

Then the cold, steady, steely look in Uncle Joe's eyes gave him a warning. He tried to bluff it off.

"Why, Uncle Joe, you don't seem to remember me."

But he reckoned without his host—you just can't bluff Uncle Joe. He has played the great American indoor game too long for that. With shoulders thrown back, arms stiffened at his side, eyes piercing the presuming acquaintance, he raised himself on his toes, leaning closer and daringly toward the face of the other, and said:

"No, I don't remember you. Why, if when you get to the pearly gates you don't look more familiar to St. Peter than you do now to me, he'll say to you, 'Get to — out of here; I don't know you!'"

ORIGIN OF "DICKENS NAMES"

One of the most interesting of semi-literary hobbies is the search after the origin of "Dickens names." It is specially interesting, no doubt, because nobody can prove to demonstration that his particular "solution" is the correct one, and, as a consequence, the long list of potential discoveries is seldom reduced, much less exhausted. One of the latest "strikes" is a possible origin for the old favorite, "Chadband." A recent writer tells how, a few years ago, in one of the small hamlets between Sutton and Epsom, there stood a small tailor's shop bearing in large letters the name of "Chadband." And he goes on to wonder whether Dickens, "going down by road Dorking, noticed the name, and kept it for future use," for on that route he would have passed the very door of the shop. The writer seems to think it highly likely; while, in proof that Dickens actually made the journey, was it not in the town of Dorking that there stood the Marquis of Granby? And was it not the hostess of the Marquis of Granby who ultimately became Mrs. Weller?—Christian Science Monitor.

Beauty in Seaweed.

Contemplating seaweed, the curator of this department in the New York botanical gardens has made a suggestion, timely with regard to the present exhibition of specimens in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, that here may be found many a charming suggestion, hitherto unnoticed by artists, for the creation of decorative designs. One is reminded of the passage in which Ruskin tells how the Greek architect found a beautiful design in the movement of ocean waves; and wonders that Ruskin himself, with his keen appreciation of art suggestions in nature, did not deal with the varied beauty of design discoverable in the different seaweeds. Perhaps he did, and one has forgotten it; at any rate seaweed has not, it seems, yet supplied suggestion for the design of lace, tapestries, prints, and architectural ornament, and the idea adds material for the work of designers.

Mortgage on a Cat.

There was filed in the office of the recorder of deeds in Stockton, Mo., the most unusual chattel mortgage ever presented at the office. The articles mentioned to secure a debt of $46 were as follows: One shotgun, one Winchester rifle, two violins, one black tomcat with white feet, named Tom. It was not specified that the guns had hammers nor the fiddle with bow, but the identification of the tomcat was considered by the mortgagee the most valuable part of the security.—St. Louis Republic.

LONDON AND BELLEVILLE

An exhibition game of merit has been arranged between London and Belleville G.T.R. team for 5.00 p.m. to-morrow, Friday, at the Agricultural Grounds. At first it was intended to have the game played at 3.30 p.m. but in order to permit a number of the fans who would otherwise be unable to attend, the time has been changed to 5.00 p.m. instead of 3.30 p.m. as advertised on some of the street bills.

It is said that the London team have desired to come here for some time for a game with the locals. They will, no doubt be at full strength and strong after a win. This game will also keep the locals in trim for the play-off, if Oshawa win from Peterboro, also another league game which is to be played here with the Lindsay team, and while mentioning Lindsay might say that they held Peterboro to a tie for four innings in the last game which should also make the locals keep on their toes all the time in preparation for this game. The game they must have to make a three-cornered tie providing Oshawa win from Peterboro which is very likely.

For to-morrow it is reported that several changes will be made in the local line-up, for a trail at improvement in the team. How this will work will be known only after the game. If well patronized to-morrow evening the fans can rest assured that Belleville will have some of the best amateur teams here during August for Exhibition games. Goyer and Mills, will no doubt start the game as battery, so London claimed to be one of the best western teams will have their work cut out for them.

IMPERIAL RECOGNITION FOR TRENTON HEROES

An echo of the T. N. T. explosion at Trenton on Thanksgiving Day, 1918, is contained in a supplement of the London Gazette, which announces that the medal of the Order of the British Empire has been conferred upon

CHARLES N. BARCLAY
EVA G. CURTIS
FAIRY M. ENTERLINE
EMERY M. McQUOID
REGINALD MONCRIEF
GILBERT MURRAY
GEORGE PATTERSON
CLARE M. SAUVE

"In each case the award is made for Conspicuous Bravery and Courage on the occasion of the fire and explosion at an explosives factory in Canada."

Trenton people will not soon forget that night and day of terror when the T. N. T. and guncotton departments of the British Chemical Co., in the immense works at Trenton manufacturing high explosives for the British Munitions Board were destroyed in a series of terrific explosions which rocked the town of Trenton to its foundations, shattered every pane of glass in the place and shook the earth like an earthqquake for miles around. The panic which seized the people and the remarkable scenes which followed with a general rush for safety to the surrunding country, every road being black with people fleeing from the menace of another Halifax, women with babes in their arms, families separated in the night, children crying and men frantically seeking for their loved ones will long be remembered by all who witnessed them.

That there was no loss of life was largely due to the cool courage, resource and safety arrangements perfected by the manager of the plant, Mr. C. N. Barclay, who with several devoted associates remained in the danger zone through the long hours of that dreadful night and all the next day until the extreme danger point had been safely passed.

Imperial recognition of the services of Mr. C. N. Barclay and his associates will be appreciated as a just acknowledgment of their heroism and resource in the face of great danger.

LIBERAL PAPER'S OPINION

Mr. Mackenzie King, in his coming tour, will have to establish his reputation among Liberals as well as Conservatives, and to undo some things he has done, or he will not make many votes for his party. In proof, the Vancouver Sun, whose record is Liberal, comes forward with the following observations in its issue of July 21:

"Hon. Mackenzie King, by family tradition, is a sort of semi-official guardian of the liberties of Canadians. He must be vigilant to see that human freedom in this Dominion does not suffer from the encroachments of Hon. Arthur Meighen, who, as all men know, is conspiring to establish an absolute despotism, with headquarters at Ottawa. What Mr. Meighen intends doing with his despotism when he gets it, nobody knows, but the cry of alarm has gone forth and there is reason to hope his design will be frustrated. Mr. King must be lacking in something or other if he cannot see that when he says 'the government has usurped all the rights of a free people' he is making himself ridiculous. The people of British Columbia, at any rate, are not conscious of the tyranny under which they are supposed to be groaning. A few utterances of this kind will create a more widespread acquiescence in the verdict pronounced by H. H. Stevens, to the effect that the leader of the Opposition is a 'dismal failure.' The advice of Mr. King to his followers to 'fight every by-election' must have been dictated by the hot weather. There is a small minority of extremists in the party who will applaud such belligerency, but the business of a general-in-chief is to fight only where there is a reasonable chance of success. Does anybody whose judgment is worth considering believe there is a reasonable chance of defeating the gentlemen who have recently been added to the Dominion cabinet?"

When you come to think of it, the people who are talking so loudly about other people's faults and failings generally need to make considerable noise to detract attention from their own.

Trade Union Jubilee
(London Chronicle)

It will be appropriate if, as seems probable, the strong movement in the Labor world for a new council, sometimes called a "Labor General Staff," comes into fruition next year in place of the existing Trade Union Congress.

For 1921 is an important aniversary to Labor, the jubilee of the Trade Union Act passed in 1871, which was the real charter of the unions, giving a legal recognition to trade unionism after a olng and bitter fight and so opening up anew era in the relations between employers and employed. It followed directly on the famous International Association of Working Men in the preceding year.

Proper Divorce Procedure
(Woodstock eSntinel-Review)

Some churches teach that marriage I sa divine institution and cannot be dissolved by human agencies. But the fact that is emphasized by those who dc not regard the argument as final is that, whateevr view one may take of marriage, the simple truth is that divorce is granted. To many it appears that if divorc is to be granted at all it should be granted by a properly constituted court, and only for specified causes. It does not follow of necessity that divorces secured through appeal te Parliament would be refused by a ccurt specially tarined in dealing with evidence.

THE POET'S CORNER

CANADA

In nineteen nineteen I sojourned in a iand that loved the true
Where faces were serene and still,
And eyes in kindness gazed on me,
And those who looked decked not themselves
In silks and velvets finely wrought,
But wore the garments of pure sacrifice.

Here pass a multitude in this Democracy
Dressed in all the riches of a pursefilled land;
And yet the faces, vacant of real peace
Pass and repass all restless, filled
With gross material sense of gain.

Their richly factured fabrics
And all that with them is of ease and luxury,
A blatant wealth so flauntinly displayed,
And in the face of those who suffered
made a shameless boast,
Is bought by blood:
The blood and tears of those
Who first and longest served through Armageddon
That Freedom's triumph should not be delayed.

All-serving sacrifice—wealth of the soul
What greater riches can a people have Canada! thy wealth established is Where neither motn nor rust corrupting
Shall ever near its cnivalric splendor come.

To the timeless verge of all tradition
noble
Thy sacrifice in purity shall stand.

Mary Blomfield, 603 Boylston street, Boston, Mass.

WHEN EARS RING.

Scientist Explains an Unpleasant Sensation.

Persistent ringing or buzzing in the ears—tinnitus is the Latin name given to the affection by physicians—is by no means a mental illusion. Victims of this trouble need not fear that their minds are affected. They have really an auditory sensation; it would not be too much to say that they actually "hear something." The sensation is not, of course, due to sound vibration from without, as normal audition is, but to diseased conditions within; and although the physician is not yet prepared to state definitely just in what these conditions consists, he is well enough acquainted with them to treat them, and in some cases to remove them. This is the opinion of Dr. Ben C. Gile.

"When one experiences tinnitus of some kind, for example, a bell-like ringing," said Dr. Gile, "his brain has a concept of this particular sound in consequence of an auditory perception. This perception is not imaginary, but actual. Like other auditory perceptions, it results from sensations affecting the terminals of the auditory nerve. It is often called a delusion, but this is wholly incorrect; for the word delusion implies mental disorder, and here nothing of the sort is present. In fact, tracing the process from the psychic concept back to the sensation affecting the auditory nerve, all the steps are normal and cannot be distinguished from those taken when there is an external source for the vibrations.

"The occurence of the sensation is the break in our chain of normal sequences. The sensation is not caused, as it should be, by vibration from without, but by something else which takes the place of such vibration. Regarding this matter, our pathology is involved in doubt.

"Tinnitus aurium, as we see it in practice, is often accompanied by pain and by deafness more or less pronounced; but these are usually coexisting troubles, with little causal connection one way or the other. Whether present alone or conjoined with other disorders, tinnitus may exist in a number of types. Some of these are peculiar, but the great majority are reproductions of familiar sounds. Among the most common are bell-ringing, the rumble of wheels, the buzzing of a saw, the wind's whistle and the murmur of ocean waves.

"The pitch of these sounds may change in a marked degree and also suddenly; one moment the tone may be low and the next higher by several octaves, and vice versa; but when the affection has become chronic there is rarely any alteration in the sound's identifying characteristics—bell ringing continues as bell ringing; rumbles and murmurs continue to be perceived without notable variation. This is one of the sinister features of the affection, for in time the monotonous repetition of identical sounds becomes nearly intolerable; any sort of change would be a relief.

"Tinnitus has a wide range of intensity, extending from slight and very brief attacks to those in which the noise is permanently present during waking hours and is seldom banished from consciousness, even by intense mental pre-occupation. In this respect it is worse than many chronic pains, which, although not removed, are liable to be forgotten temporarily when the mind is engrossed by intense thinking.

"Tinnitus, even in its acute forms, can nearly always be removed by judicious treatment. Even in chronic cases there is encouragement. Many persons of middle age who have had tinnitus for years despite earnest and persistent efforts to find a cure have abandoned hope, but many of these are curable. The great progress made by otology in recent years justifies a hopeful prognosis in many cases which formerly were regarded as incurable.

"To sufferers from tinnitus relief and cure are the matters of paramount interest, and they should heed the admonition that they are not proper subjects for self-medication or domestic treatment. Whatever plausible reasons laymen may have for treating some diseases, they should not meddle with the ear. It is a very sensitive and delicate organ, peculiarly liable to serious injury through the manipulations of men and women ignorant of its anatomy, functions and pathology. Judicious treatment is most important, but it is better to let ear troubles alone than to seek the aid of Aunt Samantha or take the advice of some officious neighbor."

Forbidden Arts.

A Japanese contributor to the Japan Advertiser has the following note on the forgotten arts of his country: "All are in a bad way. How many middle school boys of to-day know how to drink tea in the forms of the tea ceremony? Flower arrangement is being fast forgotten. Versification, which once was one of the commonest acquirements of youth, is a hopeless mystery to the people of Taisho. The word politeness is not to be found in their lexicon. When at home they read cheap story magazines, and when going out they put themselves at the tender mercies of jammed tram cars. So they wax ever more dwarfed and penguin-footed, both physically and mentally. And the love of nature, of art and poetry, which was such a distinguished characteristic of the Yamato race, is being quickly replaced by the love of money and accumulation."

An Old Belle.

Within the last sixteen years Mrs. Raven, of Shepherd Bush, London, England, who is now 96 years old, has had eight offers of marriage, all of which she rejected, because, she says, she has had three husbands and wants no more. Now, at the age of 96, she has cut a fine new tooth.

Right Word.

"What do you think of my daughter's execution on the piano?"

"Good name for it, that; she certainly does murder the time."

DON'T SPOIL YOUR HAIR BY WASHING IT.

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking bright, fluffy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

VICTORIA

Many useful presents were received, showing the high esteem of the bride. Lunch was also served. The evening was spent in music.

On July the 23rd, a miscellaneous shower was given to Miss Vera Brickman by the friends and neighbors and a presentation and address was given by the Sunday School class. She was presented with a bautiful oak jardaniere stand.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Weese of Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. George Babcock of Belleville visited Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Wilson recently.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Brickman spent the week end at her mother's Mrs. David Vandervoort's, Wellington.

Mr. Hobston gave a demonstration of aluminum ware at the home of Mrs. L. Brickman on Monday. A number of ladies enjoyed the afternoon, also the lunch served by Mr. Hobson. He certainly is a good entertainer. Several of the ladies purchased different utensils of aluminaum ware.

Mr. Harry Sager and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Byron Frederick of Belleville spent Sunday at D. Snider's.

AN AMBITIOUS GERMAN.

Hugo Stinnes Is Attracting Much Attention.

All Germany is asking to-day what Hugo Stinnes is aiming at. This amazing personality is incomparably the most powerful force in Germany to-day, says the Berlin correspondent of the London Mail. Still under fifty, gifted with unbounded ambition and inexhaustible energy, hard, lucid, titanic in conception, utterly fearless in execution, Hugo Stinnes, Germany's richest man and leading industrial figure, is counterpart and direct descendant of the cold, shrewd business men, such as Ballin, who, with the ex-Kaiser as their flamboyant figurehead, gyrating to their pulling of the wires, made Germany a big commercial factor in the world. In 1913 Hugo Stinnes, although well into his millions, was but their disciple. To-day he stands alone.

A few weeks ago he quietly bought up the printing firm which owns the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeintung, the German Government organ, and thus whipped it away from Government use. He proceeded to engage Gen. von Ludendorff as his military expert.

A little while ago he acquired a South German paper, the Munich-Augsburg Gazette, a steady-going, reactionary organ. He has a paper in Dortmund, in that Ruhr area where he is the inflexibility dominating personality. He has just bought the big Buxenstein printing business by quietly putting into it twenty million marks (nominally five million dollars). That means control of a dozen other papers. He controls at this moment all Government printing in Germany.

Note that this widespread and rapidly increasing newspaper hold on Germany is reactionary—not Republican. Significant in view of imminent and critical events — Spa, the Reichstag elections, the choice of a new President, the German Republic in the balance.

Enormous industrial force lies behind Hugo Stinne's newspaper and political ambitions. He controls no fewer than fifteen groups of coal mines extending into France. He has immense ore and metal interests in Germany and Luxembourg; he runs a score of large inland shopping concerns; he owns at least six big wholesale coal distribution enterprises. He has dwarfed Krupp.

The versatility of this man's interests is astonishing. For reasons of his own he has recently bought a huge cellulose concern, an hotel, a textile factory, and an automobile business in Berlin!

Out of the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung it is common knowledge that he proposes to make a world-newspaper such as the London Times. Already he is lavishing money upon his new project, which comes into existence on July 1. His agents are hunting Germany for new young journalistic talent. Through innumerable trade journals, complacent to his authority, he is establishing widespread foreign connections.

His paper are to be self-supporting. He has bought paper and pulp mills and forest areas. Existing interests will supply him with metal. Everywhere — though, I think, with apprehension and dismay—he is hailed in Germany as the "Newspaper King."

This man will have to be reckoned with by Europe. At 20 he was held capable of partnership in the family firm of Matthias Etinnes. He broke away, "went on his own," and, well before the war, had swung with devastating energy into high finance. He is the business genius of Germany at a moment when business genius is what Germany most sorely needs. It is said of him that "no price for a sound thing, and no salary to a good man is too high for Hugo Stinnes."

What does he want?

A Chinese Idol Factory.

The earliest European traders with China were the Portuguese; and hence the word "joss," referring to Chinese idols, derived from "deos," which, in the Portuguese language, means a god.

Canton and Amoy supply travelers and curio dealers with quantities of hideous idols known in the trade as "josses." They are fakes pure and simple, having no relation to any Oriental religion. But the real Chinese idols, mostly representing pot-bellied old gentlemen, or ladies with superfluous arms and hands, are not exciting enough to satisfy the Occidental demand, and so, to meet the latter, ingenious designers have produced a great variety of hobgoblins — such, for example, as the "hunger god," with the face of a tiger and ferocious fangs.

One may buy these fake josses in any city of the world, and it rarely occurs to anybody that they may not be veritable. Most of them are of clay, turned out from wooden or metal molds, dipped in molten glass and allowed to cool. A fairly expert Chiese workman can make 100 in a day at a cost of three cents a piece. The European or American tourist pays $5. Sometimes they are tinted with caustic colors and glazed.

Real josses may be worth a lot of money, especially if carved out of jade. This is a material greatly prized in the Orient, and a jade idol fifteen inches high and as many centuries old has been known to sell for $10,000 in Canton.

Cedar Threatens Apples.

Cedar trees are being cut down through some parts of the southern states to save the apples. A fungus growth known as "cedar rust" is harbored by the cedars and at certain seasons of the year attacks the apple trees and seriously interferes with the fruit crop. In one county of Virginia, practically every cedar tree has been or will be cut down to save the apple orchards.

Essentially Artistic.

"What kind of woman is Mrs. Gadspur?" "Essentially artistic." "How's that?" "The family fly swatter is adorned with a bow of pink ribbon."

NOTICE.

We have removed our office to 219 Front Street, over Ostrom's Drug Store. "My Wardrobe." Phone 393.

KINGS LIVE IN EXILE

FIND PLEASANT HOME IN LITTLE SWITZERLAND.

Four Former Monarchs, Rulers of Greece, Austria, Bavaria and Wurtemburg, Have Plenty of Money and Appear to be Enjoying Life More Than When They Lived In the Fierce White Light That Beats Upon a Throne.

FOUR ex-kings, the former rulers of Greece, Austria, Bavaria and Wurtemburg, are now living in Switzerland, and may remain there the rest of their lives since their own people show no intense desire to have them come home and be forgiven. They are all wealthy, though how they supplied themselves with funds is not clear, and probably are passing the most care-free days of their careers. Former Emperor Charles of Austria lives in a picturesque but secluded villa on Lake Geneva, in the same house that once was occupied by Napoleon's brother Joseph. He lives very quietly and spends much of his time in taking long walks. His neighbors are not aware of his identity; most of them, perhaps, have never heard of him, and Charles is free to come and go without being stared at. According to his secretary, who was interviewed by a correspondent of the New York Times, the former emperor takes no interest whatever in politics, and desires to lapse into the congenial role of country gentleman. Let him lapse! He was by no means the worst of the enemy emperors, and he at least is free from all responsibility of having brought on the war.

Charles is not guarded by Swiss police or soldiers. He evidently is in no fear of assassination or abduction, and the understanding between these former rulers and the Swiss authorities is that they shall have complete liberty of action so long as they do not meddle in international affairs and thus abuse Swiss neutrality. Constantine, formerly of Greece, is now at Lugano, but made his winter quarters at Lucerne, and expects to spend part of the summer at St. Moritz. Like Charles he travels about the country incognito a good deal and spends much time in fishing and automobiling . One of his favorite indoor amusements is to listen to conversations at the hotels, and thus acquiring some valuable if tardy information as to what people think of him. Constantine is perhaps the least repentant of the former enemy rulers. All he regrets is that the war was lost. He has no regard for Greece, but probably would enter into any intrigue that would promise a restoration of his power.

The former King of Bavaria lives at Locarno in a secluded villa whose exact whereabouts is known only to one or two of the local authorities. He spends his time walking through the woods and thinking bitter thoughts. At intervals he reads books sent to him from Munich. The old ex-King of Wurtemburg has several members of his family with him, and since he is advanced in senility he probably is as happy in Switzerland as he would be anywhere else. The ex-King of Saxony, formerly a member of the Swiss colony, has gone back to Dresden, and the ex-King of Saxe-Coburg has also returned to his native land. His mother, the Dowager Queen of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, is staying with the Infanta of Spain, who has a handsome villa on the lake outside Zurich. The Grand Duke Cyril of Russia and the Prince and Princess of Pless are also of the party. They will spend the rest of the summer at Lucerne. This concludes our present budget of society chatter.

The real sufferers of enforced sojourn in Switzerland are not the exiled royalty, all of whom appear to be plentifully supplied with funds, but many Russians of noble family who fled their country when Bolshevism took the helm. For the most part they were forced to escape without having time to get much money together. To sell their property was impossible, and since then their estates have been confiscated. Moreover, those who did have cash found the Russian rouble almost worthless when they tried to exchange it for Swiss money, with the result that these refugees are living in genteel poverty. They have never done any work in their lives. Most of them are too old to work now, and so they are being supported out of charity by the large hotels, each of them sheltering four or five of these hapless guests. Maybe the hotels think it a good advertisement to have some genuine grand duke or princess on view in the lobby. Maybe, gratitude for former patronage inspires them, for the Russians were notoriously lavish with their money when traveling.

A more objectionable class than either the former kings or the broken down Russians in Switzerland to-day is that of deserters from several European countries. In May, 1919, a census revealed the fact that there were nearly 26,000 of these in Switzerland. At present they number about 18,500. The disgrace of supplying the most of them belongs to Italy, no fewer than 10,000 of these "refractaries" being Italians. Germany, which had 7,000 a year ago, has now 3,000. France supplies, 2,400; Austria, 1,100; Russia, 1,000; Turkey, 182; Serbia, 137; Roumania, 130; Belgium, 86; the United States, 19; Great Britain, 16; Greece, 13; Bulgaria, 85, and Sweden, 2. One wonders what the Swedes had to fly for, since they were not openly in the war on the side of Germany. Many of these deserters, no doubt, will spend the rest of their days in Switzerland or in some other neutral country, since a general amnesty for deserters is not likely to be declared by the combatants in the war.

They end corns
now in this scientific way

People who know—millions of them—now end all corns in this way.

They apply Blue-jay, either in liquid or in plaster form. It means but a touch and takes but a jiffy.

The corn pain stops. Then the Blue-jay gently undermines the corn so it loosens and comes out.

The modern way

It is made by a laboratory of world-wide repute.

Old-time treatments were harsh and inefficient. Blue-jay is gentle, quick and sure.

Now all corns are needless. All these pains can be avoided. To let corns remain while you pare and pad them is folly.

You can stop a corn ache the moment it appears. You can end a corn completely before it can develop.

Blue-jay has proved these facts to millions. It will prove them to you—and tonight—if you let it.

Quit the old methods of dealing with corns and see what this new way means. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

SMUGGLING STORIES ARE EXAGGERATED

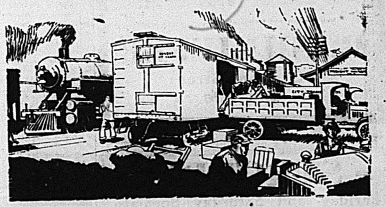
New York, Aug. 4—James S. Shevlin, supervising director of prohibition enforcement of the state of New York, returning from an inspection tour states that he reports that large quantities of whiskey are being smuggled from Canada into New York are grossly exaggerated. In the vicinity of Buffalo, Shevlin said, 350 automobiles from over the border were stopped recently and but one quart of whiskey was confiscated.

200,000 NEW HOUSES

It has been announced that plans for more than 200,000 houses have been approved by the minister of health in connection with the national housing scheme at present in operation in Gt. Britain. Up to June 1 of this year there has been completed bylocal authorities and public utility societies 1,500 houses, while the total number of houses under construction was 18,095. The total number of housing schemes submitted to the Minister of Health is now 10,351, of which 6,725 have received official approval.

Quite Useless

There's no use arguing with a young man who has made up his mind to be a June groom. If the present prices won't scare him onthing you can say will.



CANADA anticipates a period of growth.

She commands capital and skilled workmanship.

Her position in the British Empire gives her prestige and opportunity.

But whether she realizes her hopes fully or only partially rests to no small degree upon her steam railways.

CLOSER to Orient or Europe than is any other part of the New World, Canada would lose this advantage if her railways proved unable to carry her goods quickly to these well-placed ports.

She must be prepared for any development of traffic east-bound or west—or south.

HER rail service must be elastic and dependable. It must have reserve capacity, whether to roll a bumper wheat crop east, or some other Canadian product west-bound for Siberia or the Antipodes.

Elasticity, dependability and reserve capacity are profoundly affected by the overwhelming increase in operating expenses as compared to revenue.

BODY OF INFANT FOUND

While cleaning weeds from the dam at Yarker, Stewart Alton found the nude body of an infant in the weeds. The infant had a piece of dress goods tied about its neck in a hard knot. Coroner Dr. Cowan was notified and after viewing the body he ordered an inquest. A jury was empannelled and after viewing the body it was ordered buried. The whole matter has been placed in the hands of the Crown and investigation is proceeding.

NEW SKIPPER

A change has taken place on the steamer St. Lawrence and she is now commanded by Captain William Bloomfield in place of Captain John Carnegie. Captain Carnegie resigned and tendered his resignation to the Kingston Navigation Company. It was accepted and arrangements were made to have one of the old time mariners return, in the person of Captain William Bloomfield. Captain Bloomfield is very well known in these waters. For twenty-five years he was with the Gildersleeve Navigation Company of Kingston and commanded all the boats on that line. He afterwards went with the Richelieu and Ontario line he was given command of one of the boats. Captain Bloomfield commanded the North King, the Caspian and other boats and his record is an enviable one. He also commanded the steamer Belleville for a few years and later went to Toronto from which place he has come to take command of the steamer St. Lawrence.

Princess Mary's Gift To Soldiers

Belleville Soldiers Receive Beautiful Memento

At the Christmas Season, 1914, the soldiers then in France, Imperials, Canadians and others received many gifts but none more appreciated and treasured than a beautiful metal tobacco box from H.R.H. Princess Mary. The box contained a bronze pencil in the form of a cartridge and an illuminated card with the inscription:

WITH BEST WISHES FOR A VICTORIOUS NEW YEAR FROM THE PRINCESS MARY AND FRIENDS AT HOME.

Owing to delays in distribution, many soldiers failed to receive the gift of the Princess Mary and 44,000 were sent to Canada. Six hundred have been received at G.W.V.A. headquarters in Belleville and will be given out by Secretary E. H. Liddle while they last to returned soldiers or dependents.

All entitled to this memento should call early at G.W.V.A. headquarters for the supply is limited and the demand will be great.

County Council In Special Session

A special meeting of the County Council was held in the city to-day at which all members were in attendance. The object of calling the meeting was to consider the matter of equalization, the Township of Sidney having entered an appeal against the equalization bylaw passed at the June session.

Warden Sills welcomed the members of the County Council which met in special session Thursday to consider the matter of equalization of the assessment. At the June session a special committee was appointed to deal with an appeal against the equalization but that committee felt that the Council should be called to deal with the matter. He was pleased to meet the new member of the Council, the Deputy Reeve of Tyendinaga.

Appeal Read

Mr. Walsh thought that the Township of Sidney was justified in appealing, especially against the equalization of the Township of Thurlow, but he thought that some other municipalities should not be included. There had been no request for an increase of equalization for the Township of Tyendinaga. Why single out Tyendinaga and other municipalities out of Thurlow Township.

Warden Sills stated that at the June session he offered to take on $150 000 for the Township of Thurlow but not allow the other municipalities to remain the same.

Mr. Reid, Deputy Reeve of Sidney said that Sidney as she was had no grievance, but upon investigation it was ascertained that Sidney was equalized too high.

Mr. Walsh contended that the Township of Tyendinaga was assessed at 83 per cent. of its value and not 61 per cent.

Reports

The following report of the special committee on equalization was presented:

equalization value of $150,000, he has front Townships, the majority of your committee were of the opinion that the Township of Sidney was justified in putting in an appeal against the equalization bylaw of 1920.

2. The Warden expressed his willingness to take on extra assessed equalization value of $15,000, he has also agreed to take on an additional $390,000 if the business tax on the Corby distillery is collectable in 1921 or a total raise for Thurlow Township of $540,000.

3. Moved by Mr. T. Naylor, seconded by James H. Clare, that the Warden be requested to call a special meeting of the County Council at an early date and have the committee report to them, recommending that the 1920 equalization bylaw No. 818 be repealed and the 1919 bylaw No. 806 with the additions of the above amounts as per agreement with the Warden be approved.

4. The final and more complete report of the findings of your committee will be presented at the December session of the County Council.

C. W. THOMPSON, Chairman.

Mr. Walsh was opposed to clause three of the report, as certain municipalities would lose their reduction.

Mr. Burns moved, seconded by Mr. Meiklyjohn that the report be adopted.

Mr. Walsh moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Jeffrey that clause three of the report on equalization be amended by changing the year mentioned therein to 1920 and the No. of bylaw to 818, and that said report be referred back to committee for that purpose.

Mr. Vermilyea stated that if Thurlow or any other municipality had had gained a million in assessment or reduced to that amount, it could not be touched this year, but could next year. The assessment of the Corby plant had been reduced by over $100,000 since liquor had ceased to be made. With this year's assessment we will deal with next year. An equalization fight means a large expenditure for the County and he suggested that the matter be settled without recourse to law.

Mr. Burns—Other buildings are going to be erected at Corbyville at the Corby Company's plant.

Upon a vote being taken the amendment of Mr. Walsh was defeated and the report was adopted.

Mr. Walsh stated that he would take steps to see that Sidney's appeal is not withdrawn and should it be withdrawn the Township of Tyendinaga would appeal.

Mr. Vermilyea was sorry Mr. Walsh takes the stand he has taken. He was altogether in favor of the report.

Mr. Walsh said he had compromised in the past and willing to compromise but it was evident that there was a feeling against the Township of Tyendinaga. He felt confident he had nothing to lose but much to gain. Look at the Committee that was appointed on the matter.

Mr. Clare—The committee was not prejudiced against Tyendinaga.

Dr. Embury said the Council desired to do what was right in the matter. The committee will at the December session present a detailed report and he hoped Mr. Walsh would wait until that report is presented before he carries out his threat.

Mr. Naylor stated that a full report would be presented at the December session and if any adjustment can be made it can be done at that session.

At the hour of 12 o'clock the Council adjourned until 2 oclock.

Bold Burglary At George St. Residence

George Street Residence Entered During the Night—Intruder Damaged Telephone.

At an early hour this morning the residence of Mr. F. S. Wallbridge, on George Street, was entered by a burglar by means of raising a window at the rear of the house. The uninvited guest made every preparation of a hasty exit if his presence was detected by the inmates as some windows were raised and the telephone was tampered with to such an extent that it could not be used for the time being.

A watch and ring and some other articles are missing. While the burglar was making an examination of the premises the inmates were awakened and the lights were put on. This caused the man to make a hurried exit through one of the open windows. His departure was so sudden that it was impossible to secure an accurate description of him.

As soon as possible the police were notified and visited the premises, but no trace of the man could be found. It is the opinion of the police that it was not an amateur who did the job.

Part Of Carp Village Destroyed By Fire

Engine is Sent From Ottawa—Still Spreading At Midnight

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—The village of Carp, Carleton county, was nearly wiped out by fire last night.

The Ottawa Fire Department sent by special train an engine and six men to help fight the fire.

Gathered from miles around the countryside, hundreds of farm folk and the citizens of Carp battled with the flames, which at midnight had completely burned out two town blocks and were still spreading.

The total loss will exceed $100,000.

The Only Dessert of This Kind

There are numerous forms of quick gelatine desserts. But Jiffy-Jell is the only one with the real-fruit flavors sealed in glass.

They crush the fruit, condense the juice and seal it. A bottle of the liquid fruit essence comes in each package of Jiffy-Jell. In a moment's time you can prepare a delicious fruit dessert.

Sugar is used in Jiffy-Jell—not saccharine. And real-fruit flavors in place of artificial. It will give you a new conception of these delightful dainties.

Jiffy-Jell is often used in place of jam, marmalade, etc. Additional sugar may be used to suit the taste.

FIFTY-TWO MURDERS IN NEW YORK THIS YEAR

New York, Aug. 5.—Fifty-two murders have been committed in New York City in the seven months since January 1, setting a homicide record unparalleled in many previous years, it was stated at the District Attorney's office. The death list includes the mysterious murder of Joseph B. Elwell, wealthy turfman and whist expert.

In the six convictions returned in these cases, none has been for murder in the first degree. In 16 of the 52 murders no arrests have been made.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars' worth of strawberries were harvested from a 20-acre field on the outskirts of Simcoe this season," claims W. L. Innes of the Dominion Canners. A seven-acre patch in the lot realized $10,000. Some of the beds were old and rather neglected, which reduced the average. "It should be remembered," added Mr. Innes, "that these figures represent wholesale prices 14 cents per quart."

HYPNOTISM

It May Some Day Take the Place of Ether.

Will hypnotism take the place of anaesthetics?

Great specialists in every branch of surgery are beginning to feel that the application of the power of the mind to the weaknesses of the body can be directed in such a way as to solve medical and surgical problems in a manner which our forefathers would have denounced as magic.

Quietly and unobstrusively, on account of the grave danger of proceeding with such work on a grand scale until continued and repeated experiments have justified its claims, doctors and dentists, too, are beginning to replace chloroform and other anaesthetics with magnetism and auto-suggestion.

They will not, as a rule, discuss the matter with laymen unless they are sure of a sympathetic hearing, which shall not lead to a mischievous and ill-considered, if not scandalous, criticism, for to the lay and unsympathetic mind the idea that difficult operations may be conducted without any other anaesthetic than the personal magnetism of the operator, and yet leave neither pain nor the memory of pain in the mind of the patient, is one which might well be rejected as incredible and denounced as something little better than charlatanism.

And yet the men who are experimenting in this way are the last men in the world to be charlatans.

If the names of the specialists who are to-day studying auto-suggestion, with the idea of incorporating it into the practice or surgery, could be published, the lay world would be astounded, for they include men whose reputation in the medical profession and in scientific circles is far too high to be affected by the breath of suspicion.

In their heart of hearts these men hope that it will not be long before a patient who is wheeled into the operating room will not require chloroform or methyl-ether-alcohol, but will be "put to sleep" by the influence of a stronger mind acting upon his own.

Nor will the dentist's chair, to compare small things with great, maintain its former terrors. The dentist of the future, instead of terrifying his patient with the grisly array of technical instruments reminiscent of the torture chamber of Torquemada, will smile with a sympathetic knowledge, which is able to reduce his patient to a condition in which not even the most sensative nerve will pain him when it is touched.

"But, this is to joke upon a serious matter," said an authority upon medical hypnotism. "We want to go on with our experiments quietly and systematically, and we do not want to let anyone know our results until they are so complete that they will stagger the world and demand public confidence in us. Already, as scientific men, we are satisfied that we can do what we claim.

"On the continent, in the United States, everywhere, our work is being carried on by men of genius and learning, men of science and men of character, who are all contributing their bit toward the development of what will be the greatest scientific discovery of the future, and a development of possibilities of which we cannot yet foresee."

Beds From the Beginning.

You like a soft bed better than a hard one because it is "comfy." But how many of us realize that Dame Nature, for her own ends, purposely gave us all this leaning towards a sleeping place that will yield to the body?

Edwin F. Bowers, M.D., in a most interesting little volume entitled "Sleeping for Health," explains how a soft bed, by "giving" to the body, admits of complete relaxation, and at the same time does not impede the circulation of the blood.

The Romans used rough framework beds, interlaced with thongs, although, of course, the idea was much improved upon and "glorified" to such an extent that, in the beds of some of the emperors, the framework was of fine gold or silver, ornamented with jewels.

After the thong-and-framework bed came the first idea of a mattress, in the shape of the "chest bed." This was a kind of shallow box stuffed with dry moss or feathers, and although it must be been comfortable it must, at the same time, have been extremely insanitary.

Later on came the big four-poster canopy bedsteads. These pieces of "sleeping furniture" were hung with curtains, which did little else but collect dust and keep away fresh air.

One had to be wealthy to sleep at all comfortably in those days, for although there were plenty of vermin about, there was no patent insect-killer. So when the bed of a rich man became infested, he moved to another of his houses, and left the vermin to die of starvation.

The poor man, with only one house, merely grinned and bore it—or, rather, them.

Iron beds were first made about a couple of hundred years ago, and gradually people saw the advantages of this metal bed, until nowadays they are almost universally in use.—Pearson's.

Here's the Place to Live.

There are no doctors lawyers, clergymen or police on the island of Tristan de Cunha, in the South Atlantic 1,200 miles from land. Disease is almost unknown, except an occasional case of rheumatism, asthma, lumbago or failure of eyesight. After the visit of a ship most of the islanders suffer from "colds," but never at other times.

Premier's Visit To Hastings Will Be Memorable Event

LARGEST PUBLIC GATHERING EVER ASSEMBLED IN CANADA EXPECTED—ALL PARTS OF ONTARIO WILL BE WELL REPRESENTED AND MANY COMING FROM OTHER PROVINCES — IMPORTANT PRONOUNCEMENTS OF POLICY EXPECTED.

Next Wednesday, August 11, will be a memorable day for Hastings County, the occasion being the first formal address of Hon. Arthur Meighen, as Premier of Canada to be made in Ontario and the only one which the Premier will make in Ontario this year. The address will be made at the second annual picnic in honor of E. Guss Porter, K.C., the popular member in the Dominion Parliament for West Hastings.

The newspapers all over Canada are giving exceptional prominence to the appearance of the Premier at Porter's Picnic at Stirling, and it is confidently expected that important pronouncements will be made of government policy. Inquiries for accomodation at Belleville hotels are coming in thick and fast from all parts of Canada from people keenly interested in Canadian public affairs who desire to be present at Porter's Picnic and hear the Premier speak. That there will be the largest attendance ever gathered at any public meeting in Canada goes without saying and the program of the day will be varied and interesting.

The slogan, "Meet Me At Porter's Picnic," has gone far and wide and the gathering of the clans will be an event long to be remembered.

Rail Rate Boost Hits Coal Prices

U. S. Public Will Have to Pay at Least $75,000,000 More a Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The United States public will pay at least $75,000,000 a year more for its coal as a result of the increased freight rates granted to the railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

George H. Cushing, director of the American Wholesale Coal Association, said the rate increases will add $30,000,000 to the nation's soft coal bill and $45,000,000 for hard coal.

The increases will vary according to the distance the coal is hauled, as the freight charges constitute the chief factor in the cost of coal. The incerased rates on soft coal, Mr. Cushing said will range from 40 cents to $1.25 a ton, while on hard coal, which is hauled at higher rates, the increases will average about $1 a ton. The increases can not be pyramided in sales to dealers he declared, because the freight rate is billed separately from the cost of the coal itself. He also was confident the majority of retailers will not add anything to their price further than the rate increase itself.

A close watch will be maintained by the Department of Justice agents, it was stated at the office of Attorney-General Palmer, to see that dealers who have coal on hand when the increased rates become effective do not apply the higher charges to coal received under the preesnt rates.

Referendum Date Never Postponed

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—While the prohibition referendum proclamation for Ontario was issued only last Saturday it dates from June 4, when it was prepared. The date came within the two months in which, according to the legislation on the subject, such a proclamation must issue after receipt of the formal request of the Legislature for a vote.

As a matter of fact the date of the referendum was never "postponed." The only date fixed was April 18, 1921. The proclamation was prepared on June 4 and stands as of that date, but only on last Friday was the actual date of the voting determined. October 25 was never decided on at any time. It was simply rumored it might be on that date because it had been selected for the voting in the western provinces but there was never any decision to that effect nor was the matter officially considered till last week.

Paris, Aug. 6.—The Temps correspondent at Warsaw telegraphs that General Weygand, Marshal Foch's assistant has said he would consent to assume the supreme command of the Polish forces and take responsibility for their military operations. General Weygand expresses the opinion to the Polish Goernment that the situation is far from hopeless, the correspondent says.

THE PREMIER'S SPEECH.

(Montreal Star)

The non-political speech of the Premier at Portage la Prairie makes good reading for Canadians. It is a happy augury that the first public pronouncement of the new head of the Government is a breaking away from the old traditions of closely drawn party lines. Mr. Meighen spoke not as the head of a Government, not as a party leader, but as a Canadian pure and simple.

The speech was mainly an appeal for a broader gauge Canadianism. We have heard a great deal of the development and perfection of class organization in this country of late. We have forgotten that we are Canadians and placed ourselves under the banner of capital, labor, farmer and what not. Inevitably with the congealing of these distinctive groups there has tended to arise a conflict of interest between them. But many of us forget our allegiance to Canada and remember only that what we consider our best interest can be served by the advancement of one or other of the various classes in the population of Canada to which we belong. Mr. Meighen recalls us to the primary duty of good citizenship, to a realization that the good of any group, or any individual within the group, is inextricably bound up in the good of the whole. Mr. Meighen might have quoted Kipling:

> And the ship more than the crew."

From this broad appeal Mr. Meighen turns inevitably to the consideration of one outstanding phase of it—the development of a more complete unity of purpose and understanding beween the two great groups who make up the population of Canada. The new Premier of Quebec said the other night that the time had come when Quebec should not continue to suffer from what is called its "isolation," but should take its full part in the Confederation of Canada. The new Premier of Canada echoes this belief. There are forces that work to bring to life old differences and estrangements. They have profited in the past by fomenting these, and it is too much perhaps to hope that they will cast aside their one remaining stock of trade—by keeping them alive today. But loyal Canadians, be they French or English, will forever be misled by the exploitations of capitalized ill-will.

Men with the welfare of Canada at heart are today urging a better and stronger partnership. Mr. Meighen has summed it up in one word—"If we wait until either side accepts the responsibility for what estrangement has existed, we will never get anywhere. Let the question of responsibility to go by and let us look to the future."

Ponzi's "Profits" Worrying Investigators

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Federal investigators are unable to explain the mystery surrounding the "foreign exchange" profits of Charles Ponzi, Boston's financial wizard, whose meteoric rise to fame and fortune has thrilled the country.

This became known today at the time it became apparent that more of Ponzi's investors believe in him than put their faith in his former publicity agent, who has attacked his solvency in two signed articles in a local paper. There were less than a dozen papers early in line this afernoon to get their money back, and at closing time there was no line.

The source of Ponzi's profits is said to be seriously worrying the Federal investigators, who apparently are not satisfied that the funds are there, as the little "postage stamp king" has declared from the first.

Edwin L. Pride, the Government's auditor, visited the Federal building today and was closeted with First Assistant U. S. Attorney-General Shea. He showed two bundles that he said contained more than $500,00 in notes redeemed by Ponzi yesterday.

"There is no law which can force me to show all my assets," said Ponzi this afternoon. "When my liabilities are established by the Federal audit then I will produce enough cash to cover them."

The Federal authorities will continue their investigation of the Securities Exchange Company, even though it is found Ponzi is solvent, it was said today. The Government is determined to learn whether the financier's methods are legal.

Assistant Attorney-General Albert Horwitz, who has made a careful investigation of the New York banks through which Ponzi is said to have conducted his foreign business, has returned to Boston. He says he has important information, but will not say whether it is detrimental to Pon'zi or in his favor.

Premier Meighen Speaks At Sudbury

Predicts Mine Products Will Exceed Manufacturers, Perhaps Farm Output

SUDBURY, Aug. 6.—A thousand people of the nickel district and a brass band, greeted Premier Meighen at Sudbury station, en route to the Capital. The reception was very enthusiastic.

Speaking in reply from the observation platform of his car, the Premier, who spoke with a knowledge as the late Minister of Mines, said he had no doubts whatever of the future of the mining industry of Northern Ontario, making the prediction that in the next decade the products of the mine would exceed the manufacturing and perhaps the agricultural, production of the Dominion. He gave the production of nickel a premier place in the evolution.

Although each community considered it had a special claim for priority, his duty as Premier, he said, was to meet the common interest of the country at large.

Ireland Needs A Cromwell Says Asquith

Days of Parnell Recalled During Heated Debate in British House

LONDON, Aug. 6.—After a debate which developed great heat and a personal scene between Mr. Lloyd George and Herbert H. Asquith, the Government at 11 o'clock last night defeated the motion of John Robert Clynes (Laborite) for rejection of the new Irish Crimes Bill and the measure passed second reading by a vote of 289 to 71. The voting was carried out under a motion moved in the House early yesterday by Andrew Bonar Law, providing for passage of the bill by 6 o'clock this evening.

At the very opening of debate the days of Parnell were recalled. Mr. Asquith started an angry duel with the Premier by declaring the situation in Ireland needed Cromwellian treatment but that he could see no Premier retorted by describing Mr. Asquith as Cromwell when he was in power.

British Parliament Called "Sham And Humbug"

SUSPENDED AND SENT FROM HOUSE OF COMMONS AMID JEERS OF GOVERNMENT SUPPORTERS—CALLED TO ORDER, DEVLIN REFUSED TO RESUME SEAT, AND SUSPENSION FOLLOWED.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—In an exciting scene in the House of Commons this afternoon during the discussion of the Government's bill for the restoration of order in Ireland, Joseph Devlin, Nationalist member from Belfast, was suspended and sent from the House. He was followed by other Nationalists, the great majority of the Labor party, and some of the Independent Liberals, amid the jeers of members supporting the Government.

Mr. Devlin had delivered a speech denouncing the proceedings as "sham and humbug." He was called to order for irrelevance, but declined to resume his seat.

Death Followed The Accident

Clavel C. Atkins Died From Injuries Received by Fall of Scaffold.

The collapse of a scaffold in the interior of St. Andrew's Church yesterday morning, whereby Clavel C. Atkins and Charles Cochrane, two decorators, were injured, was responsible for the death of one of the men. At an early hour today Mr. Atkins passed ed away at the Belleville Hospital. It was feared that the broken ribs had pierced the lungs, and such proved to be the case. Mr. Atkins was also otherwise injured internally. Everything that medical skill could devise was done in the case, but the injuries sustained were of such a nature as to defy treatment.

Mr. C. Cochrane, partner of Mr. Atkins, who also fell, is progressing as favorably as can be expected, and no serious results are anticipated.

Mr. Atkins was about 51 years of age and had resided in this city and vicinity all his life. He was born in Thurlow Township. In early life he was apprenticed to the painting trade which he followed all his life. He was a most proficient painter and decorater and his services were in great demand. Mr. Atkins took a deep interest in the I.O.O.F. Society, being a member of Mizpah Lodge No. 127, Moira Encampment No. 59 and Canton Belleville No. 8. In these branches of Oddfellowship he had held various offices. In religion he was a Methodist. A widow and one son, Harold, of this city, survive, also two brothers and one sister. The brothers are: George, of Calgary and Henry of Thurlow. The sister, Mrs. Hugh Campbell, resides at Chisholm's Mills, Hastings County.

Mr. Atkins was possessed of a most cheerful and genial disposition and made friends wherever he went. His untimely demise is sincerely regretted by a host of friends and heartfelt sympathy is extended to those who have been suddenly bereft.

An Inquest.

The body was removed from the hospital to Churchill's undertaking establishment, where an inquest was opened at noon before Coroner Dr. Yeomans, who explained that he and Mr. Carnew, County Attorney, considered an inquest was necessary in the case in order that the facts of the accident might be determined.

The jurymen are as follows: Messrs. Geo. J. Ellis (foreman), E. G. Brown, R. A. Adams, L. Howe, M. Delong, A. S. Large, T. Finnegan and Charles Whalen. The jury, after being sworn in, view the body.

Police Sergt. Naphin and Mr. Churchill gave evidence as to the body being that of the late Mr. Atkins. This was the only evidence taken, and the enquiry was adjourned for a few days. Later the body was prepared for burial and taken to the family residence, 233 Albert Street. The funeral will be under the auspices of the I.O.O.F. Society.

Selling German Marks To Canadians

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TORONTO, Aug. 6.—Making the double appeal to Canadians of German birth or descent that they can help to put the Fatherland on its feet and at the same time make a handsome profit for themselves, two salesmen of German origin, and apparently working for New York curb brokers, have, it is understood, recently been making a heavy hole in Canadian banking accounts by selling German marks or coupons there. Their argument is that the German marks will be negotiable at par in the near future.

Murder Of Child Excites Thorold

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 6.—David McNeal, held in connection with the disappearance of four-year-old Margaret Boucock, whose body was found Wednesday near the Welland ship canal, was not brought to Thorold today for his formal remand to jail. Feeling has been high in that town against the prisoner since the discovery of the body of the child. Magistrate Munro of Thorold went to Welland and executed remand papers at the county seat.

Russian Reds Bound To Loot Warsaw

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The Russien Soviet's rejly to Great Britain's call for a halt of the Bolshevik advance in Poland is a refusal, according to the London Times. The newspaper says the ground taken is that the armies would not obey an order to halt, and will only be content when they reach Warsaw, which has been promised to them for loot.

The Times says the note to the British Government was received by M. Kameneff, one of the Bolshevik delegates here, Thursday night, and will be handed to Premier Lloyd George this (Friday) morning.

According to The Times, the note says the Bolsheviki are entitled both by military and international law to continue their advance until an armistice is concluded. They are, however, prepared to sign an armistice and cease hostilities immediately the Polish delegates return to the appointed place with power to arrange an armistice of peace.

The Bolshevik answer says it is felt this action is necessary because the Bolsheviki fear that without such an undertaking the armistice negotiations might be prolonged merely to enable Poland to receive reinforcements.

The answer further points out, says The Times, that the Soviet Government is prepared to offer Poland terms, including complete independence, and wider boundaries than are provided for in the Treaty of Versailles.

WARSAW, Aug. 6.—The defensive line east of Warsaw has been pierced in several places, according to reports from the front. Preparations have begun to transfer the Government, if that move is made necessary by the Russian advance. Officials, however, still hope that the Soviet forces will be checked somewhere east of the Vistula.

No announcement has been made as to what place the Government would move to, but it is reported it would be Posen or Czestochowa, 143 miles southwest of Warsaw, near the Silesian frontier.

Five Killed Many Injured In Rio ts In Illinois Town

TROUBLE AROSE OVER FOREIGNERS, AND FIVE THOUSAND LEFT TOWN AFTER STREET FIGHTING—MILITIA IN CHARGE OF WEST FRANKFORT.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Aug. 6.—Following a night of rioting in which five persons are believed to have been killed and scores injured, comparative quiet was restored today. Approximately 5,000 foreigners, against whom the rioters directed their attack, had left town, and this, coupled with the arrival of 150 militiamen of the Ninth Illinois Infantry, tended to restore order.

Meets Horrible Death In Unknown Manner

Farmer Found With Head Crushed Between Shaft and Wheel.

GUELPH, Aug. 6.—John Clifford, a well known farmer, who resided near Morriston, met a terrible death yesterday afternoon when he had his head crushed to a pulp in a very mysterious accident. He had been out driving through the country all morning and shortly after two o'clock his horse wandered back home with Clifford's dead body stretched across the floor of the buggy. His head was pinned between the shaft and one of the wheels, and the side of his face had been completely lacerated from the pressure of the moving wheel. When his wife went over to the rig she was horrified to find that her husband had met death in this way.

Neighbors were immediately notified and before the body could be removed from the buggy the wheel had to be taken off, the man having been wedged in between the side of the vehicle and the wheel.

The cause of the fatality is a mystery, and how the man came to his death may never be known. He left home about ten o'clock in the morning and did not say where he was going. So far as is known the only place he was seen was on a road about two and a half miles from Morriston, where he had been talking to a man running a road roller about 1.10 in the afternoon.

He was about fifty years of age and married.

Train Bandits Still In Canada

CALGARY, Aug. 6.—The pursuit of the three bandits who held up train No. 63 through the Crow's Nest Pass on Monday afternoon has progressed so far as to establish the fact that the train robbers have not crossed the border into the United States; that they must be in hiding a short distance from the scene, was the information given by the police last evening. Major McLeod, superintendent of the bureau of investigation for the Canadian Pacific western lines, is in the city and will leave for the south today to put himself in touch with the situation. He is confident that the bandits will be forced out into the open very shortly.

THE ISLANDS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE

Amherst Island.—So called after "Sir Jeffray Amherst, of the honorable and military order of Bath, Colonel of the Third and Sixteenth Regiments of Infantry, Lieutenant-General in the Army, and Commander-in-Chief of all His Majesty's Troops and Forces in North America." This beautiful island, stretching along opposite, and about a mile and a half from Ernesttown; being some twelve miles in length, causes an extension of the Bay of Quinte to a corresponding distance. It contains about 14,015 acres of very rich land. The channel separating it from Gage and Wolfe Islands forms the Lower Gap, and that which flows above, between it and Marysburg, is the Upper Gap.

In the time of LaSalle the Indian name of this island was Kaouenesgo. It formed part of his seigniory, and he, some time after his arrival, to build Fort Frontenac, 1678, named the island Isle de Tonti, after a brave French officer, with one arm, who accompanied him. This name, modified to "Isle Tanta," clung to the island until recent years. Sir John Johnson, to whom it was granted, with other land, at the close of the war, 1783, in a letter to the Military Secretary, calls it the "Island of Tontine." This may have been a fancy name of the owner, as we find no other reference to it. The present name was bestowed in 1792, after Gen. Amherst, who acted so conspicuous a part in the wars. Upon some old maps the Island is designated "Sir John Johnson's Island." We find an indefinite statement that the island was claimed by the Mohawks, and that they ceded their rights to Col. Crowford, who accompanied Sir John, who in turn transfered it to Johnson. But as he and Brant were on the most intimate terms, they could, no doubt, arrange any difference between themselves.

We do not see that there can be any objection to record a statment which has been told for many long years by the inhabitants of the Bay, that the island was subsequently won by an aristocratic gambler, Lady B——, in England, at a game of cards, who afterward disposed of it to the present owner, Lord Mountcashel.

Some of the farm lots, we believe, have been disposed of, but the island is mostly held by tenants, under lease from the Earl. The oldest settler upon the island was Lieutenant McGinnis, of Johnston's Regiment. He lived here in some comfort, having several slaves to do the work.

Off the east end of Amherst Island, in the Bay, are three small islands called the Three Brothers, "famous for black bass fishing, and for deep rolling sea."

ADJOURNED INQUEST

At the police court room this evening an adjourned inquest will be held to enquire into the circumstances of the unknown man who was killed on the G.T.R. tracks near Marysville two weeks ago.

BOYS AND GIRLS AT CHAUTAUQUA

There will be a free meeting of all the boys and girls of Belleville at the Chautauqua tent, Monday afternoon, Aug. 9, at 4 p.m. Come and hear about the Athletic Carnival and Mother Goose Party.

ASSAULTS WIFE

George Allport, night watchman at Beal's tannery, Lindsay, invited his wife to the tannery, stating that the walk would do her good, and he had a surprise for her. After arriving Allport deliberately assaulted his wife with a bludgeon made from a short shovel handle to which he attached a coil of heavy spring. She was terribly bruised about the head, her scalp being almost torn off. He afterwards hid the club in a rain barrel to remove blood stains and hair. Allport when arrested stated that he remembered nothing of the assault until he saw blood. Authorities claim that he is bordering on insanity.

CONDITIONS BARBAROUS.

Discussing the pending investigation of Portsmouth Penitentiary, a prominent Kingston surgeon gave it as his opinion, from what he knew of the hospital facilities for the care of sick prisoners, "for," said he, "a prisoner ceases to be a prisoner when he becomes sick and needs medical attention. This is something that the department refuses to recognize. Since the agitation for a complete change was made an attempt to make an appearance of remedying the conditions complained of is shown by dressing the convict orderlies in white duck coats and painting the cell walls with whitewash. Indeed, a new kitchen sink was also installed. This deceives nobody, and nothing but a construction of a suitable hospital building that will provide sunshine and fresh air for the prisoners will do.

QUEST FOR TICKETS

Very early Friday morning groups of keen-eyed children were to be seen gazing into the store windows along Front street. After carefully scrutinizing the contents of each window the kiddies flitted quickly to the next and their actions occasioned considerable comment and interest among the grown-ups proceeding to their daily avocations. It soon dawned upon the spectators that the quest of the kiddies was for the six free tickets deposited in six store windows which would admit the lucky finders to every attraction during Chautauqua week. Whenever a ticket was located there was a shout of glee and a rush into the store to claim the coveted pasteboard which would admit the finder to the wonders of Chautauqua entertainments. Let it be said that the kiddies are taking a keen interest in Chautauqua week for there is a Junior Chautauqua as well as a senior, and if the grown-ups take as much interest Chautauqua week will be an event long to be remembered in Belleville.

CAPTAIN (FATHER) WATT

Captain (Father) R. J. J. Watt of London, England, was one of the most picturesque figures at the front. He has a splendid war record, being a veteran of two wars, having served and been wounded in both the Boer War and the late world war. He ranks as one of the most eloquent speakers England has ever produced in the last decade. He appears on the opening night of Chautauqua in a mighty address, his subject being "Winning the Peace."

Injured When Auto Struck By Freight

When an automobile was struck by a G.T.R. westbound freight train at Edward street crossing, Prescott, at 1.25 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the two occupants were thrown out and seriously injured. The injured are:

Adams and Selleck were returning home from Prescott, where they had been on business. As they reached the Edward street crossing, where several accidents have taken place, their Chevrolet automobile was struck by the second section of G.T.R. freight train No. 495, engine 725, Conductor Arnold Anderson, of Montreal, Engineer Thos. J. Hare of Brockville, Fireman B. A. Killarney, of Brockville. The train was not travelling at a high rate of speed, and with the application of the brakes by Engineer Hare was brought to a stop within a short distance. The two rear wheels of the car were torn off and the back of the rear seat broken. Selleck was thrown through the windshield, while Adams' injuries were received when the car overturned.

Members of the train crew rendered first aid to the injured men and Dr. McPherson and Dr. Taugher, who were called, had them removed to the Daniels Hotel. Selleck was able to leave for his home Saturday night, but Adams is still resting at the Daniels Hotel.

Engineer Hare states that the train was travelling at a speed of only 15 miles per hour. He whistled for the crossing and had the bell on the locomotive ringing. The circuit bell protecting the crossing was also ringing.

Protests have already been entered with a view to securing the establishment of gates at the crossing, but to no avail.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

His Wife's Money Causes Much Trouble

Eugene O'Brien opened a three days' engagement at Griffin's last night in a new Selznick picture "His Wife's Money," and local fans unanimously agree that his role of Richard Flint is one of the best he has ever portrayed. As a poor but ambitious civil engineer who marries a woman of great wealth, he has a part which enables him to carry some intensely dramatic scenes which are of greater power than those of any of his preceding pictures.

The story in brief tells of a successful business man who is earning $12,000 a year. While on a vacation in the Adirondacks he woos and wins Marion Phillips, a young heiress who has an income of a quarter of a million. Their wedding arouses the enmity of Marion's guardian, James Cardwell, also a suitor for her hand.

At the start of their married life, Richard insists that they shall live solely upon his income. Marion camouflages things so that Richard thinks they are living within his income, whereas as a matter of fact are away beyond it. The deception is finally revealed and then complications arise in quick succession, carrying the story up to a speedy and highly dramatic close. The scenic photography in the production are excellent.

RED CROSS TO RESCUE.

Regina, Aug. 5.—The Saskatchewan Red Cross executive have accepted an offer from the Saskatchewan Government to donate $20,000 to the society if it would assume full responsibility for, and direct the administration work of re-establishing, as far as possible, the farmers who suffered loss of homes, farms, equipment and in some cases all their earthly possessions through the cyclone which swept portions of the Alameda, Frobisher, Lampman and other districts in the southeastern part of the province, July 22. The Red Cross voted a second $20,000 from Red Cross funds to supplement the Government grant, should such additional sum be required.

Portia to Date.

For the first time in history a woman lawyer, Signora Comani, has conducted a case in an Italian courtroom; and commentators are naturally reminded of Portia and the famous case of Shylock vs. Antonio. Shakespeare may have found his idea for the scene in an Italian tradition, for the tale comes down from the fourteenth century of how the daughter of a jurisconsult in old Bologna took her father's place in the law school.

But even if the tradition is based on fact, it detracts nothing from Signora Comani's appearance in an Italian law court, for law schools and law courts are somewhat different, and the "lady lawyer" of Bologna did not appear publicly; she taught law to her father's students from behind a curtain.—Christian Science Monitor.

There are approximately 32 Liberal-Unionists still remaining in the Government ranks who have decided to "carry on" under the new name, "National Liberal and Conservative Party," at Ottawa. By provinces they include:

Ontario—Mowat, Tudhope, Nesbitt, Cronyn, Manion, Charlton, Mewburn, Guthrie (Rowell may drop out).

Manitoba—Cruise, Davis, Henders and Richardson.

Alberta—Halladay, Shaw, Douglas, Sifton.

Saskatchewan — Calder, Lang, Long, Argue.

British Columbia—McIntosh, Tolmie, Peck, Stacey, Crowe.

Quebec—Ballantyne.

Maritime Provinces — Loggie, Elkin, H. H. MacLean, and Spinney.

Messrs. Buchanan and Campbell have already severed connection and did not attend the caucus. Hon. A. K. MacLean will seek a seat with the Liberals at the next session.

The Marrying Parson.

Winnipeg claims the champion "marrying parson" of Canada. He is Canon R. B. McElheran, rector of St. Matthew's Anglican Church, who has united more than 2,500 couples in wedlock in the fourteen years of his pastorate there.

Every day of June this year, excepting only Sundays, he married no fewer than two couples—one day, the 16th, he established a new record for Winnipeg by wedding seven couples.

His wife says the reason for his popularity with young men and women matrimonially inclined is his own happy married life.

"We've made such a success of our own marriage that the young people just naturally come to him to start their life's romance," she declares.

Canada and the Empire.

Canada was the first colony to federate its scattered provinces into a Dominion, in 1867, an example since followed in part by Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Canada was the first of the Dominions to establish Government wireless telegraph stations.

Canada made possible the all-British Pacific cable by contributing 5-17 of its cost.

Canada has one-third of the entire area of the British Empire.

Must Be a Lawyer.

"Yes," said the man who was proud of his library, "whenever I find one of my books with a torn leaf, I put it through a legal process."

"What legal process?" his visitor asked.

"I have it bound over to keep the piece."

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir:—I was much interested in the Chamber of Commerce report. Being an Ontario man and after eighteen years in the Metropolis of Canada, Montreal, a city where they certainly do things, a city that all Canada is trying to take pattern of as to progress.

It is encouraging to note a body like the Chamber of Commerce doing aggresive work toward the improvement of Belleville as a Market Town. A town to live in and a town to make money in. I was much impressed to note the organizing of a rural branch, this is as it should it. The farmer is the man who feeds us all and with the working man, they are the backbone of the country. We should have a working man's branch to the Chamber of Commerce as well Only when we get together and study and understand each other's needs and rights, will conditions be as they should. I am pleased to note the assistance to be given by the Retail Merchants' Association, working in connection and forming a part of the Chamber of Commerce, etc. Only by hearty co-operation can any lasting good or progress be obtained among all classes. What would happen to our merchants if three-quarters of the population of Belleville sent outside to buy their supplies. No doubt a few do, but not many. Most people are loyal to their own town. Of course the merchant is expected to give as good value as possible to encourage home trading and let the merchant likewise consider the money he spends outside for goods, possibly to be had at home—just as good and just as cheap.

The writer had occasion to notice an order given by a friend to a local grocer. The grocer recommended a flour made outside of Belleville, he delivered ice cream made outside of Belleville and he delivered corn starch made in the United States, while Belleville has two or three good concerns making ice cream. Canada has a good starch factory and Belleville has two mills making flour.

Lest you think I am writing in my own interests I would say not entirely. The Judge-Jones Milling Company has a capacity of 800 bags of flour per day and their biggest trade is at outside points for export, etc. We however have a big home trade with bakers and many of the dealers. We appreciate the grocer-dealers trade, but we really think Cooper or the other Home Mill should get the trade, not for their benefit alone, but for the benefit of the town and dealers themselves. In all our advertising in outside papers we advise people if there is a mill in their town, to patronize it. Why not try this in Beleville? This applies to every dollar that is spent with local concerns, it is spent again in Belleville and comes back to the grocer and dealer, but every dollar sent outside enriches some other town's dealer—and in some articles it amounts up quickly. Good Belleville and vicinity earned money going to help other towns. The Judge-Jones Milling Company has between forty and fifty employes at present and all this wage money is spent in Belleville mostly for groceries. But the most important thing is co-operation and united effort toward the things that make for the greatest good to the geratest number and in a few years we will have a Greater and Improved City.

I will cite only one place in Canada—Stratford—until a few years ago a city about as big as Belleville is today. Now Stratford has a popualtion of nearly 20,000 due largely to an aggresive Board of Trade, an up-to-date progressive and economical Council, they now have nearly all streets paved, sewers and permanent sidewalks everywhere and there is hearty co-operation between nearly every citizen, they are loyal. Let us try it for a year.

GEO. B. JONES,

WIN FOR ST. MICHAEL'S

At Madoc yesterday afternoon, a Trent Valley League match was played between the St. Michael's team of this city and Madoc team. It was a good exhibition of ball and was witnessed by a large number of spectaters. The result was a win for St. Michael's team by a score of 7 to 4. Mr. Archer of Marmora was the umpire.

PROTEST HEARD

At Madoc last evening a protest was heard by Madoc team against the St. Michael's team of Belleville. It appears that a game was scheduled to be played here some three weeks ago, but owing to rain in the morning Madoc was notified not to come. A portion of the team having come here claimed the game. As a result of the protest, St. Michael's team was ordered to pay Madoc team $15 if the game is forfeited or $10 if the game is played. The St. Michael's team will play the game.

CANADA KEEPS GEORGE CUP.

Cobourg, Aug. 4.—Although there was a most unfortunate finish to the final race of the series for the George Cup between the United States and Canada here today, Nirwana of the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, Toronto and Watertown, the challenger from the Crescent Yacht Club of Watertown, N.Y. Nirwana won on Monday, Watertown on Tuesday, and a victory for Vivia today would have tied up the series and made a fourth race necessary.

The race today was over a windward and leeward course, with the outer mark directly in the wind's eye. Watertown made a pretty start and was away first, with Nirwana second and Vivia third, to leeward of the line and almost dead. Soon afterwards she got a puff and was away in pursuit of the others. She pointed higher and footed faster than her rivals. At the turning buoy she was well ahead and after rounding it she set her spinnaker.

Where Vivia Loses.

Watertown was well off to leeward in third position. Nirwana began to pick up on the leader, and a mile from the finish she poked her nose across Vivia's rigging. One of the rules of the L.Y.R.A. is to the effect that the height of the spinnaker boom must not exceed the distance from the forward side of the mast to the fore or jib stay on the length of the base of the forward triangle.

Vivia's skipper, in ignorance of the rule, to take advantage of the light air and to use that portion of his spinnaker being lost or smothered behind his mainsail, shoved out his spinnaker boom until it lengthened the base to such an extent as to violate the rule. He admitted to the judges that he was in ignorance of the rule and must accept their decision. Vivia was disqualified and the race and cup handed to Nirwana.

In losing the cup, Angus McDonald, owner of Vivia, feels that he has the fastest boat of her class on fresh water and is consoled.

Post Office In Barrel.

The "simplest post office in the world" is said to be located on the shore of the Strait of Magellan, where it collects and distributes mail for the benefit of seamen on vessels passing through the strait. No postmaster or postmistress officiates here, nor can one buy a postage stamp or ask intelligent questions about the probable length of time before your letter will be delivered. In fact, it is without officials, postmen, stamps, scales, postmarks, or any other visible attribute of an ordinary post office. The vessels that make use of it know where it is and look for a certain high cliff from whose top a long chain hangs to the bottom, with a barrel attached.

This is the post office. The vessel stops, a boat is lowered and the post office visited. Very likely there will be a number of letters left there by other vessels passing through the strait, and addressed to seamen on vessels that were sooner or later likely to pass. The latest comer looks the mail over, may or may not find a letter that has been left for collection, and "posts" in the barrel any letters that may have been written aboard that particular ship for seamen whose ships are expected to pass that way and stop to see if any mail has been left for them. It seems an odd and casual way to send and receive letters, but the sailing routes of ships that pass through the strait are definitely prescribed, and the "simplest post office in the world" fulfils a useful purpose where any other kind is out of the question.—Christian Science Monitor.

TRUE BILLS FOUND AGAINST "OUTLAWS"

Chicago, Aug. 5.—True bills were voted by the Grand Jury against forty-one men in connection with the "outlaw" railroad strike which tied up the transportation in Chicago and several other cities last spring.

The Chicago Yardmen's and the United Engineers' Association, which were formed by the "rebels" are said to have been indicted as corporations.

The Grand Jury's report will probably be made shortly. As soon as it is read to the Judge arrests will be ordered. The indicments are said to have been drawn under provisions of the Lever Act which forbids agreements and conspiracies to block shipments of necessities.

John Graunau, president of the Chicago Yardmen's Association and H. E. Reading, chairman of the United Enginemen's Association, are among those who are said to have been indicted.

WANT STRONGER BEER AND IRISH FREEDOM

Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Aug. 6.—Modification of the Volstead Prohibition Act to permit of 2.75 per cent. beer, and recognition of the Irish Republic were two of the planks in the platform presented to the New York State Democratic Convention here.

THE LATEST AT GREENWICH OBSERVATORY.

Once every year a rather quaint ceremony is observed at Greenwich Observatory. An inspection of the Observatory is made by a "Board of Visitors" to whom the Astronomer-Royal presents a report on the work of the preceding twelve months. The latest report shows that although the Observatory was founded centuries ago, at the very dawn of scientific navigation, it keeps in line with the latest developments. A new aerial has been erected to extend the range over which wireless time signals can be received. These signals are now received regularly from the Eiffel Tower, Nauen, and Annapolis. The Observatory also controls the operation of time-balls in different parts of the country. These time balls are hoisted on a prominent mast and released at specific hours by an electric signal from the Observatory. The accuracy of the operation is checked by a return signal from the distant time-ball. Greenwich also controls "Big Ben," the famous clock of the Houses of Parliament.

THE NAMELESS DEAD.

The Imperial War Graves Commission reports that two thousand graves of men who fell in the service of the Empire are still unidentified. "An unknown British soldier" must be the epitaph of this "legion of the lost ones." But two thousand and more Empire women mourn today because no name is written on the simple wooden crosses that mark their last resting place. It is the sadness of these dear ones that makes its appeal. Perhaps John Smith was not his name, but for an hour or two he drew the breath of life, lived a few hours to laugh and one to weep, a few hours to love and one to fight. Today this brave company is lost in the vast eternity of sleep and mother, sweetheart and sister mourn because no name appears above their eternal resting place.

Why grieve The nameless dead are just as happy, just as silent, just as resigned. They are beyond the sympathy of human grief and in the realm of manly triumph. They wove their thread in the amazing tapestry of life. The pattern only is left for us to admire. Two thousand nameless graves, and each one cries to Heaven for the consummation of the ideals which, dimly seeing, their dead fell for.

Ours is the shame if the pattern they wove is not for ever revered, the faith they half-perceived, is not always held inviolate. They sleep just as quietly in their unnamed graves. They have set up a monument "more lasting than bronze."—Montreal Star.

Hens Must Work
Toronto Globe

The United Farmers of West Zorra, Oxford county intend to stand no further nonsense from the class of hens known to the poultry world as "star boarders." A hen-culling campaign throughout the whole township will begin on Monday, and the otiose birds that refuse to do a stint of work will have to go into the pot or the oven, where they will serve a useful purpose. At any time it is a poor hen that will not pay for her own feed, and the present high cost of living for chickens has made it imperative that no mercy shall be shown the one that will not give an adequate return for what they take in. It is a case of the survival of the fittest, directed by human intelligence instead of natural selection.

The West Zorra farmers are merely applying business principles. It will be idle to set up a plea that certain hens are only practising the limitation of output which has become the rule in some human occupations Greater production is the motto in the country, even if it puts a stain on the Farmer-Labor alliance. Ca'canny hens have received fair warning and the result should be a notable lesson in farm economics.

A Font To Draw Tears
London Morning Post

There is in the Fiji Islands a font which can only be described as the most pathetic in the world. It is made out of the piece of rock on which little children were brained before being eaten! The results produced by the missionaries on these islands wrung from Charles Darwin this tribute: "They have abolished human sacrifices and the power of an idolatrous priesthood, and a system of profligacy unparalleled in any part of the world." Missionaries at work in the islands not many years back often saw the ovens where the cannibals baked their victims.

The Working Class Pay
New York Evening Sun

Signor Giolitti, the Italian Premier laments the strike mania in his country because, as he points out, it is not capital that suffers but middle class. He might have gone further. The worst victims are always the poor. The working class pay for every strike, and, in the long reckoning, pay its entire cost.

THE POET'S CORNER

GOOD NIGHT

The sun has sunk behind the hills,
The shadows o'er the landscape creep;
A drowsy sound the woodland fills,
And nature folds her arms to sleep;
Good night—good night!

The chattering jay has ceased his din,
The noisy robin sings no more—
The crow his mountain haunt within,
Dreams 'mid the forest's surly roar;
Good night—good night!

The sunlight clouds float dim and pale
The dew is falling soft and still;
The mist hangs trembling o'er the vale
And silence broods o'er yonder mill;
Good night—good night!

The rose, so ruddy in the light,
Bends on its stem all rayless now,
And by its side the lily white
A sister shadow, seems to bow;
Good night—good night!

The bat may wheel on silent wing—
The fox his guilty vigils keep—
The boding owl his dirges sing;
But love and innocence will sleep;
Good night—good night!

A LAUGH OR TWO

Repentance is often confounded with determination not to get caught again.

Always Something

"I suppose you are very pleased at your daughter's engagement?"

"Well, we don't like the man much, nor does my daughter. But then, there's always something."

Contrasting Troubles

Of course, it is some trouble to clean a sparkplug, but do you remember what a task it was to go over an entire horse with a brush and currycomb?

"What does biology mean?"

"Buy-ology, my son, is the science of shopping."

Met His Match

"I want a mattress that is cool to sleep on in hot weather."

"One of these air mattresses madame, you will find just the thing; they were filled during the cold weather."

"How clever! And I suppose their resilient qualities are due to their being filled with spring air."

MERRY MAYFAIR.

How Famous London District Got Its Name.

Few probably of the fashionable denizens of Mayfair are aware of the origin of the name or the doings that formerly attracted the populace to their now aristocratic quarter of the Metropolis. Known by the designation of Brookfield, the ground lying between Park Lane and Berkeley Square became by a grant from James II. the scene of a fair which commenced on May 1, and continued for fifteen days.

It was not, we are told, for the purpose of trade or merchandise; but for "musick, showes, drinking, gaming, raffling, lotteries, stage-plays, and drolls." This variety of amusement drew thither all the nobility in town, and doubtless presented a gay and lively scene while it lasted. The district acquired by degrees the name of Mayfair, as the rendezvous remained popular for many years.

In 1708 it was suppressed. Later, however, it was somewhat revived, when we learn that it contained "booths for jugglers, prize-fighters, boxing matches, and wild beasts," while the outside sports included mountebanks, fire-eaters, ass racing, dice tables, ups and downs, merry-go-rounds, bull-baiting, grinning for a hat, running for a shift, hasty pudding eaters, and sundry other entertainments.

The sites of Hertford Street and Curzon Street formed the centre of the fair, and the old wooden public-house, the Dog and Duck, had beyond question many patrons, more particularly as at Fair time the second storey of the Market House close by was let for the plays to be performed, and duck-hunting took place in the pond shaded by willows behind the inn itself.

The fair was finally suppressed in the reign of George III., and the later chronicles of the district that remain are concerned with the celebrated Mayfair marriages, for at "the Reverend Alexander Keith's Chapel," the entrance to which was by a country-looking church porch, the ceremony was performed at a minute's notice, the fee being one guinea and the license five shillings, and among the marriages so celebrated and recorded in one of the three volumes kept with the parish books of St. George's, Hanover Square, is that of the Duke of Kingston to Miss Chudleigh, and of James, fourth Duke of Hamilton, in 1752, to one of the beautiful Miss Gunnings.

Your Dream Door.

Lafcadio Hearn used to tell his literary pupils to study their dreams. Dreams undoubtedly inspired writers so great as R. L. Stevenson and Edgar Allan Poe.

Dreams are very interesting, very human and very amusing. The secret is to have at least some idea how a dream works. Dreaming has been beautifully described by Henri Bergson.

First, what happens when one dreams? The sleeper's senses continue to be active and the dreamer makes use of his senses. But the dreamer has no will-power.

Suppose a man in the daytime spent half an hour waiting for a street car. If he dreams of this at night the scene may come back realistically enough, but it is more than likely he will dream that he could not get out of the way of the car as it approached.

The dream itself gratuitously supplies this grotesque touch of helplessness.

The dream sends the sleeper over some action again, as it were, but sends him without his will. Similarly a sleep-walker, by the use of his senses, may unlock and open a window, but then he proceeds to fall out, because sleepers have no will. Everyone knows the sense of helplessness in dreams, says F. H. W. Jackson in a recent number of the London Mail.

But what causes a sleeper to dream? The best answer is—memory. Memory stirs the sleeper's mind into unwaking consciousness, memory forces the sleeper to dream.

Within us are hundreds on hundreds of memories, and each will jump out and occupy the mind if it can. When we are awake the will sees that any memory entering the mind has some bearing on the business of the mind at the moment. But in sleep the will is not working, and then comes the chance of our elfin memories to "raise the trap door which has kept them beneath the floor of consciousness . . . . to come forth and perform their dance macabre."

Only one or two memories can get through the door, and the successful memory forms the subject of the dream. The last memory, standing nearest the door, so to speak, has the best chance to come out, but often very distant memories force their way through and make us dream about them.

There is the rule of color. The pressure of the closed eyelid on the optic nerve causes a color to rise into the sleeper's field of sight. If this color chances to be yellow, this favors the chance of some yellow memory-imp to jump through the door.

Perhaps the sleeper has a memory of a fire; if so, he is likely to dream about it now. Or if green rises before his closed eyes, he may dream he has done eighteen holes in bogey.

Dreams burlesque the truth!

Woman Defined.

In the recent debate in the House of Commons on the British Labor party's bill granting franchise to women on the same terms as men, Col. Archer-Shee declared that a woman just become of age is Captivatingly capricious,

Fascinatingly futile,
Irresistibly irrational,
Ingenuously inexperienced,
Politically pusillanimous.

For these reasons the colonel did not want a woman to have her nose in politics until she knew what she was about.

RANCHER NOW CROW'S FRIEND

Bird He Formerly Despised Came to His Rescue and Waged War on Destructive Worms.

There's a rancher out at San Fernando valley way who has revised all his preconceived notions about crows, says a Los Angeles dispatch to the St. Louis Republic. Inasmuch as they have saved him $5,000, he feels that he is duty bound to chuck the "scarecrows" and cultivate his newfound friends.

In other words, he's off the anti-crow movement for life.

Mr. Robert Fargo, program chairman of the Los Angeles Audubon society vouches for the facts in the case. The farmer has 45 acres of tomatoes. They were coming along finely when he discovered some weeks ago that tomato worms had invaded the field and were destroying the plants.

All hands—men, women and children—were drafted to wage war on the worms, which multiplied at an appalling rate. As many as 1,000 of them would be found in a single morning.

The fight appeared to be hopeless, and the farmer in despair had almost resigned himself to the loss of his crop when the blackleg battalions of his rescuers arrived one morning.

A veritable cloud of birds descended on one corner of the field. At first he supposed it merely meant more trouble. In a short time he discovered his mistake.

The new arrivals were after the worms and they got them, too. The loyal birds stayed right on the job for several days. A careful search of the field several days after they left revealed only three of the worms.

Not a tomato plant was disturbed by the birds, according to the rancher. He is now trucking his tomatoes in a nearby cannery which contracted for them. At the price fixed he will clear $5,000.

If the crows had not arrived on time there would have been neither vines nor tomatoes left in a few days, so he credits them with having saved him the results of a year's labor, the cost of his plants, and returned him a neat profit besides.

Finished the Program.

The newlyweds moved in the apartment next to the settled old bachelor. They had a ukulele and every night they entertained themselves and annoyed him by playing it and singing very sentimental songs together. Usually they ended with "Home Sweet Home."

He endured it bravely and said nothing until one day he heard them having their first quarrel. That night he supposed he would have quiet, but quite as usual the bridegroom thrummed on his "uke" and very wild weird tunes he thrummed, too. Finally there was a long silence and the bachelor knew that they had ended their concert without their usual "Home Sweet Home."

Grimly he crossed to his Victrola which had been silent since the advent of the newlyweds and their superior musical instrument. With elation he took from the rack the record he had put there in hopes that some day his turn would come. And exultantly the Victrola ground out "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag and Smile, Smile, Smile."

Enforcing Etiquette.

"My oldest girl, Zanzaline, is right smart of a lady, if I do say it," pridefully admitted Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "Tuther night when young Bill-Dick Riggle was calling on her in steps young Hamp Yawkey, and 'lowed he'd set up on the other side of her. 'Peared like Bill-Dick preferred peace to etterkett, and was willing to arbitrate about it. But Zanzaline knowed her manners, and she hauled off with the fire shovel and smacked young Hamp flat with it, and like to have beat him to death before he could tear himself out of there. Then she turned to Bill-Dick and told him to go on with his sparking. Aw, you bet your life, when it comes to etterkett, Zanzaline is right there with the authority!"—Kansas City Star.

Asleep at His Post.

I was stationed, while in the army, at a camp in Texas, and had been working as a stenographer in the office of the executive officer.

I had been out quite late in the night on the day previous and had been feeling quite sleepy while at work, so I folded my arms on my machine, and before long was fast asleep. I had been asleep about ten minutes when the executive officer tapped me on the shoulder and said: "Don't you want one of these pillows, too?"

It seems a woman who lived close to the camp had become acquainted with the officer and had sent him a few pillows to be given out by him, and I was indeed glad to receive one of them, but was much embarrassed in the way I received it.—Exchange.

Mild and Ancient.

"Shall we refer to that opponent in uncompromising terms as a grafter?" asked the invaluable secretary.

"No," replied Senator Sorgham. "Let's keep up-to-date and make it strong. The profiteers these days have made the old-fashioned grafter look like a piker."

His Glimpses of Warfare.

"What are your impressions of 'No Man's Land?'"

"I didn't get into the war," answered the morose citizen. "My only vivid idea of 'No Man's Land' is home while spring housecleaning is going on."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Paper Industry At Kapuskasing

Agreement Signed by Government and Spruce Falls Company

Northern Ontario is to have in operation within the next two or three years a new pulp and paper industry. Agreements have been entered into between the Drury Government and the Spruce Falls Company which means an immediate start upon an enterprise that will give impetus to the development of the clay belt over a wide area and, incidentally, bring right to the doors of the few hardy soldier-settlers left at Kapuskasing a market for all the pulpwood they can furnish.

The new pulp and paper mills, according to the contracts signed, will be erected on the land that is now the Kapuskasing colony farm, an area of 400 acres that the Government is selling to the company at $100 an acre. Here employes of the company are already preparing to start work and before Winter sets in, it is stated, the roof will be on the pulp mill. The company has agreed to be manufacturing pulp-wood by January 1, 1921 and paper by February 1, 1928, but the pulp mill is expected to be in operation by next Summer and the paper mill several years before the time limit expires. The pulp mill will have a minimum capacity of 75 tons of pulp-wood a day, and the paper mill a minimum capacity of 50 tons of paper.

Fifteen per cent. of the output will be reserved for Canadian publishers.

In China.

Another Singapore student story is told by World Outlook. This student was in an automobile accident. He was not seriously injured—one of his legs was smashed a bit, and he was somewhat scratched—but he was not well enough to go to school, and this is the letter of explanation he sent his teacher: "I entreat pardon for my awayness, but I am unseadably sick for a have had my limbs compressed by an auto and am much scratched as to my leather."

HISTORY IN NAMES.

In the earliest days of the human family, all known persons, places and groups of human beings must have had names by which they were recognized.

The study of these names and their survival in civilization enables us often to ascertain what races inhabited districts now peopled by those of entirely different speech.

The names of mountains and rivers in many parts of England, for instance, are Celtic.

Ancient local names are, as a rule, purely descriptive. A river is called by some word which merely signifies "the water," a mountain may have a name which means "the peak," "the castle," "the point."

English place names, generally, state some simple fact, and often denote no more than property; the name of a town or hamlet being formed by adding "ton" or "ham" to the name of some early landholder.

Quite often a bit of even half humorous description will survive in such a name, as when a stony, starved and weedy district is called Starvacre.

The English race carries with it the ancient names of an older people into every continent, and titles given to places in the British Isles may be found in America, Australia, Africa and the islands of the furthest seas.

Touching personal names, we find that among most uncivilized races a name, commonly derived from some incident or natural object, is given at the time of birth by the parents to each child.

In some cases names of the earliest races denotes some phenomenon of nature. No names are more common among North American Indians than those derived from sun, moon, stars, clouds and wind.

Our English ancestors had for personal names compound words, as, "Noble Wolf," "Wolf of War" and so forth, the names testifying to a somewhat primitive and fierce stage of society.

Later came vulgar nicknames, as "Long," "Black," "White," "Brown," etc., other names were derived from the occupation of the person to whom they were given as "Smith," "Fowler," "Saddler," etc.

Yet other names are derived from places, the noble and landowner was called "of" such and such a place, equivalent to the German "von" and the French "de." The humbler man was called not "of," but "at" such a place, as in the name "Attewell" (at well), or merely by the local name without the "at," as "Wells."

Following are the origins of the names of some countries:

Europe signifies a country of white people, given because the inhabitants were of a lighter color than those of Africa and Asia.

Africa, which formerly was celebrated for its abundance of grain, was given this name, meaning "the land of corn."

Siberia signifies "thirsty" or "dry."

Britain means "the country of tin."

Sicily denotes the "country of grapes."

Hibernia means "utmost" or "last habitation," for beyond this, westward, the Phoenicians never ventured.

Found Rare Picture.

A windfall is due to King George's private purse as a result of the discovering in Buckingham Palace in the course of Queen Mary's housecleaning of a rare Gainsborough, the existence of which had not been known to the present generation. The discovery was made when Queen Mary had three oil paintings sent from the royal library to be cleaned. One of the pictures was "Virginia Waters," by an unknown artist, purchased for Windsor Castle by Queen Victoria. Beneath the picture was found another, which experts pronounce to be "Portrait of a Lady," by Gainsborough.

Queen Mary is personally directing the housecleaning at Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle, and hopes to unearth many forgotten treasures. Especially the cleaning of Windsor will be a gigantic undertaking and will probably last a year, because of the size of the castle and the remoteness of the apartments, which have been closed for generations.

The Queen is an enthusiastic antiquarian and in the past has made several interesting discoveries in the castle as well as in other royal residences. Some of the furniture now in the private apartments of the King and Queen was found in this manner.

As formerly no catalogue of royal possessions was kept, historians are keenly interested in the result of the Queen's explorations.

Finds Blasphemy In Hymns.

Some very strong words about hymns have been said by Rev. J. H. Hopkinson, son of the former vice-chancellor of Manchester University.

"We have learned," he says, "that war is not a matter of fluttering banners and clashing swords and beating drums, but merely a sickening and dirty butchery of lads in water-logged or fly-infested trenches.

"We shall be less ready than we were to compare the movement of the church to that of a victorious army. Hymns that we could sing unthinkingly before the war have become a lying blasphemy. Who would now sing "Like a mighty army moves the church of God"?

"Mosquito" Airplane.

A Frenchman has made successful experiments with the smallest airplane existing, called the "mosquito" It measures four yards from wing-tip to wing-tip and has a twenty horsepower engine. It flew for an hour at an altitude of 5,000 feet.

TO RESTORE HISTORIC SPOT

City of New Orleans Taking Steps to Preserve and Beautify Bienville's Landing Place.

An effort is being made in New Orleans to restore the old historic spots around the city. With the restoration of the old Place d'Armes, the rehabilitation of the Cabildo and the Pontalba apartments which surround it, and the preservation of all as an artistic center for the old French and Spanish quarter, an effort is being made to restore and preserve the landing place of Bienville, where he first set foot on the high land in 1720, at the place he was destined to convert into Nouvelle Orleans. This landing place, which lies on the river directly facing the Place d'Armes, which is now Jackson square, is covered with the switch tracks of the Southern Pacific and public Belt railroads, and with a part of the large steel warehouse belonging to the board of commissioners of the port of New Orleans.

Supporters of the Louisiana State museum have appealed to the mayor and the various civic organizations to have these sheds and railroad tracks removed at once, inasmuch as the land, clear from the Cabildo to the river itself, was expropriated some time ago to be put in historical and artistic reserve. As all the water front of New Orleans and the east bank of the river belongs to the city and state forever, the completion of the artistic center is sure of accomplishment.

ACCEPTED MANDATE OF FATE

Young English Soldier Proved Himself Worthy When Called to Position of Responsibility.

When Rudyard Kipling's "The Man Who Would Be King" was published it was regarded as an excursion into the improbable, if not the impossible. It was the Anglo-Saxon imagination accepted by the colorful Hindustani civilization.

But the sober chronicles of the war have outdone Kipling. Thorneycroft, a twenty-two-year-old British trooper, found himself stranded in Turkey after Townshend's ill-fated offensive. Nothing daunted, he accepted his predicament as a mandatory of Fate. He proceeded to rule over a territory containing 60 villages and 60,000 people, and he ruled them until relieved by the martial law brought by Allenby's troops. The son of a hotel keeper of Bristol, he proved at the test that he was of imperial fiber.

Truth is stranger than fiction. It always has been and always will be, with Tommy Atkins or his first cousin, the doughboy, as protagonist. Each possesses the comic spirit that means adaptability, no matter what the emergency.

Marshal Joffre a Catalonian.

Possibly with more reason than the seven claimants to the birthplace of Homer, Catalonia makes out a good case for asserting that Marshal Joffre belongs to her by right of birth. The great estopper of the German first offensive is a native of Perpignan, where the Catalonian race predominated in past ages and where today are found many families which still retain Catalonian customs and language. Leading business firms of Catalonia, seeking to establish a tangible claim, have appointed a committee which is to proceed to Paris and present a sword to the great warrior, unless he fulfill a promise made at the peace conference that he will visit Catalonia, in which case the presentation will be made at Barcelona. This, of course, would be the occasion of a great celebration.

Mexicans Hold Strange Beliefs.

Few countries are richer in strange beliefs than Mexico, writes Charles Bernard Nordhoff in the Atlantic Monthly. There the witches assume the eyes of cats and flit through the night on vampire's wings. A brisk business is done in love potions and candle flames still point the way to buried treasure. The Mexican inherits his cruelty to domestic beasts from both the Spaniard and the Indian, and his superstitions may be traced to the same double source.

Eccentricity is not understood in Mexico. The native is a lover of formality, and one is judged largely by external things. Each man dresses according to his station, and it is unthinkable that a well-to-do man should wear a straw sombrero or carry a serape; the peons would be the first to jeer at him.

The Croix de Guerre.

The croix de guerre, corresponding to the military cross of Britain and the iron cross of Germany, will be noticeable henceforth on the breasts of Frenchmen, civilian as well as military, who have been distinguished by being mentioned in the dispatches. It is made of Florentine bronze, about an inch and a half in diameter, with crossed swords between the arms.

"WET" OR "DRY"

Milk is the food of children and old people. Combined with cereals it makes the ideal ration—but if your stomach does not take kindly to milk pour a little hot water over two Shredded Wheat Biscuits, put a small chunk of butter on each Biscuit, allowing it to melt into the shreds. If you like the Biscuit "dry" split it into two halves and crisp them in the oven and eat them with butter—a real whole wheat toast, wholesome and nourishing.

MADE IN CANADA

SUPPER FOR TWO

By WALTER BREWSTER

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I tell you, Cecile," declared her husband, "by going down to that place you are taking chances—running risks which I don't care to have my wife incur, and which you yourself, if they materialized, would find mighty unpleasant."

"Nevertheless, Ned, my dearest, you are not going to forbid your usually obedient little wife her bit of excitement. By-by. I promised to meet Dot after the matinee."

She stepped down from her perch, kissed Ned swiftly on the tip of his nose, and before he could summon further argument, had slipped like a will-o'-the-wisp out of the office door.

Ned remained as she had left him for a moment, his substantial brow furrowed and his pleasant eyes a trifle worried. Cecile was the dearest person in the world, but would she never settle down?

There was this business of trotting down to the grill room of the Alden house for tea after the theater, a proper enough thing to do on ordinary occasions. But Cecile, led on by her friend Dot, in whose good sense he had less confidence than in his wife's, had fallen into the habit of going there on days when some big musical comedy was billed at the local theater.

Now Alden was a college town, and among the many students attending the university there were, of course, some who felt called upon to mingle more or less with the minor stage celebrities. To that end it was customary after the first performance for the girls to congregate casually in the lobby of the Alden house and await those of the students, and incidentally of the younger men about town, who were desirous of making dates for dinners and the like.

As Cecile had reiterated times without number, her presence and Dot's was perfectly innocent. They were not "made up," their attire was "quiet," and they viewed proceedings from a secluded corner of the balcony.

Well, Cecile had not respected his wishes. Ned put his wife resolutely out of his mind, switched on the light, and settled down to work.

Then, for the second time that afternoon, he was interrupted. "Well—well—well," sang out a hearty voice. "It's a dog's age since I saw you."

His business forgotten, he settled down to a comfortable, reminiscing talk with this old friend he had not seen since his marriage.

"I wanted to meet your wife," said Jim, "but I have to leave town at eight."

Suddenly, like a man inspired, Ned leaned forward and put his hand on Jim's arm. "Say, old man, you're the best friend I've got. Help me teach my wife a lesson, will you?"

Ned ignored his friend's hesitation and outlined the circumstances, also his scheme. "Just enough to give her a hint what the real thing would be like—then bring her home with you and we'll make out some sort of a feed."

"Well," said Jim, "I suppose I can, under compulsion, walk up to a strange woman and ask her and her companion to have supper with me; but how the deuce will I know her, and how the devil, afterward, will I be able to persuade her that it was all a put-up job?"

"Oh, that's easy," said Ned. "I'll scribble a n[illegible] explaining, which you can give her when you think the joke has gone far enough. As for knowing her—you won't have a bit of trouble. She'll be the prettiest woman there—and she carries a green parasol."

Meanwhile, Cecile wended her way slowly down to the place of meeting with Dot—the drug store near the Alden house. But after many minutes of waiting, no Dot arrived. At last she decided to go over to the hotel and see if Dot was there.

But in the lobby, filled with little groups of stars from "Linda, Look Out," there was no sign of her friend. Spying a telephone booth across the hall, Cecile concluded to telephone and find out if possible if Dot had left home or had mistaken the day.

As she approached the door her way was barred by a not unprepossessing youth, a bit older than the average run of men about the room. "I beg your pardon," he said, politely, in a voice that was slightly unsteady, the cause for which Cecile, inexperienced as she was, did not fail to trace, "but I am looking for someone to eat supper with. May I have the pleasure?"

Cecile shrank back. "Oh, I—I don't belong to the—crowd—I couldn't think of such a thing. Thank you, but—" She made an effort to pass him, but he would have none of it.

"Come, now," he said coaxingly. "A nice little supper for two—chicken en casserole, glaced sweet potatoes—oh, you haven't the heart to refuse."

What could she do? Glancing about her, she thought quickly. She must temporize—and telephone Ned. Yes, it would be humiliating, but hang humiliation, if it got her out of this scrape.

She turned toward her persecutor. "I—I don't know. But first I must telephone—a friend about some—some arrangements." He looked at her without suspicion, as one might to whom it did not occur that to dine with him would be anything but most agreeable.

"All right," he said. "I'll wait, and see you don't run away."

Cecile escaped into the booth, and, trembling, took down the receiver. With relief, as she dropped in the nickel, she heard her husband's voice. She spoke low—her face turned from the door.

"Ned—come right down to the hotel. Dot didn't show up. A man is annoying me—asked me to take supper with him. He's waiting outside. Hurry up!"

"What!"

"There's no great hurry?"

"Great heavens—Ned!"

"You're not coming?"

"Ned, Ned!"

But central had shut her off.

Ned hung up the receiver with a sheepish grin. He hated playing jokes on such a darling as Cecile. But if it did her good he would forgive himself. Turning out the light, he locked up his desk and went home.

The first thing to greet him as he opened the front door and stepped into the darkened hall was the insistent ring of the telephone. Could it be Cecile again?

"Hello, hello!"

"Jim?"

"When are you two coming home?"

"You didn't find her?"

"Are you joking?"

"Good God!"

The receiver fell from his hand and mechanically he hooked it up. What had he done to his wife? He made a rush for the door. As he fumbled with trembling hands at the catch a car drew up outside. And as he opened the door a slender figure threw itself into his arms.

"You were right—you were right—and I'll never go there again. But, oh, I'll never, never forgive you for not coming!"

"Wait," said her husband, "how did you get away?"

Cecile was tight in his arms, so tight he could feel her heart beating. "When I came out of the booth he took my arm and started toward the dining room. I let him think I was coming, but as we came into the lobby opposite the entrance I jerked away, dodged through the crowd, rushed out and caught a taxi, and here I am! But why—"

"I'll tell you all about it before my old friend Jim gets here for supper. But first—give your idiotic husband one more kiss so that he'll know he's got you safe and sound!"

The Man-Faced Crab.

One of the most singular-looking creatures that ever walked the earth or "swam the waters under the earth" is the world-famous man-faced crab of Japan. Its body is scarcely an inch in length, yet the head is filled with a face which is the counterpart of a Chinese coolie—a veritable missing link,—with eyes, nose, and mouth all clearly defined. This curious and uncanny creature, besides the great likeness it bears to a human being in the face, is provided with two legs, which seem to grow from the top of its head and hang down over the sides of its face. Besides these legs, two feelers, each about an inch in length, grow from the chin of the animal, looking for all the world like a forked beard. These man-faced crabs swarm in the inland seas of Japan.

CLING TO BELIEFS

Few People Today Are Without Pet Superstitions.

Although Not Carried to Extremes That Have Marred the Pages of History in the Past, They Are Still With Us.

We constantly hear it said that "this is the twentieth century; superstition and all that sort of thing died out long ago." Yet there is hardly a person in the country without his pet belief—that misfortune follows stooping over a baby or spilling salt, or that a black cat brings good luck, for example. Hence, too, the universal practice of wearing mascots "for luck."

These, however, are not very serious beliefs, being merely personal fads. Superstition of a deeper rooted and more unpleasant type is still common in the more backward rural areas, however. Only a few weeks ago an old dame in the Fen country was boycotted by the whole countryside because she had the reputation of being a witch and of throwing spells over people's children, stock and crops. No one would go near her or let her have food or clothing, and she nearly starved to death.

The cold, legal atmosphere of the courts would be thought unfavorable to belief in witchcraft, and yet a farmer—by no means an ignorant man—stood up the other day in Norfolk court and informed the bench that someone had bewitched his cows. He cured the evil spell by thrusting a red hot poker into his churn, when the evil spirit vanished in a bright flame.

Years ago any old crone who was cross grained with the neighbors stood a good chance of being tried (and burnt) for witchcraft, and cases are even known where animals were solemnly brought into court and tried on a similar charge.

A tough old cock at Basle, in Switzerland, was accused of laying eggs—a most serious offense, as such eggs were used only for making witches' ointment. The unhappy bird was haled before the justices, and one of the eggs produced as proof of guilt. In the face of such evidence the rooster's case was hopeless. He was convicted and he and his miraculous eggs solen[illegible] burnt at the stake in the town square.

A sow and six young pigs were accused of witchcraft towards a child, and were brought, protesting loudly before the "beak." Amid great sensation, the sow was found guilty and publicly executed, but the porkers were acquitted on the ground of extreme youth. As late as 1740, a cow was accused of possessing a "devil," and after a long hearing, was found guilty and condemned to death. "Rats and mice and such small deer," have been summoned on numerous occasions, but almost invariably failed to put in an appearance at court.

In the fifteenth century, the peasants of a village in the south of France took legal proceedings against a plague of locusts which trespassed on their fields and devoured their crops. As the case was still being fought nearly half a century later, the modern gardener can sympathize with the unlucky plaintiffs, but would probably prefer the more up-to-date application of lime or mustard.

Another action was brought against a pest of leeches swarming in the ponds and streams of another country district of France. The judge issued a decree against the leeches trespassing further on the disputed territories, but history is silent as to whether the injunction was obeyed or ignored, with resultant punishment for contempt of court.

Animals have even been admitted as witnesses in the courts. It used to be considered no offense to kill a burglar trying to break into a house. There arose the difficulty that one man living alone might ask another to his house, and then murder him, pretending that he was a robber. To get over this, it was decided that any domestic animal, such as a cat or a dog, present at the time might bear witness. If the animal on being questioned, satisfied the court that his master had acted in good faith, the killing was held to be justified. There are not many instances of acquittal.

Old Boys Made Belleville Famous

Belleville's Old Boys' Reunion was such a success that its fame was heralded far and wide. Among the interesting letters received by Secretary Johnson since the close of the festivities is the following:

Public Archives of Canada
Goderich, Aug. 3rd, 1920.

Arthur Johnson, Esq.,
Secty of Old Boys' Reunion,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—

I was interested in an item in the Toronto press recording the success of your Old Boys' Reunion and in accordance with my custom in my work of gathering historical material for this department, I take the liberty of writing you to ask if you will kindly send me copies of any souvenir publications which may have been issued in connection with the celebration. Usually there is literature of this character in such celebrations, and it is likely to contain statements and facts not otherwise found in publications; copies are always desirable for our library.

I notice in the account that this is the third Reunion your city has held, and I would be delighted if copies of anything in connection with the other celebrations can be had now and sent us. I know from experience in my work how such literature soon becomes scarce and hard to find, but perhaps you can oblige us with something more than relates simply to the present gathering.

I have been trying for over a year to get to Belleville for a few days' search of historic material, but may not get there before some time in September, and therefore do not delay my enquiry while the pleasant memories of this last celebration are still with you.

Trusting you can assist us in this way, and with congratulations for the success of your Reunion.

Respectfully,
JAS. MITCHELL,
Asst. Archivist for Ontario.

Presentation Made To Mr Kinkade

A very pleasing event took place Thursday afternoon at the Judge-Jones Milling Co. plant when Mr. Wm. Kinkade was presented with a handsome black leather rocker accompanied by an address of appreciation read by Mr. A. McGowan. Mr. Kinkade is leaving on account of his health and returning to Stratford. Taken completely by surprise Mr. Kinkade was much gratified by the thoughtfulness of his fellow workers and this striking evidence of friendship, expressing his appreciation in suitable terms. The address was as follows:

Belleville, Ont., Aug. 5, 1920

Mr. Kinkade:—

We, the under-mentioned hope you will accept this small present as a token of our esteem and appreciation of your worthiness and kindliness while working amongst us at The Judge-Jones Milling Company.

With this present we convey our sincere good wishes for your future and trust that success will attend all your efforts.

With our kindest regards to Mrs. Kinkade and family.

Mr. Jones, H. Hewson, F. G. Chamberlain, R. T. Philbin, E. J. S. Wallork, L. Amo, J. Burd, E. Sherry, R. Haim, T. Thorn, E Turner, E. Masters, A. McGowan, E. Dulmage, C. Lloyd, C. Wood C. Healy, J. Hart, H. Young, J. C. Mott, A. Everett, C. Brown, T. Eagle.

Called By Death

ROBERT S. LEFTLY

Mr. Robert S. Leftly who resided at 4 Holden street, city, passed away last evening after being in ill health for some time. Deceased was in his 90th year and was born in England. For a number of years Mr. Leftly had been a resident of the city where he was favorably known and had many friends. He was a faithful member of the Baptist Church. An aged widow survives but no family. Mrs. J. Cornell, residing on McDonald Avenue is a sister of deceased.

EMMA J. McKINNON

At the Belleville hospital today Mrs. Emma Jane McKinnon, wife of Mr. John McKinnon and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beaumont, 76 Cedar street, passed away after an illness of some duration. Deceased was 26 years of age and was born in Belleville where she had resided all her life. Mrs. McKinnon was a member of St. Andrew's church and a lady who was admired by all who knew her. In addition to the husband and parents, two brothers and three sisters survive. The brothers are Firth, of Oshawa and John of Belleville and the sitsers are Ruth, Amy and Hazel.

BIRTH

PIGDEN—In Belleville General Hospital, on August 4th, 1920, to Mr. and Mrs. James Pigden, a daughter, Audrey May, 1td,1tw

W. H. BRANDES, of Des Moines, Iowa, who declares he gained twenty pounds in thirty days after taking Tanlac and now feels like a different man,

"Thirty days ago or a little more, I only weighed 125 pounds, but now I balance the scales at 145 pounds, and Tanlac did it," declared W. H. Brandes, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. Brandes has been looking after the plumbing work of the Des Moines Public Schools for the past nineteen years.

"And many of the teachers and scholars can tell you how different I look since I began taking Tanlac," he said. "I suffered from indigestion of the worst kind for the past year or more and was often so weak and dizzy I couldn't stand up, let alone walk. Nothing helped me. I finally had to take my bed and stay there for several weeks. Finally a friend persuaded me to try Tanlac and I have never seen or heard of anything to equal it. It relieved me entirely of indigestion and put me right on my feet. I have not only gained twenty pounds in weight, but I feel like a new man in every way. I just think Tanlac is the finest thing ever sold in a drug store."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by leading druggists in all other town.

County Assessment Is Equalized

At the County Council session yester day afternoon, the chief business transacted was the repealing of Bylaw No. 818 passed at the June session relative to the equalization and the passing of a new Bylaw No. 819, fixing the equalization for 1921.

Mr. N. Vermilyea, Reeve of Thurlow Township and Warden Sills, Deputy Reeve of the Township vigorously opposed an increase of upwards of $500,000 to the equalization of that Township, but it was added.

Mr. Walsh, Reeve of Tyendinaga Township was made a member of the special committee to deal with the matter of equalization and report at the December session.

The bylaw as passed yesterday fixes the equalization of the various municipalities as follows:

That the Assessment for each Local Municipality within the County of Hastings shall be and is hereby equalized for the purpose of the different County Rates for the year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twent-One, as hereinafter stated, that is to say:—

Townships
Sidney at	$ 2,814,500
Thurlow at..	3,358,000
Tyendinaga at..	1,775,000
Rawdon at	1,926,000
Huntingdon at.	1,126,500
Hungerford at	1,800,000
Madoc at	1,250,000
Wollaston at	70,000
Limerick at	45,000
Faraday at	65,000
Dungannon at	65,000
Mayo at	45,000
Carlow at	75,000
Municipalities
Marmora and Lake at ..	540,000
Elzevir and Grimsthorpe at	280,000
Tudor and Cashel at	75,000
Monteagle and Herschel at	120,000
Bangor, Wicklow and McClure at	85,000
Towns
Deseronto at	600,000
Villages
Stirling at	325,000
Madoc at	370,000
Tweed at	488,000
Marmora at	260,000
Bancroft at	117,000
Deloro at	760,000
	$17,835,000

That in case an appeal is made against this Equalization, or against any part thereof, this Council is willing that the same be referred to the County Judge of Hastings for adjudication alone.

That this by-law shall come into force and have effect after twenty days from the final passing thereof, if no appeal is made within the time imited for an appeal.

Shooting In Chesley.

CHESLEY, Aug. 3.—Bert Cavill, a drayman, was probably fatally shot by Joslin Green, an employe of the bedstead factory here, about nine o'clock Thursday morning. Four shots were fired, two of which took effect, one entering the mouth, carrying away a couple of teeth and lodging in the back of the neck, the other piercing the lungs and lodging in the spinal column. The affray resulted from a dispute over the removal of a piano, on which there was a lien, from Green's house, Latest reports state that there is no hope for the victim's recovery. Green has been committed to the Walkerton Jail on a charge of shooting with intent.

On Wednesday night, acting under the instructions of the holders of the lien, Cavill removed a piano from Green's house, and left two planks on the latter's lawn. He returned the next morning for the planks and was met by Green, who wanted to know when he had bought the house. An argument ensued, in which Green, who is a large man, threatened to attack Cavill, who is of very slight build. Cavill threatened to have Green arrested, whereupon the latter whipped out a revolver from his hip pocket and fired four shots in rapid succession. Two were misses, but the others found their mark.

Dr. H. A. Sinclair was called to Chesley to operate, but little hope is held out for Cavill's recovery. Green was taken before Magistrate Bell, who committed him to Walkerton Jail. When arrested, Green stated that the shots had been fired in self-defence.

Flowers seem so highly specialized that one does not associate them with the vegetative or growing part of the plant. Yet there is no doubt that blossoms have had a leafy origin, even through this is not always very obvious. A strange case of a flower breaking away into a shoot is recorded. A rose bush growing in a garden in Natal, South Africa, was responsible for the curiosity. The bud, instead of expanding into a flower, sent up a stalk, at the end of which was borne a rose that was finely developed.

Curious Pottery.

The use of dried fruits of trees, such as the gourd and the cocoanut, for holding water and liquid substances, is familiar, but it is not so generally known that cups, saucers and jars to take the place of ordinary earthenware are made in the Orient of a glutinous and plastic material entirely of vegetable origin, which is easily moulded and dried.

There is more than one instance in history of vegetable matter being confused with earth and clay. The pulpy parts of various astringent fruits have the peculiar plastic property of clay, and by hardening in pots, they are impervious to water, and have the additional advantage that they can fall to the ground without being broken.

There is a peculiar ware that is made by the Banjaras in the Central Provinces of India from the fruit of the aoula. The fruit is collected and dried. It is then boiled in water until quite soft and pounded, the stones removed and the pulp beaten up and worked with the hands into a thick, brown, sticky mass. When this is quite ready the manufacturer takes an earthen vessel—any shape that pleases him—and covers it all over with a thick layer or coat of the pulp. This is then put aside to set a bit, and when hard rude devices are stamped round the neck and shoulders of the article, which is then set aside to dry. When entirely hard, the gharra inside is broken and the pieces removed. These vegetable pots are sold according to size from four to eight annas each, and are much sought after by the people.

The aoula tree is abundant throughout the forests of tropical India and Burma, and the fruits are frequently employed in medicine and for tanning.

TINSEL IS COSTLY.

Useless tinsel and other things to catch and deceive the purchaser's eye and so telegraph to his or her brain the false impression that the contents of a package are worth the enormous price charged are among the causes for the high cost of living. Would not candy taste as well if sold in a plain box, unadorned with expensive trimmings? But who would pay from $1 to $3 for a pound of candy unless it was properly "dolled up" in accordance with the current conception of what is au fait?

The tinsel habit is not confined to this country, as the following recent letter from a Paris correspondent clearly indicates:

"I bought for a friend a truffle Strassburg sausage at a famous charcuterie near the Madeleine. It was cross-gartered from end to end, like Malvolio's stockings, with red, white and blue ribbons. It was a really handsome sausage and cost me $17. As there was none more plainly trimmed I had to take it. When I met the lady for whom I had bought this object d'art she said, "The sausage was excellent, but why do you buy foie gras at the milliner's? Do you know there were exactly two and a quarter yards of beautiful Lyons silk ribbon at 4 francs 95 centimes a yard round it?"

"So I gathered that without counting the modiste's wages I had paid at least $2 for the trimmings.

"I told these stories to a Frenchman who is among the founders of the new movement for introducing the simple life among sausages and other articles of domestic use. He invited me to his office, where he showed me a large collection of expensively got up goods—toilet articles, and so forth, which, while intrinsically of small value, had been turned into articles de luxe by clever traders.

"Here was a stick of shaving soap, for example, weighing about two ounces and worth perhaps five cents. It was sheathed in heavy tinfoil, then wrapped in greaseproof paper and folded round with artistic 'advertising matter,' explaining that when you bought somebody's 'savon pour la barbe' you knew you were sure of getting real soap and nothing but soap.

"The shaving stick thus apparelled was placed in an aluminum tube, itself line with thick paper, and to protect, not the soap but the tube, there was an outside covering of tissue. Finally the whole was packed in a neat carton, and to protect that there was another covering of paper. Seven wrappings and a metal case for one poor little scrap of soap! The retail price was nearly a dollar.

"There was also a prettily decorated box containing three tablets of ordinary toilet soap, each tablet in three wrappings, the outermost one a beautiful example of art printing and the box itself lined with lace paper. Price, over $2. There were specimens of the dainty paper sacks in which Parisian candy stores place their wares. Before the war, when candies cost $1 a pound, the bags were given away. Now that the bonbons cost three or four times as much the customer is charged 10 to 40 cents for the bag.

"My friend also had a collection of the picturesque cartons in which the Paris dry goods stores pack nearly everything. At the present price of print and pasteboard some of them cost several francs. The customer does not pay for them separately, but —he pays. There were also quaint and artistic scent flasks, some designed by famous artists, like Lalique. Every time a woman buys a bottle of these perfumes the maker compels her to buy another flask, which accounts for at least half of the $8 charged. He will not sell fashionable perfumes in bulk or in a plain bottle.

"If you want these particular brands, my friend said, "you have to pay for these packings. It is pure waste. In nearly every case paper receptacles could be used, at least for the home trade. But there is mad competition among packers as to who shall produce the most wasteful form of covering. All these things are swelling the cost of living, and they add nothing to the comfort of life. Tin, aluminum and lead are to-day precious metals, every scrap of which is needed for national use, but we waste tons of them to envelope soap and soup. That is why we are starting a crusade, not to eliminate luxury, for France is the home of luxury trades, but to suppress superfluity when it takes the form of tricking out simple things in fancy dress."

Peopling the World.

The present population of the world does not exceed 1,600,000,000. With an even distribution of people, relatively to area and soil productiveness, the planet on which we dwell might support 6,000,000,000.

But the distribution is exceedingly uneven. In India and China there are so many human beings that the failing of crops even slightly below from the normal for a single season means famine, bringing death to multitudes. A prime cause of the age-long turmoil in Europe is overcrowding, which makes frequent wars inevitable.

There is plenty of room in Africa and South America, when the conquest of the tropics (mainly a matter of disease elimination) shall have been accomplished. The latter continent—to-day relatively vacant territory for the most part—especially invites population, because, save in the far south, it is so bounteously watered.

The United States might maintain 2,000,000,000 inhabitants if it had an adequate rainfall, but a deficiency in that respect makes it impossible for that country ever to support more than 1,000,000,000. Water is the prime human requisite, all food production depending upon it, and for this reason the steady and fairly rapid spread of deserts on every continent gives good cause for anxiety.

Polish Resistance Stiffens Making Counter-Attacks

BETTER REPORTS RECEIVED FROM RUSSIAN WAR ZONE—ADVANCE OF REDS SLOWED UP AND STOPPED IN SOME PLACES—COUNTER ATTACKS BY POLES DRIVE THE ENEMY BACK.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Russian Bolshevik armies hammering the Polish lines northeast and east of Warsaw seem to have encountered stern resistance. With the exception of the area around Brest-Litovsk, east of the Polish capital, no new advances by the Soviet troops have been reported, and even there they have been limited by the desperate fighting of the Poles.

Polish forces have been forced to retire from Terespol, about four miles west of Brest-Litovsk and have lost Muramiec, five miles to the south. It is probable, however, that any further advance of the Soviet forces in this region will be slow.

Along the Bug River, northwest of Brest-Litovsk, the Poles have launched vigorous counter attacks and have succeeded in driving back across the river detachments which had succeeded in reaching the left bank of the stream.

In the southern sectors of the front fighting of a serious nature is going on and the Poles seem to be gaining ground at some places.

BATTLES IN CRIMEA.

Bolshevik forces have begun an offensive against General Wrangel, anti-Bolshevik leader in southern Russia, who in his recent campaign advanced some distance northward from his base in the Crimea.

In Friday's official statement from Moscow the capture by the Russians of Alexanderov is claimed, with further advances by the Soviet troops. The statement reads: "In the Crimea sector in the region of Alexanderov, our troops having assumed the offensive, occupied the town of Alexanderov, crossed the River Konskaya, and are continuing to advance.

5 Killed, 50 Injured In Denver Strike Riots

MILITARY NOW IN CONTROL OF THE CITY — STREET CAR UNION LEADERS TO CALL OFF STRIKE AFTER SERIOUS RIOTING RESULTING IN MANY CASUALTIES.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 7.—Two hundred soldiers arrived early today from Fort Logan just as the leaders of the Tramwaymen's union voted to recommend calling off the strike of the street car men, following two days of violence resulting in the death of three men and the wounding of a dozen persons last night.

Rioting of last night brought the number of casualties to five dead and fifty known to be injured.

Denver was placed under military control early this morn in a proclamation issued by Mayor Bailey, after a conference with Col. Ballou, of Fort Logan and State officials.

Premeir Meighen At Porter's Picnic

First Political Address of Premier Will Be Delivered August 11

The widespread interest being taken in Premier Meighen's appearance at Porter's Picnic is indicated by the following from the Montreal Gazette:

"The picnic in West Hatsings County, represented in Parliament by Guss Porter, at which Hon. Arthur Meighen on August 11, will deliver his first address dealing with political subjects since becoming prime minister will be held at the town of Stirling, sixteen miles from Belleville. Posters announcing the event received, indicate that the gathering will be of mammoth proportions.

"The speech making will take place in the afternoon, and in addition to the Prime Minister, Brig.-General A. E. Ross, of Kingston and members representing all adjacent constituencies who support the Government will be heard."

DEMAND THAT PAPER RETRACT STATEMENT

Brockville, Aug. 6—Owing to the unsettled condition of the exchange market, which exerts a depressing effect on the sale of cheese, the buyers and salesmen at the meeting of the Brockville Dairymen's Board of Trade held yesterday, decided to adjourn the meeting without a call for bids being made. Before the adjournment considerable business of importance was transacted.

At the meeting last week the attention of the members was called by J. B. Wilson, Secretary-Treasurer, to an article appearing in Farm and Dairy, which reflected against the local organization. A committee composed of George E. Smart, J. B. Wilson and R. G. Leggett, was appointed to take the matter up, and acting on the instructions of the organization's solicitors, will forward to the Rural Publishing Company, Peterborough, a demand that Farm and Dairy retract its statement that salesmen of certain factories, called "regulars," that do not sell their cheese on the board, "are given by the buyers of their product a slight advance over the board price as a private rake-off, as an inducement for them to sell to the same buyers each week."

The offerings totalled 3,000 on the streets; no business was transacted, the goods going forward to Montreal cold storage to await developments.

UNIFORM FIRE CALL ON PHONE ADVOCATED

St. Thomas, Aug. 6.—The Dominion Fire Chiefs' Association, in convention here, gave the day over almost entirely to the hearing of addresses and festivities, the city tendering a giant reception in Pinafore Park this afternoon, followed by a carnival, dance and musicale in the park pavilion in the evening. The principal speaker at the morning session of the convention was J. Grove Smith, Dominion Fire Commissioner, who took as his subject "Fire Prevention," in the course of which he made a strong appeal for the proposed establishment of a Dominion Fire Chief's Training College at Ottawa or some other central point.

The decision of the association on this matter was left over until tomorrow afternoon, when the report of a special investigating committee will be submitted.

Uniform Fire Phone Call 100.

The suggestion advanced by Chief James Smart of Calgary, for the adoption of a universal telephone number for fire call purposes was unanimously approved by the convention, and a resolution was passed requesting the Dominion Railway Commissioners to deal with the matter and obtain the necessary legislation. The number 100 was selected by the convention as the most desirable.

Who Knows George Wellington?

Identity of Man Killed By Train Still Remains Unknown

"We, the jurors empanelled to enquire where, when and by what means an unknown man came to his death find:

"That he came to his death on July 22nd, 1920, by being struck by train No. 20 of the G.T.R. near Marysille in the Township of Tyendinaga, Hastings County."

"From evidence and documents produced we believe the body to be that of one George Wellington.

"We find no blame can be attached to the G.T.R. or any of its employes."

Such was the verdict rendered last night by the jurymen on the inquest of the body of a man who was killed some days ago near the city. Dr. Boyce coroner, stated at the opening of the enquiry that every effort had been made to ascertain who the man was. It was learned that one George Wellington had shipped a parcel in January last froma place in California to George Wellington at Los Angeles, California A letter had also been received from the law firm of Smith, Roy and Greer of Toronto that some time ago a George Wellington had asked that firm to collect a claim for wages against Mr. George Orr of Clarkson, Ont. Two pay cheque envelopes found on the body of deceased bore the name of George Wellington, but there was no evidence as to the home of the deceased.

The Evidence

Nelson A. Patterson testified that he was a G.T.R. engineer. Witness was on an engine east bound when about three miles west of Marysville about 4.15 a.m. on July 22nd passed another train which left a trail of smoke. Immediately in front of the engine he saw through the headlight a figure of a man, but was not sure. He stopped the train and told the fireman to report to the conductor that a man had been sruck. The body was in the grass about 4 feet from the track. The victim was instantly killed. At Napanee the affair was officially reported.

Thomas Norton testified that he was fireman on the engine driven by Mr. Patterson and he corroborated the evidence given by Mr. Patterson.

Robert Dickson testified that he was a conductor on train No. 20 of which Mr. Patterson was engineer and witness remembered the morning an unknown man was killed near Marysville. Witness took some papers out of the pocket of the deceased and they bore the name of George Wellington. They were pay cheque envelopes.

Leo Layeaux testified that he was on train No. 20 when the accident occurred and a man was killed.

This concluded the evidence and the jury retired and brought in their verdict.

Mr. Carnew, County Attorney, represented the Crown and Mr. T. W. R. McCrea of the G.T.R. legal department at Montreal was present in the interests of the Company.

TRIED TO WRECK TRAIN NEAR SCENE OF ROBBERY

Fernie, B.C., August 6.—An attempt to wreck a Canadian Pacific Railway train near Sentinel, Alta., a short distance from the scene of last Monday's hold-up of passenger train No. 63, was frustrated Wednesday night when the engineer of a freight saw the steel rail obstruction in time to stop the train. It is thought here that it was intended for eastbound passenger train No. 68.

No trace of the bandits who robbed train No. 63 last Monday had been found. Posses of mounted police have penetrated into the flathead wilds, where they will be out of communicaion for a week.

Order Cable Ship From U.S. Waters

Result of U. S. Opposition to Landing of Cable by Western Union

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 7.—British Consul A. H. Hubbard received orders from British Ambassador Geddes to board the British cable ship Colonia, when she arrives here and take her out of American waters.

Repeated efforts to get in touch with the Colonia by wireless have failed, it was reported today. Admiral Benton C. Decker, in charge of the United States destroyers here to prevent landing of the cable ship, has placed destroyer No. 155 at Consul Hubbard's convenience to carry him to the Colonia as she nears this point.

To Give Up Charter

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The master of the British cable ship Colonia has received instructions from the British Embassy here not to attempt to lay the cable of the Western Union Telegraph Company to Miami, it was announced here.

The British vessel will lease Miami immediately and give up the charter from the Western Union Company for laying the cable, embassy officials said.

Is Not Defiant

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The Western Union is not defiant in the controversy over laying a cable on the coast of Florida, George Atkins, first vice-president said today. "We are not attempting anything unloyal or defiant," he said. "At the proper time the public will be fully informed of the real facts.

Sir Gilbert Parker On Canadian Navy

MONTREAL, Aug. 7.—One of the largest gatherings in the history of the Canadian Club of oMntreal was at the Windsor Hotel at a complimentary luncheon in honor of the Imperial Press delegates. Mr. Henri Lanctot presided, and in a charming speech of welcome referred to the distinctive character of the City of Montreal with its union of French and English races. He spoke of the good feeling existing between these two races and of the conviction of all that each was a source of strength to the other in building up a greater Canada.

The speakers for the delegates were Sir Gilbert Parker and Lord Burnham. Sir Gilbert remarked that he had always been a lover and champion of the French-Canadians and his books proved that. He dwelt at some length on the past history and future prospects of Canada. The Dominion, he believed was content to be a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Neither French nor English-speaking Canadians wanted a republican form of government, nor did they want a constitution similar to that of the United States. The British constitution was Canadians, he was sure, wanted no better.

British constitution was the finest and freest in the world and Canadians, he was usre, wanted no better.

He touched on the freedom Canada enjoyed in all matters touching Canada's welfare, and dealing with the advantages of partnership with Great Britain, said the latter had spent £500 000,000 on Canada since 1749. Furthermore the British national debt was due to the money spent on the British navy to ensure the freedom of the seas. He did not believe, he said, that the independent navies of the Dominions would last and suggested that if Canada and the other Dominions had a cabinet minister without portfolio as a member of the British government the problem of the relationship of Great Britain and the Dominions would be solved.

Conditions Were Better

Lord Burnham said that conditions in England were better than some had feared and worse than some had hoped. The people had not yet got back their will to work, but they were progressing and he was convinced that if Great Britain and the Dominions marched forward arm-in-arm all would be well. George Elliott said that if you wanted roses you must plant roses and as far as the British newspapermen present were concerned they intended to plant roses around the name of Canada wherever the opportunity occurred. He thanked those present for the hearty welcome that was given.

Cable Rates At Penny A Word

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Aug. 7.—Immediate action by the Empire Press Union looking to the establishment of quicker and cheaper transmission of news throughout the British Empire is called for in a resolution unanimously adopted by the Imperial Press Conference in session here today. The resolution originally proposed by Robert Donald, Chairman of the Empire Press Union, was carried over from yesterday and re-drafted to include suggestions from practically every item in the agenda. The resolution urges the Government to use their influences to increase cable facilities and reduce cable rates for news messages. It definitely endorses the principal of universal cable rate of one penny a word within the British Empire. Solutions opposing control or influence of newspapers by any other than newspapermen was carried unanimously after a discussion in which censorships were severely criticized.

Long A Cripple Cured By Faith

Mrs. George W. Lewis-Watts Made Recovery Through Hickson Agency

TORONTO, Aug. 7.—"I had absolute faith from the first that I would get well. Nothing is impossible if we believe."

This was the statement made by Mrs. George W. Lewis-Watts, 43 Patriia road, who, according to her own calim, experienced a marvelous cure at the "laying on of hands," by Mr. J. M. Hickson at St. James' Cathedral here on June 24th. Mrs Lewis-Watts declares that from November ,1917, up to the day she visited the Cathedral, she was a cripple, unable to move around without the aid of crutches and that today she is firm in limb and body and shows no trace of her former incapacity.

The following is Mrs. Lewis-Watts' verbatim account of her experience: "Following the birth of our third child, (Aubrey), now two years and seven months old, I deveopled phlebitis, which later developed into rheumatoid arthritis of the right knee. That was in November, 1917.

Always in Pain

"From that time on, I did not spend half an hour without pain, until I went to the Cathedral. I was in bed until March, 1918, from the effect of the first illness. From March, 1918 until July 1919, rheumatoid arthritis set in, because I was struggling around trying to do the household duties. From last July until February, 1920, I had crutches. Last February, I was determined to get along as bets I could without their aid. I took a walking stick and a splint was fastened to my right leg. All this time I suffered continuous pain. It was absolutely impossible to bend my right knee. This condition was seemingly permanent as far as I knew, until I went to Rev. Baynes-Reid, the first evening we saw the notice of Mr. Hickson's intended visit. We had been praying all along that I would get well. I had absolute faith from the first.

Able to Kneel

"We got a ticket from the Rev. Baynes-Reed. On June 24, removing the splint, I went down to the Cathedral in an automobile and when my turn came I was assisted up the steps to the chancel by one of the clergy. When Mr. Hickson came along I knelt for the first time in two years and seven months. There was no use of my asking God to let me kneel, if I was afraid to kneel. I never experienced such a soothing feeling in all my life as Mr. Hickson put his hand on my head and prayed for 'this dear woman.' I felt a tingling sensation all over my body, even to my finger tips. Since that time I have only had three headaches, a daily occurence before."

Mrs. Lewis-Watts, her husband and two pretty children live at 43 Patricia road. She was born in the Hampton Court district of London and is still in her twenties. Her family has always been strongly devoted to the Anglican church.

Prime Minister Will Meet Citizens Of District

PERSONAL RECEPTION ARRANGED AT PREMIER'S REQUEST—ESPECIALLY ANXIOUS TO MEET LADIES AND CHILDREN OF HISTORIC CONSTITUENCY WHICH GAVE A PREMIER TO CANADA.

Pursuant to the wish expressed by Canada's new Prime Minister to meet personally as many of the residents of this district as he possibly can, on his first public appearance in Ontario since assuming office, the committee in charge of Porter's Second Annual Picnic have arranged for a public reception at the Agricultural Grounds, Stirling, immediately following the conclusion of the grand parade. From 1.30 p.m. to 2.30 p.m., when speaking begins, an opportunity is available for meeting Canada's leading citizen.

The Premier, in writing Mr. Porter, expressed himself as especially desirous of meeting the ladies of the county and the children. The Stirling committee are erecting a large marquee tent near the speakers' stand and this will be used for reception purposes. Without doubt the Prime Minister will spend a very busy hour and hundreds will leave Stirling glad indeed at having had the opportunity of grasping the hand of Canada's new Premier.

Canada Behind League Of Nations

Will Strive to Make It Success, Premier Tells Press Delegates at Banquet

OTTAWA, Aug. 7.—Canada intends to do her full part in making the League of Nations succeed, Hon. Arthur Meighen assured the delegates to the Imperial Press Conference at the banquet given in their honor by the Government of Canada. "One thing is certain," the Prime Minister declared, "there are things to be done before we have any chance for real peace that the League of Nations may be able to do, and that no other institution in the world can by any possibility perform. If the League of Nations should fail, there is a dark outlook for humanity." Mr. Meighen declared that Canada's only aspiration was equality of nationhood within the British Commonwealth. He made it clear that no contraction of the Dominion's autonomus rights could be suffered, but was equally emphatic that on development of self government and no problem of the sharing of responsibilities could ever be allowed to menace the integrity of the Empire.

"Imperialism rightly understood," he observed, "is built upon nationalism rightly understood." The Prime Minister offered some advice to the newspaper man whose motto he said should be "Tell the truth and the whole truth." He proposed the toast to the guests and Viscount Burnham replied. He recognized the national status of Canada in the great "co-operative commonwealth," of the British Empire and bespoke co-operation between the Governments of the Empire and the newspaper press. G. E. Fairfax of Sydney, Australia, eloquently proposed the toast to Canada and the Canadian people, to which Sir George Foster replied. Sir Patrick McGrath, of Newfoundland, proposed the health of the Governor-General, who, he asserted, had well maintained the traditions of his office and of the distinguished Cavendish family. The Duke of Devonshire, in replying, advised the visitors to Canada to reflect upon what had been accomplished by the Fathers of Confederation and upon the debt of gratitude which the Dominion and the Empire owed to them.

$2000 Liquor Fine May Be Common

Drastic Instructions to Magistrates to Prevent Infractions

TORONTO, Aug. 7.—Police Magistrate George Dennison had a oing conference with Hon. W. E. Raney at the Parliament Buildings. It is understood that instructions for a more drastic interpretation and execution of the Ontario Temperance Act formed the subject of the conversation.

Afterwards it was stated that attention was drawn to the fact that the Act provided for a fine up to $2,000 and that imprisonment could also be added to this. A $2,000 fine is a rarity in the vicinity of Toronto, but may become fairly common in the course of a short time.

In connection with this, Attorney General W. E. Raney sent out a letter to all maistraes of he province yeserto magistrates of the province yesterthat many minimum fines of $200 have been imposed, and that the $2,000 fine has been imposed for the sale of scores of cases of liquor.

"The object of prosecutions under the Ontario Temperance Act is not revenue, but prevention," says the letter in remarking that the high and low license fee. This is regarded as calculated to bring the magistrates and administration of justice into public contempt and derision. Attention is then called to the Act of the last session, under which magiarates are given power to order imprisonment for first violations of the Act and urging the magistrate to exercise this direction. Replies and suggestions for better enforcement of the law are asked from the magistrates.

WILL REQUIRE 15 PER CENT. FOR CANADIAN PAPERS

Hamilton, Aug. 6.—Premier Drury assured a deputation representing the Ontario and Quebec Conference, International Typographical Union, that in future all contracts for the sale of pulpwood limits a clause would be inserted guaranteeing 15 per cent. of the output to Canadian newspaper publishers.

THE ISLANDS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE

Leaving the waters of the Lower Bay, and directing our course westward, we find the Bay comparatively free from islands. Here and there, all along its course, may be seen small islands, close to the shore. Those received names, as a general thing, after the person who owned the adjacent land. There are, however, a few more islands which need special notice.

Upon an old map of Fredericksburgh, dated 1784, is to be seen in Hay Bay three islands—one near the north shore at its eastern extremity is called Hare Island. To the south near the eastern shore are the other two; the north one is called Nut Island; the more southern one is called Wappoose Island. This island, from its name, must have been the residence of the principal chief of some Indian tribe, probably the Kente Indians. Here must have been a place of considerable importance to the Indian—a rendezvous, whereat they met, and whereat the chief held his simple but dignified court.

Opposite the Mohawk Church, in the Indian Village, just off Grassy Point, of Sophiasburg, is a low island, containing fourteen acres. This island originally belonged to the Mississaugas, as did most of the islands in the Bay, until a comparatively recent date. John Cuthbertson, a grandson of Capt. John, purchased the island from John Sunday and other Mississauga chiefs. The price paid was a cow and a yoke of steers. A quit claim deed was received by Mr. Cuthbertson, which is yet to be seen. This bargain led to some trouble with the Government, who held that the Mississaugas had no right to sell the land except to the Government. However, finally, the receipt held by Cuthbertson was allowed to be a legal document. This island is now known as Capt. John's Island.

There are three small islands in Mohawk Bay, the largest of which is called Hungar Island. It is situated a short distance from the mouth, near the north shore, and contains about seven acres of land.

DEWART DISTRUSTS U. F. O. DOCTRINES

Killaloe, Aug. 6.—H. H. Dewart, Ontario Liberal leader, dealt in some plain speaking at the annual picnic here, referring to the Farmer-Labor combination in provincial politics. He said that Hon. Mr. Drury's call for a people's party and Hon. Peter Smith's for the common people's party, with James Simpson's announcement of a National Farmer-Labor party, was exactly what a speaker at the Conservative picnic in Toronto called it—camouflage. The adoption of new names is opposed by J. J. Morrison, who stands for the recall, and who declared, according to Mr. McKee at Walkerton, that any member of the House who feels ashamed of his banner under which he was elected, is invited to come to the front, hand in his resignation and run for a people's party or any other party he likes; but he can rest assured when he does the United Farmers will have a man in opposition to him. Mr. Dewart called attention to some new doctrines preached from the U. F. O. platform, among them that Canadians should buy in the United States, limit child production and, according to Miss McPhail, stand for the plain gospel of greed, stated in one word, and that word spelled m-o-n-e-y.

After referring to the new Government style of travel with family private cars, and the declaration of patronage by Hon. Mr. Mills, Mr. Dewart said the people of Ontario would refuse to have the new lamps for old that these Ministers offered, behind the dust of strange doctrines. Be not tossed to and fro and carried about by every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men and cunning craftiness whereby they lie in wait to deceive. The new names of the new political combination mean nothing more than the duplication of the class idea with which the Government came in.

Middle School Exam. Results

The following list, issued by the Department of Education, contains the names in this district of candidates who have been successful in whole or in part, at the Middle School Examination for entrance to the Normal Schools.

The entry (h) shows that the candidate passed with honors, and the entry (s) indicates that the candidate requires to write a supplemental examination in order to qualify for a Middle School certificate. This he may do at any subsequent examination, when he will be required to obtain 60 per centum on that subject. The name of the subject will be shown on the official statement.

Roblin Boy Was Burned To Death

KINGSTON, Aug. 7—Archie Connell, aged thirteen of Roblin, Lennox County, was so badly burned in his bedroom when he upset a lighted lamp in his dreams that he succumbed to his injuries a short time after his agonized cries had alarmed other members of his family.

The little lad had retired at his usual hour and it is now supposed that he had set a lighted lamp beside his bed by the light of which he read for some time. It is further supposed that he fell asleep before extinguishing the light and that in his dreams he upset the lamp and its oil over his face and body. The other members of his family were alarmed by his screams and they found the child lying near the door of his room, so severely burned about the body that fully one half of the skin had been shrivelled up. His suffering were so intense that he succumbed in a few minutes. In the meantime Dr. Galbraith of Napanee had been summoned and James Reid's ambulance had also been called, it being the intention of the family to rush the boy to the hospital here. Long before the ambulance arrived he had passed away.

The little fellow was a general favorite and the terrible accident has cast a gloom over the entire district. His father and several brothers and sisters reside at Roblin, and deceased was working for Mr. Asselstine of Roblin. He was an industrious lad and he will be missed by a large circle of companions.

MONTREAL JEWELER ROBBED

Montreal, Aug. 6.—When S. Ross Vineberg, diamond and jewelry merchant, of 51 Craig street, went to his place of business this morning he found that burglars had visited his premises during the night and made away with jewelry worth $5,000. All the doors and windows were fitted with burglar alarms, but the burglars made their entrance from a room above by cutting a hole through the ceiling. Two months ago the same place was robbed of $2,000 worth of jewelry. At that time entrance was effected by cutting a hole through the window.

LITTLE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Will Bring to Chautauqua Two Musical Programs of Highest Order.

One of the most worth while developments in the musical world in the past few years has been the increase in the number of instrumental quartets and larger groups. Concert music is taking its place in the hearts of the Canadian audience.

Lieurance's Little Symphony, a group of eight musicians, is one of the modern groups which has contributed so largely to the popularizing of the better class of music. Years ago "symphony" or even "concert" to the average Canadian spelled "boredom." But Lieurance's Little Symphony has proved itself.

Sarah ReQua Vick, contralto, will appear this summer on the program of the Chautauqua with Lieurance's Little Symphony.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE WHIRLWIND"

Patrons of Griffin's found Eugene O'Brien in "His Wife's Money," much to their liking when it was again shown at Griffin's last night before a large audience. The picture is being shown on the double feature program at Griffin's today, matinee and night. "His Wife's Money," has a story which is absorbingly interesting. It sends everyone who sees it out of the theatre wondering what he would have done under the same circumstances. The production is adequate, and Mr. O'Brien and Zeena Keefe as Richard Flint and Marion Phillips, respectively, give splendid performances. The world's greatest daredevil, Charles Hutchison appeared on the same program in his thrill packed picture, "The Whirlwind," and thrilled the audience with his many daredevil feats. The balance of the program consisting of comedy, educational and topical pictures also proved in keeping with the feature offering.

"ALARM CLOCK ANDY"

Charles Ray is again the bashful youth who develops into a world beater in his new screen comedy, "Alarm Clock Andy," which is coming to Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday. This time the star is Andy Gray, shy stuttering salesman for an auto truck concern, anxious to forge ahead in business he strives to overcome his shortcomings by patterning after the firm's star salesman, Blinker, who is really a fourflusher. Andy comes in contact by chance with Dodge, a big buyer of trucks. The latter is impressed with the boy's determination. A lucky accident puts Andy "in soft" with his boss's pretty daughter and he follows her on his vacation to a summer resort. All the time he is masquerading under the name of Blinker, and when he again encounters Dodge and closes a big order with him, complications result thick and fast. Needless to say they are straightened out happily and Blinker meets his due rward. So does Andy. This Paramount Artcraft picture has George Webb, Millicent Fisher and Tom Guise in the supporting cast. "Widows Might" a funny 2-reel smiling Billy Parson comedy, an interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue and the 14th and first from the closing chapter of "The Lost City," serial are also being shown on the same program.

$1,000 WILL BUY EASE FOR LIFE IN TROPICS

Persons possessing $1,000 who like the indolent life in the tropics where Winter is unknown, can spend the remainder of their lives in the Marquesas Islands in the Pacific ocean, where they need only work two hours a day to catch fish and pick bananas and spend the remainder of the day watching the sky-blue sea wash lazily over the golden sands.

The money would be required to pay a second-class passage from one of the Pacific Coast ports, with outfit, and the balance to purchase fertile land at $2 an acre.

The Marquesas are situated in 8 to 11 south and 140 west longitude and are of volcanic origin and mountainous. They are under the French Republic and the commissioner lives at Taichai, the chief town, which is on the island of Nukawa. There were 4,300 inhabitants in the islands when the census was taken in 1900, but the natives, who are Christians, have dwindled away since then. There are 3,800 square miles in the thirteen islands which comprise the Marquesas group. The chief products are tropical fruit, copra and mother of pearl. The landing is difficult, as the shore goes up like a wall from the sea.

The climate of the Marquesas is ideal and the life there is one long day dream, with no disturbing element beyond the silver-tongued notes of the bulbul at sunset from its lofty porch on the ancient baobabs by the seashore.

A goodly number of baseball fans assembled at the Agricultural Park yesterday afternoon and witnessed an exhibition game of baseball between the G.T.R. team, of this city, and a team from London, Ontario. While the score was somewhat one-sided, it was on the right side for the great majority present. Our boys had the satisfaction of shutting the visitors out, the score at the end of the ninth inning being 4 to 0 in favor of the G. T. R. team. It was a good game, and some excellent plays were made by members of both teams. Freddie Goyer was, as usual, invincible to the visitors and had a number of strikeouts to his credit. Mr. Ed. Thomas was umpire on strikes and balls and Mr. Walter Gerow on bases, and both were most satisfactory. The details o the game are as follows:

First Inning.

London—Vinning struck out. Hick out at 1st. Cline flew to Symons. No runs, no hits, no errors.

G. T. R.—Hagerman struck out. Frank Goyer made a three-bagger to left field, and reached home on a passed ball. Symons walked. W. Mills hit to centre field, advancing Symons to second. Meagher hit to centre field. Kelleher struck out. H. Mills struck out. 1 run, 3 hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

G. T. R.—Parker made a hit to left field. Fred Goyer made a hit. Parker out at 2nd. Hagerman made infield hit. Fred Goyer out at 2nd. Frank Goyer hit to right field. Symons out at 1st. No runs, 2 hits, no errors.

Third Inning.

London—Burgess struck out. Goddard out at 1st. Pring struck a fly which Mills caught after a desperate effort. No runs, no hits, no errors.

G. T. R.—W. Mills flew to Monterville. Meagher hit to right field and stole second and third. Kelleher walked. H. Mills walked. Parker made an infield hit. Meagher out at plate, Fred Goyer walked, Kelleher scoring. Hagerman out at 1st. One run, 1 hit, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

London—Vinning hit by pitched ball. Hicks reached 1st on overthrow, Vinning reaching third. Cline struck out. Powell flew to Fred Goyer. Males hit by pitched ball. Monterville struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

G. T. R.—Frank Goyer out at 1st. Symons flew to Powell. W. Mills made hit to centre field, but was caught trying to steal 2nd. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

London—Burgess out at 1st on bunt. Goddard struck out. Pring hit to centre field, but was caught at 3rd. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

G. T. R.—Meagher hit to left field, reaching 1st. Kelleher flew to Vinning, H. Mills flew to Vinning. Parker flew to Powell.

Sixth Inning.

G. T. R.—Fred Goyer out at 1st. Ross replaced Hagerman and made a three-base hit. Frank Goyer, on a bunt, reached first and Ross reached home. Symons out at 1st. W. Mills reached 1st on hit. Kelleher flew to Monterville. One run, 2 hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

London—Males flew to W. Mills. Monterville hit by pitched ball. Burgess flew to Meagher. Goddard flew to Parker.

G. T. R.—Weir replaced Kelleher and flew to Powell. H. Mills out at 1st. Casey replaced Parker and struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

G. T. R.—Fred Goyer made a two-bagger to right field and stole third, but was caught at the plate. Ross reached 1st on infield hit and stole 2nd. Casey flew to Hicks. Ross reached home on wild throw. Symons struck out. One run, 2 hits, 1 error.

Ninth Inning.

The line up of the teams was as follows:

London—Vinning, s.s.; Hicks, 2nd; c.f.; Powell, 3rd; Males, c.; Monterville, 1st; Burgess, l.f.; Goddard, r.f.; Pring, p.

G. T. R.—Hagerman and Ross, c.f.; Frank Goyer, 2nd; W. Mills, c.; Meagher, s.s.; Weir and Kelleher, 3rd; H. Mills, 1st; Casey and Parker, r.f.; Symons, l.f.; Fred Goyer, p.

KNOCKED DOUBLE-L OUT OF BELLEVILLE

Says the Oshawa Telegram:

"The big G. T. R. moguls ran up from Belleville on Saturday and used the Goyer-Mills compound article to engineer the exit of the Oshawa Central League ball club from the league map, but the heaver had evidently not been properly oiled up before taken out of the roundhouse, and as a consequence the Oshawa hickory wielders opened up a bombardment that filled the first few minutes of the game with resounding whacks, which put five runs across that old home station and the game away in the box with the lid down tight. Just as a synopsis of how crazy the locals were along the hitting line we would tell it this way: Rowden hit a single; Fair hit for three bases; Roddick hit a circuit clout; Jacobi hit a single; Wilson sacrificed; Dobson hit, and Gifford ended the swat fest by poling one over the race track for a homer. This was not the end of the hickory wielding, for although they only chased two runs across in the remaining eight innings, they had eight more safe whacks and with a little more wisdom on the part of coachers at least three more runs could have been pushed across.

"It was a game where every kind of ball fan got his money's worth. If it was heavy clouting, it was there; good fast fielding was handed out; umpire baiting and a display of rule books. But the big "Our boys won" was written on every face outside of Tommy Fegg, manager of the Belleville team and supporters. It was a great day for Oshawa, and now that they were awarded the protest against Cobourg on Saturday evening there is only one more rung on the ladder to climb before reaching the top, and that will be to put the Peterborough team away on this Saturday afternoon."

POLICE COURT CASE HAS HAPPY ENDING

Oshawa, Aug. 6.—A marriage in court was the happy ending to the charge of abduction brought against Elmer Alberts by Mr. John Lindsay, of Ross' Corners, north of Oshawa, which came up in Police Court. Last week Elmer Alberts, accompanied by Lorraine Lindsay, went to St. Catharines. They were followed there by the girl's brother, who threatened to have them arrested if they did not return to Oshawa. They came back. No evidence was heard. It was mutually agreed that the pair be married, so Rev. A. M. Irwin was called to perform the ceremony. The ceremony took place in the court room with the press included. Alberts' father is a farmer near Niagara Falls South, and was in court, while the boy's mother was unable to get away. The bride is 15 years and nine months of age while the husband is 20.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY—

"The man who don't kno himself iz a poor judge of the other phellow."—Josh Billings.

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

"When the Swallows Homeward Fly," was the title of an old-time popular song brought to mind by the annual gathering of swallows, or martins, on the wires stretching across Front street opposite Campbell street. Every year about this time the swallows hold a conference on these wires in the early morning hours, old and young birds gathering, presumably, to discuss an early departure for their winter quarters in the south. Beginning with a small attendance the gathering grows each day until the accommodation of the wires is taxed and the twittering becomes a chorus of considerable volume on the text "Where do we go from here?" The merchants in the immediate vicinity of the swallow conference do not appreciate the event, but no efforts are made to induce the feathered sky-skimmers to select some other place of meeting.

WHY THE DELAY?

Although the late Senator Harry Corby bequeathed the sum of five thousand dollars for public swimming baths for Belleville no effort has been made, apparently, to take advantage of the generosity of this much beloved citizen, whose thoughts while life lasted were always for Belleville first and his efforts always directed toward assisting in the happiness and comfort of his fellow citizens. Senator Corby's memory will always be treasured for his generosity, kindliness and good citizenship. That this memorial to one of Belleville's best citizens should be neglected any longer is unthinkable. Let us have the Senator Corby bathing pool for next season by beginning now to consider plans.

TORONTO GLOBE'S TRIBUTE

In the course of a long editorial on the Prime Minister's speech at Portage la Prairie, the Toronto Globe said:

"Mr. Meighen did the right thing, no matter what his motives may have been, in availing himself of the occasion of his first public deliverance as Premier—his address to a non-partisan gathering of the people of Portage la Prairie—to sound a new note—It was a happy circumstance that he had before him the recent inaugural address delivered of Premier Taschereau of Quebec, the appeal of an eminent representative of the French-Canadian race for "a spirit of co-operation to take the place of the spirit of estrangement." In that appeal Mr. Meighen joined.

The appeal of the new Premier of Quebec, re-echoed by the now Premier of Canada, should awaken a ready and a glad response from the people of all the provinces of the Dominion. Fellow-Canadians cannot afford to continue to regard one another with suspicion and distrust. They must get together again for their own common good and the good of their country.

MORE FACTORIES FOR CANADA.

Many American manufacturers for whose products a demand was created in Canada through extensive advertising long ago established factories in this country. Perhaps a majority of such manufactured articles most commonly known in Canada are made here. And many others will be made in this country. Before the war, three hundred and fifty American concerns had established branches in the Dominion. In the twenty months since the Armistice, two hundred more have opened factories, started to establish them, or arranged to do so, according to the New York Times. Canadian workmen build these factories; Canadian raw materials are largely used in their operations, and Canadian labor mans them. If American goods entered Canada free of duty, the money Canadians spend for these articles would not go to pay wages and salaries to Canadians nor to provide a market for Canadian raw materials.

LEARN TO SWIM.

Drowning accidents are reaching unprecedented figures this year. From one end of Canada to the other reports come pouring in each day that passes. Every week-end sees a whole list of drowning casualties recorded in the newspapers, more particularly in the vicinity of the larger cities.

There is very little excuse for the average drowning. In the great majority of cases the ability to swim, or at least to keep afloat for a few minutes, makes all the difference between life and death.

Parents should insist that their children learn to swim. There is scarcely a home in the country where in the summer time sufficient water is not available in which the children can learn to swim. City parents are even in better case with the big city baths open all the year round to the children at stated periods.

Swimming is one of the most healthy and delightful exercises imaginable. Very rarely indeed is a youngster so delicate or timid that he or she will not derive benefit from at least occasional swimming exercise.

Quite possibly the average man or woman may never be in a situation where the ability to swim alone stands between them and immediate death, but this situation does arise often enough. Very often a dozen strokes will make all the difference between life and death, and the person who can conquer the first dozen strokes has no excuse whatever for not being able to keep going for some time.

Learn to swim. There is no better and healthier fun. Some day, moreover, an art which was learned as a recreation may be quite literally a life-saver.—Montreal Star.

TIME TO BUCKLE ON THE SWORD

Commenting on the result of the provincial election in Nova Scotia, the St. John Standard holds that "the secret of the disaster to the Conservative party was their unpreparedness. They did not expect an election at this particular time, and they allowed themselves to be caught napping. They had absolutely no organization, and no time to get one in working order. Under these conditions, and with the new elements, female franchise, farmers' and labor parties, to contend with, the Conservatives were in no shape to fight."

The Standard's conclusion is that "There is a lesson in all this for the Conservative party in this province. Within the next few months we shall have both Dominion and Provincial elections. Now, unless the Conservatives of New Brunswick wish to share the same fate as their friends in Nova Scotia, they should get busy, and proceed to get organized in every district in the province. There can be no excuse offered because of lack of notice; elections must take place in the ordinary course of events within a few months at the latest. To be forewarned is to be fore-armed, and we advise prompt steps to get ready for them."

CRISP COMMENT

It was understood that Rev. Ben. Spence was one of those who advised the Government to defer the liquor importation referendum until complete voters' lists could be compiled. However, Rev. Ben now comes about on another tack. "I am sorry for this delay," says he; "sorry that we have a Government that would be a party to this delay; sorriest of all for the evils that will thus be unabated during the longer interim." Of course, with some people anything that the Government might do would be unsatisfactory.

It is pleasant to read in the New York Sun that "Americans will trust that the indisposition of the British Premier will not prove serious, and that he may continue actively in office. At the present critical juncture Great Britain and the world can ill afford to lose the benefit of his experience and his statesmanlike leadership."

Germany is being served with an unlimited supply of beer at low prices, while in at least two of the allied countries beer is legally unobtainable at any price. Nations do not thrive by beer alone, in the opinion of the Toronto Telegram, which points to the abundance of malt liquor in Germany in contrast with the beer famine in Canada and the United States, and asserts that the contrast inspires the Hon. the Liberty League to ask the poignant question: "How comes it that Germans lose the war and get their beer, and we win the war and lose our beer?"

The Orillia Packet notes that the Woodstock Sentinel-Review has raised its rate from $4 to $7 a year, an increase of 75 per cent.; the Guelph Mercury and the Peterborough Examiner have each gone to $6 a year; all Alberta newspapers are now $8 a year by mail or $13 delivered by carrier boy; the Victoria, B.C., Times is now $12 delivered. The James papers (weekly) at Bowmanville are charging $2 per year instead of $1.50.

Germany, the once proud and masterful maker of war upon all nations to demonstrate the super-man efficiency of that nation, is now the humble supplicant for favors and a compromise of ten cents upon the dollar for the mischief occasioned by her ambition to dominate the world. The All-Highest Blasphemer who professed a partnership with the Deity is now a fugitive from his country and the most powerful men in Germany today are those who were despised in pre-war days as money-grubbers and artisans.

OTHER VIEWS

Drayton's Chance For Fame

(Toronto Telegram)

Sir Henry Drayton is reported to be devising a plan for preventing the duplication of income taxation. It will be a popular move. Taxes in any form are a source of irritation, and their infinite variety does not make them any more acceptable. Simplication of the present complicated system of raising public revenue is very desirable. But if Sir Henry wants to be a real hero he will invent some method of stretching the ordinary income, so that after the taxes are paid the remainder won't resemble the change returned by a waiter at a summer hotel.

Doug. Fairbanks Outbunked

(Westminster Gazette)

Admiral Halsey gave me the following account of the accident to the royal train near Bridgetown, West Australia:

"I was thrown to the floor and fell against the window, which broke, and all the furniture, including a table and heavy chairs was flung on top of me. The Prince remaind self-possessed throughout, and collected all the important papers scattered about the car. I cannot understand how it was the Prince and I were not killed."

I have also interviewed the passengers who rushed to the Prince's rescue. One said:

"We were astonished to find that, instead of signs of distress there were signs of hilarity in the royal car. The Prince was reclining amid the wreckage of his compartment, and in response to inquirers, who could not see him, he replied: 'Hurt! Bless your soul, no! I'm glad the whiskey flask is not broken either.'" Assured that none was seriously hurt, the Prince said, "Then I'll collect my gear," which he cooly proceeded to do. He was much concerned about his favorite pipe, but managed to retrieve it after a few minutes' search.

Optimism in the West

(Calgary Herald)

General crop reports from all points of the west indicate that we are in line for a fairly good crop this year. The grasshopper menace in Manitoba is pretty well over, cutworm damage is comparatively slight, and the weather for crops has been just about perfect. What more could anyone ask for?

A LAUGH OR TWO

Breaking It Gently

A fondness of backing an occasional winner was one of Bill's weaknesses: that his selection didn't always come home first couldn't exactly be blamed on him.

After a certain big race, he got home rather later than usual, to be met at the door by his wife, her face distorted with rage. He knew the signs and sank into a chair, content to wait until the clouds had rolled by. When a last she had to pause for want of breath, he remarked casually:

"I say, Nell, ye like to 'ear o' people winnin' lots o' money, don't yer?"

Visions of new hats and even a dress floated before her dazzled eyes, so the woman forced a smile to her lips and replied:

"That I do. Tell me all about it."

"Well," he said, as she nestled close to him, "a bootmaker's been an' gorn an' won all me wages this week."

Sharp and to the Point

A girl was putting up some decorations in Dr. Longwood's church when he happened to look in. Seeing some tacks lying around the pulpit, he said:

"You should n't leave the tacks there, Katie. Now what would happen if I stepped on one in the middle of my sermon to-morrow?"

"Well," replied the girl "there would be one point you wouldn't linger long on, anyway."

THE POET'S CORNER

THE OLD MEN

(Ernest H. A. Home in Farmer's Sun.)

I often think of the old men
Sitting alone in the sun,
Watching the bees on the blossoms
Now that their work is done.
They are so wistful, the old men,
So wistful and gently wise.
My heart goes out to the old men
Whenever an old man dies.

I often sit with the old men,
So eager to speak are they
Of those by the world forgotten
Of things of a bygone day.
They know so much, do the old men
So much, though their books are few
I like to sit with the old men;
The words that they speak are true.

I often walk with the old men,
Suiting my steps to theirs,
And I think when our tongues are silent,
How many their griefs and cares!
But it's little the old men murmer;
They vision with clearer eyes,
And patient are they, the old men,
So patient and calmly wise.

I claim as my friends the old men
Sprung of our native soil,
Whose bodies are worn and feeble
And bowed by the years of toil;
And they, in their God-sent knowledge
They read me with kindly eyes,
And see, when my words are halting,
The thought that behind them lies.

I keep a place for the old men
A place for them in my heart,
For dauntlessly well and truly,
Each of them played his part,
And now they are spent and weary,
For their way is no royal way
The old, old men whose labors
Are yielding their fruits today.

Oh, often I think of the old men
Sitting alone in the sun,
Watching the shadows grow longer,
Leaving us one by one.
They are so trustful, the old men,
So trustful and simply wise
Heaven's richer and earth is poorer
Whenever an old man dies.

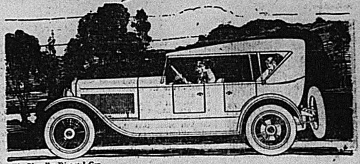
CHANDLER SIX
Famous For Its Marvelous Motor



The Chandler Dispatch Car

It Offers So Much More For So Much Less

The Chandler Six was never in stronger position than right now, at the height of the 1920 season.

Chandler price has always, regardless of the demand, been based on cost of production plus a fair profit and nothing else. An oversold condition of the trade has never moved the price up. And today, the Chandler is, by long odds, the most closely-priced fine car in the American market.

Chandler holds its leadership among Sixes so distinctly because it offers so much more for so much less.

It leads because of its endurance and great motor, unsurpassed for flexibility of power.

It leads because of its sturdy construction throughout and the character of service it renders to more than eighty thousand owners.

LUNA AND THE LUNATICS.

How the Moon Affects Human Beings and Helps Hatch Chickens.

The word "lunatic" was first ascribed to epileptics, who seem to be greatly affected by lunar influences, says Pearson's Weekly. And it has been noticed that many nervous maladies, such as vertigo, hysteria and sleep-walking, are more acute during the periods of the new and full moon.

It is at the period of the moon's change that these symptoms chiefly occur. For instance, in several cases it has been proved that children subject to convulsions usually suffer most at the time of full moon, whereas paralytics are subject to recurring fits at new moon. It has also been noticed that in the case of epileptics who are subject to lunar influence, it is always on the third day after the full moon that the fit ends in intermittent fever.

The moon's influence on vegetable life has long been recognized. Market gardeners insist that there is a right time in the moon's phases to plant certain crops to secure the best results, while many old-time farmers would not make a fence or cover a roof unless it were done at what they consider the proper time of moon.

With regard to this latter point actual tests have shown that wooden tiles placed on a roof in the light of the moon will curl up and not last half as long as those put on when the sky is dark.

A further remarkable fact about the moon's light is its effect on a broody hen. It requires an average of twenty-one days for eggs to hatch. Occasionally it has been noticed that a hen will bring out chicks a day or two earlier; and this is due to the influence of the moon. The proper time to set a hen is when the moon is new, or very close to that period, so that the moon will be full just about a week before the time for hatching arrives.

Experiments have shown that more eggs will hatch if set at this time, and that the young chicks will be stronger and more vigorous, and will grow more rapidly. On the other hand, chicks hatched when there is no moon are often more weakly, and do not make such strong and vigorous fowls, nor are they such good egg-layers.

Wine also seems to be subject to this influence, and it is well known that it is not wise to make wine when the moon is waning.

There are various reasons given to account for this mysterious influence of our great satellite. The light of the moon, being reflected, has not the life-sustaining properties of direct light, and decay is therefore quicker. It also has an injurious effect on the eyes, which leads to nervous excitement.

Another cause suggested is to be found in the waves of electricity which are given off from the moon. It is possible that our bodies have magnetic sense, which responds to electric variations of the atmosphere induced by the light of the moon.

Smallest Woman In the World.

In America this year there is being exhibited for the first time Cynthia Margaret Nickloy, who, it is claimed, is the smallest woman in the world. Her age is nineteen; she is twenty-nine inches high in street garb, and weighs about twenty-five pounds. She is known professionally as Princess Tiny Atom, and is seen in the side show of a circus.

Princess Tiny Atom is the child of normal parents. Her father, who travels with her, is six feet tall. Her mother, who has been dead several years, weighed 138 pounds. Tiny is the third of four children. All save her are normal. Her sister, who is two years her senior, weighed six and one-half pounds at birth, as did Tiny. Her sister grew normally, and now is five feet four inches tall and weighs 132 pounds. Tiny's growth stopped in her fourth year, although her development was that of any normal girl. Save for her size, she is normal to-day in mind and body. There is nothing in her family tree to give science a theory as to her arrested growth, says the Illustrated World Magazine.

Tiny Atom's mental development is that of any 19-year-old girl, who has had a rather haphazard common school education. Her schooling did not start until she reached her 'teens. School boards did not care for her attendance, as it was claimed that her presence would distract the minds of other scholars in the room.

When Tiny sits in an ordinary chair, her feet do not extend to the edge of the seat, if she leans against the back. She is fond of clothes, has a discriminating taste, and speaks glibly of the "smartness" of the gowns she wears.

This little woman always has eaten ordinary food, and she has never had a day's sickness. Of course, she has her own special set of tableware, as she could hardly handle the knife, fork and spoon of an adult. In her stateroom on the circus train she has her own furniture, and her bed is a cunning little affair of brass.

Minister's Sons Get Rich.

Two years ago I made a study of the heads of the 100 leading industries of America, writes Roger W. Babson in the Independent. Those men are all multi-millionaires and the leaders in their industry. Five per cent. of them are sons of bankers, 10 per cent. of them are sons of merchants and manufacturers, 25 per cent of them are the sons of teachers, doctors and country lawyers, and over 30 per cent. of them are the sons of preachers whose salaries didn't average $1,500 a year.

Radium Within Reach of All.

The Radium Institute of England is meeting the scarcity of and growing demand for radium by making weak solutions which give off emanations that can be detected only by delicate instruments. These solutions can be had in tiny glass phials, corked, and it is said that they are efficacious for one week.

A Good Beginning

"What new dishes have you had since you have had your new French cook?"

"Oh, a whole new dinner set and several pieces of cut glass. She's only been with us about a week."

WAR PROFITS.

Japan and United States Made Money Out of War.

Who emerged from the war with the greatest accretion of national wealth? Edgar Crammond, the best-known British statistician, maintains that it is Japan. In an address before the Institute of Bankers he insisted that while Japan's war expenditure was negligible, her national wealth had actually doubled since 1914, being now $23,500,000,000.

Regarding other nations in the war, Mr. Crammond found that the United States had increased its national wealth during the same period by 30 per cent. In 1914 it amounted to $210,000,000,000; to-day it is between $350,000,000,000 and $400,000,000,000. In 1914 America owed Europe $10,000,000,000, now Europe owes America just the same amount.

He calculates Great Britain's total war losses under all heads at $26,000,000,000, less $10,000,000,000 in new equipments of manufacturing plants, loans to allies and Dominions, assets received from Germany, and the value of territories taken over under the peace treaty. Britain's national wealth is now $12,000,000,000, the final cost of the war to the country being 12.7 per cent. of the national wealth.

The wealth of the British Empire as a whole has increased by nearly 100 per cent. In 1910 the value of the Empire was $124,930,000,000 and its annual income $16,660,000,000; now the figures are, respectively, $230,400,000,000 and $38,250,000,000.

Subject to the indemnity she collects from Germany, France lost one-fourth of her national wealth. Her expenditures aggregated $31,250,000,000, less the capital value of Alsace-Lorraine, which Crammond puts at $4,000,000,000. Her national wealth to-day is $53,500,000,000.

Belgium spent $2,750,000,000. Her national wealth is now $12,000,000,000, or 10 per cent. less than it was in 1914. She also has to recover $1,050,000,000 from the general indemnity Germany is supposed to pay.

As to Germany herself, she tops all the nations with a war expenditure of $43,500,000,000. If the final indemnity figure is fixed according to French ideas—i.e., $31,250,000—her total loss through the war will be about $75,000,000,000, or one-half of her national wealth.

Britain Is "Good Pay."

Great Britain came out of the world war about thirty six billion dollars deeper in debt than when she entered it. Only about one-sixth of this debt is owed to other countries. Her own people hold six-sevenths of it.

On her past reputation, which has been traced for more than two centuries in a study of "English Public Finance," just published by the Bankers' Trust Company, of New York, Britain's present creditors may list her as "good pay."

The Bankers' Trust Company's book shows that since 1688, when the British national debt first began to grow large, Britain has scrupulously kept her financial obligations. Prior to the present time Great Britain's debt was heaviest in 1817 at the end of the Napoleonic wars. It then amounted to about four billion dollars and the interest charge alone represented an annual payment of about $9 a head based on the total population of the country. By 1895 it had been reduced by about a billion dollars, notwithstanding that the Crimean war, costing some $350,000,000, exclusive of pensions, had intervened. The per capita carrying charge was brought down to less than $3.50 a year.

Heavy taxation, the book shows, has always been levied by Great Britain to enable her to pay her debts. Her people paid in taxes almost four billion dollars to defray part of the costs of the Napoleonic wars, and about half a billion dollars to help pay for the South African war.

They paid about 18 billion dollars in taxes to meet their expenses during the world war, or more than one-third of what the war cost Great Britain.

"A moral phase of the situation which is at the base of Britain's credit structure," says the Bankers Trust Company, "is that not once apparently was there even a thought of repudiation—even when the burden of debt pressed heaviest. Fears there were in plenty of the ability of the nation to meet its obligations, but never once a suggestion of trying to get rid of the obligations in any other way than the good old-fashioned one of paying."

Military Maud Mullers.

Wearing lonk khaki coats, khaki trousers, leather leggings and Boy Scout hats, three score girls of the British Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, nicknamed "Waacs," reached New South Wales, Australia, in June as the guests of the State Government.

These unusual settlers, in consideration of free passage from England, had agreed to remain in New South Wales at least one year; and they were prepared, they said, to do "anything"—farm work, office work, domestic work, architectural draughting mechanical engineering, etc.

Two of the girls, on their father's farm in Surrey, had been accustomed, as they explained, to milking forty cows, looking after calves and pigs, cultivating fields, mowing grass and "tossing" hay.

Eyes a Handicap.

Many capable actors and actresses are precluded from winning the success which would otherwise surely be theirs "on the films" because of the color of their eyes. Eyes of light blue, for example, are a distinct disadvantage, while gray ones are only a little less so. The darker the eyes the better the effect on the screen.

Frequent Headaches

A Sure Sign That the Blood is Watery and Impure

People with thin blood are much more subject to headaches than full-blooded persons and the form of anaemia that afflicts growing girls is almost awlays accompanied by headaches, together with disturbance of the digestive organs.

Whenever you have constant or recurring headaches and pallor of the face, they show that the blood is thin and your efforts should be directed toward building up your blood. A fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this effectively and the rich red blood made by these pills will remove the headache.

More disturbances to the health are caused by their blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment, and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are undernourished and you may have muscular rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders, try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and a sthe blood is restored to its normal condition every symptom of the troubel will disappear. There are more people who owe their present state of good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than any other medicine and most of them do not hesitate to say so.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WORLD'S LARGEST SHIP

The world's largest ship, the Hamburg-American liner Bismarck, 56,000 tons, is to be completed immediately and handed over to the Reparation Commission for one of the Allies, according to the London Daily Mail. It is believed that she will be given to the White Star Company, the newspaper says, to replace the Britannic, which was torpedoed or mined while a hospital ship in the Mediterranean.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles—as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

ECCENTRIC GENIUS.

Some Strange Habits of Famous Writers.

A glimpse into the inner life of genius reveals some interesting facts, especially with regard to the rather eccentric habits that some have been wont to adopt when in the throes of composition or other matters connected with their work.

Whatever the cause of this eccentricity, these men of genius were firmly of the opinion that their work was rendered easier thereby; that bodily strain was minimized, and that ideas were apt to flow more rapidly, so much so that on one occasion Anthony Trollope remarked that the very clothes he wore seemed somehow to contribute to the effect of his best work. It was his opinion that the velvet coat, the neat slippers and the rest of it, all worn with an air of easy unconsciousness, were well calculated to enhance the vividness of his narration.

Buffon wrote in lace ruffles, and Sir Walter Scott liked to array himself in his shooting jacket from six o'clock until dinner time, whilst Guido Reno painted with much pomp and considered himself at his best when dressed magnificently, and had his pupils attend him in silence, ranged around him.

On the other hand, Flaubert, when in the throes of composition, used to throw off one garment after another, and Alexander Dumas wrote in his shirt sleeves.

Milton composed the greater part of his "Paradise Lost" in a large armchair, with his head thrown back.

Walt Whitman liked the recumbent position, but not in bed. His favorite practice was to climb on to a pile of lumber, lie down flat on his back, and thus think out his ideas.

Carlyle often isolated himself in a bare room at the top of the house, whilst Balzac would stay in bed for a fortnight at a time, and live on coffee.

Alexander Pope, too, did most of his work while comfortably tucked in bed, as also did Mark Twain, who always considered his best work was done while lying in bed, propped up with pillows, and smoking his favorite "corncob."

On the other hand, Thackeray found that he could not think in an empty room, and Sarti, the musician, went even further and composed only in darkness.

Charles Dickens invariably wrote in blue ink on blue paper, as he held the impression that the color of ink and paper greatly facilitated the flow of his ideas. Another idiosyncrasy of his was the writing of day and month in full, as "January twenty-sixth."

Charles Reade's restless spirit would not allow him to remain seated at a table for long. Much of his writing was done while standing at a high table, and Victor Hugo shared a similar view, for the whole of "Les Miserables" was written by the author while in a standing position.

Wilkie Collins always thought he felt more energetic when standing, as also did Gen. Wolseley and Nathaniel Hawthorne, the latter writing "The Scarlet Letter" and several other romances afoot, whilst Lord Byron composed many of his best poems on horseback.

What's in a Name?

Is there any more confusing nomenclature than that employed in agriculture? A "bullock" is a kind of general term applied to cattle in the Southwest of England, and even bulls and cows are included, so that if one sees "grand Devon bullocks" advertised for sale the conclusion must not be hastily formed that these are steers of superior quality. In Scotland, and generally, save in the southwest, bullocks are steers, or, in the vernacular of the north, stots or stirks. Heifers become queys in Scotland, but the latter term is unknown in England. More perplexing, however, is the designation of a one-year-old female sheep. It is generally known as a gimmer or shearling ewe. In Lincolnshire it becomes a she hogg or threave, and in some parts of the country the term hogg and hoggets are used. The ram lambs are tup lambs in many districts, and chilver lamb is a term which is only known in the South of England. The use of "he" and "she" as prefixes is peculiarly English. The ewes as they advance in age are known as two tooth, four tooth, and six tooth ewes, full mouthed, and latterly broken mouthed. What's in a name? To the uninstructed there may be confusion.

Their Own Tongue.

The missionary who was just beginning to understand Chinese stood listening to a group of the mission children as they talked together—some of them in English and some in the native dialect. Two tiny tots particularly interested her. They were talking rapidly and volubly, but the missionary could not understand one word of what they were saying. Finally she asked one of the older children:

"You wouldn't," the child explained, "but they understand each other. It isn't any language, but all the little bitsy ones talk it. They get it off God, and they keep it till they're three."—World Outlook.

The Player stands ready at all times for hand playing or for reproducing, as desired.

It is interchangeable in a moment from one instrument to the other. The member of your family who cannot read a note of music (but who may be a very musical person nevertheless) can play the music of his choice. Another member who is skilled in music can come next and play just as if it were a piano. And, for the rising generation it makes easier the road to a successful musical education.

The Williams Player is a Canadian-made instrument, through and through—made by Canadian craftsmen who would refuse to do anything but their best.

AN INTERESTING GAME

A number of baseball fans from this city went to Oshawa today to witness a Central Ontario League game between Oshawa and Peterboro. The outcome of the game is watched with much interest. If Peterboro should win, they will be champions of the league and if Oshawa should win, it will make a three corner with the G. T. R. team of this city in the winning.

KNOCKED DOWN BY CAR

Last evening at the junction of Front and Bridge streets, a collision occurred between an auto driven by Mr. J. W. Reeves of McDonald Avenue and a boy riding a bicycle. Fortunately the boy escaped serious injuries, but the bike was damaged to a considerable extent. The lad upon the wheel was entirely to blame as he made an attempt to pass in front of the car but evidently misjudged the distance.

BLAZE AT ALCOHOL PLANT

At a few minutes after 10 o'clock last night there was considerable excitement about the Canadian Industrial Alcohol plant at Corbyville owing to a fire being discovered in a lavatory in connection with the testing department. The fire appliances in connection with the plant were brought into action and the blaze was soon extinguished. The damage done was chiefly by water and the loss is covered by insurance.

TO ATTEND GREAT PRIORY

Mr. F Davey Inspector of Weights & Measures left today to attend the meeting of The Sovereign Great Priory of Canada, which is being held at Calgary on the 12 and 13th. He will be joined at Trenton by R. H. Spencer and at Winnipeg by H. F. Ketcheson, making three delegates from King Baldwin Preceptory of this city. Before returning they expect to visit Vancouver and other western points. Mr. G. H. Howson, Assistant Inspector of Weights and Measures office during Inspector Diamond's absence.

FINED $500 AND COSTS

Edward Howard of Frankford was summoned to appear before Magistrate Masson yesterday on a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence. The accused failed to appear, but the case was disposed of and a fine of $500 and costs was imposed or in default three months in jail. Howard, it is believed has left this section of the country. Mr. Arnott, License Inspector, was the complainant in the case. Howard only recently figured in an automobile theft at Frankford and also escaped after being placed under arrest, but was shortly after recaptured.

FIRE IN PICTON COURT HOUSE

On Wednesday morning a fire alarm from Tecumseth Ward called out the fire brigade to put out a blaze in the Court House at Picton. When the firemen arrived on the scene the court room was filled with smoke but the blaze had not gained much headway and was put out with a chemical extinguisher, the water not being turned on. It appears that some hörnets had made a nest in the ventilator box that led from the outside wall to the court room and the gaoler, Mr. Abram Huyck thought the best way to expel the intruders was to burn them out. Hence the blaze. The damage was slight.

DIED

MACKINNON — Died in Belleville, August 6th, 1920, Emma Jane Beaumont, beloved wife of John Mackinnon, aged 23 years.

The funeral will take place from her father's residence, 76 Cedar street, on Monday at 3.30. Service, 3 p.m. Interment, Belleville cemetery.

Costly Freight Wreck At Brockville

Belleville Wrecking Crew Called to the Scene.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 7.—A broken flange or a defective switch—railway officials are as yet unable to determine which—resulted in the piling-up of eight loaded box cars in seemingly hopeless confusion in the G. T. R. yard here at six o'clock last evening, in thousands of dollars damage to rolling stock, roadbed and freight, and in entertainment for townspeople until far into the night. Fortunately no person was injured.

The train from whose movement the wreck, one of the most spectacular in local railway circles in years was an eastbound freight, hauled by locomotives 742 and 579, in charge respectively of Engineers Elmer Seeley, 49 Hubbell street, and John H. Babcock, 40 William street. No. 742 was the assisting engine, taking the train as far as Maitland. Albert Johnson, Montreal, was the conductor in charge of the train. At the first switch west of Perth street crossing, one car became derailed through one of the causes mentioned above and rode the ties until it struck the lead, switch east of Perth street. The rods of which broke. This caused the points of the switch to open, and the following cars, instead of remaining on the main line track, took the third track. The two locomotives and four cars of the train had passed over the switch safely before the derailment and the train was travelling at a speed of only ten miles an hour.

Immediately following the wreck a simultaneous call was sent in for the Brockville and Belleville wrecking crews and for an augmented track gang. Two large Mikado locomotives were fastened by a cable to two cars which effectually blocked traffic on both tracks of the main line, and at eight o'clock the track, through the efforts of General Car Foreman A. R. Lapraire, General Yardmaster Smith Hassard and Locomotive Foreman William Hamilton, with their men, was cleared. There was thus no interruption to passenger traffic. In the meantime the movement of freight trains was kept up by the use of a track leading from Perth street past the engine shops and turntable at Park street.

Track Gangs Busy.

At the same time the track gangs from Brockville yard, Manitoba yard and Prescott commenced work on the repair of the tracks, keeping at their task until far into the night and aiding the wrecking crews to remove the damaged cars.

At nine o'clock the Belleville wrecking crew, with its steam crane, arrived on the scene and immediately started clearing the tracks. This work was kept up throughout the night. N. P. North, trainmaster at Belleville, accompanied the wrecking gang. George Cooper, trainmaster here, and W. Bibby, supervisor of track, who were down the line, arrived later. This morning J. F. Serviss, foreman, arrived with an extra gang from Cornwall.

ONE KILLED, 35 HURT, IN DENVER RIOTING

Denver, Col., Aug. 6.—One killed and thirty-five injured is the record in riots this afternoon and tonight due to attempt of striking street car men, aided by sympathizers from other unions, to prevent operation of tramway cars by strike-breakers. Several of the injured will probably die.

Trouble began with an attack upon two cars in the heart of the city late in the afternoon by a mixed crowd that had staged a demonstration at the City Hall in favor of the striking carmen. A half a dozen battles followed, with the police outnumbered and practically powerless.

Early in the evening one car barn was attacked, street cars were blocked and wrecked in various parts of the city. Later the plant of the Denver Post was entered and damaged by the mob, which completed its work before the police could put a stop to the trouble.

Run Down, Pale & Weak Nervous and Tired?

"VITAL" TABLETS

THE GREAT FRENCH TONIC WILL BUILD YOU UP.

How many people today are putting in an existence, far different from what nature intended. Disease of one sort or another is lurking in the system, sapping the very life itself. One cannot enjoy life. The French have come to the rescue of all such persons. In VITAL Tablets are all the essentials to make you healthy and strong. You have no appetite, your food does not agree with you, your nerves are all on edge, why? Because the very part of your body that needs to be kept in a strong, healthy condition, is gradually getting weaker, rather than stronger. You must build yourself up. You must fortify your body. Once your body is strong it will throw off the disease. The question is, what should one take to do this? The makers of VITAL Tablets will sell them under a guarantee. If they do not build you up you can have your money back. Build yourself up and away goes every disease. VITAL Tablets are a wonderful reconstructive remedy, known to science. Go to your druggist and procure a box of VITAL Tablets. See for yourself. Price fifty cents per box, at all drug stores, Doyle's Drug Store, Belleville, special agents.

THE UBIQUITOUS ANT.

Prove to Be Enemies of Aviation In Africa.

Ants have assumed a new role in Africa—that of enemies of aviation. Reports from surveyors of the proposed air route from Rhodesia to Cape Town say that ant hills have interfered seriously with the placing of airdromes.

To understand this phenomenon one must understand how ubiquitous is the ant in South Africa. Ants are to be found everywhere, from Arctic regions to the tropic, from timberline on the loftiest mountains to the shifting sands of the dunes and seashores, and from the dampest forests to the driest deserts. Not only do they outnumber in individuals all other terrestrial animals, but their colonies, even in very circumscribed localities, often defy enumeration.

One subfamily of the ants, the Dorylinae, embracing the wonderful driver ants of Africa and the legionary ants of the American tropics, are highly carnivorous, but nevertheless succeed in forming immense colonies, often of hundreds of thousands of individuals. This they accomplish by relinquishing the sedentary habits so characteristic of the great majority of ants.

They keep moving in long files through the jungles, capturing or killing all the insects they encounter, and even overrunning dwellings, and, in their search of cockroaches and other vermin, driving out the human inhabitants. From time to time these strange ants bivouac for the night or for a few days in some hole in the ground, or under a tree, but soon continue their predatory march. Evidently they are able to remain carnivorous, and at the same time to develop large colonies, only because they are nomadic and can thus draw their food supply from a large area.

One of the earliest departures from an exclusively animal diet is seen among the ants which attend plant lice, scale insects and leaf-hoppers and feed on their saccharine refuse. This waste matter is merely plant sap slightly altered in chemical constitution by passing through the digestive tract of the insects, and containing much water, some sugar and a little nitrogenous matter.

Many ants are so inordinately fond of this food that they not only acquire an intimate acquaintance with the habits of the adult plant lice and scale insects, but actually collect and store their eggs in the nests during winter in order that they may during the ensuing spring distribute the hatching young over the roots or foliage of the plants.

Certain individuals, the "replets," of the colony refrain from leaving the nest and foraging for food and become converted into flagens by distending the crop to such enormous dimensions that the abdomen looks like a transparent bead. In this condition they hang by their claws from the roof of the nest chamber and thenceforth spend all their lives receiving liquid food from the tongues of the foraging ants, storing it in their crops and regurgitating it to hungry individuals when the liquid food supply outside the nest becomes inadequate. This is, of course, apt to be the case periodically in dry regions, so that we find the true honey ants only in deserts like those of the Southwestern States, Northern Mexico, South Africa and Central Australia.

Germany on Reparations.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—Following a careful study of the economic situation in Germany, former President Poincare, who was head of the Reparation Commission, in a statement appearing in Le Matin Monday, announced that Germany's estimate of the indemnity due France is approximately seven and a quarter billion marks. These figures are extremely significant as indicating what Germany's attitude will be at Geneva when the Allies propose to demand one hundred and twenty billion marks, of which amount France would get sixty billions.

Motor Buses To Supplant Street Cars In Cities

WILL TAKE PLACE OF ELECTRIC CARS WHERE TRAFFIC IS HEAVY—ADVANTAGES MANY — WILL ALSO SERVE SPARSELY SETTLED DISTRICTS WHERE THE BUILDING OF ELECTRIC ROADS IS NOT WARRANTED.

(From Canadian Motorist)

Motor buses will supplant street cars on the heavily trafficked sections of the main streets of our cities. They will serve sparsely populated districts where the installation of tracks and power lines would prove unprofitable or worse. They will serve on suburban and inter-town passenger service where traffic is not sufficiently heavy to warrant the building of electric railroads. They are as sure to succeed in these and other fields as motor trucks are in L.C.L. short haul and rural express work.

The advantages of the bus over the street car are manifold, and for the most part, manifest. Under the heading of service and safety, the fact that the motor bus takes on and discharges the passengers at the curb is perhaps the most obvious advantage to the passengers who, to catch and leave the street cars, have had to stand in snow, slush and mud covered roadways in the path of approaching vehicles, thus jeopardizing health, limb and life. The fact that a loaded bus moves on until a passenger wishes to dismount, passing in so doing, possibly several buses routed in the same direction that have stopped to take on or let off passengers is in striking and pleasing contrast with a street car that, however jammed with through passengers, must move and stop with the street car ahead. A bus breakdown does not tie up bus traffic enroute as does a street car breakdown, for a motor bus moves as independently of other buses as does a motor car or truck.

Greater Facility of Bus.

The spectacle of paralysis presented by street cars when the "power's off" with its multitudinous inconveniences is unknown in bus service. A "tie-up" owing to a fire or procession and the taking of all service off a busy section of a main thoroughfare as occasionally happens for these and other reasons, does not happen with a bus service, for a motor bus changes its routes or moves round an obstruction with the facility of a motor car.

Then in the extension of services to new districts the street car is limited as elsewhere to rails and wires. Only when these are extended (and the cost is high), can street car service be extended. The motor bus can go anywhere a motor car can go. Street car service is limited to the movement of rails. A motor bus can run on any street.

Consider handling a circus, a ball-game, an exhibition crowd. How inadequate is street car traffic all know and bemoan. As the most extreme example, an exhibition will serve best, perhaps, as illustrative of the great advantage of motor buses in the handling of peak loads. Buses could run to and from the exhibition grounds over every road leading to and from it, taking and leaving passengers at all the entrances and exits. (Street cars are limited to few routes, and in many cities one).

Owing to the greater mobility of the motor bus, its greater flexibility (the fact that it gets under way and stops faster), and the fact that other traffic routed in the same direction moves on when it stops (whereas all traffic must stop behind standing cars), it is said that one street car causes more congestion in movement of traffic than four motor buses. If four motor buses can move where one street car does now, strap hanging may become a lost art and sport.

Supplanting the street car service on Yonge street, Toronto, with motor buses would solve the North Toronto problem with "one fell stroke—a veritable coup d'etat," as one prominent official said.

Buses are Cheaper.

Buses are cheaper than street cars—many times cheaper when the cost of trackage, barns, power transmission lines, railway construction, rails, power plants and shops are counted in the cost of street cars — and they should be—because they are a necessary concomitant. So from the economic standpoint as well as from that of service and safety, the motor truck has it over the street car like a big top circus tent.

But, it will be objected, the rails are laid, the plants and transmission lines, etc., constructed—and for that reason it would not be practical to junk the system and establish city-wide bus systems. But better than buying the necessary cars to better the present execrable and atrocious street car service obtaining in most of our cities, let motor buses be purchased and the street cars taken off the congested sections of the main streets of our cities where a more mobile service is necessary. Motor bus services should also be established on parallel streets.

Motor buses are taking care of public transportation on the busiest thoroughfares in the world—the Strand, London; Fifth Avenue, New York; the Champs Elysees and Bois de Boulogne, Paris, France; Michigan Ave., Chicago. Recently the Broadway Merchants' Association, New York, voted a $75,000 campaign fund to be used in an effort to secure the removal of street cars from Broadway and the establishment of a motor bus system in their stead. The city of New York placed an initial order of 200 buses. Toronto has recently called for bus tenders.

Too Much Smoke For Fussy Toronto

Want All Locomotives Entering City Electrified

TORONTO Aug. 9—Toronto is going to alter the railways in regard to the nuisance of smoke from engines and roundhouses. Nothing short of the electrification of the roads within the city limits is to be the demand.

The Board of Control recommended to the City Council at its special session yesterday the adoption of a report made by Property Commissioner D. Chisolm which advises an immediate application to the Dominion Railway Board for an order on three points:

1. That all locomotives operating within the limits of the city by electrically equipped.

2. That all railway, stationary or heating plants be equipped with a device for the washing of smoke.

Commissioner Chisholm has been in communication with the Railway Board for some time on this matter, and Chairman F. B. Carvell has invited the city to make the application. The city solicitor is to argue the city's case.

Equal Nationhood Is Meighen's Plea

OTTAWA, Aug. 9.—Premier Meighen told the Imperial Press Conference at the Government banquet given the Imperial pressmen in the Chateau Laurier last night that "the only aspiration this country has is equality of nationhood within the British Empire."
enjoyed," he continued. "Indeed, Self-government we have long stone of the whole structure. No contraction of our automatics rights could ever be suffered for a moment. And as Canadian interests expand, particularly Canadian interests abroad, the term self-government takes on from time to time larger and larger meeting. Nor can we be unmindful that the exercise of national rights involves corresponding responbilities. But no development of self-government and no problem of the sharing or responsibilities can ever be allowed to menace the integrity and essential oneness of the Empire. If the British Empire, the first League of Nations, should fall, and fall apart, I would not have much hope for the second and larger pattern.

WAR WITH RUSSIA A GRAVE POSSIBILITY

CRISIS IN NEGOTIATIONS

LONDON NEWSPAPERS NOT OPTIMISTIC ON POSSIBILITY OF ANOTHER GREAT EUROPEAN WAR BEING PRECIPITATED BY RUSSIAN BOLSHEVIKI'S REFUSAL TO ACCEPT ALLIED TERMS REGARDING POLAND — POLISH GOVERNMENT LEAVES WARSAW — NO AGREEMENT REACHED BY ALLIED PREMIERS ON COURSE OF ACTION TO AID POLAND.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—There is a deep note of anxiety pervading the comment in this morning's newspapers relative to the rejection by the Soviet Government of the request made by Lloyd George for a ten days armistice with Poland. Regardless of the views adopted by different newspapers on the general question of the Bolsheviki, and on the immediate relations between Russia and Poland, concern is reflected by all. Renewal of war in Europe is generally considered a possibility and is treated in the gravest terms. It is not regarded as inevitable, but no one ventures to strike an optimistic note.

The Polish Government is leaving Warsaw.

RUSSIANS BREAK THROUGH.

Russian Bolshevik attacks apparently have broken the Polish lines near the East Prussian frontier and Soviet cavalry patrols have swept forward in a great encircling movement north of Warsaw. In the centre of the Polish front the Soviet armies also seem to have torn a great gap in the defenses of Warsaw.

Prizasnysz, a city forty-one miles north of Warsaw, has been occupied by advance guards of the Bolsheviki horde, who are reported to be approaching towns to the west and southwest. It would seem that Soviet horsemen are advancing almost without serious opposition.

Polish plenipotentiaries will cross the fighting zone east of Warsaw late today on their way to Minsk to begin armistice negotiations.

ALLIED PREMIERS MEET.

HYTHE, England, Aug. 9.—The allied Premiers met this morning and decided to prolong their conference throughout the afternoon. Although no official announcements were made, it was declared that the Premiers had failed to reach an agreement on the character of aid to be given to Poland, and it was believed that a further note would be despatched to Moscow to the effect that the Allies intended to assist Poland in every way to maintain her integrity.

Polish Crisis Causing Grave Concern To U.S.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The situation in Poland is causing grave concern among U.S. Government officials after a week of Cabinet meetings and discussions.

Neither the President nor his advisitors have mapped out a course of action designed to help Polond in her war against the Russian Soviet Government. The President, according to his advisors, is not inclined to act upon his responsibility and it is probable that if any direct request for an American army or for the extension of American credits to Poland is received from Poland, or from Great Britain and France for that matter, he will call Congress into special sessions and force Congress to assume all the responsibility.

The President's advisors have assured him that it would be good politics to convene the Congress and make Congress initiate assistance to Poland. Congress is controlled by the Republican party, and it has been pointed out that if the President initiated any steps in the Polish situation, the Republicans would use such action to support their campaign against the League of Nations.

Should Congress initiate action, on the other hand, the Republicans would be in no position to criticize the President.

Politics was injected into the consideration of the Polish question because of the imminence of the bitter presidential campaign. The American Government, however, has not confined its consideration of the serious situation in Europe strictly to partisan political lines. The State department has been kept fully informed by the British and French Governments of every plan for helping Poland that has been considered and has taken an informal part in all of the discussions that have been conducted between the Allied nations.

The American Government, however, is seriously handicapped in the task of helping Poland because of the failure of the American Senate to ratify the League of Nations covenant.

Queenston, Aug. 7.—Destroyers have been despatched to meet the steamship Baltic and escort it to Liverpool to insure against any attempt to take Archbishop Mannix off the steamer and land him in Ireland. Haven't Power To Change Date, Says Premier

OTTAWA, Aug. 9—That it would be impossible for the Dominion government to authorize the holding of the referendum in Ontario before April 18, 1921 the date recently fixed by proclamation, excepting at a cost of half a million dollars to the people, was made clear by Premier Meighen in replying to a delegation representing the Ontario referendum committee which waited upon him and asked that the voting take place on October 25, the date tentatively agreed upon before the issuance of the formal proclamation. "We have not the power," said the prime minister, "to change the date, even if we were willing and I am not prepared to say that, even if we had the power, we should spend half a million dollars to spare the short measure of time involved."

Would Vote in January

Rev. Dr. A. S. Grant, secretary of the referendum committee, who presented the case for the deputation, by way of an alternative proposal suggested that it might be possible to take the necessary steps to have the lists put in such shape that the vote could take place on the last Monday of January, 1921. In doing so he said that April was not a desirable month in the country districts for a vote, owing to the condition of roads and particularly emphasized the situation in border cities, where he said the traffic in liquor had produced conditions entailing great danger to both life and property.

Save Half a Million

Mr. Meighen in reply, explained that when the matter had been finally considered by the government, none of the organizations asking for postponement of the vote, the Liberty League included, had suggested postponement beyond the latter part of January. The government had decided that if there was to be a postponement the date selected should be one which would mean the saving of the half million dollars involved. "We resisted the suggestion the vote should be taken in January," he said, "on the ground of saving expenditure."

Other suggestions were made by Dr. Grant with the object of bringing about an earlier vote, including that of extending the right of personal declaration to every individual whose name was on the voters' list more particularly in urban districts.

"Here is the objection to your proposal," observed the prime minister, "If you have what would practically be open voting in cities and towns you would be very hard to beat. Open voting could apply in country districts, where all the voters are known, but not in the cities."

Hon. A. L. Sifton was present during the interview, but took no part in the discussion and the proceedings throughout were most harmonious, the delegates expressing their satisfaction with the prime minister's frank explanation of the government's position.

Should Standardize Commercial Laws

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Aug. 7.—Standardized commercial laws throughout the British Empire, as well as standard curricula for the universities of the empire, were endorsed in a resolution submitted to the Empire Press Conference this morning by Dr. A. Barleto, of Malta. Portions of the resolution were deleted by amendments, but the majority of the clauses were carried after some discussion. Consideration of the section dealing with the standardization of commercial laws was postponed. There is a good deal of unfinished business ahead of the convention. Following a short afternoon session the delegates will attend a garden party at Government House. The party left Ottawa Saturday night for Niagara Falls via Toronto.

Four Ministers Will Attend Porter's Big Picnic

GREAT ARRAY OF SPEAKERS—PROGRAMME OF SPORTS UNEXCELLED—WEDNESDAY WILL BE A GREAT DAY FOR HASTINGS, WHEN PREMIER OF CANADA WILL MAKE IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENTS OF GOVERNMENT POLICY.

Four Ministers of the Canadian Government have signified their intention of attending Porter's second annual picnic at Stirling on Wednesday. They are as follows:

Hon. Arthur Meighen, K.C., Premier of Canada.
Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Militia and Defence.
Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways.
Hon. Dr. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture.

This will be the greatest array of oratory ever brought together in this part of the country.

It is expected that people will travel from all points to hear these wonderful speakers.

Belleville is indeed fortunate in being so close to the picnic grounds, and it is expected that Stirling will have the largest crowd that has ever been seen at a picnic in the province of Ontario.

There will be no let-up in the programme of entertainment. While the speakers will occupy a longer time than was expected, there will be no curtailment of the programme of sports and general entertainment.

Anyone missing Porter's second annual picnic on Wednesday will be most unfortunate, as it will be a never-to-be-forgotten day of entertainment and enjoyment.

Candidate Cox For League Of Nations

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Peace for the United States and the world by this nation's entrance into the League of Nations, with interpretations not disturbing its vital principles, was pronounced today by Governor J. M. Cox, Democratic Presidential standard bearer, as his paramount policy in his address accepting the Democratic nomination. THE ISLANDS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE

Along the north shore of Sophiasburg is Big Island. As its name implies it is an island of considerable size, containing over 3,000 acres of excellent land. The channel separating this low narrow island from the mainland, especially at its east end, is very narrow, and is spanned by a short bridge, and may even be forded. Long grass grows abundantly all through the channel, which in summer covers the water and seems to form the island and mainland into one. Here is the constant abode of the muskrat, and at certain seasons the resort of the wild fowl.

It is said that Samuel Peck and Samuel Shaw were the first settlers on this island. The older inhabitants along the bay remember when this island was thickly covered with wood of the most heavy description. It was for many years, at the beginning of the present century, the scene of lumbering operations. Winter after winter, large quantities were cut down and rafted to Montreal in the spring.

The writer has heard it stated, this island was originally, when no longer owned by Indians, bestowed on one Hall, and that early maps designate it as Hall's Island.

Huff's Island is situated to the west of Big Island and forms a part of Ameliasburgh, from which it is separated by a marsh, and to which it is connected at one point by a low neck of land. To the north is Mississauga Point. The island obtains its name from the first settler, Solomon Huff, who settled there in 1825. Solomon Huff was the son of Paul Huff, one of the original settlers of Adolphustown, who came from Long Island, New York, with VanAlystine. The writer has conversed with the wife of Solomon Huff when in her 91st year, who retained a vivid recollection of the time of their first settling, from the fact that when crossing the ice to the island they broke through with their furniture. At the time of their settlement their nearest neighbors were on one hand at Demorestville and on the other at Wallbridge's, on the north shore of Mississauga Point.

Immediately to the east of Huff's Island is Grape Island. It received the name it bears from the great quantities of wild grapes that at one time grew spontaneously upon it. This island, now barren and treeless, was at one time the home of domesticated Indians. Even yet may be seen the traces of the wooden cabins where the Mississaugas lived under the paternal care of the Rev. Mr. Case.

Continuing westward from Big Bay there are to be seen several small islands close to the shore. The names accorded them are not beautiful, but probably have in their origin something significant. Thus, there is one called Hog Island, and opposite Belleville is another called Cow Island. An island west of the mouth of the Moira is yet called Zwick's Island, after the person who once owned the adjoining land. This island was at one time an Indian burying ground.

WIRING DEFECTIVE

A recommendation that inspection of all electric wiring be made compulsory has been forwarded by a Kingston coroner's jury, which investigated the death of Albert Hatchell, 13, who was electrocuted in a livery barn by coming into contact with a defective wire. Evidence showed that the Canadian Fire Underwriters had notified the Hydro-Electric inspector in 1918 that the wiring was defective.

MARKET PRICES.

Much farm and garden produce was offered for sale on the market Saturday morning and in many cases good prices were obtained. Butter sold readily at 68c. and 70c. per pound and fresh eggs from 55c. to 60c. per dozen, the former price for basket lots. Dressed chickens brought from $2.50 to $3.50 a pair, according to size and quality. Broilers sold at $1.25 and $1.50 a pair. The ruling price for potatoes was $1.50 a bushel. Sweet corn brought 30 cents a dozen. Berries were rather scarce and were sold at 22c. for blue raspberries and 25c. for red. Huckleberries sold at 30c. a quart.

Both speak highly of the experience and of the sensations which they enjoyed while in the air. Incidentally they pay high tributes to the aviator, Captain Janney, who is a master of aircraft.—Kingston Standard.

IMPROVING GROUNDS

The Overseas Club of Frankford did splendid work during the war. When the war work ended the Club had a cash balance on hand, and after some consideration the members decided that it could not be put to better use than to spend the amount on improving the grounds where the Frankford memorial stands. The grass has been cut and the grounds look better for the clean-up. Altogether $25 or $30 will be spent on the work. It will generally be admitted that the ladies of the Overseas Club could not have found a better use for the money they had on hand after their patriotic work during the war.

Chemical Plant Will Be Big One

Trenton's New Industry Will Soon be in Operation—Progress Being Made.

TRENTON, Aug. 19—From what can be gleaned from various sources, work in connection with the Chemical Products Trenton plant is progressing satisfactorily. Every move is being made with a view to permanency and the future expending needs of a growing industrial establishment. During the past two months or more a vast amount of work has been done cleaning up the premises and in construction. At times this summer as many as two hundred men have been employed there. At present about one hundred and forty men are on the payroll of the Chemical Products, Limited, in Trenton. The expenditure of the thousands of dollars each month has helped Trenton considerably during an unsettled period in the town's history.

It is understood that as soon as certain details are decided upon the contract will be let for the large building for the fertilizer plant. Other smaller buildings will be built by the company without letting contracts.

Until such time as the new work is started, no additional men will be put to work immediately, but later on as the other work starts, some of those who have been temporarily laid off (because the particular job they were on was finished) will be taken on again, but it is evident that it is the intention of the company to run things on a strictly business basis, and more carefully than was the case with some of the work at the British Chemical Plant, for one reason, there is not the same demand for it being rushed. Eventually, the establishment will be a large one and will employ a large number of workmen.

At an early date the Sulphuric Acid Plant, upon which work is nearly completed, will be in operation, and soon the company will be making aspirin.

A. H. C. Heitman, the general manager, has been fortunate in securing competent men to supervise the several branches of the work that have been going on. J. C. Adam, who was connected with the construction work at the British Chemical Plant from the beginning, has had charge of the brick and furnace work. W. H. Godwin is a master mechanic. He, too, was at the old plant.

M. A. Grace, the acid expert, who was with the British Chemical Plant from the beginning, is with the new company. B. Hawkins, the machinist, is assistant master mechanic. T. Barrow is the electrician. S. Russell, who was with the British Chemical, is also under Mr. Heitman, who is building an organization on a sure foundation.

"ALARM CLOCK ANDY"

Somebody said something once about the month of March "coming in like a lamb and going out like a lion." Charles Ray is like that in his new Thomas H. Ince picture, "Alarm Clock Andy," which will be the attraction at Griffin's to-night to Wednesday.

At the beginning he's a mild-mannered auto truck salesman, who, if you stepped on his toes, would apologize for having toes at all. He couldn't help it. He was naturally shy and he stuttered something terrible. So, despite his efforts to emulate the firm's star salesman, William Blinker, Charlie was rapidly falling by the wayside when a pretty girl and kind providence straightened out his backbone. Then the fur began to fly.

"Alarm Clock Andy" is declared to be in the boyish star's best manner. It was written by Agnes C. Johnstone and directed by Jerome Storm. It is a Paramount-Artcraft picture. A 2-reel comedy, a Burton Holmes Travelogue and next to the closing chapter of 'The Lost City' serial is also being shown on the same program.

RAIN QUENCHED FIRES.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 6—Heavy showers and thunderstorms in many parts of the province have improved conditions in the forest areas and in numerous instances have extinguished fires. In the Vancouver forest district, however, hot and dry conditions are causing the officials of the forest branch of the Department of Lands considerable anxiety, while hot, dry and windy weather in the Vernon area is requiring constant vigilance on the part of fire fighters.

In the Okanagan and Kamloops districts, too, extreme heat and parched vegetation demand active attention. All fires at Prince Rupert have died out and showers in the Cranbrook district have eased the officials of the department. Similar remarks apply to conditions at Nelson and Prince George.

Records compiled by the forest branch show that 471 fires have been reported to the department to date, the fighting of which has cost the taxpayers approximately $16,314.

DR. DANIEL F. FOX.

We always endeavor to choose among the speakers of Chautauqua Week, one who combines the qualities of a great thinker and a great orator.

Dr. Daniel F. Fox is the choice of the present season. He is the "Frank Crane" of the Pacific Coast, writing constantly for a syndicate of papers, through which he reaches a multitude of readers, who eagerly await his message. He has been known to the Chautauqua and Lyceum for years. He is an orator of rare ability, and he is a producer of a worth-while message. His lecture upon "The Mission of the Anglo-Saxon" is one that comes at this period of the world's reconstruction, and especially to a Canadian audience with great acceptance. No one can afford to miss the evening of the Fourth Day. It should attract one of the very largest audiences of the entire week. We assure you in advance that whatever you expect of Dr. Fox you will not be disappointed.

WHIMS OF THE WEALTHY.

Men With Money Often Prove Very Eccentric.

That possession of much of this world's goods is frequently attended by the weirdest eccentricities is amusingly illustrated by the following curious instances:

In Vienna there lived a wealthy man, a Pole of noble origin, occupying sumptuous apartments in the heart of the capital's fashionable quarter, who, when he wished to summon his servants, did so by means of bugle-calls. A favorite pastime of this eccentric was to drive a stage-coach, attired like any ordinary driver of such a vehicle, wherever he might find aristocratic cars to be most numerous.

The Viennese asserted that while he spent a fortune each year upon his raiment, yet he was never clad in any save the discarded garments of his valet. On one occasion the Pole astounded the guests at a ball by appearing in a costume of pure white, with the notable exceptions of shirt and tie, which were entirely black. To complete the oddities, it may be added that when dining, which he invariably did alone at a table d'hote, he maintained his reputation for crankiness by reversing the usual order of things and beginning his meal with a demitasse, working backward to the soup.

It was not long ago that there died in an eastern town a wealthy eccentric who, though he had never for years been outside the grounds surrounding his residence, was accustomed to boast each day that he had walked to certain towns, generally at a great distance from his house. What he actually did was this. Whenever he decided that it would be an excellent idea to visit a distant town, he ascertained its exact distance from his home, and covered it on foot on a carefully-measured walking-track maintained on his premises for this purpose. Should he desire to call on his friends near by, he would do so by proxy, at the same time conducting a conversation with them by means of the servants, whom he sent in relays with certain questions, with strict injunctions to bring the answers as speedily as possible.

A well-known Parisian, according to his own statement, for many years defied the weather by drinking a solution of camphor, which, in his opinion, was an excellent substitute for clothing. It was said that winter and summer alike found him sleeping without a particle of clothing, with the windows of his apartments thrown wide open. It was his custom also to stroll in the garden, even on bitterly cold nights, in a garment much resembling that ordinarily worn by normal people only at night.

Among the wealthy eccentrics of England was a man who lived near Hastings. His fad excited much attention and amusement among his neighbors. Punctually at noon each day he would appear in his front yard with a crimson turban on his head, his feet covered with richly embroidered and jewelled sandals, and with a coolie cloth round his waist. Then he would first pray aloud to the sun, "the father of light and good," and immediately afterward prostrate himself before a quaint miniature temple wherein was enshrined a grotesque idol with diamond eyes. What made his eccentricity remarkable was the fact that he was not of Eastern origin, nor had he ever been converted to any religious faith or cult of the East.

Thermostatic Metal.

A new metal that bends when it is heated has just been announced as a British invention. It is called thermostatic metal. It is prepared by permanently uniting throughout their length, strips of the two metals having widely different co-efficients of expansion with heat so that under a change of temperature the combined strip bends one way or the other. The reaction is stated to be always the same, in a strip of given length and thickness, for a given temperature change and thus to provide a reliable basis for temperature indication, control or compensation in oven thermometers, electric heaters, ice machines and scientific instruments of high precision.

WHEN FIVE MAKES SIX;

A COUNTERFEIT STORY

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 9.—A number of counterfeit $20 Bank of Montreal bills have been in circulation in the city. Counterfeiters have taken an ingenious method of producing counterfeit currency. By cutting a small piece of five $20 bills and pasting them carefully together they have been able to produce another bill of similar denomination. The mutilated note is slightly smaller than the regular $20 bill, but so far the counterfeiters have escaped detection. It is believed that a large number of the bills have been turned out. The business is a prosperous one, as each $100 of currency used yields 20 per cent. on their investment.

SWORDS.

They Were Once an Indication of Rank.

In old Japan—at a period, indeed, no further back than our Confederation—every nobleman maintained a personal guard of two-sworded men-at-arms. The higher his rank, the greater the number of these followers. If a daimio, he had a standing army of his own.

It was a feudal age. But the revolution of 1868 totally demolished the system and 400,000 two-sworded professional fighters lost their jobs. Thereafter they were forbidden by law to carry swords; and when Japan was fairly opened to foreigners, those weapons found their way to the curio shops.

Different causes brought about a like situation in China, where the mandarin of to-day goes about with an umbrella instead of carrying the sword of his grandsire. Thus great numbers of Chinese swords, many of them exquisite works of art, have come into the possession of foreign devils with an enthusiasm for collecting.

We have read a good dead about the famous swordmakers of Milan, of Toledo and of Damascus, but their rivalry was mild compared with that of the old Japanese and Chinese experts in this art. The armorers of Nippon formed the richest and most powerful guild in the Orient. So keen was the competition among the swordmakers they produced inventions the secrets of which are unknown to ourselves to-day.

The steel they made was wonderful. They knew how to make sword blades with tints of violet, blue, green, silver and gold. Swords like that of Saladin, which could cut through a veil or a sofa cushion, or like that of Richard Coeur de Lion, which could sever a bar of iron at a blow, might have been duplicated in a hundred shops in the days of the shogunate and the eighteenth century mandarins.

Some of the blades bore figures of flowers and leaves or Oriental characters, the effect being the same as that produced by the "magic mirrors" of Japan—the tracery now visible, and again invisible — though nobody knew how the thing was done. Many of these old Chinese and Japanese swords are poisoned (so that it is well to handle them cautiously), the favorite method adopted for the purpose being to dip the blade in decayed human blood.

Those were times when the eastern seas were beset by Chinese and Japanese pirates, whose favorite weapon was a stabbing digger that resembled in shape the ace of spades, fastened into a wire-bound handle. The business end of another had the form of the ace of diamonds, ornamented with red lacquer to represent spots of blood. These daggers were effective not only at close quarters, being thrown, when occasion served, with fatal precision.

The Ex-Kaiser In Exile.

"Wilhelm of Amerongen is a sick man, with a beard and no ambition," writes Mr. James Dunn in the London Magazine. "Nine months in a mediaeval moated castle, with a 'Court' restricted to half a dozen fading satellites, and a domain limited to a rose garden, have dimmed the lustre of the ex-Kaiser's personality, and in the podgy man, with the tired eyes and the flabby, sallow cheeks, it is difficult to recognize the once all-powerful autocrat whose vanity lost him a throne, and whose ambition convulsed a world. But the ruling passion is strong even in exile, and Wilhelm's vanity prompts him to ape the king, though he has failed to play the man.

"Every evening he summons the village barber to brush his hair, train his moustache, and trim his Vandyke beard; and then, wearing one of his gorgeous military uniforms, he descends to dinner, a solemn meal ordered with the ceremonial etiquette of past Court dinners at Potsdam. From half-past six till half-past ten the ex-kaiser seeks to recapture something of his lost splendor, and in the illusion of his egotism he really imagines that he is still a superbeing endowed with the divine right. It is Wilhelm's twilight of madness, and out of sheer pity his bored guests minister to his weakness.

"When he is playing the king, Wilhelm forces the conversation. Wishing to reveal what he considers to be his remarkable versatility, he discusses many subjects, from poetry to tobacco-growing, and as he talks he moves restlessly from seat to seat, occasionally throwing all his weight on the slender arms of the Chippendale chairs, with the result that stronger furniture has been provided in the dining-room of Castle Bentinck."

Substitute for Tea.

There are over thirty plants used in different parts of the world as substitutes for tea. One of them is used in the Mauritius, and comes from the dried leaves of Angraecum Fragans, a fragrant orchid, a parasite like the mistletoe, and allied to the well-known vanilla of the odor of which it reminds us. It grows on trees in the Isle of Bourbon, and the Africans have long employed its leaves as medicine, and the infusion of them as a drink. The infusion is exceedingly pleasant to the smell, and in taste something between vanilla and bitter almonds. But the leaf contains no theine, and therefore cannot be classed in its virtues, uses, and waste-retarding influence with that substance.

The Shortest Reign.

It is not generally known that the King of Spain succeeded not his father, but his sister, the Infanta Mercedes, who was, though only six years old, Queen of Spain from the death of her father, Alfonso XII., to the birth of the present king. Altogether she reigned 169 days, probably the shortest reign on record. The Salic Law, which bars females from the throne, does not operate in Spain, and until the sex of Alfonso XII's posthumous child was determined, the eldest of his two daughters automatically succeeded him.

PETERBORO LEAGUE WINNERS

Oshawa, Aug. 8.—Peterboro won the championship of the Central Ontario Baseball Association and incidently their ninth straight victory when they defeated Oshawa at Oshawa on Saturday afternoon by 13 to 3. Patton pitching for the locals, batted every inch of the way, but got poor support from his team-mates. The visitors had only two errors during the whole game, and were much the better team. About 2,400 attended.

In the ninth inning, with two down Patton, in pitching to Cherrett, broke his right arm at the elbow. Iacobi, who was playing third, went to the mound.

A victory for Oshawa would have tied Peterboro', Belleville and Oshawa for the leadership.

Wanted!
New Capital for New Telephones!

Every new telephone adds to the potential value of your telephone.

It is another point you may desire to call some day. It is another possible client or customer able to reach you quickly and conveniently.

If this Company cannot fill its orders for new telephones, the growing business of the community is checked. The prosperity of everyone is affected.

Under normal conditions of management, switchboards large enough to take care of future growth must be installed far in advance of the time when the new telephone numbers will be called for.

Conduits must be laid far ahead of spreading city pavements.

The need for new exchanges must be anticipated by the purchase of suitable sites and the planning of adequate buildings.

Telephone instruments and supplies must be stocked in abundance.

These are commonplaces of good management in normal times and this Company has long been in the habit of making such provision.

But the world shortage of supplies, compelled the Company to use up its safety margin, without being able to create new resources of switchboard capacity or to lay enough new conduits, or to obtain sufficient new equipment to take care of prospective business.

To-day the demand for new telephones is enormous—an average of more than 2,000 a week. The Company is doing its utmost to meet this demand. It is endeavouring to satisfy current requirements quickly. Never in its history has it accomplished so much. But it is rapidly exhausting the amount of capital available to produce even current supplies. Provision for the future is a problem still to be solved!

Labor costs, as everyone knows, were never so high. Material is scarce and costly; some supplies are as high as 300% over 1914 prices.

AND MOST OF THESE THINGS MUST BE PAID FOR AND READY FOR USE LONG BEFORE THEY COMMENCE TO BRING IN REVENUE.

These are some of the reasons why more capital is necessary to the Bell Telephone Company. The other advertisements of this series will show:

That this capital can only be raised by paying a return;

That the Company must be able to offer a return high enough to attract investors, who are constantly being offered other desirable investments;

That the Company cannot offer an attractive return out of present earnings!

That telephone rates must, therefore, be increased.

of Canada

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY—

Let a man contend to the uttermost for his life's set prize, be it what it will.—Browning.

GO OUT IN THE HIGHWAYS AND BYWAYS AND COMPEL THEM TO COME IN.

A Front Street merchant suggests that motor cars on Saturday be parked in the centre of the street, as in Toronto, instead of the curb, and leave room for traffic on each side. Either that, or provide a place for parking purposes with a man in charge—the market place for instance.

The parking by-law is a dead letter already; in fact was still-born, for we want the motor cars and the people who come in them, and we want their money for our goods in the making of a bigger and better Belleville.

The present system of curb parking on Front street prevents many people from trying to make the northwest passage, an adventure as thrilling as looping the loop—crossing Front street on a Saturday night.

Give our neighbors in the country free air, free water, and a free and safe parking place, and they will appreciate it. Indeed the idea could be carried further with pleasure and profit all around by providing a public rest room and place to check parcels.

ROTARY A LIVE WIRE.

The Oshawa Rotary Club is proving itself a live wire organization. Monday evening a delegation several members strong, marched into the Council Chamber, and as Manager Hicks of the local Hydro office was one of the number, our city fathers took it that the Hydro headquarters of Toronto were possibly on hand to take over the new proposed Hydro electric railway.

The Rotarians, however, on invitation of Mayor Stacey, soon set matters right, and in a neat little speech Mr. Smith introduced the proposal of erecting two electric signs at the eastern and western entrances to the town, these signs to bear the inscription "Welcome to Oshawa" on one side and "Call Again Soon" on the other, or whatever wording the Council would think suitable.

The signs would cost about $250 each, but their upkeep would be but a trifle. These are days when people from every corner of America are passing our way by day and night. When they arrive at our borders there should be something to inform them what place this is. It should not be necessary for a traveller to have to hunt up a policeman or stop a native to inquire "What place is this?"

In daylight, big and neatly painted sign boards should proclaim to the traveller what town this is and any other really useful information that will assist him and advertise our town, and at night these electric signs hanging across our entrance ways would shine out in the darkness telling the traveller who we are and giving him a welcome.

The age is upon us when communities as well as individuals must show themselves friendly. We must not only treat a man well while he is with us, but we must invite him back again.

The Rotary Club is to be commended for the spirit it is manifesting in public and community matters, and we hope their spirit will spread its contagion till every organization in town becomes a vital and active force planning and helping to make Oshawa not only a happy, progressive and more prosperous town, but to attract and interest other communities.—Oshawa Telegram.

Deepening the St. Lawrence

(Toronto Star)

The advantage offered by the St. Lawrence River development which members of Toronto's City Council are promoting at the Detroit convention this week are so many that it is no exaggeration to say that every year the complete enterprise is in operation it will return benefits equal to the initial cost. It would enable 90 per cent. of the world's freight boats to pass from tidewater to Port Arthur or Duluth and save probably five cents in transportation charges on every bushel of the hundreds of millions of wheat moving eastward from the Prairies. It is estimated that it would reduce freight rates from Europe to the interior of this continent by from 25 to 4 per cent. By eliminating four of the five handlings of grain in transit from the West to England it would save large quantities of grain from waste and vast sums spent in trans-shipment. It would make ocean ports of Toronto, Buffalo, Cleveland and Fort William. It would cheapen the cost of living, improve North America's position in competing with the trade of other continents, give a bigger return to our farmers for their grain and cattle and to our manufacturers for their output and add to the value of land everywhere.

Coal Conundrums

Edmonton Journal

The city of Windsor, Ontario would hardly have actually placed its order for Alberta coal unless, under existing conditions, it paid to do so. It acted on the advice of the Fuel Controller. A beginning thus having been made, a large trade should develop rapidly. With Alberta exporting to Ontario, it is a very strange thing that American coal should still be coming into Manitoba in large quantities.

THE POET'S CORNER

FORGET: A SONNET

Forget all these, the barren fool in power,
The madman in command, the jealous O;
The bitter world biting its bitter hour,
The cruel now, the happy long ago.

Forget all these, for, though they truly hurt,
Even to the soul, they are not lasting things.
Men are no gods; we tread the city dirt,
But in our souls we can be queens and kings.

And I, O Beauty, O divine white wonder,
On whom my dull eyes, blind to all else, peer;
Have you for peace, that not the whole war's thunder
Nor the world's wreck can threat or take from here.

So you remain, though all man's passionate seas
Roar their blind tides, I can forget all these.

—John Masefield.

A LAUGH OR TWO

Lots of times concerns are mistaken when they advertise "popular prices."

Good behaviour may be rather old-fashioned, but one never heard of its getting a man into trouble.

Whenever a woman says she thinks another woman is prettier than she is, it is a sign she thinks she is lying.

A Disappointment

"And if you are a good boy you will go to heaven," finished up the Presiding Elder.

Painstaking Work.

A French critic who complained of the hasty composition and lack of fine writing among his compatriots drew from M. Pierre Louys, the author of "La Femme et le Pantin," a pained and precise denial of the charge. M. Louys, who has not published anything in several years, says that he has been diligently occupied on a work which he rewrites and corrects a hundred times to each page. This and other works which he has not yet considered worthy of publication have accumulated until he has on hand more than 200 pounds of manuscript.

In the "Revue des deux Mondes" the Queen of Roumania contributes some pages from her diary, written on her hearing of the death of the czar.

The Queen herself was granddaughter of Czar Alexander II., and she knew the Russian Court quite intimately.

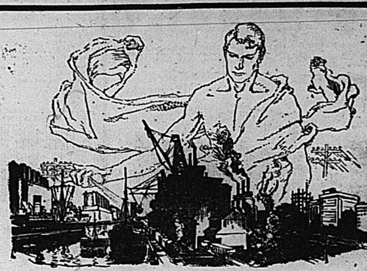
"Without any doubt," says her majesty, "the Czarina is largely responsible for the conduct of her husband; she discouraged him instead of encouraging him, she used her influence on the wrong side. But in all justice I must recognize that her intentions were good, and cannot be blamed; she believed firmly that she was right, never doubted the excellence of her judgment, sure that all that she did would be the best for her husband, her country and her people. He was weak; of the two she had the stronger will; thus she led him without hesitation towards what she considered the light, and what was really, alas, darkness.

"The czarina is one of those personalities that arise from time to time in history. Their power remains inexplicable, and one cannot see from where they drew their force. Perhaps Alexandra really loved her husband; she certainly adored her son; but her attitude towards the world was always hostile. Placed as she was above everything, dominating her husband, she held a terrible power in her hands; if tenderness had held a place in her heart she might have accomplished miracles; but with her distrust of every one she held great and small at a distance, as if each wished to rob her of a right that was hers alone.

"Considering herself infinitely superior to the whole world, she imagined that she could only have been placed there to show to others the errors of their ways."

Japanese Glass Industry Grows.

Though encouraged by the government in 1876 by the establishment of a model glass factory, transferred ten years later to private ownership, the glass industry of Japan was only fairly prosperous until the outbreak of the recent European war, at which time, due to the shutting off of supplies from France, Belgium and Germany, the manufacture of glass received such a stimulus that it now bids fair to compete with the industry in other countries. Before 1914 practically all the window glass used in Japan was imported, but this branch of the industry is receiving special attention and in 1918 its product to the value of $1,756,000 was exported.



BEHIND every industry in Canada—

—from the patient truck-gardener bowed over his lettuces—

—to the young manufacturer struggling to prove the worth of Canadian skill and Canadian material in some new enterprise—

—stand the railways—the intelligence, the power and the hopes of the railways of Canada.

• • • •

Not, like the Exploiter, watching to take harsh advantage of hard-times or the follies of a boom—

Not seeking by a moment's shrewdness to "clean up a million and get out!"

Not interested in the price of real estate in just ONE town, or the prosperity of just ONE province—

But, instead, employing their widely-gathered intelligence in the interests of all Canada for all time to come!

For the railways of Canada cannot be lifted up and carried away to serve any other master than Canada!

Their services cannot find any buyer but Canada!

They injure themselves if by asking too high returns To-day they damage the prosperity of the citizens of To-morrow.

The request for increased freight rates is made with these facts in view.

Canada will still have the cheapest, the fastest and the most reliable railways in the world!

HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE WHEN TRAIN HITS TRUCK

Oshawa, Aug. 6.—George H. Banner, 285 Albert Street, local agent for the British-American Oil Company, miraculously escaped death when the large oil truck he was driving was struck near Ebenezer, east of here, by a westbound C.P.R. freight train. He is, however, at present in the Oshawa General Hospital, suffering from a sore right side and chest, and with his right leg and arm badly skinned. He is able to move only his head and left arm.

The engine hit the truck behind the front wheels, just in the cab, and threw Mr. Banner on to the fender. He was carried on the cow-catcher a distance of about 150 yards. The truck is a total wreck.

Mr. Banner was brought to the Oshawa General Hospital by Mr. G. S. Annis and Mr. H. F. Osborne, farmers in the vicinity, in the latter's car. He is being attended by Dr. Rundle.

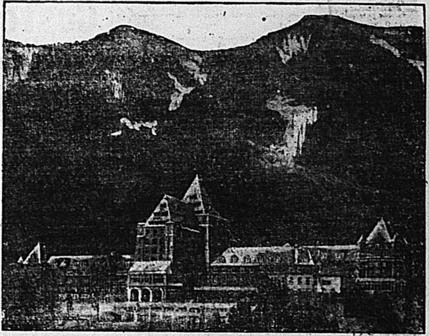
On Foot Through the Canadian Rockies



Banff Springs Hotel and Sulphur Mountain.

Leaving the picturesque station of Banff the traveller passes over good roads through the little village of Banff, crosses the Bow River with its fine vistas both east and west, up through the straight and towering pines to the Banff Springs Hotel which stands imposingly on a natural knoll under the shadow of the great mountains.

Gazing at Tunnel Mountain, the visitor sees a winding trail, and decides to see if there is anything of the mountaineer in him. He walks to the village, turns to the right at the little cobble-stone bank, and follows the driving road. As he begins the true ascent, he follows cut-offs which shorten his walk by many yards. He sees that motor-cars drive around the north shoulder of the mountain and that a pony-trail leads to the top. It is a tiny mountain (5,500 ft.) but there is a fine view from the summit. A climb is repaid. The warm winds sigh through the scrubby spruces, mountains surround him on all sides, the Bow River is but a silver thread from that height as it comes out of the west and is lost in the valley of pines below. Goat Mountain to the south seems to guard the Spray valley. As he looks far down and across the abrupt east face of the mountain he sees one of the most perfectly located golf courses in the world.

The Spray trail may be walked or ridden over. Let us walk. It is only a matter of two days with one night under the stars. A loaf of bread, a small tin of butter, a little tea or coffee, matches, some bacon,—all packed into a discarded lard-pail—tied securely in a warm blanket and swung easily from the shoulders, are all that is needed for the first walking tour. The tourist saunters slowly up the Spray valley meeting an occasional chipmunk, quiet little birds flittering in the shadows of the trees, butterflies hovering about where the sunshine finds an opening, flowers occasionally, moss all about a foot thick and ever and always the gurgling of the river. Calling "enough" he casts aside his pack on reaching an old lumber-camp seven miles south of Banff. He cooks his frugal meal, dreams beside the flickering fire and as the night draws in, rolls himself in his blanket and sleeps. The following morning with breakfast eaten, the fire thoroughly extinguished, his pack adjusted, he crosses the bridge at the camp and takes up the trail toward White Man's Pass. Eight miles beyond the bridge is an open draw on the left (which must not be mistaken for the above pass) through which he makes his way, and three miles more down a rough slope brings him into Canmore—a mining-town of considerable importance. The evening train of the C. P. R. will here pick him up and in a short time land him again among the solid comforts of the hotel.

If time presses, the following day may be utilized by a climb to the top of Sulphur Mountain. This mountain is just back of the Banff Springs Hotel to the west. It has a good trail to the summit, (about 8,000 ft.) and can be taken on foot or on horse-back. An excellent driving road leads to the Upper Hot Springs (about one third way up the mountain) where a hot bath from the nature-heated waters may be had. On this road is passed the Alpine Club-house where the climbers of the world congregate at least once a year—a typical rendezvous for the mountain-enthusiast.

The summit of Sulphur Mountain well repays any exertion spent on making the climb as from that point of vantage a most comprehensive idea of a large area of the country is to be obtained. It is a specially interesting walk for the botanist.

If our friend is still in walking humor, the next easiest trip is to Healey Creek. Obtaining a lunch which may be easily stowed away in his pocket, he takes the road to the village, but instead of crossing the Bow River bridge he veers to the left and walks west on the "Cave-and-Basin Road" passing about a half mile beyond the bridge a handsome group of bath-houses erected by the Government. Continuing on the same road he sees; "This Road to Sundance Canyon." The canyon is two miles further on. Leave the canyon for a lazy day and keep a sharp look-out for an insignificant board on the right which reads; "To Healey Creek". At first the suggestion of a trail is rather discouraging but entering the bush a few yards it proves to be well marked and is easily followed. Crossing Healey Creek about six miles from the entrance to the trail, a small open flat is seen on which is built a game-warden's shack. It is a spot where fancy has a chance to run riot. All about are high, encircling mountains while trails run in different directions. Where do they lead? One who knows the country would say: "Take that trail to the south and you will go over Simpson Pass (6,951 ft.), down to Mount Assiniboine, back by way of the Spray Lakes, then down Spray River to Banff, in all a distance of 76 miles". Or the Banff resident may say: "Reaching the Simpson Summit, cross to the Vermillion Summit, go north to Castle Mountain, cross the Bow River, turn east and come back by way of the motor-road, unless you prefer to stay on the south side of the river and walk into Banff by trail." A third proposition arises at Vermillion Summit (5,264 ft.). Instead of turning east a trail runs due west to Boom Lake, Consolation Lake and thence to Moraine Lake from which point a good driving road takes the explorer directly in to Lake Louise. M. S. W.

COBALT AND HASTINGS.

Arsenic is one of the chief constituents of the ores of the Cobalt district, and since the discovery of Cobalt the production of arsenic has more than met the demand. The silver ores are commonly roasted to drive off the arsenic and the fumes are caught and sold as a by-product.

Arsenopyrite is a common source of arsenic and previous to the discovery of the Cobalt silver ores was the chief source.

Arsenopyrite or mispickel ores are found abundantly in the County of Hastings. These deposits are usually auriferous and the Deloro mine in Marmora township was worked for many years for the recovery of both gold and white arsenic.

In Northern Ontario, mispickel has been found in quantity on the shores of Net Lake, near Lake Temiskaming; in Davis Township, Nipissing District; near Schreiber, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and also in the Rainy River district.

For a number of years a small quantity of mispickel concentraje was produced at the gold mine operated at Goldboro, Nova Scotia. The arsenical concentrate was produced from the residue of the mill concentrate after the gold had been extracted by bromo-cyanide.

Early in 1918 the Food Administration of the United States fixed a maximum of 9 cents a pound to be charged by producers for white arsenic in carload lots. Half a cent a pound additional is permitted for smaller shipments.

While over one-third of the arsenic consumed in the United States is used by manufacturers of glass, it was estimated that 6500 tons would be needed by makers of insectitude each year.

JULY COOLEST IN PAST 25 YEARS

Those thin-blooded folk who are of the opinion that July of this year was the coolest on record are not quite correct in this view, although 1920 had the coolest July since 1895, when the mean temperature was a fraction lower than in the month just past. The coolest July on record, however, was that of 1891, and the warmest in 1916. The mean temperature of that year was nearly 10 degrees higher than for the same month of the present year.

The contrasts between July of last year, and that of this are rather marked. For instance, July, 1919, had a temperature of 90 or over on eight days, and there were twenty-three days when the mercury was 80 degrees or higher. This year there were no 90-degree days in July, and only seven days when the thermometer rose to 80 or more.

July of last year exhibited its height of torridness of July 4, when everybody sizzled to the tune of 98 degrees. This years' July showed much less heat even on the hottest day, which was the 30th, when 86.6 was the glass reading.

The oldest inhabitants are now prognosticating cosy weather in September and a late fall.

FORTUNES LOST AT LAW.

Harry Thaw Case Cost Well Over $325,000.

There are sixty to seventy thousand words in the average novel. In the big cotton case at Manchester, England, Mr. Leslie Scott made a speech of nearly two hundred thousand words. He talked for more than twenty-five hours in all, and, taking all the expenses into account, it is reckoned that his speech cost something like six pounds a minute, says Answers.

The old saying is that the lawyer gets the oyster, the litigants nothing but the shells. The truth of this may be judged by the enormous sums spent over some recent law suits.

Of these the Wyler-Lewis holds several records. It was known as the City Conspiracy Case, and came on first in 1908. It lasted thirty-three days. The opening speeches of counsel continued for seven days, and they spoke 25,000 words. Replies by plaintiffs numbered 456,000 words. There were nineteen other witnesses who, between them, answered about a thousand questions a day.

The shorthand writers' reports cost $250 a day, and the documents were so voluminous that a special room had to be set aside for them.

The sum of $125,000 was spent in preparation for the trial; counsels' fees and retainers exceeded $100,000. The whole cost of the trial exceeded $300,000.

But that was only the beginning. There was an appeal. There were, indeed, several appeals, and two years later the case came before the House of Lords.

After the thirty-three days in the King's Bench, the case had gone to the Court of Appeal, where it took eighteen days, and where the first jury's finding was reversed. Its final stage before the Lords took three weeks. The total cost was well over $500,000.

Next in point of cost comes the trial of Harry Thaw, in New York, for the murder of Stanford White. Nine weeks were spent in a weary battle of experts, who strove to prove Thaw sane or insane. Mr. Delmas, the famous California advocate, received a fee of $100,000, to be increased to $200,000 if Thaw escaped the electric chair. As we all know, he did escape.

The total cost of prosecution and defence combined exceeded $325,000.

Divorce Court cases are often ruinously expensive. Counsel in the Bryce divorce suit, tried in 1907, received $35,000. The evidence in this case occupied seventy-six hours. The case lasted fifteen days, and cost a thousand pounds a day.

Then there was the Castellane case, when Jay Gould's daughter managed to get rid of her foreign husband. The bill presented to the lady is said to have amounted to $150,000.

To go back a little way, the extradition of Jabez Baulfour from the Argentine cost the pretty little sum of $50,000, while, oddly enough, the trial of Dr. Jameson, after the famous Raid, came to the same sum within a very few dollars.

What seems, on the face of it, a small and insignificant dispute may end in the expenditure of vast sums of money. In 1916 five Law Lords occupied an hour and a half in reading considered judgments as to whether a "filler" in a Yorkshire coal mine was entitled to received £1 1s. 9d. or £1 12s. 11d. for certain work.

That 11s. 2d. had been wrangled over in every court from the County Court right up to the House of Lords, over a period of three years, the point to be decided being whether the man was employed by the colliery company or the hewer under whom he worked.

The case cost over $25,000.

Law making is another expensive luxury when a private bill demands the services of expert witnesses. In 1908 the Port of London Bill took the committee twenty-two days. The costs ran to $35,000 a day, or a gross total of nearly $800,000.

As Cannibals See Themselves.

Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson risked their lives on Malekula Island taking motion pictures of the savages. They were captured by the vicious chief Nagapate, and had to run for their lives, just managing to effect an escape. But later these intrepid explorers made another trip to the island, and this time they were received like royalty. What brought about the change of heart of the cannibal king?

Mr. Johnson took with him a generator to furnish the light for a motion-picture projection machine. He hung up a screen between the palm trees, and in a starlit night of the southern seas he exhibited, under the protection of an armed guard, motion pictures of the natives themselves.

So amazed were they at seeing their past actions thus preserved that they immediately set the whole thing down as a work of "devil magic" too astonishing to be combatted. Therefore they figuratively handed over the keys of the island to the white explorers, and the chief personally led them about from tribe to tribe, openly boasting that he had brought them there.

Vocal Sands.

At certain points along American seacoasts "vocal sands" are found in patches, exhibiting a phenomenon that never has been very satisfactorily explained, says the Argonaut. The beach at Manchester is famous for them. These sands, when dry, yield a peculiar sound if struck by the foot, or even when stroked by the hand. At the same time a tingling sensation is felt by the fingers or the bare toes. The sound resembles the far-off barking of a dog, and it may sometimes be heard at a distance of 100 feet. The most remarkable "singing sands" are found on the island of Kauai, in the Hawaiian group. By clapping them between the hands a faint hooting noise is produced. But the hoot-like sounds are greatly intensified by putting a quantity in a bag and slamming it about.

FAILED TO DELIVER BERRIES.

A resident of the city complained to the police that on Saturday he purchased from a party on the market a pail of huckleberries, which were not delivered.

BEAUTY SPOTS.

Much favorable comment is heard of the beautiful flower gardens at the G. T. R. stations, evidencing much care and attention. Travellers waiting for trains are much pleased at the enterprise and thoughtfulness shown in providing these beauty spots.

CASE ENLARGED.

Peter Williams, the Indian who was arrested at Guelph a few days ago on a charge of theft of a bicycle from Mr. D. Peoples, of this city, was on Saturday brought before Magistrate Masson. The case was enlarged for a week. Williams, in the meantime, will remain in jail.

CITY COUNCIL.

At the regular meeting of the City Council to-night the estimates for the year will be submitted for adoption. The members of the Council will take a holiday for a few weeks after the business is completed.

AUTOS COLLIDE.

At a few minutes before 10 o'clock on Sunday night a collision occurred on Front street between cars driven by Mr. S. E. Carman of this city and Mr. Alva Brown, R.R. No. 6. The result of the impact was that both cars were considerably damaged, but fortunately no person was injured. A front wheel was broken off Mr. Carman's car, whilst the mudguards and fender of Mr. Brown's car were broken.

SHOE DEALERS INDICTED

At Binghampton, N.Y., Burke Brothers, shoe dealers, Ogdensburg, were indicted by the Grand Jury on six counts of profiteering. They were charged with selling shoes at $18, making a net profit of $12.15. Leon Freidman, an Ogdensburg clothier, was indicted on a charge of conspiring with Roy J. Owens in marking goods for sale at unreasonable profit. He is alleged to have marked suits costing $10 for $25; mackinaws costing $6.50 for $15; a man's fur overcoat costing $32.50 for sale at $68. He pleaded not guilty and as released on bail.

RESIDENCE PARTIALLY BURNED.

On Saturday afternoon a fire occurred in a frame dwelling at 157 Station street and before it was extinguished considerable damage was sustained to the kitchen and rear portion of the house. Mrs. Mary Wilson is the owner of the premises and the occupant is Mr. Claude Oliver. The latter removed a considerable portion of the furniture from the building. It is alleged that a coal oil stove was responsible for the blaze. The loss to building and contents is covered by insurance.

PREMIER AT STIRLING.

These are busy days at Stirling, where a strong local committee is busy getting ready for Porter's Big Picnic and the visit of Canada's Premier, Hon. Arthur Meighen. Brig.-Gen. Ross, M.P.P., and other prominent men in public life will also be present and the day will be one long to be remembered, for the Premier has honored Hastings as the place where he will make his first formal public address since accepting the high office to which he has been called. Important announcements of government policy are expected and the occasion is one which is attracting interested attention from coast to coast. There will be many visitors from a distance and old Hastings will turn out en masse to meet the new Premier, the breezy young Westerner, who, transplanted from Ontario, his parent soil, developed speedily into one of the brightest public men in Canada. Besides the speaking, an excellent program of sporting and other attractions have been provided. Music, good cheer, sociability, education and entertainment will be the order of the day.

SIDNEY WITHDRAWS APPEAL.

The Township of Sidney appealed against the Equalization Assessment made by the County Council at the June meeting and at a special meeting of the County Council held on August 5th the Assessment of Thurlow was increased $540,000. As a result of this very substantial increase W. C. Mikel, K.C. acting for the Township of Sidney withdrew the appeal.

Called by Death

PATRICK JAMES LEE

Many were the expressions of regret heard upon the street today when it became known that Mr. Patrick James Lee had joined the silent majority. His demise was, however, not unexpected as for some days he had been hovering between life and death. His demise was caused by complication of diseases, but chiefly Bright's disease, of which he had been a victim for some time. Mr. Lee was well and favorably known in Belleville and Hastings County but in the adjoining County of Northumberland. Deceased was in his 56th year having been born in Seymour Township in 1864. In early life Mr. Lee at Campbellford and Hastings was engaged as a sales agent for agricultural implements in which occupation he was most successful. Some years ago he came to Belleville, and was for some time general manager of the McLaughlin Company. By his geniality he not only made many friends but build up in Belleville a large trade for the McLaughlin cars. Owing to ill health he was compelled to retire a few months ago. In business as in social affairs Mr. Lee was deservedly popular and his demise is sincerely regretted by a host of friends. For two years deceased was a member of the City Council having been elected by the electors as a whole as an Alderman. He displayed marked ability as a city legislator. Mr. Lee was a member of St. Michael's Church and was a member of the Knights of Columbus in which society he took a deep interest. A widow, three sons and five daughters survive, all of whom are in the City. The sons are Edward, Francis and Frederick. The daughters are Maud, Stella, Helen, Patricia and Margaret Five brothers and four sisters are living, the brothers being Edward of Colborne, William of Thorold, Fred of Belleville, Frank and Robert of Campbellford. The sisters are Mrs. Wm. Barry at Hastings, Mrs. W. Calnan, of Grafton, Mrs. M. Keele of Frankford and Miss Elizabeth of Campbellford. To those called upon to mourn the loss of a loved one will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of citizens generally.

Belleville Car Kills Elderly Man

A fatal motor accident occurred on Saturday evening on the Kingston Road, about half a mile east of Bowmanville, when Henry Newlove, a farmer, aegd 66 years was almost instantly killed. A Studebaker touring car, owned and driven by Gerald Casey of Belleville, was proceeding eastward when it struck Newlove with fatal results. In the car with Casey were W. Ross, W. Mills, and A. Morden, members of the G.T.R. baseball team of this city, who had attended the baseball game at Oshawa. A despatch from Bowmanville states that Newlove had been spending the evening with Hugh Greenlees from whom he bought his farm, and was in front of Major R. J. Gill's residence when Casey saw him approaching, walking on the edge of the roadway. Casey states that just before he met Newlove he honked his horn and when within a few feet of him Newlove sprang in front of the car, threw up his arms, and was knocked down, the car passing over him. The car was topped five feet from the body.

The injured man was rushed to Bowmanville Hospital, but was dead before reaching it. Dr. A. S. Tilley, coroner will hold an inquest at Williams & Cann's undertaking rooms. In the meantime Chief Jarvis has charge of the remains. He also had the car tested before allowing Casey to return to Belleville No blame is attached to Casey from the story of eye witnesses passing in another car.

Newlove came to Darlington a year ago last autumn from near Barrie and had previously lived at Bolton. A wife and a grown-up son survive.

Couldn't Walk Two Months

Edward Laplume Praises Tanlac For Restoring Wife's Health—Gains Twenty-five Pounds

When Edward Laplume came into Liggett's Drug Store, Winnipeg, the other day, he was so full of the good news that he could not refrain from telling the Tanlac representative all about it.

Mr. Laplume is a packer employed by the Thomas Davison Co., resides at 62 Ritchot street, St. Boniface, and he and his wife have lived in Winnipeg all their lives. It was certainly an extraordinary story which he had to tell and we cannot do better than to relate it in his own words.

"My wife hasn't known what health is for the past ten years. Indigestion has been her great trouble. She never seemed to be able to digest anything properly not even the lightest kind of food. The pressure of the gas which formed after eating was so great that it caused palpitation of the heart. She ofen used to say that it felt as though a hammer was thumping in her chest. Frequently at night this gas would so trouble her that she was afraid to lie down for fear of choking and she would sit on the side of the bed for hours. In fact life for her was a perfect misery.

"Then last Fall she was stricken down with pneumonia and had to be sent to the hospital where she stayed for four weeks. When she came out she was actually nothing but skin and bone, and was so pale and white that she looked like a ghost. She was so weak that she could hardly hold a book in her hand and for two months she could not walk. Her stomach trouble bothered her as much as ever and I honestly did not think that she would live.

"She tried all kinds of remedies; in fact I bought her everything that friends recommended, but nothing did her any good until she started taking Tanlac. Well, sir, I never would have believed that any medicine could have effected such a change in any woman. Why, it has positively transformed my wife. It seemed to settle her stomach trouble right away. She can eat a real good meal now without any bad after effects. With the very first bottle she started to pick up, and she has actually gained twenty-five pounds in weight. The color has come back to her cheeks and today she is as strong and well as ever she was in her life. She can do every bit of her own housework without the least trouble, and at night she goes to bed and sleeps like a child till morning. I simply can't tell you how grateful I am for what Tanlac has done for my wife, and I take pleasure in giving you this statement."

Social And Personal

Mrs. A. V. Tisdale and son Clifford, of Toronto are spending their vacation with Mr and Mrs. Alex. Tisdale, South Front street.

Sir Gilbert Parker, of London, England, will arrive in this city on Wednesday and is expected to remain here for a few days.

Mr. C. A. Schuster, of Pittsburgh, Pa., brother of Capt. W. E. Schuster, of Belleville, is renewing old acquaintanceships here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Brockhurst of Port Colborne are in the city attending the funeral of Mrs. Brockhurst's late brother, Mr. C. C. Atkins.

Miss Bobby Robinson who has been spending the past week with her parents on Earle street has returned to Toronto.

Mr. Eric Carre, manager of the Molsons Bank branch at Lachine, Quebec, has been visiting his mother, Mrs. H. Carre, 276 Albert Street, over the week-end.

Miss Beatrice Sankey of Toronto and Miss Marjorie Thompson, of Winnipeg who have been visiting at "Sidney Cottage," left for Montreal on Saturday.

Mr. Charles R. Cole, who has been embalmer for Tickell & Sons for several years has severed his connection with that firm and left this morning for Saskatchewan and other points west. Where if his health improves he will in future reside.

The "Chesterfieldian," of New York, publishes a photograph of Mrs. Hugh Gardner and Mr. Gardner in their artistic costumes designed by Mrs. Gardner, which carried off the prizes at the New York entertainment which is described as "the social event of the season." Mrs. Gardner, who is a daughter of the late Major Edward G. Ponton, (Adjutant of the Midland Battalion of Batoche fame), was born in Belleville and is an artist and musician of note. Mr. Gardner is a banker of New York, and a councillor of New Rochelle, where Mrs. Gardner's sister, well known in Belleville, also resides.

Letters To The Editor

PLEASED THE KIDDIES

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—Kindly permit me to tender our sincere thanks to those who generously assisted in giving the little ones at the Shelter a very pleasant picnic last Wednesday. The little ones enjoyed themselves to the full and the Board appreciate very much indeed this manifestation of their kindly feeling towards the children in the Shelter. Again thanking the following donors:

Mrs. H. Corby, $25; Mr. George B. Jones, $5; Mr. Frank Thompson, $2; Mr. Arthur Johnson, $2; Mrs. Gribble, $2; Mr. Perry, $2; Mrs. Robinson, $2.50; Mrs. Ostrom, $1; Mrs. J. Hodge, biscuits; Mrs. Snider, sandwiches and cake; Mrs. Chadwick, Charles St., 1 dozen bananas; Mrs. Ruston, lemon pie; Mrs. McBride, two cakes; Mrs. Burgess, 1 dozen bananas, 1 dozen oranges.. Mrs. R. H. Ketcheson, 1 cake; Miss Walmsley, Isabel street, chocolate bars and sandwiches; Miss Wilson, 1 cake; Mr. Luscombe, $1.25; Mr. E. R. McBride, $2; Mrs. Capt. Smith, 50c.

THOS. D. RUSTON,
Inspector.

ROBERT LANSING NOW PROBING PONZI CASE.

Boston, Aug. 7.—Attorney-General Allen, investigating the Chas. Ponzi case, under order of Governor Coolidge, has invoked the aid of former Secretary of State Robert Lansing. Assistant Attorney-General W. Abbott, jr., sent to Mr. Lansing's home, has been in conference with the erstwhile member of President Wilson's Cabinet for several hours. Information of great value is understood to have been obtained by Mr. Abbott.

The Attorney General has refused to discuss the matter. Mr. Abbott and Mr. Lansing also have refused to make any statement, but it has become known that Mr. Abbott had an extensive conversation over the long distance telephone with Mr. Allen, and that the report of the Assistant Attorney General was highly satisfactory. It is understood that a police official at Attorney General Allen's request, has conducted an exhaustive investigation into Ponzi's past, tracing the get-rich-quick artist's movements through this country and Canada, and that he has already reported his findings.

$1000 Fine For Liquor In Car

TORONTO, Aug. 9.—Crown Attorney Corley knows a way to discourage whiskey-running from Toronto to Windsor or in any other area.

"Fine and imprison the guilty, confiscate the liquor and also confiscate the motor car," suggested Mr. Corley to Col. Denison in police court.

In the case of Harold Lagrose or La Grosse, a former Peterboro hockey player Mr. Corley's plan went into partial effect, Lagrose being fined $1,000 and costs or three months. Confiscation of the whiskey was ordered and that of the car would have followed had the power been given by the Ontario Temperance Act.

Two other men, William Whitefield and Hyman Eskoyweman, were remanded in connection with the Toronto-Windsor case.

Plainclothesmen McDermott and Brown found Lagrose and his car in a lane south of Dundas street, between Palmerston and Euclid avenue. In the car were 311 bottles. Lagrose, two other men and a woman were arrested. The woman, Lagrose's 'so-called wife,' as Col. Denison expressed it, was bailed out for $1,200 cash. A fourth man got away when the others were captured.

Lagrose was convicted, but the woman was discharged, after a gruelling cross-examination by the crown attorney.

Lagrosse repeated his story of a fifty-dollar fare to motor to Toronto and back to Windsor. He knew nothing of the bottles. He had two auto licenses.

Brutal Murder Ends The Life Of Little Boy

TORONTO, Aug. 9.—With his throat cut almost from ear to ear, a knife wound which penetrated his skull and abrasions caused by two or three blows on his head, the body of eight-year-old Philip Goldberg, 112 McCaul street, was found at 4.35 Saturday afternoon behind the big billboards on Queen street west, just west of the Sunnyside Orphanage asylum. Every police official in Toronto has been furnished with a description of the man whom the police believe committed the murder. He is believed to be a maniac.

Navy Ready For Russian Blockade

LONDON, Aug. 9.—If it is decided to re-impose the blockade of Russia, the blockade can be made effective within a few hours, as far as the British Navy is concerned, and upon the British Navy will fall the bulk of the work.

A squadron of light cruisers and other light craft is in the Baltic, ready at a moment's notice to begin intensive patrols; while the units in the Black Sea are more than enough to effectively blockade all ports.

The force in the Baltic is considered sufficient and the Admiralty denies reports that another squadron will be ordered there immediately, even should additional blockade work be decided on.

In the event of a final break, it is believed France will bear the burden of land aid, while Great Britain will assume full responsibility for the imposition of the blockade.

Forty Mills Will Be Tax Rate For Belleville Ratepayers

ESTIMATES CALL FOR THE HIGHEST RATE IN THE HISTORY OF BELLEVILLE, AND ON THE HIGHEST ASSESSMENT—TAXES WILL BE HIGH—CITY COUNCIL TAKES A HOLIDAY AFTER STRIKING THE RATE.

At the City Council meeting, held last evening the principal business of the session was the passing of the estimates for the year. It was expected that the tax rate this year would be rather high, owing to the extensive programme of permanent improvements being carried. The rate is exactly 40 mills, of which 24 6-10 is general, 10 mills for public schools, 3 9-10 mills for High school, and 1⅙ mills for the patriotic fund. The Separate School rate is 7 3-10 mills. Upwards of thirty bylaws for sewers, sidewalks etc., were passed, and other general business transacted.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion the Council went into committee of the whole on reports, etc., Ald. Woodley in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid by the various committees were passed and the following recommendation was adopted.

"That the salary of E. P. Fredericks, City Treasurer, be $1800 per year, that the salary of the City Clerk be increased $250 per year, and the salary of the City Engineer increased $400 per year, increases to date from August 1."

Proper Signal.

A communication was read from Toronto, stating that the Board of Railway Commissioners had ordered that what is known as a "wig-wag" signal be erected at the C.P.R. crossing east of the city where the accident to Dr. Robertson occurred, the signal to be completed by Sept. 1st. The present bell is to be removed. Ordered to be filed.

Objection to Walk.

Mr. F. S. Wallbridge wrote the Council relative to gravel being placed on the street for the construction of a walk fronting the Burrell property on Bleecker Avenue. No walk was needed there. Received and filed.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

Enquiries.

Ald. Adams asked if anything had been heard or done in reference to street corner signs.

Ald. Hanna—The engineer is waiting to hear from another firm in reference to prices.

Ald. Bone suggested that the signs be placed on the right hand side of streets when driving eastward.

Ald. Doyle—Water is wanted by parties residing on William street between Victoria Avenue and Queen street.

Ald. Woodley—I will see about it.

Introduction of Bylaws.

Ald. Bone introduced a number of bylaws relative to the construction of sewers and concrete walks in the city, also the following:

A bylaw to authorize the levying and collecting of taxes for the High and Public Schools.

A bylaw to authorize the levying and collecting of taxes for municipal patriotic purposes.

A bylaw to authorize the levying and collecting of taxes for the purpose of the municipality other than for school purposes.

A bylaw to adopt the estimated re-

The Premier Of Canada In Belleville Wednesday

WILL BE THE GUEST OF E. GUSS PORTER, K.C., M.P., AND WILL BE GIVEN AN OPPORTUNITY OF SEEING BEAUTIFUL BELLEVILLE AND THE BAY BEFORE LEAVING FOR STIRLING AND PORTER'S PICNIC — SEVERAL CABINET MINISTERS COMING, ALSO BRIG-GEN. ROSS, C.B., C.M.G., M.P.P.

All roads lead to Stirling and thousands of motor cars, buggies, lumber wagons, democrats and all manner and kind of vehicles are being brushed up today for the big event which takes place to-morrow, Porter's Annual Picnic. Last year Porter's Picnic was held at Marmora and the attendance was enormous, this year it is being held at Stirling which is more central and it is freely predicted that the crowd will be stupendous, smashing all records for open air gatherings in Canada.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada will be the guest of E. Guss Porter, K.C., representative of West Hastings in the Dominion Parliament as will other ministers of the Crown and Brig.-Gen. Ross, C.B., C.M.G. and the visitors will be shown the beauties of Belleville and the Bay and given glimpses of Belleville industrial expansion and prosperity.

Many visitors from a distance will make Belleville their headquarters during their attendance at Porter's Picnic and the city will be the distributing point for those who come by rail.

A number of taxi men will take passengers to Stirling and buses will run so that there should be ample opportunity for all to get to the picnic grounds in addition to the train which leaves early in the morning.

Chief interest centres in the address to be given by Hon. Arthur Meighen who recently succeeded Sir Robert Borden as Premier of Canada. As this will be the first formal public address to be made by the new Premier, it is expected that important announcements of Government policy will be made.

There will be much speaking of course, but it will be plain talk for the people to hear in this critical time of changing governments, uncertainty, anarchy and chaos, a time to grip the solid things of life and protect the homes of Canada from the approach of the radicals who are creating such disturbances and misery in various parts of the world today and would fain sow the seeds of discontent in glorious and prosperous Canada.

In addition to the speaking a big program of sports has been arranged with something to interest everybody, with several bands of music and a happy day of hurrah boys and girls ending with a concert and dance in the evening. So get on your old grey bonnet with blue ribbon on it or your best bib and tucker and away we'll go to Guss Porter's Picnic where all the rest of the folks will be having the time of their lives.

Few To Meet Archbishop Mannix

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

LONDON, Aug. 10.—A less impressive welcome for Archbishop Mannix could hardly have been staged than that which greeted him when he arrived at Paddington station at six this morning. Only the late editions of the newspapers last night published the fact of his arrival at Penzance and only a few knew he was to arrive at an early hour today. A few priests, representatives of the Irish Self Determination League and reporters were present. The prelate was driven to the home of a priest in the suburbs He declined to say whether he had any plans for the immediate future and would not disclose what he intended to do during his stay in England.

Shannonville, Aug. 10.—The Shannonville Official Board is the first in the Belleville district to make the move towards increasing their minister's salary to the $1,650 minimum. They have granted a $200 increase to their pastor, Rev. Mr. Jones, bringing it up to the above standard.

Buses Displace Street Cars In New York City

By HON. GROVER A WHALEN
(Commissioner of Plants and Structures, New York City.)

Progress is the legitimate issue of being crushed under the burdens of cost of equipment, plus watered stock, loot and mismanaged, ceased rendering to the public the service required by their franchise. Large sections of the public were blandly advised that they would have to walk. But they did not. They rode in busses. They paid the same five cent fare and they were carried quicker. The "stand and deliver" policy of the traction interests which issued the successful introduction of the bus system in the city of New York.

The bus as introduced was a makeshift. Privately owned cars such as could be picked up here and there, privately operated under public supervision, was at the time the only possible answer to the challenge. But even with types of buses not adapted vice was rendered the public than by the trolley cars, laid up by the receiver.

But the buses blazed the way for erated bus that is to solve, not one, but many problems of the congested metropolis.

There are now operating on ten routes, over 25 miles of public highvity, 170 buses, each carrying passengers at the same five cent fare but twice as quickly as the abandoned trolley lines in New York City.

First Business in 1919

On September 21, 1919, the first motor buses were put in operation, under the supervision of the department of plants and structures, on 48 hours' notice, the private operator to whom an emergency permit had been isued, having failed to supply service. Since then we have acquired a mass of experience out of which we have formulated and proved certain definite conclusions.

The outstanding fact is that the motor bus is more economical than the steretcar. The fundamental reason for this is that the only capital charge is for the bus and garage. Just what this means may be illustrated concretely by comparing these facts:

The surface lines of the New York Railway Company are capitalized at $703,374.32 per mile. The 25 miles of bus lines which we now operate can be equipped at an average cost of $22,80 per mile. Squeeze as much water as you will out of the trolley line capitalization and you still have a figure more than ten times the cost of establishing a motor bus line. The reason is obvious. As against the cost of buses and garage—the only capital costs in motor bus operation—you have to create for a trolley line not only cars and car barn, but you have to lay down steel tracks, and you have to run conduits under the tracks or wires overhead; you have to maintain the tracks and transmit the power, and you have to produce the power.

The bus system therefore, has an economic advantage over the trolley system that make sfttiiurfleteoh lke system that makes it futile for the trolley to hope to stagger on under its heavy overhead burdens. A system that cuts its capital charge to less than one-tenth is bound to win.

One Man Operation

Moreover there is another economic advantage in that the motor bus is a one-man power. Just consider the claim of the New York Railways Company that the labor cost of surface car operation a year ago was 8 ,56 per cent, of its entire payroll, and that this labor cost took nearly half of each nickel fare. It is easy to see from this how important is the economic avantage of substituting the one-man bus for the two-man car. So much for the purely economic phase of bus operation

What the New York public is now intimately concerned with is servcie rather than capital charge. In this respect the bus not only stands up against tahe trolley car, but it literally runs away from it. In short, it gives quicker and better service. It is a matter of concrete experience that our bus lines have cut down the running time between given points from 20 to 50 per cent.

Unnecessary Too Send Allied Troops

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

PARIS, Aug. 10.—Military decisions reached at the Hythe Conference between the British and French Premiers and their advisers, according to a French Foreign Officer were as follows: First, that it was impractible and unnecessary to send Allied troops to Poland; second, the integrity of Poland western Frontier was guaranteed. This probably means that any effort by Germany to use the present crisis in an attempt to regain any of of the territory ceded to Poland under the Treaty of Versailles would be decisivly negatived by the Allies; third, that the blockade measures against Russia might possibly be taken later, French opinion questioning the effectiveness of such an action, however.

United Veterans Carnival Fiasco

Serious Allegations Made Against Promoter by J. Harry Flynn.

TORONTO, Aug. 9.—The carnival held some weeks ago at the Exhibition grounds under the auspices of the Grand Army of United Veterans seems to have been a fiasco in more ways than one, and the returned men have not benefited in any way therefrom. Some very strong allegations against Freeman Bernstein of New York, who was the manager-general of the event, were made by Vice-President Flynn, organizer of the G.A.U.V., in a signed statement issued at the end of last week. Mr. Flynn states that a full investigation has been made by the directors of the G.A.U.V. into all matters connected with the carnival, and requests have been made to the police to endeavor to have Bernstein brought from New York to give an accounting of the money received and disbursements made. Lieut.-Col. R. H. Greer appeared at the inquiry and admitted responsibility for having advised the Grand Army to bring Bernstein to Toronto to conduct the carnival. Col. Greer thought Bernstein was reliable both financially and as to character

L. M. Montgomery, another witness, who went to New York to make arrangements for the signing up of Jimmy Wilde, the boxer, and to investigate Bernstein's record, testified that his inquiries proved most unsatisfactory. He said the facts were reported by him to the directors, but as the contract had been signed and all arrangements made for the carnival, the directors considered it was too late to make any change in the program. On the night of the Wilde-Wallace fight it was estimated by those capable of making such an estimate of the attendance, that the receipts should be about $25,000, but the total amount received according to Bernstein et al was $14,000. Under the provisions of the contract with Bernstein all moneys received in connection with the carnival were to be turned over to Montgomery and paid into a chartered bank. All disbursements were to be made by cheque. This was not done, and according to Mr. Flynn, the contract was flagrantly broken by Bernstein, who obtained possession of $9,000 in cash, which Bernstein claims was used to pay off the fighters. This row matter was reported to the police, but as no evidence of actual wrongdoing was available no action could be taken.

Lieut. Jack Munro is reported to have paid Bernstein $1,000 for the moving picture rights of the fight, which amount, it is claimed, was never accounted for. Other evidence submitted seemed to show that Bernstein simply had to give orders and all connected with the carnival promptly obeyed, quite regardless of the fact that they were supposed to carry out the provisions of the contract. Mr. Flynn says the Grand Army did not lose any money on the carnival, but it certainly did not benefit in any way. It is said there are still some outstanding liabilities, but the Grand Army does not and will not assume any responsibility in regard to them.

Murderer Still Eludes The Police

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

LETHBRIDGE, Aug. 10.—The third day of the active chase for Bandit Basoff, murderer of Police Officers Usher and Bailey, is under way and though a big squad of police has fairly definitely established that Basoff is still lying close to the district where Saturday's killing took place, every clue they have they have run down in the last forty-eight hours has been in vain. They know Basoff is there, that he is wounded and weak and that he comes out every morning in search of food, but they have never been at the right place at the right time.

SMALL YACHT MADE A RECORD PASSAGE

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 9.—What is believed to be a record passage across the Atlantic for a 35 foot yacht, was made by the Typhon, which arrived this morning after making a non stop run, it is claimed from Cape Race, Newfoundland, to Bishop's Rock, Scilly Islands, a distance of 2,100 miles in 15 days and 9 hours.

Passengers on the boat were Frederick Baldwin, of Toronto, James Dorsett of Washington and William Dutting of New York. They said they encountered heavy seas and came through well, claiming a record passage in their effect to reach Cowes in time for the international motor boat races which begin here to-mor-

THE ISLANDS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE

We next come to the island upon which are extensive sawing mills, commonly called Baker's Island. It was formerly called Meyer's Island, after Captain Meyers, who lived adjacent thereto.. He, for several years, paid rent to the Indians for it. Telegraph Island is about four miles above Belleville, and Nigger Island, nine miles.

The last island we have to notice is Indian Island, situated at the extremity of the Bay of Quinte, west of the mouth of the Trent River. Upon a map to be seen in the Crown Lands Department, this is designated Mississauga Island. It has also been called Fighting Island. There is a tradition respecting this island, to which the existence of human bones found there, seems to give some degree of plausibility. It is even now related that at an early date, a company of Mohawks who had crossed from the south side of the lake, were encamped upon this island. A band of Mississaugas, learning the fact, approached the island cautiously at night, took away their boats so they could not escape, and then suddenly, with superior numbers, fell upon the Mohawks and killed and scalped them all. But the bones found there may have been placed there for burial.

The Carrying Place.

The distance between the head of the bay Quinte and the waters of Lake Ontario, at the narrow part of the isthmus, is about a mile and three-quarters. By this narrow neck of land the peninsula of Prince Edward is saved from being an island. This was called, in the first proclamation of Simcoe, "the isthmus of the Presqu isle de Quinte. It is from this source that the harbor on the lake west of the isthmus has received the name of Presqu'ile.

We have elsewhere spoken of the fact that a Carrying Place had existed here from time immemorial. From the Indian villages, which at times were located, now along the lake shores of the peninsula, and now upon the bay, the Indians started forth, perhaps to ascend the Trent, or the Moira, or to pass down the waters of the bay, or perhaps to coast along the shore of the lake, westward to the mouth of some river. And, when the French had possession of the country, they found this a well marked Indian path. The French had not occasion to cross it, as they either ascended the Ottawa or the Trent, or if desirous of going to the head of Lake Ontario, they passed along its south shore. But in the early days of Upper Canada this portage was frequently crossed by those passing back and forth from the lower parts of Canada to the west. This was the case particularly after the forts of Oswego and Niagara were handed over to the United States in 1796.

$22,000,000 For Ontario Highways

OTTAWA, Aug. 10.—The Government has approved of plans calling for the expenditure of $40,000,000 on highways in Quebec and Ontario. In all $22,200,000 will be expended in Ontario and $17,390,000 in Quebec. Of the Ontario expenditure the Dominion Government will provide $6,800,000, the Province $12,000,000 and the municipalities $4,400,000. In Quebec the Dominion contributes $5,000,000 and the balance of $12,390,000 is provided by the Province and the municipalities.

Quebec Gets Less

In Quebec the expenditure would be larger than in Ontario but for the fact that great progress in highway construction has already been made. Three standard highways including the King Edward from Montreal to Rouse's Point on the New York boundary; the Quebec and Montreal north shore road, and the highway from Levis to Jackman, Maine, are already practically completed.

The roads covered by the plans approved of are all main trunk highways those for Ontario are as follows:

Roads Affected

Windsor to the Quebec boundary at Coteau, via Chatham, London, Brantford, Hamilton, Toronto, Belleville and Kingston, with branches from Hamilton to Niagara Falls and from Prescott to Ottawa. The other routes are from Fort Erie throuh Simcoe and St. Thomas to Windsor; from Toronto to Sarnia via Brampton, Guelph and Stratford; Toronto, Muskoka; Ottawa to Pembroke; Ottawa to Point Fortune connecting with the road to Montreal; Ottawa to Kingston via Perth and the Rideau Lakes.

Start Work at Once

The plans approved of for Quebec are for first class highways and are as follows:

Hull to Montreal, Montreal to Levis, Levis to Rimouski, Riviere du Loup to Edmunston, N.B., connecting with the St. John Valley Highway; Montreal to Sherbrooke, via Granby and Magog; Montreal to Malone, N.Y., via Chateaugay and Huntingdon; Montreal through the Laurentians, Mont Laurier.

Work on these highways will be begun at once and a good deal of work will be done before the season closes.

Lots Of Fun In Alarm Clock Andy

Charles Ray Appears At Griffin's In Laugh Hit That Never Runs Down

Charles Ray is the bashful country boy salesman of auto trucks in "Alarm Clock Andy," another of his inimitable screen comedies which was shown last evening at Griffin's. As Andy Gray, the youthful star has a tough time making a hit in the business world, what with his stuttering and excessive shyness. Meeting and falling in love with his boss's pretty daughter gives him a new incentive to make a fresh try.

The opportunity comes when Andy encounters a big buyer of trucks and, making a good impression with his earnestness, appropriates the name of the firm's star salesman and closes a big order. Complications ensue when the man whom Andy has been impersonating appears on the scene. But Andy gets rid of him by a clever ruse and wins the day and the girl.

The role fits Charles Ray like a glove and Tom Guise, Millicent Fisher and the others in the supporting cast are above the average. It is a Paramount-Artcraft picture.

An interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue, an amusing 2-reel "Smiling" Billy Parson comedy, "Widows Might" and a new chapter of "The Lost City" serial preceded the feature offering.

CARELESS SHAMPOOING SPOILS THE HAIR

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

LONDON CONCERT PARTY.

The London Concert Party will render a unique program. There will be ensemble singing, but the individual work of the artists will be especially stressed. Miss Mitchener will be the Soprano, Miss Dewey will be the Contralto, Mr. Willgoose the Tenor, and Mr. Brouwer, the Baritone.

Miss Mitchener will appear as a soloist in several selections, in both a heavier and a lighter vein. She has an usually clear lyric soprano, which, accompanied by a vivacious manner, will greatly please. Miss Dewey is a violinist of rare ability, and will render various selections. Mr. Brouwer is one of the best baritones in Canada. He has a very robust voice. In addition to his solo work, at the evening program, he will lead Community Singing, drilling the audience in rendering together several of the familiar songs. Song Sheets will be distributed, giving a verse or two of each. This will be one of the most enjoyable events of Chautauqua Week. Mr. Willgoose will preside at the piano, and assist in other ways.

For an opening number the work of the London Concert Party is an offering that will please greatly, and will start the program with a splendid swing. They will give a full concert in the afternoon and a prelude of some fifty minutes in the evening.

Babe Ruth's Specialty

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The three leading baters of the American League fattened up their averages during the past week, but "Babe" Ruth, the home-run champion, who is in fourth place, suffered a slump before Dick Kerr in the last game of the series between Chicago and New York. He was at bat five times, but connected for only one hit. Tris Speaker, the Cleveland manager who tops the batters, gathered 11 hits in 7 games and boosted his mark from .411 to .417 which is 15 points better than that of George Sisler, the St Louis star, who is the runner up, with an average of .402. Joe Jackson, the slugging outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, is third with an average of .395, while Ruth is hitting .361. The average are of players who have participated in 50 or more contests, and include games of Wednesday.

Ruth continues to be the sensation of the league. This was evidenced again in the series just played in Chicago between the Yankees and the White Sox. For the four days a crowd officially estimated at 126,000 came out to witness the games with a hope of seeing the big southpaw slugger crack the ball out of the field. Three times during the series was Ruth able to "deliver" on his specialty. On the second day he drove the ball on a line into the right field bleachers for four bases, Claude Williams was pitching, and it was the third homer Ruth had collected at his expense. This smash marked Ruth 38th home run. Against Faber the following day he was unable to hit, because the game was close and he was ordered passed. In the opening game, with Cicotte on the mound, Ruth was helpless. Yesterday he added two to his record, which is now 41, he having landed on Ehmke of Detroit the day before.

Called By Death

MRS. GEO. HOWARD ....

Three weeks ago Mrs. George Howard, an elderly lady of Toronto, came to this city to visit her daughter, Mrs. R. J. Wray, residing on Highland Avenue. She was taken ill and despite every medical attention passed away at an early hour this morning. Deceased was 84 years of age and had lived in Toronto for many years. She was a member of the Presbyterian church and a lady esteemed by all who knew her. The body will be shipped to Toronto for interment. A family of four sons, Harry, John and Walter of Toronto and Hiram of Denver, Colorado, and two daughters, Mrs. R. J. Wray of Belleville and Mrs. Bradford Tisdale of Toronto, survive.

MRS. MARY M. BRADSHAW

Mrs. Mary Matilda Bradshaw passed away last evening at her home at Foxboro village. Deceased was the widow of the late Mr. Lewis Bradshaw and a daughter of the late Mr. David Reid, who predeceased her four years ago. She was born in the Township of Thurlow in the year 1839 and had resided in this section of the community all her life. Deceased is the last surviving member of her family. She was taken seriously ill a few days ago. For many years Mrs. Bradshaw had been a member of the Methodist Church and a lady much respected.

Still Hopeful

London, Aug. 10.—"I am still hopeful of peace," were the opening words of Premier Lloyd George's announcement in the House of Commons today with regard to the Russian Polish crisis. The House was crowded and tension was high in anticipation of the Premier's "peace or war" statement. He was warmly cheered. M. Krassin and M. Kameneff of the Russian Soviet Delegation were in the strangers' gallery.

The Intentional Pass

There is only one way of course, to prevent the international free pass. And that is to build a heavier penalty against any sort of pass, international or otherwise. E. C. Van Vleck, jr., the old Yale pitcher, suggests that the batsman be given two bases where the pitcher fails to get one strike over out of four attempts. This would be a big help in breaking up any intentional pass. And a pitcher who can't get one strike over the plate out of four trials should suffer a double penalty, anyway. If he should get one strike over and the batsman missed it, he could then go about his business of walking the slugger in a crisis. But the heavy hitter would at least have one crack at it.

This latter suggestion seems to be a first-class solution of the problem—one at least worth consideration.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY—

Trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle.—Angelo.

MOTOR BUS LINES IN AND OUT OF BELLEVILLE.

It is said that the motor bus will be a strong rival of the street car in large cities and in smaller places will supplant it entirely. Of course there is room for an argument here for the traction interests will not admit that the motor bus has anything on the street car in point of economical operation. However, in smaller cities where a street car system would be akin to employing an elephant to move a spool of thread, the motor bus is right there for a profitable passenger service. In a number of places motor buses are giving a passenger service with nearby towns upon an hourly schedule generally where the distance is from ten to fifteen miles. Then there are bus lines making hourly trips to cemeteries and summer colonies with good success. It does seem that with a city so scattered as Belleville and with such magnificent distances to everywhere one would care to go, baseball grounds, cemetery, Zwick's Island, circus grounds, and so on and so forth, that enterprise might try out some bus lines here, including a belt line about the city.

HATRED AND EVIL MAY PASS AWAY.

Senator P. E. Blondin, Postmaster General, addressing the Imperial Press Conference at Ottawa, made an eloquent plea for the higher Canadianism which will eliminate all discord over racial or religious differences and unite all citizens in the great work of building up a Greater Canada.

Said Senator Blondin:—

"To those who fear possible conflict on racial or religious questions, I say look back over the past fifty years and see how the fathers of confederation overcame their differences at a time when the two peoples had been taught patriotically to hate each other, and then also remember that the atmosphere of hate and evil has passed away and the French-Canadians look upon the British Empire as the greatest organized body of nations for the preservation and advancement of liberty and freedom in the world.

"Today the hearts of all beat as fast at the notes of the Marseilles as they beat for God Save the King, and France, which one day had to leave these shores, France has come back, no longer to fight the bloody battles, but to inspire both races with the fraternal spirit of the past five years."

Speaking as a French-Canadian and for his people, Mr. Blondin agreed with General Smuts that the British Empire did not stand for unity of standardization, assimilation or denationalization, but that even nations which had fought against it, like his own, felt that they and their interests, their language, their religion and all their cultural interests were as safe and secure under the British flag as those of the children of her own household and her own blood.

Mr. Blondin implored his hearers to strive to the utmost to wipe away misunderstanding and to rest content that the French-Canadians were heart and soul with them in any work which would bring about an improvement in the present state of affairs.

He concluded: "As you go west you will hear the same voices as those being raised in Quebec, pleading for a better understanding in order that the great work of confederation may be completed."

THE POET'S CORNER

IN SUMMER

I think these stars that draw so strangely near,
That lean and listen for the turning Earth,
Are never wholly careless when they hear
The murmur of her hushed and quiet mirth—
They half-remember and they heed and hark:
A reminiscent sweetness in the gloom,
A music older than this singing dark.

Their summers gone so many aeons past,
Bird-song and bloom and swallow from the sky,
These dead, desireless worlds find here at last,
Something remembered when the Earth turns by,
Sweet with these blowing odors they had known,
This happy music that was once their own.

Weed on Divorce

Frank Weed, the well-known comedian, who has an important part in the Dial Film Company's latest all-star production, "The Tiger's Coat," takes a benign attitude toward the many moving picture divorces that have occurred during the past year.

"The public is too severe on the divorce craze," Frank told a fellow actor recently. "There's at least one very good point in favor of it."

"What is that?" asked the friend.

"It keeps people in circulation."

His Little Joke

Mr. H. G. Hawker, the famous British airman who recently had a remarkable escape from death while motoring at 120 miles an hour at Brooklands, near London, was once present at a discussion as to what was the most deadly poison.

One man plumped for prussic acid, another said hyoscin and so on.

Finally Hawker chipped in with: "Ever heard of aeroplane poison?"

"No! What is it?"

"One drop is usually fatal!" he explained.

YOUNG CANOEIST LOSES LIFE WHEN BATHING

St. Catharines, Aug. 10.—Frank Ayearst, seventeen years old, son of Arthur Ayearst of Hamilton was drowned while bathing at "Fifteen" Beach, three miles west of Port Dalhousie. He was one of a party of six members of the Hamilton Canoe Club, on a several days' canoe cruise along the edge of Lake Ontario. They were on their return trip having left Port Dalhousie in the morning. Ayearst who was some distance from the others and standing in about four feet of water, made an outcry and sank. His companions thinking he was shamming, made no attempt to help him until it was observed he did not come to the surface. He was then dragged out and efforts to resuscitate him carried on unsuccessfully for nearly two hours. It is believed he was stricken with heart failure.

The Friendly Smoke

THERE is something mighty comforting and satisfying about "OLD CHUM" Tobacco; a sort of soothing restfulness that pipe smokers have come to associate with this friendly smoke.

"OLD CHUM" is an old, old chum with all pipe smokers.

It has the perfect tobacco taste—the mellow richness—and men know that they can be chummy with "OLD CHUM" all day long and that the "good night pipeful", will be as sweet and cool as the one enjoyed just after breakfast.

For years and years "OLD CHUM" has been Canada's favourite pipe tobacco and today is more popular than ever.

"Thank you for the raise, sir—the car has run better and cost less these last three months. During that time I've used Imperial Polarine and Imperial Premier Gasoline exclusively. We've had no break-downs, the engine runs quieter than ever and the gasoline bills are not so high."

Low Operating Costs

IMPERIAL Polarine is a great factor in reducing automobile and truck operating costs. A good lubricant is your lowest operating expense, but it is also one of the greatest factors in keeping down to a minimum your biggest expenses—depreciation, repairs and gasoline.

Imperial Polarine saves because it maintains compression under every motoring speed, holds its body and minimizes friction. Keeps the engine in perfect trim.

Sold by dealers everywhere in sealed gallon and four-gallon cans, 12½-gallon steel kegs, steel barrels and half-barrels.

One of the three grades described below is specially recommended for your car. Ask to see the Imperial Polarine Chart of Recommendations when you buy oil. It shows the grades you should buy.

CAMP MEETING

Those who attended the services at the Oak Lake Camp Meeting Association, will not soon forget the intensity of the services held on Sunday, August 8th. The Rev. Dr. Hyde, the great Chicago preacher was heard with rapt attention by the spendid congregations which greeted him at each of the services. At the morning service Dr. Hyde took for his text Isa 48: 18, "O, that thou hadst harkened to my commandments! then had thy peace been as a river and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea." The message was a most heart searching one, was specially intended for the christian and was most helpful to all in constructive evangelism. In the afternoon the tabernacle was filled while large numbers stood around the outside with their faces toward the speaker. Dr. Hyde preached a very powerful sermon from St. Paul's letter to Philemon verse 18, at the close of which a number of young people came forward dedicating themselves to Christian service. In the evening the Chicago pastor preached again taking for his text the words, "And he gave her the upper springs and the nether springs," as found in verse 19 of Joshua, 15th chapter All who attended these services will not soon forget the messages deliverd by the very able divine who has been secured as the preacher this year at the Oak Lake Camp Meeting.

Four per cent. added from November 20th to Jan. 1st, 1921.

Five per cent. after the 1st day of January.

The bylaws were passed through their various stages and numbered from 2246.

Hazard Risk.

Mr. J. E. Parks addressed the council relative to the extra hazard to be assumed by the city by reason of the rails of the G.T.R. being placed in the centre of Pinnacle street. The underwriters think the G.T.R. should join with the city in assuming the risk. The company had no way of fixing the rate as they did not know what the traffic would be. The association did not know what the extra hazardous rate would be. The Board of Underwriters fix the rates.

Ald. Bone—The onus was on the Grand Trunk, when an accident occurs, to prove that it was due to the changed location of the tracks.

Complained of Sewer.

Mr. Orval Latta addressed the council relative to the North Front street sewer. He contended that in front of his premises the sewer was not deep enough to be of any use to him. The sewer was also at this point above the frost line.

The matter was referred to the chairman of Public Works and the City Engineer to ascertain the situation and have the matter remedied.

Motions.

Moved by Ald. Hanna, seconded by Ald. Ostrom, that a sanitary sewer be constructed on McAnnany street from Front to Pinnacle streets under section 9 of the Local Improvement Act.—Carried.

Ald. Woodley moved, seconded by Ald. Hanna, that Ald. Ostrom act as chairman of Parks and Industries during the absence of Ald. Ponton.—Carried.

Ald. Woodley moved, seconded by Ald. Ostrom, that the tender of James Welsh and B. Simpson for excavation work on Jones street be accepted, it being the lowest.—Carried.

Ald. Hanna moved, seconded by Ald. Adams, that Aldermen Hanna, Bone and Ostrom be a special committee to attend to Public Works matters during the adjournment of council.

Unfinished Business.

Ald. Hanna presented a report from the City Engineer, that the cost of a proposed sewer on Burnham street to the bay would cost $13,625.

The Council adjourned to meet again on Monday, October 4th.

HOW YOU CAN MAKE HAIRS QUICKLY DISAPPEAR

(Helps to Beauty)

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove hair from arms, neck or face make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemishes. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone and mix fresh.

BEAUTIFUL DRESSES TO FIT THE FIGURE

Paris, Aug. 7.—Panniers—finished Crinolines—also passe." These are the first points mentioned by a noted French dressmaker in discussing styles for the coming season. It is believed that the long predicted reaction away from both the straight chemise and the bouffant silhouette in favor of a gracefully fitted costume will actually take place this fall; and this house is preparing their collection with this in mind. Lower waistlines and softly-fitting bodices, with draped skirts are to be features of his new models.

"I am tired of these straight, shapeless dresses," said this creator, "every woman, no matter who she is, looks like every other one, and one cannot tell if her dress cost $500 or $10. The cheapest dressmaker can with a yard of material and a belt, upholster—I say upholster purposely—her client in the present style.

In my opinion the most beautiful dresses are those which follow the lines of the figure easily, the skirts lightly draped. This is not an easy fashion to copy, and it is with such fashions that the skill of the real designer comes into play, and distinguishes his creation from those of the beginner.

Sudden Death Of Mrs J.O. Hagerman

Was Alone At Her Home In Sidney Township When Death Occurred

A most distressing affair occurred yesterday on the Front of Sidney Township about a mile west of the city limits, which resulted fatally. For some time past Mrs. Joseph Hagerman had been in ill health, being a victim of some nervous trouble. Yesterday morning, however, she appeared to be better than usual and about 7.30 Mr. Hagerman, accompanied by his son, Carl, left home for his place of business in this city, leaving Mrs. Hagerman alone. When they returned home, shortly after noon, there was no trace of her in the house and a search was instituted with the result that she was found in the barn in an unconscious condition and was breathing heavily. Drs. Robertson and Faulkner of this city were called and upon examination discovered that Mrs. Hagerman was the victim of a drug of some description. A stomach pump was used and everything possible done to save her life, but shortly after 8 o'clock she expired without having regained consciousness. Upon investigation it was ascertained that deceased had partaken of carbolic acid and a cup was found which had been used to drink the poison from.

The victim of the unfortunate affair was 36 years of age and was born in Rawdon Township, being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vance. Virtually all her life was spent in Rawdon. In January of this year, Mr. and Mrs. Hagerman came to reside in this locality. Deceased was a member of the Anglican church, and a lady who was much respected by all who knew her and her untimely demise has caused widespread sympathy to be extended to the bereaved. In addition to the husband and son, her mother and father, two brothers and three sisters survive.

Strongly Oppose Rate Increase

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—One of the biggest rate battles ever fought out in Canada was commenced this morning when the Board of Railway Commissioners opened the hearing of the application for increased rates by Canadian roads. They are asking for forty percent. advance in freight rates, twenty per cent. in passenger rates and fifty per cent in parlor and sleeper rates. Their case was presented by President E. W. Beatty, of the C.P.R.

It was aparent from the start that there would be strong opposition and A. C. McMaster appeared for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association who were willing to agree to a fair increase. Darcy Scott, representing the Saskatchewan Government announced his absolute opposition however.

ARCHBISHOP SPRATT WELCOMED AT KINGSTON

Kingston, Aug. 10.—Thousands welcomed Most Rev. M. J. Spratt, D.D., Archbishop of Kingston, on his arrival from Rome. His Grace reached here on the yacht of W. H. Downey of Brockville. Following greetings a procession was formed and went to St Mary's Cathedral, headed by the band of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery. In the line of march were many societies: the Holy Name, French-Canadian Association, Knights of Columbus, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Catholic Order of Foresters, Catholic Mutual Benevolent Association, Irish Catholic Benevolent Association, St. Vincent de Paul, men of the Catholic parish, delegates from the different parishes, St. Mary's Bugle Band, pupils of St. Mary's and St. John's Schools, professors and students of Regiopolis College, and the clergy in automobiles.

As the procession passed Notre Dame Convent, the girls of the separate schools and the convent sang "Vivat Pastor Bonus." At the cathedral Archbishop Spratt received three addresses one from the clergy of the diocese, one from the laity, and one from the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Dr. C. E. O'Connor read the laymen's address, Monsignor Murray that of the clergy and C. J. Foy of Perth, Provincial President, the address from the Provincial Board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. His Grace made a fitting and feeling reply. St. Mary's Cathedral was elaborately decorated.

At 9 o'clock Monday morning there was Pontificial High Mass, at which the clergy of the Archdiocese were present, Monday noon a reception banquet was tendered to the Archbishop in the City Hall.

WHEAT CROP HEAVY

Winnipeg, Aug. 9.—Canada's wheat crop this year will run about 50,-00,000 bushels above last year's total, W. A. Black, general manager Ogilvie Milling Company, estimated to-day. He said from reports he has received from all parts of the west, by the early investment of heavy he believed the crop would be between 225 and 250 million bushels.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 11, 1920.

Chautauqua's Opening Day A Brilliant Success

AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME PROVIDED — FINE ADDRESS BY CAPT. (FATHER) WATT—MANY IN ATTENDANCE.

Despite the humid weather and counter attractions, the opening day of Chautauqua on the High School grounds drew large audiences at both the afternoon and evening performances. At the afternoon performance the London-Concert Party furnished the entire programme and it was by long odds one of the most artistic musical offerings that has ever been heard here.

Following a short address of welcome by Ernest P. Fredericks, secretary manager of the Chamber of Commerce, the Rev. Beamish offered prayer after which Mr. Arnold, district superintendent of the Chautauqua circuit, explained some of the good things that are in store for the week and promised that there would be no disappointments with what is to be presented here.

The London Concert Party's first number was a violin selection by Miss Florence Dewey. She is a student of Royer and Gruenberg and her work yesterday afternoon reflected the splendid training she has had coupled with a rare natural artistic ability. She played several numbers with a pleasing appeal that won her prolonged applause and she was called upon to respond to several encores.

Miss Elsa Mitchener, who has a remarkable soprano voice, was at her best and her presentation of several difficult numbers was so much appreciated by the audience that she had difficulty in giving way to the other numbers on the programme. She was recalled again and again and the flattering reception accorded her was a fitting tribute to her marked ability and the pleasing manner in which she handles the varied numbers which make up her offering.

F. Lingforth Willgoose, principal of the London Conservatory of Music who was the accompanist at the piano, ably sustained his reputation both as a pianist and as a singer because in the group numbers, in which the Misses Mitchener and Dewey participated with Mr. Herman J. Brouwer, he showed that he has a fine tenor voice. These group numbers were also much enjoyed by the audience. Mr. Brouwer in his solo selections, sang several old time favorites in a rich baritone that was immensely pleasing to his hearers.

Miss Dewey and Miss Mitchener contributed a duet that was one of the big hits of the afternoon, their voices blending perfectly.

In the evening the same group of musicians opened the programme and presented an entirely different group of numbers. Mr. Willgoose lent a note of variety by reciting an amusing poem and singing a costersong that went big.

Mr. Brouver led in community singing and his well known ability as a leader of community singing was reflected in the way he got his audience to take hold of this part of the programme.
of this part of the programme.

Following the musical numbers, Father (Capt.) R. J. J. Watt, known as Britain's First Line Chaplain,' was introduced by Father Killeen and he gave one of the most inspiring addresses that has ever been heard in this ciety. Father Watt injected considerable humor in his introduction but as he warmed up to the subject, "Winning the Peace," he carried his audience with him by his eloquence and wonderful ability to paint word pictures of incidents connected with the war.

His description of the early days at Ypres and the time when the Canadian troops were getting their baptism of fire will be long remembered by those who were fortunate enough to hear this wonderful speaker. His admonition to benefit by the lessons of the great struggle and his statement that the war was won by those who died that we might have the peace will remain for all time in the memory of his hearers.

The programme for this afternoon offers Thomas Michaeltree, known as Canada's greatest pianist, Miss Gwendolyn Anthistle, the well known reader and Mrs. Horace Parsons, secretary of the National Council of Women who will speak on "Canada's Womanhood."

In the evening Miss Anthistle will again entertain together with Charles Crawford Gorst, the greatest bird imitator in the world, who can imitate more than 400 birds.

In response to many requests the sale of season tickets will continue until Thursday morning and can be had at any of the stores advertised or at the Chamber of Commerce.

Attacks Sir Adam Then Apologizes

John Joynt Talks Wildly of Hydro Radials and Graft.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 9.—The same sort of wind that blew up flocks of trouble for J. H. Hicks, the U. F. O. whip, at London, some weeks ago, passed over Kinloss Thursday while John Joynt, of Lucknow, Conservative member for North Huron, was addressing his constituents at a picnic.

The result was that his auditors heard the words: "Sir Adam Beck and his associates want to build radials around Toronto and London to get some graft out of it."

Mayor Hunter, of Kincardine, who declared himself to be an opponent of Hydro radials, took issue with the charge, asserting that "Sir Adam Beck's name is one with which the word graft has never been and can never be connected."

Though Sir Adam Beck ignores the Joynt charge so flatly levelled against him, Mr. Joynt Saturday proffered an explanation to the newspapers, saying: "I have no notes of my speech, but so far as this reference is concerned I want to make an apology, and you cannot make it too strong. My idea was that the radial from Toronto to Bowmanville would be a proposition that would be detrimental to the country, and that we would have to finance it, and it would be a losing game in view of the other three roads.

Never Thought of It.

"It was the last thing in my mind, however, that Sir Adam Beck was going to get anything out of it. He is just as liable to err in judgment as anybody, and I have a right to express my opinion that it would not pay. I think he is a man above that, but I do not think he knows everything in the world, and I just took the ground that it was not wise for him to push this project."

A further allegation attributed to Mr. Joynt in his address on Thursday is in part a declaration of his policy on radials: "I say that it is a steal and a scandal that roads should be built parallel to three existing lines. We want no Hydro radials except where they are badly needed, such as along the shore of Lake Huron, but not like the Ontario west shore."

The location chosen by Mr. Joynt for a needed Hydro radial is through Mr. Joynt's own constituency, once worked by radial promoters in a scheme in which the farmers of the district were heavy losers.

Whole Family Is Killed In Wreck

Five Persons Lose Life in Collision of Auto and Passenger Train

DETROIT, Aug. 10.—An entire family of five persons was killed near Lake Orion 30 miles from here Sunday afternoon, when a special car on the interurban line, loaded with picnickers, crashed into an automobile at Rochester road. The dead are: Edward Spies, aged sixty-one; Mrs. Edward Spies, sixty; Arthur Spies, thirty-eight; Mrs. Arthur Spies, thirty-two and Arthur Spies, jun., fifteen.

The car struck the machine with terrific force, hurling the occupants 200 feet. The victims, with the exception of Arthur Spies, were all dead when the passengers on the car reached the scene. Their bodies were mangled badly. Spies died before he could be taken to the hospital.

Arthur Spies, a farmer living near Orion, had taken his family and parents for a ride in his machine. He visited the farm of John Flumerfelt, and, coming out of the private driveway on the Flumerfelt farm, which leads over the interurban tracks, drove his machine directly in the path of the onrushing car. The auto was struck squarely and completely wrecked.

Payment Stopped On Ponzi's Checks

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 11—Two definite steps were taken against Charles Ponzi, the Italian money sensationer, yesterday. First was the action of Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen, who halted the Hanover Trust Company from honoring any more cheques drawn by Ponzi or any of his agents.

The statement of the Bank Commissioner was as follows:

"I have directed the Hanover Trust Company not to pay any more cheques of Charles Ponzi, the Securities Exchange Company, or any of his agents as the account of Lucy Martelli, trustee, against which these cheques are charged, is overdrawn."

Miss Martelli, who heretofore has been known as Miss Meli, is Ponzi's secretary.

Will Press Claim To Go To Ireland

London, Aug. 10. — Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix, of Australia, says that he intends to press his claim for freedom to go to Ireland by all means in his power.

The archbishop talked freely today after his arrival at the Nazareth House at Hammersmith. "I have received no consideration from the Government," he added, "and do not expect or desire favor or privilege. I do not feel bound by any of their orders, and mean to press my claim to go to Ireland unless the republican government there signifies that my presence is unwelcome. London Is Tense As Lloyd George States Position

the House of Commons—Hopes For Peace

LONDON, Aug. 11.—"We are still hopeful of peace," Premier Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon as he started his speech laying the Russian-Polish situation before Parliament.

The atmosphere was tense as the Premier started speaking, the members listening intently to every word.

M. Krassin and Kamenoff, of the Russian Soviet delegation here, were in the strangers' gallery.

There is no intention of sending troops to Poland, the Premier declared.

Poland's resources are ample, he said, if they are organized by experienced leaders.

Substantial allied stores are available near Poland, he announced, which can be shipped there in event that the Poles and Russians fail to agree on a peace at the Minsk Conference.

The Prime Minister said he regretted that the Labor Party had the idea that the allies were conspiring to destroy the Democratic Government. He appealed to organized Labor not to misjudge the matter.

The fact that the Poles attacked the Bolsheviki against the advance to capture Warsaw, does not warrant the Bolshevki to wipe out Poland entirely, the Premier said.

Railway Board Dealing With Coal Prices

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Aug. 11.—The case for consumer of coal was brought before the Railway Board this morning when the hearing of application of Canadian Railways for increased rates was resumed. J. M. Dly of the Canadian Retail Coal Association declares that coal consumer in Canada could not stand further advance in price of necessary fuel and expressed the opinion that railways got more out of their freight charges in coal than any other commodity. Railways were better able to stand increased rates than poor consumers. Railways brought forward witnesses to show their recent operation had been returning deficits instead of profits.

ITALIAN HOMELESS IN KING'S STABLES

Commendatore Lusignoli, the new head of the Housing Commission, with a touching belief in the goodness of human nature, celebrated his appointment by sending an appeal to the aristocracy of Rome, asking them to allow any spare rooms in their splendid old palaces to be rented out to some of the weary seekers after houseroom in the Eternal City.

All with one consent began to make excuse. King Victor, however, was an exception. He has already made ten new apartments for humble families in the large stables near the Quirinal Palace which his father, King Humbert, kept full of horses, but which, since the accession of the present King, have always been more or less empty. At an expense of nearly $20,000 he plans to construct 39 more apartments.

THE ISLANDS OF THE BAY OF QUINTE

The original Carrying Place can yet be traced. Its course is indicated by a road which leads from water to water. The street is consequently somewhat crooked and wider in some places than in others. When the land was originally surveyed, this path was made the base line of a row of lots on either side. The surveyor being ill, and entrusting the matter to an assistant, the Indian path was faithfully followed. While this irregular dividing line between Ameliasburgh and Murray may appear unseemly, it cannot be regretted that the old Indian path is thus indubitably known. Upon the Murray side of the road the fence is comparatively straight, but upon the opposite side it is very devious. While used as a Carrying Place for batteaux which were transported on wheels, the road was no doubt to a certain extent straightened, yet mainly the old route remained.

The old days when Weller used to haul the batteaux from water to water have left no memorial; and even more recent days when the first steamboats invariably came to this place, have left but little to mark their history. Here is the remains of the wharf and frame storehouse where once was life and enterprise, but now all is decay, and rural solitude prevails. But there is beauty here, as well as interest. All along the street between the head of the bay and Weller's Bay of the lake are buildings consisting of private residences and churches.

The tourist will find abundant food for thought at the Carrying Place, whether he contemplates the far remote past ere the Indian was disturbed in his native abode; or the days when the French Recollet Missionaries followed the footsteps of those whom they sought to convert; or the time when the pioneer surveyor and settler first trod the path; or whether he reflects upon the many human beings who have come and gone on their way of life, now going one way, now another; or thought of the trader intent on pressing his business into the very outskirts of the settlements; of the soldiers—regular and militia, who pressed onward for the conflict, to drive off the invading foe; or of the thousand prisoners carried captive through the province, which they had boastingly came to conquer. If the writer were there again he would ponder, in addition to all this, upon the sad, yet natural occurence, that, of all those who had come and gone, the one who imparted much information to him, who came to the Carrying Place long years ago, is now gone the way of all the earth. The history of the place is inseparably associated with the life of the Hon. Col. Wilkins, whose loss was expressed by "the presence of many" as he was carried to his grave.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY

An exciting runaway occurred on Front street yesterday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock, but fortunately no person was injured. It turned sharply up Victoria Avenue and ran upon the sidewalk colliding with a plate glass window at the side of Mr. R. L. Zufelt's store, smashing the glass to atoms. In front of the window is an opening and into this the animal fell and was extricated after some difficulty. The horse sustained a severe cut on the neck from the broken glass and two of its legs were injured to some extent. The hind wheel of the truck was demolished. In its mad run the animal nervously escaped colliding with autos which were upon the street.

THE PASSION PLAY

France's "Passion Play," rivalling that of Oberammergau, has opened its season in Paris after five year's of war's interruption. Itwas given, as it has been since 1904, in the Passion Theatre, under the direction of M. Pettit, the village priest, with his parishioners as the cast. The play costuming, verse, music and equipment have been developed and improved since the pre-war performances.

There are 16 scenes depicting the Bible incidents from the Birth to the Resurrection. The play runs from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1.30 to 5.00. Intermissions between the scenes are filled by tableaux representing principally, prophetic passages of the Old Testament bearing upon the running story.

The text, where it is not that of the Bible, is the verse of various poets and the music is taken or adapted from various composers. M. Pettit says he has utilied from all cource whatever he believed he needed to make a beautiful ensemble.

The naturalness of the players, none of whom are professionals, critics said, was heightened by the deftness and ingenuity of the staging. One of the difficult things to produce was the Crucifixion, where the movement of the principal depicting Christ on the Cross or, during the descent, might easily be misportrayed. On the cross, the long white winding sheet is draped under the principal's arms and over the two arms of the cross. The ends of the cloth, floating like wings, add much to the effect and serve their real purpose by enabling the characters to lower the aparently inert figure, supported safely as he is, by the cloth under his arms.

The play is to be given every Sunday until the middle of October.

CORNWALL FARMER'S UNTIMELY DEMISE

Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 9.—As a result of being dragged for some distance over the road when his team took fright at a passing auto truck, John Grant a farmer, of Newington, died from the effects of blood poisoning. Mr. Grant was seated on his mowing machine, after cutting hay on his farm, and the truck passed a gate as he drove through to the main road. One of the horses was a spirited colt, and it took fright and the team ran away. Mr. Grant was thrown from the seat and alighted with one limb caught between the axle and a cross bar. He could not extricate the leg, and he was dragged along the road for a quarter of a mile before the horses stopped. His leg and his were terribly lacerated, and although everymedical attention was given himi blood poisoning developed, and death ensued. Mr. Grant who was about 67 years of age, leaves a widow, two daughters and a son Frank, in Saskatchewan. Mrs. Austin Salmon, in Cobalt, and another married daughter in England.

Thee Canadian Bureau of Information during June, collected no les than 1,700 items concerning the Dominion and the bureau's records cover only 22 out of 48 states. This number too does not include Canadian items published in trade papers and special publications.

Statistics for July are not yet availablee, but the present indications are that this month will exceed June in the matter of publicity accorded the Dominion by the press of the United States.

A significant fact in connection with this newspaper mater is that the United States editors appears suddenly to have awakened to the fact that their readers are interested in the people and the problems of their big British neighbor. This is shown in the remarkable increase the number of editorials dealing with Canadian affairs. During June fifty-four editorials of this nature were collected by the Bureau of Information from the papers in the twenty-two states covered. Six months ago—or even three months ago an editoriai of a Canadian topic was but very rarely seen in any publication south of the international boundary. It is probable that during the whole of 1919 there were fewer Canadian editorials in the U.S. papers than during June of this year.

This record is considered particularly gratifying by the officials of the Bureau of Information because the publicity has not been solicited but is the result of the natural growth of interest in Canada.

Chautauqua Week Specials

During Chautauqua Week this store offers many special values that mean money saved by those who take advantage of these seasonable offerings.

White Tub Skirts

—are giving real service these days. They are so cool and comfortable and are so easily freshened up by a tubbing that they are always used for picnics or sports. These are made from good qualities of gabardine, repp and bedford cord, in all wanted sizes. Values up to $3.00, for $1.25

WASH GOODS
50c yard

Included in this lot are Voile, Muslin, Repp and Drill wash goods. All 36 to 40 inches wide. A large selection is offered in fabrics suitable for dresses, tub skirts, middies, or a host of other uses. By inspecting these materials you will probably find several pieces you can use. All priced at . . . . . . 50c. yard

ALL DRESSES
At 20 per cent. off reg. Prices

During this week we are offering every Frock in our large stocks at 20 per cent. less than regular prices. This means a real saving, for the styles are right up-to-the-minute, and the fabrics are suitable either for present wear as well as during the Autumn. Materials include Voile, Gingham, Taffeta, Duchesse Satin, Wool Serge and Tricotine, in all desirable shades. Your choice of any Frock at 20 PER CENT. OFF REGULAR PRICES.

Travelling Rugs

If you intend taking a lake trip, or if you do much motoring, you will find one of these Travelling Rugs a mighty comfortable think to take along. There are just four of them left in good plaid colorings. The regular prices were $16.50 and $17.50, to clear during Chautauqua week at $12.50

Silk Sweaters

In our window we are showing a few of this collection of Silk and Wool Sweaters which have been much reduced in price. They are shown in a number of the most wanted shades, including Rose, Turquoise, Pink, Gold, Green, Black and White. Regular prices $12.50 to $17.50, to clear at $9.50

LAWN BOWLING.

Peterborough Wins Riggs Trophy.

Much interest was yesterday manifested in the lawn bowling tournament in progress at the local club's green on William street. The final game for the possession of Mayor Riggs' beautiful silver cup narrowed down to two rinks from Peterborough and Mr. J. W. Maynard's rink proved the winner. The cup was last night presented to the skip of the winning ring by Mayor Riggs and was suitably acknowledged. The second prize, four casseroles, were presented to each of the players of the unsuccessful rinks. During the progress of the games many spectators were in attendance. The result of the competition for the Riggs trophy was as follows:

Promising Sculler

The retirement of "Bob" Dibble and Everard Butler from sculling removes two high-class performers and gives a chance for the younger crop to move into the winning class. Despite reports to the contrary, Dibble is anxious to meet Eddie Durnan in a match race. It will not take place this year of course, but it likely will next season. Dibble's refusal to go to Antwerp as Canada's sculling representative came as no surprise to those to the inside. Of course, he had intended making the trip if the C.A.A.O. had notified him early in the summer. But as he points out, he is not in the financial position to waste a month or more from Toronto. Rowing enthusiastics are looking for Johnny Durnan to succeed Dibble as senior champion, but it is our firm opinion that this young fellow Steacey of Brockville will prove to be the best of the younger fellows. Steacey, if placed in good hands and taught all the tricks of the trade is bound to improve more than Durnan, who has had the careful teaching of his father ever since he started to scull. He has learned his style, and all he need now is the added weight. But in Steacey's case there are no doubt many improvements a good coach can make, and he is young also, is bound to put on weight. Watch Steacey, is our tip to those who are following rowing.

TRAP SHOOTING

Under the auspices of the Port Hope Gun Club, a trap shooting contest took place in that town today. Mr. M. Sprague of this city was one of the competitors.

Amputated Limbs Return.

Dr. Edred M. Corner, the famous London surgeon, has been studying the dreams of persons who have lost an arm or leg by amputation, and he reports some interesting observations to the Practitioner. It is well known that after amputation the lost limb is still felt, at any rate for a time, and such sensations are called "phantom limbs."

Dr. Corner says these are unusual among the older, and they pass away with time, after eight months or a year the patient being unconscious of the lost limb except when he thinks about it. A man who has lost one limb may dream that he has lost both or that he has lost the wrong one, or that the one amputated is still there, but seems awkward or hurts; the dreamer cannot bend the phantom leg or arm or finds it stiff and heavy.

Badly-fitting artificial limbs aggravate the sensations, evidently by irritating the severed nerves. Cold, damp, changes of weather and absence of occupation for the min[illegible] increase the sensations. The near[illegible] the trunk the limb has been cut [illegible] the worse are the pains and [illegible] longer they are likely to continu[illegible]

Some remarkable discovers about mice were made by Mr. D[illegible]id Hutton, of Dunfermline, Scot[illegible]nd, who died some time ago. He [illegible]oved that an ordinary mouse aver[illegible]es a run of ten and a half miles a [illegible]ay; he had one mouse which ran th[illegible] remarkable distance of eighteen [illegible]iles in that time. A halfpennywo[illegible]h of oatmeal was sufficient for its [illegible]od for thirty-five days, during w[illegible]ch time it ran 362 miles.

For more than a year he kept two mice constantly e[illegible]aged in the making of sewing th[illegible]ead. The thread-mill was so c[illegible]structed that the mouse was able [illegible]o twist, twine, and reel from 100 t[illegible] 200 threads per day.

On the half[illegible]anyworth of oatmeal, which lasted [illegible]r five weeks, one of these mice m[illegible]de 3,350 threads, each 25 inches lo[illegible]. As a penny was paid to women [illegible]r every hank made in the ordina[illegible] way, the mouse at that rate earn[illegible] ninepence every six weeks. A[illegible]owing for board and for machiner[illegible] there was a clear yearly profit [illegible]m each mouse of six shilling[illegible]

Mr. [illegible]utton intended to apply for the lo[illegible] of Dunfermline Cathedral, which was empty, where he planned to se[illegible] up 10,000 mouse mills. Unfortun[illegible]ely, this extraordinary project wa[illegible] never carried out, owing to the in[illegible]tor's sudden death.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY—

Every failure teaches a man something, if he will only learn.— Dickens.

LEST WE FORGET !

Senator Harry Corby left five thousand dollars to provide swimming baths for Belleville. Nothing has been done as yet to take advantage of this bequest and it is said that the matter has been shelved because of the question of maintenance cost. Surely that can not be true while the memory of all that Harry Corby has done for Belleville is still fresh and fragrant. Belleville should erect a handsome memorial signifying the general esteem in which the late Senator Corby was held, and appreciation of his ever kindly philanthropy and splendid citizenship. The five thousand dollar nest-egg for swimming baths could be augmented with twenty thousand more, and a magnificent memorial erected which would be a credit to the city, a civic asset, a benefit to all citizens, and a tribute to the memory of one whose first and last thought was always for Belleville and how he could further the interests of the city and the citizens.

TOO MANY TREES ALMOST AS BAD AS NOT ENOUGH.

"The lack of such a policy and the need for its adoption are evident in most of our towns and cities. Among the evidences are absence of shade trees on some of the residential streets, the planting of too many different species on others, planting undesirable species, too close spacing of trees, improper pruning, damage by horses for lack of tree guards, damage by insects for lack of spraying, excessive damage by decay for lack of tree surgery, damage by pavements to trees and by trees to pavements, etc. All these points should receive intelligent consideration in any comprehensive programme relating to city or municipal street trees. . . . "It is obvious, however, that the official who should have the active direction of this work must, if the desired results are to be secured, be not only a trained specialist, but a thoroughly practical man as well. The ordinary "tree trimmer," while perhaps very competent in his own particular line, can by no means comply with all the specifications required for the position of city arborist. Some of the educational institutions, particularly in the United States, make a specialty of training men for this class of work, and many of the cities in that country are availing themselves of the services of these specialists.

"Some of our western cities have shown commendable foresight in their street policies. In addition to keeping sidewalks and roadways in good condition, the boulevards are made, the grass kept cut and watered, and shade trees planted and taken care of. The result is a uniformity and harmony in the appearance of the street, the trees are kept in order, and are well protected by the municipality. Under such conditions the public take a just pride in the appearance of their streets, and are also influenced in keeping adjoining property in like condition."

PROSPERITY FOR CANADA.

First of all we're going to have great crops in Canada. Our three western provinces will have probably four hundred million dollars to get for their wheat alone; Ontario and Quebec and the maritime provinces will also have good crops. Ontario will have an enormous yield of oats barley and wheat; a big yield of hay and fodder, corn and roots. Potatoes and all stored vegetables will be cheap and abundant.

On the whole our farmers will have a lot of money wherewith to pay debts, to buy things, to put away something, to mark the fact that we've gone over the peak of war conditions.

We've got a load of war debt to face, but we've faced and survived the worst; and the chances are that Canada is on the eve of widespread development and business activity.

Many things will be cheaper. Manufactured goods must be lower to meet foreign competition.

The spirit of speculation, of inflated shares in companies, excessive profits, have about exhausted themselves. Newer and juster systems of taxation are being looked for and will be found. There is to be more public service and more co-operation in buying and selling.

The preachers of short hours, big pay, reduced output, will not save a greatly shattered and dislocated economic system! The world must revise its views on all questions, economic and social. It's never again going to be the same world. But in the meantime it's going to be a world of work, of saving, of co-operation. And a world that's got to recover its sense of humor, of mirth, of joyfulness.

In the meantime the call is for more business, more work, more production, more sympathy, more joyfulness.

Sympathy, business, work, most of all sympathy, will put us on the level ground again. Helped also by a little old-time religion!

CRISP COMMENT

After the estimates are presented and the rate struck the members of the City Council adjourned for several weeks' vacation. Can you blame them?

Actuated by some second thought, a Rochester policeman stopped the evening ramble of a man with a go-cart furnished with soft pillows and downy coverings and lifted out the baby, which turned out to be that child of a sinful marriage of yeast and grain. Absent-mindedness was pleaded, and sure enough, in the cellar was found young Alf, yelling for air. Poor child; poorer father!

The truth is, no doubt, that Mr. Dewart's bitter hostility to he U.F.O. is a case of sour grapes. If the farmer members had accepted him as their leader, all would have been well and they would have been splendid specimens of Canadian manhood in his eyes.

THE POET'S CORNER

THE PASSING STRANGE

The corn is sown again, it grows;
The stars burn out, the darkness goes;
The rhythms change, they do not close.

They change, and we, who pass like foam,
Like dust blown through the streets of Rome,
Change ever, too; we have no home.

Only a beauty, only a power,
Sad in the fruit, bright in the flower,
Endlessly erring for its hour.

But gathering, as we stray, a sense
Of life, so lovely and intense,
It lingers when we wander hence.

That those who follow feel behind
Their backs, when all before is blind
Our joy, a rampart to the mind.

—John Masefield.

Naturally Lost

"What became of the scheme to stamp the date on eggs before they were put in cold storage?" asked the old Fogy. "I haven't seen a stamped egg for five years."

"No," replied the Grouch. "The ink fades six or seven years after it is stamped on an egg."

Hard On Father

Father objected to his daughter's swain—a fact of which the young man was well aware. But the lure of love is strong and the wooer often braved the wrath of the father for the sake of the daughter's smiles.

One evening the old man found the young fellow in the hall when he returned from the club and promptly and efficiently hastened his departure.

"Oh, dad," wailed the fair Phyllis as the old chap limped into the sitting room, "I hope you haven't hurt Arthur?"

"Hurt him!" growled father as he sank into a chair and nursed his right foot. "No, I haven't hurt him! But if he comes here again with bricks in his coattail pocket, I'll kill him!"

LET'S ALL GO TO MADAGASCAR

High cost of living has never hit Madagascar, Kendall K. Kay, former California newspaperman has written to friends. Best prime beef sells for three and one-half cents and rice for one-half cent, he said. Pineapples can be had for one-half cent each and big lobsters for two cents.

General Pershing Retires, Honored in His Own Land, And Much Respected Abroad

AFTER thirty-eight years' service in the United States Gen. Pershing has asked to be permitted to resign. He disclaims any ambition to be a Presidental candidate, and explains that he desires to leave the army in order to take up some more active career. Some time ago he admitted that he would accept a nomination if it were tendered him, but this prospect is remote. Therefore, if Gen. Pershing's memory is to linger it will be because of the part he played in the Great War, rather than the part he played in the reconstruction period. At present there is not sufficient evidence available to declare whether Gen. Pershing ought to be ranked with American generals like, Lee, Grant and Sherman. He did not have the opportunity to prove, at least to the non-military observer, that he was a great leader of the huge American army that was in France in the closing months of the war. When the Americans first arrived in France, in any considerable numbers, which was in the winter of 1917 and the spring of 1918, they were brigaded with the British and French armies. After the great German offensive, the last effort of the enemy in 1918, Foch was made generalissimo, and Pershing acted in a subordinate capacity as far as the general strategy of the Allies was concerned. He lacked the opportunity that four years of warfare gave men like Foch, Joffre and Haig to prove his qualifications for leadership.

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING.

There can be little question that, with the possible exception of Gen. Leonard Wood, Gen. Pershing was the best available American to be placed in charge of the American army. He had had a long experience of border warfare, the only experience open to American soldiers, except the scrimmage with Spain, and had the full confidence of the administration. In Europe Gen. Pershing made many friends among the Allied leaders with whom he was associated. He did not fail in his public utterances to give due credit to the British and French soldiers, and more than once expressed the earnest hope that the ties of comradeship cemented on the field of battle would never be dissolved between the nations. Returning to the United States his utterances were equally fair, though on one occasion he was credited with the remark that the American soldiers were the best "over there," a boast that might be forgiven a general when made on behalf of his own army, and especially as a Presidential election approached. Gen. Pershing has not belittled the soldiers of other nations. He has not been involved with the War Department in any such quarrel as has raged in the United States navy. He has deserved well of his country.

His Opinion.

"What do you think of a man who constantly deceives his wife?"
"Think of him! I think he's a wonder."

To Make a Tart Salad Jell

Jiffy-Jell is for salads as well as desserts. Get the lime-fruit flavor and it will make you a tart, green salad jell. Mint flavor makes a mint jell.

The fruit flavors in Jiffy-Jell are fruit-juice essences in vials—a bottle in each package. They are real fruit, and the flavor is abundant. No artificial flavors—no saccharine.

Try loganberry or pineapple flavor for a dessert, and learn what delicious dainties Jiffy-Jell brings to your table. A package will serve six people.

Jiffy-Jell with its natural fruit flavor costs much less than jam or marmalade.

INVENTED STRANGE CANNON.

It Will Be Open at Both Ends —Increases Speed of Gases.

In the course of experiments in the last two years made in an effort to produce a cannon that would fire a shell about sixty miles M. Delamare-Maze built a gun that upsets all preconceived ideas about artillery, and M. Honore describes this in L'Illustration (Paris).

Hitherto a cannon has been looked upon as a tube open at one end, in the interior of which a charge of powder is burned in a way that will imprison the gases as hermetically as possible in the tube, in order to get the maximum force of expansion at work behind the projectile. Cannons are made very long, so that an ever-increasing force may propel the projectile until the moment it issues from the muzzle. M. Delamare-Maze makes a cannon open at both ends.

In this strange cannon the tube and the breach part are separate and remain apart even at the moment of firing. The explosion chamber is narrowed at its forward end and its external diameter is slightly less than that of the bore of the barrel on the gun, so that when pushed together they escape touching by only a few millimetres. The charge is placed in the chamber through the breach, the tube is drawn forward and the projectile inserted, then the tube is drawn back.

When the gases of explosion expand they exert their force upon the projectile and are turned back by it to escape through the space which separates the two parts. This backward rush produces a force contrary to the recoil, which is added to the propulsive force acting upon the projectile.

M. Honore points out that this is similar in principle to the action of a turbine, which consists in substituting speed for pressure. Instead of the pressure of the steam acting upon a piston, the steam is driven directly and constantly against the vanes of a wheel. This method turns the wheel more rapidly than can be done with a piston, but the power generated is not sensibly greater, for the quantity of energy furnished by one pound of steam or one pound of gas at a certain temperature is always the same, and the power can be increased only by diminishing the wastage.

The new cannon increases the speed of the gases of explosion, but, on the other hand, it permits them to act upon the projectile for a briefer time than is the case with those in an ordinary cannon, so it is questionable whether there is really any gain.

In experiments at Mont Valerien the new cannon, with a calibre of 75 millimetres, fired a projectile weighing 6.35 kilograms at a muzzle velocity of 618 metres a second with a charge of 1,100 grams; of 562 metres a second with one of 1,200 grams, and of 584 metres a second with one of 1,250 grams. Now the old French 75 fires a projectile weighing 7.24 kilograms at a muzzle velocity of 529 metres with a charge of 690 grams.

The French Ministry of War is paying the expenses of further experiments.

Tricks of Tropical Plants.

That plants eat and drink in their own way through the soil is a well-known fact. But in South America is a species of orchid which takes a drink whenever it feels thirsty simply by letting down a tube into the water. When not in use, the tube is coiled up on the top of the plant.

In Mexico there is a plant that likes to change its attire three times a day just like any fastidious person —it is white in the morning, red at noon, and blue in the evening. At times it gives out a very strong perfume, and at other times it is absolutely odorless. There is another odd Mexican plant the odor of which causes people to lose their way and makes their sense of direction nil until the smell ceases.

Central India owns a tree whose leaves are heavily charged with electricity, and merely to touch them gives a person a distinct shock. In Brazil similar electric power is put to lighting purposes. Within the immediate vicinity of such a plant a person can see well enough to read the finest print, and another is so luminous that it can be plainly distinguished in the darkest nights for a distance of more than a mile.

But the most wonderfully constituted plant of Brazil is the ball-throwing one. It is a small fungus about the size of a pea, which projects a ball to a distance of several inches with a distinctly audible report.

The Azores.

The population of the Azores is about 245,000, the number of inhabitants having changed but little in the last century, and, if anything, having diminished. This fact is probably due more to various political and social conditions than to climatic, agricultural, and other conditions of the islands. In the early days the Portuguese literally "raised cane" on the islands, and established a large sugar trade with England and other countries. Tobacco and fruits were also produced in great quantities, but, with the discovery and settlement of Brazil and other South American countries, Portugal rather discouraged production in the Azores in order to aid her colonies in South America. With the sugar and tobacco trade snatched from them, the Azoreans began the cultivation of the vine, and the making of wine and other liquors became one of the chief industries of the islands. The population consists mainly of Portuguese, Moorish, and Flemish settlers, with a few negroes and a fair sprinkling of English settlers.

Royal Road to Learning.

This phrase is said to date back to the time when Euclid opened a school of mathematics at Alexandria. He was asked by King Ptolemy whether he could not explain his art to him in a simpler manner. "Sire," said the geometrician, "there is no royal road to learning."

Liberal Leader Demands Election

Denounces Government at Big Liberal Picnic at Newmarket

NEWMARKET, Aug. 7. — The first number of Liberal picnics arranged to permit the rank and file of the party in Ontario to gaze upon and listen to their new leader, was held here this afternoon, in the riding which the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, with fine optimism, hopes to make his own. As political parties go, it was fairly satisfactory There was not the crowd that one sees at U.F.O. picnics, but it was well attended, and the two or three thousand people on the Fair Grounds found the whole program interesting, even to the speeches. The oratory was rather a heavy meal for a picnic audience, Sir Allen Aylesworth, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and Hon. Mr. King filling by nearly three hours in relieving themselves of their messages, but the program called for a big football game after the speech was over, the crowd stayed to the end.

The new leader of Liberalism was given a cordial reception, although confined to a comparatively limited section of his audience. The great gathering seemed drawn more by curiosity to hear what Mr. King had to say, rather than by the call of party loyalty. Having regard to the fact, that within recent months a leading exponent of U.F.O. principles has entered the field in North York against Mr. King, it was a reasonable assumption that the Liberal leader would make some passing comment upon that development and evidently Mr. King has never heard of the U.F.O. or the U.F.A., or any other organization labelled "United Farmer." Not even when recruiting the list of defeats suffered by the King's lists like a sweet morsel, but a "United Farmer" winner was just plain "Mr." without afflictions. In mentioning the "Mr. Gould," who won in Assiniboia, Sask., the Liberal leader forgot that he was a Farmer as as well as the fact that his defeated opponent was an outstanding Liberal. But it was another Government defeat.

MANNIX TRAVELS WHERE HE LIKES

Penzance, Aug. 9. — Archbishop Mannix, who was landed from the destroyer in a motor launch, proceeded to the railway station where his baggage was examined by a customs officer. In declining to be interviewed the Archbishop simply said "I have nothing to say now."

From the railway station the Archbishop went to the house of Canon Wade, the Roman Catholic priest in Penzance, remaining there for some time.

It is understood here that Archbishop Mannix is at liberty to travel where he pleases. There are two detectives in town who presumably are keeping him under observation, but they are not interfering in any way with his movements.

LITTLE THOROLD GIRL WAS STRANGLED

St. Catharines, Aug. 10.—David McNeal, held on suspicion and wanted in Philadelphia on a charge of burglary, was accused of the murder of little four-year-old Margaret Beaucock of Thorold by Coroner Herod's jury this afternoon. Strangulation was given as the cause of death. The verdict as brought in read: "That Margaret Beaucock came to her death on the afternoon or evening of July 13, 1920, by strangulation, and we find that the said Margaret Beaucock was last seen in the company of David McNeal walking toward the spot where her remains were found, and we are of opinion from the evidence that her death was caused by the hands of the said David McNeal."

DRUGGIST COMES OUT WITH ALL THE FACTS

"We Have Never Had A Medicine In The Store That Gave Such Satisfaction" He Declares.

"Afer my personal experience with the medicine, I do not hesitate to say that Tanlac is the finest tonic system purifier that was ever handled over a druggist's counter," was the very remarkable statement made by Alphonse LeCavslier, druggist at Dr. LeDuc's drug store, 1658 St. Catherine St. East, Montreal, recently.

"I had had acute indigestion for the last three years and could find nothing to relieve me. After every meal I used to feel as though I had swallowed some hard substance. The gas would form so as to nearly suffocate me and cause my heart to palpitate. I had no appetite whatever and the distress caused by indigestion was especially bad at night and hindered me from sleeping. I was fidgety and nervous, and when at last I did drop off to sleep, I would have the most frightful nightmare, and wake up with a start to find myself in a bath of perspiration. My complexion was very sallow, and I got so weak that I felt as though I must give up altogether and go to bed. In fact I was in a complete state of nervous prostration and exhaustion.

"We never had a medicine in the store that sold like Tanlac, or that gave such general satisfaction. So many people who bought it told me that they had been benefited by it, that I decided to try it myself. The result exceded all my expectations for Tanlac did more for me than any other medicine I ever tried. I now have a splendid appetite and my digestion is perfet. I have the most refreshing sleep at night, undisturbed by nightmare. My complexion is fine and healthy. I have gained several pounds in weight and feel as well and strong as can be. After this I shall take special pleasure in recommending Tanlac for I now know spemending Tanlac for I now know from personal experience what it will dö."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

WEDDING BELLS

BEDELL—BRICKMAN.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett and Mrs. Annie Brickman was the scene of a very pretty and interesting wedding when Vera Eugena became the bride of Frank H. Bedell, youngest son of Mr. Gilbert Bedell, of Cannifton, Rev. L. M. Sharpe, of Rednersville, officiating.

The bride took her place under the arch, which was very pretty, being constructed of evergreens and flowers on the beautifully decorated verandah, being escorted by her brother Everett, who gave her away.

Miss Audra Brickman, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Mr. Morley Wellbanks doing the honors for the groom.

The bride was daintily and tastefully attired in a grown of sand colored taffeta, and carried a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas with ferns.

The bridesmaid wore a charming gown of pearl grey satin and georgette and carried pink sweet peas. Miss Beryl Weese, who played the wedding march, wore wine colored messaline combined with georgette crepe.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a pearl brooch and to the groomsman a pearl tie pin, and to the pianist a gold bar brooch set with topaz.

Following the ceremony Miss Audra Brickman sang "Until," while the register was being signed, after which about fifty guests repaired to the lawn, where tables were laid under a tent artistically decorated for the occasion with evergreens, flowers and ribbon. The bride's table was centered with a wedding cake, surrounded with ribbons and flowers.

Amid showers of confetti, rice and good wishes, Mr. and Mrs. Bedell left by motor for Belleville, where they took train for Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a suit of navy serge, opening over a dainty blouse of georgette. A hat of sand straw, trimmed with tulle and flowers and dainty veil completed her chic costume. She is one of Victoria's popular young ladies and will be greatly missed in the community. They will reside in Belleville.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bedell, Cannifton, in honor of their son, Mr. Frank Bedell and his bride, on Wednesday evening, August 4th.

TRIMBLE—CONNORS

A very quiet wedding took place at St. Monica's Caurch, North Toronto, on Monday morning when Miss Marjorie Connors, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Connors, 2459 Yonge street became the wife of Herbert Trimble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Trimble of Picton and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Trimble, Soudan avenue, Toronto. The ceremony which was performed by the pastor, Rev. Father Dollard was witnessed by only the immediate relatives of the contracting couple Mrs .Trimble left for Montreal on their wedding trip after which they will reside in Picton.

The Rusting of Steel.

Recent research has shown that a protective influence against the rusting of steel is exerted by a copper content that would be described by an analyst as a trace. By increasing the copper content from .01 to .03 per cent. the corrosion is decreased by 30 to 40 per cent. Steel with a considerable excess of sulphur can be protected by a copper percentage of .15.

Height of Happiness.

"What is the height of happiness?" mused the philosophical girl. "Well, in my case," laughed the pretty bride, "he is about five feet ten."

Ancient Origin of Tools.

The story of the mechanical aids of human history has been much neglected. Thousands have described the sculptures of the Parthenon, yet no one has mentioned the tools that carved those fluted columns. We naturally suppose that our present day tools have far better forms than those of past ages. That is true in many cases, but not always.

It appears that the forms of the chisel were perfected 2,500 years ago, and that the beauty of workmanship in Bronze Age chisels has never been exceeded.

The use of saws and crown drills with fixed teeth of corundum or gem stones for cutting quartz rocks was the regular practice in Egypt 6,000 years ago. The cores produced were so perfect and clean cut that any modern engineer would be proud to turn out such good work with the best diamond drills. The saws were over eight feet long, and cut blocks of granite seven and a half feet long. That splendid work was forgotten; the Romans did not use such tools, and some thousands of years passed before the same tools were reinvented fifty years ago.

The carpenter's saw was at first merely a blade roughly hacked on the edge; by 4,500 B.C. it had regular teeth, sloping equally both ways; by 900 B.C. the Italians gave a rake to the teeth to make them cut in one direction, instead of merely scraping as before. No ancient saw, however, made a kerf wider than the thickness of the blade; we do not know when the saw that makes a wider kerf was invented, but it was some time in the Middle Ages.

The Egyptians used a push saw as the earliest form; the pull saw was the only one in the west and the Roman world. The push saw came back into use a few centuries ago, although the pull saw in a frame is still universal in the east.

PILGRIMS FOR MECCA

Scores of Mohammedan Moros are reported assembling at Zamboanga, Island of Mindanao, to make the pilgrimage to the great Mosque at Mecca. Many have saved for years to make the trip, which according to Mohammedan faith, every believer should undertake at some time during his life. Government officials at Zamboanga say many who have made the pilgrimmage in years past have returned broken in health and stripped of their belongings. Often they have been brought home at government expense.

FARM WATER SUPPLY

Attend to This as a Safeguard to Health.

Polluted Water Causes Much Typhoid —Get Your Drinking Water Tested—Septic Tank for Sewage Disposal.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

WATER pollution is responsible for many outbreaks of typhoid fever. This is due to the fact that the typhoid bacillus is frequently present in sewage or surface seepage with which the water supply is so easily contaminated if proper care is not taken to prevent such contamination.

Typhoid bacilli get into sewage from two sources, viz., typhoid patients or convalescents and typhoid carriers. The excreta, both solid and liquid, from such individuals is liable to contain millions of the typhoid bacilli, consequently anything that gets contaminated therewith, particularly food materials or water, is liable to spread the disease.

In connection with the water supply of towns and cities steps are usually taken by the authorities to see that seepage contamination does not occur or to see that the water is purified should contamination take place, as it occasionally does, even when great care is taken to prevent it. Frequent bacteriological analyses are made of such water supplies and these readily show the presence of sewage bacteria, should contamination occur. The water may look bright and clear and still have many sewage bacteria, including the typhoid bacilli, present in it. If these are found the water is purified, usually by chlorination.

In connection with the private water supply on the farm and in small rural communities where dependence is largely placed on wells and springs as sources of water used for household purposes, it is essential that adequate measures be taken to prevent contamination of these sources of supply.

Again and again outbreaks of typhoid fever have occurred on farms where the well or spring from which the household water is obtained has become contaminated. In such cases the trouble does not usually remain confined to the farm, as the contaminated water, when used for washing dairy utensils, milk pails and cans, and for cooling the milk is liable to contaminate the milk. Then when the typhoid bacilli get into the milk from the contaminated pails, cans, milkers' hands, etc., they multiply rapidly and the consumers of such milk are liable to develop typhoid. Many outbreaks of typhoid fever in towns and cities have been traced to the contaminated well water on the farm from which milk has been sent for use in such towns and cities. Hence the necessity for the strictest care being taken to prevent contamination of the sources of water supply on the farm. Should contamination occur it means danger not only for the farmer and his household but for the entire community that uses the products, especially the milk, from the farm.

Every care should be taken to prevent surface drainage or seepage getting into the well or spring, because such drainage or seepage may contain the typhoid bacilli that have been given off by typhoid convalescents or carriers.—Prof. D. H. Jones, O. A. College, Guelph.

Septic Tank for Sewage Disposal.

This system consists ordinarily of a two-chamber concrete, waterproof tank equipped with an inlet, overflow and vent pipe, and an automatic siphon for emptying the tank of the liquid sewage from time to time, and a system of tile, called the "absorption bed," consisting of several parallel rows of 3 or 4 inch land tile laid with open joints, almost level, and shallow, and branching off from a main line of sewer pipe which connects it to the tank. For the ordinary sized home each tank should be about 3 feet square and 3 feet deep, and 150 feet to 200 feet of land tile would be required for the absorption bed. The vitrified sewer tile is best for the main and the number of them will depend upon the distance of the absorption bed from the tank.

The sewage enters one chamber by a 4-inch inlet pipe, where it is decomposed to a large extent by a certain kind of bacteria, thence in a semi-liquid condition it passes over into the other chamber through a 4-inch overflow pipe. Here it remains until a depth of about 18 inches is reached, when the siphon automatically comes into operation and discharges it in a couple of minutes into the main sewer pipe, from which it passes into the rows of tile. Through the open joints in these it escapes into the top layer of soil where another kind of bacteria completes the work of destruction began by the ones in the tank. The bacteria in the tank thrive and work best in the dark and away from the air, while those in the soil require plenty of air, hence the tanks must be kept tightly closed except for a small vent for escape of decomposition gases, and the land tile laid near the surface. The intermittent flushing of the tank by the siphon favors the bacterial action in the soil by increasing soil ventilation, the air being forced out of the soil on discharge of siphon and afterwards coming back into it pure and fresh.

If this system be properly installed it will dispose of sewage in a very satisfactory manner and without endangering the water supply. Complete plans in blue-print form for installing it may be secured for the writing from the Department of Physics, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont.—R. R. Graham, O. A. College, Guelph.

TOURISTS TO SLEEP IN CRUSOE'S CAVE

Robinson Crusoe's cave may soon be converted into sleeping quarters for globe trotters, acording to Prof. W. A. Bryan, vice president of the Hawaiian Historical Society. The Chilean Government, Mr. Bryan said recently, is considering creating a national park and tourist resort on the Island of Juan Fernande, famed as abode of Daniel Defoe's literary character.

Modern hotels and other attractions would be erected on the island, according to plans being considered. The beauty and verdure of the island, Mr. Bryan says, is similar to the oldest park in the Hawaiian Islands.

Two nights were spent by Professor Bryan recently in Robinson Crusoe's cave. The professor is at present in the south seas seeking proof of his theory of an immense submerged continent in the Pacific.

is considered by many a summer disease. Typhoid fever can be avoided by having the various organs of elimination functioning normally. If no waste material is allowed to remain in the alimentary tract to ferment, permitting poisons and toxic gases to accumulate you need not worry about typhoid fever or other cleansing diseases such as smallpox, etc.

Keep your body in good running order. You cannot do this by putting more poison into your body. Rather allow your organs and tissues to get their proper supply of innervation. This will permit them to perform their duties and that all important process of elimination will be normal.

PREMIER OF CANADA MADE STIRRING ADDRESS

GOVERNMENT POLICY

IMMENSE CROWD AT PORTER'S PICNIC LISTENS TO ELOQUENT ADDRESS BY PRIME MINISTER OF CANADA—POLICY OF GOVERNMENT OUTLINED—BRIG-GEN. ROSS, DR. TOLMIE AND OTHER SPEAKERS — GREAT DAY AT STIRLING.

Vigorous condemnation of the agrarian party and the Liberal opposition; emphatic pronouncement in favor of the continuance in force by Canada of its present fiscal system and warm praise for the war and general record of the Union Government characterized Hon. Arthur Meighen's speech at Stirling village, Hastings County Wednesday afternoon. It was from first to last a speech militant, the Prime Minister having evidently decided to throw down the gauntlet to all and sundry opponents in his first pronouncement of governmental policy since assuming the mantle of government leadership The present administration in this connection he described as "the direct and legitimate successors of the government that retired with Sir Robert Borden." Out of the union of parties which formed the Union Government he declared, "has grown the new National Liberal-Conservative party. No political party in the world was ever better born or better bred. It was born out of the war and it is National because its care is the nation."

Defending the present fiscal system the Prime Minister emphasized the need for its continuance both for the maintenance of the industrial life of the nation and the provision of necessary revenues. It was only by making more goods that could be sold in the United States that the value of the Canadian dollar could be maintained on the other side of the border. In support of this contention he quoted a member of a western Liberal government as saying: "Put the platform of the farmers into effect and you would immediately reduce the value of the Canadian dollar in the United States to fifty cents."

Protect Industries

Mr. Meighen commended the tariff platform on which the Australian government was elected and which declares for the protection of industries born during the war, the encouragement of others that are desirable, and the extension of existing ones. He quoted the platform of the Labor party of the Commonwealth in its support of adequate protection and declared that the firs people who would suffer by the adoption of any policy approaching free trade would be the laboring classes. He denied that the tariff had been oppressive to the agricultural interests of Canada. "The tariff never has been oppressive to agriculture under any government and it never will be so long as I have anything to do in determining the tariff policy in Canada," the Prime Minister asserted and the remark was greeted with vigorous applause. As for the third party in Parliament, no member of that party had ever taken the trouble to move the Farmers' platform, by way of resolution, "I have challenged them to do it but never a man of them got up," he said.

The Prime Minister was more inclined to censure those who, he said, professed to be in favor of a policy of free trade for party advantage than the people who really believe a cure for all our ills is to be found in the adoption of that policy. In a reference obviously aimed at, the Liberal Opposition in Parliament he characterized such advocates of free trade as "humbugs." The trouble was that in the event of the government being defeated those who would go the farthest in advocacy of free trade would be in absolute control of the situation.

Closing his references to the tariff the Prime Minister said that the Cabinet tariff commission which commences its labors in September will thoroughly inquire into the question to determine what is absolutely necessary to secure the ends aimed at by the government and the chief of these are to get revenue to carry on the work of government and to pay our debts; to give Canadian industries just enough advantage in Canadian markets as to enable them to expand and to keep Canadian working men in Canada.

Unity in Canada

In a forceful and eloquent peroration the Prime Minister made a plea for the adoption of sane counsels in the conduct of the affairs of the nation. After painting a dark picture of conditions in many European countries he said: "I stand for unity in Canada, for solidarity of conditions and freedom of enterprize within our borders. The lesson for Canada and the free peoples of the British Empire is to avoid the pitfalls which have sunk into oblivion other nations and of these that are writhing now in chaos and suffering. I shall strive with all my power for National unity, embracing all races, languages and creeds. I shall fight with all my energy for antional solidarity for moderation of thought and action; for orderly progress, for the maintenance of law and order and for the policies which have brought us where we stand." (Applause).

The gathering, known as Porter's Picnic at which Mr. Meighen outlined the policy of his government as generally indicated above was a success in every particular. Several thousand people, the majority farmers of Hastingsand adjoining counties were in attendance. They all, with but very few exceptions, arrived in motor cars, thereby demonstrating the passing of the horse conveyance and the prosperity of the farmers of Central Ontario.

During the speech-making frequent sunshowers sprinkled the assembled thousands but the rainfall was at no time sufficiently heavy to drive the people to cover. The Premier and those on the platform with him were well protected by the spreading branches of a maple tree. These included Mrs. Meighen who, formally introduced to the people by Mr. Guss Porter, chairman of the gathering, was loudly cheered as was Mrs. Porter. It was an old-fashioned pre-war political picnic in every respect with presentations of bouquets to the Prime Minister and Mrs. Meighen and all the speakers.

Minister of Agriculture

Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture who spoke briefly, described the Prime Minister as "one of the brightest young men of this country. Canada," he said, "was fortunate in having Mr. Meighen to step in the shoes of Sir Robert Borden."

Dr. Tolmie in his remarks dealt exclusively with agricultural topics, expressing his regret that in recent years there has been in Canada a gradual reduction in the average yield per acre of field grains. He said it behooves all departments of agriculture both Federal and provincial to encourage a system of mixed farming throughout the Dominion. Touching on the British embargo on Canadian cattle he said the government would continue to urge its removal because there has been no pleuro-pneumonia or hoof and mouth disease in Canadian herds for over thirty years.

Brigadier General A. E. Ross, of Kingston, who followed the Prime Minister dealt primarily with provincial political issues declaring that Premier Drury and his followers in the legislature had failed to make good their promises. He characterized them as jokers who had worked off many jokes on the electors of the province. Mr Drury, he said, was preparing another joke, and it was that the municipalities should put in operation his policy of single tax. Another joke was the attempt to lay at the door of the Dominion government all the dreadful temperance conditions in Ontario today.

Dr. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways was present, but did not speak. The Prime Minister returned to Ottawa during the night.

The Premier's Address.

I welcome with eagerness the opportunity of addressing this great gathering of my fellow citizens. It would be hard to imagine an audience more representative of Canadian life. Men and women are here in about equal numbers—and now of equal electoral power. Men and women are here in hundreds and in thousands from every walk of life—laborers from our towns and our farms, merchants and salaried men, manufacturers and transport officers and workers. Professional men, some of them, too, but the largest body are the men and women of the farm. I hope my words, if they have any value, will have equal interest for all. That is the intention. But if they are specially directed to any it will be to those whose life work is agriculture. They are in the majority at this meeting. They are in the majority in Canada and I hope will continue so to be. Like most Canadians of whatever occupation, I am of the farm and from the farm and even yet not very far removed.

Sir Robert Borden.

Sir Robert Borden, exhausted and broken with twenty-four years of public service, has laid down the Premiership. I think I speak the mind of every sincere and intelligent Canadian when I say that he gave this Dominion an example of great devotion. I believe I agree with the vast majority, including many who honestly differed from some articles of his policy, when I say that he gave us as well an example of great capacity. It is one of the penalties of fame that the best words cannot be spoken and the best estimates made while the subject under review still lives; but I am confident history will do early justice to our late Prime Minister and place his name close to the front among the servants of democracy in this tried and belabored generation.

I am here to give an account—brief and summary it must be, of the government which he formed in 1917, a government in which was represented every existing political faith. It was formed at a time of anxiety and peril, at a time when as a consequence of the war the currents of public opinion in this country and the alignment of parties had been profoundly disturbed and changed. It was formed to bring together as one mighty driving force all those who agreed on the great paramount duties of the nation. Out of that union, submerging as it did differences that in the presence of far bigger principles and for greater purposes had become minor and artificial, binding as it did those who realized that those principles and purposes are after all just about everything this country stands for or can stand upon—out of that union has grown a national party. I shall speak to you later of the National Liberal and Conservative party—why it is and what it aims to do.

Let me say now that no party was ever better born or better bred. Like similar parties in England and in France, it is a product of the war. It is Conservative and it is Liberal; it combines the best traditions and meaning of both words. It is national because its care is the nation; its field and vision are nation wide and nation big.

The first duty of the Government elected in 1917 was to prosecute the war—to enforce the Military Service Act to get the men to maintain our four divisions; to equip and supply them with the best that a nation could provide. That first duty was discharged. I don't think there is anyone within or without this country who will say that it was not well discharged. The army was maintained at strength to the last hour of the war. No other army in France was better equipped or perhaps as well supplied. That work was a big work—a tremendous work—the most difficult this country ever undertook. It was performed thoroughly, efficiently and creditably. The Military Service Act was enforced to the full limit of its provisions. Like every other act that was ever passed it operated more slowly and with more difficulty in those localities where public opinion was strongly massed against it. But had the war lasted but a few weeks longer, which fortunately it did not, that Act would have placed in the army in the full limit of 100,000 men which its provisions allowed us to provide. In the enforcement of that Act we were met with determined opposition. Tens of thousands insisted on both courts of appeal and placed every obstacle in the way the wit of men could devise. At the same time the

Turkish Peace Treaty Has Been Signed

Sevres, France, Aug. 10.—The Turkish peace-treaty was signed this afternoon.

Premier Millerand, of France, presided at the ceremony, which was concluded at 4.30 o'clock. After the three Turkish representatives had signed, the allies affixed their signatures, Greece and Italy signing among the last. Serbia and Radjaz did not sign, and were not represented.

There were three documents involved in the ceremony. The treaty itself, an Italo-Greek protocol and a protocol on Asia Minor and the zones of influence.

Referendum Brought Out Three-Fourths

Toronto, Aug. 11.—Practically seventy five per cent. of those who were qualified to vote in the last Provincial election, cast their ballots according to official returns just issued. The exceptionally large percentage being due to the manner in which the temperance referendum brought people out, the aggregate vote for the various candidates naturally benefitting from the presence of the electors at the polls even though many, particularly women voters, voted only on the referendum and returned unmarked their electoral ballots.

Owing to the fact that the returning officers in a number of constituencies did not make a return of the number qualified to vote an exact comparison is impossible but every four electors vote. The total vote cast was 1,200,946.

Western Bandit Was Captured

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

Pincher Creek, Alta. Aug. 21.—Basoff the Bandit murderer, was run to earth near here yesterday in a shack near the railway track and gave himself up without a shot being fired. His capture was due to the wide awake engineer of a train running between Pincher Creek and Burmis who at ten o'clock noticed a man on the track revealed by the searchlight the man disappeared as the engine approached and the engineer immediately notified the police who located Basoff alone in a dilapidated shack. The bandit was exhausted and hungry and gave himself up without any trouble.

Defacto Gov't For South Russia

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

London Aug 12.—Great Britain has been officially notified of the recognition of France of the Government of General Wrangel as the de Facto Government of South Russia and the question is being discussed between the two Governments. Something akin to consternation is evidenced by evening newspapers over the French action, which is characterized. As contrary to British ideas and a menace to the Entente relations mean while King George who was to leave for Scotland tomorrow has postponed his trip owing to the situation.

RAISE REINDEER TO FEED PEOPLE

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—Captain A. H. Living, of the Dominion Parks Branch, has been appointed to go to Labrador with the object of taking charge of plans to increase and domesticate the reindeer herd there. At the present time there are about 150 head of reindeer in that locality, and it is the ultimate intention of the Department to supply the missionaries and the people of the Hudson Bay territory with both a food and transportation system.

Soviet Fears A Reverse In Warsaw Fighting

TROTSKY SETS UP HEADQUARTERS ON WARSAW FRONT—BOLSHEVIK MINISTER OF WAR TALKS BOASTFULLY—COUNTRY STRIPPED OF FOOD TO FEED RED ARMIES.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

Warsaw, Aug. 12.—Leon Trotsky, Russian Minister of War, has arrived at Bialystok, just behind the Soviet front and has set up headquarters there, according to news from the other side of the battle line. Speaking in Vilna, of Lithunia, recently he announced that Soviet Russia had ben officially recognized by Western Powers and that Krassin and Kemmeneff had been received. At London with ceremonlias usually acorded foreign Ambassadors. He asserted the Bolsheviki was more poewrful than ever and its doctrines would soon spread to other countries. In a year he said, all Europe will be Bolshevik. In Bialystok district the Bolsheviki took a number of hostages threatening to shot them if food supplys are not yet delivered to its Soviet army within a short time.

It is said the country behind Bolsheviki line is suffering from food famine as all grain has been requisitioned and sent eastward by Bolsheviki authorities. Bolsheviki prisoners say that the Soviet command fears a reverse before Warsaw and is hastily preparing positions on the line of Grodno, Stonim and Saray to which it can withdraw in case of defeat.

Arrest In Florida Follows Long Chase

TORONTO, Aug. 11.—One slight, yet very significant detail overlooked by the trio of robbers who effected the sensational jewelry robbery at the premises of A. Rosenthal, King street west, on June 18, has finally led to the arrest of a man, D. C. Elwood by name, who is alleged to have been the master-mind in planning and carrying out the hold-up. He was arrested, according to notification received yesterday by the Toronto police, at Miami Florida, following an almost continent-wide chase, and is being held there pending the completion of extradition proceedings. A month or more will probably elapse before he is brought back to Canada, however, because of the time necessary to obtain evidence against the man and despatch it to Ottawa and Washington.

Elwood's apprehension is entirely due to the efforts of Detective-Sergeants Elliott and McMahon of the Toronto police force, who were detailed to investigate the case at the time of the robbery. Working with scattered clues picked up in the city they traced the men through several cities. They had first discovered that the license plate of the car in which the robbers made their escape was issued from the state of Florida, and it was that slight oversight on the part of the robbers, of neglecting to provide a more commonplace plate, which led to the arrest. The trio were traced by the officers as far as Niagara Falls, Ontario. There the trail turned back to St. Thomas; from St. Thomas they went across the international boundary to Cleveland, Ohio, only to return to St. Thomas shortly afterward. At that city Elliott is alleged to have parted from his associates and returned to his home, where his arrest was effected.

Elwood was first definitely located about August [illegible] and Ed. Crowe, a watchmaker employed by Rosenthal, was promptly despatched to the Florida city to identify the man. Crowe saw him immediately prior to his arrest and definitely identified him as the man who, previous to the robbery, had visited the store garbed as a Salvation Army officer to pave the way for the daring coup.

The arrest of Elwood is expected to lead to further developments and probably arrests in the case. At present none of the $100,000 worth of jewelry has been recovered, but investigation is being continued by the two Toronto officers.

Windsor Men Fined For Sunday Gambling

Windsor, Aug. 10.—Laws against Sunday baseball and public gambling in iWndsor are to be more vigorously enforced. Eight young men were before the police magistrate to-day charged with gambling Sunday afternoon under a tree on the commons at in Windsor are to be mora vigorously They were convicted and fined. In their defence, they asserted they were waiting for a ball game to start on the grounds on Wellington Avenue. At the conclusion of the trial, Crown Attorney Robb instructed police officers in court to watch in the future and see that no ball games are held.

NEW POLICE MAGISTRATE

William Squire Rowe Murtch has been appointed police magistrate for the village of Westport. Mr. Murtch was formerly a commercial traveller residing in Westport.

BODY NOT IDENTIFIED

No new developments came to light at the adjourned session of the coroner's jury at the inquest to inquire into the death of the child whose body was found in a sluice way at Yarker. Dr. G. H. Cowan, of Napanee, presided at the inquest Tuesday night and examined half a dozen witnesses called. Absolutely no information was brought out which would throw any light on the identity of the child, and Dr. Cowan adjourned the inquest for another week. It is thought that in the meantime developments may occur as thorough investigations are being made.

PAINFULLY INJURED

Mrs. Sarah Graham of Toronto, who is visiting at the home of her brother Mr. D. C. Hyde, 133 Foster Avenue, received painful injuries while in attendance at Porter's picnic in Sterling yesterday. She was struck by two young men, who were swinging in a swing and was thrown violently to the ground and suffering a fracture and dislocation of the collar bone. Mrs Graham was taken to Dr. Potts of and is now doing as well as could be effected.

KITCHEN SHOWER

A very pleasant event took place last evening, when a number of boys and girls, friends of Miss Ernestine Waite, surprised her with a kitchen shower at her home in Sidney.

Miss Waite, altho taken completely by surprise made a suitable reply where games were indulged in until a after which all repaired to the lawn late hour Refreshments were served about eleven thirty. A most pleasant evening was then brought to a close by the singing of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow," "Auld Lang Syne," and "God Save the King."

Miss Waite was voted by all present a most delightful hostess.

REMOVES HAIRY GROWTHS WITHOUT PAIN OR BOTHER

(Beauty Culture)

Here is a method for removing hair from arms, neck or face that is unfailing and is quite inexpensive: Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

LAUGHS AND THRILLS AT GRIFFINS TO-NIGHT

Laughs and thrills galore will be in evidence at Griffin's to-night to Saturday where a triple feature bill of varied screen entertainment has been arranged for presentation, consisting of William S. Hart in a stirring drama of the last great West, Charlie Chaplin in the 4-reel comedy scream, "Carmen" in which he is supported by such famous funmakers as Ben Turpin, Edna Purvance, Charles Rand and Charles Hutchison, the world's greatest daredevil in the great "stunt" picture, "The Whirlwind." In addition to the above offerings a selected program of topicals and travelogues will also be screened. With such an excellent varied bill of screen entertainment arranged, no doubt standing room will be at a premium this week end at the popular playhouse.

war got worse—the danger grew more terrible. It is easy now to look back and think of the final victory and talk wisely after the event. But in the spring of 1918 both the British and French armies had suffered unbelievable reverses. The Italian army had suffered disaster. Russia had long ago collapsed. The American troops had not arrived. The French Government had been driven from Paris and the French capital and the channel ports were marked as the immediate mile posts in the triumph of Germany. There is not one man in a hundred thousand who realizes yet how narrow was the ledge upon which we stood in the early summer of that year. We had to get more men, and get them in time, or fail in the war's greatest crisis. The same problem was oppressing every allied government. The only way in the world in which we could get the men in time to do any good was to go beyond the Military Service Act. We went beyond it. We did not even then go to anything like the lengths they went in Britain and other countries. We had believed the Military Service Act with its provisions for exemptions would have met the situation. It did not. Things got worse faster than any nation on this side or the other side ever dreamed of. With the Germans pouring shells into Paris and ready to control the channel, what was the good of talking about next year's crop? With the whole allied line threatened with collapse what was the sense of talking about past intentions or even past promises? The only thing to do was get in quick and help hold the line. We abolished the exemptions of men 20—23. We got the authority of Parliament. We got the men and got them quick, and they helped mightily to save the day. Now I want to know—did we do our duty? Weak men and paltry men in order to get votes, try to charge us with the sacrifice of life. It is hideous and inhuman to read and hear such stuff. I tell you it is because Canada did what she did at that time and other countries did the same or Even More that tens of thousands of lives have been saved and are back home today. I ask again, I ask the sons of the soil of this county—did we do our duty? I ask the returned men, who have the best right of all to answer, I ask the mothers and fathers of the boys who were over there—did we not do our duty?

They tell me that a political party was born in Ontario as a protest against our action. No party with a birth like that can ever get very far.

The next duty of the Government was to take care of the wounded and the dependents of the fallen and to demobilize the men after the war. Now I know there are complaints, and honest complaints. There have been mistakes—perhaps there are isolated failures, but I speak not one word beyond the truth when I say that Canada's performance of that task has been the model and the example of the world. This country has led the way in every form of assistance.

We were first in the field in the task of re-establishing the maimed and the wounded, having commenced our hospitals for that purpose in the spring of 1915. Great Britain and the United States have sent commissioners to examine and report on our work and on similar institutions in other countries and both have approved of Canada's plans as the best of all and have followed our example step by step. Our Department of Civil Re-establishment has, in its various hospitals and homes, treated clinically no less than 42,000 men and have treated dentally 84,000 odd. Every man unfit to follow his former occupation is trained over in our hospitals. More than forty-eight thousand odd men have entered for this vocational training and 28,273 have graduated, and of all who have graduated [illegible] per cent. are now employed. Besides this work the same department has found positions for 175,000 undisabled men. It would be folly for anyone to attempt to argue that there is in any one of all the countries who were at war a system so thorough and efficient, so complete in detail, so liberal in spirit, so wholesome and successful in result, as the re-establishment organization of Canada.

Pensions' System.

Mr. Meighen then outlined the pension system, the careful study of the subject and the regular advance in the scale of pensions year by year, resulting now in a standard rather higher all classes considered, than even the United States, and twice as high as any other country. The policy of the Government had been to treat with every liberality the country could afford the maimed and wounded of the war and the dependents of the fallen. Of the man who is still well and strong Canada had not been unmindful. Already $160,000,000 had been given by way of gratuity, by far the most liberal allowance of any country in the world. Further general gratuity the Government, as the trustees of the whole nation, had been compelled to refuse, but in this the Prime Minister believed it was supported by the vast though silent majority of the returned men themselves. If, as time advanced, it appeared that more generous allowance was required for the suffering of the war, the Government had not closed the door and would not close the door.

From this Mr. Meighen proceeded: The Government of Sir Robert Borden had gone to the country in 1917 on twelve definite legislative pledges, some relating to the war, some relating to reconstruction and peace, and of these twelve every one had been redeemed. The Civil Service has been vastly improved, over half a million per annum has been saved in the Printing Bureau alone. The overseas soldiers have been demobilized expeditiously and, everything considered, equitably to all. Less time was taken than expected, no better work was

LAWN BOWLING.

Cups Won by Outside Rinks.

The Belleville Lawn Bowling tournament was brought to a close last night. It was in every respect a most successful affair and the members of the local club, especially Mr. R. J. Wray, the genial tournament secretary, were heartily congratulated by the visiting bowlers upon the hospitable manner in which they had been received and entertained. The three fine cups donated by Mayor Riggs, ex-Mayor Ackerman and Mr. Thomas Ritchie were keenly contested for, the reseult being that the Riggs Cup goes to Peterborough, the Ackerman cup to Oshawa and the Ritchie Cup to Kingston. The members of the visiting rinks also took away with them other valuable prizes. The final results of the tournament are as folloks:

Doubles.

Owing to rain interfering with the progress of the tournament on Monday it was found impossible to complete the doubles. It was known, however, that the first three prizes would go to Kingston players, and these were given to them to be played off at Kingston. The players are Manahan and McFarlane, Graham and Crooker, Sparks and Baker. The fourth prize went to Judge Deroche and Mr. C. N. Sulman of this city.

Singles.

First prize, Delaney of Cobourg.
Second prize, Burgess of Cobourg.
Third prize, Green, of Kingston.
Fourth prize, Gardener of Belleville.

At the conclusion of the Ackerman cup competition the cup and other prizes were presented by Mayor Riggs. Brief addresses were given by Mayor Riggs, Dr. Sparks, H. Newman, Col. Lazier, Judge Deroche, R. J. Wray and others, all of whom referred to the success of the tournament.

Notes.

The club premises were tastefully decorated with flags and bunting, which was the artistic work of the ladies, who conducted a booth, and during the tournament did a thriving business.

One of the oldest bowlers was Dr. Sparks of Kingston, who, though 72 years of age, yesterday played from morning until ten o'clock at night.

The lawn was in fine shape and fine play was the result. It was the best tournament eevr held in Belleville or in this district.

The three beautiful cups presented went in three directions, namely, one north to Peterborough, one west to Oshawa, and one east to Kingston.

DELORO WINS CUP.

Tweed, Aug. 11.—The Trent Valley Amateur Baseball League, after a very successful season, under the able leadership of President S. B. GOOD ADVICE.

The Electrical News gives the appended good advice to dealers and others. Here it is:

"Be willing to place your goods along side those of your competitors. If the article you handle will not bear the comparison, get rid of it.

"Keep in touch with customers for months after selling them. They like to have you interested in the goods they have bought from you. It gives them confidence in your service because you show confidence in the goods you handle.

"A person once sold to is always a prospect for other sales.

"'If you have no competitors, compete with imaginary ones,' says one experienced writer. This will encourage you to 'clean up house, survey lists, go after new customers, study new points about your goods, change this or that way of doing things, look to personal appearance, polish approach, put pep into your handclasp, and go out to do the selling.'

"Study when to talk and when to listen.

"A good repair department, according to one successful dealer, pays for itself ninety times over.

"A purchaser buys an electric appliance for what it can do and not for its motor, frame and mechanism.

"A sum invested in service can be regarded as a re-investment in the business.

"Never sell an article which you would not put in your home, that is, in regard to quality."

DARKEST DAYS ARE IN THE PAST.

To those apprehensive of conditions in Europe we would suggest that they seek consolation by reading history.

At intervals during the past twenty centuries war and plague cast their blight across the continent from Sweden and Norway, south to the Mediterranean. There is no race or country in Europe that has escaped the terrors of human savagery to the utmost. The story of the Balkans, of the former Austrian Empire, of Russia, Spain, and Italy is one long series of pitiful tragedies. Spain, France, Germany, Holland and Belgium know too much of conflict and its accompaniment of unrest and hunger.

Who imagines that Ireland is at her worst today. Let him read the records of the island dealing with the rebellion of 1641 and of the six or eight subsequent years. Whether the story is told by sympathizers of the Ulster Plantation or of the native Irish one frames in mind a picture of strife and bitterness, of diabolical deeds on the part of extremists, that makes the blood run cold.

Today there is a chivalry in greater or less degree that protects women, children and non-combatants. It was not so up to the end of the seventeenth century in most of Europe. The conditions today may be vile in some war-torn lands, but human enlightenment in the more advanced countries has set new standards of conduct which even the ignorant do not altogether disregard.

Europe may seethe and fume awhile longer, but in time will come a period of comparative calm and of productive endeavor. And, as apprehension disappears in Europe, concern will vanish in North America. The progress being made seems distressingly slow, and the impatience of humanitarians is readily understood. There is not much that can be done to hurry pacification. War-weariness and the universal yearning for peace and comfort will in time leaven thought and action, bringing the nations together for another period of amiability.

The Quebec Language
Toronto Globe

As a mark of courtesy to the Imperial Press Conference Le Canada of Montreal printed in the English language its article welcoming the delegates to the city. The article, incidentally, corrects a common error: "Those among our visitors who know French—and they must be the majority—will find that the language which our people speak contains no patois whatever, but the French spoken in France with an accent to be found more especially in Normandy and Picardy."

Are We Brutal?
Saskatoon Phoenix

Four million men are still at war in the world. We are in no wise, however, inclined to despair. The transition from the world war to world peace cannot be made in a day. The trouble with war is that it lets loose all the brutal predatory instincts inherent in our blood which usually lie dormant in times of peace. Hence the inevitable outcropping at present of ancient grudges the world over, and even communities hitherto peaceful are divided into numerous feuds and factions. The fact is that there is not perhaps, a man amongst us, however cultured he may be, who is not at the present time more uncivilized and brutal as the result of the late war than he would otherwise have been. The only cure we know is the "foolishness of preaching and the will to patiently work for peace.

The Busy Bee
Toronto Globe

The Manchester Guardian quotes experts as saying that this is to be a good season for honey, and it adds that many people will welcome the news, though few realize the enormous effort a single pound of honey necessitates on the part of the bees. "In a pound jar," The Guardian explains, "there is the concentrated essence of over 60,000 flowers. It is calculated that to make a pound of clover honey they must take nectar from 62,000 blooms and make 2,750,000 visits in the process. Often the journey from the hive to the flowers and back runs to two miles, so that the making of a pound of honey entails journeys aggregating over 5,000,000 miles. When it is remembered that a single colony of bees will produce from sixty to eighty pounds of honey in a season it is clear, that the 'busy bee' is well named."

THE SOUND OF THE SEA

The sea awoke at midnight from its sleep
And round the pebbly beaches far and wide
I heard the first wave of the rising tide
Rush onward with uninterrupted sweep.
A voice out of the silence of the deep,
A sound mysteriously multiplied,
As of a cataract from the mountain's side,
Or roar of winds upon a wooded steep
So comes to us at times from the unknown,
And inaccessable solitudes of being
The rushing of the sea-tides of the soul;
And inspirations that we deem our own
Are some divine foreshadowing and foreseeing
Of things beyond our reason or control.

SILVER LEAD FOUND IN THE PAS DISTRICT

The Pas, Man., Aug. 11.—A large body of silver lead, which promises to be of great commercial value, has been discovered 90 miles from The Pas. The discoverers, two prospectors, have arrived here, bringing with them several striking samples.

The prospectors reported they made their find at the north end of Herb Lake, which is reached by a road 12 miles in length running from mile 82 on the Hudson Bay Railway. The oxidization was traced for over 1,000 feet on a width of 150 feet. At the ends it dipped beneath the clay and neither wall was reached, so it is impossible to say what the true dimensions will be. The galena was found in quartzite on a granite contact. A surface sample was sent to a reliable assayer and returned values of 18 ounces of silver, 16 per cent. lead, and a small gold and copper content. Other samples are far richer and some are 85 per cent. galena, carrying a value of $200 a ton. This is the first discovery in The Pas mineral belt of ore containing high silver values.

TROUBLE AT HOSPITAL

London, Aug. 12.—Despite the assurance of Dr. McGhie, Medical Superintendent of the new Westminster Military Psychiatric Hospital here that there was no trouble among the employes of that institution, members of the staff denied his statement. Dr. McGhie admits that about 35 employes left recently to go west on harvesters excursion, but the other employes state that their fellow workers quit because they were given menial tasks to perform at $80 a month, while men brought from the Newmarket military hospital by Dr. McGhie were appointed ward masters at a salary of $100 per month and bonus. Lieut.-Col. George W. Nelson, officer commanding, is reported to be dissatisfied with these conditions and may resign.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

Don't use prepared shampoos or any thing else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

done in demobilization anywhere. There has been very few complaints. The transportation problem of Canada precipitated upon us chiefly by the failure of the Transcontinental and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway projects, has been grappled with courageously. Some 23,000 miles is now the property of the Dominion, perhaps the largest railway system in the world. Because a very great proportion of this mileage is constituted by roads projected ten and fifteen years ago and long before they should have been projected, roads than cannot get the traffic to pay for many years to come. There is bound to be a deficit in the operation of our system, but better operate and control it ourselves with a deficit than continue to pour money indefinitely into the coffers of others. The solution we have sought was the best under the circumstances. The whole system is managed like any other system, by a Board of Directors, wholly independent of the Government, charged with the task of making it succeed, the best it can be made to succeed, the same as is any other body of directors.

Women's Franchise.

The women have been given the franchise.

Good relations have been maintained between employers and employed, less time proportionately has been lost in strikes, than in England or the United States, or in any other English-speaking country. A merchant marine of sixty vessels has been projected, forty of them are already on the water, and Canada will soon have a fleet of 360,000 tonnage plying into all the great ports of the world. The vessels launched are bringing satisfactory returns, are an asset to the country and should be the pride of Canadians everywhere.

The Government while engrossed in this work, because never had so much nor half so much been crowded into so short a time, was continually the object of reckless and utterly baseless attack. Today you will find these attacks in the partizan press. The most familiar allegation we hear is that the members of the Government are merely greedy of office, seeking nothing but places for themselves. I need not do more than bring to mind the fact that today there sit behind the Goverinment five ex-Ministers of the Crown, all of whom are supporting the administration. These men felt it was the duty of the Government to carry on, but many of them retired because they could not afford the further personal sacrifice. Can anyone tell me when in the history of Canada before such a thing took place? The fact is that ninety-nine per cent. of all the grumbling that has gone on for years against the administration has been base and baseless humbug and unworthy of notice. For the purposes of the war alone we have been compelled to spend close to two billions of dollars. A committee of Parliament has been available to every member who desires to enquire into a single item that he questioned and no one item of expenditure has yet been successfully challenged. Indeed, whole sessions have passed when the committee was never called or had practically nothing to do. I do not remember any experience of this kind before in the history of Canada. We have faced our accusers in the House and the task has been easy. It has scarcely been a task at all.

Government Policy.

Mr. Meighen proceeded to outline the policy of the new administration and of the National Liberal and Conservative platform. He sketched the conditions of other nations, dwelling particularly on the turbulence that disturbed the trade currents of the world and that had wrecked the industrial life of many countries. He referred to the recent tariff changes in Great Britain, Australia, South Africa, Belgium and France, showing that all these countries were looking in the direction of additional duties on imports and most of them had adopted strong protective measures. Referring particularly to Australia he quoted the platform on which the Australian Government was recently elected: "This tariff will protect industries born during the war, will encourage others that are desirable, and will diversify and extend existing ones."

He also quoted the platform of the Opposition party in Australia: "We shall protect established Australian industries and develop and foster new enterprises. Whilst giving adequate protection by means of an effective customs tariff we shall arrange that the workers in all industries will get their full share of the benefits of protection."

It was noteworthy that in that country the labor party and the Government party as well were a unit on the necessity of at least a moderate protective tariff, and an increase over the degree of protection heretofore accorded. Canada seemed the only country where an agitation for lower tariff had made any headway. Mr. Meighen then discussed the extent of tariff now levied and showed them to be the lowest in average for forty years and lower considerably than had obtained between 1896 and 1911. He discussed in particular the duties on agricultural implements and vigorously attacked both those who would overturn the sysem that had made industrial Canada what it is and the smaller faction who would join hands with the wreckers but who knew their policy to be destructive. The tariff opposition to the present administration he described as composed of, first, free traders, and second, fiscal humbugs. Those who would go the farthest, indeed, the whole road of free trade, those who would go the farthest regardless of consequences, would be in absolute control if by any chance the present Government were defeated. Mr. Meighen further discussed the tariff from a revenue standpoint and referred to the limitations of other methods of revenue. These other methods this Government had been the first to apply and had applied vigorously and to every sane limit. Concluding his tariff discussion he said:

The financial policy of this Government is to go in debt no farther.

The financial policy of this Government is to get revenue to carry on the work of government and to pay our debts.

The tariff policy of this country is to keep Canadian working men in Canada.

When you find working men's houses put up in hundreds for sale you will soon find hard times for everybody.

The policy of the Government is to enlarge the employment market and add to the size of Canada.

The policy of the Government is to make goods here and keep people here with plenty of work for every class of men.

The policy of the Government is to give Canadian industries of every kind just enough advantage in the Canadian market as to make it pay them better to stay here and expand than to diminish their plants or to leave.

We are starting now an enquiry, the most thorough we can make, to determine what is absolutely necessary to secure these ends.

Wherever there is a tax or schedule that is not absolutely necessary it will be wiped away.

We intend to see that no interests, however powerful, get more than their requirements.

We intend to see that no wreckers or theorists, however enthuiastic, imperil the well being of this country by blindly fixing loss.

I have dwelt strongly and at some length on the wisdom of reasonable duties on imports as a factor in the industrial development of Canada, but there is something else which just now is even more important to consider. I refer to the feeling of unrest prevalent in this country as in other countroes in a greater degree, the tendency to find fault with every government, to instil prejudice, to tear down existing institutions, to undermine principles which lie at the root of British forms of administration and to oppose everything permanent and tried with conflicting groups of thought. This is perhaps natural, at least it is the recurring consequences of great wars. The world at such times seems to become topsy-turvy. Such movements as the Bolshevism of Russia and the Jacquerie and Jacobinism of France, the I.W.W. and O.B.U. of America get a strong foothold, threatening all established institutions. We have in Canada in addition, the ambitions of political groups to gain an ascendancy irrespective of the interests of others to whom they are opposed. Of course no group will admit its purposes are selfish. As I have already pointed out such conditions do not enure to national cohesion, unity and strength. They are essentially destructive.

The attitude of mind is unreasonably critical and censorious. Nothing that a government can or will do is satisfactory. The people in the town grumble at the high prices of farm produce. The farmers grumble at the high prices they have to pay for products of the town. The ordinary business man is complaining of the burden of taxation, federal, provincial and municipal. In the midst of it all the Reds, the Soviets and the One Big Union are carrying on an insidious campaign in their lodge rooms, and by means of spoken and written propaganda with the object of destroying Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 10.—The League of Nations was made a target by Billy Sunday in an address before the Epworth Assembly.

"I am not in favor of allowing a bunch of mutts, mollycoddles and curmudgeons to sit around a table and decide when we are to declare our wars," he said. "I am not for a league without reservations, and if Jim Cox and the Democratic party stand by the kind of league Wilson brought home with him, they will go to digging graves so deep they will never hear Gabriel's trumpet on judgment day."

Splendid Address On Birds Given At Chautauqua

There was a large attendance at last evening's session of the Chautauqua and again the audience were delighted by the selections given by Mr. Mitcheltree and Miss Gwendolyn Anthistle. The latter recited several beautiful poems, accompanied by Mr. Mitcheltree, his accompaniments being his own composition. Mr. Mitcheltree also rendered a most popular number, giving a humorous imitation of a country choir anthem. This was enthusiastically encored.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. Charles Crawford Gorst, the well-known naturalist, then was introduced. Having lived literally in the open, Mr. Gorst has made a study of birds and their songs. His marvellous ability as a bird imitator is the outcome of years of unflagging zeal and endless patience. He can produce the most perfect sounds octaves higher than produced by any other human voice. In addition he displays charts and pastel bird paintings of his feathered friends. The latter are marvellously accurate as well as being intensely beautiful.

Habits of Birds.

Mr. Gorst opened his lecture with the delivery of the song of the mocking bird, or rather of a mocking bird provided it had attended singing school. In this he was accompanied by Mr. Mitcheltree. He took as his text the new proverb 'A bird in the bush is worth two in the hand," and by describing the songs, habits and usefulness of the birds he certainly justified this new version of the old one. He exhibited the paintings of man has made or changed. Let them with their song, and relating brief anecdotes of his experiences when observing them in their native forests. He stated that there is a decided organization in the songs of most birds, and that it is possible for a bird to learn a tune. However, he added, we should not wish the birds to sing definite tunes as we humans do. "Humanity is altogether too much like a self-conscious child. People go to business day after day, seeing nothing, caring for nothing, except that which man has made of changed. Let them hie away to some quiet forest and there view Nature as she is in all her majesty and exquisite beauty. Philosophers claim there are only three things of importance in existence, namely, God, the Personal Spirits and the communication between God and these souls. Nature is the most direct means of communication. Nature is not a big lump of something all tangled that we must straighten out. It is the means of communication.

Do Birds Talk?

Mr. Gorst also discussed the possibility of birds talking to one another as humans do. He ridiculed the thought that birds talk as some people seem to think they do. Mrs. Robin saying to her mate: "Now, Mr. Robin, go out to the garden and bring me home an angle-worm exactly two and a half inches long, and bring it home at two minutes to seven this evening. Hurry up, my dear." Birds do not reason and think as man does, but their crys certainly prove that they have a capacity for joy, sorrow, fear, curiosity and hatred.

Protect the Birds.

The usefulness of the birds was next emphasized. Mr. Gorst presented most dazing figures proving the usefulness of the birds as insect destroyers. Insects are only kept in control by these feathered songsters, and if every bird on this continent was killed, we would soon be facing such a famine as has never been dreamed of. The only way to help the birds in this work is to protect them, and this means protecting them from their most deadly enemy, the cat. The average stray cat proves itself a nuisance in a neighborhood, accounting for about fifty dead birds in a year. This means an actual loss in dollars and cents to the community. Mr. Gorst also condemned the wearing of real plumage on hats, and advocated that the women refuse to purchase such be-trimmed hats.

"When the boy takes his gun and goes slinking through the forest, takes aim at a bird on a stump, shoots and sees it lying dead at his feet, he thinks he has got a bird. He has not," said Mr. Gorst. "He has not the two most beautiful parts of the bird, its beauty and its usefulness. To obtain these he must take a pair of field glasses, go into the forest armed with a Bird Guide, then he can really see and appreciate a bird."

Splendid Imitations.

After imitating many birds and showing their pictures to the audience, Mr. Gorst then explained his unique method of writing the music of a bird song. By his own original method he can keep a record of the songs of each of the birds he hears. He then explained the influence which the surroundings of the bird had upon the song sung. He pointed out the loud round clear notes of the meadow lark and compared them with the broad, clear stretches of country in which the bird lived. Going to the other extreme he described a dark, weird forest after sunset, the tall purpling trees lit up by the soft twilight, converting the place into a stately temple. From out of this twilight are heard the weird notes of the Hermit Thrush, denizen of these dark forests, and utterly in keeping with the stilly fastness.

"Coming from such a place, after listening to the exquisite notes of this beautiful songster, one feels indeed a Silent Poet, silent only because we lack the genius to give expression to our feeling. How well Wordsworth expressed it in those immortal lines from "Tintern Abbey":

"And I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with joy
Of elevated thoughts; a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind of man."

WINDSOR COUNCIL LOSES PATIENCE

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 11.—Windsor City Council has at last lost patience with the manner in which the law is being administered in the local Police Court, and Mayor R. B. Winter this morning stated that steps are being taken at once to stop the practice of license inspectors bringing O. T. A. offenders from all over the Couty of Essex to trial in this city.

His Worship pointed out that the local Police Court was so busy dealing with O.T.A. offenders from rural districts that the magistrate could not find time to attend to violators of city ordinances.

It has long been felt by aldermen of Windsor that this city is being dealt with unfairly in the matter of the enforcement of the O.T.A. The local police force has a great deal of its time taken up with these outside cases.

DENIES ROUMANIA HAS DEFAULTED

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—The report that Rumania had defaulted in her payments for Canadian goods and that Canada will have to put up the $25,000,000 credit which was advanced, is denied by the Finance Department here. The Dominion did advance money for goods purchased by Rumania, but took security bearing interest in return. The interest, it is stated, is not yet due.

"When it is," said an official of the Finance Department, "It will be time enough to talk about default, but not till then.

The Farmers' Sun to-day charged editorially that Rumania had defaulted and Canada would lose heavily.

Where is the Money to Come From?

YOU cannot hire a servant for ten dollars a month if the servant knows that everyone pays TWENTY!

The Bell Telephone Company cannot hire new capital for new telephone plant and equipment by offering FOUR cents per dollar per year—when even Government bonds are yielding 6%! Trust mortgages 7%! And good industrial stocks 8% and higher!

Yet that is what we are being asked to do on the present scale of telephone rates!

Where then is the company to raise such sums as the $10,000,000 new capital required for this year's extension alone?

The company's stock and bonds are all invested in the plant (not a cent of this was "water" or "bonus" or "promotion" stock).

The Company's surplus and reserve is similarly re-invested.

NEW capital can be obtained only by "hiring" it in the open money market! Yet how can we offer a high enough wage—interest and dividends are merely the "wages" of invested savings—to attract investors when our revenues to-day are not enough to earn 4 per cent. interest on our $55,000,000 telephone property after meeting day-to-day expenses?

The only solution of the company's problem is adequate telephone rates! These will enable the company to earn sufficient revenue to pay a "fair wage" to Capital and a fair wage to its employees.

Premier of Canada Made Stirring Address

everything not of their class, just as Bolshevism in Europe is wrecking nations and seeks to overturn the whole world. The state of Russia today is worse in respect of despotism and dictatorship than it ever was under the worst Czar that reigned. The Baltic nations are hopelessly involved in revolution and conspiracy and strife of opposing groups. Some other nations are little better. Bolshevism in Russia, which does not represent the views of one-tenth of its population is maintained by a standing army, by sheer force, and that under a system of democracy which is supposed to be opposed to militarism, to despotism and all forms of tyranny.

In these days when the world is in a condition of flux, when trading conditions are seriously disturbed and their future course incapable of being predicted, when the currencies of all countries are inflated, when nearly all the important nations are overwhelmed with war debts, when few men and few nations quite know their own mind, when the peoples of the world are still reeling from the awful tragedy and shock of the war and are feebly groping for light, when the credit system of the world around which all productive industry revolves, is endangered, and when in many countries the rule of law and order is annulled and the red hand of physical force appears as a distinct menace to civilization, it is surely little short of madness to think of departing from tried and proven policies which have successfully stood the test of time. We cannot afford to sail our national craft in uncharted seas.

I stand for unity in Canada, for solidarity of conditions and freedom of enterprise within our own borders. The lesson for Canada and the free people of the British Empire is to avoid the pitfalls of all the nations which have preceded it and sunk into oblivion and of those as well that are writhing now in chaos and suffering.

National Unity

I shall strive with all my power for national unity, embracing all races, languages and creeds. I shall fight with all my energy for national solidarity, for moderation of thought and action, for orderly progress, for the maintenance of law and order and for policies which have brought us to where we stand. My aim and object will be to hold the balance fairly and firmly among all classes and to see as far as that is possible that the maximum of profitable labor may be given to all our people, and that they may be encouraged in the idea, which I consider the foundation stone of national success, that intelligent effort shall always be suitably rewarded, that the men and women of this country may rise in stature and improve their minds and their material condition according to the measure of their honest endeavors. Those I conceive to be the highest aim of statesmanship. I shall oppose with every legitimate weapon at my command and with every ounce of my power, the forces of destruction and disruption — the forces that in this and other lands wish to tear down the structure of responsible government and destroy the fabric of civilization woven through centuries of toil and care. I want to see Canada a great, a peaceful and a united people.

The old party alignments are pretty well grown over now. Six turbulent years have done the work. The old battlements are more or less destroyed. There are still, I know, voices tuned to the old music, but the great mass of men and women are thinking and must think along other lines.

Looking over the world today and then fixing eyes on Canada I see only two divisions of our people—only two classes in this country. I see on the one side those who hold steady, who walk firmly in the middle of the road, who learn from experience, who believe in industry and ordered liberty, who still have faith in good old British institutions and British principles that have made us what we are. On the other side I see those who have given way to prejudices, to class consciousness, to a passion for change, and experiment, whose minds are occupied in nurturing suspicion and hostility against other classes of the state.

On the one side I see the builders of this country on foundations tried and true. On the other side are those engaged in the cheerful exercise of tearing down. I put the question to you: Are you going to be a nation builder or a nation-wrecker?

Let us gather in millions around institutions that we love. Let us gather around a standard that we know and that our fathers knew. Let other people indulge if they must in the sport of freak governments and heterogenous parliaments and experimental policies of state, but let us not forget the lessons of fifty years in our own land, nor what has been written for our instruction abroad. Let us hold to the path and to the principles that have led us into lusty strength, into peace with honor, into relative happiness and plenty and made of us the most vigorous and promising of the

Picnic Notes

The success of Porter's Picnic at Marmora last year was so outstanding that it was a foregone conclusion that the picnic this year would be even more of a success but the realization was far beyond the thought of the most optimistic. The attendance numbered in the vicinity of ten thousand people and the hundreds of motor cars on the grounds was an evidence that many came from a long distance to do honor to the popular member for West Hastings in the Dominion Parliament and to hear the Premier of Canada make his first formal pronouncement of government policy. The day was one long to be remembered and the program was carried out without a hitch providing entertainment for everybody. In addition to the speeches which were interesting and instructive there was a long program of sports which were entered into with vim and watched by a large crowd of spectators. The G.W.V.A. band of Belleville furnished an excellent program and the Kilties Band supplied a Scotch flavor much appreciated.

The press gallery in front of the speakers' platform held a notable assemblage of the brightest minds of the Canadian press, every part of Canada being represented.

Mr. A .E. Donovan, of Toronto, former representative in the Legislature for Brockville riding, attended the picnic and occupied a seat on the platform with the speakers.

The visiting representatives of Canadian newspapers were entertained at luncheon at the Belleville Club, Wednesday noon by Mr. Porter.

Motion picture men were present and were busy taking views of the stirring scenes on the grounds.

Many enjoyed the dancing in the large hall.

The great success of the second annual picnic in honor of E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P. was largely due to the good work performed by the various committees in perfecting all details. Nothing was overlooked which would contribute to the good time of those present.

Mr. Porter acted as chairman during the speeches and his popularity with the large crowd assembled was amply evidenced by the frequent and hearty applause which greeted his remarks.

The sports committee certainly had a day's work handling the various events. The committee was composed of Mr. Wm. Rogers, Dr. M. J. Clarke, Mr. H. M. Frost, Mr. B. Burnham, Mr. E. Jose and Mr. Harold Saunders, chairman.

Sports

The first ball game resulted in a win for Deloro over Tweed by a score of 6 to 1. Mr. Wm. Whitley, umpire.

St. Michael's won the second ball game, defeating Brighton by 2-0. Mr. A. Archer acted as umpire. Brighton forfeited the game in the third innings because they would not agree to a decision made by the umpire.

St. Michael's won the third ball game, defeating Deloro by a score of 12-8. Mr. Wm. Whitley umpired. The game was played by Deloro under protest.

FRANCE SUSPECTS TERMS

Paris, Aug. 11.—The French Government likewise is notifying its commercial attache in London to have no dealings with Leonid Krassin and Leo Kemenoff the Soviet emissaries, in the British capital.

The French Foreign Office regards the Soviet terms to Poland, which the British Premier read in the House last night, as only preliminary, and it is convinced that the Soviet Government later will exact much harsher peace terms.

S. S. ENJOYABLE PICNIC

The annual excursion and picnic of Christ Church Sunday School was held on Wednesday to Twelve OClock Point and was well attended and very enjoyable. The steamer Brockville took up the picnickers and brought all back in good time. A good program of sports and games afforded entertainment. Some of the children enjoyed the swimming and the merry-go-round was kept busy all the time. The sports were managed by Messrs. Frank Mills, C. R. Symons, James Reid, E. B. Smith, A. Dilnutt and F. Christie.

DISPOSERS OF LIQUOR FINED

At Trenton on Tuesday before Police Magistrate O'Rourke two cases of the O. T. A. was tried and in both cases, convictions were registered. Walter Green was fined $500 and costs for selling liquor without a license and Adolphus Williams $200 and costs for a similar offence. This is the third member of the Williams family who has recently been fined $200 for selling liquor. The Chief of Police of Trenton was the complainant in the above two cases.

ROLLING IN WEALTH

Marshall A. Cock, Wichita, Kan., rides about the United States in a big private car, luxiously appointed in Cuban and Peruvian mahogany, which was built for Pirfirio Diaz just before he resigned as president of Mexico. Mr. Cook was formerly of Brockville. He reached the millionaire class very quickly. Two years ago last Christmas, Marshall Cook sat in a little apartment in Buffalo, N.Y., thumbing over a telegram he has received from a brother in Toronto inviting him over for Christmas. Cook had been a real estate broker in Rockport, and the wolf, while not gnawing his way through the door, could be heard growling in the distance. After long meditation Cook wired back to his brother that "an urgent business matter had called him west and that he was sorry he couldn't acept." Next morning he was on his way to the great west. He struck Kansas City with $16. He took a gamble in oil, hit it right, and is now rich. So rich he cannot count his wealth, and it keeps growing. He has the Peabody oil fields. Seven years ago he left his home town, Brockville, to make a stake for him-

C.P.R. Brakeman Died From Injuries

Mr. Robert Arthurs, a C.P.R. brakeman, whose home is in this city, was at an early hour this morning, at Smiths Falls the victim of an accident which proved fatal. From what can be learned, it appears that Arthurs stepped off a freight train he was braking on when it stopped at Smiths Falls and stepped upon another track as the west bound fast express was approaching. Before he had time to clear the track he was struck and hurled to the side of the roadbed. The unfortunate man was as speedily as possible conveyed to Smiths Falls hospital where an operation was decided upon with a hope of saving his life, but a message was received here later that he had passed away.

The victim was a young man unmarried and resided with his mother and sister at 10 north side of Bridge street west. He was well known in the city where he had many friends. Two brothers of deceased later went to Smiths Falls to bring the body here for interment.

Recognition Of Wrangel Subject Of Conference

BRITAIN OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED OF THE RECOGNITION BY FRANCE OF GOVERNMENT OF BARON WRANGEL IN SOUTH RUSSIA—HUNGARY AND ROUMANIA MAY JOIN FRANCE IN MILITARY ATTACK ON RUSSIA.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Great Britain and France, friendly, but sharply divided on the Soviet-Poland-Wrangel situation, will make another attempt to unify their policy, Sunday.

On that day Premier Lloyd George and Secretary of Foreign Affairs Curzon of Great Britain will meet Premier Millerand of France at Boulogne to again discuss the situation.

Premier Millerand on July 20 told the Chamber of Deputies that General Wrangel would be recognized as the de facto Government in Southern Russia when certain conditions were fulfilled. That statement has never been made public, and, so far is known, never privately retracted. Thus it is concluded the French Government may have been fulfilling a pledge when it announced the recognition.

Premier Lloyd George, when he advised Poland to accept the armistice terms offered by the Russians, acted, according to French advices, without consulting France.

The French Government eliminated the doubt about the recognition of General Wrangel by sending a note to Great Britain confirming it.

The British Government sent a note to France letting it be known that the two nations could still act in full cooperation.

The recognition of Gen. Wrangel, the Echo de Paris said, is to be followed by the extension to him of all possible aid from France. It said that agreements have either already been made or are being sought with Roumania and Hungary, seeking to enlist the support of those two nations in a heavy military campaign designed to overthrow the Bolshevist Government.

Many of the French papers have demanded that the Chamber be reconvened to consider the situation.

Name Commission For Pension Plan

Body which Will Deal With Mothers' Allowances Appointed

Toronto, Aug. 21.—The members of the comission which will deal with the mater of Mothers' Allowances were designated in an order-in-Council signed by the Lieutenant Governor. They are: Rev. Peter Bryce, chairman, Toronto; Mrs. Adam Shortt, of Ottawa; Mrs. William Singer, of Toronto; Major Thomas J. Murphy, of London; and A. J. Reynolds, of Hamilton. Mr. Bryce expects that this commission will commence its official duties at the beginning of next week in order that the Act may be prepared as soon as possible. The bill authorizing the scheme set October 1st as the date upon which it was to become operative.

The first duty of the commission will be toappoint anexecutive staff including a secretary and the necessary lady visitors to supervise the investigations. These visitors will co-operate with the local boards which will be formed in each municipality. They will receive salaries and although working in co-operation with the local boards, will be under the direct authority of the commission by which their appointments will be madeUnder he Act each municipality is called upon to pay an amount equal to one-half the alowance decided upon by the commission for each resident of the respective muncipalities. Local boards are therefore necessary.

The Act provides that those first appointed to he commission shall serve respecively for one, two, three, four and five years. All subsequnt appointmnts will be for five years.

In Complete Accord

Paris, Aug. 13.—The French Government is sending a note to the United States expressing pelasure that French States expressing pleasure that French sian-Polish situation are in "complete accord," it was learned here today. The note which is signed by Premier Millerand recapitulates the conclusions in the United States note to Italy saying that France reaches an identical conclusion.

"Canada Is A Nation," Says Premier Drury

Guelph, Aug. 21.—"For Heaven's sake keep this country to yourselves. People it with your own boys and girls, put into it your own capital," said R. A. Anderson, of Dublin, to the Imperial Press Conference here last night.

The Imperial Press Delegation arrived here yesterday evening and were motored about the city. They wer taken to the Guelph Country Club and to the Speedwell Hospital on their way to the Ontario Agricultural College, where dinner was served. They were enthusiastic about everything in the city. The view from the Country Club seemed especially pleasing and one English woman likened it to her native Devon. Impressed with the idea that Canadian towns spring up over night, another delegate asked to be showing some of the original citizens of Guelph, but was forced to be content with a visit to a log cabin which was erected when the Royal city was considerably younger.

J. B. Reynolds, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, and they were shown the flowers, the experimental plots and the unpareleled wax work in the museum

WERE NOT COLONIALS

Hon. E. C. Drury said: "The press is not always good. In fact we sometimes find that it is bad, but I believe that on the whole it is actuated by a high sandard of ethics. It has to be. It it gets out of touch with public thought, if it does not tell the truth, i finally is chasened by is readers who will not read it. So it may be business necessity, rather than morality, that keeps up its standard

"In Ontario we are Canadians, and for the benefit of our friends from Great Britain, I say that we are not colonials. We are a nation in thought and feeling if we are not a nation technically. The day is past when a Cockney slightly happy, might expand his chest and say, "we own you.'"

MAY DESTROY NIAGARA

Touching on water power, Mr. Drury said: "We hope that the time is not far distant when every lake port will be an ocean port, aund we veleped in making the change, will be sufficient to pay for the development. We have only begun to touch our sources of power. We in Ontario may count ourselves favored in this generation that we can see Niagara in the beauty of the cataract. I rejoice to see it as such, but the time may come when it will be necessary to destroy the cataract in order to serve our homes, and beautiful as the cataract is, I would rather see it in the homes of the Province.

Wounded Premier Of Greece Is In No Danger

FIRED UPON AND WOUNDED BY TWO YOUNG GREEKS IN PARIS—PASSED GOOD NIGHT IN HOSPITAL—BULLET LODGED IN LEFT SHOULDER—NO SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES ANTICIPATED.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Premier Venizelos of Greece, who was wounded here yesterday when fired upon by two young Greeks, spent a good night in the hospital to which he was taken and is in no danger, it was announced by physicians today. The bullet which lodged in his left shoulder, will be extracted this morning.

Anglican Bishops Appeal For Reunion

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

London, Aug. 12.—English newspapers show considerable interest towards the appeal for reunion by the Anglican Bishops now separating after the Lambeth conference.

Following are the main propositions in which it is submitted all christians can find common ground. First the scriptures as God's Revelation of Himself to man, second the Apostles er Nicene Creed, third, sacraments of Holy Communion and Baptism; fourth ministry acknowledged in every part of its church.

The London Times considers the appeal a great advance towards reunion. It is necessary that Bishops insist that a re-united church must be Episcopal in Government it says. The Bishops' appeal is a noble brotherly challenge to the leaders of non-Episcopal cherches.

Women Scare Away Would-Be Robbers

Woodbridge, Aug. 21.—An attempt on the part of four masked motor bandits to rob the Royal Bank here at 1 o'clock this morning was frustrated by the plucky act of two women, who observed it and set up a cry for help, and continued it until many vilagers responded to their cries.

Shortly before 1 o'clock the men drove up to the clothing store of Henry Smith, adjacent to he bank, and proceeded to attempt an entry into the latter building. Mrs. Smith was aroused and found them behind the bank. Mrs. Lockhart, a resident of the neighborhood, was also awakened, and the two women simultaneously gave an alarm which quickly brought several men to the spot.

The would-be-bandits belted back to their automobile, got under way and escaped toward Toronto before an effectual pursuit could be organized.

Protest Plea For Increased Rates

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 13.—The effect of increased freight rates upon the indigenous industries of the country from crushed stone to live stock and other agricultural products was demonstrated by witnesses before the Railway Commission in the $126,000,000 rate enquiry this morning. The representative of the crushed stone interests declared that increased rates would put commercial crushed stone out of business and thereby seriously retard the important process of road building. The brick manufacturers declare that in cities where building at present is almost prohibitive in price, local brick plants will have a monopoly inasmuch as it will be impossible for competing plants at outside points to handle the brick by rail

Representatives of the livestock industry claim that large increases in freight rates at a time when meat prices are dropping will discourage production, inasmuch as the cost must be borne by the producer and cannot be "passed on," will ruin the home market and encourage the shipment "on the hoof" to southern points of any surplus which there might be. "Livestock is an important food product." said A. W. Gurney, of Paris, who represents the Eastern Livestock Association. "It seems to me to be a bad time to raise freight rates when such an important food product of the country is going down in price."

In other words both the producer and the consumer would suffer.

Some Echoes From Porter's Picnic

Pleasant Recollections of All Who Attended—Education and Entertainment

All who visited Stirling on Wednesday on the occasion of Porter's Annual Picnic, carried away the most pleasant recollections of the event. There was national inspiration in the stirring speech of Premier Meighen, a call to build up a strong and vigorous Canadianism in the very best of individual citizenship; there was the spirit of sociability and the meeting and greeting of old friends there was entertainment of all kinds from the splendid program of sporting events to the dancing in the large pavilion which was enjoyed by hundreds, beginning in the afternoon and lasting well into the evening. The thousands who were present and the general feeling of good will and good fellowship constituted a striking tribute to the great popularity of E. Guss Porter, K.C., representative in the Dominion Parliament for West Hastings.

"Hundreds of automobiles were parked on the grounds, an evidence of the prosperity of this district, and the happy faces of all showed that discontent has no abiding place here.

The enthusiastic reception accorded the Prime Minister and Mrs. Meighen at the picnic when they were introduced to the vast assemblage, was an evidence of confidence, loyalty and admiration Deafening cheers, lusty and prolonged filled the air, accompanied by a general waving of hats and handkerchiefs. Mr. Porter speaking for Mrs. Meighen, in acknowledgment of the great reception accorded her, said: "Mrs. Meighen desires me to say that as long as she can render any service to the Dominion of Canada and particularly the ladies, she will be delighted to do so."

The enthusiastic reception given to the new Premier was a striking evidence that in this district at least every confidence is felt in Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Government of which he is the leader.

Expressing a deep interest in the proposed Belleville-Oswego international gateway for transportation of goods between Canada and the United States, Premier Meighen, accompanied by Hon. Dr. Reid and Hon. Dr. Tolmie inspected the Government wharf and the facilities afforded in the shipping line. They were shown over the wharf by Mr. Porter and Capt. Schuster.

The visiting newspaper men express themselves as very much pleased with the many evidences of enterprise shown in Belleville which betokens an era of subtsantial progress and prosperity.

Mrs. Meighen made many friends by her kindly and attractive personality. She is a charming lady free from any affectation and is a pleasing conversationalist, being well informed upon the topics of the day.

The committeemen who helped to make Porter's Picnic of 1920 the greatest event of the kind ever held in Ontario are deserving of all congratulation. Every detail was carefully looked after and success was abundant and eminently satisfactory. Arthur Johnson, who was in general charge of organization work, had a stupendous task, but proved fully equal to it and received splendid support from the various committees. W. L. Doyle, in charge of publicity, as usual produces the goods, and the publicity arrangements could not have been better handled.

Ponzi Has Served Two Prison Terms

One For Forgery In Montreal and the Other at Atlanta

Boston, Aug. 12.—Events moved rapidly in the career of Charles Ponzi, finance wizard, who claims to have made millions in foreign negotiations.

Early editions of Boston newspapers to-day published despatches from Montreal to the effect that the litle Ialian had served par of a three-year sentence for forgery in a Canadian prison there. Ponzi admitted the reports.

The Hanover Trust Company in which Ponzi deposited his funds and in which he was a director was closed this afternoon when State Bank Commissioner Allan took over the management of the bank on the ground that its business operations were unsafe.

Later reports from Atlanta, Georgia, said that a man named Charles Ponzi had served a term in a federal prison there for violation of immigration laws. This Ponzi also admitted.

Ponzi made three statements to newspaper men today. In all he insisted that while he confessed to forgery in Montreal, he was innocent and made the confession and served his term in the penitentiary to save those for whom he worked.

Calmly Ponzi dictated the statement of his imprisonment in Canada which he said occurred nearly thirteen years ago.

"This statement should have been made before," he said. "I make it now because of what appeared in the press. However, I felt that my past had been buried or that I would be allowed to enjoy the present which I lived an honest life.

"Several years ago I committed a sin, if I made a mistake then I have suffered for it. I had every reason to believe that society owed me another chance.

"In Montreal I was convicted of forgery, in 1908, and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary and received about twenty months.

CHARGES VIOLATION OF LAW

With regard to the shutting down of the Hanover Trust Company, the bank commissioner maintained that the loan of $500,000 made to Ponzi by this bank on the certificate of deposit, constituted a withdrawal and was herefore a violation of the law.

A throng gathered outside the doors of the bank. Later they were adlinski, who issued an anouncement to dressed by President Henry H. Chaisthe effect that the bank is solvent and will give out a formal statement showinging its assets and liabilities.

The treasurer of the bank said to-day that his institution never received the missing $275.00 said to have been transferred from Ponzi's acount in Manchester, N. H. Federal and state immigration officials declared that no action thus far is contemplated toward Ponzi's deportation. The Atlanta despatches telling of Ponzi's arrest and conviction there said the Italian financier spent two years in the grey garb of a prisoner in the United States Penitentiary there.

A. C. Adderhold, record keeper at the federal prison, to-day positively identified a photograph of Ponzi as "the most useful prisoner we ever had." Ponzi, when found later in the day, admitted the Atlanta sentence.

London Doctors Establish Record

Carry Out Extraordinary Day's Work In Removing Tonsils

LONDON, Aug. 13.—One of the most extraordinary undertakings in London's medical annals was successfully carried out at the Orphanage of the Sisters of St. Joseph, Mount Hope when 103 of the children were operated upon for the removal of tonsils and adenoids by volunteer surgeons assisted by volunteer anaesthetists, nurses and nuns. All operations, other than emergency cases at St. Joseph's Hospital were postponed for the day and operating tables and equipment were removed to the Orphanage. Drs. Stevenson Thompson and W. S. Stevenson were in charge of the proceeding with a dozen other doctors assisting. The work was concluded in the 103 cases by 12 noon. Dr. Thompson having established what is believed to be a record by removing tonsils and adenoids from 63 children in three hours averaging one operation every three minutes for the entire period. All of the children are reported as in a satisfactary condition.

Victories For Polish Forces Drive Bolsheviki Back

ON SOUTHERN BATTLE FRONT POLES ARE SUCCESSFUL, DRIVEN RUSSIAN FORCES FROM SEVERAL TOWNS ON ROAD TO LEMBERG—PEACE COMMISSIONERS LEAVE SATURDAY — STATE OF SIEGE PROCLAIMED AT WARSAW.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 13.—Polish successes on the Russian front, where the Russians have been pushing toward Lemberg, are reported in last night's official communique. Polish cavalry and infantry have ousted Bolshevik forces from Radzichoff, Lopatz, Stanpslavezyk and Toporoff. These towns are in the district northwest of Lemberg and to the west and northwest of Brody, on the old Galician border.

PEACE COMMISSIONERS.

Polish commissioners with authority to negotiate a peace treaty expect to leave Warsaw early Saturday morning to meet the Russian Soviet delegation in the evening on the road to Brest-Litovsk, the Foreign Office announced today, at the request of Bolshevik authorities. British and American newspaper correspondents will accompany the delegates. The Poles will probably be taken to Minsk, where the formal peace conference is expected to take place.

SIEGE CONDITIONS IN WARSAW.

Russian Soviet forces east and northeast of the city have reached a point twenty miles from Warsaw, and a state of siege has been proclaimed here by the military governor.

Hot Shot For Provincial Gov't

Brig.-Gen. Ross, M.P.P., made a stirring address at Porter's Picnic, speaking straight from the shoulder without mincing matters, and was liberally applauded. He said in part:

I congratulate you on the gathering of the Liberal Conservatives of Hastings County who were not blown by every wind and not influenced by speeches of irresponsible men and women.

I also congratulate you on the character and calibre of the men chosen by them as members at Ottawa and Toronto.

These men are satisfied with the name of politician—a noble term applied to those who busy themselves with matters and affairs of government in spite of the opposition hinted at by Mr. Drury, saying in Toronto, "We are not politicians and hope that we never will be.

Macdonalds, Tuppers, Mowats Blakes, Whites, Harveys, Whitneys and Bowells were all representatives of both political parties and were proud to be called politicians.

If not politicians, what name must be applied to these new legislators? We find them in groups. One group headed by Andrew Hicks, U.F.O., member for South Huron, who, believing in his ability to get away with any statement he might wish to make, related the number and amount of bribes they could have put in their pockets. But Andrew now found himself a responsible man and had to make good his statement. His only explanation was "I was muddled." Not only did Andrew "muddle," but several of Andrew's political brethren "muddled," and so we have the one group, i.e., the "Muddlers."

Then there is another name given by another group to themselves. This group undertook to select a commission but found that they could only locate mediocrities. Their explanation was that it was a joke. So now you have the name of the new groups as given by themselves—the "Muddlers" and the "Jokers".

These jokers have perpetrated many jokes on the electors of this province. One was the promise to wipe out the Government House. Of course it was a joke. Another was the promise to wipe out the fuss and feathers at the opening of the Legislature. That, too, was a joke. Another was the introduction of the Recall, but when the call sounded for their newly-elected members to retire for a Premier, a Minister of Agriculture and an Attorney-General, an epidemic of deafness struck the members. The call increased to a blast, but no one heard it Then they put bells on it with promise of positions. Recall was all a joke

The party policy of caucus was to be abolished. This was one of the big jokes.

Another promise was economy. The greatest expenditure of any Government in Ontario was in 1919, when $21,921,584.00 was spent, but the estimates of the Drury Government amount to $33,850,157.00. These extravagant speeches in October, 1919, were only jokes.

Another is the attempt to lay at the doors of the Dominion Government all the dreadful temperance conditions in Ontario today. The refusal of the Drury Government to take responsible action, the placing of a prepared speech and a prepared bill in the hands of one of the least experienced members and debaters in the House is the cause of the trouble.

The rum-running on the Detroit River is the natural result of the Government abetting rum-running in the Kenora district. Here, by the approval and recommendation of the Drury Government, eleven (11) export houses were opened—eleven booze-running institutions to flood the province of Manitoba

A Great Tragedy.

The province of Ontario has run amuck in legislation. Law after law is being added to make us automatums. Justice is injustice and laws are only means to fill coffers of government and provide means for administration. Jails are filled with men and women whose crimes are principally inability to pay unreasonable fines. Wives are left to struggle in the fight to raise a family. Our penitentiaries are hatcheries of insanity and tuberculosis, and a recent sight was the presence of two of the highest officials of Portsmouth Penitentiary escorting to the boat a poor wretch, sent home to die in a few days.

Railway Commission Reserves Judgment

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Aug. 13.—The Railway Commissioner of Canada this morning reserved judgment on the application of the American Railway Association for an increase of forty per cent. on the Canadian portion of freight rates on through lines. Judgment will probably be given out this afternoon. R. Geary, Toronto Corporation Counsel, said the application was approved by the Canadian Roads because they feared the American Roads might hold up the coal supply. There was even a veiled threat that the U. S. Govrnment might take a hand in stopping the shipment of coal. Chief Commissioner Carvell, however, testified to the friendliness of the Interstate Commerce Commission of the U. S. The utmost willingness had been shown, he said, to give Canada all the coal possible.

HEAT AFFECTS TELEPHONES

If your telephone should tingle intermittedly during the day or night and when you go to it you are told there is no one waiting, don't be cross or blame Central, for it is not Central's fault. It is only the heat or the humidity playing pranks with the wire sand causing the trouble. This happens usually every hot season and is unavoidable, to the dampness and humidity in the exchange.

DROWNING AT PICTON

On Monday evening about 8 p.m. a sad drowning acident occurred at Picton when Florence Rosenburg daughter of Mrs. Rosenburg of that place, lost her life in Picton harbor. The young girl, who was in her 13th year, was accompanied by her sister, Maisie, and a young man named Arthur Mack. The three walked to the lower dock and in some way Florence fell into the water and was drowned before assistance could reach her. Her body was recovered about an hour later by parties who happened to be in the vicinity with a boat and a grappling outfit.

MOTORISTS INJURED

Two men who refused to give their names either to a newspaper man or to Dr. F. S. Young, Seeley's Bay, were injured when a Willys - Knight automobile in which they and two other persons were driving ran into a sandbar about one and a half miles east of Seeley's Bay and completely overturned. One man had his leg broken, and another the driver, two ribs broken. One of the women suffered a dislocated shoulder and the other a nasty scalp wound. It is understood the party was travelling from Ottawa to Toronto. The car was wrecked.

ACCIDENT AT PICTON

A serious acident occurred on Sunday about noon on the Demorestville Road. Prince Edward County, near Mr. C. S. Vandusen's residence when a party driving a Ford car towards Picton, met a Mr. Fraser of Salmon Pont who was riding on his motor cycle. Mr. Wm. Frederick was also walking towards the House of Refuge at the same time and somehow in pasing a collission occurred, both Mr. Frederick and Mr. Fraser being seriously injured. Seeing the accident Misses Boulter at once went to their assistance finding Frederick unconscious and badly cut about the face and also seriously bruised about the body. Fraser was also cut and bruised. Mrs. Fred Hepburn who came along at the time with the assistance of the Misses Boulter put the injured men in her car and took them to the Picton hospital where Miss Nellie Boulter had telephoned and a bed was in waiting. Both are reported recovering. The driver of the Ford did not stop, speeding away, leaving the injured men helpless on the road. Unfortunately the number of the car could not be secured.

Annual Picnic Of St. Thomas S.S.

Pleasant Outing of Sunday School Scholars of St. Thomas' Anglican Church

The annual picnic of the Sunday School of St. Thomas' Church was held Thursday at Twelve O'Clock Point and was a great success. EXPRESS COMPANIES NEXT TO ASK FOR INCREASE

Montreal, Aug. 12.—The first hearing of the express companies in their application for increased rates will be heard in Toronto on September 2, and subsequent meetings will be held in various cities throughout Canada.

The increase at present asked for amounts to 40 per cent. The railways have amended their application for increased freight rates and have asked for an additional 10 per cent increase, making a total of 40 per cent.

"In event of this being granted," said an official of the Express Traffic Association, "it is possible that the express companies may amend their application and increase the percentage from 40 to 50 per cent."

Charlie Chaplin Is Back Again

Famous Comedian Gives Side-Splitting Performance in "Carmen."

Charlie's motto was that if they "smite you on one cheek, turn the other." He was a firm and staunch believer in that phrase—but from a slightly different point of view, perhaps; that is, Charlie was always the emiter and he religiously enforced and taught his maxim that the smitten turn the other cheek. In the 4-reel comedy, "Carmen," Charlie Chaplin, together with Ben Turpin, Mabel Purviance and Charlie Rand give one solid hour of highly amusing fun and clever comedy. Wm. S. Hart appears on the same program in a thrilling western drama of absorbing interest, entitled "The Bad Man," along with a very interesting Outing Chester travelogue, British Canadian news pictorial, and Charles Hutchison in his great stunt picture, "The Whirlwind." The above program is being shown at Griffin's tonight and Saturday matinee and night.

Tell Dyspeptics What To Eat

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or acouple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

Large Attendance At Chautauqua

Interest in the Chautauqua sessions here is by no means diminishing and yesterday was no exception to the rule. Large attendance featured both the afternoon and evening sessions.

In the evening Dr. William Caldwell of McGill University gave an elaborate discourse on "Canada's place in the world of today." In his lecture Dr. Caldwell had gone to considerable pains and trouble to prepare for the people along the Chautauqua circuit, a perfectly clear though somewhat lengthy exposition of the exact position in which Canada finds herself today, as well as of her importance to the outside world in general. After the-war conditions played a large part in the lecture and this was in regard to other countries as well as to Canada. There had been a great deal accomplished to place Canada where she is today and there was still room for a great deal more to place her where she should rightly be.

No attempt was made by the lecturer to entertain his hearers with anything light, but the fact that the large audience listened with rapt attention throughout the lecture goes to show that people are interested in things which are weighty when they are presented by one who knows what to say and how to say it."

The illustrated lecture, "Rambles Through Paradise Hawaii," by Miss Mildred Leo Clemens, was a happy combination of the educative, the interesting and the highly entertaining. The name which Miss Clemens has given her lecture is apt indeed, as in its first-hand preparation she has undoubtedly rambled at will through the Paradise of the Pacific. Miss Clemens, who by the way, is a cousin of Mark Twain, uses every precaution to make plain to the audience not only her pictures but that particular matter upon which the picture touches. The wonderful pictures of the volcano at Kilauea were of the greatest interest. They were moving pictures taken at great inconvenience and risk to the camera man who had to be lowered into the very crater of the volcano to obtain them. Her colored slides of the island, points of interest, were beautiful indeed, and showed not only the points of common interest but the sugar and pineapple plantations, as well as the rice fields which are largely conducted by the Chinese. The moving pictures of that famous beach of Waikiki, showing the natives with their surf boards, as well as at their fishing pursuits were deeply interesting and pleasing. That Miss Clemens is devoted to the people of th South Sea Islands was shown in every explanation she gave. Only in the kindest terms did she speak of these free music-loving people and only in the same tone of affection did she speak of their country.

Particularly pleasing was the manner in which Miss Clemens introduced her personally-selected native troupe of singers and players. She gave the name of each one telling their vocation in their home land, and what accomplishments they had with their native instruments. The Hawaiian greeting "Aloha" came from each one as they were introduced. In this connection it might be said that Miss Clemens thoughtfully explained the meaning of "Aloha" to her audience. It was the one word of kindness, of love and of endearment which the natives there used on all occasions. It meant in reality "farewell to thee" but had about it a depth of kind tenderness which meant more than that.

In its every phase the entertainment was one of real merit and interest, inasmuch as it had something of interest for all. Some who may not have cared for the music, were lost in admiration of the pictures and the lecture. Others may have been vise versa and some doubtless found both well suited to their liking. The music was of the real Hawaiian type, and the singing of the natives was also true to tradition and true to type.

THE OL' SWIMMIN' HOLE

was always held up to you in horror of the typhoid, cholera, etc., that lurked in its cooling waters. You were always warned about the "dog days." How much better if your body had been put in normal condition to resist the diseases real or imaginary which existed in or out of the old swimming hole.

The most effective way to avoid disease is to condition your body so that it can successfully resist all morbid attacks. The Chiropractor accomplishes this by removing the pressure from the nerves, leaving them free to transmit their vital forces to the organs of the body. When all parts of the body function normally, rest assured that nothing short of accidents will undermine the health. DISAPPEARING BEDS FOR APARTMENT HOUSE

Residents of Manhatton island, in their eternal fight for space, have perked up their ears at the announcement by a New Yory realty syndicate that it will build a $450,000 apartment house, whose disitnguishing feature will be "disappearing beds." Officials of the syndicate are silent as to what form the "disappearing beds" wil take during the da ytime. They dismiss the matter by saying that "disappearing beds and many other labor saving devices will be installed.

Architects, however, have given their opinion on the proposed innovation.

The beauty of "disappearing beds" the architects say, is that the bed cannot disppear while the occupant is lying in it on his back, with his knee up and his mouth open. This was the chief drawback to the old-fashioned folding bed. The architects made this statement to quite the fears of many New York residents who had inquired as to whether the "disappearing beds" were similar to the old-fashioned folding bed, or contained any of the latter's cranky and uncertain tendencies.

The architects say that a "disappearing bed" is a bed at night and an oil painting of a Gordon setter or something like that in the day time; that it can be slipped under the bath room floor or tucked away behind the aquarium; or that it may be sunk into a trap door in the floor and an Oriental rug placed over it, so that the tell-tale cracks may not be seen.

The apartment house of the "disappearing beds," the syndicate announces, is to be built on West End Av., anhattan.

Inquest Into Church Fatality

Enquiry Begun Into Cause of Collapse Of Platform

Before Coroner Dr. Yeomans, the inquest to enquire into the circumstances regarding the deplorable accident at St. Andrew's Church which resulted in the death of Mr. Clavel C. Atkins, was continued last evening but was not completed. The evidence of Mr. Charles Cochrane who was on the platform with Atkins at the time of its collapse is necessary and he is not yet out of the hospital, but will be in a day or two. The enquiry was adjourned until Friday evening, the 20th inst.

Mr. Carnew, County Attorney conducted the examination of witnesses and Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., was present in the interest of Mr. C. Johnson who erected the scaffold.

Dr. Forrester testified that he was a practitioner in Belleville and was, on the 5th inst., called to St. Andrew's Church where an accident had occurred. He found Atkins lying on the floor and had him removed to the hospital where it was ascertained that ribs on the right side were broken and had pierced the lungs. The right leg was also fractured. Dr. Daly assisted witness and later in the day Dr. Blakesely, the family physician was called in. Death was caused by shock from injuries. Deceased said he fell from a scaffold.

To Mr. Mikel—Mr. C. Cochrane was taken to the hospital after Atkins. He was injured to some extent.

Construction of Platform

Cephas Johnson testified that he lived in Belleville and was by occupation a carpenter. He knew the deceased Atkins well. Witness' contract was to put up a scaffold in St. Andrew's church for Atkins and Cochrane to work on to tint the ceiling of the church. The scaffold consisted of 2X4 reantling, 2X10 planking and hemlock and pine was used. The lumber was all new. Witness and two helpers put up the scaffold. Atkins and Cochrane were engaged at their work on the scaffold a few days before the accident occurred. There was no inspection of the scaffold. Witness was outside of the church when the accident occurred. Just before the accident, witness assisted in moving a 16 foot plank which extended about 2 feet beyond the supports. A short ladder was set on the plank and rested against the north side of the church. From the ladder Atkins was painting the ceiling. The whole scaffold was floored over by inch lumber. A section where Atkins and Cochrane were working on came down. This was about 20 feet of the scaffolding. There was no apparent defect and he could not tell what caused the collapse of that portion of the scaffold. Four were working on the same section the day before. At the time of the accident Atkins and Cochrane were alone inside the church. Witness heard the crash. The men fell from 18 to 22 feet. Atkins fell in the choir loft and Cochrano on the church floor. Two of the uprights fell down. He looked the scaffold over but could not tell what caused the collapse.

To Mr. Mikel—Atkins and Cochrane were present when the scaffold was erected. Witness was at work on th scaffold all the time. He told his men to take their time and be careful. The cross pieces were well braced.

Harry Phillips testified that he was a carpenter and once before assisted in building a scaffold. Witness was on the scaffold whilst it was being erected. The cross pieces were not more than three feet apart. He could not form an opinion what caused the scaffold to fall.

John Waterhouse in his evidence testified that he was a carpenter and assisted in erecting the scaffold at St. Andrew's church. Witness was not on the part that fell. He could give no opinion as to how the scaffold came to collapse. Witness never heard Atkins or Cochrane make any complaint as to the scaffold.

Dr. Blakesley testified that he and Dr. Forrester had a consultation in regard to Mr. Atkins who was suffering from broken ribs on the right side which had pierced the lungs. The right hip was also fractured. Deceased never mentioned anything about the accident. Death was the result of shock and internal injuries.

Cephas Johnson was recalled and explained more fully to the jury the position of the planking Atkins was working on when the collapse occurred.

Everett Bell being called, said he could not form any idea as to what caused the scaffold to fall.

Alexander Patterson testified that he drove the ambulance to the church and assisted in removing Atkins to the hospital, also Cochrane. Personally, witness knew nothing of the accident.

This completed the taking of evidence of the sittings and Coroner Yeomans explained that it was essential that the evidence of Mr. Cochrane be secured. An adjournment until the evening of the 20th was agreed to.

KINGSTON BOWLERS WELL SATISFIED

Kingston Standard—The Kingston Lawn Bowlers who went to the Belleville tournament on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, have all returned home, incidentally bringing with them 20 out of the 39 prizes offered in the tournament, and all aggreeing that the members of the Belleville Bowling Club—not forgetting the ladies—were charming, generous and kindly hosts. All told, over 30 rinks from various parts of the Eastern district were present, and while Kingston missed the Riggs cup, J. M. Elliott's team got into the finals for the big event while a Kingston team, skipped by H. M. Newman, won the beautiful Ackerman cup, donated by Mr. Ackerman, and another Kingston team, skiped by Dr. Sparks, was runner-up in this contest. Apart from these victories in the team games, Kingstonians did exceptionally well in the doublees and singles the singles E. Green won third prize; while in the doubles no fewer than three iKngston teams headed the list and as a consequence these doubles will be played off in this city. Dr. Sparks and J. Baker wil play off. R. S. Graham and R. S. Crocker in the semi-finals, and the winners will then play M. Manahan and J. A. MacFarlane in the finals. The prizes in these are: First prize, Pyrex plate to each player; second prize, Easel stand to each player; third prize, smoking stand to each player.

There may be nooks and corners in this great Dominion of ours where old style corn foods are thought to be the best.

But that would be because some folks are not yet acquainted with

Post Toasties

This food has flavor, form and texture of such superior quality that taste and satisfaction quickly yield favorable judgement.

Try a packet from the grocer, being sure to specify Post Toasties by name. Serve them to the family for breakfast or lunch.

CANADA FIRST.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, justified the choice of his colleagues in placing the mantle of Sir Robert Borden, Canada's great war Premier, on his shoulders, in his stirring speech at Stirling, when in plain and simple terms he outlined the policy of the Government, and declared for Canada first, last and all the time. The interests of Canada must be protected, said this hundred-per-cent. Canadian, whose militant speech and fearless attitude toward public questions proved that he was the right man in the right place as the leader of this young and vigorous nation. All over Canada the newspapers are ringing with commendation of the strong policy laid down by the young Prime Minister, and even opposition papers, with any inclination toward fairness, admit that the Premier's pronouncement of government policy was a strong and masterly utterance.

The Premier's speech was plain and straightforward. There were no vague generalities capable of various constructions—the industries of Canada must be protected and the free trade tendencies of nation-wreckers defeated. The tariff commission will be charged with seeing that no industry is unduly favored, but Canada's young industries must not be sacrificed to the theories of faddists.

So strong and unanswerable were the Premier's arguments that already some of the dyed-in-the-wool partizan newspapers of the opposition are trying to twist his words into other meanings, but the task is a hopeless one as far as having any effect upon reading and thinking Canadians.

A Speech That is Golden.

The speech made by the Prime Minister at the Stirling picnic yesterday is of inestimable value to the country. It was the one thing needed. Good crops and assured material prosperity do wonders in their way, but unless the people are made easy in their minds in regard to matters controllable by Government, progress will be more or less checked. There never was a time when demagogues or men of restless ambition were laboring harder to make the Canadian people uneasy in their minds than they are today. These inciters and exploiters of unrest, these advocates of "wild cat" policies, are the only pernicious influence in the country. When members of the Government were breaking themselves down by devoted efforts against the enemy, and by their application to the colossal tasks of reconstruction, the chiefs of opposing groups in the House were busy misrepresenting them to the country and pushing their own political fortunes as promoters of policies that only reckless politicians would try upon the nation. The Government remained at its post of duty. No men loyal to their trust could have done otherwise. With them it was not office, but service. This gave their opponents an advantage they were not above taking. But the time came when the tremendous programme of war operations, of demobilization and reconstruction was cleared. Sir Robert Borden, who by general allowance is ranged among the great men of his time, finding himself unable to continue longer under the strain of office, resigned, and Mr. Meighen was called to his place as the head of the Union Government and chief of the National Liberal and Conservative party. It is about six weeks since Mr. Meighen became Prime Minister and his first political speech in that capacity is the one he delivered yesterday.

An Honest and Fearless Leader.

As we have said, it is a speech of the kind that was needed to tone up public opinion and assure the people. It shows them that Mr. Meighen is the honest and fearless leader the nation needs at the present pass in its affairs. No observer of his past course in public life could doubt that he would be such a leader. Compared with the Stirling speech, how pathetically feeble are the sniping operations of Mr. Mackenzie King. Mr. Meighen appeals to the record of the Union Government, and what a marvellous record that is! The conduct of Canada's war business, the raising and equipping and steady reinforcing of the Canadian army; the demobilization of the forces; the gratuities, the pensions, the allowances to dependents of the fallen, the hospital care of the wounded, the civil re-establishment of returned men generally—these are matters in regard to which the Government challenges comparison with like war and reconstruction work in any other country.

There is nothing apologetic about the Stirling speech. The Prime Minister is rightly proud of the Government's strong course for supporting the men at the front. With equal patriotism the Meighen Government will do its duty in the face of domestic enemies of the State, any disturbers of public order. On that point the Prime Minister speaks in the plainest language. He is right in his remark that 99 per cent. of all the grumbling of recent times is base and harmless humbug. He stands for unity and national solidarity, for freedom of enterprise and for policies that have made the country what it is. The people will agree with him that "the old party alignments are pretty well grown over now."

Fiscal Humbugs.

He is with the upbuilders and will resist with all his power the tearers down. Free traders and fiscal humbugs, as he says, make up the Opposition. The financial policy of his Government is to go no farther into debt, and its tariff policy is to keep Canadian workingmen in Canada, but no interests, however powerful, will get more than these requirements call for.

THE POET'S CORNER

HIS STRONG DESIRE

Beauty have pity for the strong have power,
The rich their wealth, the beautiful their grace,
Summer of man its sunlight and its flower,
Springtime of man all April in a face.

Only as in the jostling in the Strand
Where the mob thrusts or loiters or is loud,
The beggar with the saucer in his hand
Asks only a penny from the passing crowd.

So from this glittering world with all its fashion,
Its fire and play of men, its stir, its march,
Let me have wisdom, beauty, wisdom and passion,
Bread to the soul, rain where the summers parch.

Give me but these, and though the the darkness close
Even the night shall blossom as the rose.

—John Masefield.

"Going to marry him, dear?"

"Not any, honey; I'm going to marry Tom who rides on the street car."

Egg-Sactly

After many years of parting the old school chums chanced to meet again and spent an interesting hour exchanging reminiscences.

"But, I say old chap," began one suddenly, "you say you are in the grocery line. I thought you wanted to go on the stage?"

"So I did," confessed the other sheepishly; "but—er—I found out I wasn't suited for it."

"A little bird told you, I suppose?"

The other man hesitated, and his face slowly flushed.

"Well, no, not exactly," he said; "but they might have been birds if they had been allowed to hatch."

SISTER MARY BASIL CASE COMES UP AGAIN

Kingston, Aug. 12.—The Sister Mary Basil case is to be again before the courts after an interval of a year. Now that Archbishop Spratt has returned from Rome, where he was exonerated by the ecclesiastical courts, his Grace has again to face examination by Sister Mary Basil's counsel as to what worldly goods he has to satisfy the judgment of $20,000 against him. An attempt was made last year to attach the cathedraticum paid to the Archshop by the priests of the diocese. Whether an attempt will be made to effect a settlement of the case is not known, but it is hinted that some effort to that end may shortly be made at the instance of Rome.

SMALL EFFECT ON PRICES

As an illustration of the effect the 40 per cent. increase in freight rates would have on the price of articles in every-day use in Canada, President D. B. Hanna, of the Canadian National Railway, cites the following concrete examples:

Six cents on a $60 suit of clothes, if shipped from Toronto to Regina, 1,613 miles.

Eighty cents on 1,000 feet of dressed lumber from Rockland to Montreal, 219 miles.

Thirty-two cents on 100 pounds of live beef from Winnipeg to Toronto, 1,257 miles.

One and four-fifths cents on five cans of corn from St. Catherines, Ont., to Winnipeg, Man., 1,311 miles.

Two and a quarter cents on a pair of shoes from Fredericton, N.B., to Winnipeg, 1,882 miles.

Nine and one-quarter cents on 25 pounds of sugar, Montreal to Winnipeg, 1,421 miles.

Six and a half cents on 25 pounds of butter from Guelph to Toronto, 49 miles.

"If the United States wage increase had not to be met in Canada our application would have been for a 30 per cent. increase only," said Mr. Hanna. "Even allowing the full 40 cent. increase you would have to use a searchlight to spot the rise."

WARSAW GROWS PANICKY

Warsaw, Aug. 11.—A feeling of intense apprehension has spread through the city as reports circulate that the enemy is gradually drawing nearer and is attempting a huge encircling movement. Crowds are striving to leave the city by all available means—carts, automobiles and the few remaining trains. The railway station is besieged by an excited throng of people eager to get away.

People fight for places

People fight for standing room on the trains or for places on the roofs of cars, or for the privilege of hanging on to the car couplings. It is a grim picture of tense conditions as the enemy draws near.

C BATTERY MAY BE MOVED.

Kingston, is likely to lose C Battery of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery which may be located in Winnipeg in September. At present Kingston has all three of the R.C.H.A. batteries, besides the Heavy Battery. Major Lafferty is in command of C Battery.

MASTER MECHANIC DEAD.

Alexander Maver, master mechanic of the G. T. R. shops at Montreal, is dead. Mr. Maver was foreman of the erecting shops at Stratford from September, 1888, to April 1898, when he was sent to London, subsequently being appointed master mechanic of the Montreal shops.

SIX FEET OATS

W. H. Kenneth J. Warren, or Rockfield, dispute the claim of Addison to possessing the record Leeds county oats for 1920. They have pulled a stem on their farm six feet in length and having 173 kernels as well as five more kernals not yet filled, as these oats were sown late They are an American variety sown for the first time on this farm.

LOOKING FOR LIQUOR

Burglars on Saturday night gained entrance to the C.P.R. freight sheds at Port Hope by breaking a pane of glass in one of the windows. The thieves made a careful inspection of all the packages in the building, but finding no liquor, they left empty handed. Even several caddies of tobacco were no attraction for the night raiders. It was a case of whiskey or nothing and the thieves were obliged to accept the latter guide.

TWO ACCIDENTS AT BROCKVILLE

Gonzague Rioux, aged 45, of Actonvale, Que., employed on an extra track gang in Brockville yard, had his right foot badly bruised on Tuesday by a falling rail. He was assisting in the unloading of rails from a lorry when one struck him on the right foot. Another trackman to be injured in the Brockville yard operation was Frank White, aged 25, of Maple street, Brockville, who had the third finger of his right hand jammed. He was picking up a jack when the dog caught his finger, injuring it slightly.

LOST BEAUTY SLEEP.

A party of newspapermen, who visited the Premier in his private car at Belleville on Wednesday, were very cordially received by Mrs. Meighen, who chatted pleasantly with them while plying the knitting needles. The conversation turned on daylight saving, and Mrs. Meighen expressed her opinion that it was a good thing. The visitors, however, had a joke on their gracious host, for when one remarked "It is nine o'clock," she replied, "Is that all. I thought it was ten o'clock.". Her watch goes on daylight saving, while Belleville runs on standard time. "I rose an hour earlier than I should have done if I had known about the difference in the time," she added, and merrily joined in the general laughter that followed.

ORANGE PICNIC

The annual picnic of the L.O.L. No. 175 of Allisonville, was held August 12. The ideal weather enabled the picnickers from neighbouring towns to attend. Speaches were delivered by W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville, Mayor Newman of Picton and Rev. Barker of Allisonville. County Master J. W. Boyd acted as chairman. A game of baseball was played between Allisonville and Consecon resulting in a score of 8 to 4 in favour of Consecon. Numerous races were run and many splendid prizes were awarded. The judges of the sports were A. C. Gillett, Belleville and Mr. J. Miller, Toronto. One of the main attractions of the day was a baby show, of which Mr. J. Miller and Mrs. C. Blake of Toronto and A. C. Gillett of Belleville were judges. The first prize was awarded to Mrs. J. E. Bird's baby. The Belleville Highlander Band was in attendance being conducted by Bandmaster Johnstone.

ATE RIEL'S BREAKFAST

Fifty-years ago, on Aug. 21, an army from Toronto and Ontario marched upon Winnipeg, crept along the bank of the Red River and arived at Fort Garry just in time to eat breakfast left cooling by ouis Riel and his Indian followers. Sir Hugh John Macdonald, son of Ex-Premier Sir John Macdonald, was with the victerious force. They will celebrate the aniversary with a banquet. Fifty men, who are the sole survivors, will attend from Ontario cities and Vancouver. The event was known as the Rer River Expedition of 1870. erans from Ontario will It is exected

It is expected that some of the veterans from this section will journey to Winnipeg to atend the banquet. Mr. Wm. H. Anthony, of Sterling, a veteran of No. 6 Company, 1st Battalion,, Red River Expedition, writes hTe Intelligencer that he intends to be present at the banquet of veterans in Winnipeg on August 24, and would be pleased to hear from any Belleville veterans who contemplate going.

BROKE ARM

Miss Stella Wickens of Stirling whilst horse-back riding had the misfortune to break her left arm near the elbow when she fell from the animal.

A FALSE ALARM

At 1.30 this afternoon the fire brigade was called to the corner of North Front and Grove street where it was stated a fire was in progress, but it proved to be a false alarm.

DIED AT MONTREAL

The serious illness of Mr. Fred Abrabam, a former Belleville newspaper man, was noted in these columns a few days ago. The sad news reached Belleville this morning of the death of Mr. Abraham, which occurred this morning at Montreal.

SIX MONTHS, SECOND OFFENCE

George Clute, a farmer residing at Oxford Station, Grenville county, was brought to Brockville to serve six months for a second infraction of the Ontario Temperance Act. He is an elderly man and has long been under suspicion of the Temperance Act officials.

FALSE ALARM

At an early hour this morning the police in response to a telephone call made a hurried trip to a residence on north Albert street it being reported that a man was endeavoring to gain admittance to the house by way of the cellar window. Upon investigation it was ascertained that a board had slipped off a coal bin in the cellar allowing some coal to fall and this alarmed the inmates who imagined a burglar was at work.

SUMMER ARRIVES

The blistering weather of the past few days in striking contrast to the previous cool night sand days shows that the people who worried about a possible lack of heat to put just the right finishing touches upon an abundant harvest were wasting energy. Even if the hot weather was slow in coming it certainly made up for any delay when it did finally arrive.

VIEWING SCENE

The jurymen who are considering the evidence in the case of Clavel C. Atkins, who died as the result of injuries sustained in the collapse of a scaffold at St. Andrew's Church in this city, this morning made a minute inspection of the place where the deplorable event occurred. The wreckage was in the same condition as when the collapse occurred.

DESERTED BABE

Confessing to having deserted her six-weeks old baby in the washroom of the Brockville union station last evening, Miss Fannie Hayes, aged 31, of Kingston, was arrested by Chief of Police Burke . The woman was attempting to hide behind a door of the residence of Charles Beach, 419 King street west, Brockville where she had spent the night, after leaving the station. Charged by Chief of Police Burke with having deserted the child, the woman gave way and confessed. She was slightly acquainted with Mrs. Beach, who gave her lodging on her statement that she was out of funds and needed a place to sleep prior to leaving for Butternut Bay. The baby was born at Brockville six weeks ago. Miss Hayes went to Kingston with the child and there endeavored to secure fosterparents for the infant. Failing in this effort, she returned to Brockville.

A. O. HUNTER, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who says Tanlac has certainly proven its worth in both his own and his wife's case . He wasn't able to work when he began taking it.

"Last fall I had the 'Flu' and it left me in a very weak and run down condition with no appetite at all and such a weak stomach that even the swell of cooking made me sick. I was awfully nervous and night after night I couldn't sleep to do any good. I would get up in the mornings tired and worn out and was so short of breath that a half hour's job would tire me as much as a whole day's work use to. In fact I finally had to give up a good job.

When I first started taking Tanlac I was working for the Goodyear Rubber Co. in Akron Ohio. I decided that anything that was being talked about so much was at least worth an honest trial. It worked like a charm in my case . It helped me right from the start and by the time I had taken my third bottle all of my troubles were gone and I found myself well and strong again.

"While in Akron my wife got so she couldn't eat. She lost weight and got very pale. Tanlac was doing me so much good I got her to try it and after taking two bottles, she is looking fine again. Her appetite is just splendid and she looks like a different person. It certainly has proven its worth to both of us and has come up to every word I have read and heard about it."

The above statement was made by A. O. Hunter, 106 W. 7th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, a well-known mechanic now in the employ of the Cincinnati Abatoir Co.

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

HIGH COST OF GOVERNMENT PRINTING

The cost of publishing the Congressional Record, the government publication recording daily everything that is said and done in Congress as well as somethings outside, was $537,640 last year, practically the same as for 1918, but about $300,000 less than the 1917 cost.

These figures were given recently by Russell O. Beene, accountant at the government printing office, in answer to an inquiry of representative Magee, of New York, as to the possible saving that would result from the discontinuance of the record. Mr. Beene gave the cost for 1917 as $801,-790.88 and for 1918 as $537,640.

Cornelius Ford, the public printer, was asked for an explanation of the high figure in 1917, but confessed his ignorance unless it happened that Congress "did "more talking" that year. Mr. Ford said that in 1917, Congress was in session 250 days; in 1918, 307 days, and in 1919, 279 days. these years were 652,511,964 in 1917; The printed pages in the Record for 563,672,587 in 1918; and 455,130,450 in 1919. The cost of paper has increased greatly within the last three years, but the use of a lighter and less expensive quality has helped reduce the aggregate cost of the paper usd. For 1919, th paper cost was $130,000 as compared with $162,000 1918 and $300,000 in 1917.

PAPER SUITS THE LATEST

An English firm that imports German goods via Holland has had a range of suitings sent from Germany on approval which may be sold in Great Britain, made up and ready to wear, at 2s. 6d. (60 cents) to 10c. 6d. ($2.50) per suit.

These suits are manufactured of paper and are cut in English styles. One thousand of them can be bought for 120 pounds sterling ($540.0). These are of "the very best class of paper texture." Complete suits were permitted to pass the customs at the declared value of 10d. (20 cents) per article.

The firm of agents dealing with the goods declare that under the system of buying the paper suits at the present rate of exchange, it would be possible for a Britisher to be "comfortably dressed" in a new suit a week for a year at the cost of one bought in the West End of London.

Canadian Khaki Students Do Well

London, Aug. 10.—Canadian khaki university students have been doing well at Edinburgh University. Rev. W. L. M. Moffitt, Toronto, Senior Chaplain of the Third Canadian Division, after a special course of study at Edinburgh University, has been received into the ministry of the United Free Church of Scotland W. A. Carrothers, D.F.C., has been appointed assistant lecturer in Political Economy in the university, and Earl Douglas MacPhee, of Tryonx, P.E.I., has gained the M.A., and Bachelorship of Education.

Will Tour Empire To Promote Trade

London, Aug. 10.—The House of Commons voted today one hundred thousand pounds guarantee for the British Empire exhibition which will tour the Empire. Right Hon. George F. G. Kellaway said that indications pointed out to a lull in trade here so that is was necessary to open new markets. The greatest hope lay in the Empire itself, he said.

The guarantee is contingent on four hundred thousand pounds being found privately. J. R. Clynes, vote, but another Laborite declared that it was a private advertisement at the public expense and that the Labor party had had enough of fostering Imperial interests. Another member retorted, amid laughter and cheers, that the deplorable speeches of some Laborites proved that they were unfit to govern.

Wedding Bells

REEVES—ELLIOTT

The marriage of Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott, Belleville, to Walter Henry Reeves, Esq., London, England, took place on Wednesday afternoon, August 11th, at St. Paul's Church, Bloor street, Toronto, the Rev. Dr. Cody officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of white kumsa-kumsa silk, a French cape of peach colored duvetyn and a French hat of white taffeta. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses and bebe's breath, and she wore the gift of the groom, a bracelet of platinum and diamonds. The bridesmaid, Miss Norah Elliott, sister of the bride, looked charming in a frock of white jersey silk, with hat to match, and wore mauve sweet-peas. Mr. Douglas Elliott officiated as best man.

Called By Death

DR. S. T. HUDSON.

On Wednesday evening Dr. Samuel T. Hudson, a well known physician, passed away at his late home at Roslin, after being ill for some time. Deceased was born at Roslin, 77 years ago and in 1871 graduated in medicine, and practised at Melrose, Tweed, Shannonville and Roslin, being for 41 years at the latter place. Dr. Hudson was a successful practitioner and enjoyed a wide reputation, and his demise is sincerely regretted by a host of friends. Deceased was a devout member of the Anglican church, and in politics a Conservative. A widow and two daughters survie, the latter being Mrs. C. C. Leavens of Belleville and Mrs. (Rev.) J. C. Dixon, of Amherst Island. The heartfelt sympathy of many will be extended to the bereaved.

MRS. EMILY TOWNSEND.

Mrs. Emily Townsend, of this city, passed away this morning after an illness of some weeks. Deceased was 70 years of age and was born in the old country. She came to Canada in 1860 and had resided here ever since. Mrs. Townsend was a member of the Baptist Church. She leaves to mourn her loss three sons and one daughter. The sons are, Timothy, of Belleville; Arthur, of Allora, Sask.; and Sydney, of Argentine, S.A.; and the daughter, Mrs. C. Phelps, of Belleville.

10,000 Czecho-Slovak Troops Passed Through Canada

HAD BEEN FIGHTING ON FOREIGN SOIL FOR SIX YEARS—SAILED FROM VLADIVOSTOK LAST MAY FOR CANADA—FIFTEEN SPECIAL CANADIAN NATIONAL TRAINS TOOK THEM TO VALCARTIER CAMP.

Canadians generally are not aware of the recent passing through the Dominion of some 10,000 representatives of a new republic in Central Europe—the little Republic of Czecho-Slovakia which is bordered on the north by Germany and Poland, on the east by Russia and Roumania, on the south by the state of the Magyars and German Austria and on the west again by Germany a Republic carved by the Victorious Allies in 1919 out of the provinces of Bohemia, Silesia, Moravia and Slovakia.

These were ten thousand troops that had been fighting on foreign soil for more than six years and who sailed from Vladivostok last May arriving at Vancouver on the Steamships Ixion, Proteselaus and Dollar, early in June. They were transported across Canada by Canadian National Railways in fifteen special trains to Valcartier Camp where they remained until about the middle of July, when they sailed for their homes in Europe. Some Canadians, there, had an excellent opportunity of studying at first hand these typical representatives of the races of Central Europe within the borders of our own country.

Canadians have had in the past, scant occasion to study the Czecho-Slovaks or their history. Somehow we had the idea that they were of a race somewhat inferior to ours. Many of us even imagined they were an uncivilized people with whom we should scarcely care to associate, while as to their educational attainments, we scarcely thought of them at all.

Fine Looking Soldiers

But when the Blue Funnel liner "Ixion" docked at Vancouver on June 6th, some 3,000 Czecho-Slovaks passed in orderly array down the gang planks, a fine looking body of smart khaki-clad troops, not unlike Canadian soldiers in appearance. Indeed with the exceptions of a few typical Slav types and of their uniforms they might easily have been mistaken for Canadians. As they paraded from the docks to the C.N.R. station, rifle over shoulder, people in the Coast Metropolis commented favorably on their fine soldierly appearance as they swung along to the music of the "Storm Battalion" band.

Later in the month, the Steamships Proteselaus and Dollar arrived with more Czechs; who, like the first, were transported across Canada by Canadian National Railways whose officials could not speak highly enough of them. It was remarked that their trains, on arrival at Valcartier, had the appearance of just having come out of the terminal, instead of having crossed the continent, for the troops had scrubbed out the cars before leaving them. Each man also kept a little box on the window sill into which he threw matches, ashes, etc. to keep the cars from getting littered. Another railway representative stated that he had never had charge of a finer body of men. "They were well-behaved, well-read and scrupulously clean.

Valcartier Camp

It was at Valcartier Camp, however, that their national characteristics were seen to best advantage. Although they remained in camp for a few weeks only, every tent was surrounded by an artistic garden outlined with white-washed stones and so beautiful was the effect that a visiting General from Quebec, inquired if they had brought a landscape gardener with them. It was merely an expression of the aesthetic nature of these people. Of course all the flowers and shrubs in their gardens had been transplanted from the woods and fields. Often at either side of the entrance to a tent, stood a small fir tree, while beautifully arranged around and behind the tent were clumps of daisies and other wild flowers. Here and there, worked out in different shades of soil, or in flowers, were mottoes in the Czech language or a map illustrative of their journey home. Often, where a ditch ran in front of a tent, a little rustic bridge and arch of attractive design was built while at one side of a tent stood a miniature castle surrounded by a wall and moat with a typical draw-bridge.

A Music-Loving People

That they were a music-loving people could not be doubted for among them were ten fine brass bands, and several orchestras, one of which gave a concert in Quebec City on July 5th, there were also a number of well-trained choirs. In the evening, passing down the road between the tents, one could hear snatches of Slavic song, the singing notes of a violin or some other string instrument being played in individual tents, by a band somewhere in the distance. But why not, for with such musical exponents as Frederic Snetenakl, Antonin Dovrak, Zdenek Fibic, Novak, Suk and Foerster. Czecho-Slovak music holds a place of honour in the music of the world. Indeed all the fine arts were well represented. Here at the camp, an artist was busy on a portrait of Professor Masaryk of their new Republic, or a battlefield scene There a sculptor patted and modelled clay, a war memorial to his fallen comrades, while over in another tent a poet was writing a sonnet on the misty blue hills of Valcartier and so on. One of the pieces of sculpture done by a man of the ranks was presented to the Garrison Club of Quebec City by the troops.

They had a moving-picture machine and an official photographer, a library of 10,000 volumes together with a supply of magazines and newspapers and a mimeograph machine on which their daily army newspaper was produced.

Compulsory Education

Compulsory education having been in effect for some time in the provinces from which these Republicans came, they are well-read and speak several different languages. The officers speak English well, along with French, Russian, Czech, Polish, Serbian and German. Many were students at the University of Prague, Vienna or some other middle-European centre at the outbreak of war. Even among the ranks were to be found Academicians in Art and Music and teachers and writers.

The rank and file, even, gave many evidences of a fine "National" sense. Wherever they had the opportunity it was not the casual enjoyment that claimed their attention first, but the thought that perhaps somewhere about there might be some fact the learning of which by them might be of advantage back in the Homeland. Niagara Falls, taken too much for granted, perhaps by most Canadians was a natural phenomena of the first rank. The great bridge across the St. Lawrence near Quebec was another. And the great industries of the cities were potent in their appeal to such of the Slovaks who had the chance to visit. Altogether, there seemed to be a widespread feeling of rgret that they had not been privileged to know Canada and Canadians more intimately than they have, and many will go back to the harassed little Republic in the heart of Old Europe with the germ of a vigorous desire to come once more to this virile Dominion across which they had raced at high speed to the steamers carrying them across the Atlantic and to home.

PREACHER TOOK OFF COAT TO READ STORY OF DANIEL

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—With the subject for his cannon very suggestive of the prevailing hot weather, Rev. Herman R. James in Dominion Methodist church, Ottawa, prepared his congregation by giving the men permission to remove their coats.

Stripping his own coat, Mr. James, in his shirt sleeves, took his text from the story in the third Chaper of Daniel, of the three young men, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, who were cast into the firy furnace, heated to seven times its normal temperature by order of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Israel, when they refused to worship

MUST MARK NET WEIGHT ON FRUIT FOR EXPORT

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—Packages of fruits and vegetables from Canada to the United States must be marked net weight. Such is the information conveyed in a wire received by the Fruit Commissioner's branch of the Department of Agriculture. Hitherto some doubt has existed in the mind of growers if such a condition, which was imposed by a recent amendment to the Food and Drugs act, would be insisted upon. Pending a determination, however, of whether the quantity of the contents must be marked on small open containers enclosed within crates, no action will be taken by the department if the containers are not marked.

Kaiser's Woman Spy Dies In Sanitarium

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Death has claimed Mme. Marie K. De Victorica, accredited during the war with being the Kaiser's chief woman spy in the United States. According to attendants at the private sanitarium in which the woman died of pneumonia. Mme. de Victorica was accepted as a patient last Monday. Since 1918, when her health first failed, she has been living in a convent here.

Payments of $40,000 from Count von Rodiger, German naval lieutenant commander, who succeeded Von Bernstorff as head of the German spy system in America, to Mme. de Victorica were traced by United States authorities.

The woman was 42 years of age, the daughter of a Prussian general, and was known at times as the Baroness von Regtchmann. She was given wide notoriety during the trials of John and Jeremiah O'Leary, charged with trea-

Canadian Women In Medical Profession

There Are 250 Women Doctors in the Dominion—Numbers Increasing

Within a few years the practicing woman doctor should be known in every part of the world. Nearly 8000 women students are taking up the profession of medicine in Britain.

Women doctors excelled themselves during the war in hospital work and in "carrying on" while male doctors were required on the various battle fronts. Dr. Elsie Inglis and the noble band of women doctors associated with her in the Scottish Women's Hospitals in Serbia and other allied countries won the warmest praise from every quarter. Their courage and fortitude during the severe hardships of the Serbian retreat are among the most thrilling and impressive pages in the history of the great war. There is no doubt that Dr. Inglis sacrificed her life in the allied cause. Her memory will ever be fragrant among university women.

It was the courageous persistence of Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell in the United States and of Dr. Sophia Jex-Blake in Scotland that opened the doors of medical schools to women. Today women are welcomed as heartily as the male students of surgery and medicine in the schools of this continent and of Britain. The spade work of the pioneers in the movement has been amply justified.

Approximately there are 250 women doctors in the Dominion. The Queen City has a large share of these. They are to be found in every province and many of them have large practices A few have gained distinction in their profession. Dr. Maude Abbott, for instance is one of the chief authorities in the medical world on conenital cardiac disease and is the author of the article on this subject in Osler's "Modern Medicine." Dr. Abbott is curator of the Museum at McGill University Medical Faculty and assistant editor of the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association. This notable physician was one of the first to point out the great utility of the museum as a means of teaching medical students.

Dr. Edna M. Guest, who recently returned from overseas, was appointed by the British war office to the staff of a war hospital in England, and was afterwards on the staff of the Scottish Women's Hospital in Corsica. Dr. Guest was subsequently summoned to Royaumont Hospital in 1918 and remained on the surgical staff there until shortly after Armistice Day. Her war record is fine.

Other Canadian physicians who held overseas appointments were Dr. Margaret Parkes of St. John, N.B., and Dr. Evelyn Windsor, Calgary.

So far as Canada is concerned there is hesitancy on the part of women to enter medicine as a career. There are no fewer than 78 women students in all the years of the medical course in Toronto. One is a trained nurse, one was a V.A.D. overseas, one a dentist and a fourth holds a degree in pharmacy. The course occupies six years.

Toronto, too, has the distinction of possessing a Women's College Hospital which is entirely staffed by medical women and is a great credit to them.

Whatever medical women may have to face across the line in the nature of jealousy by male physicians there is no handicap of this character for medical women in Canada. The men and women doctors work harmoniously together. They are animated by a true spirit of comradeship in the fight to overcome disease and relieve suffering. The ability of the woman doctor is acknowledged by none more readily or more generously than her male colleague.

The supply of women doctors is not equal to the demand. They are wanted for general practice, for salaried officers in state institutions and for resident physicians in hospitals.

Radial Railway And Free Bay Bridge

Radials in Prince Edward and a Free Bay Bridge Without Cost to the Tax Payer, is Suggested by W. C. Mikel, K.C.

Moved by Fred Newman, Mayor of Picton, Vice-President of Provincial Hydro Radial Association and Secretary of the Prince Edward County Hydro Radial Association.

That whereas millions of dollars are sent to the United States every year to buy coal to run our steam railways and

Whereas millions of gallons of water are running away in Canadian rivers that ought to be harnessed up to run electric radials instead of steam railways, thereby giving better and cheaper accommodation to the public.

Be it resolved that the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario and the Dominion Government be urged to adopt a policy whereby the Electric Radials be extended from the proposed line to Bowmanville on down east to connect with the Railway formerly known as the Central Ontario Railway now owned by the Dominion Government and that the said Central Ontario Railway be electrified and carried through the central part of Prince Edward County and thence across the Bay of Quinte to the City of Belleville over a bridge to be built by the Railway providing not only for the Electric Railway but also for the passage of vehicles and foot passengers free of charge or toll.

The above resolution, passed unanimously, was the outcome of an address delivered by W. C. Mikel, K.C., at the Village of Allisonville in the County of Prince Edward on the 12th of August at a picnic held to celebrate the "Opening of the Gates of Derry." Mr. Mikel described the proposal as the opening of the gates of Prince Edward. If the people of the Counties of Prince Edward and Hastings take hold of this proposition with energy we have not only Electric Radials but also a free bridge across the Bay of Quinte constructed and maintained without any cost to the tax payers of Belleville or Prince Edward, said Mr. Mikel. With high taxes and large public expenditures when everything costs the highest it would be well worth while for the City Council to take up this matter, pass a resolution and urge other Municipalities and organizations in Hastings and Prince Edward to do the same, for people sometimes get what they go after hard, said Mr. Mikel.

France To Send $50,000,000 Gold

Has Purchased and Virtually Retired $40,000,000 of the Bonds—Envoy on Way to America.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Tentative plans of the French Government for meeting its part of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan, which falls due Oct. 15, call for the shipment of approximately $50,000,000 gold to this country, it was learned in financial circles today. This information became available following the statement of M. Casenave, Director General of French Services in the United States, that France was "prepared to meet in full her share" of the loan, which will be carried out on the arrival here of the French envoy now on his way to the United States.

It was further learned that about $40,000,000 of the bonds already have been purchased in the open market and virtually retired. Technically, it was said, the bonds still are in being but are held for the account of the French Government, which is tantamount to their retirement. It is expected that a similar amount will be purchased now and the maturity date, Oct. 15, and that an attempt will be made to refund substantially $125,000,000 by a new loan.

Great Britain, it is generally understood, has purchased upwards of $200,000,000 of the Anglo-French bonds, and has made arrangements for taking care of the remaining $50,000,000 of her share without resorting to further gold shipments. Thus, with the exception of the consummation of France's refinancing, the Anglo-French maturity practically is provided for.

Greek Assassins Are Pro-Germans

Had Been Removed From Army and Navy Offices Because of Views

PARIS, Aug. 14.—Georges L. Thyiakas and Apostolos Iserppiss, the assailants of Premier Venizelos of Greece who was painfully wounded yesterday at the Lyons railway station here, acted through purely personal motives, according to a statement issued at the Greek legation.

After the fall of former King Constantine they were removed from the Greek army and navy by the Venizelos government because of their open pro-German sentiments, it is said. Police officials have searched the rooms of the men and found documents in Greek, German and French, which will be examined by the magistrate. As a special precaution, the Premier went to the station an hour before the train was to start and entered through the baggage room, but Iserppis learned of the arrangements casually from a Greek newspaper assigned to report the departure of the Premier.

The bullet which lodged in his left shoulder was extricated.

Doctors Dermarest and Ledoux Lebarl, who are attending the Premier, issued the following bulletin: "A ball which was broken into four parts and lodged in the muscles of the rear wall of the armpit, has been extracted under the X-rays. The condition of Premier Venizelos is very satisfactory but rest is necessary." It was expected that if no suppuration takes place, the Premier will be able to leave the hospital in about three days.

Long Flight Of Giant Sea Plane

Flew From Philadelphia to Toronto—Machine Made 984 Miles in Nine Hours.

The largest flying boat ever flown over Canadian territory, passed over this section late Wednesday afternoon on the last leg of its long trip from Atlantic City to Toronto.

The giant craft left Philadelphia last Friday, and after a few days' stop at Atlantic City, set out for Toronto. The boat followed the coast along the Albany river, up Lake Champlain and the River Richelieu, and along the St. Lawrence River, past Kingston, to Toronto The entire trip from Atlantic City to Toronto, a distance of 981 miles, was made in nine hours and 21 minutes, while the trip from Montreal to Toronto, a distance of 334 miles, was made in 3 hours and 22 minutes, making one of the fastest long trips ever made by any craft.

The huge machine, which is equipped to carry sixteen passengers, has an upper wing span, including the extension, of 105 feet, and is driven by two Liberty motors, each of 425 horsepower. The boat is constructed for commercial purposes, the hull lying in the water from the bow to the embonage, and the entrance being immediately behind the trailing edge of the lower wing and between it and the tail plane stays. Aboard the craft on its long trip were T. F. Dunn, president of the U.S.A. Aerial Express Service Company, with seven other passengers.

FRUIT CONTAINERS ARE VERY SCARCE

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—Comment is again made in the current issue of The Dominion Fruit and Vegetable Crop Bulletin on the serious shortage of fruit baskets and apple barrels in all parts of Ontario. In some places the situation has reached an acute stage.

With every prospect of large crops of both plums and peaches, the situation is even more difficult. Factories are doing their best to turn out baskets, but the shortage of apple barrels is blamed upon new business offered to mill men and coopers by breweries. Growers who have not secured contracts for barrels are being warned to plan for winter storage of their fruit.

The supply of sugar for preserving and canning up to the present time has been ample, The Bulletin says. It is also expected that there will be a sufficient quantity available for the balance of the crop. The Department has been assured by the refiners that notwithstanding the removal of control of exports, they will continue to give preferred attention to the Canadian requirements, especially for canning and preserving.

Gen. Wrangel Defeats 13th Bolshevik Army

FOUR THOUSAND PRISONERS, FOUR ARMORED TRAINS, 350 MACHINE GUNS AND 39 CANNON CAPTURED—WRANGEL'S FLEET ALSO IN OPERATION.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 14.—Forces commanded by General Baron Wrangel, anti-Bolshevist leader in Southern Russia, have defeated the Thirteenth Bolshevik Army, according to despatches received here. Four thousand prisoners, four armored trains, 350 machine guns and thirty-nine cannon were captured in the fighting. General Wrangel's fleet has bombarded Otshakov, on the north side of the entrance to the Dnieper estuary, for the purpose of opening a passage up the river for light gunboats.

Talked With Dead Face To Face

Conan Doyle Claims He Talked With Dead Son

LONDON, Aug. 14.—When Sir Conan Doyle recently declared he had talked with the dead "face to face" he meant it literally, he says, but—

He didn't see the "material body." He illustrated what he meant by telling of a conversation with his dead son during which he held the spirit hand and knew further of the sound of the spirit voice that his son was immediately before him.

"My boy put his big, strong hand over mine like this," said Doyle, as his eyes lighted and he clasped one hand firmly over the other. "Then he asked tenderly, 'Father, is my hand cold?' I replied that it was not. That it was quite warm. 'Well,' he laughed in response 'all that comes from you.'

"When I say I have talked with the dead face to face you may take the words literally, but this does not mean that I saw the material body. That is impossible, because when dealing with spirits lights are as prejudicial in all phenomena, dealing with materialization as they are to the development of a photographic plate.

Opponents Of League Are Narrow Crooks

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 14.—Denouncing the opponents of the League of Nations as a "handful of crooks" who seek to "befuddle" the campaign with a "lot of lies," Franklin Roosevelt Democratic nominee for vice-president came to the defense of the League covenant in the closing speech of a busy day on his western speaking trip. He laid the blame for Poland's plight on "those little narrow men in the United States Senate" and declared the Bolsheviki would never have dared attack the Poles if the United States had endorsed the League and thrown her moral support behind the Polish people.

"I hate fighting crooks," Mr. Roosevelt declared "and we are being fed up in this country today by a handful of crooks with a lot of lies. Let's call them by their right name. A little handful of narrow men are trying to force us to fight this campaign on little narrow issues.

"There are many sincere people who are honest in their beliefs. My quarrel is with the men who oppose the League of Nations dishonestly, who try to befuddle this country by dragging in technicalities. They talk about 'America first.' Is that a proper campaign argument to flout in the face of one-half, yes, three-fourths of the people of this nation who want the United States to enter the League of Nations."

SAW AMBROSE SMALL'S DEAD BODY IN PARIS?

Montreal, Aug. 13.—La Presse publishes a letter which its correspondent has received from a friend in Paris, in which the writer says he is sure he saw the dead body of A. J. Small, the missing Toronto millionaire theatre man, in the morgue there. The writer is Louis P. Verande, an impresario, and well known as a singer in Montreal. This is what the letter says:

"I have come across the news of the disappearance of Small, whom I knew in Toronto some years ago. If I remember rightly, I met him through Mr. Edwards (of His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal) and afterwards when I was in Toronto with Hammerstein.

"Either I have made a grave mistake, or my eyes have deceived me, for when I went to the morgue a few days ago to get material for a movie scenario, there was on the stone where the bodies of the unknown dead are placed that of a man whose resemblance struck me very much.

"The moustache was not as long as it formerly was, and the features so emaciated that it was difficult to make certain identification."

MEN AND WOMEN.

London Express.

Men were placed in this world to harness rebellious nature, to bridge the ocean with ships, to create queer but workable forms of government, and generally to be the carpenters of civilization.

Women were just as surely created to make life worth living for men.

That is a crude philosophy, but not less true for being crude. It has survived the centuries in spite of unbelievers.

Changing conditions may force women into unaccustomed activities (we may yet see a conference of women premiers carrying on the peace discussions at Spa), but no dull coating of power or position can hide the real spiritual mission of the feminine.

That mission is to bring the element of charm into life.

The minds of men in the trenches, numb with monotony and horror, turned as naturally to thoughts of good women as the Mohammedan towards Mecca at the hour of prayer.

Women who will not accept the responsibility of that truth are lacking in courage.

LEG BROKEN.

Mr. Jos. Rashotte, of Tweed, had his right leg broken in a very peculiar manner on Saturday morning last. He was working in his planing mill and used his foot to shift a belt from a loose to a working pulley. He was wearing rubbers, and when his foot touched the belt it stuck for an instant and was thrown with sufficient force against the pulley to break the leg.

ARM SEVERELY INJURED.

Lyman Godfrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Godfrey, of Tweed, was the victim of a painful and very serious accident. The young man was employed at the Lehigh Valley Cement Works at Point Ann, and while applying some dressing to a large carrier belt he was thrown across the motor and his left arm was ground to a pulp by the rapidly revolving belt. He had the presence of mind to raise himself up and kick the switch off that controlled the motor, otherwise he would have had his arm completely torn off.

HOBOES SENT DOWN.

Two genuine hoboes were securely caged in the town hall iron cage department on Tuesday. They were both expert lifters of things not too heavy to carry, that did not belong to them. They were sent to Belleville, as Trenton's consignment for the County Bastile. Finger prints and photos were taken of the gentlemen so as to be before the authorities should they ever desire to be arrested again when let loose. The prisoners had quite an assortment of goods in their possession when arrested. They must have intended to start in the family business as a baby carriage was part of their equipment.—Trenton Advocate.

AUTO LANDED IN RIVER.

On Thursday evening last Messrs. Phil and Noah Wheeler, W. Ray and John Clark, of Actinolite, were on their way to Tweed in an auto, and when just on the outskirts of the village, where the road runs parallel with the river, Phil Wheeler, who was driving, struck a match to light a cigarette. The flame of the match probably blurred his vision for an instant, and in a much shorter time than it takes to tell it, the car was upside down in the river, after turning a couple of somersaults with the driver pinned underneath it. The other occupants were thrown clear and escaped with a slight shaking up. The water is not deep at this point, or Wheeler probably would have been drowned before he was extricated from his perilous position. Beyond a few abrasions he is none the worse for his experience.—Tweed News.

MINISTERS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 13.—If lightning should strike this tent tonight how many would be ready for it?" the Rev. John Timber, evangelist asked a congregation of Free Methodists crowding a tent at Springville, near here. Outside a storm threatening.

A few moments later a bolt of lightning entered the canvas top, killed two ministers on the plaform, burned the Rev. Mr. Timber dangerously and knocked down many of the worshippers. The dead:

Rev. Henry Lenz, presiding elder, Belvidere, Ill.; Rev. L. W. Huston, field agent of the Evansville, Wisconsin Seminary.

Rev. Timber, of Jackson, Mich., and another minister and two women whose names have not been ascertained were burned seriously.

Rockford, Ill. Aug. 11.—The Rev. Henry Lenz, killed by lightning at Springville, Ind., was presiding elder of Rockford district of the Free Methodist conference.

Racquett Lake, N.Y., Aug. 13.—Countess assaic Szechenyi, formerly Gladys Vanderbilt, was shocked by a lightning bolt which struck a tree a few feet from the verandah on which she was standing during an electrical storm Sunday. Her condition is not serious.

The countess with a party from New York is spending a vacation at the preserve of her brother-in-law Harry Payne Whitney, at Fork Lake 15 miles north of this place.

Details of the incident were held up owing to the storm flattening telephone wires leading into the preserve. None of the party except the countess suffered any ill effects.

Chautauqua Grows In Interest Splendid Programs Given

"LITTLE SYMPHONY COMPANY CAPTURED ALL HEARTS SUPERB MUSICAL NUMBERS—SPLENDID LECTURE ON "THE MISSION OF THE ANGLO-SAXON" BY DR. FOX OF PASADENA, CAL.

Lovers of "the trembling string" which Robert Burns refers to in his beautiful love song, "Mary Morrison" would have let their fancy take its wing had they been privileged to hear the superb music played by Lieurance's Little Symphony Company at the Chautauqua tent yesterday afternoon and evening. The richness of tone coloring and variety of harmonies which can be produced by four violins, two 'cellos and a piano, played as they were by those who seemed to play first, last and all the time from a pure love of the beautiful in music are almost undreamt of; and when added to these qualities the kind of music given was such that it would satisfy the most critical from the points of view of class, execution and of interpretation. The Little Symphony Company is a party of six young women who have in themselves (leaving the man out for the present) a combination of cultured talent which easily ranks as the best that has been heard in Belleville. It is no criticism but merely a suggestion to say that the seventh member might easily have been a young lady and all the glory would have gone to the ladies. As it was, Mr. Lewis' work at the piano was above criticism, and as conductor of this fine organization he deserves great credit, and the reception given the company by the audiences was such as to leave no doubt in our minds that he and his Little Symphony Company will be heartily welcomed if they pay us a return visit at any future time.

The Programme.

Of the programme little need be said that has not already been suggested. Anyone who has listened to a string quartette of violin, second violin, viola and 'cello, and listened to a programme of so-called chamber music will appreciate the addition of a 'cello and piano to the above. There is, if anything, more scope for the handling of bigger work and the Little Symphony Company amply took advantage of this. A glance at the program below will be sufficient.

In the afternoon the programme was as follows:

1. An excerpt from the Cane Brake (Gardner).
2. Melodie (Wiegand).
3. Symphony sketches (a) In the Garden (Rural wedding symphony by Carl Goldmark; (b) Valse Bluette (Aner); (c) Canzonetta (Schuett); (d) Ballet music from Faust (Gounod).
4. Songs by Miss Sara Requa Vick, (with orchestra—(a) prelude from the Cycle of Life (Ronald) (b) At Dawning (Cadman).
5. Valse Triste (Sibelius).
6. Second Valse (Godard).
7. Medley—Lamplit Hours (arr. by Lieurance).
8. Sand Dunes, Oriental Fox Trot.
9. 'Cello solos by Miss Teshner (a) Dreaming (Squire); (b) La Fileuse (Dunkler).
10. Prelude opus 3, No. 2 (Rachmaninoff).
11. Medley of Spirituels (arr. by Lieurance).
12. Deep River (for violins and 'cellos only).
13. Piano solo by Mr. Lewis—A Rigoletto Paraphrase (Verdi-Liszt).
14. Air de Ballet (Chaminade).
15. Symphonic medley (arr. by Lieurance).
16. Songs by Miss Vick (a) A Birthday (Cowen); (b) The Year's at the Spring (Beach).
17. Some Sweet Home, played as different nationalities might play it in their characteristic musical fashion (Lampe).

Evening Programme.

The evening programme while shorter was full of interest:

1. Romance in A (Lieurance).
2. Poem (Fibick).
3. Nola (Felix Arndt.)
4. Songs by Miss Vick (a) Bird of Love Divine (Wood); Lift Thine Eyes (Logan); (c) Do you Believe in Dreams?
5, Symphonic Medley (Lieurance)
6.—The Bee (Schubert) for violin and 'cellos.
7. Piano solo by Mr. Lewis—American Indian Rhapsody (Lieurance).
8 Songs by Miss Vick (a) By the Waters of Minnetonka; (b) The Canoe Song (both Lieurance); (c) Ma Honey-Bo (with 'cello obligato).
9. Symphonic sketches (a) Tschaikovsky; (b) Weber; (c) Dvorak.

Summing up, the Little Symphony Company are in a class by themselves musically. They are more than good musicians. The beauty of their art reflects itself in their physical appearance, and the modesty of their dress and general deportment on the platform marks them as artists in every sense of the term.

The following is the personnel of the company: Harold Lewis, pianist and conductor; Sara Requa Vick, contralto vocalist; Helen Chase, concert meister; Sara Sheffield, obligato violin; Grace Morley, second violin; Faye Stephens, third violin; Lora Teshner, first 'cello; Helen Mueller, second 'cello.

The Lecture.

The lecture of the evening was a fitting climax to the program of the day. Dr. Daniel F. Fox, of Pasadena, California, a preacher, author, and lecturer, came with a real live subject: "The Mission of the Anglo-Saxon." Such a title has a sermon-like dryness about it, but it was far from that, and the only people who could go to sleep while Dr. Fox talked must have been very old or very young. He handed out a real live up-to-the-minute topic, and clothed it in such language that even young people could grasp its significance.

Dr. Fox set out by pointing out that among the races of the world the Anglo-Saxon, though numerically sadly in the minority, was in the lead. He showed how the original Americans, the Indians, saw only fish to catch and animals to hunt, and his life was made up of hunting, fishing and eating—with the squaw doing the work. Along had come other races and they had sown seed and reaped crops and become rich; had cut down the forests and became rich; had developed all the natural resources of the land, and became rich; while the Indian had retrogressed and would ultimately disappear. He touched on the mongolian races, and on the black and brown races—each of which were lacking in the qualities which made for greatness. The future belonged to the Anglo-Saxon, and there were many ways in which the Anglo-Saxon must lead.

First, there was the education of the young, and he said that in our schools there should be smaller classes so that the teachers could have greater opportunities of developing the scholars according to their natural bent. They should have the best teachers and should pay them enough so that they would not be tempted to give up the work and seek employment in commercial pursuits.

To train the hands, discipline the mind, culture the love of the beautiful in art and music and literature, to be truthful and have the tolerant neighborliness of good citizens were some of his injunctions, for by the old-fashioned virtues were men and women made better and nobler, and the individual goodness was merged finally into the natural spirit.

We must learn to think for ourselves and to learn to think clearly and continuously to the conclusion of the problems in hand. Dr. Fox gave many apt and humorous illustrations of his ideas which kept the audience in smiling expectation all through his lecture. He showed that man was the only thing in the world who had not yet arrived, and said that this fact was the reason why we should go on developing all our natural character and ability and as Anglo-Saxons to keep in the lead of the world of tomorrow.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

TRIPLE-FEATURE BILL

Belleville photoplay lovers are afforded the last opportunity at Griffin's today, matinee and night, to see the triple feaure bill which has been arranged for presentation at the popular playhouse this week end, consisting of William S. Hart in a thrilling Western drama, "The Bad Man," Charlie Chaplin in his 4-reel scream, "Carmen," Charles Hutchison in his great "stunt" picture "The Whirlwind," British Canadian News Pictorial and a beautiful Outing Chester Travelogue.

HOW LADY ALGY KEPT THE LOVE OF HER HUSBAND

A Tonic Worth While

Do you need a Tonic? Are you out of sorts? Have you indigestion, liver troubles, or are your nerves out of tune? If so just try Vital Tablets. They are a wonderful Tonic. They clear the complexion, purify the blood and tune up the whole system. Get a box from your druggist, or by mail from The Scobell Drug Co., Montreal. Price 50c a box or 6 for $2.50.

The wisdom of Lady Algy in Tom Moore's Goldwyn play, "Lord and Lady Algy," which will be presented at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday may be followed by any wife who has the courage and confidence with which the English lady in R. C. Carton's famous story was endowed. Her plan consisted in leaving her husband the first time that he broke a pledge to her. The promise was only to give up betting; but the lure of the ring was too strong for the young lord's sporting blood, and in a fit of weakness he indulged in the sport of backing his favorite horse. As a result his beautiful and dignified wife left him. However, she kept in friendly touch with her husband and when the time came to prove her real devotion, she met every test in a way which bound the young lord to her with an undying affection. To accomplish her end required the utmost tact, the greatest patience, and even playing the dangerous game of flirtation with a former admirer. But the result justified the means and the dignified Lady Algy retained all the aloofness of her proud nature, while through the power of her will and her intellect, she finally drew the lovable young lord back to her. A funny 2-reel Sunshine comedy, the closing chapter of "The Lost City" serial, and a beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue are also being shown on the same porgram.

REVUE "VANITY FAIR 1920"

In the course of each theatrical season there are perhaps half a dozen musical comedies produced which stand out in bold relief from all the others. The success they score is so marked that it is instantly and universally recognized. And they are the plays which in years to follow go on and on, bringing pleasure to thousands and eventually millions of theatregoers One of these rare musical comedies is Boyle Woolfolk's "Vanity Fair." When first presented in New York, "Vanity Fair" sprang into instant favor, its every presentation being a veritable triumph.

A cast of super-excellence and a chorus of twenty selected beauties from Broadway has been engaged and so far as the stage production is concerned, "Vanity Fair" will be seen here exactly as it was presented in New York.

To describe it briefly, it is a brilliant musical comedy, rich in humor, resplendent with scintillating dialogue catchy, tinkling, taunting, jazz tunes and swift dancing to an extreme. Other than to disclose it as a strictly modern musical play bubbling over with action would be to deprive the audience of much of the pleasure in store for them. It is a musical comedy gem of the finest cut and and theatregoers will do well to mark carefully the date of its presentation which opens the dramatic season in Belleville and which is to be seen here next Friday night, August 20th, for one night only.

EXCELLENT LIST OF ROAD ATTRACTIONS

The management of Griffin's announce a few of the dramatic attractions which have already been booked for presentation in Belleville this coming season. Stuart Whyte's new English musical pantomine, "Babes in the Woods," Wednesday, September 22nd, the Cartoon musical comedy, "Katzenjammer Kids," Wednesday, September 29th, Comstock & Gest's "Experience," F. Stuart Whyte's "San Toy," wijh an all English cast, "Maid of the Mountains" with the entire London production intact, David Belasco's spectacle "The Wanderer," Fred Stone in "Jack O'Lantern," Royal English Opera Company, Guy Bates Post in "The Masquerader," Martin Harvey celebrated English actor in two productions all British cast, the musical comedy "Buddies," Lee and J. J. Shubert's production of the Broadway musical success "Good Morning Judge," David Belasco's "Tiger Rose," "The Dumb Bells" in an all new review, Maple Leaf party of the 4th division in a musical revue. The above are just a few of the attractions to be seen here early in the season. Manager Forhan of Griffin's announces that Belleville will be visited this season by the finest line of stage attractions seen here in many seasons.

SAYS PONZI OWES OVER $7,000,000

Boston, Aug. 13.—Federal Auditor Edwin L. Pride states that Ponzi's liabilities were upward of $7,000,000. Ponzi claimed assets of $4,000,000.

Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen, who yesterday closed the Hanover Trust Co., alleging illegal operations in connection with Ponzi's affairs, said that the capital of the Trust Co. was not only impaired, but in his opinion probably wiped out.

MANY VICTIMS OF CURFEW LAW

The number of persons who are victims of the curfew law increase weekly and the experience which they all must go through is exciting, if not comfortable. The majority of those taken by the military are persons who had no intention of violating the law but are detained at the home of a friend beyond midnight.

The usual procedure is this. A military motor lorry filled with soldiers each with a strong searchlight comes up alongside of the unfortunate ones and calls upon them to halt. A request is made for a permit and if as is usual, there is none forthcoming, the Dublinites are taken into custody loaded into the truck which then proceeded on its way.

From time to time, joyful citizens, who have dined too well, are collected and join the party. When the searchers are through the whole load of violaters are taken to Bridewell prison where they must spend the night. If the offenders prove to be obviously innocent citizens they are released in the morning and are none the worse off except for the ride in the lorry which they say is the worst feature of the experience.

Frequently attempts are made to hide from the approaching lorries but the searchlights reach the innermost corners of the doorways and passages and few escape.

LICENSES TAKEN FROM TWO LAKE CAPTAINS

Marquette, Mich., August 14.—The licenses of Captains Lawrence J. Francis, of the steamer H. P. McIntosh and Kenneth McRae of the Adriatic, both from Cleveland, Ohio, were revoked by steamboat inspectors Goodwing and Hanson on the ground that the two were guilty of negligence, misconduct and inattention to duty in the sinking of the steamer Myron, off Whitefish Point, November 21, 1919. It is charged this is the first instance of the kind in the history of the great lakes navigaion. Failure to render aid to the sinking steamer when assistance would have saved the lives of some of the sixteen persons who perished was the chief charge against Francis and McRae.

Letters To The Editor

GREETINGS FROM MR. CROSSLEY

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Happy and grateful memories of all the campaigns of last conference year linger with me. I was constantly engaged in evangelistic services as in the days of Crossley and Hunter. Eleven series of meetings were conducted during the conference year, namely in New Liskeard, Fenwick, Hamilton (Barton street), St. Thomas, Watford, Walkerton, St. George, Hamilton (Wesley), Bothwell, Ottawa, Minesing. All the campaigns were union, except in two places, and many enlisted for the new life and were added to the church. I am rejoicing in the hope that this conference year shall be still more glorious in conquests for the Master. Mr. J. H. Leonard will continue with me as a helper in song. I am now spending a few weeks in Muskoka, where letters may be addressed to me to Box F. Beaumarwis, Ont.

Cordially,
H. T. CROSSLEY.

THROW AWAY HAMMER

To the Editor of The Intellicencer:

Sir:—I do not want to weary you or your many readers, but on a person becoming a resident of a place, it's standing should become part of their very life and I was much pleased on getting my "Montreal Star" the other morning to note that special mention had been made of Belleville along with Montreal and a few other Canadian cities, as sending strong representatives to the Chamber of Commerce Joint or Union Meeting at Toronto.

In the same issue of the Montreal Star in glaring headlines were "Belleville and an account of the Press Reporter's interview with Premier Meighen." Now great as these events may be in the minds of some people, surely throughout the year there are many events worthy of mention in the big city papers. All these tend to increase Belleville's space on the map as a desirable place to locate from a social or commercial standpoint. Even the record from our Weather Bureau might be mentioned. We see temperature, etc., recorded from Montreal, Kingston Toronto and many other places, why not Bellevile? It at least keeps the place before people. We should all be energetic in boosting our city, because when we knock, we leave ourselves open to criticism, people are apt to say "poor fellow, why don't he leave if he don't like it," and people will say "he can't or he would." So let's all boost our town, while we are living in it at least.

GEO B. JONES.

WOMEN WILL FIGHT N RUSSIANS TO DEATH

Warsaw, Aug. 13.—Columns of armed women marched through the streets of Warsaw announcing they would fight the Russians to the death. Some had only revolvers. Others had rifles and sabres.

Many old men and youths have gone to the defenses being established near the city, where they are waiting to come to grips with the invaders.

Leon Trotsky, the Red War Minister, was reported to have arrived at Bialstok ready to lead the Russians in the final drive for Warsaw.

BE KIND TO YOUR HORSE

HOT WEATHER RULES

1. Load lightly, and drive slowly.
2. Stop in the shade if possible.
3. A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.
4. Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still.
5. When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.
6. If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge, using vinegar water if possible. Do not wash the horse at night.
7. Saturday night, give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.
8. Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.
9. If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.
10. If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.
11. Clean your horse at night, so that he can rest well, and clean him thoroughly. The salt dandruff drying on his skin makes him uncomfortable, and often produces sores under the harness.
12. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay. If you don't he will be thirsty all night.
13. If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

PROTECT CANADIAN WORKMEN.

Canadian workmen will need in the early future, perhaps to a greater extent than ever before, the benefit of an adequate tariff to protect their employment against competition of lower-paid foreign labor. Several recent developments are of great significance. The great American Woollen Company has suspended operations for an indefinite period and its employees are out of work. The Pennsylvania Railway has announced that it will lay off 12,000 men. In the silk industry in the United States wages are already being reduced, and the United Textile Workers and the Amalgamated Silk Workers of Paterson, New Jersey, have voted for a strike in the broad silk industry in opposition to such reduction. The declining demand for silk of United States manufacture, due to increasing competition of lower-priced goods from Japan and elsewhere, is the explanation of this situation. World conditions are such as to menace employment in Canadian factories, and the maintenance of an adequate tariff is a vital necessity.

TEAM WORK REQUIRED.

The Western Veteran, organ of the G.W.V.A., published at Edmonton, Alta., comments with enthusiasm on the "Get Together" speech of Prime Minister Meighen at Portage la Prairie, declaring that there is nothing to be gained by nursing our ancient grudges. It says:

> The time before us calls for the "team work" of all Canadians who believe in settled government, the sacredness of our great institutions, the maintenance of order associated with a wise expansion of liberty such as Mr. Meighen advocated in his address. All who will aid in making Canada a great and happy country will find ample scope for united effort, whatever their creed, race, or political idiosyncrasies. There is undoubtedly a good deal to forget, but we feel assured that the British section of the people will not be found ungenerous where the interests of a prosperous and united Canada are at stake.

HOME INDUSTRY MUST BE PROTECTED.

The Montreal Gazette refers editorially to Premier Meighen's Stirling speech as follows:

> The speech of Mr. Meighen at Stirling was delivered under circumstances highly encouraging to the new Prime Minister and his cause, and what he said will be encouraging to his party throughout Canada. The gathering was a great one as regards numbers. The district is one in which the Conservative Party, whose past leaders did much for Canada, was always strong. Mr. Meighen's words were not directed to any particular section of the opinion, and will meet with approval wherever men think seriously on the conditions, the history and the future of Canada. As in his address at Portage la Prairie, Mr. Meighen made no class or sectional appeals. He put forth the platform of his Government in a straightforward way, which all may appreciate. He favors the retention of the present fiscal system, whose moderate protection to home industry has commended itself to two generations of voters, and will, without doubt commend itself to their successors. In this province of Quebec—the most progressive in Canada—it can be said that all the people are protectionists, and whoever forgets this will run the risk of losing much respect. Mr. Meighen's announcement that there will be no more borrowing is of hardly less importance than what he said on the fiscal issue. Canada assumed a tremendous debt in connection with the war. The interest charge is a heavy burden on the taxpayers. Every country which shared in the war, and has the ability to do so, is working to reduce the debt obligations and relieve business of some of the taxes it bears, to the curtailment of enterprise. Canada is doing something, through the sinking fund, to the same end; but it would do well if it could do more. It should not increase its debt or its taxes; and Mr. Meighen's promise that it will not, is therefore something that merits general approval; and no doubt it will be given. The other sections of the address are of secondary importance, compared with these. Mr. Meighen began his career in the premiership well at Portage la Prairie. He is continuing well. People will soon understand that he fills the big place to which fortune has called him.

CRISP COMMENT

"The tariff policy of this country is to keep Canadian workingmen in Canada. The policy of the Government is to give Canadian industries of every kind just enough advantage in the Canadian market as to make it pay them better to stay here and expand than to diminish their plants or leave."—Premier Meighen at Stirling.

Ponzi's picture has been punctured. Yesterday he was a "wizard of finance" with the multitude of "easy marks" begging him to take their money. Today he is under arrest and a few more million dollars and rosy hopes have gone a-glimmering down the rocky road to Get-Rich-Quickville.

The pretty little village of Stirling never looked better than on the occasion of Porter's Picnic. Gaily bedecked with flags and bunting the residents held out the glad hand of welcome to the Premier of Canada and the representative of West Hastings in Parliament, E. Guss Porter, K.C. No better place could have been selected to hold a political or any other kind of a picnic than the Agricultural Park at Stirling, with its beautiful grove and many exceptional facilities for an open air gathering.

Soviet Russia, which was to have been the Paradise of the radicals, turns out to be a hell on earth where pretty theories tried out resolve into sombre realities and the boasted freedom of the red radicals is completely obliterated by oppression of the worst type.

The mounting of the temperature invariably marks an appalling record of drowning casualties, arising out of the efforts of sun-baked and humidity-stricken people to find relief in the cooling rivers. It is not always the person who cannot swim who is the victim. Death while swimming comes to many experts, or those who ordinarily believe that they are able to take care of themselves while bathing in deep waters. The heat is bound to induce a lowering of vitality of the individual. The shock of the water on the superheated body frequently causes imperfect functioning of the vital organs, exhaustion takes place, and the swimmer is unable to take care of himself.—Ottawa Journal.

Increased Freight Rates

Calgary Herald

But the fact that the C.P.R. is getting a special advantage because of increased rates should not deter the railway commission from making a decision that will be fair to the government lines. There is more mileage of government lines in Canada than there is of Canadian Pacific, and the interests of the government owned lines are paramount with the people. They have right to a legitimate rate, no matter what conditions are, and if in setting the rate the C.P.R. is able to make a great profit, it is the business of the government to step in and take from the company whatever proportion of profit is greater than is legitimate. It can be done and the government is the agency to see that it is done. Nor do we imagine the C.P.R. will make any protest, provided it is left with a fair profit on its investment.

Hurts Irish Cause

Buffalo Express

For two centuries the case of Poland has been that of Ireland. If free Poland could expect the heartiest sympathy and support from anybody in the world, it should be from those who advocate free Ireland. Yet on the intimation that the British government at last purposes doing something to save free Poland, one of the few Irish voices which still remain in the British Parliament was raised in such violent protest that suspension of the offending member followed. This is the kind of attitude by Irishmen which hurts the cause of Ireland more than anything which the British leaders possibly could do or say.

THE POET'S CORNER

KID M'BRIDE OF THE RIO GRANDE

The eerie whir of a rattler's tail,
A muffled curse by the cactus trail;
The thread of shade the yucca made,
The "rip" of the wireless, undismayed,
Flinging its notes to the mounted band
Waiting, in leash, at the Rio Grande.

The "zip" of a Mauser—an oath, low hissed
From evil lips, as his bullet missed.
Three thinning belts; three hot carbines;
The doleful "clank" of their dry canteens,
Murphy and Garber and Kid McBride
Flat in the "coulee," side by side.

A sortie here and a scramble there,
Dark-skinned faces everywhere.
The shallow sun of a desert day;
The gasping youth at his rubber key;
The wireless drone—like an angry bee.

A rasping call to the river tow'r
A hurry call at the noonday hour;
A brief reply to the wireless cry;
A swirl of dust as the troops ride by Stemming the river's turbid swell—
Then out on the white hot lids of hell.

The purr of a Curtiss, circling 'round;
A glass aslant to the broken ground;
A view of the trap in the desert lap
The galloping troops at the mountain gap;
A signal flashed from the scouting plane;
A sharp "speed up" and a loosened rein.

A sharp exchange in a running fight,
The desert fades to the sheen of night
A shadowy column of mounted men
Moving northward and—home again.
Murphy and Garber and Kid McBride,
The wireless strapped to the horses' side,
A "first aid" splint on the shattered hand
That wirelessed for help—at the Rio Grande.

Garber's story:
"He fired with his right and 'sent' with his left,
Holdin' his post in th' shallow cleft
Sizzlin' hot like a bilin' pot—
Swinging' his 'Colt' with a shot fer shot.
They don't make youngsters with much mo' sand
Than Kid McBride of th' Rio Grande."
—Will Ferrell, in Kansas City Star

KNOW VALUE OF TRAVEL

Women of Australia Are Not Provincial.

While the women of the world were clamoring and fighting for the much-longed-for vote the wise men of Australia saw that their women folk obtained that possession. Yet, though it pleased her to have it, that vote has not altered the life of the average woman of the commonwealth. It has not even provided one woman member for either the Federal or State Parliaments.

Women who have been near the heart of the world might think that the life of women in a far-off country must lack much. They would not have to spend five minutes in the commonwealth to discover their mistake. First of all, its women do not think their country is far off. If they cannot get to America and Europe, they know that many of the best things of both countries come to them.

All Australian women know the value of travel. No matter what their station in life they cherish one big idea from childhood. They want to see the countries and things of which they have been told by their parents and teachers. Six weeks to London, four weeks to America mean nothing to the Australian girl or woman. Both have been born in a land of big distances. The woman from Australia sets out on her foreign travels happy in the knowledge that having been born in a new country she has an original point of view, that tradition has not got her in its grip, that she has a large capacity to learn and assimilate.

In the earlier days of Australia women were rather imbued with the early Victorian idea that to earn a living was "not quite the thing." In 1893 there was a big financial crash in the country. It brought to the ground with one fell swoop the fortunes of many families. But out of that crash came many a woman's first chance. Many who had hitherto led a dull, pampered existence were forced out into the commercial world. They set the fashion which still holds good. Nowadays, even though the financial standing of a family makes work unnecessary, girls are invariably brought up with the ability to earn their living, even though they may never be forced to do so.

One of the first things that impresses the visitor to Australia is the smart, up-to-date attire of the women. There are few who do not dress exceedingly well, and in no grade is there a slavish following of the fashions set by Paris, London or New York. The Australian woman certainly pays attention to these fashions, however. Their arrival is awaited with almost feverish impatience. They are studied, then converted to the local setting.

The H.C.L., so much talked of everywhere, has, of course, swept down the Pacific to Australia and has given the woman of Australia something to think about. Few Australian girls but can make their own frocks, trim their own hats or remodel last year's hats and gowns if occasion demands.

The Australian home is generally built for comfort rather than style. Hospitality is the slogan of the country. Snobbishness does not exist. Attractive personality and warmheartedness count more with the women of Australia than social position, bank accounts and long pedigrees.

When it comes to trying to solve the domestic problem the Australian woman perhaps has more difficulty than women of other lands. The white Australian policy prevents the obtaining of Chinese or Japanese servants. Local factories have attracted hundreds of hitherto satisfied domestics, and even though high wages are offered help is often difficult to obtain. This is where the adaptability of the Australian woman comes in. She does not force her family to restaurant life; neither does she grumble about enforced housework and cooking. Both may be distasteful to her, but if she has to accomplish them she does so, as part and parcel of the bargain she thinks it her duty to keep.

Open house is the order of the day, and often means many visitors at all sorts of odd times. The more visitors the Australian woman has in her home the happier she is. She has a philosophy that it is as easy to cook for twenty as two.

There is one thing that is the possession of almost every woman of Australia and Tasmania. That is a voice. Once some traveler returned to his country with the information that in Australia birds do not sing. No one could ever say this of the women. Music plays a big part in their lives. A deep, true appreciation of music they have, too. Melba is responsible for the best to be found in her native land—the conservatoriums. Poor music makes no appeal to the woman of Australia. She likes jazz and ragtime; she can dance to both with a will, but if she can hear grand opera or classical music, jazz and ragtime take a second place.

Care of the Blind.

It provides that it shall be the duty of every local authority to make sufficient and suitable provision for the technical training, employment and maintenance of every blind person more than sixteen years of age within its jurisdiction.

Back to Adam.

The Green Room.

The little waiting-room, close to the stage, for the use of actors during intervals, was originally colored green as being restful to the eyes after the glare of the stage. And so it became known as the greenroom.

Baby's Great Danger During Hot Weather

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the house where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

TORONTO WOMAN SHOT ON VANCOUVER STREET

Vancouver, Aug 21.—Mrs. W. W. Carter, an innocent pedestrian, was seriously wounded by a bullet from a revolver in the hands of August Wendt, when he attempted to shoot Ole Lien on Granville street last night whom he found in company with Mrs. Wendt. Wendt is under arrest on a charge of shooting with intent to kill.

Mrs. W. W. Carter resides at No. 7 High Park avenue, Toronto. She went West two weeks ago to join her husband, who is the President of the Fesserton Timber Co., and who is staying in Vancouver on business. Mrs. Carter is middle-aged.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Every year the U. S. Congress grants $100 for the repair of fences and for cleaning up and maintaining the 13-acre reservation at Wakefield, Virginia, where George Washington was born.

There is no dwelling on the place, but a monument marks the place of nativity of "the father of his country." Wakefield is 110 miles from Washington, and is not often visited because it is not easily accessible. It is a mile and a half from the Potomac and pilgrims going by water must also trudge overland to reach it. Excursion steamers no longer stop, the old government wharf having been partly carried away by ice and floods and never repaired.

THREATEN TO KILL COL. FRED BURNHAM

Montreal, Aug. 11.—Word has been received here that Col. Fred Burnham, of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian War Hospital Fund, who, with Mrs. Burnham, has been engaged in medical work in the Balkans for the past two years, has been threatened with assassination on the ground of showing sympathy with the Montenegrins in their fight for liberty against Serbia. The reported threat is all the more incomprehensible as Col. Burnham has been decorated by the King of the Serbians. Mrs. Burnham has been awarded the gold medal of the Croix Rouge of Montenegro, and this may have something to do with the threat.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-Face to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easily it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine, as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

The Spirit of The Mutual

THE spirit of the Mutual is reflected in the well-known slogan of the company—"we aim to furnish the largest amount of sound life insurance for the least possible outlay."

The spirit of the Mutual is therefore the spirit of public service, and to achieve its purpose, much unselfish effort and even of sacrifice has gone into the building up of the organization. The good of the many, not personal profit, is the secret of the wonderful success of the Mutual of Canada.

To see such an altruistic institution as the Mutual Life of Canada planted and growing, and year by year widening the area of its protecting branches is the motive of the leaders of the company.

In the last five years the business of the company has doubled; the next five will probably see a similar development. Fifty years of Public Service have revealed to the people of Canada the spirit of the Mutual which is the spirit of co-operative service.

Be a Mutualist!

AN ORIENTAL KNIGHT.

East Indian Official Being Lionized In London.

England makes much of its colonial worthies and is just now bestowing special attention upon Sir Prabhashankar Dalpatram Pattani, whose white turban and robe, full gray beard and patriarchal mien make him the subject of admiring notice in any company. He is visiting England on business of state, having been a member of the Council of India since 1917. In that capacity he is in frequent consultation with the political authorities. He finds cordial welcome in literary circles, for he is a student and writer of rare verse. The doors of society are open to him and he is a picturesque figure in gatherings of the social elite.

He comes of a fine Indian family and his home is in Anautwadi, Bhavnagar. He was educated in Morvi, Rajkoti and Bombay, and from early manhood he took active and intelligent interest in public affairs. In recognition of his abilities and his loyalty he received the decoration of Companion of the Order of the Indian Empire in 1910. Two years later he became a member of the Executive Council of the Governor of Bombay, serving in that capacity for five years, when he was promoted to membership in the General Council of the Empire. While on duty in Bombay in 1915 the decoration of Knight Commander of the Indian Empire was bestowed upon him.

Sir Prabhashankar was born in 1862. In 1891 he married Rama Visvanath Hithalji. They have two sons.

An Eccentric Marquis.

An interesting description of the late Marquis of Clanricarde, the notorious and wealthy Irish absentee landlord, is given by the late Lady Dorothy Nevill in her "Life and Letters," edited by her son, Mr. Ralph Nevill.

"Lord Clanricarde's youth had not been a happy one," says Lady Dorothy Nevill, "and as a young man he was completely overshadowed by his popular and handsome brother. In 1852, with a small allowance, he became attache to Sir John Hudson at Turin. Here, it was said, in order to save expense, he arranged with the custodian of an arch to let him sleep in the small chamber where the latter kept his pails and brooms; another rumor was that he was more or less his own tailor. In his old age his coat, or even his hat, was held together with rough stitching. He never, no matter how bad the weather, took a cab—he never lost and never forgot an umbrella.

"A great student of prices, no one better than he knew how to get the most for his money. It is said that, having at one of his clubs discovered an obsolete rule by which slices of ham were included in the table money, he set to work with such determination that the too liberal ordinance had to be hastily abrogated. A votary of tobacco, he was probably the most eccentric smoker that ever lived—a cigar, he said, was never at its best till the third time of smoking.

"It was lying among a drawerful of cigar stumps that he showed me in the Albany the famous Cinque Cento jewel, said to be worth some £12,000, which Canning had bought from the Mogul's treasury at Delhi."

When Does Old Age Begin?

"When shall old age be said to begin? At 65, in many, especially in those who have hardening arteries, 75 in the more fortunate, should be the answer, I think," writes Dr. T. Bodley Scott in the Practitioner, "but the beginning of old age should be only the setting forth on a slow downward path. The duration of life should far exceed David's three score years and ten (the modern girl's criticism of David's estimate was, 'but look at the life he had led.')

"There is a rough rule, I think, for the mammalia, that the years of life should bear a ratio to the years of their development. A dog or cat takes two to two and a half years to mature, multiply by five and you get the duration of life; a horse takes five years and lives to 25; an elephant takes 30 to 40 years and lives to 150 to 200; men who mature about 18 to 20 should live to 90 or more.

"We, however, fight so habitually against natural law that but few of us fulfil our years, but it is a comforting thought that more and more are doing this as they learn, by wisdom or force of circumstances, to lead a simple life."

Cost of Education.

Where everything has so largely advanced in price since pre-war days, it is not surprising to hear the complaints of parents and guardians of the growing cost of education, and the maintenance of children. In this connection it is interesting to note that Diodorus Siculus, a freak, who traveled in Egypt something like 2,000 years ago, noted that to bring up a child from infancy to manhood in that country at that time, did not cost more than twenty drachms, a sum equal to about thirteen shillings of English money. This low cost, combined with a fruitful soil and a congenial temperature, naturally increased the population, which was far larger than in any other part of Africa. But a shilling a year would not go very far in bringing up a youth nowadays in Egypt or anywhere else.

First Harvest Festival.

Who was the originator of the Harvest Festival? It is commonly supposed to date from the General Thanksgiving ordered by Queen Victoria in 1854, but Archdeacon Denison held a harvest festival in his church at East Brent, Somersetshire, in 1843, and the famous poet-preacher, Hawker of Horwenstow, held a similar service in his Cornish parish that same year. The most popular of all harvest hymns, too — Dean Alford's "Come, yet thankful people, come"—was written some years before the Queen's proclamation.

FEEL THE SERGE OF ABOUNDING YOUTH

Age is sickness—gradual disintegration of the tissues which comprise your vital organs—your nerves, heart, liver, kidneys, brain. Each of these organs depends on the internal secreting fluids of certain glands. When such glands become lax in their functioning through under or over-secretion, you are sick. Unless these glands are aided to resume proper functioning, the tissues of the vital organs gradually wear and crumble away. You are old in health, if not in years, and old-fashioned methods of treating sickness are admittedly helpless. Your days are numbered unless you get at the seat of the trouble by action and that is by revitalizing and restoring the glands to their proper functioning.

Go to your druggist. If he is an up-to-date one, he will have

ARMY WON'T ACCEPT PARDONED CONVICT

Washington, Aug. 10.—Allis Taylor, a North Carolina boy, seventeen years old, sentenced to a year in prison, to whom Governor Bickett extended a pardon last week on condition that he enlist in the army or navy, will not be allowed to take advantage of his opportunity, according to a statement given out to-day by Adjt. Gen. Harris, who heads the army's recruiting division.

"Neither the army nor the navy," said General Harris, "is permitted to accept any man for enlistment who has done time. Our army is not a refuge for convicts, and the ranks in our new regular establishment are filled for the most part with students attending the trade and vocational schools. These young men are representative Americans of the best type. Allis Taylor is not wanted in our ranks.

Taylor was convicted of bootlegging and Governor Bickett granted him pardon after he had presented a petition saying that if, he pleased d a petition saying that, if released he would get away from his old asso-

A Tonic For Nerves

The Only Real Nerve Tonic is a Good Supply of Rich, Red Blood

"If people would only attend to their blood, instead of worrying themselves ill," said an eminent nerve specialist, "we doctors would not see our consulting rooms crowded with nervous wrecks. More people suffer from worry than anything else."

The sort of thing which the specialist spoke of is the nervous rundown condition caused by overwork and the many anxieties of to-day. Sufferers find themselves tired, low-spirited and unable to keep their minds on anything. Any sudden noise hurts like a blow. They are full of groundless fears, and do not sleep well at night. Headaches and other nerve pains are part of the misery and it all comes from starved nerves.

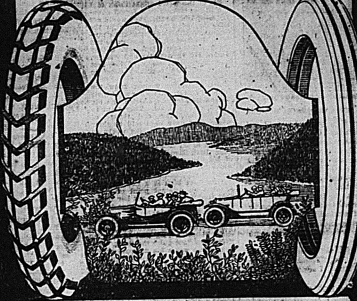
Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich, red blood. Therefore to relieve nervousness and run-down health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. These pills make new, rich blood, which strengthens the nerves, improves the appetite, gives new strength and spirits and makes hitherto despondent people bright and cheerful. If you are at all "out of sorts" you should begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BIGGER PREMIUMS FOR LIVE STOCK DISPLAYS

The enlarged classification in the live stock section at the Canadian National Exhibition this year provides for every animal of importance utilized in Canada. The premium list for horses, cattle, sheep, swine, the fur and feathered classes and pet stock together with agricultural products, the output of the Dairy, Orchard, etc., sets a new mark. Various breeds and other association and the Governments offer new prizes which added to those given by the Exhibition brings the sum total to a standard which ensures proportionate recognition for every branch of improved husbandry on a scale more lavish than ever before and should attrack a display by which will be established new records in exposition and Canadian live stock and agricultural history.

The second and last instalment of Canadian War Memorials Paintings will fill the Art Gallery at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. Painted in England and on the various battlefronts they will have their first public display at Toronto.



DUNLOP CORD TIRES

STANDING THE CLOSEST SCRUTINY

¶ Motorists are saying nice things about Dunlop Tires these days, because Dunlop Tires are standing the closest scrutiny.
—Check up Dunlop Mileage with the others—Dunlop is High.
—Check up the Gas Consumption where Dunlop Tires are used—It is Low.
¶ One car owner says: "Guess it's The English Formula." Another motorist says: "World-Wide Supremacy of Dunlop Naturally Makes Dunlop Unbeatable in Canada."
¶ When you buy a "Dunlop" you get more than a mere tire—you get the "Most Envied Tire In All Motordom."
¶ Dunlop Cord Tires are obtainable in "Traction" and "Ribbed." Dunlop Fabric Tires in "Traction," "Special," "Ribbed," "Clipper," "Plain."

"Everything set for a good trip—the car running 'smooth as velvet'—plenty of Imperial Polarine in the crank-case and more available wherever we stop. With Imperial Premier Gasoline for fuel, we'll have a most enjoyable vacation."

Imperial Polarine Available Everywhere

WHEREVER you tour, throughout the length and breadth of Canada, you can secure the grade of Imperial Polarine you now use for lubrication—exactly the same uniform grades are sold by dealers everywhere from Halifax to Vancouver.

Imperial Polarine reduces your greatest expense—depreciation, yet costs less than storage, tires, repairs or gasoline. It reduces friction to a minimum, maintains a piston-tight seal under heaviest engine heat, helps the engine extract the last ounce of power out of gasoline.

Imperial Polarine holds its body, maintains compression—keeps the motor running smoothly and quietly. The Imperial Chart of Recommendations shows the grade recommended for your car. Ask to see it when you stop for oil.

Imperial Polarine is sold by good dealers everywhere in sealed one-gallon and four-gallon cans, half-barrels and barrels, also in 12½-gallon steel kegs, the handy size for the home garage. Buy the larger sizes to save money.

BULL FOUND IN OLD MINE

Three or four weeks ago a bull belonging to Mr. J. J. Connor of Marmora village disappeared. In spite of a thorough search no trace was found of it until last Saturday when it was discovered to have fallen into an old mine shaft about 15 feet deep. The animal was still alive but was nothing but skin and bones. When it disappeared it would weigh about 700 lbs and when found about 300 lbs. It was pulled out by means of ropes and at last reports was likely to recover.

ANOTHER DAILY CEASES.

Still another newspaper publishers' agreement has been reached by which an Ontario town and district loses one weekly and one daily paper. This time it is Lindsay and Victoria county which are affected by the prevailing principle of reducing the number of publications, to curtail the use of newsprint and retrench generally in cost of production. By this recent business arrangement the Lindsay Post will publish a daily paper only, and its local contemporary, the Warder, will retain its weekly edition and relinquish the daily.

APPOINTED AGENT

John W. Kitchen, until recently freight agent at Brockville for the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been appointed to act in a similar capacity at Smiths Falls in succession G. O. Week, who is retiring beause of ill health. Mr. Kitchen will asume his duties in the course of a few days. Mr. Kitchen's early railroading experience was secured as an operater on the Grand Trunk, from which road he transferred to the C.P.R. Before the war he was agent for the C.P.R. at Bellamy, then becoming agent at Brockville. On the return of the present agent, J. R. McCullough, from overseas, Mr. Kitchen went to Winchester as acting agent and is now appointed to the important station of Smith's Falls as freight agent.

FAIR MARKET

Owing to the U.F.O. picnic at the Sandbanks, the attendance upon the market Saturday was not as large as usual. Good prices were obtained for products offered for sale, especially the produce. Fresh dairy butter sold at 68c to 70c per pound, fresh eggs 55c and 60c per dozen and dressed chickens from $2.50 to $3.50 per pair according to size. Garden produce was very plentiful and reasonable in price. Potatoes sold at 40c per peck, green corn at 25c a dozen, carrots and onions at 5c a bunch and cabbage from 5c to 10c each. Fruit consisted of peaches at $1.25 a basket; plums $1.30 a basket and green gages $1.50 a basket. Huckleberries sold at 30c a quart.

SIR GILBERT PARKER COMING

The Masons of Belleville are planning a reception to their distinguished brother, R. W. Bro. Sir Gilbert Parker, Bart., of the Grand Lodge of England. The reception will take place at the Lodge Room, Front St. Wednesday, August 18th at 8 p.m. During the after noon a party of motorists will accompany Sir Gilbert on a tour through picturesque Prince Edward County. Upon their return they will repair to the Lodge Room where a formal welcome will be extended. After the closing of the lodge the brethren will re-assemble in the dining hall where light refreshments will be served. In addition to an address from the guest of the evening, it is anticipated that there will be brief addresses by R. W. Col. Ponton, Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada; R.W. Bro. Nelson Parliament, Speaker of the Ontario Legislature; Bro. W. B. Northrup, Clerk of the House of Commons, Ottawa, and other prominent members of the Craft. A program of vocal and instrumental music is also being arranged. R. W. Bro. Col. S. S. Lazier will preside as toastmaster.

AIR BOARD TO PUBLISH A ROAD MAP OF SKY

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—The road map of the sky for all Canada is in the making in fact it is nearly complete, and will be published by the Air Board within a day or two, according to Col. E. F. Scott, director-in-chief of civil aviation.

This map will cover every route laid out within the Dominion. One of its most important features is that it will be drawn to deal with both civil and military aviation. When revised and finally published Canada will have as complete a directory of the travel through the blue ethereal as it is possible to get.

There will be one vast highway across the Dominion which will take in all the sundry who happen to come within the precincts of its course. The map also involves an aerial survey of the whole Dominion.

Called By Death

FREDERICK ABRAHAM.

In the passing of Mr. Frederick Abraham, which occurred at Montreal yesterday, a former well known Bellevillian has been removed from the activities of life. Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Abraham, his mother having predeceased him a few weeks.

Mr Abraham had many friends in Belleville who regret his passing. He was widely known and highly respected throughout Canada and for years was a prominent figure in the newspaper world, but of late was engaged in the bond and brokerage business in Montreal.

Mrs. N. M. Ostrom, of Belleville, is a sister, and Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Bird and Mr. Charles Ostrom are also relatives.

The Montreal Star speaks as follows of Mr. Abraham:

One of Montreal's most public spirited citizens, Frederick Abraham, passed away at his home at 4470 Western avenue, Westmount, this morning. The late Mr. Abraham was in the best of health until last Monday, when he was stricken with heart disease. He seemed to have been making satisfactory steps towards recovery when, at 9 o'clock this morning he was suddenly taken ill and succumbed to the illness.

The funeral will be held from the late residence of the deceased on Monday afternoon, 2.30. The late Mr. Abraham was born in Belleville, Ontario in 1870, of United Empire Loyalist descent. His grandfather, Jacob Miller, settled in Welland county in 1770.

Mr. Abraham was educated at the Belleville High School and later entered a newspaper career, taking a position of editor of the Daily Ontario of Belleville. It was during this period of his residence in Belleville that he married Miss Maude Elizabeth Charters, who still survives him.

About 1894 Mr. Abraham moved to the town of St. Thomas, becoming associated with the St. Thomas Journal. Later he came to this city with J. S. Brierly, in 1896. Mr. Brierly took charge of the Daily Herald, with which paper Mr. Abraham was vice-president and secretary-treasurer until 1913.

During his life Mr. Abraham displayed great public spirit, being associated with numbers of organizations for the betterment of the city.

Amongst his other activities for the benefit of the city Mr. Abraham established the "Clean Up" week here, which was the first thing of its kind in Canada. Mr. Abraham was for many years vice-president of the City Improvement League and the author of a number of pamphlets on the problems of Municipal Government. He took a keen interest in public life and was vice-president of the Provincial Society for the Protection of Birds, and was a frequent contributor to the press of Bird Conservations being established here.

The late Mr. Abraham was once a member of the Montreal Stock Exchange with the firm of Fairbanks & Abraham, and was the organizer of the Atlas Bond and Security Corporation, Ltd., of which he was president until the time of his death.

Mr. Abraham is survived by his widow, two sons, Eugene B. and F. Gerald; and Mrs. N. M. Ostrom, of Belleville, Mrs. F. Barker, of Grand Rapids, Mich, Mrs. James Campbell, of Seattle, Mrs. S. Kruger, of Seattle, and Mrs. Henry Ketcheson, of Picton, Ont., (sisters). C. A. Abraham of Vancouver is a brother of deceased.

Obsequies

DR. S. T. HUDSON.

A large concourse of relatives and friends yesterday afternoon attended the obsequies of the late Dr. Samuel T. Hudson, of Roslin, which showed the esteem in which deceased was held. St. Paul's Anglican church, at Roslin, was inadequate to accommodate all who desired to gain admittance. Rev. J. A. Davies, Rector, conducted the service and officiated at the interment at St. Paul's Cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful in design. The bearers were six physicians, namely, Drs. Wallbridge, Hills and Tennent, of Belleville, Moore, of Shannonville, Mather, of Tweed, and Morgan of Roslin. The mourners were the widow, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. C. C. Leavens, daughter, of Belleville, and Rev. J. C. Dixon and wife, of Amherst Island.

Convicts Escaped From Penitentiary

Chief of Police Newton received a message from Kingston that two convicts had escaped from Kingston Penitentiary this morning and had stolen a Studebaker six motor car, number 131791. The convicts are supposed to be heading west and a general search has been inaugurated for them.

BRAZIL MAY HAVE A PAPER MILL

Representatives of a Swedish company have made proposals to the Brazilian government looking to the establishment of a print paper manufacturing plant in the State of Panama. Among other advantages asked of the government is that of free entry of necessary machinery.

According to the company's representatives there is an abundance of necessary material for print paper manufacture in Panama and other states.

Rio de Janiero publishers who have for some months been occupied with problems growing out of the scarcity and high price of imported print paper are unanimously in favor of the manufacturing project. In the meantime they are meeting frequently to discuss measures of economy at which reduction in the size of newspapers and increased advertising rates and subscription prices are under consideration.

HARVESTERS WOUNDED AT KAPUSKASING

Winnipeg, Aug. 21.—Two men bound for Western Canada harvest fields are in St. Boniface Hospital here suffering from gunshot wounds as the result of an attack made on them at Kapuskasing, Ont., on Tuesday afternoon.

They are Ralph Lucas, 22 years old, and Ralph Torraville, 35, both from Halifax.

Acording to reports given railway officials both men were shot by a storekeeper in Kapuskasing when they attempted to force him to give them food. Neither of them is seriously wounded, Lucas being shot in the calf of the leg and Torraville in the thigh.

SECON ATTEMPT MADE TO WRECK C.P.R. TRAIN

Blairmore, Alta., Aug. 21.—A second attempt to wreck a C.P.R. passenger train on the Crow's Nest Pass, near the scene of last week's hold-up, occurred Wednesday afternoon. Long spikes were found on the track by sectionmen, and the bloodhounds which are being held for the chase of the bandits will be sent to the spot to try to trace the men responsible for the atempt. It is thought that the Russian element friendly to the rain bandis is trying to work out a crude method of revenge, on the railway company for the chase of the desperadoes.

SPECIAL APPEAL TO WOMEN.

A special appeal is being made to the woman in both city and country by the Canadian National Exhibition this year. There will be a Woman's Day on Thursday, September 2, when every department of the Exhibition capable of being so handled will be turned over to women for the purpose of demonstrating their adaptability and efficiency. In the Women's Building new and exceptionally interesting exhibits and demonstrations will be found, while the Government and other buildings will contain child welfare and kindred displays, housekeeping exhibits and new and novel features of great variety and value.

Exciting Chase On For Two Escaped Convicts

WARDEN'S MOTOR CAR, STOLEN BY CONVICTS, FOUND ABANDONED NEAR ROBLINDALE — PRISONERS HAD BUT SHORT TIME TO SERVE OF THEIR SENTENCES—MAY HAVE HAD OUTSIDE ASSISTANCE.

KINGSTON, Aug. 15.—About 10.30 Saturday morning the bell at the Portsmouth Penitentiary gave an alarm, and it was announced that two of the convicts had made their escape. The Warden reported the names as Briggs and Hilton. The men, who were short-termers and trusties, broke into the garage, tearing off the lock, and stole the car belonging to Warden Ponsford. Immediately afterward they speeded out along the penitentiary road. As soon as the alarm was sounded all convicts working in the fields and around the buildings were taken to their cells so that all available guards might be secured to chase the prisoners.

It is thought that the plan was prearranged. The police were informed on Friday evening that a car without lights or number was standing at the corner of King street and Alwington avenue. If such is the case, it might well be conceived that this car was in readiness to take the prisoners away after they had left the city limits.

Hilton and Briggs are the names of the two escaped convicts and both are comparatively young men. Hilton had only two months more to serve and Briggs but six weeks.

At Roblindale, in Richmond township, County of Lennox and Addington, the car, a Studebaker, was on Sunday recovered by two guards from the penitentiary who were engaged in the chase for the fugitives.

Police headquarters in the various municipalities were notified at once and the country is being thoroughly combed for the fugitives.

Premier Drury At Sand Banks

Promises Better Enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act.

SANDBANKS, Prince Edward Co., Aug. 14.—Addressing a largely attended U.F.O. picnic here this afternoon, Premier Drury made an important announcement regarding future enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act. He declared: "In order to meet the situation, which is thrown upon us so suddenly, we are undertaking the reorganization and renovation of the provincial police force, and, further, we are putting an end to the dual control of the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act. Out of these two things we expect, in spite of the difficult position, to reasonably enforce the law until the plebiscite is taken."

The Premier traced the course of the temperance question, how the people in Ontario voted when inter-provincial trade was barred and the conditions which have arisen since the Federal Government lifted at the beginning of this year the order-in-Council which had prevented importation into dry provinces.

"As long as any citizen may order liquor you have innumerable centres for bootlegging," remarked the Premier.

Cannot Enforce Law.

Under the present conditions it is almost impossible to have an enforceable law. We do not take hold of it and limit the amount that may be imported because we are by no means sure of our ground. We are by no means sure that it would not be regarded as interference with the rights of inter-provincial trade, and we consider it might be the subject of prolonged litigation. At the time of the last session of the Ontario Legislature we had every reason to believe the Dominion Government would give the vote on the question in October, and that being the case it was sound public policy to do the best we could with the conditions we found."

Alluding to the change of date announced by Premier Meighen, Hon. Mr. Drury pointed out how unjustifiable was the postponement till next April. The temperance forces, he said, were ready for the question and the existing voters' list was likely to give as fair an expression as a new voters' list.

For Political Advantage.

Two classes would benefit by the deferred vote: the wholesale people and those who would gain by the breaking of the law.

Premier Drury also suggested whether a desire for political advantage might not be behind the move of the Ottawa Government by doing two things: "First, perpetuating the condition that the manufacturers and wholesalers desire and out of which they will undoubtedly reap a great deal of profit during the next six months; second, by placing the Ontario Government in a position where it would be very difficult to enforce the law with the hope that non-enforcement would lead to our discredit and the party which is fighting the Farmers' movement would reap political advantage."

Speaker Nelson Parliament, member for the riding, presided. There were about 8,000 people present.

Premier Meighen Visits Boyhood Town

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

ST. MARY'S, Aug. 16.—With practically all places of business closed, and everybody in holiday attire, the town where Hon. Arthur Meighen, Canada's new Premier, spent many boyhood days, was ready to receive its honored guest as his train pulled into the station at 10.30 this morning. Automobiles lined up outside the station were gaily decorated, and as soon as the Premier and Mrs. Meighen arrived they were met by Mayor Brandon and a reception committee, who escorted them to the first car. The procession then slowly wended its way through throngs of cheering citizens along the principal streets to the Flats. For an hour the Premier shook hands with old friends, during which time the local band and a chorus of school children rendered patriotic airs. A luncheon followed at noon and then Mayor Brandon presented the Premier with an engraved address of welcome and congratulations on behalf of the citizens of St. Mary's and Blanchard. A golden key was also presented as an emblem of the freedom of these municipalities.

Proposed Increase In Telephone Rates

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—The main features of the application of the Bell Telephone Co. for increased telephone rates in Ontario and Quebec show that four million and a half dollars increased revenue is to be provided from these two provinces. Business telephones will be increased to sixty dollars annually for twelve hundred messages and four cents extra for every additional message. Residential phones $48 individual lines, instead of $33; two party phones to be $36 instead of $26.50.

Britain Will Leave Olympic Games

Special Despatch to the Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Great Britain will not notify, at once, the International Olympic Committee of her retirement from the future Olympic, but will defer this action until the next meeting of the British Olympic Council, according to an intimation by Sir Theodore Cook, one of the leading members of the Council. All challenge cups presented by Great Britain probably will remain in competition forever, says Sir Theodore, as a memorial of the organization this country created in 1908.

ATTACK CONSULATE

Paris, Aug. 21.—Soldiers under command of Captain Gabriel D'Annunzio have attacked the Norwegian Consulate at Fiume, according to a despatch from Rome.

Tailored Clothes For Prisoners

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—Believing that the old striped uniform, in which all convicts in penal institutions have been previously garbed, has a tendency toward degrading and hardening prisoners, the Department of Justice, after much deliberation, has decided to abandon it. In future two uniforms, one for summer wear and one for winter wear, will be supplied.

Radical changes will be made in discharge clothing provided. Formerly the Government provided badly cut grey tweed suits, unmistakable to residents of prison cities. These suits will be replaced by well tailored and modern garments made to order.

Getting Close To Train Bandit

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

CALGARY, Aug. 16.—Word has just been received that A. R. Loff, the third train bandit, is in the vicinity of Pincher Station and the police in the vicinity are searching for him as well as a number of armed citizens. A C.P.R. employee first saw the man last night and endeavored to engage him in conversation but did not succeed. The police at Pincher Creek, three miles away were notified and in twenty minutes parties were searching for the bandit. So far search has been unsuccessful.

Battle At Gates Of Dublin Castle

Firing Lasts Ten Minutes and City is Aroused.

DUBLIN, Aug. 15.—Dublin was aroused at 9 o'clock last night by heavy firing in the vicinity of Dublin Castle, the result of a crowd attempting to rush the Castle gates.

Soldiers fired over the people's heads and there were a few revolver shots from the crowd. No one was injured.

The trouble started when a crowd saw a number of soldiers of the Lancashire Fusiliers, who, they believed, shot a boy named Farrell during the recent riots in the city.

Right to the Castle Gates.

The soldiers were pursued to the Castle gates. The firing lasted ten minutes. Later wild rumors were circulated in the city, greatly exaggerating the affair.

A short time after the firing at the Castle an armored car with a lorry of troops toured the principal streets. The crowds pulled some of the soldiers from the lorry. Other lorries were then sent out to pick up straggling soldiers.

The troops fired a volley over a crowd at the O'Connell Bridge. Many people took refuge in buildings. Irish volunteers finally advised the people to leave the streets.

Leach Performs A Daring Feat

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 16.—Bobby Leach, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., the only man living who shot the horse shoe falls in a barrel, dropped in a parachute from an aeroplane three thousand feet in the air near Horse Shoe Fall yesterday afternoon. Fully fifty thousand people witnessed the daredevil feat. Leach dropped from a point near the Hydro-electric sub-station in close proximity to the Lorette Convent The parachute filled quickly and he made the descent slowly. He promised to make another attempt to drop into the lower Niagara River soon. Leach is sixty years old.

WINNIPEG POLICE CLOSE MAYO-CURTIS INSTITUTE

Winnipeg, Aug. 14.—Russell Dumas, alias Dr. Gordon Mayo, arrested when the Mayo-Curtis Medico Institute of Research here was closed by the police, was remanded for preliminary hearing on eight charges, seven being for violation of the Medical Act, and the other for obtaining money under false pretences, when he appeared in court today.

Records and letters which the police seized show, they say, that Dumas has operated extensively as the pseudo Dr. Mayo, and his patients have been legion, many of them from out of the city. He is said by the police to have led patients to believe the Winnipeg "clinic" was a branch of the medical and surgical institution in Rochester, Minn., conducted by the Mayo brothers.

Dumas is said to be a native of Southampton, England. He came to Winnipeg from Toronto several years ago, following the death of a young woman, due, it is alleged, to a criminal operation. He was charged with murder, but was acquitted. Later, he was arrested in connection with the death of a married woman here and given five year in the penitentiary for murder. This was in 1916. He was paroled a few months later, enlisted with the 250th Battalion and is said to have served in France with the Canadian Medical Corps, in the non-commissioned ranks.

Municipalities Will Be Represented

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—An important addition has been made to the counsel retained to appear before the Royal Commission investigating the Ontario Hydro-Radial proposal. R. S. Robertson has been appointed by the Ontario Government to represent the interests of Ontario municipalities which do not stand to benefit by any of the proposed radial electric lines, but are concerned in the effect of the provincial guarantees on public credit, and also to represent municipalities in which, though bylaws have been voted for the construction of railways within them, have shown reluctance to issue debentures before the guarantee of the government is issued. Mr. Robertson is a member of the Toronto legal firm of Fasken, Robertson, Chadwick and Sedgewick. He came to Toronto about three years ago from Stratford, where he was City Solicitor and was also partner of Justice Idington of the Supreme Court of Canada.

An Honorable Record Of Railway Service

Mr. J. C. Blaylock, Locomotive Engineer, Retires On Pension After Fifty-One Years' Service On G. T. R.

One of the oldest, best-known and most popular locomotive engineers on the Grand Trunk Railway in the person of Mr. J. C. Blaylock, recently of Belleville has retired on pension after fifty-one years of faithful service.

Mr. Blaylock was born in Rome, N. Y., was brought up in Brantford and was the son of Mr. Joseph Blaylock who died in 1882.

At the age of fifteen Mr. Blaylock entered the employ of the G.T.R. at Toronto, a call boy, in 1872 he was a fireman between Toronto and Belleville in the old wood-burning days when keeping up steam was a strenuous exercise indeed. Eventually he graduated as engineer and from the freight to the passenger service, and his record is one of faithful and careful service. He has never been sick and in the fifty-one years of his service on the railway he has only been absent from duty a total of about three months altogether. Part of the time he lived in Toronto but for about ten years he was a resident of Belleville and was well known and highly respected here. A short time ago Mr. Blaylock disposed of his residence on Albert street to Mr. C. R. Baker, manager of the Toronto Hat Company and the family removed to Toronto where they now occupy their own residence at 1477 Danforth avenue.

Forty-five years ago last Christmas eve, Mr. Blaylock was married to a Toronto young lady at St John's Anglican Church, Toronto, and their married life has been singularly happy and prosperous. Their children are Edward Blaylock of Tulsa, Oklahoma; Mrs. Harry Elvins, Belleville; Mrs. Frank Denyes of Ottawa; Joseph V. Blaylock at home; Frank Blaylock of Toronto; Mrs. Fairfield Bowman, of Toronto; Arthur Blaylock in the real estate business, Toronto and Mr. W. H. Blaylock, grocer, Toronto. There are sixteen grandchildren.

Mr. Blaylock is a member of the B. L. E., Foresters, and A.O.U.W., and was sixty-six years of age last March, but looks younger and is far spryer than many men half his age. He has never been sick and feels just as young as he ever did.

On August 10, 1920 he was granted his pension by the G.T.R. company by whom his exceptional record of service is highly appreciated.

Mrs. Blaylock is a member of the G. J. A. the ladies auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The many friends of Mr. Blaylock in various places will congratulate him upon having rounded off with honor and credit, an unblemished record of fifty-one years railway service.

French Troops Held Up By Upper Silesia Workmen

FRENCH COMMANDER THREATENS TO USE MACHINE GUNS WHEN SIX TRAINS OF FRENCH TROOPS ARE HELD UP BY SILESIA WORKMEN SAID TO BE ARMED —FRENCH RECOGNITION OF GENERAL WRANGEL DECLARED TO BE-CLARATION OF WAR ON RUSSIA.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Workmen in Upper Silesia regard France's recognition of General Wrangel as equivalent to a declaration of war on Russia and accordingly will refuse to recognize French representatives on the Plebiscite Commission, contending they are not neutral, says the Daily Mail's Kattowitz correspondent.

Six trains of French troops from Teschen, the correspondent states, have been held up at Gliewitz by workmen who feared they were going to help Poland. The French commander, he adds, then issued an ultimatum demanding a clear passage or he would use machine guns. The workmen are said to be armed.

The Belgian Government has forbidden the shipment of ammunition which has arrived at Antwerp from France destined for General Wrangel, according to an Antwerp despatch. This action it is believed, was due to an announcement by Belgian workmen that they would refuse to handle the shipments.

Street Rioting In Belfast Constable Badly Injured

NO FIREARMS USED, BUT STONES THROWN IN STREET BATTLE IN NATIONALIST AREA OF BELFAST—FOUR NATIONALISTS ARRESTED—STATE OF SIEGE MAINTAINED IN AFFECTED AREA.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

BELFAST, Aug. 16.—Rioting was renewed in this city last night, but there were no firearms used during the disorders. Short Strand, the Nationalist area in East Belfast, was the battleground, and the contending parties threw stones at one another, the locality remaining virtually in a state of siege until after midnight. Four Nationalists were arrested and one constable was so badly injured that he was taken to the hospital.

CARNIVAL MAN SENT TO JAIL

Hamilton, Aug. 13.—Harry Witt, proprietor of one of the shows at a carnival being held here, was today sent to jail for six months and fined $50 for conducting an immoral show. Inspector Cruickshank of the East End police told Magistrate Jelfs that this was one of the most immoral shows of its kind he ever saw. Witt stated that the show had been passed in Brantford by the chief detective and that he saw nothing immoral in it.

CHAUTAUQUA SUNDAY

Sunday evening the big Chautauqua tent was filled to capacity, the attraction being a special sacred concert arranged by Secretary-Manager Fredericks of the Chamber of Commerce. The session was very pleasing to all and consisted of a musical program by Lieurance's Little Symphony Orchestra, well known hymns sung by the audience with piano accompaniment by Prof. Hunt, and a very interesting talk by Dr. Daniel Fox, of Pasadena, California. The meeting was in charge of Mr. R. H. Arnold, Chautauqua superintendent, who led the singing and made a brief address. An address was also made by Mr. E. P. Fredericks of the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Elliott. A silver collection was taken up, the Boy Scouts officiating.

Camping Joys At Moira Lake

Belleville Boys Enjoy Pleasures of Camping — Eats A-Plenty and Enthusiasm Unbounded.

Mr. Angus Buchanan, of the Y. M. C. A. staff, has returned from Moira Lake, near Madoc, with his bunch of Community Boys who enjoyed a real old-fashioned camping experience and returned brown as berries, strong for the out-door life and all bubbling over with joy at their experiences. Two groups totalling seventy boys comprised the camp, the first group going out on July 12 remaining until July 24, the second group going out July 26, remaining until August 7.

Mr. Buchanan reports that the cottagers at Moira Lake were more than kind and hospitable to the boys from Belleville, entertaining them to eats on various occasions and supplying luscious berry pies to supplement the camp rations.

Rev. Mr. Ramsay, of John Street Presbyterian Church, took a bunch of twenty boys out to the camp on August 9 and will remain until the 21st.

The big Y.M.C.A. war canoe was taken out and the boys had a bushel of fun in paddling their own canoe on various exciting and amusing voyages. A variety of weather has marked the camp thus far, cold and wet at first, but merging into the very finest of weather for out-door living. The boys besides acquiring a coat of tan, tremendous appetities and many kilo-watts of additional energy, absorbed much useful knowledge about wood-craft and bush lore, and even learned to make their own beds, wash dishes and make themselves generally useful in a domestic way.

HISTORIC HAMILTON.

Men From Ambitious City Who Are Known to Fame.

The "Ambitious City" has done something more than earn for itself the fame of being the Birmingham of Canada. It has contributed much to the intellectual power of the nation. The visitor to Hamilton sees Dundurn Castle and is reminded of the name and fame of Sir Alan Macnab, Bart., the warrior-statesman of the days when the struggle for constitutional institutions was so hard and long. Shouldering his musket as a schoolboy in 1812, he took his part in the defence of Toronto, serving partly in the navy and partly in the 100th Regiment of the period, one of the ancestral forces of the Royal Canadians of to-day. Then in "the '37," his feat at Niagara, in connection with the Caroline affair, is a matter of history, together with his leadership of the "Men of Gore." A recently published book of memoirs has recalled the fact that the use of this "horrid and repulsive title by a body of civilized men" gained for the "rebels" some sympathy in England at the time! The loyal inhabitants of the Ware district were apparently regarded "over there" as a species of transatlantic Bashi-Bazouk. From Hamilton also came J. Aemilius Irving and his son, Sir Aemilius J. Irving, and others. Recently these columns contained a reference to the public services of Mr. Adam Brown, who a few weeks ago celebrated his 94th birthday and is still active as postmaster of Hamilton.

Another eminent Hamiltonian, who may almost be said to live in the sacred groves of Academus, has done much that is not generally known in the task of advancing the scholastic knowledge of his fellow-men and has also done the state much service in the Parliamentary and political arena. Mr. H. B. Witton, who was born in 1821, may be regarded as a local Crighton, so varied is the field of knowledge which he has explored.

The archives of the Hamilton Association (Literature, Science and Arts) and other depositaries of the sweets of intellectual acquirements bear witness to the extent of his knowledge. Geology and the marine secrets associated with Burlington Bay and vicinity have been dealt with by him in an illuminating manner.

But the studies of the sage of Hamilton are not confined to the earth or the things under it. He has soared to the celestial regions and a very able article by him, on the science of selenography, published not long ago, has cast much light on the obscure mysteries of the "queen of night." In the "science," as it has been termed, of Egyptology, Mr. Witton has also studied deeply and dealt with the more or less fantastic theories of some of the speculative schools. And in "modern literature" he has been a careful investigator and patient student. One of his most interesting and instructive later expositions has been a study of the famous "Paston Letters," that interesting collection of more than a thousand documents written to, or by, members of the Paston family, of Norfolk, England (the county of Mr. Witton's family), and which throw so strong a side-light on the condition of the kingdom during the Wars of the Roses. This doyen of science and literature has not confined his efforts solely thereto or forgotten that he possessed a citizen's responsibilities. In 1873, in company with the late D. B. Chisholm, he contested the constituency as a "workingman's candidate" and defeated the late Sir Aemilius Irving and Mr. Charles Magill. His term in the Commons was one of great events and bitter fights. The "Pacific Scandal" incident resulted in the resignation of the Government of Sir John Macdonald and the calling of Hon. Alexander Mackenzie to form a Cabinet. A dissolution followed shortly after, and it was through Mr. Witton's influence that Sir John was retained as the party leader.

Now, in a room lined from floor to ceiling with the "friends that never fail," as the French proverb has it, one of the choicest private libraries in Canada, Mr. Witton continues his studies and benefits his fellow-beings with the result.

Europe's First Coffee House.

The first coffee house in Europe was opened in Constantinople by a native of Aleppo in 1551. For some time it served as a mere rendezvous for gossip and idle people, but in the course of a few years the house became so famous that it could not hold the crowds that flocked to it. So great was the attraction that the mosques were neglected, and the civil and religious authorities made great efforts to put down the new drink.

Thoughtful Child.

"It's just too bad that people cannot be taught to leave other folks' things alone," commented eight-year-old Edwin.

"And what is the matter now?" asked his mother.

"Why, someone has used your manicure scissors and left them all bent and I've been trying for the last half hour to straighten them out."

Telling The Truth Sometimes Awkward

Vivian Players At Chautauqua Illustrate Difficulties of Always Telling Unvarnished Truth

Chautauqua has captured Belleville as is amply evidenced by the growing interest taken in the sessions, entertaining and educational, held in the big tent on the High School grounds. The programs seem to improve, if that were possible as the series move along and despite the very hot weather the attendance has been large at all of the sessions. Saturday afternoon was a rest period with no program given but Saturday evening the big tent was filled to capacity when the Percival Vivian Players of New York City presented the charming comedy in three acts, "Nothing But the Truth." The cast was a notable one, each member having appeared in Broadway successes, and the presentation gave great pleasure and many hearty laughs to the audience. The fun revolves around a wager made that one of the characters shall tell the exact truth for twenty-four hours, answering truthfully all questions and the efforts of the three parties to the wager to make him tell a lie and thus lose ten thousand dollars entrusted to him for investment by his best girl which he promised to double in a short time. George Hare as Bob Bennett who is obliged to tell the exact truth or lose ten thousand dollars and possibly his fiancee, took the part in a faultless manner and his predicaments caused hearty laughter. Ralph Bradley as Bishop Doran, made the most of an amusing character and radiated the spirit of whosesome fun every moment he was on the stage. The bishop was no business man, in his own estimation, but the way he made sharp business men toe the scratch was a revelation of what may be done if you only shout loud enough. The other characters were exceedingly well taken and the production from first to last was one of the very best ever witnessed in Belleville and a most refreshing change from some of the alleged humorous plays produced from time to time by travelling companies.

Between the acts Mr. C. A. Fredericks; Secretary-Manager of the Chamber of Commerce, addressed the audience explaining the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce to bring Chautauqua to Belleville, which was only made possible by several of the directors giving a bond of guarantee. It was not expected that the first season of Chautauqua in Belleville would be a financial success as the experience of other places has been that the first year always results in a deficit while the second and succeeding years bring satisfactory surpluses. The first season in Belleville while successful to a gratifying degree would probably result in financial deficit but the citizens have so thoroughly enjoyed the varied interesting and educational programs presented that there is a general demand for a return of Chautauqua next year. To ensure this a financial guarantee must be given and Mr. Fredericks suggested that as many as fifty citizens subscribe to the guarantee for next season. He called for a show of hands from those desirous of another season of Chautauqua and the audience seemed unanimous in desiring a return of this popular institution. He also requested citizens to stand up who would subscribe to the financial guarantee for next season and several responded. From all present appearances the return of Chautauqua is assured.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

VANITY FAIR

(What the Press Agents Say)

Boyle Woolfolk's "Vanity Fair of 1920" with Elmer Coudy and a large company of musical comedy favorites will be seen at Griffin's next Friday night, August 20th, for one night only. Unlike other so called revues, "Vanity Fair" does not attempt to satirize current or recent dramatic successes but instead has a story of interest intermingled with high class specialties. The book of "Vanity Fair" by John P. Mulgrew with lyrics and music by Felix Rice. The twenty odd musical numbers which illuminate the score through the two acts and twelve scenes have already found their way to the victrolas, a sure sign of popular appeal—most prominent among them may be mentioned "Fiddling Around," "Art's a Wonderful Thing," and others both charming and melodious. In the cast are a host of girls which are advertised as "Vanities Fairest."

LORD AND LADY ALGY

A woman's pluck and pride are hard to maintain in the face of almost certain evidence of her husband's unfaithfulness. Yet, in Tom Moore's Goldwyn picture, "Lord and Lady Algy," which comes to Griffin's to-night for a three-day engagement Lady Algy comes to scratch when her husband needs her most, and so saves him and another man's wife from the most embarrassing moment of their lives. Lady Algy's action is all the more commendable in that she and Lord Algy have been estranged.

The situation results from the flirtation which Lord Algy's brother had been carrying on with the wife of a rich soap manufacturer. They have been meeting in Lord Algy's rooms but the soap magnate learned of the affair and immediately suspected Lord Algy. However, the latter's wife had good sense enough to trust her husband even though she was unofficially separated from him.

"Lord and Lady Algy" is a drama of racing and society that will rank with the greatest photoplays you have ever seen. A funny 2-reel Sunshine comedy, the closing chapter of "The Lost City" serial and a beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue are also being shown in addition to the feature offering.

Are You Prepared?

Fire can be put out in two ways:
1. By cooling below the burning point.
2. By smothering.

The second method is the quick, simple, sure means of extinguishing fire—by smothering with FIREFOAM.

FIREFOAM expands as it issues from the apparatus to eight times its original volume. It forms a thick blanket of fire-smothering bubbles. It coats and clings to all materials, objects and surfaces. It shuts off the air. It stops combustion and re-ignition.

FIREFOAM is not injurious. When dry, it can be brushed off easily like so much dust.

ST. MICHAEL'S WINS

From Deloro in a Fourteen Inning Game.

One of the best exhibitions of baseball was given in this city on Saturday afternoon at the Agricultural Park, when a postponed Trent Valley League match was played. St. Michael's team of this city and the Deloro team battled for fourteen innings for supremacy, and the Belleville boys were victorious. The score was exceptionally small, namely 3 to 2. It was a pitchers' battle between J. Smith for St Michael's and Scharmel for Deloro both of whom delivered gilt-edged ball and were not relieved. Not a run was scored by either team until the seventh inning. While the Deloro team had the greater number of hits to their credit, they were scattered. The result of the game in no way affected the standing of the teams in the league as it was the first defeat of the Deloro players. Mr. Allan Meagher of this city was umpire on balls and strikes and was most impartial, and Mr. A. Archer, of Deloro on bases. The attendance of spectators was not large. By innings the play was as follows:

First Inning.

Delero—Feeney out at first. Drenger made a two-bagger to left field, and was caught trying to steal second. Evans flew to J. Miles.

St. Michael's—Woodley out at first. Armstrong struck out. B. Miles out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

UNTO MANNIX AS MAHOMET

Dublin, Aug. 13.—If Archbishop Mannix can't come to Ireland, then Ireland will go to Mannix, the Lord Mayor of Dublin decided. He announced he was planning to go to London with a deputation of Irishmen to present the freedom of the city to the prelate.

In London, Labor organizations are planning a huge demonstration to be held on Sunday in Trafalgar Square in protest of the Government's treatment of Mannix.

CITIES MAKE RAPID GROWTH

Interesting Statistics Concerning Chief Centers of Population in the United States.

The population of New York city on July 1, according to a survey by the newspaper feature bureau, the result of which was made public the other day, says the correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, was 6,244,616, as compared with 4,766,883 in 1910, an increase of 31 per cent. Of the total 120,138 are listed as negroes. The whites of native parentage are given as 1,206,926; of foreign parentage, 2,384,384, and of foreign birth, 2,525,292.

According to the survey the sexes are almost evenly divided. The number of males is given at 3,121,051, and the females as 3,123,565. The city has 1,878,211 males of voting age and 333,012 illiterates more than ten years old. There are 1,337,283 families.

The twenty largest cities in the country, with New York leading, are given as Chicago, with a population of 3,059,896; Philadelphia, 1,936,200; Cleveland, 936,300; Detroit, 936,300; Boston, 830,625; St. Louis, 824,435; Baltimore, 726,030; Pittsburgh, 667,881; Los Angeles, 574,556; San Francisco, 555,882; Buffalo, 516,932; Milwaukee, 504,707; Cincinnati, 472,068; New Orleans, 440,707; Washington, 430,390; Minneapolis, 421,971; Newark, 416,963; Seattle, 395,323, and Rochester, 349,038.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY—

ONE MESSAGE FOR ALL.

Premier Meighen in his notable speech at Stirling had one message for all the people of Canada, plain, forcible and unmistakable. His words were not capable of misunderstanding. He did not descend to the level of party politics popular with a certain type of politician who deals in glittering generalities and tries to please everybody. He gave his opinions frankly and fearlessly and outlined the policy of the government as one best suited to the upbuilding of this young and vigorous nation, a policy which every real Canadian not hopelessly biased by partizan politics can heartily subscribe to. Canadian industries and Canadian workingmen, whether in the farm, factory, store or office, must be protected, law and order must be maintained, and a Canada united in effort for the highest ideals must be encouraged to combat and defeat the forces of unrest and disruption.

That Premier Meighen's declaration of government policy is unassailable is evidenced by its reception in the camp of his opponents. When an argument is unanswerable the favorite method of unscrupulous politicians is to resort to misrepresentation and abuse, and this is strikingly noticeable in the press and on the platform of the opponents of Premier Meighen and his government. The Premier's words are being twisted out of all semblance to what he actually said, and resort is also made to actual untruth and grotesque falsehood in an effort to nullify the effect of a speech by Canada's Premier which was remarkable for its refreshing candor, truthfulness and plain speaking. There is no mistaking where Premier Meighen and his Government stands, but his opponents sway with every breeze that blows and try to cultivate the support of every class and interest with a different story for each.

As usual they are long on promises, but having ever been lamentably short on performance, no thinking citizen need be misled.

In one breath they condemn Premier Meighen's attitude toward the tariff and in the next practically approve of it in terms cunningly clothed in apparent condemnation.

The policy of the Government of the day has been published by the press from one end of Canada to the other, and all who can read need not fall into error in regard to its vital importance to Canada and Canadians. It stands for a united Canada, progress and prosperity and happiness, and the only answer that has been made to it is Mackenzie King's plaint, "We want an election."

MADE IN CANADA.

During 1919 more than 200 American manufacturers erected or leased manufacturing buildings in Canada, according to Mr. A. G. Sclater, Manager of the Statistical Department, Union Bank of Canada, New York, who has contributed an interesting article to the Union Bank of Canada Monthly in which he discusses the reasons for the entry of United States factories into Canada. He considers that the tariff is mainly responsible for attracting these new industries which provide employment for Canadian labor, pay taxes in Canada, and bring foreign money to help in the development of Canadian resources. These new industries supplemented a large number of American plants already established in this country. In this connection Mr. Sclater says:

"These manufacturers had established themselves in Canada, first, to escape the Canadian tariff, and, secondly, to take advantage of the preferential tariff treatment given by other parts of the British Empire on goods originating within the boundaries of the British Commonwealth."

Today the American manufacturer who has any large volume of business in Canada must establish himself in Canada to hold that business.

The instinct of financial self-preservation is forcing Canada to do her utmost to curtail purchases in the United States and to make within her own borders those things which her people need. In this way only can she hope to rehabilitate her credit in the United States and to reduce the volume of her war debt.

Canadians see the logic of the situation. The "Made in Canada" movement is daily gathering strength in the Dominion.

CRISP COMMENT

First the Old Boys, then the Premier, then Chautauqua, preceded by circuses and carnivals. Verily this has been some hectic season for Belleville!

The name of General Wrangel is suggestive, for if ever there was a general wrangel going on, Europet has it just now.

Chautauqua has certainly "caught on" in Belleville, and the general feeling of those who have enjoyed the splendid programs seems to be "Come again."

OTHER VIEWS

Canada's Opportunities
(Vancouver Province)

In a recent interview in London with a representative of the Times newspaper, Mr. D. C. Macarow, general manager of the Merchants Bank of Canada, made some useful remarks as to the general prosperity and prospects of the Dominion in connection with the present position of labor, immigration and finance and was able to inform the British public that our outlook, in view of the abnormal conditions from which the country is emerging, is decidedly hopeful. He noted that in the field of labor, the unrest which has often had an adverse influence on prospective investors, unthinking radicalism is giving way to a healthier estimate of conditions. He referred also to the steady stream of setters drawn especially from the Western United States who are being absorbed by the farms of Western Canada and becoming good Canadian citizens. Mr. Macarow was able to tell his interviewer that in his opinion the Dominion feels herself in closer touch than ever before with the Mother Country and with the other nations of the Empire. As a financial man of standing visiting the central metropolis, Mr. Macarow showed himself a true Canadian.

Trade Unions in Canada
(Christion Guardian)

Opposition to trade unions often takes it for granted that the main purpose of these bodies is to organize strikes or other industrial conflicts. The statistics reveal some interesting features to the contrary. Reviewing only the ninety-nine organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, we find that the total expenditure for the year was fifteen and a half millions of dollars. Ten and a half millions of this went to death benefits while the other main items were: Old age pensions, $1,186,300; sick and accident benefits, $1,828,218; unemployed and travelling benefits, $298,902; strike benefits $1,789,961.

THE POET'S CORNER

FOREFATHERS

Here they went with smock and crook,
  Toiled in the sun, lolled in the shade
Here they muddled out the brook
  And here their hatchet cleared the glade;
Harvest-supper woke their wit.
Huntsman's moon their wooings lit.

From this church they led their brides
  From this church themselves were led
Shoulder-high; on these waysides
  Sat to take their beer and bread,
Names are gone—what men they were
These their cottages declare.

Names are vanished, save the few
  In the old brown Bible scrawled;
These were men of pith and them
  Whom the city never called;
Scarce could read or hold a quill
Built the barn, the forge, the mill.

On the green they watched their sons
  Playing till too dark to see,
As their fathers wached them once,
  As my father once watched me;
While the bat and beetle flew
On the warm air webbed with dew.

Unrecorded, unrenowned,
  Men from whom my ways begin,
Here I know you by your ground
  But I know you not within—
All is mist, and there survives
Not one moment of your lives.

Like the bee that now is blown
  Honey-heavy on my hand,
From the toppling tansy-throne,
  In the green tempestuous land—
I'm a-Maying now, nor know
Who made honey long ago.

—Edmund Blunden.

"Why, certainly," replied the dowager, "I dined with both of them in Paris."

SHORT SKIRT IS STILL THE MODE

Abbreviated Garment Retains Its Popularity; Also the Short Sleeves.

STYLES TO HOLD FOR SEASON

Salient Features of Spring Clothes of Marked Interest to Women Who Seek to Wear Latest Creations.

Short skirts, long waists, short sleeves—these are the salient features of the spring mode as it becomes established by usage from day to day. In one of the windows on Fifth avenue during the past gala week, writes a New York fashion correspondent, there were exhibited two gowns presumably for the street, but they were abbreviated and diaphanous in the extreme—so much so that one uninitiated in the change in fashions could not have been expected to recognize them as street garments.

Two women stood before them, regarding their shortnesses and thinnesses with awe.

"Don't you suppose they've made a mistake?" said one; "surely those dresses are meant for evening wear. Why, look at the sleeves and the low cut necks!"

Yet the figures on which they were draped were wearing hats and gloves. It wasn't a mistake by any means, and the observer was destined to meet more and more of the same sort in her jaunt about the city. For they are appearing in greater numbers every day. There is a decided acceptance of all of the short cuts which not long ago seemed not ordained to be favorites of American women.

There is no denying the fact that the short skirts are pretty and, in most cases, becoming. They give a proportion to the dresses of the hour that could not be nearly so good were the skirts allowed to be any longer. Every once in a while, along the thoroughfares where well-dressed women are wont to make their appearance, one sees astonishingly beautiful street clothes with skirts so short that they are nearer the knees than the ankles. The short skirt, without doubt, bids fair to become the most distinguishing feature of feminine apparel for 1920.

Long Sleeves Scare.

The shorter sleeves are not so readily taken up by some women generally, though the longer ones are almost impossible to find in the shops. They are not "the thing" at all. One might as well accept short sleeves or no sleeves, for they seem as inevitable as the high cost of living. A special design is the only way around the idea that sleeves shall not end an inch or so below the arm pits. And special designs these days are confined to the few. The rest of us must accept the dictates of fashion as they stand and decide to glory in them.

Embroidered Organdie Trims This Attractive Frock of Taffeta.

After all, the short sleeve is much like the collarless gown when it comes to applying it to the various types of feminine beauty or non-beauty. Women will insist that they cannot wear the style, that it is not becoming to their type, and finally, when they do stop struggling and accept the fashion as it stands, they find that they really look extremely well—they surprise themselves. And then, when they come to analyze the situation, they discover that they have been refusing to accept the change merely because it is new and that they never really have given it a chance to prove whether it is becoming. This happens as often as drastic changes are introduced in fashion, and time and again women have worn the thing that they announced to begin with they could never countenance. It bids fair to be the case of the sleeve, and those who are looking toward that shining vista, economy of material, will welcome the shorter length.

A French designer has announced emphatically that the long waist is the line especially adapted to the American figure. Some one is heard to murmur: "What is this American

BIG UNDERTAKINGS.

Important Works Being Carried Out In Canada.

Canada has many big undertakings under way, both Governmental and private, involving the expenditure of many billions in the aggregate.

Here are a few samples:

Belgium is spending $10,000,000 on Western Canadian cattle.

France has secured a $20,000,000 credit for a supply of Canadian foodstuffs.

Canada will supply $1,250,000 worth of asbestos roofing for French reconstruction.

Canada's railways have placed rolling stock orders aggregating many millions.

Five hundred and twelve companies were incorporated in Canada, 1919-20, under federal charter, with capitalization of $214,000,000—mostly industrial.

The Dominion Government is spending $20,000,000 on good roads.

A company, with a capital of $750,000 has been formed to raise reindeer and caribou between Hudson Bay and Great Slave Lake.

It is estimated that $1,000,000 will be expended on the Flin Flon copper mines of Northern Manitoba.

Oil exploration is being actively carried on in the Peace River country and elsewhere in the far north.

The Hudson Bay Co. will build a $5,000,000 store in Winnipeg and the T. Eaton Co. a $2,500,000 mail order house.

Manitoba Government expenditures for the current year will exceed $10,000,000.

A Quebec lumber company plans to spend $20,000,000 on a model city.

Canadian Canning and Preserving Industries

A Vegetable Garden on an Irrigated Farm in Southern Alberta.

Tomatoes Grown in Southern Alberta.

There are 130 canning plants in Canada located as follows:—Ontario 88, Quebec 19, British Columbia 15, New Brunswick 6, Nova Scotia 2. There are 94 plants in which the evaporated process is used. Of these Ontario has 78, British Columbia 8, Nova Scotia 7, New Brunswick 1. There are also 29 for the preserving of vegetables of which Ontario has 18, British Columbia 6, Alberta 2, Quebec 2 and Manitoba 1.

The total amount invested in the combined industries is given as $16,252,986, of which $4,969,105 is in land buildings and fixtures, $2,945,016 in machinery and tools, $6,123,809 in materials on hand, and $2,275,056 in cash accounts, etc. The number of employees is returned at 4,795 and the wages and salaries paid for the year $2,834,237. The total cost at the works of the materials used during the year was $15,019,746, and the total value of the products of the plants $23,685,467.

Canada's exports of canned and preserved fruits and vegetables underwent a remarkable increase during the war period jumping from $299,412, in 1915 to $13,730,824 in 1918. It dropped in 1919 to $9,154,622. France was the principal importer in 1918 her purchases amounting to $10,122,681. In 1919 she was still the best customer with imports of $4,195,545. Exports to the United States in 1919 amounted to $2,811,076 and to the United Kingdom $1,917,597. Canada's imports of these products are considerable. In 1919 she bought canned and preserved fruits to the value of $1,152,012 of which $1,003,550 came from the United States. She also imported vegetables valued at $580,381, practically all of which came from across the border.

Rates for Telephone Service

OUR rates for exchange service, fixed many years ago, developed many inequalities as between cities at one time equal in population,

In the new schedules filed with the Board of Railway Commissioners we have so grouped cities and towns of approximately equal telephone development as to wipe out these inequalities.

The rates for exchange service proposed for Belleville under the new schedule are shown in the following table:—

	Proposed Monthly Rate
BUSINESS SERVICE
Individual Line................	$3.50
2-Party Line................	2.75
RESIDENCE SERVICE
Individual Line................	$2.50
2-Party Line................	2.00
Rural Party Service............	2.00

These new rates, we submit, should be considered in the light of the present purchasing power of the dollar. They compare favorably with the increased rates which telephone companies have had to secure from Public Service Commissions all over the continent.

The commodities we have to buy—labor and material—have advanced in no lesser degree than have those staples of every day use, the cost of which has made present living expenses so high.

WAR VESSELS ARE COMING IN SEPTEMBER

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—The five war vessels presented by the British Government to Canada are expected to arrive in Halifax toward the end of September. The squadron will be headed by the oil burner cruiser Aurora and will include two destroyers and two submarines. From Halifax the ships will proceed to Quebecand Montreal and the submarines may be taken through the St. Lawrence river canals to the Great Lakes. It is possible, however, that the submarine may draw too much water to go further inland than Montreal. The ships will be kept a good deal of the time at sea in order that their officers and crews may be thoroughly trained in their duties. The squadron may prove to be the nucleus of a Canadian navy, although a permanent naval policy will not be formulated until after the subject has been discussed at the Imperial Conference in 1921. Members of the Government are pleased that the new flotilla consists of craft of modern types. It is said that Viscount Jellicoe, when in Ottawa was of opinion that Canada would not obtain an oil-burning cruiser. Hon. C. C. Ballantyne is reported to have urged that these vessels should be the latest development in their respective classes and similar representations are understood to have been made in London.

A road map of the sky for all Canada is to be issued by the Air Board within a day or two.

MOTORIST MAROONED BY SWARM OF BEES

Simcoe, Aug. 11.—A local motorist here, was marooned on the main street here, Friday, in a peculiar manner, when a swarm of bees alighted on his car parked in front of the Royal Bank The bees were flying along the street when an employee at the Hotel Melbourne hammered a tin pan loudly, and the swarm came to earth. The queen bee chose a suitable landing spot on the front mud guard of the car, and her winged subjects immediately folowed suit.

The landing took place about noon, and when the car owner apeared on the scene he immediately sought safety in flight. Several citizens attemted to transfer the swarm to a hive brought to the scene, but were stung, and beat a hasty retreat. However, a wellknown veteran bee-keeper of the district put in an apearance about two p.m., and after various means, including the use of tobacco smoke, succeeded in driving in the obstinate ones into the hive, which he carried away in triumph.

The bees left the car about five p.m. delaying the dstressed motorist over five hours, during which time the chief of p ieoafcls –chief ofe police was an interested spectator, although he made no arrests, and will not prosecute the motorist for breaking he park limit. The latter, it is understood wll not charge the swarm current taxi rates for waiting five hours being satisfied to escape without having his skinpunctured by the uninvited guests.

C. P. R. FORCED TO IMPORT FOREIGNERS

Vancouver, Aug. 14—Definite information that the Canadian Pacific Railway feels that it will have to bring in foreign labor, in order to keep up railway maintenance in Canada is contained in a letter from President Beatty to the Imperial Veterans' organization here, in reply to a protest against the importation of a large number of foreigners.

The Graphic and Applied Arts section at the Canadian National Exhibition has been reorganized and the best display in years is expected in this section.

FROG IN THE THROAT

By R. RAY BAKER

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Gezunk!" called the bullfrog in the pond.

Sam Bristol, lying flat on his back, his face turned toward a sky unmarred by clouds, smiled good-naturedly.

"Good old Nebuchadnezzar," he whispered. Nebuchadnezzar was Sam's name for the frog. There was no apparent reason for that appellation, unless it was that the animal's back was of the same color as the field fodder the ancient king was said to have eaten at one erratic period of his career.

"I detest that frog!" said Amelia Whitton, sitting nearby. "Frogs are so homely, and their voices are worse, except when they sing at night, and Nebuchadnezzar never does. He just croaks all day long. I don't see what you can find about him that is so charming. I can't tolerate any sound that isn't musical."

Sam pursed his lips and whistled meditatively.

"That's not musical either," Amelia observed.

"There isn't much about me that is—any more" he whispered. "Ever since I caught a severe cold five years ago I haven't had even a speaking voice. I don't see how you can stand it to have me around Amelia; I'm so unmusical."

"Of course you know I care for you," she said "in spite of the fact that you have no voice. I should have liked to know you when you could sing though. Isn't there any remedy?"

"The doctor says no," he rasped: "so you see if you marry me you'll either have to do all the talking yourself or have me for a constant note of discord in your life of harmony."

"I wish you could sing as folks say you used to," Amelia sighed. "I think it would reconcile me more—to my fate," and she finished with a laugh—a musical laugh.

Her "fate" was her marriage to Sam, which was to take place as soon as she finished a course in vocal harmony she was about to commence.

"It would be fine if we could go to the city together and study music," she went on.

"Yes, it would. To tell you the truth, Amelia, I'm afraid to let you go alone. You'll land in some big opera company and fall in love with the star, and you'll forget about little Sammy in his very prosaic but prosperous shoe store back here in Glendon."

She shook her head. "No danger. Sam. I'm not that kind. But I wish you were going to study with me. When we finished we could get married and teach voice—if you could make some arrangements about your shoe business."

"That wouldn't be difficult," he said. "Johnson practically runs the business now; and I'd give him a half interest. But what's the use? I haven't any more voice than our friend Nebuchadnezzar. I have a frog in my throat."

"Gezunk!" chimed in the bullfrog, as if to say, "who says I haven't a voice?"

Amelia shuddered. "Let's go. Your friend frog gets on my nerves. I used to rather like him when we used to visit this little glen, but since I've studied harmony I've lost interest in his croaking."

They went back to the village and Sam, after escorting her home, hurried to his store.

Three weeks later Amelia packed two trunks and three handbags and set out for Chicago, where she would study voice with the masters.

Sam took her to Prescott, a village ten miles from Glendon, for the railroad on which she was to make her journey did not touch the latter place. The luggage, except one handbag, went ahead by motortruck and the exception followed with Amelia and Sam in his buggy. Sam never had been able to give up his spirited driving horse for an automobile.

"Good luck to you," he whispered as he kissed her good-by, and leaped from the train as it started. She waved a hand from the window and he responded similarly, and stood and watched the train vanish round a curve. For five minutes he stood at the station, dejected and lonely; for Sam and Amelia had been sweethearts since his advent into Glendon three years ago. He wished he could resurrect his life of five years—before he lost his voice. Sam had never told Amelia much about it, because it worried him in spite of the jovial attitude he appeared to take toward his "frog in the throat."

He drove slowly back along the road. The sunshine of spring and the flowers and foliage and birds that it brought, cast a spell over him, but it was a spell of moroseness rather than gladness. That is, he endeavored to drive slowly, but the horse, which was full of life and had not been in the harness much lately, did not relish the idea.

As she watched the scenery flash past, a neglected magazine in her lap, Amelia's mind was full of thoughts of the future. She knew her voice was good and she was confident she would realize her ambitions.

If she had known what was taking place on the country road, however, her thoughts would have been less of herself and more of Sam. Had she possessed a magic glass into which she could look and see whatever she wished, she would have witnessed a horse running away, dragging a man on the ground holding fast to the lines and paying for his tenacity with bumps and briuses and much dust and grime.

In the city Amelia made her home with a second cousin. She accepted some few attentions from young men who were commandeered for her especial benefit, but seldom received any one of them more than once, and she always wrote and told Sam about them.

After a year of conscientious and concentrated study with one of the city's leading vocal masters, Amelia had progressed so rapidly that her instructor told her she was qualified for grand opera—a minor part, of course, but with opportunities to make rapid strides to the zenith. He promised to intercede with some of his influential friends in the profession.

While this matter was brewing Amelia received the surprise of her life in the form of a letter from a noted impresario, informing her that he was willing to try her out for the leading part in a new production. She was not aware that she had become known among the higher-ups.

"There was no question about the advisability of accepting," her instructor told her warmly, as much surprised as she and somewhat puffed up because of the credit he felt was due him. "When Mr. Dinsmore makes an offer like that, it means something."

Correspondence resulted in an appointment being made at a theater and, with a pounding heart, Amelia went to keep it. She realized that her big opportunity had come.

A rehearsal was in progress, but Mr. Dinsmore was summoned to the box office and she introduced herself to him. He escorted her back of the stage and sent a boy to a dressing room on an errand. The boy returned with a young man costumed as a gondolier.

"Hello, Amelia," said the young man in a musical voice, bowing low. She stared at him, stunned. He looked for all the world like Sam Bristol; but of course Sam was back in Glendon selling shoes with his whispering voice. She had received a letter from him only a week ago.

"Oh, it's all right, Amelia," he said, clasping her in his arms and imprinting a kiss on her lips. "I'm Sam. This is my company. I used to be in opera before the frog crawled into my throat.

"My voice? Well, old Nebuchadnezzar is responsible. When I was driving back from the station I passed the pond and Nebuchadnezzar saluted me with a 'gezunk,' or a word to that effect. The horse was feeling kittenish and I had been dreaming—mostly of you—and I was pretty well scared. Before I knew what I was doing I had called 'whoa' good and loud. Since then I've had my real voice. The doctor says it never would have happened if it hadn't been for the strain in calling 'whoa!'"

"Good old Nebuchadnezzar," whispered Amelia, returning the hug that would have made a bear turn the color of a frog, out of envy.

Washington's Tour of the South.

In the spring and summer of 1791, President Washington made a tour of the south, visiting the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia. This was perhaps the first presidential "swing around the circle." Archibald Henderson, author of "The Conquest of the Southwest," soon to be published by the Century company, has just completed a detailed investigation of this trip. He retraced Washington's steps and reports that he unearthed a wealth of generally unknown and forgotten facts and incidets concerning the life of "The Father of Our Country." During his investigations Dr. Henderson made an interesting and valuable collection of old prints, rare engravings, portraits and facsimiles of unique letters and documents.

Just Rune Things.

"Den ag'n, sah, dar's de cheap man!" contemptuously said good old Parson Bagster. "He hums and haws and hangs back 'bout j'in'in' de church twell he gits de 'tention of everybody, and den he flings up his hands and comes th'oo wid a howl of triumph, like he'd done invented salvation, and nobody hadn't never used none of it befo'. And he hasn't been instigated into de fellership mo' dan 'bout six mont's twell he's runnin' de church wid a high hand and gittin' ready to discharge the Lawd and hold a Jedgement day hisse'f. Dat's de cheap man!"—Kansas City Star.

Don't Waste Time.

The main difference between the man who succeeds and the man who merely grovels along in a mediocre sort of way is that one utilizes every hour of his time to the best advantage he knows how, while the other is content to dwaddle. When business is not particularly brisk and the weather is depressing there certainly is a temptation to sit at the window and watch the crowd go by. But those who succumb to such temptations wake up sooner or later to find that the whole procession has passed them and left them in the lurch. Don't sit at the window. Get out and hustle.—Forbes Magazine.

Wool Embroidery.

The fad for wool embroidery is reflected everywhere. Scarcity of merchandise necessitating a search in one art department for colors, in another for needles, and another for patterns frequently discourages the shoppers and they abandon the attempt at hand-made decoration altogether, says the Dry Goods Economist. Hat bands, wide ribbons, sashes, handbags, blouses, gowns, porch pillows and practically every article susceptible to embroidery are showing gay little flowers and all-over and conventional patterns done in wool.

Inspector Arnott laid a charge of selling liquor against a Prince Edward County resident, and the case was tried before Pelice Magistrate Williams, of Picton, on Friday, a conviction being registered and a fine of $200 and costs imposed.

SAWDUST ON FIRE

Mr. Charles Brown, residing on Wills street near the bay shore reported this morning that sawdust and rubbish was on fire near his residence. The matter was reported to Chief Brown of the fire department who sent some men with the hose waggon to put out the fire. The fire had been smouldering for some days.

BARN BURNED BY LIGHTNING

During a thunderstorm on Saturday afternoon, a large barn the property of Mr. Charles McCann of Seymour Township just west of Marmora village was struck by lightning and destroyed. The building contained in addition to some of the seasons crop farming machinery, etc., which was a total loss. Mr. McCann had an insurance of $1500 on the building and the contents were also insured. His loss is however a serious one.

Called by Death

STEPHEN WELLINGTON

Mr. Stephen Wellington, a well known resident of Madoc village died on Saturday after a rather brief illness Deceased was 62 years of age and was born in that village being a son of the late Mr. Wesley Wellington. Mr. Wellington was not only favorably known in Madoc, but in the County of Hastings. He was interested in various mining propositions in the northern part of the County and especially in the talc mining. All his life was spent in mining operations Mr. Wellington was a member of the Methodist church and socially was deservedly popular. A widow and three daughters survive.

MRS. ERNEST MOAG

On August, 14, at Monrovia, California, Mrs. Ernest Moag entered into rest. Mrs. Moag was born in Belleville and was the eldest daughter of the late George C. Holton, Inspector of Revenue. She leaves her husband and four sons; her mother, Mrs. W. Bourne of Quincy, Illinois; a brother, Mr. Ezra W. Holton, General Manager of the Freight Department of the N. N. Company at Sarnia; a sister, residing in New Hampshire. Mrs. Moag, after her marriage, lived for sometime in Quincy, Ill., then in Belleville for a number of years, when the family removed to Monrovia, California. Mrs. Moag was a most devoted Christian and in her home was deeply interested in all religious and benevolent works. She experienced some months ago, an attack of nervous prostration, resulting in her sudden decease. She will be greatly missed in her home by many to wohm she administered and by a large circle of friends in Quincy, Ill., and in Belleville. She wore the white flower of a blameless life and has gone to her reward.

MRS. AMELIA CURTIS

Last night, Mrs. Amelia Curtis, an aged lady passed away in this city. Deceased was the widow of the late Mr. Wm. Curtis and was born in the United States in 1837. Mrs. Curtis resided in Belleville for a number of years and was living with her granddaughter, Mrs. Harry B. Day, Everett street, previous to which she resided for some time with her grandson at Erie, Pa. The only surviving members of her family are three grandchildren, Mrs. Harry Day, of this city; Miss Eva Curtis of Toronto and Frank Curtis of Erie. The body was this afternoon interred at Belleville cemetery, Rev. Mr. Marshall of Emmanuel Reformed Church, conducting services.

ANCIENT POETRY.

Oriental Wrote Clever and Satirical Verse.

Witter Bynner, the American poet, seems to have a taste for curiosities in literature. Mr. Bynner is going to China for the purpose of working on an anthology of Chinese poetry. He will endeavor to reproduce in English, not a literal rendering of the poems, but an emotional equivalent, using the English idiom that is as familiar to our ears as the quaint phrases were to the Chinese. His method of procedure is to be very simple. He will be accompanied by Prof. Kiang Kang Hu, formerly head of the Chinese University in Peking and more recently connected with the Chinese Department of the University of California. Prof. Kiang Kang Hu will make a literal translation of the poems that Bynner wants to use, and then the poet will turn the material into English verse.

Of course this is not the first time that Chinese poetry has been turned into its English equivalent. Sometime ago a little volume entitled "170 Chinese Poems" appeared, of which Mr. Arthur Waley was the translator. The collection was a unique one, as several of the poems dated back to seven hundred years before Christ. Mr. Waley did not try to make good poems out of the Chinese verse, but attempted to catch their ideas and their spirit, in a translation that was as near as possible to the original. It was not merely as odd scraps of ancient literature that these poems were interesting. Some of them were almost startling in their modernity. The poets who lived in China were writing delicate satires at a time when our ancestors could think of nothing more humorous than cracking somebody over the head with a stone. A Chinese poet who lived about A.D. 250 wrote a satire entitled "On the Birth of His Son," which sounds not unlike the ironical verses that are now making Siegfried Sassoon famous as a poet of marked originality. Here it is:

Families, when a child is born,
Want it to be intelligent.
I, through intelligence,
Having wrecked my whole life,
Only hope the baby will prove
Ignorant and stupid.
Then he will crown a tranquil life
By becoming a Cabinet Minister.

That little poem is not the only amusing bit of satire in the volume. Po Chu-i, who was born somewhere about A.D. 750, had a talent for taking digs in the form of epigrams at other writers. In some ways, his thrusts to right and left make you think of Edgar Lee Masters, except that the Chinaman seems to have had a healthier viewpoint. There is a poem by Po Chu-i entitled "The Philosopher"—

"Those who speak know nothing;
Those who know are silent."
These words, as I am told,
Were spoken by Lao-tzu.
If we are to believe that Lao-tzu
Was himself one who knew,
How comes it that he wrote a book
Of five thousand words?"

Offhand one cannot recall any more pungent and well directed bits of satire by our modern English-speaking poets than the two examples given above from the works of the 'Heathen Chinee," who lived almost before the dawn of our modern civilization.

Playing Cards.

The invention of playing cards has been variously attributed to India, China, Arabia and Egypt, but there seems to be little doubt that they originated in Asia, and were introduced into Europe about the close of the thirteenth century. There is a historical mention of the game of cards in Germany in 1275, in Italy in 1299, but not in France until 1393. In the sixteenth century the manufacture of cards was a flourishing business in England, and under Edward IV. their importation was forbidden to protect the home industry.

The marks upon the suits of cards are believed to have been chosen to represent symbolically the different classes of society. Thus, the hearts stood for the clergy, clubs for the soldiery, spade for the serfs, and diamonds for the merchants. In the early French cards the kings were pictures of David, Alexander, Caesar and Charlemagne, representing the monarchies of the Jews, Greeks, Romans and French. The queens were Esther, Judith, Argine and Pallas.

The suits of the earliest German cards were designated by hearts, bells, leaves and acorns. Italian cards had swords, batons, cups and money. The court cards at first were the king, chevalier and knave, the queen being first substituted for the chevalier by the Italians. The English cards in the seventeenth century were embellished with heraldic designs, the king of clubs bearing the coat-of-arms of the pope of Rome, and those of hearts, diamonds and spades being adorned respectively with the armorial device of the kings of England, Spain and France. The club of modern cards derived its form from the trefoil, a French design.

Protecting Seals.

The protective measure adopted by the Government for the benefit of the seals in our waters has been entirely successful, as indicated by the great number of animals seen to be migrating to the Arctic seas. The migration was three weeks earlier than usual, and an unusually large number of animals were noted on their way to the north.

A "Strong" Room.

To prevent thieves from getting at the money vaults by the tunneling method, the foundation of the strongroom of the Bank of England extends for sixty-six feet below the level of the street.

Mutual Feeling.

"Are you a careful driver?" asked the nice old lady.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the chauffeur. "I don't want to get hit by a railroad train any more than you do."

MILITARY CROSS FOUND

A military cross No. 455090 and bearing the name of Pte. A. Mountenay was found on Saturday by Mrs. D. Sword residing in the city. The find was reported to the police and the medals in the hands of the finder.

Couldn't Hold A Pen In His Hand

Was Disabled By Rheumatism—Gains Twenty Pounds and Gets Rid of Trouble

"For two years I was not able to do a stroke of work and could only lay around and suffer. I had lost the use of my right arm and hand entirely and could not so much as hold a pen to write my name. And yet today I can do as good a day's work as any man thirty years younger than myself. I haven't felt finer or better or stronger since I was a boy than I do today and I give the entire credit for this remarkable change in my condition, to five bottles of Tanlac."

Surely a more remarkable tribute was never paid to any medicine than this simple straightforward statement of the facts made by John Plaxton, a well-known farmer of Treherne, Manitoba, to the Tanlac representative recently. In describing what the medicine did for him, Mr. Plaxton said:

"For five years I didn't have a well moment. My trouble started with acute indigestion. My food would sour and I would get so full of gas as to be hardly able to breathe. I rarely ate meat and nohting could induce me to eat cheese, because I knew it would nearly kill me. Then I had severe cutting pains across my back just over my kidneys that felt as if a knife was being stuck into me. But it was the rheumatism which was the worst of all. The pain was awful. My fingers and elbow joints were so stiff and sore that I could not raise my hands to my head and my knees would ache and get so stiff that I could scarcely walk or bend over. Occasionally I would have a pain shoot through my entire body that felt like an electric shock. I was told that nothing could be done for me and that I should gradually get worse until I was helpless. I spent over a thousand dollars on medicines and liniments, but they failed to do me any good at all and I had just about given up in despair.

"Then one day I read in the papers the statement of an old schoolmate of mine, telling of the good Tanlac had done him. I made up my mind to try it and now I think it is the greatest medicine in the world. I've taken five bottles of it altogether and I want to say that I haven't had a twinge of rheumatism since. All the stiffness and soreness has gone out of my knees and I can walk along at a good gait for any distance as good as anybody. I can use both arms and hands and the pains in my back have also disappeared. I now enjoy a good meal; my food agrees with me and I have gained twenty pounds in weight. It is fully a year since I took my last dose of Tanlac but I have been in perfect condition all that time and able to work with the best. It's no wonder I am enthusiastic about Tanlac and never hesitate to recommend and praise it to everybody."

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

It is not easy, perhaps, to say just why it should be so, but few things are more utterly a part of London than Cleopatra's Needle, which rises so straight and slim, a giant needle indeed, above the river on the Victoria Embankment. Comparatively speaking, it is, of course, only a newcomer. Fifty or sixty years ago, it was still lying desolately where Thackeray saw it in the sands of Alexandria, and it was not finally placed in its present position until 1878. London, however, has a great respect for antiquity, and when it comes to a thousand years or more, another thousand years seems to make little difference. So the man who walks along the Embankment, and gives reins to recollection, may hark back without difficulty some two thousand years, and recall what a long procession of peoples, stretching back to the days of the Romans and beyond, have passed that way. And with the Romans maybe will come Julius Caesar and, with Julius Caesar, Mark Antony. Do they not always come together into any such wandering excursions? Then, surely, is the proper moment for Cleopatra's Needle to rise up solemnly from amidst the trees, and lift the curtain upon another vista of time. A thousand years before the day of Antony and Cleopatra, for the antiquarians are right in saying that Cleopatra had nothing to do with it, this strangely beautiful shaft of stone, with its companion now in Central Park, New York, stood in Heliopolis, in Egypt. It was there when the children of Israel settled in the land of Goshen, and it was there when they took their journey by night toward the shores of the Red Sea.

All told, indeed, Cleopatra's Needle stayed in Egypt at least 3,500 years, and then it came to London. London had had plenty of notice of the move, for it was just over a hundred years ago that the Khedive of Egypt, Mehemet Ali, offered the column to the British people if they would come and fetch it. The British people, however, whilst suitably grateful, seemed to be in no hurry. It was no small matter, in those days, to move a single shaft of stone, over sixty feet high and weighing 180 tons, all the way from Alexandria to London. And so they waited and talked about it. One of the questions was as to where they were to put it when they did get it. Thus, as far back as 1822, it was intended that Cleopatra's Needle, when it arrived, should be erected at the foot of Waterloo Place, on the site where the Crimea Monument now stands. Those who are acquainted with Pierce Egan's "Life in London" will remember how the Hon. Tom Dashall and Squire Tallyho are one day discussing the aesthetics of Waterloo Place. The squire remarks that there is a "vacuum on the spot." The Hon. Tom agrees, but declares that he is credibly informed that the column known as Cleopatra's Needle is "destined to raise its lofty summit in Regent's Place," as Waterloo Place was then called. Another proposed site was the central arch of Waterloo Bridge, this at the urgent instance of the shareholders of the bridge, who hoped that its presence would attract passengers.

But, meanwhile, the needle lay in the sand at Alexandria, and there it continued to lie until Sir Erasmus Wilson, in the seventies of last century, offered to defray the cost of its transportation to England. The story of how, inclosed in a specially designed cylindrical case, it set out in tow of a specially chartered steamer; how it was abandoned during a storm in the Bay of Biscay; eventually recovered and towed into London is well known, and may all be read in the inscription on its gray granite pedestal.

During its long sojourn in Egypt, the color of the needle itself was pink, that wonderful pink granite seen so often on the banks of the Nile. Guide books seem to be fond of pointing out that it is pink no longer. But the guide books exaggerate. There is a time, just about now, as the young green begins to appear like a soft sheen amidst the gray of the plane trees on the Embankment, when it only needs a clear sky and a westering sun for Cleopatra's Needle to appear almost as pink as, maybe, it was 3,000 years ago, in Heliopolis.

St. Paul's Doors.

The great oak doors at the entrance of St. Paul's cathedral in London are thirty feet high and are believed to be the largest one-piece door in the world. They are nearly as old as the cathedral itself, and each leaf bears upon it the name of the carpenter who made it.

Escaped Convicts Believed Hiding in Swamp at Roblin

MEN SURROUNDED IN SWAMP AND THOUGHT TO BE STILL THERE—EXCITING CHASE AFTER FUGITIVES—CONVICTS ABANDONED AUTOMOBILE AND STRUCK ACROSS COUNTRY.

The Kingston Standard in its account of the escape of the two convicts Griggs and Hilton, says:

"Late on Saturday afternoon, Warden Ponsford's party received a clue which led them almost to the capture of the men, when luck proved against them, and once again their quarry got away from them. A few miles west of Moscow, the two convicts stopped at a farm house and asked for gasoline. The occupant of the farm house supplied them with one gallon of gasoline and told the convicts that they could secure more in Moscow. As soon as the fugitives departed, he telephoned into Moscow telling the garage keeper there to hold the men if possible.

Made Attempt to Stop Men

Evidently some of the villagers knowing of the escape, had heard the message over the line, and one old man of about seventy years, determined that be would do his best to apprehend the men. He got into the road with a long pole and just as the convicts were coming along the road he held the pole up and ordered them to stop. The convicts slowed up their car, but when they saw that there was only one man to stop them, they put on speed again, and departed faster than ever, not, however before the old man threw the pole at the car, hoping that it would go through the spokes of the wheel and force the car to stop. His aim, however, was inaccurate and the men were able to escape.

Sighted the Convicts

Warden Ponsford's party coming into Moscow, were told of the fugitives passing through the village, and putting on all speed, soon came in sight of the convicts. The big car in which the convicts were riding, was going at a terrific speed, but the big Chandler, in which the Warden was driving had a good supply of gasoline, and it seemed inevitable that the convicts would be captured. But here it was that luck went against the pursuers. With the quarry almost within grasp, a loud report was heard and the back tire on the car in which the Warden was driving gave way. This necessitated a delay of about ten minutes while another tire was put on, and when the car was started again, the convicts were out of sight. The other pursuers in the meantime had been following up other clues and trails but they proved fruitless.

Their movements from there were more or less vague, and though Warden Ponsford and his party remained on the search until early on Sunday morning, all through a night of utter darkness, with lightning flashing and thunder rolling, they were unable to pick up the clue which would lead them to the fugitives. Warden Ponsford stated that it was one of the darkest nights that he had ever known, and search under such conditions was practically impossible, but the party of searchers kept at the work and finally picked up a clue that the men had gone in the direction of Belleville.

Men Seen in Swamp at Roblin

The warden returned to the Penitentiary Sunday morning, but most of the other searchers remained on the chase. About three o'clock Sunday afternoon, word was received from Mr. G. Laturney that the men were ambushed in a big swamp at Roblin near Belleville. One of the convicts had been seen in the swamp and it was thought that the other was close by. The swamp was too thick to enter and all the guards in the vicinity were summoned, so that the swamp would be surrounded, and the men forced out. However, under cover of darkness, the men evidently slipped away, for Monday morning they were not apprehended, though the guards at the swamp were firmly of the opinion that the men are still in the swamp.

Free Tuition for London Children

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 17.—In fulfilment of his pre-election pledge, Mayor E. S. Little has completed arrangements with the Western University to grant free tuition for two years in the arts department of Western University to the sons and daughters of Londoners who are assessed for less than $3,500, or who are tenants in houses assessed for not more than that amount.

The extension of the advantages of university training to all Londoners who are ambitious but who might be handicapped by lack of funds is a plan in which the Mayor has interested himself for some time. Under the arrangements completed with the officers of the University the fees are to be remitted in each case favorably reported upon by a committee of the City Council. The plan becomes effective with the commencement of the scholastic year and the committee to deal with applications now being received will comprise Mayor Little, Ald. Cunningham, Chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, City Clerk Baker and Assessment Commissioner Stephen Grant.

The rules require that each applicant shall have a standing equivalent to junior matriculation, and no student will be permitted to proceed for a second year unless his interest and advancement during the first year warrant it.

Issue Certificates Of Citizenship

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Aug. 17.—The issuance of certificates of Canadian citizenship is the new departure decided upon by the Dominion Immigration department that is expected to be of great assistance to Canadians who go abroad or cross the border into the United States. The certificate is in the form of a small card bearing on one side a photograph of the individual to whom it is issued, giving such information as name, date of birth, and birthplace of the holder.

Suit of Armor Saved Venizelos

PARIS, Aug. 17.—A three-play suit of chain armor, worn beneath the shirt of Eleutherios Venizelos, Premier of Greece, was responsible for the failure of his would-be assassins to kill him when they fired five shots point blank as he was leaving the Lyons Railway Station in Paris.

All five of the bullets struck, but only one, which split into four pieces, did any damage. It inflicted minor wounds. These facts were revealed today and in this connection is is generally known that King George V. of Great Britain wears a similar suit. The Italian King, though protesting for a long time, has finally adopted the policy of wearing armor when in Rome.

Part of Vast Plot.

The attempted assassination of Venizelos, police investigation here has revealed today, was part of a plot hatched in Switzerland to restore King Constantine to the throne.

Two Murders on Detroit Streets

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 15.—Shooting caused the death of two men here today. One, an alleged gangster, recently acquitted of a charge of murder, was slain by men in two automobiles, who fired volleys from automatic pistols and shotguns as he stood on the sidewalk at Napoleon and Hastings streets shortly before six o'clock this evening. The other victim was Hanson Callahan, eighteen years old, of Wyandotte, who was fatally wounded by special Deputy Sheriffs late Saturday night.

Left Dying on Walk.

Archie Davis, 33 years old, said by police to have been a member of the Gianola gang, was standing at Hastings and Napoleon streets. Two cars approached, travelling at a moderate pace, one behind the other. As the leading car was opposite Davis it stopped. Two men got out, aimed automatic revolvers at Davis and fired the full contents of the gun clips. As he crumpled in a heap to the sidewalk the men sprang into their car, which sped away.

Rotary Absorbs Electric Ideas

An Interesting and Instructive Talk on Modern Business Methods

Rotary never sleeps nor takes vacation, Rotary goes on forever in its pathway of useful service social and educational and Belleville Rotary Club is no exception to the rule. At the regular meeting of the local club held in the Hotel Quinte with luncheon Monday there was a good attendance considering the hot weather and other things and the session was a most interesting one and full of pep. The speaker of the day was Ernest A. Edkins, who occupies a high executive position in the merchandizing department of one of the largest electrical concerns in the United States with headquarters at Chicago. His talk was most interesting and instructive.

In the absence of the president, E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., Rotarian Billy Deacon occupied the chair in his customary jovial manner. Oswald Scott, Sergt.-at-Arms, occupied his customary seat at the end of the table and collected the customary fines for infractions of the rules of Rotary which are as inflexible as the the laws of the Medes and Persians. Secretary Billy Doyle was on hand as usual at the business end and also directed the singing and good humor department. Short addresses were made by Rotarians Fred Smith and J. G. Moffat on matters of interest to the club and Chairman Billy Deacon referred to the fact that in the organizaion presided over by Bro. Edkins at Chicago there were several Belleville Boys occupying high executive positions.

Rotarian Scott introduced the speaker of the day in an interesting way and mentioned the fact that in the electrical concern presided over by Bro. Edkins, electrical appliances had been sold last year calling for more electrical energy than is used between Toronto and Montreal.

Ernest A. Edkins, who is General Manager of the seven electrical goods stores maintained by the Commonwealth Edison Company in Chicago, gave an interesting and instructive address showing how modern merchandizing is conducted, interest created in electrical appliances in the home, store and office, and sales multiplied, emphasizing the necessity and value of the spirit of service being combined with salesmanship for the good of all. He referred humorously to his visit to Belleville where as the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. Fred Deacon, he hoped to find rest, pure and simple, with long hours spent placidly on the verandah enjoying the invigerating ozone and pleasant conversation. Instead he had been treated to long motor rides over the municipal mountains of Belleville streets and the hills and valleys of the beyond and instead of the quiet life anticipated, had been kept on the jump, very pleasantly however. Then along came Billy Deacon with a demand that he address the Rotary Club which was the hardest task of all as he was not a public speaker but a business man. However, he would talk as a business man to business men and let it go at that.

The speaker outlined the immense growth of the business of selling electrical goods in Chicago in the thirty years' operation of the concern with which he was connected, and showed how the use of electrical labor-saving appliances had been encouraged in the homes and how the business could be still developed everywhere by intensive methods. He instanced newspaper advertising campaigns, window displays and follow-up methods of getting in direct touch with the consumer and gave practical instances of successful methods used in attracting human interest and inspiring a demand for useful merchandise.

As a result of this very practical and instructive address arrangements were made at the meeting to have members in various lines of business prepare brief addresses on their own business problems and hits and misses to be given at future meetings so that all the members could learn something from the experiences of others.

KINGSTON MAN AGED SIXTY DIVES AND RESCUES BOY

Kingston, Aug. 17.—Jos. Wilson, aged nine years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Wilson, formerly of Cobourg, had a narrow escape from drowning while playing on the long pier at Portsmouth, being saved only by the prompt action of John Fisher, aged sixty years. Mr. Fisher heard the cry for help, ran to the scene of the accident and taking off his boots, dived into the water, going straight to the bottom, discovered the little lad there clutching some weeds. After a hard struggle, owing to the advanced age of the rescuer, the little boy was brought to the surface and resuscitated.

Successful Counter-Attacks Launched By Poles

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

BOLSHEVIKI MEETING VIGOROUS RESISTANCE FROM POLISH FORCES—RUSSIANS FORCED BACK ACROSS RIVER BUG—COUNTER OFFENSIVE PROVING SUCCESSFUL IN VARIOUS SECTORS.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Several successful counter-attacks have been launched by the Poles against the Bolshevik armies hammering at the gates of Warsaw. In the neighborhood of Cholm, on the southern sector of the Warsaw front, Russian forces which had crossed the Bug River, were pushed back across the stream, while in the region of Modlin, northwest of the Polish capital, the Poles have begun a counter-offensive, directing their attack in the direction of Mlawa.

Increase Asked In Phone Rates

Application Made to Board of Railway Commissioners for Permission to Increase Telephone Rates

The Bell Telephone Company of Canada has applied to the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada asking permission to raise their rates and make a general readjustment of charges for service, and installation. The company claims that the increase in cost of materials, higher wages, and increased operating costs generally makes it imperative that a new schedule of rates be put in force.

The proposed new schedule varies according to locality and the number of services, Belleville being in Group V, comprising exchanges having approximately 900 to 2000 stations and 8,000 to 25,000 population, will have the following schedule of monthly payment that rates if the application is granted:

Business—Individual line $3.50 per month, two-party line, $2.75, rural party line $2.00.

Residence—Individual line, $2.50 per month, two-party line $2.00; rural party line, $2.00.

New arrangements are provided for installation or re-connection charges, and in long distance calls a small charge for service is made where the party does not answer or cannot be located.

The company for many years has paid eight per cent. return on capital invested, but never more, and the increase in rates is considered necessary to protect the investors, provide for extensions and betterment of service. The company claims that while the price of practically all commodities has advanced enormously, telephone rates have been increased only about ten per cent. in over twenty-five years, whereas the daily value of the service has increased as the subscribers have multiplied.

The request of the company will be heard before the Board of Railway Commissioners and the matter will be thoroughly gone into.

He has gone to Montreal, whence he is booked to leave on August 20th.

He will visit Lemans, his native town in France, where he was born Feb. 2, 1840, and other cities on his way to Italy. He is awaited at headquarters of the Congregation of Oblates in Rome to take part in general chapter of order that will take place this fall.

Although Bishop Grouard is 81 years old, he says he will be back again as soon as his business in France and Italy has been concluded.

Soviet Thanks British Labor

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The all-Russian Central Council of Trades Unions has telegraphed the British Labor Council of action crediting British labor with forcing the hand of the Government in the Russo-Polish crisis and voicing thanks for its efforts.

"On receiving the news that the aggressive policy of the British Government towards Russia had changed for the better under strong pressure of the British workers," says the Russian Council's message, "we desire to convey to those British organizations which forced the hand of the Government the heartfelt thanks of all industrial organizations of workers in Soviet Russia."

Thorold Quiet After Exciting Night

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 17.—Thorold was quiet this morning following the wild scenes that accompanied the threat and actual attempt of the mob last night to lynch David McNeil the prisoner who is being held for trial in connection with the murder of Margaret Boucock, aged four. That the crowd was in earnest about its intention was evidenced this morning by the finding of a noose all ready on the town flag pole, where it was left after the demonstration last night.

It was without doubt the fervor of McNeil's own appeal to the crowd which saved his life for trial by the courts. He concluded a forceful declaration of innocence with the appeal, "in the name of that man who was crucified without fair trial."

Crown Attorney Cowper who was injured in assisting to save the prisoner and in preventing the burning of the town hall is considering what action shall be taken against ringleaders of the demonstration. In the meantime the prisoner is in jail awaiting trial.

FEDERAL STATESMEN TO INVADE OLD QUEBEC

Banquet to Be Arranged in the Ancient Capital for the Prime Minister.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—A feature of the autumn period of political activity which has been opened in Ontario with speeches by Prime Minister Meighen and Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, is to be an invasion of Quebec Province by Federal Ministers, including in all probability, the Prime Minister. While the plans of the party organizers in Quebec are as yet largely tentative it was stated authoritatively that a number of meetings are to be held in the near future, commencing with one at Sherbrooke on Saturday next and whenever possible. Federal Ministers will be the chief speakers.

It is also proposed to organize a banquet in all probability in Quebec City, in honor of the Prime Minister some time in September or October. At this event Mr. Meighen and several of his colleagues will be heard. Mr. Meighen will spend part of next week in the Maritime Provinces, where he will participate in the Ministerial by-elections. Later on, it is expected, he will address additional meetings in Ontario.

Prisoner Nearly Lynched By Mob At Thorold

INCENSED AT BRUTAL MURDER OF FIVE-YEAR-OLD GIRL, MOB SETS FIRE TO TOWN HALL — PRISONER SURRENDERS AND SAVES HIS LIFE BY SPEECH TO CROWD AFTER BEING SEVERELY INJURED—FATHER OF MURDERED GIRL ATTACKS PRISONER IN COURT ROOM.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 16.—Canadian common-sense and spirit of British fair play tonight saved David McNeil's life from a Thorold mob of one thousand people after the prisoner and police officers had been smoked out of the Town Hall, which the mob had set on fire.

McNeil had been formally committed for trial during the afternoon on a charge of murdering five-year-old Margaret Beaucock. Before the prisoner could be taken from the court room the father of the murdered girl sprang at him, followed by the crowd in the court room, men and women, and McNeil was roughly handled, being hit repeatedly with fists and chairs. The Crown Attorney and other officials were also injured in the melee.

About ten o'clock, when darkness had set in, the mob, which had grown to immense proportions, determined to get McNeil, began to storm the Town Hall with bricks and stones. Before long every window in the newly-built building had been shattered, and then the mob began to attack the doors.

SET FIRE TO THE TOWN HALL.

McNeil and the police officers and several reporters saved their lives by crouching in corners and holding chairs in front of them as volleys of rocks swept through the building. At first several shots were fired out of the upstairs windows to frighten the crowd, but it did not hinder them. Then flares were thrown through the shattered windows, and a couple of men rushed a bundle of hay, saturated with gasoline, into the ground floor. Soon the flames burst out, and eventually the smoke and flames drove the men who had been besieged since early afternoon down the stairs and out.

M'NEIL SURRENDERS TO THE MOB.

"We surrender," yelled McNeil, as he came down the stairs with Chief Frank Collins of Thorold hanging to his steel wristlet. A Buffalo reporter, Howard White, was just ahead of McNeil, and the crowd seized him and were rushing him off. He showed his badge and they let him go.

Prisoner Badly Handled.

McNeil was seized and rushed over in front of the Town Hall to an auto. A rope taken from the town flagpole was run up a pole. McNeil had been terribly injured with bricks and clubs and his face was completely covered with blood.

"Give Him a Chance."

"Give him a chance," called someone, and that met with popular approval. "Men, if you are men, give me a chance to make a statement," cried the blood-stained man. "It may be my last words on earth." McNeil spoke for half an hour before a hushed crowd. He took an oath that he had not killed Margaret Beaucock. "Only a degenerate could do such a thing." The crowd demanded why he had not made a statement before, and he said his counsel had told him not to speak.

Spirit of Crowd Changes.

The firemen were fighting the flames which were burning the Town Hall, so it was necessary to move from the place, so the crowd allowed McNeil to go on to the Public Library steps. There, a horrible object, he stood and pleaded for his life, and finally the whole spirit of the crowd changed.

From one section of the great audience came insistent appeals, "Give the man a chance; hand him over to the police." Finally others took up the cry, only a few dissenting, and before long it was almost a unanimous cry. When McNeil ceased speaking there was no further talk of violence.

Rushed to Welland.

No one touched McNeil as Chief Mains and his men supported the prisoner to an auto, and he was rushed off to Welland before there was time for the crowd to change its mind.

The damage to the Town Hall is several thousand dollars. It is said one man cut McNeil's finger off as he was being hustled by the mob when they first got him.

Mob rule and civil authority were at the point of balance since before four o'clock this afternoon.

The formal commitment to jail by Magistrate Munro seemed to be the signal for a rush by a large number of the 500 people who crowded the hall, some hurling chairs and others upsetting tables, still others reaching for the prisoner with their fists and several landing.

Police Clear Hall.

The police were successful in clearing the room.

An appeal was made to Lieut.-Col. McCordick, of St. Catharines, for fifty armed men to escort the prisoner to the jail. The reply was that there were no men and that Thorold was outside his jurisdiction. Chief Greene of the St. Catharines police force was appealed to, but could not spare one man. Captain Vandersluys of Niagara Falls was asked for a military guard, but none was available.

Major Foley and Crown Attorney Cowper, the latter visibly bearing the marks of the onslaught of the crowd in the courtroom, decided that nothing could be done but wait for the crowd to melt away or for the arrival of sufficient mounted police.

Bombs And Bullets In Tipperary Town

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

BELFAST Aug. 17.—Town of Templemore, County of Tipperary, underwent a grim ordeal of reprisal last night, following the murder of District Inspector Wilson, according to a press despatch received here today. Police and military turned out to avenge him and with bombs and bullets speedily cleared the streets. The town hall and several shops were attacked and wrecked. The disorders lasted several hours.

"Vindictive" Refloated.

London, Aug. 17.—The British light cruiser, Vindictive, which was sunk in the entrance of Ostend harbor on May 11, 1918, and which has blocked that port since that time, has been refloated and the port is again open for traffic. The sinking of the Vindictive was one of the most thrilling events of the last year of the war.

Canadian Qualifies For Hurdie Finals

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

ANTWERP, Aug. 17.—Earl Thompson of Prince Albert Sask., this afternoon won his heat in the semi-finals in 110 metre hurdles. His time was 15 seconds flat. Thompson was later beaten by Baron of the United States in 110 metre hurdles at the Olympic games today. He was expected to win but lost by a yard. Baron's time was 15 and 1-5 seconds.

Although Thompson lost first place, he qualified to enter semi-finals along with eleven others. There were twenty six starters in all.

Deceased was 25 years of age and on Saturday last at East Whitby was the victim of a fatal accident. Wellman was in the employ of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario and whilst engaged at his work was electrocuted. The victim was unmarried. On January 8th, 1916, Mr. Charles Wellman, father of deceased was killed at Canifton Road Railway Crossing.

STORM CAUSES DAMAGE

In the vicinity of Peterboro on Saturday afternoon, considerable damage resulted from a severe electrical storm which visited that section of the community. Several barns in the wake of the storm were struck by lightning and destroyed. The loss to buildings, grain and stock will run into thousands of dollars. Wellington Hunter of Douro Township, and David Miller, Smith Township, are among the heaviest losers. Mr. Hunter's loss includes a thousand dollars worth of hogs and almost the entire season's crop. At Stony Lake, lightning struck the summer cottage of Judge G. M. Rogers of Cobourg. Nine occupants of the cottage, including the judge were affected by the lightning bolt, but not seriously injured.

Wedding Bells

YOUNG—CLARK

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Turner, Coleman street when their cousin Miss Elsie J. Clark of Johnstown, N.Y., became the bride of Marvin J. Young, of Gloversville, N.Y. Mrs. Turner assisted the bride while Mr. Turner did honors for the groom. The bride wore a beautiful French gown of robin egg laveller set with saphires and pearls the gift of the groom. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a dainty gold lavller set with saphires and pearls and to the groomsman gold cuff links The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Swayne of Christ Church. After the ceremony, a dainty luncheon was served. The happy couple will reside in Johnstown, N.Y.

CALLED BY DEATH

ARTHUR PATRIARCHE

Mr. Arthur Patriarche, dean of transportation in Michigan former vice president of the Pere Marquette Railway, died at his home, 31 Palmer avenue, Detroit, following an illness of five months' duration. Mr. Patriarche was born in the Island of Jersey, June 13, 1849. He came to Canada as a boy with his parents who settled at Belleville. During the U. S. Civil War he was operator at Hamilton for the Grand Trunk Railway. He entered the service of the old Flint and P. M. in 1872 and had been in continuous service with the company and its successor. Mr. Patriarche married Miss Charlotte Elizabeth McKelcan of Hamilton, Ont., December 27, 1870. The widow, three sons and a daughter survive him.

Nobs and Snobs and Other Things

First came the nob, then the snob, and the snobs have grown and multiplied ,and waxed fat and scornful, and in various varieties fill the land, according to Rev. Robert Whyte, of Knox Church, Ottawa, who gave the closing lecture of the Belleville 1920 Chautauqua season.

Rev. Mr. Whyte's lecture was one of the best numbers of the entire series, eloquent, witty and cutting in its sarcastic references to sham and hypocrisy.

In his introductory remarks he said that the word snob meant different things at different periods in our history. In the fourteenth century the meaning of snob was a snibble or crybaby. In the 18th century the name had changed and was used to designate a shoemaker. Later it was found in the realm of sport, a game resembling cricket, played with a flat round-shaped bat and a soft ball. Later still students entering college would write after their names the Latin phrase that signified that they belonged to the nobility, or did not so belong. This through time became contracted to nob, and S. nob, and for short those of the nobility were called nobs and snobs. It was, however, left to Thackeray to give the more modern meaning of one who fawns on those who may be above them, ore one who aspired to honor or social position without the qualifications therefor. We look today upon a snob as one who thinks himself better than his fellows. We have several kinds of snobs, and it may be truthfully said that snobbery was something that kills all the good traits in human character.

The Social Snob.

There was first the social snob, who referred sneeringly to the lower classes, and there was the worker who also was a snob in that he thought the work of the hand was the only real work, forgetful that the work of the brain often produced more than mere manual work.

The Religious Snob.

Then there was the religious snob exemplified in the aloofness of some religious workers from those who were endeavoring to find the true way. He instanced the remarks of a certain prelate who said that "Where he could not recognize neither would he fraternize" as the hall-mark of religious snobbery. There was also the snobbery of the people who paid their teachers and preachers $2,000 a year, and their prize-fighters and jockeys $50,000 a year. They forgot the nobility of usefulness and the lines of Burns have no meaning for them—"For a' that an 'a' that." Sometimes old people suffer from the snobbery of the young, and young and old suffered much from the snobbery of each other.

The Political Snob.

The political snob next came under the lecturer's eloquence. He condemned in round terms the political snobbery of the day, and he characterized as the greatest of political snobs the man who believed in his party, right or wrong. We had the Liberal snob, the Tory snob, and it looked as if we were to have the Farmer snob. He said that the man who gave any party a perpetual mortgage on his vote was the poorest type of citizen and not fit to have a vote.

The National Snob.

Lastly, he spoke of the National snob, and said that it was a species of national snobbery that had made possible the great world conflict. The Germans were, before the war, national snobs in the worst sense, and because of this thought with contempt of the rest of the world. Patriotism should not be mistaken for snobbery nor vice versa. It was one thing to love one's country and another thing to think and say that it was the only country of any account.

Dr. Whyte filled his hour with a lot of good, pointed humor, drew some very fine lessons from his text, and said that we must purge our social, religious, political and national life of everything of a snobbish nature, and to look for the good in each other, rather than the bad, and to follow in the steps of the Great Example, who in His day confounded the snobs who endeavored to trap Him. Snobbery was to blame for much of our social troubles, much of our religious failure, much of our political rottenness, and much of our national shortcomings.

The lecturer was both amusing and instructive and absolutely positive in his wholesome teaching.

........(Aids to Beauty)

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive: With some powdered delatone and water, make enough paste to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left soft, clear and hairless. This treatment will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

(What the Press Agents Say)

"VANITY FAIR OF 1920"

In the group of girls chosen for the chorus to go on tour with Boyle Woolfolk's sensational musical comedy revue in twelve scenes, "Vanity Fair 1920" which opens the regular dramatic season at Griffin's this Friday night, August 20th will be found a fair representation of this diversity of employment and social status. Twelve of the girls come from families of wealth and the weekly salary they receive means little to them. Of the twenty-two bewitching beauties with "Vanity Fair," six call New York their home Of the others, two were born in California; one in Texas; one in Maine; nine in Illinois; two in Michigan and one in Canada. The production is in two acts, and twelve scenes and contains twenty jingling melodies.

Derby Race Scene in Screen Story

'Lord and Lady Algy' Presents Unique Domestic Problem For Solution

"Lord and Lady Algy," the Goldwyn photoplay in which Tom Moore is starred, again demonstrates the possibilities of the screen to present vast spectacular effects without in the least affecting the dramatic merit of the story The picture which was shown at Griffin's last night before a large audience combines some of the most colorful spectacles with a beautiful and dramatic story. A huge ballroom scene and the running of the Derby are both shown vividly on the screen. The limitations of the theatre strike on especially in a picture of this kind in which the important events are picturized, a thing physically impossible for the stage to accomplish.

In the story which was first produced as a play, the author, R. C. Carton presents a young lord and his wife estranged because of the husband's love of betting. Although the young people see each other, they meet only as friends; but the wife is always watching her husband's betting deals and endeavors to discover the horses he favors, only for the sake of backing others and thus making good the losses which he inevitably rolls up. The climax is reached when Lord Algy is financially ruined through his plunging on his own race horse and his wife wins. The events that follow will be found most interesting.

An interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue, "The Jazz Bandits," a funny 2-reel Sunshine comedy and the closing chapter of "The Lost City" serial are also being shown on the same program.

Chautauqua of 1920 is Ended

A Fine Musical Program by the Chicago Opera Company.

Belleville Chautauqua for 1920 closed with a concert by three talented musicians, Miss Christian of the Chicago Opera Company, Miss Edgar, violiniste; Mr. Robert McDonald, pianist. The program given was of an exceedingly high class character and the appreciation of the audience was shown by the repeated encores which each of the trio received. It is worthy of note that while the interpretation of the work of the great masters of music was duly appreciated, the sacred solo sung by Miss Christian, "I think when I read that sweet story of old, when Jesus was here among men," struck a different note, and as the beautiful sentiment of the hymn, clothed in the harmony of Miss Christian's sweetest tones, floated out over the tent, a hush expressive and reverent spread over the large audience, even the children ceasing their fretful moving and whimpering. Never was hymn more exquisitely sung or more appreciated. Annie Laurie was another favorite and the lovely old English songs which Miss Christian interprets with such sweetness, expression and harmony. It must also be remarked that the National Anthem was sung at the close with vigor and expressive force, led by the musical trio from the United States.

Miss Christian possesses a fine soprano voice under perfect control, and she sang grand opera selections and folk songs with equal success.

This is somewhat unusual, as many big singers do not get the proper mental attitude when it comes to singing a simple ballad, and therefore fail to impress. Miss Christian, in addition to the printed program, sang Annie Laurie with fine effect. Her singing of a group of old English songs showed her at her best. Her clear and clean-cut enunciation showed that she appreciated the purpose of the songs and also the rights of the audience to know what it is all about, and for this she was amply rewarded by the warmth of her reception. Her singing of the aria, "Indian Bell Song (from "Lakme) by Deliles, was dramatic in interpretation and sung as the Indian princess would have sung it to warn her lover in his extremity.

Miss Edgar, the violiniste, was also up to a high standard as an artist. Her selections were such as to give pleasure to any student of the better grades of music. Her technique was excellent, clean and sure at all times, and she played with that abandon which suggested a deep insight into her work.

Mr. Robert Macdonald, the pianist, one of the most modest, unassuming of his kind, was a real artist in every way. He played all the heavy accompaniments of the evening in a quiet, unobtrusive way, besides treating the audience to a group of three pieces which required a real pianist to play. He kept up the standard of excellence set by the other two artists and gave much pleasure to the audience.

LAWN BOWLERS WIN IN PRELIMINARIES

At the Dominion Lawn Bowling tournament which opened at Toronto yesterday upwards of 800 bowlers were in action. In the preliminary round for the Walker Trophy, Mr. R. J. Wray's rink from this city defeated E. T. Lightburn's rink by a score of 16 to 12. The other members of Mr. Wray's rink are Judge Deroche, C. N. Sulman and C. H. Vermilyea.

WIN FOR G. T. R.

At Perth on Saturday the G.T.R. baseball team of this city played an exhibition game with the team of that town. It was a fine game in every respect and our boys won out by a score of 2 to 1. Fred Goyer, pitcher for the winning team, had no less than 22 strike-outs to his credit.

TO-MORROW'S GAME

At the St. Michael's Church Picnic to-morrow afternoon, the G. T. R. baseball team will play an exhibition game with the St. Francis team of Toronto and a good game is assured.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU WASH YOUR HAIR WITH

Don't use prepared shampoos or any thing else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

GREAT EXPONENT OF LIBERTY

Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester, Known as "Father of English House of Commons."

The first great democrat in England was Simon de Montfort, earl of Leicester, who was slain in battle 654 years ago as the leader of the rebellious barons. Simon de Montfort was also the spokesman for the great masses of the people, and he held that it was the duty of the nobles to stand between the people and the monarch as guardians of their liberties, to watch over the exercise of the royal power and prevent its abuse. In the great battle of Lewes in 1264 the barons, under the command of de Montfort, completely defeated the king and the royalist party. In the battle of Evesham on August 4 of the following year the tables were turned, and the democratic earl was killed and the barons sustained a ruinous defeat. During the brief period of Simon's ascendency, however, he had laid the foundation for the house of commons and had inspired in the breasts of the people a devotion to liberty and democracy never to be stamped out by royal oppression. "Every king is ruled by the laws," declared Simon de Montfort, and he held that the "generality" should have a hand in the making of the laws by which they, as well as the monarch, were to be governed.

Simon de Montfort's immortal place in history is indicated by the reverent title historians have given him—"the Father of the English House of Commons."

GREEKS HAD FORM OF TENNIS

That the Game Is an Old One Is Sure, but Its Origin Is Hard to Trace.

Discussion of possible changes in the terminology of tennis naturally includes the name itself; and here there are many possible origins. The game, in one form or another, is very old. The Greeks knocked a ball back and forth and called the exercise "phennis," for which the Roman name was "teniludium." "Phennis" and "tenilludium" were ancestors probably of the similar French sport in the middle ages, and modern tennis may, for that matter, have been named from the province of Tennois, where this game was exceedingly popular. Possibly, but improbably, the name is derived from the French "tenez," in the sense of "get ready." "Deuce" is generally accepted as another form of the French "deux," but "racquets" has several possible sources, the most likely perhaps being the old medieval word "rachette," meaning the palm of the hand, when the game was played like modern handball. Chaucer and Shakespeare both knew the game in England, and, whether or not they played it, had doubtless looked on with satisfaction, as did Queen Elizabeth.

Would Seem to Be His Right.

A suggestion has been made that if the British flag is to be again unfurled above Helgoland, Henry Hedger, verger of the parish at Herne Bay, Kent, Eng., be engaged to raise the emblem. He it was who hauled down the Union Jack August 9, 1890, when the island passed into the control of the German empire. He was then a coast guardsman, and is now a vigorous man of between 60 and 70 years.

Mrs. Hedger recalls her four years on the island chiefly by the birth of their youngest son, who grew up to be one of the contemptibles, who helped to hinder Prussia's march through France, but fell in the attempt. The family left the island the day it was taken out of British control, and while the pier was decorated with flags and bunting prior to the visit of the kaiser. All the British official population left at the same time.

World's Lepers.

The American secretary for the Mission of Lepers estimates that there are not fewer than 2,000,000 lepers in the world, 6,000 of whom have been converted to Christianity. Apropos of this, the Hawaiian legislature has just offered to pension Bro. Joseph Dutton, who succeeded Father Damien at the leper settlement on Molokai. Brother Dutton has not been off the leper island for 33 years and has spent $10,000 of his own money to relieve the poor creatures among whom he lives. But he refused the pension, wishing no reward and expecting to work on to the end in the cause to which he long ago devoted his life. The world has heroes of whom it rarely hears; and it cannot be otherwise than that such self-sacrifice must win a higher reward than governments or the plaudits of peoples can confer.

National Redwood Park.

A movement is on foot in California to turn the redwood forests of that state into a great national memorial park to serve as a monument to the American war heroes. Those behind the proposal feel that there are many elements of deep and appealing interest in the proposition. As many of these giant trees were old when what the world calls civilization was young it is felt that these trees of the ages belong not exclusively to any state nation, or people, but are the heritage of the race and should be preserved for the recreation and pleasure of all the peoples of the earth. An additional argument in favor of establishing the National Redwood park is that its establishment would at once constitute a great and much-needed constuctive work of national conservation.

STRANGE CRITICISMS

By J. E. Middleton

Critics of the Radial Railway projects of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission profess to believe that all light inter-urban freight is likely to be carried in the near future by motor-truck transport. In consequence, they foresee idle roadbeds and empty cars and groan already about the burden of the Bonded Debt.

A curious mixture of optimism and pessimism marks the opinions of such critics. Only a romantic optimism can picture the early triumph of the motor truck over the high-speed light railway. Are the roads of Ontario so excellent? Does any motorist foresee a time when the highways of this Province will even approach the good roads of England? Is it not true that, even with good roads, motor-truck transport will always be hampered by heavy grades? A five-ton truck, however well-built, is a lumbering and expensive conveyance as compared with a railway car running on well-balasted steel over a properly graded right-of-way.

The optimism that prophesies the final perseverance of the motor-truck does not consider the increasing scarcity and cost of gasoline. The heavy capital cost of enough trucks to care for all inter-urban businesses is not taken into account. The difference between 12 miles an hour by truck and 25 miles an hour by electric railway is not regarded.

It is strange to find such confidence in the motor-truck side by side with blue doubt about electric railways. Years ago when the passenger automobile was perfected, people confidently foresaw the abolition of railways. Yet railway traffic was never so great as it is this year. All over this Continent the steam-roads are choked with freight and embarrassed with passengers. Many observers believe that the time has come for the steam roads to accept only through traffic and to allow inter-urban electric lines to handle all local transportation.

In Ontario where electric power is cheap and efficient the future of high-speed light railways is particularly bright. Steam lines face heavy increases in the cost of coal, a diminishing supply at the source, and a scarcity of cars for its transportation across the border.

Surely it is wise to make preparations now for the development and improvement of our transportation facilities, especially since the eminent engineering staff of the Hydro-Electric Commission have thoroughly canvassed the situation and reported in favor of action.

The Commission does not propose any large programme of construction at the present time, preferring to wait until the inflation caused by the War is considerably eased. But it has secured a favorable option from the Federal Government for the purchase of the Toronto and Eastern, the Toronto Suburban and the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto lines.

These roads, formerly subsidiaries of the Canadian Northern Railway, will form important links in the complete radial project already laid-out. They are "going concerns" doing a good business and with some improvement and reorganization are likely to be still more profitable. The Federal Government is willing to take fifty-year Hydro-Electric bonds at 4½ per cent. in payment and will not demand a profit on the turn-over. Furthermore, the people in the districts interested are heartily in favor of pledging their credit for the purchase of the lines, if they are to be administered under public ownership by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

A pessimism which pictures these radial railways as bankrupt and deserted, with the cars rotting on the rusty rails is unique in its gloom.

FROM THE LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE TO THE SEATS OF THE MIGHTY.

Sir Gilbert Parker, Bart., of London, England, a Belleville Old Boy, who has risen to eminence in the world of letters and Old Country politics, is paying one of his periodical visits to Belleville and meeting many old and valued friends of his younger days.

From the little red school houses of the Bay of Quinte district have gone many talented men and women who have attained prominence in world affairs, but it can be said in all truth that of all the geniuses who for a time hid their light of greatness behind the picturesque walls of Quinte country school houses none have since contributed so much real enjoyment and educational entertainment to as many people as Sir Gilbert Parker. To his prolific and inspired pen millions of readers owe many delightful hours ,and a keener realization of Canadian life, "close-ups," as it were, in motion picture parlance, of the heart and mind of the people of the sections where he located his stories.

Particularly in his charming stories of Quebec habitants and grand seigniors did Sir Gilbert Parker uncover a rich mine of picturesque humor in historical fiction which carried his name and fame around the world and created an understanding of Quebec and its people hitherto missing, an understanding fraught with friendly interest and admiration.

Wednesday evening the Masonic fraternity of Belleville will entertain Sir Gilbert Parker, and the evening promises to be one long to be remembered in Masonic circles.

Sir Gilbert Parker's career has been so wide and varied that it could be divided into many parts, each phase a book; condensed in "Who's Who and Why," the outlines are as follows:

A Condensed Biography.

Rt. Hon. Sir Gilbert Parker, 1st Baronet—Created 1915; made Privy Councillor, 1916; Knight created, 1902; D.C.L., Litt. D., LL.D. Born Camden East, Ont., November 23, 1860, son of the late Capt. Joseph and Samantha Jane (Simmons) Parker, United Empire Loyalist descent; grandson of Col. F. Parker, Halifax and Bradford, Yorks and Lismore and Malahide, Ireland. Educated privately and Trinity University, Toronto (D.C.L. hon., 1899); educated for the Church of England, but entered the ranks of literature and journalism in 1886.

Went to Australia, 1885; travelled in all parts of Australia, Tasmania, N.Z., and the South Sea Islands.

Has lived in London, England, since 1889; a corresponding member, R. S. Can., 1898; gazetted honorary-colonel, 1st Kent Royal Garrison Artillery, 1901; F.R.C.I., 1890; a councillor, 1890, a Vice-President, 1912; organized the 1st Imperial Universities Conference, London, England, 1893; was Chairman of the Imperial South African Association from 1903 to 1911; is a member of the Government Central Colonial Committee for War Purposes; elected president, Sir Walter Scott Society of Edinburgh, 1909.

Author "Faust," 1888; "The Vendetta," 1889; "Round the Compass in Australia," 1892; "Pierre and His People," 1892; "Mrs. Falchion," 1893; "The Trespasser," 1893; "The Translation of a Savage," 1894; "The Trail of the Sword," 1894; "A Lover's Diary," 1894; "When Valmond Came to Pontiac," 1895; "An Adventurer of the North," 1895; "The Seats of the Mighty," 1896; "The Pomp of the Lavelleties," 1897; "The Battle of the Strong," 1898; "A Romany of the Snows," 1898; "The Lane that Had No Turning," 1900; "The Right of Way," 1901; "Donovan Pasha," 1902; "Old Quebec, The Fortress of New France," 1903; "A Ladder of Swords," 1904; "The Weavers," 1907; "Northern Lights," 1909; "Cumner's Son," 1910; "The Judgment House," 1912; "You Never Know Your Luck," 1913; "The Money Master," 1915; "The World for Sale," 1916.

Married Amy E., daughter of Ashley VanTine, 1895.

Clubs: Athenaeum, Carlton, Garrick; Conservative. Anglican. Residence, 24 Portman Square, London W., England.

Morgan's Tribute.

Morgan's "Canadian Men and Women of the Time," (1898) has the following:

Horatio Gilbert Parker, novelist, is the son of Joseph Parker, formerly a non-commissioned officer in the Royal Artillery, and afterwards a captain in the Canadian militia. Born at Camden East, Addington, Ont., 1859.

He obtained a teacher's certificate at the Normal School, Ottawa, and was employed in schools at Frankford and Seaforth.

In 1882 he was ordained deacon by Archbishop Lewis (Church of England) after examination in certain specified subjects, and, in the following year, matriculated into Trinity University, Toronto. He remained there for two years, attending lectures in divinity and giving lectures himself in elocution.

For a short time he was curate to the late Rev. Canon Bleasdell, at Trenton, and before or subsequent thereto held a position as Professor in the Deaf and Dumb Institute, Belleville.

About this time he commenced to write for the press, his contributions consisting of Easter hymns and many fine ballads and poems, some of which have been published under the title of "A Lover's Diary." In his review of this book, Richard H. Stoddard says that one must look to the Elizabethan lyrists to find poems so full of luscious life as those by Parker.

Ill health compelled him, in 1886, to go to Australia, where, in addition to being associate editor of the Sydney Evening Herald, he turned playwright. One of his pieces was an adaptation of Goethe's "Faust," which enjoyed an unprecedented run at a local theatre. Another piece was a drama called "The Vendetta." There he also wrote a book called "Around the Compass in Australia." Removing to England, he entered on a regular literary career in that country, at first writing short stories, and afterwards undertaking more ambitious works, a dramatic piece from his pen, "The Wedding Day," being produced in a London theatre. He found acceptance with the public, and has since then issued books in rapid succession.

By his work, "Pierre and His People" (1892) he earned the title of "the literary discoverer o fthe Canadian Northwest." He subsequently continued these sketches in the sequel entitled "An Adventurer of the North," with the last story of which ends the career of Pierre.

CRISP COMMENT

Red Russia would not be in a position to threaten the peace of Europe were it not for the underground assistance of Yellow Germany.

Mackenzie King poses as the Good Samaritan and likens Premier Meighen to the Priest and the Levite, who passed by on the other side. Wasn't it Mackenzie King who passed by on the other side at the call of the Rockfeller Foundation?

The hot weather brought out all the motor cars in commission on Sunday and family parties were conspicuous along the country roads seeking cool spots for relief from the oppressive heat. Blow-outs were numerous and tempers severely tried by the vicissitudes of motoring under torrid conditions.

That was a Sterling speech made by Premier Meighen at Stirling, remarks the Guelph Herald, while the Mail and Empire heads an editorial comment with "A speech that is golden." Quite so, and it may be remarked in passing that there is a sound of tinkling cymbals and sounding brass from the opposition camp.

A Ford motor car was observed one night recently trying to penetrate the labyrinth passages of the excavations on East Bridge Street. It is said that a Ford can go anywhere, but the driver had to give it up finally as a bad job, and it was all he could do to back the car out of the subterranean maze into which it had unwittingly stumbled.

Two convicts with only a short time remaining to serve of their sentences escaped from the Kingston penitentiary on Saturday, commandeering the Warden's automobile for their getaway. Their escape was made easy from the fact that both were "trusties," enjoying a considerable measure of liberty. In view of the fact that their terms had nearly expired and the almost certain probability of their recapture, it is difficult to imagine why they made the attempt unless their minds were affected by the prevailing heat. However, liberty is sweet at any time, and the opportunity may have seemed to them too good to pass up.

OTHER VIEWS

East and West

A Western paper, the Vancouver Sun does a little boasting because, it says, most of the parliamentary leaders at Ottawa are from the Western provinces. "A Manitoba member," it says, "is premier and leads the House of Commons. The Government leader in the Senate is from Alberta. A British Columbia senator leads the Opposition in his chamber, while a member from Manitoba leads the Farmer Party in the Commons. This leaves only Mr. Mackenzie King for all the effete East." All very fine, but whence did the West obtain all these four leaders? One of them, Senator Bostock, went to British Columbia from England; the other three—Premier Meighen, Sir James Lougheed, and Hon. T. A. Crerar, went to the West from Eastern Canada . The "effete East" seems to be a fruitful source of leadership supply after all.

German Taxes Low

(Halifax Herald)

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer Austen Chamberlain, furnishes comparative figures of taxation in the different countries of Europe which have led to a very natural demand in Britain for a heavy increase in the rate of taxation in Germany. The Government of the last mentioned country demands a revision of the terms of the treaty of Versailles fixing the indemnities it is to pay to the Allies, on the ground that it cannot afford to comply with the financial terms of the treaty. The very reasonable reply of Great Britain is that the payment would be easy enough if a proper tax was imposed for the raising of the required sums—such a tax for instance as is at present being paid by the British people. At existing rates of exchange, British taxpayers are paying at the rate of £22 per head per annum, while the Germans pay about £3.15 per head. As a matter of interest, though the figures do not affect the German rate, it may be said that Mr. Chamberlain has shown that the tax per capita paid in the United States is £12.7, ($49.41) in France, £9.115 (450 francs) and in Italy £2.25. It is not to be wondered at that there should be a growing storm of indignation in England over the fact that while Britain, one of the victorious powers is called upon to pay £22 per capita in taxes, Germany should seek to evade payment of the war indemnity, on the ground of inability of the Government to provide the funds, although she is letting her own people off paying more than one-seventh of the taxation paid in England, for the purpose, among other things, of meeting the obligations contracted by her in consequence of the war for which Germany was alone responsible.

THE POET'S CORNER

A LITTLE RED ROAD

There's a little white road that leads down to the sea,
Where a boat on the shingle lies waiting for me,
Where the salt wind goes whistling through many a cave,
And the young seagull rocks on the crest of the wave.
Little road you are sweeter than sunlight on spray,
For your white finger beckons me:
"Out and away!"

There's a little white road that leads up from the sea
To the cot on the hill where a light shines for me,
Where my welcome is sure as the turn of the tide,
And the love that's within shuts all sorrow outside.
Little road, you are fairer than moonlight on foam,
For your winding white ribbon says,
"Follow me home!"

A LAUGH OR TWO

Lucky is the man who loses his reputation—if it is bad.

Talk is cheap except when it is over a long distance telephone.

Lovers like to tell about what they think of each other, and so do some married people.

Never

"What's his chief characteristic?" asked the policeman of the old lady, who was trying to describe the man who had robbed her.

"A large Roman nose," said the lady.

"Oh," replied the constable. "Then it's no use trying to look for him. A nose like that never turns up."

Nothing Magical About It

James—I once saw a trunk that was lifted in the air without hands, and which could be rolled up.

John—Did it belong to a magician?

James—No; to an elephant.

Sorry He Spoke

Hub—A woman is only as old as she looks.

Wife—Well, I feel as old as this hat looks.

Job For Papa

"Hear me, dearest," implored the young man, "I'm all on fire."

"Well," replied the sweet girl, "I'll call papa to put you out."

Reserved Seats

The Armorous One—Do you ever peep through the keyhole when I am sitting in there with your sister?

Small Brother (wtih a burst of candor)—Sometimes when mother isn't there.

"We salesmen who make our calls regardless of roads or weather, realize fully the importance of good fuel and good lubricants—and we know that we can get Imperial Polarine and Imperial Premier Gasoline everywhere and that if we use these products exclusively we may forget more than half the usual motor troubles."

365 Days a Year Service

ALL motorists, especially those who use their cars for business purposes, must have steady service. They soon learn that correct lubrication is vitally important to uninterrupted service and that Imperial Polarine gives adequate thorough lubrication.

Imperial Polarine keeps the engine running smoothly and quietly by establishing and maintaining a perfect piston-to-cylinder seal, which holds all the power of the fuel charge behind the piston.

Imperial Polarine thoroughly lubricates and cushions every rubbing surface with a wear-resisting oil film. When used exclusively breakdowns are infrequent, depreciation is low, fuel costs reduced.

One of the three grades described below is specially suited to your motor. Look for the Imperial Polarine Chart of Recommendations where you buy your oil and learn which grade to use.

Imperial Polarine is sold in one and four-gallon sealed cans, steel 12½-gallon kegs, steel half-barrels and barrels, by dealers everywhere.

BANDITS IN KINGSTON

Three Kingston women were held up by armed and masked men in City Park at 5.30 Monday morning while on their way to the steamer Kingston. The two bandits were frightened away by approaching autos.

A VICTIM OF DOPE

Yesterday afternoon on a charge of vagrancy, a man who gave his name as John Forman was arrested here. He was acting in a rather peculiar manner and upon investigation it was ascertained he is a dope fiend. After his arrest he pleaded for dope, stating that if he did not get it he would go mad. A remand for a week was granted by the magistrate. Forman is 42 years of age and claims South Africa as the place of his birth. He also claims to have visited several parts of the world.

ST. MICHAEL'S PICNIC

Those in charge of St. Michael's Picnic this year which is being held next Wednesday in Holton's Grove, are leaving nothing undone to make the day a big one. The baseball game which will be the feature of the afternoon is called for 3.30 p.m., when the St. Francis team of the Western City League Toronto will meet the local G. T. R. nine. The St. Francis team of Toronto will come here strong for a win. They play in the same league as the Hillcrests who are led by "Cannon Ball Ed. Scott," and are running second to Hillcrests. Hillcrests have lost to them but the good work of Scott, whom they have been unable to beat has kept them on top. Wednesday will tell if Goyer can hold this team in check as well as the famous Scott. The locals will be at full strength, so the fans can rest assured it will be a game from start to finish. In addition to the ball game there are other field sports with good prizes for the events. There will be races for children and everybody. Another feature of the picnic this year which has not been at their big annual picnics on previous occasions is dancing in the spacious new pavilion which has been erected. The new hardwood floor will get its initiation. The meals, dinner and supper will be served on the grounds as usual at a moderate price. It is hoped that the committee's undertaking will be another glaring success as has proved the case at Picnics held other years.

THE JEWISH PEOPLE.

Only 15,430,000 Altogether All Over the World.

The population of the earth just before the war, according to statistical authorities, was 1,649,000,000; and though the loss of life in the war has been very great, the American Israelite is inclined to think that this has been offset by the natural increase. So, when it learns that David Trietsch, the Jewish statistician, has estimated the present number of Jews in the world to be 15,430,000, it observes that "the percentage of Jews to the world's population is approximately nine-tenths of one per cent. It would seem that, all things considered, they are very much heard from." According to the figures presented by the Cincinnati weekly, the Hebrew population of the world is distributed as follows:

Poland	3,300,000
Ukraine	3,300,000
United States	3,100,000
Russia (including Siberia)	900,000
Roumania	650,000
Germany	540,000

Lithuania	250,000
Jugo-Slavia	200,000
Africa (excluding Morocco, Tunis, and Algeria)	170,000
France	150,000
Algeria and Tunis	150,000
Arabia	130,000
Greece	120,000
Holland	110,000
Morocco	110,000
Argentina	100,000
Canada	100,000
Turkey	100,000
Palestine	100,000
Australasia	20,000
European countries (not separately enumerated)	200,000
Asiatic countries (not separately enumerated)	100,000
American countries (not separately enumerated)	30,000

Where Men Are Veiled.

We have gone far along the road of feminine emancipation, but we have still a long way to go before we overtake the stage reached by the wild Tuaregs of the Tripoli desert, says Answers. Among the Tuaregs woman's sway is absolute. She does not rule by insidious wheedling, but by outright command, and, though our own women may have the men twisted round their little fingers, the Tuareg ladies can only be said to have them well under their heel.

Among the Tuaregs the woman shows her face to all the world; it is the men who go coyly veiled. Descent is traced entirely through the feminine line, and what little teaching is given to the young is given by the women.

In order to obtain a wife a man has to pay a price that, in view of the Tuareg standard of wealth, is nothing less than sheer profiteering.

Indeed, the ladies have put on the screw so tightly that the young man who keeps to the narrow path of honesty and pursues the only peaceful occupations known to the tribe—camel-rearing, and carrying goods for the Arab traders—will have, perforce, to remain a bachelor, as these occupations will never yield him a sufficient surplus to provide him with his marriage portion.

Consequently, the young bloods are forced to join the rhazzlies, or robbing raids, which have destroyed the trans-Saharan trade, in order that they may appease the rapacity of their lady loves. The ladies are quite aware as to the source of the dowries their husbands bring, and, indeed, not infrequently, it is "the women in the case" who decide upon the right amount and place for the raids.

The tribute brought by the adoring husband becomes the absolute property of the wife, and the stick he carries and the wooden box in which he puts what his wife gives him are all the personal property the male Tuareg possesses, and all he retains, should the lady divorce him.

World's Largest Telescope.

The largest telescope in the world has just been built at the Mount Wilson Observatory in California, at a point nearly 6,000 feet above sea level, says Tit Bits.

It is a quarter of a million times more powerful than the human eye, and will enable astronomers to see a thousand million new stars. They hope, with its help, to find out the limits of the universe.

This telescope is a permanent one for solar research. It is fixed in a tower 164 feet high, and has an outer tower as a protection against wind vibration.

The tube of the telescope has triple walls with air spaces between to prevent heating. The reflecting mirror and the second mirror in the dome are silvered on the front surface, and are one foot thick.

There are three lenses. The largest, at the top, is a 12-in. objective of 150 feet, focal length, giving a sun image nearly 17 inches in diameter. The three lenses are mounted on brackets that are swung out of the way when not in use. The movements and adjustments are effected by electric motors controlled by the observer. An electric lift facilitates communication with the summit of the tower.

There are photographic dark rooms where plates are developed, and there is a midnight dining room attached to the structure for the convenience of astronomers.

She Was Waiting, Too.

ADRIANOPLE.

City Is Beautiful Even in Decadence.

The decadence of the two centuries, present political and economic disintegration, wars without end, and an uncertain future, have been unable to destroy the ineffable charm the Turks originally gave to Adrianople, a city of eighty odd thousand souls. Adrianople is still a holy city in faith and in appearance. Romance still abides there.

"The Orient is the only place left to Europe where cities seen at close range are beautiful," remarked Jules Sebotin, a French aviator, while visiting the most beautiful of all mosques, Sinan's masterpiece in Adrianople, the mosque of a thousand windows but one, erected at the order of Sultan Selim II., in the sixteenth century.

The first impression of the city had been one of infinite beauty. Arriving from across the lofty Balkans in an airplane, the city had been seen with a rush, a place of spires and slate domes and red roofs, planted at the intersection of three rivers. It had been a welcomed sight. It had come at the end of a four hours' ride, and it was journey's end to a tired aviator.

Seen from aloft, the city, surrounded by poplars at its outer rim, its house gardens within the city showing green vines and flowers, its outlying fields bare, aroused memories of Mardin on the mountains, Diarbekr by the Tigris and hosts of other Turkish cities, always sleeping in beauty, whether visited by sunshine or moonlight.

The longer the stay in Adrianople, the more the charm of this beauty grows, a charm that is as great afoot as aloft.

Adrianople is a city that has the tone of country friendship about it, not unlike a county seat of the south. The centre of the agricultural exchange business of Eastern and Western Thrace, it is frequented by peasants and traders of Turkish, Greek, Bulgarian, Jewish and Armenian nationalities. There is record of but one American ever having done business in the city, and he came from Paris and bought up all the brooms.

While no day knows what the next may bring forth in the way of political strife and crime, to-day the city preserves this tone of friendship and order. Strangers as they go along the streets, or visit the shops, are treated with kindly concern. The Turkish officers salute courteously and there is no glint of hostility in the eyes of the Turkish soldiers carrying their new rifles, recently distributed them by Col. Diefer Tayar Bey. His martial law is administered with gentleness, though there is no doubt that the silken glove hides the mailed fist.

The decadence of Adrianople goes at a dignified pace. There is little or none of the seething squalor and dirt and noise and poverty of Constantinople. There is none of the clamor of Constantinople's street cars and automobiles. There are a few ragged beggar children who besiege the stranger, but for the most part Adrianople endures its shabby gentility with pride and calm. Here there are none of the fallen houses and dusty streets which characterize the majority of the cities of Asia Minor.

Any day the city may surprise the world by tremendous massacre, but meanwhile its life goes on as smoothly as the flow of the rivers.

Undoubtedly the life of Adrianople is fraught with that deep mystery which seems to cling inevitably to the sinful, idle, sleepy Orient, but of this mystery the stranger sees only the charm.

Prayers are called from the minarets, as of old; also the old and new bazaars do a slender business in selling American and European calicoes and homespun clothes and Turkish silver mounted pipes and cigarette holders, rugs and junk to passing peasant customers, or else, when these are lacking they swap with each other after the happy manner of all the Orient.

Decadence seems to have heightened the beauty of the majestic old mosque of Sultan Bayzid. The windows are broken in, the locks are rusted in the doors, the grass is growing up between the flagstones, the fountain in the court no longer splashes its waters in the sunshine and the interior of the mosque itself is slowly deteriorating. Few worshippers come here but on the drowsy Friday afternoons, the Mussulman's day of worship, come a devoted band of musicians and singers. The aviator stumbled upon this group as he turned to go away, one of the red fezed bands came and saluted with the lovable simplicity of the Turk, and said, "Allah esmarladik" ("May God abide with you.")

Iron Clothes With Feet.

In Cairo men employed in the native tailoring establishments iron clothes with their feet. Except for the long handle, the irons are shaped like an ordinary flat-iron, but are larger. A solid block of wood rests on the top of the iron, and on this the men place one foot, guiding the iron in the desired direction by means of the handle. For the sake of convenience, ironing-boards are raised only a few inches from the ground, and, however strange the method may seem, the work is done well and expeditiously.

An Ingenious Machine.

A machine has been built which will shape masts up to 100 feet in length and three feet in diameter. The timber is set up in the machine and turned at a speed of fifty revolutions a minute, and it is shaped by a cutter head which is electrically driven at the rate of 700 revolutions a minute.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 18, 1920.

Canada's 1920 Wheat Crop 262,338,000 Bushels

INCREASE OF 70,000,000 BUSHELS OVER LAST YEAR'S HARVEST—OAT CROP INCREASED — DRY PERIOD HAS CAUSED DETERIORATION IN SPRING WHEAT CONDITION.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—Canada's 1920 wheat crop is estimated by officials of the Agricultural Department at 262,338,000 bushels, as compared with the final estimate of 193,260,000 bushels last year. The oat crop is expected to go to 496,966,000 bushels, as compared with 394,387,000 bushels in 1919. Barley also shows a substantial increase, the figures being 63,438,500 bushels as against 56,389,400 bushels last year.

These preliminary estimates are based on the actual condition of the crops of July 31. Daily reports to the department have been such that no appreciable change in the estimate is expected.

The total yield of hay and clover is estimated at 12,853,900 tons, from 10,409,150 acres, an average of 1.20 tons per acre, as compared with last year's record total of 16,348,000 tons. Of alfalfa the total estimate is 388,700 tons for the first cutting, as compared with last year's final total of 494,200 tons.

Flax seed is nearly doubled, the estimate being 10,567,000 bushels, as compared with 5,472,800 bushels last year.

The preliminary estimate for fall wheat is 17,000,000 bushels, as against 16,000,000 last year.

The preliminary estimate of the yield per acre of fall wheat for all Canada is 23¼ bushels, as compared with 23¾ bushels last year, with 22½ bushels the decimal average for the period 1910-19. The yield is therefore three-quarters of a bushel over the average. The harvested area this year will be 740,200 acres, against 672,793 acres last year, and the total yield in round numbers is 17,000,000 bushels against 16,000,000 last year.

Lloyd George May Come To Canada

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—A special despatch from Washington printed in the World today declares that Premier Lloyd George is to discuss the Anglo-Japanese treaty with the Premiers of the British Dominions at a conference to be held in Vancouver this autumn. The World says Premier Lloyd George will cross the Atlantic in October to meet the Premiers of all the British dominions on the Pacific for a conference on the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese relations. During his stay in Canada Lloyd George will be invited to Washington.

THE LIBERAL JONAH.

Premier Meighen goes to the heart of a subject with unerring aim. The next political battle in Canada, he says, will be fought on the tariff issue.

The heterogenous groups opposing the government, whether Liberals, Farmers, or merely "unresters," agree on only one point, namely, a tearing down of the tariff.

The Liberals may only profess Free Trade in an academic way and never intend to put their pledges into effect, but the Liberals can never hope to form a government except by a coalition with the Farmers' party, which is virile and aggressive.

If there is to be any swallowing, it will be the Liberal Jonah who will find himself in the belly of the agrarian whale.

The free traders being sincere, will have their way in any such coalition, and the overthrow of the Meighen government, therefore, means a reversal of the fiscal policy under which Canada has flourished during the past forty years.

Should there be such a reversal of policy?

Mr. Meighen calls attention to the fact that our imports from the United States amount to $800,000,000 per annum, while our exports to that country do not amount to $500,000,000. There is a deficit of $300,000,000 which we have to make up by the purchase of United States currency, and our dollar has been beaten down to 85c. by the American financiers.

To thrown down the barriers we now have against American importations would be to flood the Canadian market with American goods. It would mean that Canadian industries would have to seek new homes in the United States.—Toronto World.

Canadian Wins At Olympic

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

ANTWERP, Aug. 18.—Earl Thompson, of Prince Albert, Sask., representing Canada in the Olympic games, today won the final heat of the 110 metres hurdles, hanging up a new world's record of 1.44. H. E. Barron, Philadelphia, was second, and F. S. Murray, New York, third.

Alleged Bribery In Liquor Case

OSHAWA, Aug. 18.—One of Oshawa's most sensational Police Court cases was sent up to the next court of competent jurisdiction, to be held in Whitby, from the local Police Court yesterday afternoon after a four hours' bearing. Recently Tanis Bill was sentenced to 30 days in the Whitby County Jail or until he disclosed the name of the man from whom he got the liquor that caused him to be intoxicated. It appears that after a day in jail he wished to get out, and so decided to tell where he got the whiskey.

He claims that he got the fluid from Iwan Sibulak, of the base line, and, it being noised abroad that he wanted to tell, Sam Sibulak, Iwan's son, is said to have given Tanis Bill's brother-in-law, Bartik Shubert, a cheque for $150 to be given to Bill, evidently to keep him quiet as to where he got the liquor. In court Bill said that he thought he was paid to keep quiet in order that Iwan Sibulak would not be brought into court and fined for selling liquor.

Police Court Interpreter John Rainish is also alleged to be mixed up in the case, he having it is claimed, been active in the affair, and taking $25 of the $150 for his work. The charge, which is one that they "did unlawfully and wilfully attempt to obstruct, pervert or defeat the cause of justice" is laid against Sam Sibulak and John Rainish. The case has been hanging fire for some weeks, but adjourned at each court; while evidence was taken from one witness one morning, two more were heard all day Friday and the end of the case heard yesterday afternoon.

MAY HELP SOLVE THE FARMERS' LABOR PROBLEM

Tractors and labor-saving devices for the farm will form a very important and timely part of the display of manufacturers at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. Unusual efforts have been put forth to make the farm machinery exhibits more extensive and representative than ever before and there is every reason to believe that the progressive farmer will find here the things that he most needs to solve his perplexing labor problems. Wonderful advances have been made mechanically along this line and not the least important are the scores of machines and devices designed to lighten the work of the woman on the farm and make her lot less burdensome. The farm-wife will be delighted with the progress made in lines of endeavor of peculiar interest to her, while the city woman will also discover numerous simple contrivances to make housework lighter and more enjoyable.

Fleeing Convicts Stopped At Yarker

Pursuers Passed Convicts While Latter Were Getting Gasoline

YARKER, Aug. 18.—The convicts' escape from penitentiary is the chief topic here today. The pursuing cars tore through the village at a terrific pace. The first car of guards was only a few minutes behind the convicts and had just entered the village when a tire burst. Then the second car of guards arrived and after receiving directions, took up the chase and passed the fleeing convicts on the road, all searching the shore for the convicts were in the yard of Wm. Jackson getting gas, and were hidden from view of the road.

The guards went on down by Varty Lake, then doubling back, they went down Emberley's Lane and were searching the shore fo rthe convicts when Mr. Jackson ran to them and put them on the right trail. Mr. Jackson was pressed into service by the guards and when they reached the top of Kirckley's Hill they saw the dust of the convicts' car. It was their intention to wing the fleeing car, but just as they were getting into position to do so up went a tire and the convicts got away to another fresh start.

H. A. Baker, who had been telephoned to, went out and threw a rail on the road. This action was not noticed by the convicts who undertook to run him down. Had they struck him going at such a terrific pace there would have been no H. A. Baker. The rail was no barrier to the convicts who went on to Fifth Lake, abandoned the car and took the C.P.R. tracks west.

When the first car broke down in Yarker the guards pressed the car of Hartley Deare into service and he went with them hatless and coatless as far as Tamworth.

Big Market For Canadian Fruit

Canadian Apples Will Be in Great Demand Overseas.

G. C. Creelman, Agent-General for Ontario in London, England, writes The Intelligencer as follows, under date of August 3:

I have just been to Covent Garden Market and have interviewed some of the big fruit dealers there. They say that this country will have to rely upon imported fruit next winter and spring. This means that there will be a good market here for all kinds of orchard products this fall. In England only about one apple tree in ten has a crop of any kind, and what little there is is of a very inferior grade. The information given out from the Government offices is that five per cent. of last year's crop is a fair estimate.

The reports from France are for a fair crop of apples, but recent severe storms have badly injured the prospects in some sections. Holland and Belgium expect 50 per cent. crop; Portugal and Spain well below the average.

The maximum fixed price in Great Britain for some time has been 9d. (18c.) a pound retail. Today this has been lifted and there will be no control of prices of apples until the 15th of November. On that date 10d. (20c.) a pound will be the fixed price for some time.

The Government has also fixed the maximum price which British buyers may pay for Ontario apples, namely:

Sixty-eight shillings ($16.32) per barrel of not less than 120 pounds.

Twenty-one shillings and sixpence ($5.16) per box of not less than 37 pounds.

Twenty-three shillings and sixpence ($5.64) per box of not less than 40 pounds.

Sixty shillings ($14.40) per hundred weight for all other packages.

I would advise that farmers secure their barrels, boxes, etc., now, and get ready for the fall picking and packing.

The buyers should also see that no orchards are overlooked and that no fruit is allowed to rot on the ground.

It is with the hope of markets like this that the Ontario fruit grower planted, and has since cared for his orchard. It will be a pity if he does not reap the benefit of it now. The people of Britain are hungry for apples, and are willing and able to pay for them.

It is not necessary to warn the shippers of the scarcity of space on ocean vessels. The situation is improving, but application must still be made early for accommodation at the Atlantic seaboard."

Mighty Sweep Has Been Checked

Polish Counter-Offensive Proves Successful at Many Points

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The Poles at Warsaw are on the edge, it seemed today of duplicating the first battle of the Marne, in which Paris and France were saved early in September, 1914.

Late reports tell of fighting at many points, frequently with bayonets. At points here and there there have been Russian successes, but the big success has gone with the Poles, who seem to have definitely checked the mighty sweep of the Bolshevist armies.

Pulp Mill Deal Closed in Quebec

QUEBEC, Aug. 18.—One of the biggest pulp and paper transactions effected in the province of Quebec for some time was brought to a close here when the ownership of the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company passed to English companies, of which Viscount Northcliffe and Viscount Rothermore are included.

The actual sum involved in the transaction is not known, but that it reaches several million dollars is not improbable.

The plant of the Gulf Pulp and Paper Company is at Clarke City, Seven Islands.

As soon as the deal was put through, a new board of directors was selected, consisting of Frank W. Clarke, of Quebec, J. Alex. Cameron of Montreal, and Kenneth K. MacKenzie of New York.

Jnmped Into River To Escape Flames

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 18.—Nine persons, including four children, narrowly escaped death last night when an explosion occured in the motor boat Damfino, owned by Alvin Markle, a summer resident of Imperial Island, west of here. Shortly after the boat left the Markle dock on her way to Alexandria Bay, it was nearly enveloped in flames and six of the party donned life preservers and jumped into the river. Mary and William Bannard, grandchildren of Mr. Markle, aged about five years, with their nurse, who was unable to adjust the life preservers, were rescued by Alvin Markle, jun., who swam to the burning boat.

The craft is a total loss. None was injured, except Arthur Hierble, chauffeur, who suffered slight burns.

Motor Bandits Terrify Guelph

GUELPH, Aug. 18.—Since the robbing of Savage's jewelry store and repeated attempts to break into several private residences, this city, and especially one portion of it, is greatly excited and a number of men are cooperating with the police in search of a mysterious auto which is declared to be the means of locomotion of the would-be thieves.

Child Killed In Picton Saw Mill

PICTON, Aug. 18.—The four-year-old son of Mr. George Hiderman was killed at Bell Bros. mill by a piece of timber flying from the saw and striking him on the head. Some portion of the machinery broke, which caused the timber to clog. The boy lived only a short time.

Farmer Hung Himself in Barn

PICTON, Aug. 18.—Joseph Rosseau, a farmer living at Milford, eight miles from here, was found hanging in his barn by members of his family. Mr. Rosseau had been complaining of his health for some time past. He attended to his usual duties of milking on arising and returned to the house as usual. He returned to the barn and his absence from breakfast caused members to search and they found the lifeless body hanging from a beam. Mr. Rosseau was about sixty-three years of age.

Polish Counter-Offensive Driving Russians Back

DANZIG CORRIDOR CLEARED OF RUSSIAN TROOPS—POLISH FORCES STILL DRIVING EASTWARD — MUNITION SHIPS HELD UP AT DANZIG—FRENCH GOVERNMENT PROTESTS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—The Polish counter-offensive, with Thorn as its base, has successfully cleared the Danzig corridor of Russian troops, according to a report received from the French mission in Poland today. Polish forces are still driving eastward, the report says.

MUNITION SHIPS HALTED.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—A despatch from Danzig says it is reported that Sir Reginald Tower, High Commissioner at Danzig, under the League of Nations, has issued an order that no ships with munitions for Poland shall be permitted to enter Danzig. Should such a ship arrive he will submit the whole matter to the Council of Ambassadors. The despatch adds that one ship from Antwerp already has been ordered to remain at sea.

Explains 5-Hour Day for Enginemen

A. J. Hills, of C.N.R., Issues Statement Re Evidence Before Board

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—The following statement has been handed out by Mr. A. J. Hills, assistant to the president of the Canadian National Railways, with the purpose of removing some misapprehension regarding his evidence before the Railway Board at Ottawa in the matter of the basic five hour day for enginemen.

The Canadian Northern Railway system's exhibit showed a comparative wage rate of various classes of employes and to show the full percentage increase, the reduction in the length of the basic day was noted.

The chief commissioner's question was with reference to this note and was:

"I should like to know if I correctly interpret one statement. Is it a fact that passenger trainmen are only working five hours a day?"

Passenger Enginemen

Mr. Hills' answer was:

"Passenger enginemen in the recent schedules, base their day's work on a five hour day."

"This answer is correct. Note the expression is base their day's work as compared with other employes—with some exceptions—has been 100 miles, the pay per hundred miles was used in preparing this data for the comparative table for such employes as have a speed basis of pay of twenty miles an hour. This explains the note which raised the chief commissioner's question. It was explained later on in the evidence that trainmen in passenger service have a speed basis of twenty miles per hour but that their day's work is based on 150 miles, and that they also have a daily and monthly minimum and a mileage rate. They receive overtime when this speed of twenty miles is not maintained. This overtime is generally paid at regular rates, but on some roads it is paid at one-eighth of the daily rate which is slightly less than the twenty mile per hour basis.

On branch runs the same general rules apply, except that under what is known as the "Eight within ten rule" overtime is paid after eight hours' work or after ten hours spread of duty.

Passenger engineers as previously stated, base their day's work on a five hour day, that is their minimum which is guaranteed, or 100 miles, but, of course, if their run requires a greater length of service they perform it. Generally speaking, they are paid at the mileage rate within some initial and final terminal delay. Overtime is paid pro rata when the speed basis of twenty miles an hour is not maintained.

Freight Service

It is only in slow freight service that train and enginemen get paid over time on a time and a half basis. In the memoranda with reference to this condition it was recognized that "those freight train employes who are habitually employed in freight service which does not rise above, and generally falls below a speed basis of 12½ miles per hour, do not receive a compensation which is relatively sufficient as compared with train service employes in freight service whose trains habitually make a speed of not less than 12½ miles an hour, with a general tendency to make a higher basis, or as compared with employes in passenger train services." It was therefore ordered that overtime in such service be paid at the rate of time and one-half, or three-sixteenths of the daily rate. This means that if a freight crew fail to make the basic 100 mile run in eight hours (8x12½ equals 100) and made it in nine hours they would be paid for the extra hour at three-sixteenths of the daily rate. These men are regarded as having an eight hour day, but this is only the basis of computing overtime for the standard of 100 mile run.

It should be noted that if a freight crew made a 175 mile run at an average speed of 15 miles an hour, they, having maintained a speed basis of over 12½ miles an hour would not earn any overtime, although on duty for the run eleven hours and forty minutes.

Basis For Computing

It is therefore seen that the matter is a complicated one and that the basic five or eight hour day does not prevent longer hours being put in but merely forms a basis for computing the day's work.

The conditions referred to above are not affected by the recent U.S. R.R. Board's award which merely provides flat increases of pay, varying for different groups.

Excepting the time and a half provision in slow freight service these present working conditions as represented generaly above have not been materially affected by the McAdoo award and supplements. The effect of these has been towards standardization of working conditions as between the various lines, representing something like the avrage or normal working conditions. As Mr. Hills stated in his evidence the Canadian Northern engineers preferred to retain some of their conditions as against the acceptance of the standard conditions and time and a half for overtime in slow freight service and an agreement was reached with them on this point.

Cares for Looks in Spite of Fame

Miss Laura Bomwell Asks for Her Powder Puff After Making World's Record.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—What is fame and a world's record in aviation when you have a shiney nose?

Nothing at all. This is the belief of Miss Laura Bomwell, who, after looping the loop 87 times and setting a new world's record for a woman, nonchalantly leaned out of the fuselage of her biplane and begged one of her mechanics to "please hand her a powder puff." The occasion of the flight was the dedication of the new Curtiss field at Hazelhurst, formerly the training field for army aviators.

The nearest record is twenty-five times, established by a French woman. Ruth Law held the American record of twenty-four times.

When told she had looped 87 times, she ramarked, "My goodness, you are all wrong on the number. I counted over 100 myself." When it was explained to her that the first loops were invisible from the ground, she took it in good spirit. "Oh well, 87 is enough, I guess."

Miss Bomwell is the first woman to receive an aviator's license. She learned to fly after the war was over.

WHITE LEAD SUBSTITUTE

The discovery of a valuable paint pigment near Bancroft district recently, by Mr. Roy Marks, of Oshawa and Toronto, is reported. The material is known as crystaline dolomite, and this is stated to be in all probability the first deposit that has been found in Canada.

PAINFULLY INJURED

Eric Clapperton, aged 13 years of Baltimore, Northumberland County, was the victim of a painful accident. He was coasting down Cockburn's hill on his bicycle, when an automobile was coming in the opposite direction. Citizens who saw his peril called to him to look out for the car, but the boy becoming confused coasted right into the approaching motor, and was terribly injured. His right thigh was broken and his knee cap smashed. The middle finger of the right hand was so badly smashed that it had to be amputated up to the palm and he had his nose broken.

CADETS CAMP AT PETERBORO

Arrangements have been completed for the cadets camp in the fair grounds at Peterboro. Lieut.-Col. G. H. Gillespie, officer commanding the cadet corps, M.D. No. 3, has been busily engaged in that part of the district and the reports from the different school instructors are found to be so encouraging that the camp is now assured. He announced today that it would be opened on Thursday, Aug. 26th. It is the intention to plan the summer camps in future that the local camps as carried out this year may become permanent, and Kingston will have its cadet camp next summer without fail.

IMPROVE BARRACKS

The first fruits of the visit of the Hon. Mr. Guthrie to Kingston on Monday last is part of an appropriation for the improvement of the local military buildings. Tete Dupont Barracks and the old riding school on Place D'Armes will be the first to receive attention, after which the huts at Barriefield now used by the permanent machine gun brigade will be put in condition to properly house the brigade. For some time there has been talk of the machine gunners going to Hamilton, but it is now pretty well decided that Kingston will retain the P.M.G.B., and everything will be done to make their quarters comfortable.

HASTINGS MAN SHOWS EXAMPLE

Within a few months of being a centenarian, and handicapped by having only one arm, the other having been lost during a railroad accident several years ago, Mr. Lockhardt, who resides near Hastings, stands a living example of what may be accomplished by a man who wants to see his country through a difficult situation. During the past summer in order to help out production he has raised a four-acre field of ensilage corn, half an acre of potatoes, a similar amount of turnips and a good family garden, keeping each well hoed. The home surroundings would be an eye opener to many an 8 hour advocate and probably encourage many to throw off their coats after hours to help speed up production.

STORY OF CARPENTIER

BOXER IS THE IDOL OF FRENCH PEOPLE

Began Life as a Pit Boy and Is Now a Champion—Unlike the Pugilists of the United States, He "Did His Bit" Nobly During the Years of the Great War.

IN "From Pit Boy to Champion Boxer," the biography of Georges Carpentier, written by Mr. F. Hurdman-Lucas, we learn that the French fighter was born in what his enthusiastic Boswell calls the "obscure mining town of Lens" in the year 1894, and is now something short of 26 years old. As a writer we consider Mr. Hurdman-Lucas to be a clever boxer or something, but at least he appears to have first-hand knowledge of what he tries to write about. He was the first Englishman to recognize that Carpentier was something out of the common, and was the timekeeper in the boy's first important match in Paris. He mentions that Georges' parents were of the peasant class, and that the boy was sent to work in the mines when he was 12 years old. He has also the theory that the lad's physical prowess was derived from his grandfather, who was a man of unusual strength and above the ordinary stature, while his parents appear to have been nothing out of the common.

Francois Descamps, who later was to win fame and fortune as Carpentier's manager, had recently opened a boxing and athletic academy in the town, and here the lad used to resort on every opportunity. Though of frail build he was unusually symmetrical and Descamps, a good judge, thought the lad might make a gymnast. He gave him some acrobatic lessons but soon perceived that he had a natural bent for boxing. He had not only the grace and speed, but he had the fighting instinct. The quickness with which he came to skillfully use the "mufflers," which Mr. Lucas has apparently nicknamed the boxing gloves, delighted Descamps, and presently he arranged with Georges' parents that the boy should quit the mine and become a pugilist. Georges was then earning five francs a week which he turned over to his mother and Descamps agreed to pay her the same amount. So he became Georges' manager, and mentor, and for all practical purposes his father.

Descamps appears to have had some slight ring experience, but perhaps not so slight as to justify one to speak slightingly of it in his presence. At any rate he was qualified to teach the boy. Mr. Hurdman-Lucas holds the Aristotelian theory that all knowledge is born in one, and that Georges merely needed to have his lore on the subject "drawed out," as he says. His ring debut was made when he was 13 years old and weighed less than 100 pounds. His victim was an alleged pugilist traveling with a little circus who used to curdle the blood of audiences by his challenges, probably a rum-soaked rubber of some fourth-rate boxer. But he was heavier and bigger that the "mere chit of a boy," as Mr. Lucas calls him, and the fact that he was knocked out attracted local attention. Several others of the same tribe were polished off in quick order by the lad, and Descamps believed this kind of practice was extremely useful to his protege.

His first engagement of any importance with with Kid Salmon, whom the author speaks of respectfully as "the redoubtable" and it may be said here the names of nine-tenths of the Battling Anthracites, K. O. Cokes and other ferocious sluggers whom he mentions are unknown to fame. But Salmon, an Englishman, had challenged all France at his weight, and in vain until Descamps matched Carpentier with him, and at that time the notion that a Frenchman could lick an Englishman seemed a mere fantasy. The fight took place when Carpentier was fourteen years old, and to everyone's amazement the frail child more than held his own until the thirteenth round, when Salmon was disqualified on a foul. Six weeks later they met again and this time in the twelfth round a sponge was tossed into the ring on Georges' behalf, and greatly to his indignation. Indeed, we are informed that Descamps had to carry him struggling and kicking from the ring. It was in this fight that Mr. Hurdman-Lucas first saw Georges.

The next three or four years saw Georges growing from a flyweight to a lightweight, then to a welterweight, and finally to a middleweight and and light heavyweight, which is what he is called to-day. His successes were by no means unbroken. Several times he met defeat, but only once was he knocked out, and then by a Frenchman named Gloria, the best man of his weight in France. He began to meet Englishmen of some note, and usually won, the result being to warn old Albion, as the writer says, that "the foreign yoke was knocking at the door." He lost to several Americans, including the Dixie Kid, Frank Klaus, who taught him the art of in-fighting which hitherto had been absent from his repertoire, and Billy Papke. He then fell back on Englishmen and beat Bandsman Rice, Gunner Wells and finally Joe Beckett. Many of his defeats were moral victories, since they all showed his absolute gameness, and he learned from every battle. It is said that he is never hurt twice by the same blow. Just what chance he is likely to have with Dempsey several thousands of Toronto people may judge for themselves by his performance recently in that city. Certainly he has the best wishes of every soldier not only in Europe and in Canada but also in the United States.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

WOOLFOLK'S "VANITY FAIR 1920"

Boyle Woolfolk's "Vanity Fair 1920" opens the dramatic season at Griffin's this Friday night.

"Vanity Fair" is a musical comedy in two acts and twelve scenes. It is a real musical comedy abounding in real music, comedy and dancing, the play moreover bristles with situations that are intensely funny. It enjoyed a long engagement in New York City and since that time it has been seen in many parts of the country, never failing to meet with popular acclaim.

"Vanity Fair" coms to this city not only with a remarkable cast but with a thoroughly Metropolitan production.

DELIGHTFUL COMEDY IN "LORD AND LADY ALGY"

Tom Moore added to his popularity as a screen actor at Griffin's last night by his excellent performance in the leading role of the Goldwyn picture "Lord and Lady Algy." The part calls for a light comedy touch as well as the ability to reach heights of emotional power. To both these demands Tom Moore is more than adequate. He gives the sense of completely filling the part in every particular. His leading lady, Naomi Childers, is finely cast as Lady Algy, the beautiful and firm aristocrat who leaves her husband when he breaks his word to her to refrain from betting.

The story itself is the picturized version of R.C. Carton's famous play of the same name, and relates the perilous episodes in the domestic life of Lord and Lady Algy, due to the young lord's insatiable betting prolivities.

Many stirring and spectacular scenes give an added interest to an exceptionally well-made photodrama. The running of the Derby is beautifully done. "Jazz Bandits," a funny 2-reel Sunshine comedy, the closing chapter of "The Lost City" serial and an interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue are also being shown in addition to the feature offering.

"THE WALK-OFF"

"The Walk-Offs," a Metro screen classics adaptation of the famous Broadway stage success by Frederic and Fanny Hatton will be the feature attraction at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday with beautiful May Allison in the stellar role. It is a play with a rich society background and is said to have been mounted for the screen with a most lavish display in fashionable gowns and setting.

May Allison appears in the role of Kathleen Rutherford, a beautiful young society woman who is much dissatisfied with the empty life she is leading. Her fortunes are at a low ebb because her brother has been divorced by his only means of support. The brother attempts to persuade Kathleen to marry a wealthy society man to mend both their fortunes, but she does not love him. In the studio of an artist Kathleen meets a wealthy young Kentuckian who detests her social breed but falls in love with her. He adopts the "cave-mannish" style in his wooing and the struggle that results between these two being from separate social worlds is tense and absorbing.

A cast of beautiful women appears in the numerous and massive society scenes of the production. They have been dressed in the most advanced styles of fashion with gowns of exquisite loveliness. May Allison appears in a number of gowns that were specially designed for her by Parision modistes. Charles Hutchison appears on the same program in the year's greatest "stunt" picture, "The Whirlwind," a 2-reel Century comedy, British Canadian News Pictorial, and an interesting Outing Chester Travelogue will also be shown on the same program.

LIVE A COMPLETE LIFE

You will live in proportion to your ability to respond to the great impulses of Nature. You may exist for years, but to really LIVE you must be able to do something besides breathe and move, eat and sleep.

To respond to the great thrill of living your body must be in a condition to function normally. This will permit a healthy state of mind, a vigorous, positive physical existence, replete with the joy and satisfaction of a complete life.

A normal nervous system is the first requisite to real living. This attained, the proper functioning will follow as a natural consequence. Your Chiropractor will permit Nature to endow you with the best she has; He will remove the nerve pressure, permitting normal action of every living part. Coordination is harmony and harmony is health. See us today for Consultation and Spinal Analysis without charge. Drs. Redick and Redick, Chiropractors, 283½ Front St., Belleville. Pone 900.

HARVESTER KILLED IN A RIOT

Quebec, Aug. 18.—Word has been received by the Attorney-General's Department of a fatal riot which took place at O'Brien, Northern Quebec, when a crowd of harvesters travelling west on a Canadian National Railway train, tried to break into a store yesterday.

Constables had been posted around the store in expectation of a raid when the train drew in. They opened fire on the harvesters as they approached the place, and Joseph Richer was killed and Geo. McCasey, Sydney Mines, N.S., and J. R. Bisson, one of the train crew, were badly wounded.

CLAY BELT CROP GOOD.

Indications Are for an Early Harvest —Excellent Growing Weather.

New Liskeard, Aug. 17.—The crop outlook for the clay belt is bright. The past few weeks have been excellent growing weather and the grain, somewhat retarded by the coldest July in twenty-seven years, has made wonderful progress in growth and repining.

There have been seasons when the hay crop was heavier and when the grain crops had longer straw, but the hay was well saved and the indications are that the grain when garnered will be of good quality.

Many of the farmers of this district have, the last couple of years, adopted the policy of sowing a variety of grain that matures quickly, with the result that in many cases the oat crop has already been cut. Most of the wheat is already well turned, while a great deal of it has also been cut.

The root crop on the whole promises to be satisfactory.

General indications are an early harvest, which will allow for a good opportunity at fall plowing.

DIVES THIRTY FEET TO SAVE BABY

Corning, N.Y., Aug. 18.—Mrs. O. Carpenter jumped from the Gibson Bridge thirty feet into the water and saved her son, three years old, who had fallen over the edge.

Charles H. Reed, of Rochester, who happened along in his car, went to the rescue. A pulmotor quickly revived the boy, who was unconscious. Mrs. Carpenter suffered greatly from nervous shock.

The Truth About Telephone Profits

IN 1879 the telephone business in Canada was disjointed.

In 1880 a number of men determined to link up the scattered companies, improve their equipment, standardize their methods and give better telephone service. This was the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

Like Christopher Columbus in his quest of a new road to Cathay, like most leaders of great enterprises, the new company was moved by the ancient and honorable desire for profit.

And it made a profit.

But the venture was new, the future so uncertain, that the company decided that adequate provision must be made for replacements, for emergencies and the requirements of an ever changing art.

Surplus earnings were re-invested in the business and a margin of safety built up.

The wisdom of creating this fund was soon apparent. The constant demands for replacements and extensions were met without too frequent appeals for new capital.

Not unnaturally the shareholders expected—and with good enough reason—that the earnings of these new extensions of service would be added to their own profits—that their self restraint would bear fruit.

But as a matter of fact the benefit did not go to the shareholder but to the subscriber. The increasing costs of operating the telephone system ate up all the profit there might have been on the newly extended plant. The re-investment merely enabled the company to continue its moderate dividends on the shareholders' initial investment without any increase in telephone rates commensurate with the increase in costs.

That is the story of the Bell Telephone Company's profits. Every cent of its surplus and reserve amounting to over $20,000,000 is re-invested in the business.

This then is the answer to those who say, "Let the Company use its Surplus and Reserve if it wants new capital"!

It has already used these funds!

The only hope of obtaining such sums as the $10,000,000 essential this year for extensions, lies in the sale of new securities.

These cannot be sold unless they bear a good interest rate.

Last year telephone rates yielded barely enough to earn 4% on the company's telephone property. This year they will earn even less!

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY—

Life isn't in holding a good hand, but in playing a poor hand well.—Anon.

CAME DOWN QUICKER THAN HE WENT UP.

Hon. George P. Graham, proprietor of the Brockville Recorder, and ex-Minister of Railways and Canals, went up in the air recently, and as his friend Hon. Charlie Murphy would say, came down quicker than he went up.

It happened at Staten Island, where George P. has been enjojying the cooling sea breezes in his summer home.

A seaplane piloted by a Canadian aviator name o' Tibb hove into the offing and George P. accepted an invitation to go up into the ozone.

The trip upward was fine, but the journey downward was fast, for the engine stalled and down went McGinty and George P. and those who went wid him to the bosom of the sea.

The old Atlantic was not quite as soft as a feather bed, but, as George P. put it, was infinitely better than striking a rock, and the flying craft floated until a fast motor boat put out and rescued the imperilled ones.

SANE AND SENSIBLE.

The Kingston Whig is eighty-seven years old, old enough to have acquired a vast amount of useful experience and know what it is talking about. The Whig is, and has always been, strongly Liberal, but was Canadian enough and British enough to forget politics entirely during the war. The Whig's comments on Premier Meighen's speech and announcement of Government policy at Stirling are sane and sensible, in striking contrast to the puerile remarks made by some dyed-in-the-wool partizan sheets. Says the Whig:

> The policy of the federal government is to give Canadian industries of every kind just enough advantage in the Canadian market as to make it pay them better to stay here and expand than to diminish their plants or to leave. What common-sense Canadian workman could ask for better treatment? It means his living under British institutions.
> Canada's new premier is talking sensibly these dog days. If he has the sand to endure—and we think he has—he will bring good results to Canada. Moderation and amiable reasonableness always win out in the final analysis.

UNITED STATES SOME LAPS BEHIND.

In Ontario it is compulsory for physicians to report communicable diseases in the interest of the public health, but it appears that a different state of affairs obtains in some parts of the United States, according to the following extract from an exchange:

> The state of Nebraska supreme court decision that a doctor who told a professional secret was not guilty of bad faith, is attracting widespread interest. A man afflicted with a communicable disease and living in a hotel consulted a physician, who, uneasy over the grave possibility of contagion, decided that it was his duty to tell the hotel proprietress. The roomer, who was ordered out, instituted suit against the physician on the ground that the information disclosed was confidential. The highest court of the state gave a verdict in favor of the physician, and now all over the continent the decision is being discussed and generally commended. The Boston Globe, commenting on the case, intimates a belief that "the time will probably come when physicians will be bound by law to make known to the proper authorities all cases of disease which threaten the health of innocent persons. Already the law is explicit in regard to certain virulent afflictions." Perhaps, under the extension of the system of state inspection, supervision and paternalism, which is now making rapid progress, the time will come when there will be no such obnoxious things as diseases threatening the health of innocent persons. In the meantime, the course of the Nebraska doctor, however it may be criticized, will be more generally approved by the larger number who believe it is the best to tell the facts, when telling the facts means protecting the public.

"Had it not been found necessary to afford work in Canada for the thousands of shipbuilders who would have been thrown out of employment with conclusion of British orders for ships Canada would not have the magnificent fleet that now sails the seas and which will be greatly increased during the present year. Possession of these ships gives Canada the one want it required to enable it to go out and seek trade and bring to our markets direct the goods of far distant lands we require and to carry to those lands Canadian goods in exchange. Our ships are now sailing to many parts of the world and are to be found in ports where Canadian ships never before entered."

THE POET'S CORNER

DAD KNEW

Spring o 'the year and a-plantin' corn
Back on the farm where I was born;
Plantin corn and a-singin' free
This here rhyme that Dad told me;
"One for the blackbird, two for the crow,
Three for the cutworm four to grow
Six for the varmints, four for you!"
That's what Dad said—and Dad knew.

Goin' to work in the early morn
Far from the farm where I was born;
This here rhyme comes back to-day
Fresh as it was when I heard Dad say:
"Six for the varmints, four for you!
That's what Dad said—and Dad knew."

Goin' to work and I know I must Make enough for the sugar trust;
Dollar here for the men who make
Ten per cent. on the bread I bake;
Dollar there for the right to live
Under a roof like a busted sieve;
Many more dollars I must make
Every day for the varmint's sake.
Planting an extra here and there
Planting an extra everywhere;
"One for the blackbird, two for the crow,
Three for the cutworm, four to grow!"

Goin' to work, and I start to sweat
What in the world if I'd forget,
One of the things I got to pay
Out of the wad I earn today?
Over and over I tag the list,
Hoping that nobody has been missed,
One for the railroad's streak of rust;
Two for the devilish leather trust;
Three for the one cent pile of wax
Stuck on the back of my income tax
Four for the right to sell my soul
Earning a six-ounce load of coal;
Five for the right for to live upstairs
Three per cent. if I say my prayers,
Six is the last lone dollar bill
Left to my dear wife in my will,
"One for the blackbird, two for the crow,
Three for the cutworm, four to grow,
Six for the varmints, four for you!"
That's what Dad said—and Dad knew.
—Lowell Otus Reese.

A LAUGH OR TWO

Gets 'Em All

"Want to hear the latest phonograph records?"

"No thank you. I've heard all of 'em. I live in an apartment house."

A Homely Lesson

"Where did you get that dreadful black eye, Mrs. Hawkins?" asked the district visitor.

The lady with the coal-colored optic did not try to evade the question.

"It were the result of a slight haltercation wiv' my 'usband, mum," she answered.

"How very, very dreadful! What a wicked man your husband must be to treat you so cruelly!"

"Not at all mum—not at all," retorted the other, assuming a dignified manner. "'Awkins is 'asty, but he's a puffit gentleman at 'eart. I can assure you that after 'e'd give me this black eye 'e sat holdin' a cold fryin'-pan to it for hulwards of an hour a'tryin' to reduce the swelling. A little hattention like that goes a long way towards makin' married life 'appy, mum, as I dessay you've found yerself, mum.'

Honor to Whom Honor—

"Well, Uncle Joe, did you read that a brave explorer had discovered the North Pole at last?"

"Yessir, but I dunno why folks is makin' sech a fuss about discoverin' the North Pole. Some man must hev planted it fust, mustn't he?"

Ought To Have Been

A woman, famous locally for her ducks sold one to Brown, her neighbor. But it proved particularly tough and as Brown had paid a big price for the bird, he called on the vendor without delay.

"What do you mean by imposing such a duck upon me, one of your oldest neighbors?" he inquired.

"Why, was there anything wrong with it?"

"Wrong! It wasn't good at all!"

"Well it ought to have been," retorted the dame. "It won the first prize at the poultry show for eleven years in succession."

Turkish Tipplers.

Though the laws of Mohammed forbid their consumption, it seems that alcoholic drinks—especially raki—are by no means unpopular among the Turkish working classes.

They have long been in favor with the upper classes, even in the days when prohibition laws were so strong in Turkey that the Grand Vizier tried to stop foreign diplomats from importing wine for their own consumption.

Augier de Busbecq, the French Ambassador, successfully resisted this infringement of their rights, but the authorities stipulated that the wine should be carted through the streets at dead of night, lest the sight of the casks should corrupt the faithful.

However, when the wine reached its destination the Turkish Ministers enjoyed it as much as anybody.

Busbecq relates that one of them, when tackling a bottle of champagne, gave a great shout before each drink. This warned his soul to hide itself in a remote part of his body, for fear it should be defiled by the wine and have to answer hereafter for the sin.

Can't Write Their Own Names.

In 1917 the children's bureau of the United States government examined 19,696 boys and girls, fourteen to sixteen years old, in five different states where child labor is not prohibited.

One-fourth of these, like a great many business men, could not write their names so that anyone could read them.

Home-made Beet Syrup.

Syrup made at home from sugar beets is unpalatable, according to a report made to the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry by a committee which has been experimenting with them.

Remain an Owner of Victory Bonds

You are now an owner of bonds. That experience, prior to the Dominion of Canada Loans, was widely believed to be reserved for the wealthy only.

You are satisfied with your purchase—that goes without saying!

The Minister of Finance announces that "Canada has finished borrowing". You therefore possess bonds of an issue which will not be added to, and for which the demand will increase as time passes. This means eventual enhancement in value.

Your first concern should be to hold the bonds you already own, and as you have cultivated the habit of thrift, your next and wisest step is to add to your holdings as substantially as your income will permit.

We recommend 1934 Maturity Victory Bonds at 96 and interest, yielding nearly 6%.

The Simplicity of a MAXWELL is Due to Special Steels

A Maxwell is a simple car. Its engine, axles, clutch, transmission and gears are the utmost in simplicity, which is the goal of scientific engineering.

Special steels have made this possible. They are steels made to Maxwell's own formulae, the result of thousands of tests and years of analysis.

These steels give a Maxwell the remarkable combination of extra strength and lightness in weight.

In this way complicated construction has been avoided. Simple design has naturally followed and to this simplicity rare strength has been added by the use of these special steels.

Strains, twists, thrusts, shocks and blows are protected against in many other cars by reinforcements, extra weight in metals used, and a design that obviously is anything but simple.

In a Maxwell this simplicity has made the car easier to build, and it therefore is better built, easier to drive, and easier to care for.

That this should win friends for Maxwell is almost too obvious to call attention to.

Nearly 400,000 persons now drive a Maxwell, which is a very definite endorsement.

PROPOSED PHONE RATES

The present telephone rate in Belleville for business phones is $33.00 per annum, the new rate proposed by the company is $42.00 per annum. Residence phones in Belleville now cost $27.50 per year and the new rate calls for $30.00. These rates are for individual lines.

GIRL LEFT HOME.

The police here have been requested to be on the lookout for a girl named Catherine M. Dale, aged 14 years, of Deseronto, who has left home. She is described as being short and stout, with dark hair and dark complexion, and when she left home was attired in a white waist and skirt, and wore white boots and black stockings.

ST. MICHAEL'S ANNUAL PICNIC.

Many from the city and vicinity were today in attendance at the annual picnic held under the auspices of St. Michael's Church here. The gathering took place at Holton's grove at the western outskirts of the city. A good programme of events were provided, including a baseball match between the G.T.R. team of this city and the St. Francis team of Toronto.

RECEPTION TO SIR GILBERT

At the Masonic temple in this city this evening, Sir Gilbert Parker, Bart. who is a member of the Masonic Grand Lodge of England, will be tendered a reception by the members of the craft of this district. Addresses will be given at the luncheon by prominent members. This afternoon Sir Gilbert was the guest of a party to a motor trip through Prince Edward County.

AN IMPORTANT ARREST.

Mr. Harris, G.T.R. constable, here, on Monday at Scarboro Junction made an important arrest. He took in charge a man named Martin and also a car he was in charge of. In the auto was found upwards of $2,500 worth of ladies' fine footwear, and it is alleged that it is stolen property. Martin was subsequently taken to Toronto jail. Three other men were in Martin's company, but they decamped.

TENDERS BIG SURPRISE

The Pembroke Board of Education met to open the tenders for the proposed new east ward Public School. Three figures in all were received and the figures proved something of a shock. The total amount asked from the council was $90,000, but the lowest tender for the completed school was that of Beatty's factory a little over $119,000 while leaving the upstairs uncompleted, their figures is about $13,000 less. There were a number of members absent and the matter of awarding a contract was postponed.

EIGHTY-TWO, WORKS FARM

Although in his eighty-second year, George Barr, who resides at Harrowsmith, R.M.D. No. 1, is still able to do a good day's work on the farm. At the present time he is living on a 120-acre farm, of which sixty acres are under cultivation. This year he put in all the crop and expects that he will take it all off. He cut and took off all the hay crop with the exception of one day when some of his neighbors assisted him. Mr. Barr has lived on the present location for sixteen years. He was born on a farm near Fermoy where his father was one of the early settlers. All of his life he has taken a keen interest in the Orange Order of which he has been a member since he was eighteen years of age. He is an honorary member at the present time. For years he has always taken a great delight in attending the Orange celebration. This year he was prevented on account of one of his horses tramping on his foot the Sunday before the celebration was to take place. Although Mr. Barr is past four score years, he expects to be able to do farm work for some time yet.

STABBED AT PETERBORO

As a result of an altercation over a midnight game at the Polack Shows, Peterboro, Saturday night, Louis Pivos a Polack employee, is in the Nicholls Hospital with a badly lacerated head. Pivos and another employee of the shows were playing when a dispute arose over the game between them. Pivos it is said, attempted to draw a revolver and the other man drew a knife and cut Pivos about the head before he could defend himself. The other man immediately secured an auto and fled. Pivos was taken to the hospital.

Called By Death

DR. CASKEY.

The body of Dr. Caskey, of Ottawa, arrived here last night and will be taken to Tweed for interment. Deceased died on Monday morning at his home, Sherbrooke Apartments, corner of O'Connor and Slater streets, after a short illness, of pneumonia. He was forty years of age and was born at Tweed, where he lived for many years with his parents. After his graduation from Queen's University in 1904, he went to Ottawa and settled, and remained there until his demise. Dr. Caskey was a bachelor. One brother, Robt. J., of Saskatoon, and two sisters, Mrs. James Wallbridge, of Massassaga, P. E. County, and Miss Zetta, survive.

ROBERT ARTHURS

The body of Mr. Robert Arthurs, C.P.R. brakeman, who passed away at Smith Falls Thursday, as a result of being struck by a train, was brought to his home at Belleville, 10 Bridge street east on Friday, from which the funeral was held on Saturday afternoon. Deceased who was 27 years of age was born at Marmora, and had resided a number of years in Belleville. He was a member of the Anglican Church. He leaves to mourn his loss a widowed mother, three brothers and three sisters. The brothers are James and Frederick of Schreiber and William of Belleville. The sisters are Mrs. John Ellis of Point Anne; Mrs. Henry Weese of Malone and Miss Mary at home. Robert will be greatly missed as he was well and favorably known and a great favorite of all who knew him.

Matters of Etymology.

Ramblers among the derivations of words can always find fantastic similarities. "Cocayne" is centuries old and means a land where ease and luxury prevail, lubberland, an imaginary abode of the lotus eaters. Its etymology is disputed but possibly from the French meaning "cake," the Land of Cakes. It has been connected with "Cockney," whose origin also is uncertain, meaning a dweller in London in sound of Bow bells. "Cocayne" is usually spelled "Cockaigne." The two words differ absolutely in pronunciation, for it must be remembered that "cocaine" is pronounced co-ca-in; three, not two syllables. Another error made by those comprising "quite a few" pronounce "paresis," which has its "e" short and accent on the first syllable as if that "e" were long and the accent on the second. Finally, the origin of cocaine is clear, from the South American coca plant and the chemical suffix "ine."

Again.

On the night of armistice day a negro trooper met some hilarious Frenchmen. Next morning he was before his captain, charged with intoxication.

"Young man," scowled the captain, "you've got a mighty good record, and I'm sorry. Have you any excuse to offer for this outbreak?"

"I ain't got no excuse, please, cap'n," said the culprit, "but I'se done got a good reason."

"A reason," exclaimed the captain "What is it?"

"Well, cap'n, I dunno' de English fo' it, but de bunch I met las' night called it 'encore.'"

Concrete Baffled Bandits.

At the time of the Madero revolution in 1910 the various railways of Mexico were beginning to use concrete in the making of culverts, and it is understood that most of the concrete culverts and bridges built at that time have withstood the bandits' attacks and other injuries, while the wood and steel structures have been destroyed.

Conductor Pulls Teeth.

A conductor-dentist operates on a branch of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad system in West Virginia. He is Dr. Harry Halstead. When patients failed to come to him fast enough Halstead took a position as conductor. He carries forceps in his pocket. During a recent week the train was hailed four times by persons who wanted teeth drawn. The dentist-conductor never fails to make the stops.

Minister Gives Facts To Public

Tells Of Wonderful Change Tanlac Brought In His Wife's Condition

Yet another minister of religion to give his unqualified endorsement to Tanlac as a medicine of remarkable merit is the Rev. John Zaetschky, pastor of the Lutheron Church, Ohio Synod, Calgary, Alberta, who resides at 1920, 5½ street W., in a statement made at the Liggett-Findlay Drug Store, recently.

"For nine years my wife suffered from dropsy," he said, "and for the past five years had been in a very bad state of health. Her appetite was very poor, and although she ate but very little she always had a full feeling after meals. She had a drowsy feeling all the time from which nothing could arouse her, and felt tired both mentally and physically. She often complained of acute pains across the back which were so bad, that she had to let her work go entirely and at night her sleep was very disturbed. Her nervous system became so shattered that the least thing would alarm her, and she was getting worse year by year. She tried all kinds of treatments and even went to the hospital on several occasions, but always failed to get more than temporary relief.

"We had read much about the merits of Tanlac and finally I bought a bottle. It seemed to do my wife good and so I continued with it. She has now taken three bottles in all and a decided change for the better has been the result. She now sleeps the whole night through and has lost that tired, drowsy feeling. She is so much improved that she can now do her housework with perfect ease, and the pains in her back have disappeared entirely. I would not go so far to say that she is entirely relieved of the dropsy, but it does not bother her half as much as it did, and she has not been so well for many years past. Tanlac helped her wonderfully and we wouldn't be without it on any account. It is certainly a splendid medicine and I take pleasure in recommending it."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

Obsequies

CHARLES WELLMAN.

Yesterday afternoon the obsequies of the late Mr. Charles Wellman, whose demise was the result of an electric shock, took place from the residence of his mother at Cannifton, and was largely attended. At the Methodist church a service was conducted by Revs. Messrs. G. Aldford and E. T. Thompson, of the Standard Church of Canada. A choir assisted in the service. At the family plot, Elmwood Cemetery, the interment took place. Upon the casket were placed a number of beautiful floral designs. The bearers were Messrs. C. Hearns, H. Farnham, W. Badgley, A. Matthews, E. and W. Whiting.

Smallest day's attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1919 was 35,500, Opening Day; largest 189,500 on Labor Day.

GENGHIS KHAN.

He Was a Forerunner of the Modern Hun.

In the thirteenth century a numerous and warlike people of Central Asia, called Mongols or Moguls (generally known as Tartars) burst like a devastating flood upon unprepared Europe, and made deserts of many fair countries.

A petty Mongolian prince had a son named Temugin, who at the age of thirteen began to rule over his tribe. Intestine strife forced him to fly for safety to Aventi-Khan, a Tartar prince, who later was driven out by his brother. Temugin gathered a force and restored Aventi, who rewarded him with his daughter in marriage. Quarrels arose between the two, and Aventi schemed the destruction of his son-in-law. Temugin escaped, and soon after, falling upon his enemies at the head of a wild force, glutted his vengeance by putting them to the sword.

The taste of blood and victory inflamed the fierce young leader, and his spreading fame gathered around him a large and merciless army. Using his growing power with vigor and judgment, he soon obtained such an ascendency as to be acknowledged, in 1206, Chief of the Mongol tribes, when he assumed the name of Genghis-Khan — "Chief of the Very Mighty."

And now, having unquestioned command of an innumerable host of born fighters, he commenced a victorious and frightfully destructive career of conquest.

The Emperor of China, whose general he had been, experienced the first weight of his power. The northern part of China was invaded in 1210, and in the course of several years the capital was taken by storm and plundered, and a vast tract of that country subdued.

Then, turning west and south, he avenged the murder of his ambassadors by sweeping through Turkestan with the devastating fury of a tornado. His 700,000 fierce and pitiless warriors created a fearful havoc. The two great cities of Bokhara and Samarcand were stormed, pillaged, and burned, and upwards of 120,000 persons of all ages and both sexes slaughtered. In 1222 he drove the Sultan Celadeddin over the Indus and remained master of all Carizme.

Continuing his savage career Genghis encountered the sovereign of Tangut, and in a great battle on a plain of ice formed by a frozen lake, defeated him and slew, it is said, 300,000 of his men.

Advancing with his hordes, from Kipsak to the river Kalka, near the mouth of the Don, he overthrew the Russians and their allies, and their prince, Mstislas, was slain. Ravaging the south of Russia, he then retired over the Wolga. Conquering wherever he marched, he extended his territory until it comprised within its vast boundaries Northern China, Eastern Persia, and the whole of Tartary.

In achieving the conquest of these "barren acres" it has been computed that he slaughtered 5,000,000 of the human race; and in the cities of Central Asia his barbarous soldiers destroyed countless treasures of literature and art.

While preparing to conquer the remainder of China, this ruthless warrior, grown old in bloodshed, died in 1227. Four of his sons divided his Empire, among whom Octai was Supreme or Great Khan.

Genghis was as skilful in government as he was valorous and capable in arms, and the effects of the wide sweeping conquests of this scourge of mankind are felt to this day.

One of his successors led his warriors on through Russia, Poland, and Hungary, ravaging the land, but making no settlement except in the Crimea, where they became known as the Golden Horde. In Asia the Mongols drove before them from the East of the Caspian Sea the Turks, who finally overwhelmed the Christians of Palestine in 1243.

In 1258 Holagou Khan, a grandson of Genghis, took Bagdad and conquered and governed Persia. In Asia Minor the Kingdom of the Seljukian Turks was overthrown, and then the power of the Ottoman Turks began. One of the Emirs or leaders of the Turkomans — who had been driven from the Jir abodes by the Mongols—was named Othman. He, the bold and successful captain of a robber band, made himself master of a large part of Asia Minor in 1300, founding upon the ruins of the Saracen, Seljuk and Mongol power the Empire of the Ottoman Turks in Asia. His vigorous and capable successors went from conquest to conquest till, in 1453, by the overthrow of the last weak and effete remnant of the Roman Empire at Constantinople the cruel Turkish rule was finally established in the most beautiful and historic corner of Europe.

A Large Saw.

The largest circular saws in the world have just been made to fill a special order from a Pacific coast lumber mill. Each saw is 108 inches in diameter, weighs approximately 795 pounds, and includes 190 teeth. The latter are inserted in the rim, and can be replaced if broken. Two steel ingots, each weighing 1,140 pounds, were the raw material from which the great disks were made. The saws will be used for cutting big logs into lengths suitable for the production of shingles.

Need Locomotives.

In Africa there is a lack of locomotives which is felt just as acutely as is being experienced in the remainder of the world and for the purposes of a light railway, cars are being drawn along the tracks by road tractors, which move along on a road built beside the tracks.

Ancient Germs.

In a papyrus of Ptolemaic age Prof. Galippe founds germs that after three hours of exposure to moisture revived. They had been asleep 2100 years, and they were identical with the micro-organisms found on the plants, which the Egyptians used in making their papyrus.

Sir Gilbert Parker Welcomed By Belleville Masons

DISTINGUISHED AUTHOR AND PARLIAMENTARIAN RECEIVES GLAD HAND OF FELLOWSHIP IN MASONIC TEMPLE, AFTER ENJOYABLE MOTOR CAR TRIP ABOUT PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY—MASONS FROM ALL PARTS OF DISTRICT GATHER TO DO HONOR TO DISTINGUISHED BROTHER MASON.

A night long to be remembered in local Masonic circles was the unanimous verdict of all who attended the joint session of the three Belleville lodges Wednesday evening in Masonic Temple. The occasion was a reception tendered R. Wor. Bro. Sir Gilbert Parker, Bart., of the Grand Lodge of England, who although residing in London, England, and taking a leading part in world affairs, is still proud to call Belleville his home city and return here when occasion affords—to grasp the hands and look into the faces of old friends, and live again for a brief space the happy, strenuous days of the long ago before recognition and appreciation came.

In the afternoon a motor car trip was taken by twenty-odd Masons with Sir Gilbert, Prince Edward County beauties of hill, valley and lake shore being enjoyed, with luncheon at Picton before starting the return journey.

In the evening the lodge rooms were crowded to the limit of capacity, every part of the district being represented, and after a brief session in the lodge room proper, adjournment was made to the banquet hall, where a very seasonable spread had been prepared. Two hundred sat down at the long tables, and those who could not find a seat stood up and enjoyed refreshments from the buffet.

A pleasing feature of the evening's program was the music rendered by Eureka Lodge orchestra, Prof. Hunt presiding at the piano. Old English songs by James Booth and H. W. Wrightmeyer were also very much appreciated, the former singing "The Floral Dance" and the latter "The Skipper of St. Ives."

Col. S. S. Lazier occupied the chair in his customary capable manner, as well he might, having been a Mason for fifty-seven years, fifty of which being spent as an officer. The following were the toasts honored:

The King and Craft.

Canada and the Empire—W. B. Northrup, K.C., Clerk of the House of Commons; Hon. Nelson Parliament, Speaker of the Ontario Legislature.

Our Honored Guest—W. N. Ponton, K.C., Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodges of Ontario in Canada.

Belleville Masonic Lodges—Dr. J. W. Kinnear, F. E. O'Flynn.

Belleville City—John Elliott, Jamieson Bone, President of the Chamber of Commerce.

The King at Ottawa.

Great amusement and enthusiasm were created by W. B. Northrup's sketch of what might happen one hundred years from now when Canada, with two hundred million population, would be the hub of the Empire, with the greatest population and resources of any of the Dominions beyond the sea, when the King might hold court at Ottawa and the next Prince of Wales might be a native-born Canadian, a real Canadian King to be. Mr. Northrup sketched the origin and history of races from the dawn of history to the present time, showing how power had always travelled north in a seemingly divine plan, and indications were that the same plan had in store for Canada an era of wonderful progress and a nation powerful and prosperous such as the world has never seen. What the Mother Country has done for Canada and what Canada has not done for the Mother Country was shown very clearly by the speaker, who pointed out the duty of Canada as a self-respecting nation in the family of nations within the Empire to assume some of the burden of protection on sea and land which the Mother Country has been carrying for so long.

Mr. Northrup's address was interesting and instructive and was generously applauded.

The Farmer Speaker.

Hon. Nelson Parliament, introduced as the Farmer Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, spoke briefly but eloquently upon Canada's opportunities and responsibilities, its relations to the Emipre. To develop Canada was our first duty, said Mr. Parliament, service to our Country, our God and to ourselves.

Better Lo'ed Ye Canna Be.

Brotherhood to our brother, Gilbert Parker, a welcome warm and friendly, was the keynote of an eloquent address by Col. W. N. Ponton, Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario in Canada. Sir Gilbert he described as a link binding Canada to the motherland in a loving chain of mutual understanding and regard. Sir Gilbert Parker had accomplished a wonderful work in sending his pen pictures of Canada to all parts of the world and bringing a closer understanding with the Mother Country and the other Dominions and more especially in creating a better understanding of Quebec among the other provinces of Canada. That wonderful, unique province of Quebec was never known or understood properly until pictured in the books of Sir Gilbert Parker, who always wrote from the standpoint of Canada as one big "familee". Greetings were extended to Sir Gilbert Parker from the Masons of Belleville and district, and this included Lady Parker, overseas, and Miss Parker, at the homestead in Belleville. Better lo'ed ye canna be will ye no come back again, was the general feeling of this his home city and district as expressed in eloquent terms by Col. Ponton, who said that the events of this day would always be kept in treasured memory by all who participated and Canada would continue to "give of our best with all our zest," for our King and country true to ourselves and the glorious tradition of the ever glorious British Empire.

Sir Gilbert Parker.

The guest of the evening on rising to respond to the toast of "Our Honored Guest," was tendered an ovation which evidenced the great respect and esteem in which he is held, the cheers being loud and prolonged, followed by the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Sir Gilbert said that he was overwhelmed with the warmth of his welcome, which he deeply appreciated. He had always tried to remember that we are all one big family, and in all his writings to keep Canada ever to the fore even when he stepped aside occasionally to write about other countries. He was proud of his United Empire Loyalist ancestry and felt he combined in himself the old world and the new, for his father was born in Ireland. His great-grandfather left the United States during the revolution and settled in Prince Edward County. England had expended on Canada five hundred million pounds since the conquest from the French, but Canada had given everything in return during the last war, if she owed any debt to the Mother Country it had been amply repaid in common with the other Dominions beyond the seas in holding the Empire together during the terrific period of strife.

As to who won the war, in Sir Gilbert's opinion it was the combination of peoples of this Empire who had rallied so loyally to the call, and the 60,000 Canadian dead was an eloquent tribute of sacrifice to the solidarity of the Empire. They shall not grow old as we that are left grow old, nor the years their memory dim, at the going down of the sun and in the morning we will remember them.

Germans Feared Canadians.

Sir Gilbert spoke feelingly of the part played by Canadian soldiers in the war. The Germans at first were inclined to despise the Canadians, but came to fear them more than any other soldiers opposing them, not only for their bravery, but for their initiative. While paying a high tribute to the Canadian soldier, Sir Gilbert said that it must not be forgotten that the British Tommy was a great soldier—none better in the world—for endurance, fortitude, power to act, skill and expediency. The German soldier had no initiative and no humor. No great man ever came out of Prussia except a soldier, and the war spirit planted in Prussia spread all over Germany and dominated it with a desire for world conquest.

Significant events and warnings leading up to the war were sketched in an interesting manner by Sir Gilbert, who showed that the whole German nation was responsible for the war.

His Heart in Belleville.

Speaking of his feelings for Belleville, Sir Gilbert said that his heart was here and, "when my time come

Canada's Across Country Air Line Near Completion

Only A Matter of Time Till Service is in Operation.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18—Occasional word of the enterprise of Americans in surveying an air route from New York to Alaska via the Canadian West to Edmonton and Prince Rupert and northwards through Dawson City, makes interest keener in the forthcoming Canadian route map which will soon be completed, for the Air Board itself is composed of enthusiasts, sure that the future of transportation in great part is in the air, and that it behooves Canada to bestir herself if she is to keep pace with progress in other countries.

It is now certain that it is only a matter of time until passenger, mail and express service are being run between cities on a transcontinental route in the Dominion. It is being done already in Europe and air journals to hand show that the tariffs published by airplane companies have been coming progressively lower until now they are under the ordinary rates charged by land and sea transportation companies.

For passengers who want the experience or who are in a great hurry, these companies charge greatly enhanced rates. The mail service between London and Armsterdam, it is stated, is cheaper than by the regular routes for important letters, replies being received in thirty hours, where formerly it took five or six days. Precious freight and important passengers are using the air route and so far without encountering air bandits.

Airmen who trained in Toronto say that the wing which remained in Toronto in the winter of 1917-18 did as much flying as those wings which went to Texas to complete their flying. By adding skids or runners some airmen even claim that landing in winter is easier than in summer. The vast expanse of water scattered over the eastern half of Canada in lakes, rivers and inland fresh water seas makes it sure that during a great part of the year sea planes will be used in this part of Canada for exploration purposes where landing places cannot be provided beforehand the seaplanes will be invaluable.

However, the transcontinental route will be the first air necessity, and it will make it necessary for municipalities and the councils thereof to rub their eyes and waken to the necessity of new orientation. Every twenty miles there must be a landing place, and if these points wish to be on the routes and places of call they will have to provide landing places.

Meanwhile the next move must be from the Air Board and its map is keenly expected.

Rainy River Mayor Sent To Jail

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 19.—As a result of a round-up of bootleggers and other vendors of liquor in an illicit way in Northern Ontario, carried out under the direction of John Ayearst, Chief License Inspector for Ontario last week, 14 convictions, three sent to jail and fines amounting to $6,650 were registered.

The list of those convicted included Dr. Murdoch, Mayor of Rainy River, who, besides being fined $2,000 and costs, was sent to jail for ten days. He was charged with selling liquor contrary to the Ontario Temperance Act. Most of the others convicted were hotelmen and clerks it was reported here today, following the arrival of Inspector Ayearst.

WANT METHYL ALCOHOL KNOWN AS TIGNINE

Montreal, Aug. 18.—The convention of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association was continued here, when several committees were appointed.

President J. E. Barnabe recommended provision for advanced education, which plan had been approved by Professor H. H. Gates of the University of Alberta. Manitoba University sent a communication recommending that the word tignine be substituted for methyl alcohol, which was liable to be confused with ethyl alcohol.

ONLOOKERS UNABLE TO SAVE THREE WHO DROWN

Regina, Aug. 18.—Sydney Wilmore, aged twenty-two; Herman Styles, aged twenty, both farmers and unmarried, and Florence Ruthy, aged sixteen, all of Fairdale, near Eston, were drowned Sunday, two miles north of Cramersburg, Sask.

Devotion To Duty Cost Their Lives

CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 19.—"The traditions of 47 years of service in Western Canada have been upheld by the devotion to duty of Corporal Usher and Constable Bailey, who were killed while attempting the arrest of the train bandits at Bellevue recently," said Rev. R. G. McBeth, historian of the old Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Rev. Mr. McBeth is editor of "Scarlet and Gold," the organ of the association of ex-mounted policemen, and is now engaged in writing a history of the old force. He has been to Ottawa delving into the archives.

"The incidents at Bellevue," he said, "show three characteristics of the force in their refusal to count odds when duty had to be done, in their refusal to take human life unless unavoidable and in the determination to secure the arrest of a criminal if he had to be followed to the ends of the earth.

"In connection with this second characteristic, police sent to arrest men have often lost their lives rather than be the first to shoot. One case is that of Serg. Colebrook, who was killed by "Almighty Voice" a few years ago near Prince Albert, although the sergeant was warned by the interpreter he was risking his life in approaching the desperate Indian."

The case of Sergt. Wild, of High River, was also mentioned. "Wild, who was following an Indian outlaw, might easily have taken his life but he preferred to wait and bring the man to justice. The Indian turned suddenly and shot the policeman."

A case of local interest is the one in which Inspector Spalding, then a sergeant-major and two men were sent to capture a horse thief, Lafrembyse, a half-breed who was in a Saskatchewan half-breed settlement. It was on New Years Day when many of the men were celebrating by heavy drinking and showed a decided disposition to annihilate the few mounted policemen. But the arrest was made by Spalding and the criminal taken and afterwards received five years."

Rev. Mr. McBeth continued: "The important thing in connection with the Dominion-wide organization is that the high prestige of the force for maintaining law and order be maintained in Canada. The police have never played favorites and never stood for nonsense."

Yarker Girl Drowned In River

Another mystery was brought to light in the little village of Yarker when the body of Miss Louise Goslin was found in the river near the C. N. R. Station, in the heart of the village.

Mr. Elmer Aulten, shoemaker, and his young son were going up the river at Yarker, when Mr. Aulten espied a pair of slippers on the bank just below the bridge. He immediately rowed to the spot and on examination identified them as a pair he had repaired a few days before. While he was identifying the shoes his son saw the body of a woman lying on the bottom of the river a few feet from the shore. Mr. Aulten immediately summoned Dr. Oldham, and together they went up the river and took the body from the river. It proved to be that of Miss Louise Goslin.

Miss Goslin was about twenty years of age, and was the daughter of Mr. Jas. Goslin, of Yarker. She is survived by her father and three brothers, two of whom live in Yarker, and one sister.

ANOTHER IROQUOIS FALLS.

Kapuskasing, Aug. 18.—According to plans now being made by Premier Drury and the staff at Queen's Park, this place is to be made a second Iroquois Falls. In the latter place the Abitibi Company owns the townsite and has brought into being as fine a modern little town as there is in the province. It is the intention of the Ontario Government to make this place similar.

The Premier declined in making the agreement with the Spruce Falls Pulp Company to turn over control of the townsite. That has been retained, and the first step to be taken will be to have the Government engineers lay out a new townsite on modern lines. The Premier has also ensured the town of an ample supply of electric energy by pledging the Pulp Company to reserve ten per cent. of its power production for the town. Likewise 15 per cent. of its newsprint output will be reserved for sale in Canada under the agreement.

Postponement of Operation of Adolescent Act

Delay of Six Months May Be Granted—Statement by Minister of Education.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—Postponement of the operation of the Adolescent School Attendance Act was predicted by Hon. R. H. Grant, Minister of Education. This act calls for the compulsory attendance at school of adolescents from fourteen to sixteen, adolescents from 14 to 16, as fromt Sept. 1, 1921, and in certain cases of those between the ages of sixteen and eighteen years from Sept. 1, 1923, was made law by proclamation of the Lt.-Governor a short time ago.

"It is not likely that the act will come into operation at the time set," stated Hon. Mr. Grant. "In fact I think that the time limit will have to be extended because the municipalities are not prepared, and evidently will not be prepared. We will probably give them further time, perhaps six months, and we will then expect them to be prepared to enforce the act."

Training Chiefly Technical.

In regard to the attendance of adolescents between the ages of sixteen and eighteen years, no difficulty is expected, as the time set for this is Sept. 1, 1923. In the case of these attendance will be only for a certain number of hours per year, and will be largely utilized for technical training at night.

"We expect that these pupils will be largely handled by the technical schools in which their choice of training is expected to be along practical lines, fitting them for business or for the trades," stated Hon. Mr. Grant. "Of course, they will have a free choice in the matter. The minister intimated that some arrangement might possibly be made whereby these pupils could take the pharmacy course, which is a two years' course, and that other branches of university training might be opened to them. Hon. Mr. Grant thought that the technical schools at which trades could be taught to students between the ages of sixteen and eighteen years might have some effect on the attendance at the university in view of the high wages prevailing at many trades at the present time.

Last Minute Telegraph Briefs

Russian Statement

London, Aug. 19.—According to a Soviet official statement yesterday, fierce fighting is continuing in the region of Warsaw and Novo Gorgievak. About nineteen miles northwest of Warsaw at the confluence of the Vistula and Bug rivers in Crimea sector, engagements are going on with indecisive results.

London, Aug. 19.—Premier Lloyd George does not contemplate any trip to Canada or the United States as had been reported. It was announced officially today.

Olympic Races

Antwerp, Aug. 19.—The only Canadian entrant in the four hundred metre event, Hector Phillips, Toronto, qualified when preliminary heats were run this morning. Eighteen others qualified representing Great Britain, United States, South Africa, France, Finland, Sweden, Switzerland and Belgium.

Antwerp, Aug. 19—The Toronto man was defeated, however, in the semi finals this afternoon.

Warsaw, Aug. 19.—Russian-Soviet forces are evacuating Brest-Litovsk, strongly fortified town on Bug River, 120 miles east of Warsaw, according to advices received here last night.

Peace Parleys Delayed

London, Aug. 19.—Russo-Polish negotiations at Minsk, were not continued Wednesday as agreed, owing to the fault of the Polish delegation, according to a message despatched from Moscow Wednesday, by George Tichetrickin, Soiet Foreign Minister to Kameneff and Soviet representative in London.

NIAGARA FALLS RESTRICTS NEAR BEER TO HOTEL SALE

Niagara Falls, Aug. 18.—According to an order in Council, the City Council passed a resolution restricting the sale of 2 per cent. beer to standard hotels. The license inspector claims that the restriction would help him, as many sell hard liquor under the cloak of 2 per cent. beer.

Russians Flee In Disorder Before Polish Offensive

PANIC SEIZES SOVIET FORCES BETWEEN VISTULA AND BUG RIVERS—POLISH FORCES ADVANCING WITH EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS — TANKS, AIRPLANES, ARMORED CARS AND ARTILLERY USED IN GREAT NUMBERS BY POLES.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 19.—Russian Soviet forces are fleeing in disorder. Panic rules between the Vistula and Bug rivers, where the Poles are advancing with extraordinary success, according to Tuesday night's official communique.

In counter-attacks to relieve the Bolshevik pressure the Poles are using tanks, airplanes, armored trains and artillery in great numbers. At Novo-Minsk three thousand prisoners, seven cannon, hundreds of wagons and vast quantities of supplies have been captured from the Bolsheviki.

POLISH VICTORIES.

WARSAW Aug. 19.—Polish successes on all fronts, with the exception of the southern battle sector where the Russians are advancing in the direction of Lemberg, are reported in an official statement on fighting operations issued last night. Soviet prisoners are pouring into Warsaw in such numbers that it is becoming a problem to care for them.

Arrest Mayor of Amherstburg

AMHERSTBURG, Aug. 18—Stunned by the arrest this morning of Dr. William Frederick Park, Mayor and Chief Magistrate of Amherstburg, as an alleged violator of the Ontario Temperance Act, citizens of the town tonight formed a Defence Committee composed of men who are pledged to take the case to the highest court.

Hinting at a "frame up" engineered by men recently dismissed from the employment of the municipality, and who are said to have "tipped off" Rev. Mr. Spracklin, Sandwich Methodist minister, now Special Inspector for the Ontario Licensing Department, who made the arrest, members of the committee are also investigating reports that the liquor said to have been found on Dr. Park's premises was "planted" by enemies of the Mayor.

Both Rev. Mr. Spracklin and other License Inspectors decline absolutely to discuss the arrest of Amherstburg's Chief Magistrate. Rumors circulated in Amherstburg this morning that Rev. Mr. Spracklin had found Dr Park assisting County Constable Renaud to load a boat with liquor were denied by friends of the Magistrate.

Both Dr. Park and Constable Renaud, who was also arrested, were brought to Windsor by Inspector Spracklin, arriving there about one o'clock this morning. An effort was made to have Dr. Park released at once on his personal recognizance, but Police Magistrate Miers was not available, and it was several hours before the necessary arrangements could be made for his release. At no time, however, was the Amherstburg Executive actually locked up. He remained in the office chatting with Night Sergeant Brompton, and seemed in no way apprehensive as to the final outcome of the charges against him. Bail in the sum of $2,000 was readily forthcoming this morning, and upon an agreemen with license inspectors, who have authority to release their own prisoners, both Dr. Park and Constable Renaud were given their freedom without being obliged to appear formally before the Police Magistrate. They will appear in eight days for trial, charged with violation of the Ontario Temperance Act.

After "Higher Ups"

Windsor, Aug. 18.—According to members of the local Referendum Committee there is a general plan to clean up by going after "the men higher up."

"We know of at least a dozen men who have made many thousands of dollars out of this liquor business and we are going to get them," is the way one active temperance worker put it tonight.

Toronto Protests Phone Increase

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

TORONTO, Aug. 19. — Protests against proposed increase in telephone rates by Bell Telephone Company especially the new system of charges for business phones are becoming more pronounced as days go by and there is now some talk in business circles of asking the Provincial Government to take over Bell Telephone Company in Ontario as a Government enterprise.

Grain Growers Make Objection

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—The desire of the prairie province representatives that in the event of higher freight rates being granted they should not be made applicable to grain, and more particularly to wheat, was emphasized before the Dominion Railway Board this morning.

Cross examining W. J. Moule, assistant comptroller of the C.P.R., H. J. Symington, Manitoba Government counsel, contended that wheat should not be called upon to pay any losses in the earnings of other commodities carried by railways. Quoting from the government crop estimates, Mr. Symington stated that the present crop is likely to exceed last year's grain production by a hundred and eighty million bushels. Should forty per cent. increase be allowed this would mean additional earnings for all railways of nearly nineteen million dollars, and a margin of nearly thirteen million dollars over train

Tramp's Story As To Child Murder

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 19.—Paddy Gaghan' a tramp, who told a Brantford woman yesterday that David McNeal was not responsible for the death of little Margaret Beaucock of Thorold, and later refused to tell the police anything beyond that he know both McNeal and the child, had been employed intermittently on the Welland ship canal. It was on the route of the ship canal that the body was found. Thorold police do not attach any great importance to Gaghan's remarks, but believe he should be held for further questioning. Magistrate Munroe, of Thorold, announced this morning that the Attorney-General's Department will investigate the riots and also make prosecutions.

RAISE IN RATES MEANS BIG BURDEN

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Business circles in Toronto are still much disturbed by the proposal to establish the message rate system for business phones.

"If it costs four cents every time an employe uses the telephone it will be like having postage stamps all over the place," said one man. "The number of telephones will have to be curtailed and each be subject to strict supervision."

"It will revolutionize office methods," said another man.

Many business houses could not figure out from the details available just what effect the proposals would have on their Bell Telephone bills. It is said that one large concern will have to pay an additional $25,000 a year. Another figured that the new rates would increase its charges from $1,500 to $6,300. Some of the largest subscribers were anxiously trying this morning to get a clear idea of the way they would be affected.

One of the bands coming to the Canadian National Exhibition this year will include a number of opera singers who will present a condensed version of popular operas.

Considerable quantity of garden produce was this morning offered for sale on the market, and prices for same were reasonable. New potatoes sold at $1 per bushel.

PERILS OF THE CITY

A girl's trials and temptations, failures and triumphs in a great city are startlingly and plainly set forth in Rupert Hughes great story "The Thirteenth Commandment." Read Saturday's Intelligencer.

RAILWAY CHANGES

It is reported that C.N.R. night trains between Toronto and Ottawa will shortly run over the G.T.R. tracks between Toronto and Napanee and vica versa. A saving of ten miles will thus be made each trip which in a year's operation would effect a considerable economy.

CLAIMED THE PURSE

A lady resident of the city reported to the police that yesterday she was in a small grocery store in the city and left her purse on the counter which contained $6.30. Later when she called for the purse she was informed that another woman had claimed the purse and had taken it. Who the second party is is not known.

MINISTERS SALARIES

The work of the Ministerial Support Committee is showing excellent results by the reports that are to hand. Already many of the circuits have adopted the new minimum salary of $1650, and it is felt that every circuit is anxious not to fall below this standard. Some of the Boards have deferred action until November meeting in the hope that their people will be the better prepared for this much needed increase.

INDIAN BOY KIDNAPPED.

A nine-year-old Indian lad, claiming to have been enticed from his home in Deseronto by a stranger whose description he furnished, has been picked up by Brantford police and is being taken care of until Deseronto is heard from.

An effort is being made to locate the stranger who brought him to Brantford Wednesday morning by radial from Hamilton, the pair having reached that city by train from Toronto. They had stayed in a Hamilton house over night.

HONORS SEEMED EVENLY DIVIDED

Montreal, Aug. 16.—In a keen inter-city contest at Hudson, Que., Saturday, between the Boys' Naval Brigades of Montreal and Toronto, Toronto carried away the MacAulay Cup for the highest number of points in efficiency and seamanship. In the water sports Montreal won the five-oared one-mile race for the Robertson Cup and the Toronto brigade took the ten-oared gig race of half a mile for the Ross Cup.

Honors on the whole were about evenly divided between the two brigades.

THE 13TH COMMANDMENT

Rupert Hughes is one of the most popular and interesting fiction writers of the day because he draws his characters true to life and his stories carry a moral conductive to higher ideals of living. "The Thirteenth Commandment, one of Rupert Hughes' best stories will begin as a serial in Saturday's Intelligencer. Readers of the first installment will not fail to continue with the story to the end.

Sir Gilbert Parker Welcomed By Masons

to go I shall lie in the most beautiful graveyard in the world, the Belleville cemetery."

He could not quite agree with Mr. Northrup's vision of the King at Ottawa. While all should be proud to think of the seat of Empire at Ottawa, we must not forget the thousand years of tradition which centres around those little isles of the sea and can not be transplanted.

Sir Gilbert spoke eloquently and earnestly of the friendly feeling which should exist between the other provinces and Quebec. Canada is made great and stronger by its union of two nationalities. Let us not forget that French troops hurled back the invaders from across the border; remember De Salaberry. It may be that the French Canadians do not share all of our Imperial aspirations, said the speaker, but he was convinced that if ever it should come to a question of Canada being detached from the Mother Country French Canada would be the first to resent such a move.

Tribute to Sir Wilfrid.

Paying a tribute of respect to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's memory, Sir Gilbert said that while he differed from him on important public questions, they were always on the most intimate and friendly terms, and it could be said of Sir Wilfrid that political differences mad no change in his private friendship.

Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir George Cartier and Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be remembered in history as the most conspicuous of Canada's great men, in the opinion of the speaker, who said that when Sir Wilfrid became Premier he set the seal upon Confederation.

Speaking of the recent troubles in India and Egypt, the speaker said that no alarm need be felt as troubles do not take away, but strengthen the empire. India had contributed a million men to the war and the native princes gave huge gifts to strengthen the hand of Britain against the menace of Germany.

Because Canada is free to choose to remain in the Empire or leave, Canada remains, because she desires to. No Canadian born will regret the part played in the war, for Canada realized she was fighting her own battles as well as those of Empire. He did not believe that the last war had been fought, but where or how the next war would come he knew not, and we must not be unprepared, we must never cease our military discipline or training not because we fear war, but the possibility. Preparation prevents war.

Sir Gilbert expressed his gratitude at the kindly welcome and greeting to himself, his wife and sister. His wife just now is in China, but he was sure she would be delighted at the kindly remembrance of Belleville Masons, which he should at once convey to her.

In closing Sir Gilbert proposed a toast to the three Masonic Lodges of Belleville, which was responded to by Dr. J. W. Kinnear, W.M. of Moira Lodge, No. 11; and F. E. O'Flynn for Eureka Lodge, No. 283, who made brief addresses conveying the kindliest feelings of brotherhood to the guest of honor.

Beautiful Belleville.

The toast to the City of Belleville was proposed in very appropriate terms by John Elliott in an eloquent tribute of appreciation of the guest of the evening, also drawing attention to the many acts of kindness and courtesy extended by Sir Gilbert to Canadians visiting in London, especially Belleville citizens.

Ald. Jamieson Bone, President of the Chamber of Commerce, responded to the toast and extended a hearty civic welcome to Sir Gilbert Parker, of whose achievements the citizens were so justly proud. Mr. Bone called attention to the civic improvements now under way which would make Belleville one of the most beautiful cities in Canada. The city was prosperous as never before, new industries are locating here and there is a spirit of progress which augurs well for the future. The City Council, he believed, were doing their utmost to further the interests of the city and the future would justify their actions.

"Auld Lang Syne, sung with a vim and friendly spirit, with all hands joined around the tables, brought to a close one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent in Belleville, and one long to be remembered for its feast of reason and flow of soul, sociability and exemplification of the true Masonic spirit of fraternity and just appreciation.

PONZI'S SCHEME IN RECEIVERSHIP

Boston, Aug. 18.—It was agreed in the Federal Court that Charles Ponzi's get-rich-quick scheme should be placed in receivership for the benefit of the 10,000 outstanding creditors whose claims run into several million dollars. Counsel for Ponzi joined with petitioning creditors and Attorney-General Allen in an agreement that a receivership was advisable, but advanced the possibility that Ponzi would prove to be solvent after all, and asked for representation in the receivership.

Graces Of God As A Teacher

The following is the subject of an address delivered by Mr. T. Rich, in Bethel Hall:

"The Grace of God that bringeth Salthe lessons that Grace has to teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world."—Titus 2: 11, 12, 13.

Our text introduces us to the Grace of God as a teacher, as well as a Saviour: but it can never teach me until it has first saved me. The natural man is at enmity with God, and his unrenewed mind incapable of appreciating teh lessons that Grace has to teach, but Grace having reached him in saving him, he at once becomes a scholar in the school of God.

1. Inwardly, as expressed by the word Soberly, which simply means with inward self government. This sphere of government is the most difficult of all, for self is a rebel indeed of the most virulent type, and yet this subjection of self to the teaching of the Grace of God is but the normal condition that should mark the state of all who have been saved by the Grace of God.

2. Outwardly. The second lesson is that which teaches and regulates the practical side of my life, and it teaches me to be righteous in my dealings with my fellow men. "He leadeth me in the path of righteousness," were words that the sweet singer of Israel made use of in the Shepherd Psalm. Many mistakes may have been avoided, much sorrow need not have been endured and the Holy name of the Lord would not so often have been dishonoured if we had only more deeply taken this truth to heart. No leading can be of God, no path, his path for us, that is not marked by righteousness from first to last. Therefore when I see a person who is a slave to habit or passion I know that such a one has not learnt the first lesson that grace would teach to live soberly. Or, when I see a person not ordering his affairs with discretion, but through extravagance, getting into debt, I am sure that the second lesson of grace has not been learnt, to live righteously.

3 Upwardly. We should also live Godly. The palmist makes complaint that the Godly man ceaseth. How true. It was said of the late J. N. Darby that though on earth he lived in heaven. In other words he was living Godly. What an irresistible charm there is about such a life, may we one and all whom Grace has saved seek to follow the footsteps of such men.

4 Expectantly. The fourth lesson to be learnt in the wondrous school of grace is to live expectantly Expectant of what may we ask, of Death? No, but of the coming of the Lord. Looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour, Jesus Christ.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

WOOLFOLK'S "VANITY FAIR 1920"

Boyle Woolfolk, producer of many musical comedies of note, will produce his latest and most brilliant musical comedy, "Vanity Fair 1920" at Griffin's to-morrow night for the opening of the dramatic season. Mr. Woolfolk has spared nothing to make his presentation of "Vanity Fair" one of the high lights of the theatrical year. The book of "Vanity Fair" is by John P. Mulgrew, with lyrics and music by Felix Rice. The twenty odd musical numbers which illuminate the score through the two acts and twelve scenes will be whistled on the streets many days after the performance. Most prominent among them may be mentioned "Fiddling Around," "Art's a Wonderful Thing," and others both charming and melodious. The leading comedy role is in the capable hands of Elmer Coudy. In the cast are a flock of girls, veritable fashion plates and known as "Vanities Fairest."

MAY ALLISON IN "THE WALK-OFFS"

The beautiful May Allison in "The Walkoff's" a comedy in satirical mood of New York society will be the feature attraction at Griffin's to-night to Saturday. It is an adaptation of the big Broadway stage success by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, which was produced by Oliver Morosco.

The action of the play takes place in and about the homes of wealthy society leaders in New York City and in the studios of those who are more interested in art for the sake of diversion than for itself. A magnificent divorce court scene with its setting and action carried through in satirical vein is one of the earlier and most amusing scenes of the production.

The play is said to give May Allison a chance to appear to the greatest advantage. In the character of Kathleen Rutherford, a young society woman, she is sought by a wealthy bounder of society and a young Kentucky mine owner. She understands the one but does not love him; the other is from a world that is strange to her and the romance that results is tense and absorbing. Joseph Kilgour plays the role of the wealthy New Yorker in the manner which has won him popular recognition in the motion picture world. Emory Johnson who has had a successful career as leading man for a number of screen favorites, plays the part of the Kentuckian and Darrell Foss has been cast in the part of Kathleen's brother. Claire Du Brey and Yvonne Pavis have been assigned to important parts.

Charles Hutchison appears on the same program in his thrilling "stunt" picture, "The Whirlwind," British Canadian News Pictorial, a 2-reel comedy and an interesting Outing Chester Travelogue will also be presented on the same program.

THREE MONTHS FOR SWEARING FALSE AGE FOR BRIDE

Kingston, Aug. 18.—Judge Lavell sentenced Luther Crowder to three months in jail, finding him guilty of perjury in giving the age of his bride to the issuer of the marriage license as eighteen, when she was only a little over fifteen. The judge said he gave the sentence with regret, but was forced to do so. The young couple were married a month ago. The girl bride wept when her husband was taken to jail to serve his sentence.

PAPER MERGER TO HAVE IMMENCE CAPITAL

Montreal, Aug. 19.—Following the rumors when it was announced that Sir Lomer Gouin had joined the editorial staff of La Press to the effect that this meant the beginning of a giant merger of paper and pulp interests in Canada with the aid of British capital, La Presse publishes the following: "The St. Maurice Merger will be the name of the amalgamation of the principal paper makers of the St. Maurice Region for which negotiations commenced in London some months ago and which are now being carried on in New York and Montreal. "Those in well informed circles state that the merger will have a capital of at least one hundred million dollars and will take in the Laurentide Company, the Belgo Canadian Pulp and Paper Company, the Wayagamack Paper Company and the International Paper Company, the latter concern putting in only its Canadian holdings which are situated at Three Rivers. This rumor will explain the recent activities in these stocks."

NO EXCUSE FOR LYNCH LAW IN CANADA

The riot at Thorold where the town hall was set on fire and a prisoner, accused of the murder of a little girl, nearly lynched, after scenes of great disorder in the streets, is another evidence of the fact that the war has left an aftermath of hair-trigger temper and unrest which takes but little to cause an explosion.

While Thorold citizens have great cause for intense indignation over the diabolical crime which resulted in the torture and death of a little girl, there is no excuse for lynch law in Canada.

The process of law here is sure, speedy and affords equal justice to all in so far as human instruments are capable, and law and order must be maintained at all costs.

The disorder at Thorold might easily have resulted in the sacrifice of innocent lives and other murders piled upon the attempt to avenge the murder of the little girl.

The people cannot take the law into their own hands without endangering the lives and properties and peace and happiness of their neighbors and respect for the law is the first requisite of all level-headed Canadians.

It is fortunate, indeed, that the temper of the Thorold crowd finally veered into common-sense channels before accomplishing the extreme purpose planned by the hot-heads.

INDUSTRIAL CONSOLIDATION.

The necessity of large industrial units for the efficient development of natural resources is being recognized throughout the world to a greater extent than ever before. The British Empire Steel Corporation in Canada, with a large capital and unified control over what was formerly a number of separate companies, is paralleled by an important development in the Far East where two large British companies have consolidated their projects for further development of the timber resources of British North Borneo. The Far Eastern Division of the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce says that this development is expected to affect the entire timber and lumber trade of the Far East and perhaps quite appreciably that of the United States along the Asiatic Coast.

BUILDERS VS. WRECKERS.

"The old party alignments are pretty well grown over now. Six turbulent years have done the work. The old battlements are more or less destroyed. There are still, I know, voices tuned to the old music, but the great mass of men and women are thinking and must think along other lines.

"Looking over the world today and then fixing eyes on Canada, I see only two divisions of our people, only two classes in this country. I see on the one side those who hold steady, who walk firmly in the middle of the road, who learn from experience, who believe in industry and ordered liberty, who still have faith in good old British institutions and British principles that have made us what we are. On the other side, I see those who have given way to prejudices, to class consciousness, to passion for change and experiment, whose minds are occupied in nurturing suspicion and hostility against other classes of the State.

"On the one side I see the builders of this country on foundations tried and true. On the other side are those engaged in the cheerful exercise of tearing down. I put the question to you: Are you going to be a nation-builder or a nation-wrecker? Let us gather around a standard that we know and that our fathers knew. Let other people indulge, if they must, in the sport of freak governments and heterogeneous parliaments and experimental policies of State, but let us not forget the lessons of fifty years in our own land, nor what has been written for our instruction abroad. Let us hold to the path and to the principles that have led us into lusty strength, into peace with honor, into relative happiness and plenty, and made of us the most vigorous and promising of the younger nations of the earth."—Mr. Meighen at Stirling.

Additional messages over one hundred per month are to be charged at four cents each in Toronto and Montreal, on the principle of greater service, greater charge. OTHER VIEWS

An Agreeable Duty
(New York Times)

We have promise of another year in which the value of the country's agricultural products will equal national debts. The physical and financial movement of such value across the Continent, and across seas for all we can spare, tasks even the Federal Reserve and could hardly be possible without it or at least not without strain which already seems behind us. It is an agreeable duty to uphold the Treasury and the Federal Reserve in a policy which has caused some financial unrest as discipline usually does. Governor Harding's statement last week shows that at the first opportunity sympathy and encouragment are expressed instead of the "sternness which originally was necessary. Until now the harvest has proceeded most encouragingly and only future events can cloud the expectation.

The Fiction of German Equality
(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

The meeting at Spa is the first occasion since 1914 when representatives of France and England on terms of theoretical equality. At all other conferences the Germans have come as representatives of a criminal and vanquished nation to receive terms arbitrarily imposed by the conquerors. Perhaps, after all, the old way was the better. It was certainly more expeditious. And, in the end, the same methods are used by the Allies. They dicker with Germany, receive her refusals, make their concessions and at last send for Foch. The fiction of German equality with the other nations falls down when Foch comes.

Mistaken Females
(Buffalo Courier)

Different organizations of women are campaigning against what they consider the extremes to which some women go in their dress to attract the male. Jane Austen once said many ladies would be mortified if they knew how little attention men paid to what was new or costly in their attire.

THE POET'S CORNER

THE DAYS GONE BY

Oh, the days gone by! Oh, the days gone by!
The apple in the orchard, and the pathway through the rye,
The chirrup of the robin, and the whistle of the quail.
As he piped across the meadows sweet as any nightingale;
When the bloom was on the clover, and the blue was in the sky,
And my happy heart brimmed over in the days gone by.

Oh, the days gone by! Oh, the days gone by!
The music of the laughing lip, the lustre of the eye;
The childish faith in fairies, and Aladdin's magic ring—
The simple soul reposing, glad belief in everything—
When life was like a story, holding neither sob nor sigh,
In the golden, olden glory of the days gone by!

LOST CITY FOUND.

New British Possession in Mesopotamia.

An ancient city has been discovered in Mesopotamia, bordering the Tigris river for some twenty miles, yet so well "lost" that a traveler, approaching it under ordinary conditions, would have merely noticed the presence of a number of low, scattered mounds, and gone his way, without realizing that here was once a city. One must go higher up and look down on the arrangement of the mounds before one realises their relation to each other, and sees the plan of the city; and this is what happened, says the London Sphere, when Lieut.-Col. C. A. Beazeley noticed the mounds from an airplane, and took aerial photographs of them. Blue prints were made from the photographs, and when these were supplemented by the measurements of surveyors working on the ground, the plan of the city was revealed as it might have been by its own architects and builders, if such plans were then customary. The ruins extend above and below the present town of Samara, and show that the forgotten city, here following the left bank of the river, was from one to two and a half miles in width, with wide streets intersecting at right angles, and with larger blocks near the river, indicating that here were the homes of the wealthier citizens. One sees in the plan what was probably a large public garden, with a pavillion in the centre, and discovers also the square forts that protected the town from enemies, or perhaps the authorities from mobs, as well as the remains of the irrigation system that helped its gardeners. How old the city may be is not yet determined, but evidence of considerable antiquity have been discovered in the ruins.

Turned Down Best Sellers.

The literary beginner is apt to be downhearted when his pet production is returned with a cold printed intimation that it is not acceptable to an editor or publisher. But he is in good company, says Stray Stories.

"East Lynne," as novel and play, has been more profitable than a gold mine, yet it was rejected by George Meredith when publisher's reader for Chapman & Hall.

That famous sensational novel, "Called Back," was published by the Bristol publisher Arrowsmith, and just when it was at the height of its success a young man sent some new stories from India, with a letter which made the publisher imagine the writer thought too much of himself, so he rejected the stories. He regretted it to the day of his death, because the young man was Rudyard Kipling.

Rider Haggard said that "Dawn" was sent back to him at least six times before it found a publisher.

W. W. Jacobs had a similar experience with "Many Cargoes." He tried it all around London until another humorist, Jerome, took pity on it and ran the stories in To-day.

J. J. Bell actually had to publish "Wee Macgregor" himself. He got John Hassell to draw the famous cover and became his own publisher with excellent results to himself and the public.

One publishing house has the record of having declined Stevenson, Barrie, Kipling, and Crockett! Certain it is that R. L. S. did not find it easy to sell "Treasure Island."

Basuto Chief Amazed.

Lerothodi, the great Basuto chief, who recently returned home from his visit to England, when asked by a representative of the Natal Witness what amazed him most on his trip replied:

"The great works of the ship and the cleverness of the white people in sailing the vessel through such a vast sea day and night."

London made a tremendous impression on the Basutos. They saw more sights and people than they could remember. The people, motor cars, motorcycles, bicycles, and numberless vehicles somewhat stupefied them.

What struck the chief more than anything was the London policeman. The chief grew quite enthusiastic, and went through the signs of the policeman in directing the traffic, and he remarked with astonishment: "When a day is finished and darkness sets in, I thought some one would be killed, but there are no accidents."

Oldest Free Library.

Though the oldest of the municipal public libraries represented at the recent Southport congress of the Library Association—those of Manchester—date only from 1852, quite a number of English towns had free libraries of a sort as early as the beginning of the 17th century. Norwich opened a free library in 1608, and Dr. Toby Matthew, Archbishop of York, assisted a Mr. Robert Redwood to found a similar institution at Bristol in 1615. Leicester, too, had a free library in 1632, and in 1653 Sir Humphrey Chetham founded the noble Chetham Library at Manchester. Despite many ups and down these and other similar town collections remained in use until, for the most part, incorporated in modern municipal libraries.

A Corn?
Why, a touch will end it!

A corn today is needless, and millions of people know it.

Years ago nearly every woman had them. Now women who know Blue-jay never suffer corns.

"Thou Shalt Not Spend More Than Thou Earnest"

Extravagance and living beyond one's means are aimed at in the new commandment which Rupert Hughes gives us in the new serial from the pen of this well-known and popular writer that we have secured.

The Thirteenth Commandment

is an unusually interesting story of modern life set on the fringe of New York high society, describing the struggles of a little group of people working out the problem of romance versus finance.

Once you start reading the story you will surely finish it, and having finished it you will be glad you started it.

CONSIDER GIFT HIGH HONOR

Comparatively Few Persons Are Presented With the "Freedom of the City of London."

The freedom of the city of London, with which the prince of Wales was presented recently, is one of the most cherished and ancient of civic privileges. The actual document given to his royal highness is a piece of parchment inscribed with his names and titles and guaranteeing to him and his descendants many privileges to which he would not otherwise be entitled. Thus he will not have to pay a tax on any goods brought within the city gates, nor will he have to render naval or military service. Should he fall on evil lines the prince of Wales would be entitled to pecuniary aid. Should he in the course of years pass away, leaving children, the city chamberlain would educate them and administer their property until they arrive at years of maturity. It is usual to inclose the "freedom" in a gold casket, which costs the city £100 ($500), but the certificates, in the case of the prince of Wales, will be in a frame and the casket will be represented by silver plate. In the case of General Booth the casket was of simple, sturdy oak.

Thermometer Trade to U. S.

With adequate labor American manufacturers of thermometers, besides being able to supply fully the wants of the domestic trade, are in a position to build up a good export business, but, as is the case in so many industries, they are handicapped at present by the shortage of skilled workers. The making of thermometers is mostly a hand process, with a year's experience or more necessary for the development of a skilled worker.

Starting in the war period, when German goods were shut out of the country, the American thermometer industry has shown marked advancement. Before the war Germany controlled the market here as well as those in other countries, but nearly all of the business formerly held by Germany in South America has been procured by concerns in the United States. It is not believed that Germany will regain her position in the domestic market, and much of the South American business, it is predicted, will be held by the American manufacturers.—New York Tribune.

Fascinating Ukulele.

Many people, even now, may think of the ukulele as a Russian province, or an eastern title, yet it happens to be neither, but a small musical instrument which, according to a writer in the London Daily Chronicle, recently baffled the experience even of the customs man, who refused to recognize it as such and permitted its entry into England free of duty. The little South sea ukulele is not unlike a "fiddle that you play with your fingers," to the eye of the uninitiated, but all who hear it admit its sweetness and the charm of its plaintive voice. No doubt one of these days England will become aware of the fascination of the ukulele, even as America has already done. The customs man will then exact his legitimate toll, and a strange, wild music will haunt the London streets.

TRADE UNIONS.

Were Once Illegal But Are Now Very Powerful.

Only a hundred years ago it was a crime to belong to a trade union in England.

It was not until the year 1824 that this system was put an end to. Even then it remained a penal offence to "molest or in any way obstruct another person for the purpose of inducing such person to belong to any club or association or to contribute to any common fund."

It was not until 1871 that the first Trade Union Act was passed, and that unions were able to register as friendly societies.

At once sixty-six unions registered themselves; their property was legally vested in trustees, and in their names a union cauld sue or be sued, while it could proceed summarily against any persons who embezzled or misappropriated its funds.

Since that date never a year has passed without the adding of new trade unions to the constantly-growing list. The largest number registered in any one year was in 1889, when there were sixty-five; the smallest in 1884, when only twelve were registered. To-day the number of trade unions in Great Britain exceeds seven hundred.

There are unions with memberships running into hundreds of thousands, and with branches extending all over the kingdom; there are little unions that are hardly ever heard of, with but a score or so of members. Some years ago the Cabinet Makers Federation of London had actually but a dozen members, while the Paper Stainers Union, a very ancient one, had only fifty.

Other small unions are those of the barometer and thermometer tube-blowers, and of the tin canister and preserved provision case makers.

There is probably no trade or industry which does not boast a union of some sort. For instance, keepers of London coffee-stalls, those useful institutions where the night worker can always find refreshment, have their own association. So, too, have the dock watchmen, about whom Mr. W. W. Jacobs writes so delightfully.

There is even a union of "street sellers and pedlars," and a "Street Traders' Brotherhood." The oldest trade union in existence is said to be that of the United Society of Brush Makers.

Lancashire has more unions than any other county in the kingdom, and second in point of numbers comes the County of London.

In Florida there is always a ready market for baby alligators. They are sold to tourists for pets, alive, or sometimes stuffed for curios.

The only way to get them in quantity is to dig up alligators nests, which are found usually on the sandy banks of streams, take the eggs and hatch them artificially.

This can be done in rather primitive fashion by burying the eggs in boxes of moist sand and exposing the boxes to sunshine on a roof.

Experience has proved, however, that an ordinary chicken incubator serves the purpose better, temperature and others conditions being perfectly controllable.

The babies, under natural conditions, emerge from the sandbank and find their way as quickly as possible into the water. But pelicans, skunks and other enemies are on the watch to pick them up and mortality is large.

After the first year or two of life they have virtually no foes to fear except man. They grow very slowly and it is likely that a 12-foot specimen may be a couple of centuries old.

HAIR OFTEN RUINED BY CARELESS WASHING

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

BODY IS IDENTIFIED WEEKS AFTER FATALITY

Toronto, Aug. 19.—After five weeks the body of a man killed by a train at Sunnyside on July 11th at midnight, was identified as that of William McLeod of Pickering, Ont.

The identification was made by a relative from a photograph, taken after death, and some jewelry.

This kinsman came to Inspector Guthrie, chief of detectives, to report a man as missing, and when he was described, Guthrie recognized the description and produced the photograph of the unknown.

The body, because unclaimed, went to the medical college, but will be restored to the family.

VILLAGES THAT GO MAD.

Queer Crazes of Country Folks In Some Places.

Quite a fashionable craze has taken hold of the little village of Cerrio, near San Francisco, says Pearson's Weekly. The crazing for seances with planchettes or ouija boards, by which it is claimed spirit messages may be received, has reached such a pitch that many of the inhabitants have gone mad and been hied to the lunatic asylum. As a result, the whole village is to be submitted to an examination by mental specialists.

Small villages are not infrequently subject to crazes. Their life is generally so placid that a new pursuit of unusual interest is apt to take an undue hold upon the population.

A stranger entered a sleepy little village in a remote spot of Switzerland some years ago, seated himself in the inn and produced a chess board. The inn cronies gathered round him wonderingly. They had never seen a chess board before, and showed such keenness in learning the game that before long the visitor had inculcated the whole village with chess mania. Chess men and boards were ordered in large quantities and the game played with such zest that both men and women neglected their duties in pursuit of it. The village became known in the country as "the village that is chess-mad."

When Halley's comet last appeared an astronomer betook himself to a little village in South America, setting up there an improvised observatory for the purpose of viewing the great fiery streak. It was in a wild district, and the natives, who knew nothing of telescopes, were intensely interested in his great "magnifying tube."

Ultimately the chief men were granted permission to peer through it at the heavens, and were so delighted with the experiment that they induced the astronomer to secure for them a number of small telescopes. This was done, and for a long time afterwards the villagers spent the greater part of their nights in "star gazing."

During the vogue of the "diablo" toy some years ago a village in the north of England went diabolo mad. It was computed that there were about two diabolo outfits in the possession of every family.

JOINT RESIDENCE NOT PRIVATE

St. Thomas, Ont., Aug. 18.—In the case of William O'Connor, a Hamilton man spending the summer at Port Stanley, charged with violation of the O. T. A., in having liquor in a cottage shared jointly by the defendant and his brother-in-law, County Police Magistrate Hunt decided this morning that such a residence, shared jointly by two families, could not be considered a private dwelling within the meaning of the Act, and he therefore authorized the seizure of the liquor. His Worship, however, expressed a wish that the case be taken to a higher court as his decision affected many of the summer residents at the Port. Notice of appeal was filed by Barrister W. G. Meredith of London, the defendant's counsel.

Some time during last night death came suddenly to Mrs. Mary E. Dalton, wife of Mr. John Dalton, residing at 14 Wickett street, city, she having been found dead in bed this morning. For some time past Mrs. Dalton had been in failing health. She was born in Hungerford Township some 77 years ago, and was a daughter of the late Mr. John Farnsworth. For the past 36 years she had resided in Belleville. She was a member of the Methodist church. No family survives. The nearest relatives are three nephews and five nieces.

Two Children Killed In Trenton

Train Hits Auto on Level Crossing With Fatal Results

A distressing fatality occurred at the town of Trenton at about 10.30 yesterday morning at a Canadian National Railway crossing in the west end of the town, when Grand Trunk train No. 10 struck a car driven by L. A. Darling of Trenton, killing two children named Woodbeck and severely injuring their mother. The car was badly smashed and Darling was badly shaken up. Verda Woodbeck, aged 5 years was instantly killed, her little head being smashed beyond resemblance. The infant Woodbeck, about 3 months old died later as the result of injuries. It appears Mr. Darling was driving the party to the Firemen's Park, where a celebration was in progress, when the approach of the express was not noticed until the crossing near the round house was reached and the engine struck the front of the car. Dr. Yeomans, coroner of this city was requested to hold an inquest but was unable to do so, and Dr. Boyce of this city went to Trenton and opened an inquest. After the jury had viewed the body of the little girl and identification had been established the enquiry was adjourned until Tuesday evening next. The deplorable affair has cast a gloom over the town, as the family involved are well and favorably known.

Electrocuted In Windsor Garage

At Windsor Wednesday morning, a deplorable and fatal accident occurred when Leon Goyer of Belleville, an employe of the Copeland Motor Company was electrocuted, when he grasped the steel control cable on an elevator which had become grounded. Other men in the building rushed to aid him when they heard his cries for help but he died a few minutes after being freed from the cable Walter Copeland, son of the proprietor, narrowly escaped a similar fate when he grasped the cable. Goyer received 550 volts of electricity. The victim was well and favorably known in this city where he was born 22 years ago. He was a son of the late Mr. Augustus Goyer who passed away on the 18th of May of this year. Leon was a fine young man and had a host of friends here. Previous to going to Windsor about a month ago, he was employed at The Elliott Machinery Company, Limited. Deceased was a member of St. Michael's Church. Surviving are the mother, seven brothers and three sisters. The brothers are Frank, Fred, Archie, Joseph, Napoleon, Lawrence and Charles, the latter being a twin of deceased. The sisters are Mrs. Leslie Powell, of Bay Point, Cal., Mrs. Smith of Montreal and Miss Helen of Belleville. The body will arrive here at midnight to-night.

DALTON—In Belleville on Wednesday August 18th, 1920, Mary Elizabeth Dalton, wife of John Dalton, aged 70 years, 6 months.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 14 Wickett street Saturday, 21st inst., at 2.30 p.m. Service at the house at 2 oclock. Interment Belleville cemetery.

THOU SHALT NOT

Peculiarly appropriate for the present time of high prices and unsettled conditions is the story by Rupert Hughes, entitled "The Thirteenth Commandment," exemplifying the maxim "Thou shalt not spend more than thou earnest." This startling story of New York city bright lights and somber shadows begins in The Intelligencer on Saturday. Take a tip, read it, it's a hummer.

St Michael's Picnic Enjoyable Outing

Attendance Very Large — Weather Perfect and Program the Best Ever

An event that is looked forward to with considerable interest to many in the city and vicinity is the annual picnic of St. Michael's Church of this city. It was held yesterday at Holton's Grove on the western limits of the city and was in every respect a decided success. The day was ideal for a picnic and many availed themselves of the opportunity for an outing. During the forenoon a goodly number were upon the grounds, and in the afternoon all roads led to the grove and hundreds wended their way to the spot, which by the way, is an ideal spot for such a gathering. Visitors were present from Trenton, Napanee, Deseronto and other places in the vicinity. At noon and evening, dinner and supper was provided by the ladies of the congregation and the spreads were all that could have been desired. About the grounds were distributed a number of booths conducted by ladies and all were liberally patronized. A place of attraction was the large dancing hall which has just been erected. During the afternoon and evening, many availed themselves of the opportunity of tripping the light fantastic to appropriate music.

After dinner the following program of sports was carried out:

Boys' race, 8 yrs. and under—J. Murphy; J. Doran; L. Connolly.

Boys' race, 10 yrs. and under—Jas. Murphy; J. Welch; W. Flagler.

Boys' race 16 yrs. and under—J. Day; W. Wheeler; S. Curry.

Girls' race open—C. Flagler; A. Finnegan; E. Barriage.

100 yard dash—A. Meagher; T. Maraskas; G. Maidens.

Married ladies' race—Mrs. A. Goyer; Mrs. J. Ethier; Mrs. J. R. Calbury.

Boot race—A. Palmer; V. White; B. Barriage.

Baseball Match

Interest was centred in the baseball match between the G.T.R. team of this city and the St. Francis team of Toronto, but unfortunately just as the game started, word was received of the fatal accident to Leon Goyer, brother to Fred Goyer, a pitcher for the G.T.R. and the latter with his brother Frank, retired from the game. At this period the visitors were at the bat for the first innings and two were out. Parker replaced Goyer and before the third man was retired, six of the players had crossed the plate. This virtually won the game for the Toronto team. In the next six innings, Joe Kelleher, pitched for the G.T.R. team and he delivered good ball, only three runs being secured off him. The final score was 9 to 3 in favor of St. Francis. Outside of the first innings it was a good game of ball, both teams playing well. Dr. O'Callaghan was umpire and whilst there appeared to be some fault found with his decisions, from an unbiased point of view, he appeared to be impartial in his decisions. The line up was as follows:

G.T.R.—Ross, c.f.; Weir, s.s.; Meagher, 3rd b.; W. Mills, c.; Parker, r.f.; Symons, c.f.; H. Mills, 1st b.; Kelleher, p. and l.f.; Casey, 2nd b.; F. Goyer, p.

St. Francis—Dillon, r.f.; Glynn, s.s. Genion, 2nd b.; Benson, 3rd b.; Ouimet c.f.; McCool, 1st b.; Briton, c.; Morley p.

Score by innings:
St. Francis—6 1 0 0 0 0 2—9
G. T. R.—0 0 0 1 2 0 0—3.

HALF PINT IN POCKET, RESULT $2,000 FINE

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 19.—Found guilty of violating the Ontario Temperance Act by being in possession of half a pint of whiskey, William R. Brown, a Michigan Central fireman, of St. Thomas, collapsed when Magistrate Miers warned him that the offense was punishable by a minimum fine of $2000 and six months imprisonment. The magistrate deferred sentence and Brown was carried from the court room.

TWO KILLED; THIRD MOTOR VICTIM DYING

Montreal, Aug. 19.—Two persons were killed and a third is dying at the Notre Dame Hospital following an auto accident on the St. Vincent de Paul road about 15 miles from Montreal. The dead are:

Joseph Papin, twenty-two years old, Marie Louise street, Montreal, chauffeur, killed instantly, his head striking a tree; and Jeanette Brunette, 17 years old, who suffered a fractured skull and died a few minutes after admission to Notre Dame Hospital.

The injured are: Mrs. Eugenie Grenier, twenty years old, with fractured spine, and not expected to live; Albert Vezina, eighteen, fractured right leg; Armand St. Pierre, fifteen, severe bruises and cuts about the head.

The car took a curve in the road while travelling at great speed, and in swerving to avoid another machine, spun around like a top and struck a tree, the five occupants being thrown in all directions.

HEAD FOR A HEAD ADMITS KILLING WIFE

Saskatoon, Aug. 19.—"No, I kill wife; I satisfied; no need lawyer; I lose everything; a head for a head," was the only remark of Ignot Olkovitch, at his preliminary hearing at Kamsack, on a charge of wife murder. The man has twice been an inmate of a Battleford asylum, and was said to be given to fits of religious mania.

This is the third of a series of violent deaths in Kamsack district in a week. The wife of Wasyl Dutczyszn committed suicide with carbolic acid after a quarrel with her husband. Warren Baker, 86, was knocked down and killed by an automobile driven by Richard Shenky.

Lost His Own Life Trying To Save Fellow Worker

WINDSOR TRAGEDY RESULT OF CONTROL CABLE OF ELEVATOR BECOMING CHARGED WITH ELECTRICITY—LEON GOYER LOST HIS LIFE TRYING TO SAVE FELLOW WORKMAN WHO FIRST GRASPED DEATH-DEALING CABLE.

The sad death of Leon Goyer, a popular young man of Belleville, which occurred as the result of an accident at Windsor where he was working, has shocked his many friends here and deep and universal sympathy is felt for the sorrowing relatives. Leon Goyer was a young man whose many kindly qualities won for him a host of friends and his untimely death is sincerely regretted.

"Leon Goyer, an employe of the Copeland Motor Company, was electrocuted at the garage, 194 Sandwich street west, at 9.15 o'clock Wednesday morning, when he seized the steel control cable of the elevator which had become grounded in some way.

"He received 550 volts of eelctricity.

"Hearing cries for help, F. L. Copeland and Fred Duck, who were in the office of the building, rushed into the garage and found Goyer holding to the cable with one hand and his foot jammed beneath the car which was on a level with the cement floor on which Goyer was standing.

"The car had locked automatically when it struck Goyer's foot and he was unable to either let go of the steel cable or step back from the elevator.

Aid Too Late

"Mr. Copeland and Mr. Duck at once seized hold of the man receiving a severe shock through his body. They pulled him back and managed to release him from the cable after which they raised the car by means of a crow bar and released his foot. Goyer was living at that time but died a few minutes later as a result of the shock he had received.

"Dr. Holmes was brought to the scene by Burton Copeland, who went after the physician in an auto. Upon his arrival he pronounced the man dead.

"Walter Copeland, younger son of F. L. Copeland had a narrow escape from a similar fate to that which overtook Goyer, having been the first to take hold of the cable, which was charged with electricity. He cried out and by a supreme effort let go just as he felt himself fainting away. Goyer, hearing his cries, rushed to the scene and seized the cable to stop the empty car as it decended, and got the full force of the shock.

Tells Of Accident

"In describing the accident Walter Copeland states that he was upon the main floor and took hold of the cable to bring the elevator down one flight as he wished to take up a car. As soon as the lift began to move downward he got the shock and was unable to let go. He called for assistance and just as he was losing consciousness released his hold upon the cable.

"Goyer rushed over and seized the cable to stop the descending elevator He was unable to pull the control and the car descended until it struck his foot and locked automatically. The gate was closed at the time. Goyer having reached over it to seize the control wire. When Mr. Copeland, Sr., and Mr. Duck rushed out of the office they found Walter standing against the wall and Goyer holding the cable with his foot jammed beneath the car.

The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Albany Janisse, Sandwich street, and subsequently was sent to Belleville for interment.

To Find Trouble

"The men who installed the elevator have been called to locate the trouble They admit that the cable must have grounded, and say they never heard of such an accident before. It is thought the steel control cable must have come in contact with the electrical control apparatus on the top floor. It is understood to be carefully insulated but as the cable makes a complete circuit it would act as an excellent conductor should it come in contact with the current at any point.

"The elevator was being used continually up to the time of the accident and had been in motion just a few minutes before Walter Copeland took hold of the control to bring it to the main floor. Others who used it say they experienced no shock.

"Mr. Copeland says that Goyer was a good workman and a likeable young man."

Secret Service Operatives Busy In Russia for A Year

HAVE BEEN BUSY GATHERING EVIDENCE WITH WHICH TO COMBAT THE SOVIET PROPAGANDA IN AMERICA—DEPORTED FROM THE UNITED STATES WITH ANARCHISTS — FRATERNIZED WITH TROTSKY, LENINE & CO.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—A. Mitchell Palmer Attorney-General of the United States is the head of a vast underground organization of international intelligence agents. An army of United States detectives has been busy since the armistice gathering data to combat the Moscow propaganda.

Several of the cleverest of the operatives, one of whom distinguished himself in the capture of the Zimmerman note to Mexico, by which Germany thought to get that country into war with the United States, actually penetrated into Russia by means of documents purporting to come from Red leaders in the United States. This group apparently had unlimited funds at its disposal.

Four other agents, it was stated, were "deported" from the United States on the boat which took Emma Goldman and other Anarchists back to Russia These four were listed as "undesirable Anarchists."

They attempted to gain the confidence of Lenine, Trotszky, Kameneff and other leaders of the Bolshevist Government.

During more than a year of operations, the secret agents successfully sent to the United States a mass of documents describing the inner workings of Communism, particularly in Moscow, Petrograd, Novgorod, Vilna, Kief and other large centres.

Good Roads From Windsor To Sea

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—That it will be possible by next summer to travel over improved highways from Windsor, Ont., to St. John, N.B., is the hope of officials of the Federal Highways Aid Department.

If present indications are borne out by subsequent construction there will be good roads all the way between these points, and also between Niagara Falls and St. John, N.B. There will remain, however, the necessity of ferrying across the Ottawa river on the highway between Ottawa and Montreal.

American motorists who took part in a recent Michigan pike tour expressed surprise at having the Canadian roads as good as they were. Some of them who have done extensive travelling over the famed Lincoln Highway declared that the roads they had encountered in Northern Ontario during their recent journeys were better in their present state than were some parts of the Lincoln Highway.

Fell From Deck Of Str. Britannic

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 20.—Mrs. Rankin, William David street, Maisonneuve, Montreal accompanied by a child three years old, took passage on the steamer Britannic to visit her husband a returned soldier, at Kingston. Just after leaving Cardinal Canal the crew were notified by passengers that the woman, who afterward proved to be Mrs. Rankin had fallen or jumped over board. It was noticed that she made an effort to swim, and succeeded in keeping afloat until a boat was lowered and went to her rescue, which was accomplished as the woman was on the point of exhaustion. She received medical attention at Prescott and from there was brought on to Brockville. Arrangements are being made to have her temporarily cared for at the Ontario Hospital. On her person was found $400 in Victory bonds and some $65 in cash. Her mind is thought to be unbalanced.

LITTLE GIRL DROWNED IN THE WELLAND CANAL

Welland, Ont., Aug. 19.—A sad drowning fatality occurred this morning midway between Humberstone and Port Colborne, when the 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Maranger, fell into the Welland Canal. The little girl had been playing with her brother near the canal all morning, and about eleven o'clock the lad gave the alarm that his sister had fallen into the canal. Dragging operations were commenced at once, but the body has not yet been recovered, and as the current is very swift at the spot it is probable that the body has been swept far down the canal. The father is at present at Oshawa on business.

INJURED CAMPER'S FRIENDS PADDLE 30 MILES FOR DOCTOR

Cobalt, Aug. 19.—Jack Ford, of Cleveland, one of the five camping 22 miles out of Latchford, dived on to some jagged rocks and was seriously injured. He was brought to Latchford on an improvised stretcher of birch limbs, after some of his pals had paddled thirty miles to get a doctor. Ford is now at Haileybury Hospital in a precarious condition.

Executive Body To Take Charge

Ontario Supporters of Government Arrange For Party Organization—Conference At Ottawa

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—Ontario members of the Senate and House of Commons, supporters of the Government and Government candidates for election to the latter assembly arranged for the appointment of an executive committee to take charge of the organization of the National Liberal and Conservative party in the province. Their action is the first step in the direction of the upbuilding of a Dominion wide organization for the party. It will be followed by similar meetings of Legislators and candidates in the other provinces. The conference today was presided over by W. A. Boys, M.P., of South Simcoe, with W. S. Middlebro, M.P., of North Grey, chief Government whip in the Commons, as secretary. It was attended by Premier Meighen and the Ontario members of the Cabinet and a large percentage of the Ontario representativs in Parliament.

It has been announced that W. J. Black has resigned the office of the chairman of the Soldier Settlement Board to become director of organization of the National Liberal Conservative Party. Mr. Black, who is a native of Dufferin County, Ont., is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and of the University of Toronto. He has been western editor and manager of the Farmers' Advocate, Deputy Minister of Agriculture of Manitoba and president of the Manitoba Agricultural College, in the establishment of which he played a big part.

He became secretary of the Federal Economic and Development Commission in 1915, and later succeeded the late Dr. C. C. James as Commissioner of Agriculture. He has for some time past been chairman of the Soldier Settlement Board.

Some Wheat at Forty Bushels

CALGARY Aug. 20—Harvesting and crop conditions in Alberta continue to be excellent, and splendid reports are being received from various centres of the province where cutting has commenced. In many cases, especially south of Macleod, it is expected that the wheat will go forty bushels to the acre. The weather during the past week has been ideal and in this connection, it is satisfactory to mention that the bright sunshine has worked wonders with crops that had been damaged by hail.

In almost all cases the yield will be above the average. In the Raymond district approximately 175,000 bushels of wheat will be produced which will be the largest quantity in the history of the country.

Special correspondents of The Calgary Herald state that the wheat generally has filled out magnificently the berries being plump and of good color. Cutting will be general next week.

Enormous quantities of hay will be produced this year in fact it is anticipated that there will be a record crop of this and it is being put up under the best possible conditions. That there will be an abundance of feed this year is amply assured.

The second cutting of alfalfa at Lethbride is coming along rapidly owing to the hot weather, and there are indications that there will be another bumper crop.

The labor situation is being well taken care of and only in isolated cases is a shortage reported.

Recommend U.S. Wage Scale

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—Because they believed that failure to do so would precipitate a general railway strike, throughout Canada, the Canadian Railway Associaion has decided to recommend to the Canadian roads the adoption of the wage scale passed by the Chicago Labor Board of the United States. This statement was made by Howard G. Kelley, President of the Canadian Railway Association and of the Grand Trunk, before the Dominion Railway Commission this morning.

30 P.C. Freight Rate Increase Asked By C.P.R.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—The opening argument for the Canadian Railways began before the Railway Board this morning W. N. Tilley, K.C., Counsel for C.P.R. based his deductions entirely upon the present president's position of that company, urged that the application for increased rates be granted in full. He maintained that with the granting of the original application for thirty per cent. increase, the C.P.R. would just about break even and that if there is no increase the deficit on this year's operations would exceed thirty-seven million dollars.

The granting of supplementary application for ten per cent. to cover prospetcive wage increases would mean a deficit of over four million dollars on wage account. But ten per cent. increase to cover increased operations in effect for the full 12 months would yield twenty-five million dollars. Increased wages for the year, under the terms of the Chicago ward, would cost the company twenty-two million dollars, leaving it an estimated surplus of three millions for the first complete twelve months operating period after the new rates became effective.

Mr. Tilly quoted figures to show the steadily decreasing earnings of the C.P.R. and declared it was obvious that rates must be established that would restore the railways at least to the condition they were in three years ago.

Buy in England Instead of U.S.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—Great Britain is having her troubles and lots of them but she will pull out alright, and maintain her smile upon civilization, is how Sir George Perley, Canadian High Commissioner in London, expressed himself to the Canadian Press today on his return from the Old Country along with Lady Perley.

"The sound common sense of British people is simply wonderful, they take their troubles philosophically and have managed everything exceedingly well during these trying times since Armistice Day."

Asked regarding Canadian trade with Europe, Sir George said the outlook was never so bright. He strongly counselled Canadian merchants to buy every possible dollar's worth of goods in Great Britain rather than the United States. This he said would have the double advantage in that it would strengthen British Empire relations and also offset the exchange situation.

DESERTED BY HUSBAND, DIES OF STARVATION

Montreal, Aug. 19.—A painful tragedy came to light at the inquest held under Coroner MaMahon at the morgue this morning, into the death of Nellie Babcock. The verdict returned was to the effect that death was due to starvation and childbirth. Investigation revealed the fact that the unfortunate woman had been deserted by her husband, and, though pregnant, was the sole support of her five children. As she had neither food nor money, the unhappy mother wished to destroy the child before its birth and after being refused by one doctor she went to another who assisted her in her trouble. The baby was born dead and the mother burnt it in the stove and shortly afterwards succumbed to starvation.

Forest Fires Wipe Out British Columbia Ranches

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE FEARED—TEN PEOPLE SAVED THEIR LIVES BY WADING CHIN-DEEP IN RIVER—SPECIAL TRAINS RESCUE PEOPLE FROM FIRE ZONE—RAILS WARPED BY HEAT.

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Aug. 20.—A train bringing injured and refugees from a great forest fire area along the north Thompson River has arrived here. The fire is supposed to have started on August 1, from lightning, and was fanned into a great flame by a wind early this week.

First news of the seriousness of the fire came when an eastbound freight train on the C.N.R. ran into a sea of flames about ten miles from Avola station. They rescued a number of men, then beat a hasty retreat. The train remained on McMurphy siding until daylight, when the engine was sent forward again.

Dr. Curry of Kamloops and another were found badly burned. Dr. Curry may not recover. Ten other persons saved their lives only by wading into the Thompson River up to their necks and waiting until the flames and heat subsided.

Dr. M. G. Archibald and seven nurses were sent out on a relief train from Kamloops Wednesday morning. At the same time a special train was sent from Blue River station to rescue the people on the north side of the fire. The body of one rancher, Frank Smith, was discovered.

Several ranches in the path of the fire were completely wiped out. Fennell's sawmill was burned at Mile 34, where the loss, including cut timber and poles, will be about $100,000. A dozen horses owned by the Northern Construction Company, were killed.

So intense was the heat along the railroad that the rails were warped.

RUSSIANS FALLING BACK.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Russian Soviet forces have abandoned Lukow, seventy miles southeast of Warsaw and Radin, eighty miles southeast, according to Thursday's communique of the Moscow Government. The communique claims that the Poles were driven back seven miles from Ciechanow, forty-five miles northwest of Warsaw.

PEACE CONFERENCE DRAGS.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The second sitting of the Polish-Russian peace conference at Minsk took place yesterday, and a summary of Russia's terms was communicated to the Poles. They were substantially the same as those which the Russian delegation published in London, says a Moscow official statement received in London this morning. Stated orders for the conference were agreed upon. Towards the end of the session the Russian delegates protested against the Poles' efforts to delay negotiations, the statement says.

BOLSHEVIKI DIVISIONS WIPED OUT.

WARSAW, Aug. 20.—The Fifty-seventh, Fifty-eighth and Eighth Bolsheviki divisions on the Warsaw front have been annihilated and thousands of Soviet soldiers made prisoner. The Russians lost their bearings in trying to meet attacks on all sides from the Polish columns on their flanks, the statement adds

The Poles, continuing their advance, have occupied Kaluszyn, 35 miles east of Warsaw; Siedice, 57 miles east of the capital; Milzyrzec, 20 miles southeast of Siedice; Wlodawa, on the Bug River, 125 miles southeast of Warsaw.

Cossacks Join Up With Gen. Wrangel

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Four Cossack Governments, comprising a vast territory, north of the Crimea in South Russia, have gone over to Gen. Wrangel, anti-Bolshevik leader in South Russia, according to confidential advices to Washington today.

Wrangel has been recognized by the French Government as head of the de facto Government of Russia.

A treaty has been signed by representatives of the Don, Kuban, Terek and Astrakhan Cossack Governments recognizing Gen. Wrangel as the head of the Russian Government, according to the advices.

FINED $2,100 FOR NOT MAKING RETURNS

Hamilton, Aug. 20.—James P. Steedman, well known Hamilton business man, was fined $2,100 in police court here for failing to make an income tax return. J. L. Counsell, who appeared for the defendant, vainly suggested an adjournment until Mr. Steedman returned from his vacation in Muskoka. The fine was $100 for each day's delay in failing to make the returns. It is understood a number of other prosecutions are to be launched.

Dr. Flies To Rescue Of Injured Aviator

QUEBEC, Aug. 20.—News of a fatal airplane crash north of Chicoutimi, near Lake Onatheiway on Wednesday, afternoon reached here today in a telegram received by the firm of Price Bros., Limited. The victim was a guide named Gauthier, who was instantly killed, while the pilot aviator, Captain Paul Morency, who served overseas with the Imperial Air Force, suffered fractured ribs and an arm, and a photographer named Nesbitt had ribs broken, who was reported unconscious this morning. The telegram added that Pilot Vezina with a doctor had left Chicoutimi in an airplane for the scene of the accident.

SEVEN ARE DEAD FROM EXPLOSION

Muskegon, Mich., Aug. 20.—Four more of the men injured in the explosion in the rubber department of the Brunswick Balke Collander Company plant, died this morning, bringing the number of dead to seven. Three others are in a hospital, where it was said one probably will die.

Many settlers jump into the river to save themselves from a bush fire near Kamloops, B.C. Others on lonely ranches perish.

OFF TO A MISSION FIELD

Miss Marion Coon of Lindsay, daughter of Rev. C. H. Coon, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference left yesterday morning for Toronto on her way to China where she will enter the missionary field in the cause of Methodism. Last night Miss Coon was delightfully surprised when a number of ladies from the Women's Missionary Society of the Cambridge Street Methodist Church gathered at the Queen Street Parsonage and presented the young missionary with a purse of gold. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Coon accompanied Miss Coon as far as Toronto. Her destination will be Shung King, China.

FIRE AT ODESSA.

The village of Odessa was visited by a serious fire at midnight Wednesday when Babcock's woodworking shop and Mrs. Kelly's residence and blacksmith shop and a barn in the rear of Mrs. Kelly's home were gutted. The home of Joseph Smith, who is employed at Vanluven Bros.' garage in Kingston, also caught fire, but good work on the part of the villagers saved it. The extent of the damage was not known Thursday morning, but it will be very heavy. It was stated that there was no insurance on any of the places burned.

AMONG THE SHANTYMEN

The Shantymen's Christian Association was founded by Mr. William Henderson in 1908; and now for twelve years this interdenominational organization has been sending missionaries to preach the Word and distribute Gospels and Tracts to the men in lumbering, mining and construction camps. It is a Faith Work, its financial support depending upon the free will offerings of the people. It does not permit its missionaries to take up collections in Camps, or sell any literature. Work is being carried on in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and among the coal miners in Kentucky. Rev. Thos. Joplin, Field Secretary, is in Belleville calling upon friends of the association.

Mohawk Camp Customs Port For Aviators

(Deseronto Post)

Major Drummond of the Canada Air Board was in town on Friday and looked over Mohawk Aerdrome. He pronounced this aerdrome the best he has seen in his travels and quite readily has licensed it. Mr. G. T. Harrold who has leased the plains from the Mohawk council met Major Drummond who stated that the license and markings for Mohawk would be sent on at once.

Mohawk Aerdrome which is now a reality is the plain where many Canadian and American fliers learned the first about the great game of flying. During the war it was one of Canada's greatest camps. The war ended, Angllns of Kingston bought all the buildings from the Imperial Munition Board and have since been tearing them down.

Mr. Harrold, who is a certified aero engineer, has the main stopping place between Ottawa and Toronto. In fact it is just about half way. The license calls for a customs air harbor where machines coming or going across the line may be cleared. The Air Board is sending Mr. Harrold a portable hangar. He will re-erect this building upon its arrival and will stock oils, etc., to supply the wants of the men who sail the skies besides making any needed repairs their machines may demand.

PEACE RIVER WILL HAVE BUMPER CROP

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—Canada's last great west, more familiarly known as the Peace River country, is due for a magnificent harvest this year, according to E. S. Archibald, director of experimental farms, who is back from a trip across the Dominion. Farmers of the west generally, especially those in the newly settled portions, are also urging very strongly for more experimental farm stations, Mr. Archibald states.

Around Beaver Lodge and Fort Vermillion, more than six hundred miles north of Edmonton, there is a strong agitation among the settlers for the establishment of an experimental farm station. This year that section will have as good fields of wheat as any places on the prairies; in fact, the crops up there were a revelation to him, Mr. Archibald says.

NEW YORK NIGHT LIFE

The bright lights of Broadway and the shadows of the slums of that great city afford striking contrasts in "The Thirteenth Commandment," Rupert Hughes' great tosry of New York life which begins in Saturday's Intelligencer.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases, and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

HOT WEATHER CAUSES IRRITABILITY

in the individual whose bodily condition is not up to normal. When your nerves are on the "ragged edge" be sure that there is an underlying cause for the condition.

Now, where are you going to look for the condition which interferes with these nerves? Why, naturally, at the only place in the body where pressure upon nerves can exist. That place is the body where pressure upon nerves the spinal column where the nerves leave through little holes or formina. When the bony joints slip out of place they pinch these nerves.

The Chiropractor concerns himself with the removal of this pressure by re-aligning the vertebrae to their normal position. When this is done innervation is resumed normally, each cell, tissue and organ receives it quota which permits the various parts to perform their intended function. We will be pleased to talk your case over, giving you a spinal analysis without obligation. Drs. Redick & Redick, 283½ Front St., Belleville. Phone 900.

Brilliant Story Of New York Life

"The Walk-Offs" a picturization of the successful stage play by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, is the most suitable vehicle for May Allison's beauty and dramatic talents which this rising star has had. Despite the brilliancy of the background of fashionable life, alluring women in exquisite gowns and extraordinary glimpses into gay studio entertainments, May Allison easily predominates this production by her engaging personality. The play was originally produced by Oliver Morosco at the Morosco Theatre in New York and had a successful run. June Mathis and A. P. Younger who made the scenario of the screen version have displayed considerable ingenuity in the wider latitude allowed them in the screen story and have elaborated considerably upon the pictures of bright social and studio life. A large audience at Griffin's Thursday evening thoroughly enjoyed the play.

May Allison interpreted the role of Kathleen Rutherford, a young society woman, with exceedingly deft skill and illumined her characterization with moments of brilliant acting during the tense periods of this absorbing social drama. The balance of the cast did their work conspicuously well. Joseph Kilgour's work as the wealthy New York suitor and Emroy Johnson as the young Kentuckian stands out as particularly bright achievements. Certainly nothing has been overlooked in making this production a notable screen triumph. The settings were magnificently done and especially to be admired beause of the manner in which they developed the story of the play in its occasionally satirical vein.

British Canadian News Pictorial, "Brownie's Busy Day" a funny 2-reel comedy with the famous trained dog "Brownie" enacting the leading role, a new chapter of "The Whirlwind," serial and an interesting Travelogue of Japan titled "Temple Bells," all preceded the feature offering and proved entertaining. Owing to the musical revue, "Vanity Fair" holding the boards to-night the above program will not be repeated till Saturday, when it will be again shown, matinee and night.

"BECKONING ROADS"

Belleville screen fans again have an opportunity to see Bessie Barriscale, one of the most welcome delineators of society and modern life foles, in her new production, "Beckoning Roads," which is being shown at the Palace, is based on "The Call of Life," by Jeanne Judson, which appeared in the Red Book magazine as a serial. It tells the story of Marquita Shay, a girl of the Canadian Northwest, who is pushed into the swift, hard battle of New York life, after a heart-breaking series of unhappy episodes which greet her arrival in America. How she plays a master hand against the man who caused her unhappiness is entertainingly told in this vivid picture of modern American life. Niles Welch plays opposite Miss Barriscale. "Weary Goes A-Wooing," a Tom Mix Western comedy, Pictorial Life, revealing life in its different phases, and a thrilling chapter of "Lightning Bryce" serial are also being shown on the same program.

A BEST SELLER

TUNEFUL MUSICAL REVUE AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

Boyle Woolfolk's musical revue, "Vanity Fair 1920" opens the dramatic season in Belleville at Griffin's tonight. Mr. Woolfolk is also sponsor for "Honeymoon Town" one of the popular musical hits of the year and the composer of the music in this classic, Mr. Felix Rice, has outdone himself in this season's "Vanity Fair" in whistly and popular airs.

This season's "Vanity Fair" is headed by Elmer Coudy, said to be one of the foremost musical comedy comedians. The "Vanity Fair" chorus is the pride of the organization and are gowned equal to any musical attraction on tour.

Among the new songs this season bound to be popular are, "Fiddling Around," "Will You Love Me in America As You Do In France?" "Art is a Wonderful Thing," "When the Famous Women of the Past Do the Dances of Today," and many others.

JACK DEMPSEY PLAYS SANTA CLAUS

As might be suspected, Jack Dempsey who appears at Griffin's next Monday to Wednesday in "Daredevil Jack" has made a "barrel" of money during his fighting career. What may not be suspected however, is the fact that Jack has not blown in his fortune foolishly. When the Dempsey fist had landed its owner at the top of the heap and made him heavyweight champion of the world, Jack did not take a day off to buy diamond cuff links or a fleet of high-powered motor cars, or a lake of champagne. He cast himself in the role of Santa Claus instead. To his father he presented a 537-acre ranch which cost about $53,000; to his mother he presented a $48,000 home in Salt Lake City, and in addition he deposited $50,000 in a bank to her credit. He set his brother, John Dempsey, up in the oil business in Texas, gave him $5,000 and told him to make good, and established his brother Jim in an automobile accessory business in Oregon. Right here it may be stated that the fact that Jack Dempsey has a brother John does not mean that there are two John Dempsey's in the family. Jack's real name is William Harrison Dempsey. "Jack" is a nim de guerre.

HAGERMAN GOES TO BUFFALO.

Woodstock, Aug. 19.—Ernest Hagerman, who has been a resident of the city during the past year and a half, leaves shortly to engage in the photographic business in Buffalo. Mr. Hagerman is an athlete of ability. He is a native of Belleville, and previous to coming to Woodstock played for the Kingston O.H.A. intermediate team, which was twice a runner-up in the championship race. Last season he played for Woodstock. He was also prominent in baseball circles.

During the war he was a sergeant-major in the Canadian Army Gymnastic Service, he being kept in Canada for instructional purposes.

CHANGE OF DRIVERS HAS DESIRED EFFECT

Simcoe, Ont., Aug. 20.—No better bill of fare could be desired than that provided at the local driving park yesterday. In the 2.09 pace Armadale set a new course record of 2.10¼, winning the race in three straight heats.

In the 2.18 pace Sid H. made a poor showing in the first two heats, when the ribbons, with the consent of the judges, were handed over to George Walsh. After that the McIntosh gelding was never in danger. Rena Bison showed up well in the last three heats of this race and with better driving might have won the first.

NO TRACE OF TRAIN BANDITS.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 20.—Police and post office inspectors are searching for a clue for the whereabouts of the two masked bandits who last night held up Missouri Pacific fast mail train No. 5 within the city limits, and escaped with four pouches said to contain registered mail. The men boarded the train at a crossing, and with drawn revolvers lined the mail clerks up against the wall. Near the outskirts of the city one of the robbers pulled the signal cord, stopping the train. The mail pouches were then thrown out and the bandits jumped after them.

FOUR U. S. PLANES LEAVE DAWSON

Dawson, Y. T., Aug. 20.—If the weather continues favorable the four planes comprising the New York to Nome pioneer flight to the land of the midnight sun will leave here this morning for Fairbanks, which they will probably make in a hundred and forty minutes, an average of 90 miles an hour. While flying between White Horse and Dawson the aviators found the atmospheric conditions the most favorable since leaving New York.

PETER GRIFFIN BUYS FINE OLD RESIDENCE

Peter W. Griffin, moving picture theatre owner, has purchased the Cawthra Mulock residence at the southwest corner of Jarvis and Isabella streets, Toronto, for $115,000. The purchaser intends using it as a residence. The property on which the house was built in 1887, was acquired by the late Cawthra Mulock in 1902.

FORTUNES IN OLD STAMPS.

The Stamp Craze of Generation Ago Recalled.

A small fortune in rare old postage stamps has just been discovered by a Boston lawyer in an ancient trunk filled with faded letters. This recalls the fact that about 30 years ago, when stamp-collecting was a craze in Toronto, especially among boys, a venerable leather portmanteau, which had been the property of the late Rev. Dr. Egerton Ryerson disgorged a quantity of rare old Canadian stamps, to the benefit of that celebrated man's grandchildren and their young friends.

Like many a public man of his day, Dr. Ryerson had carefully preserved a voluminous correspondence, part of which, indited in the early 1840's, pre-dated stamps. Every letter was replaced in its envelope, the stamps of which remained intact, to be a source of joy to youthful philatelists nearly half a century later. The trunk contained many Canadian beaver stamps, both perforated and unperforated, the blue Jacques Cartier, the green sevenpence halfpenny with young Queen Victoria's head and shoulders, the red and the brown envelope stamps and innumerable lesser Canadians, together with a few valuable American stamps of the early fifties.

The late Mr. George R. Bartlett, formerly of the Ontario Bank, and latterly of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto, had two picture frames filled with valuable old stamps arranged in artistic design. They comprised early Canadians, the issues of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, an array of three-cornered Cape of Good Hopes, British West Indians and others, among which was one brown British Guiana stamp, for which collectors were offering $125 forty years ago.

Many Torontonians sold their rare stamps to New York dealers in the halcyon days, though Toronto still has a number of valuable collections. But stamp-collecting has fallen off greatly in Toronto, as everywhere else on this continent, since thirty years ago, when albums were common, and when enterprising youths who got sheets of stamps "on approval" from trusting American dealers brought their merchandise to school and sold on commission.

The few philatelists to-day are mostly men. The enormous influx of new stamp issues and the reprinting of old issue stamps from the plates or fresh engravings, which would have been looked upon as actual frauds years ago, has made the business of collecting extremely complicated and expensive. Philately, however, still flourishes in Britain and on the continent of Europe. King George was an ardent collector in his youth and possessed a very valuable album, which doubtless was passed on to one of the young princes.

For all that collecting has fallen off in this country there is a good market for old stamps, which with the loss and destruction of specimens from time to time are naturally becoming rarer. Old trunks and writing cases throughout Canada were pretty carefully ransacked during the stamp rage of a generation ago, but doubtless some escaped which may prove gold mines to their discoverers.

A War Romance.

A fortune of $300,000 awaits Leveritt Mackenzie, a young Canadian war veteran, who is employed somewhere in Boston or vicinity. When last heard of young Mackenzie was on his way from St. John, N.B., to Boston. That was in May, 1916. Since then, it develops, friends have learned that he has fallen heir to the estate of Capt. D. B. Wilbur, of Hastings, Eng., under peculiar circumstances.

Mackenzie went to England in the early days of the war as a corporal in the Mounted Rifles of Eastern Canada. While there he met Miss Helen Willbur, with whom he fell in love. After his departure for the battlefields of France, the two young people kept up their correspondence and when later he was sent back to "blighty" badly wounded, she visited him at Orpington Hospital. There she promised to marrry him if he recovered from his wounds. She herself, however, died in December of that year. It was not long afterwards that the father, and only remaining member of the family, Capt. Willbur, was fatally wounded in action.

Corporal Mackenzie, meanwhile, was invalided back to Canada. When Capt. Willbur's will was placed in probate, it was learned that Mackenzie had been bequeathed the sum of £60,000 and a residence at Hastings, as the former fiancee of the captain's only child.

Mackenzie's relatives reside in New Brunswick.

SEAPLANE FELL, PILOT DROWNED

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 20.—In the sight of his wife and many hundreds of people on the beach, Hibbert B. Brenton, purchasing agent for the Union Steamship Co., of British Columbia, either jumped or fell to his death in the waters of English Bay last evening, when the seaplane he was piloting became unmanageable and crashed into the sea. Before the actual fall an explosion was heard, and smoke was noticed near the engine, and the seaplane turned over seven times in its descent. The machine was brought to shore by a tug, and a search is being made for the pilot's body. Brenton was about a mile at sea when the accident occurred. The pilot was an exceptionally good aviator, having seen active service overseas, being a captain in the Royal Air Force. He is the last of three brothers, the other two having been killed overseas.

TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT SAVES MANY LIVES

It has been found that in Connecticut there are fewer deaths from automobile accidents than in neighboring states, where a similar amount of motoring is done.

The credit for this better showing is given to the system by means of which Connecticut handles the traffic problem. The state has a commissioner of motor vehicles whose business it is to supervise all such traffic, and co-operate with the police throughout the state. His two most effective measures have been (1) to require that every person who drives a motor car must have a license to do so, which in itself is a guarantee that he is qualified; and (2) the enforcement of a provision whereby the license of any driver may be suspended for a specified period or cancelled altogether where the drivers are judged to be unfit to operate cars. In Connecticut about 1,500 motorists' licenses have to date been cancelled on the grounds of epilepsy, insanity, drug taking, and habitual intoxication, and up-to-date there have been 1,558 temporary suspensions, for periods of from one week to six months, where the drivers had been reckless and needed a warning.

There are too many deaths from motor accidents, but the Connecticut commissioner of motor vehicles says that while the first duty of a man in his position is to take off the public highways cars driven by men who are mentally or temperamentally unfit to be trusted with vehicles so fast and powerful, yet his next duty is to ascertain and remove the secondary causes of accident. There are several of these. There is need for the education and regulation of pedestrians as well as motor drivers. Every turn in the road, every crossing, needs to be remedied where possible, so as to give a clear view of anything that may be approaching from another direction. Whenever an accident occurs, the location of it needs to be examined for these secondary causes, which, so often, are overlooked and the blame unreservedly placed on drivers. In cities, where a clear view at corners cannot be had, the regulations should be such as will preclude danger.

EFFICIENT USE OF LABORER'S TIME.

The problems of the efficient use of the laborer's time and working energy has not been without interest to business managers and even statesmen," says Prof. Thomas Nixon Carver, of Harvard University, "because to find easier and quicker ways of doing what he has to do is to increase the national prosperity and production. It is just as important that productive agents should be doing the right things. To misdirect our productive powers toward producing things of little importance is quite as great a loss as to do things in a wasteful manner.

"One of the most important things we can do with our production is to make it add to itself. This can only be done by setting a part of it to work producing producers' goods instead of keeping it all to produce what people are willing to buy. It is therefore just as important that the people spend their money wisely as that they utilize their labor power efficiency. To dump money into the sea is not so great a loss to the nation, however much of a loss it may be to the individual who owns the money. The material is lost and that is all.

"When it is spent, however, instead of being thrown away, it virtually hires men to make the things for which it is spent. If it is spent wastefully it wastes the working energy of the men whom it hires. That wasting of man power is much more serious than the mere loss of money.

There is a widespread fallacy that extravagance gives employment labor. This is probably due to the opinion that thrift consists of hoarding. To keep money out of use is a very thriftless thing. The thrifty person is one who spends money wisely; for durable things instead of transient things; for things which increase his strength physically, mentally, morally, and financially.

"Therefore the thrifty man spends more money than the unthrifty one, for he has more to spend, and a thrifty community will be one in which more money is spent than in the thriftless community."

Economists and financiers are a unit in agreeing with the logic expressed by Prof. Carver. It is therefore greatly to the self-interest and the advantage of the business man and the manufacturer to advocate and co-operate with any project of wise spending, regular saving, and safe investment. Such a campaign tends not only to the efficiency and increase of production within every plant but for prosperity in future markets.

OTHER VIEWS

Mounting Newspaper Costs
(Stratford Beacon)

The expense of publishing a newspaper these days is high, but that it is certain to be considerably higher is confirmed by the statement of an expert, who estimates that production costs for Canadian daily newspapers during the next six months will be four million dollars in excess of the same period in 1919. The public is pretty well acquainted with the newsprint situation through the investigation which has been in progress at Ottawa. The publishers have largely overcome the problem of supply, but cost will be 300 per cent. greater than in 1914 and this is, of course, but one item in newspaper production costs, those in other departments having likewise increased at rapid rate. In the face of this situation publishers generally have no alternative but to increase their charges to the public and advertisers, as much as they may dislike to do so. In the West the day of the five-cent newspaper appears to have arrived, but even at the increased charges the newspaper which supplies up-to-the-minute news of the community and world is the cheapest article existent oday. The man who buys a cigar or goes to a movie pays the equivalent of a goodly number of newspapers, yet because the newspaper has always been cheap, its proportional value has been lost sight of in many cases.

Declining the Invitation
(Bermuda Colonist)

We are inclined to think Mr. Crowe of Canada, will have to content himself with hoping without hope for the fulfilment of his desires for Federation and to see "Bermuda becoming the first tropical province of Canada." Bermuda doesn't even want to become an Episcopal Diocese of Canada—her ties, her thought, her most, intimate historic associations are all with the homeland, the great mother of the Empire. If it ever comes to the choice a British General of distinction for Governor—or a Canadian politician fond as all are of our Canadian brethren, high as we hold them in honor for their war service, just as sure as the Bermuda Contingents associated themselves with units of the homeland and not with the Canadian Army; just as certain as was an English steamship lines development proposals favored and those of the Canada Line rejected just as surely will Bermuda's people decline to become a Canadian province —or an American State.

The All-British Press
(London Daily Mail)

Great Britain, as a charming French critic once pointed out, ought to possess the best journalists and the best novelists, because they alone are born into a world-wide connection and come into daily touch with facts and experiences that preclude narrowness. The delegates to the Imperial Press Conference who are at present touring Canada, should help us to appreciate those ideal opportunities that the French author envied. Everyone who attended the last congress held in London in 1909, came away stimulated beyond his expectation. "It is the vitality of you in London that chiefly amazes us," said one of our visitors on that occasion, and we in London felt very much the same in regard to our guests. The vitality of the British Press has certainly increased in the interval; and it has become doubly obvious how much good this Press may do both to itself and to its world by common action. Yet, when all is said, the greatest gain of all may be a knowledge of Canada itself. Canada, a land where hospitality of the finest savour flourishes, is almost a half-way house for us to the Antipodes; and from both sides we shall find there ideas and inspirations most fruitful for strengthening imperial and human ties when we returned to our home countries after some 10,000 mile sof most informative travelling.

THE POET'S CORNER

ARMENIA

First of the Christian nations; the first of us all to feel
The fire of infidel hatred, the weight of the pagan heel;
Faithful lest down the ages tending the light that burned,
Tortured and trodden therefore, spat on and slain and spurned,
Branded for others' vices, robbed of your rightful fame,
Clinging to Truth in a truthless land in the name of the ancient Name
Generous, courteous, gentle, patient under the yoke,
Decent (hemmed in a harem land ye were e'er a one-wife folk);
Royal and brave and ancient—haply an hour has struck
When the new fag-fangled peoples shall weary of raking muck
And turning from coward counsels and loathing the parish lies,
In shame and sackcloth offer up the only sacrifice,
Then thou who hast been neglected, who hast called o'er a word in vain
To the deaf deceitful traders' ears in tune to the voice of gain,
Thou Cinderella nation, starved that our faults might live,
When we come with a hand outstretched at last—accept it and forgive.

—From Tabot Munday's "The Eye of Zeitoun."

A LAUGH OR TWO

No Need to Worry

"The fortune-teller said I would meet with a fatal accident."

"Mercy!"

"But she said not to worry—it would not happen till the end of my life."

Knew Her

"I understand that in the new play Alice has quite a difficult part."

"Difficult? Why, she doesn't say a word."

"Well, isn't that difficult for Alice?"

Gone, But Not Forgotten

"Are caterpillars good to eat?" asked Tommy at the dinner table.

"No," said his father. "What makes you ask a question like that while we are eating?"

"You had one on your lettuce, but it is gone now," replied the little son.

And in Most Boys

"Where," said the land agent, addressing an audience of possible purchasers, "where else on the face of the globe will you find in one place, copper tin, iron, cotton, hemp, grain, game—" And a voice from the crowd replied—"In the pocket of my youngest son."

WOULD-BE STOPPERS OF RUM GET DRUNK THEMSELVES

Windsor, Aug. 19.—William Cox and H. F. Coward, special provincial police sent from Toronto to clean up the border, were fined $26.50 each today in Windsor Police Court by Magistrate Miers, when they were found guilty of being drunk. The officers declared they had only one drink each, which they took to test some liquor which they had confiscated. They declared the three Windsor police officers and Capt. Peacock, secretary of the G. W. V. A., who were present in the police station at the time they attempted to arrest Officer McPhea, a member of the police force, were all wrong when they declared the provincial police to be intoxicated. It was shown, however, that Cox and Coward were under the influence of liquor, both by their talk and their actions. Inspector Rogers of Toronto was an interested spectator at the trial.

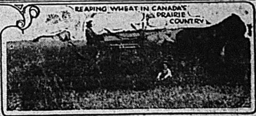
Dutch Farmers Will Till Alberta Prairies

BOUND FOR ALBERTA

DUTCH FARMERS REACHING CANADA

GOING TO SEE THE FARMS



REAPING WHEAT IN CANADA'S PRAIRIE COUNTRY

Sixty-five husky Hollanders with their families recently arrived in Canada. They were bound for Alberta, where they will invest the $80,000 they brought from their homeland and proceed to work their prairie farms in the thorough manner that has made Holland such a rich agricultural country.

The tide of immigration from Europe to Canada that was interrupted by the war has set in again, and every vessel from Europe brings its quota of men and women eager to start life anew in the Last Great West. The newcomers are of a very high class, many coming from the British Isles and north-western Europe. This is an encouraging feature, as these are the stocks that gave to Canada their first sturdy settlers.

Holland is noted for its dykes and its tulips. To many it means but a land quaint and picturesque. It is that, but it is also a rich garden land. Every inch of the land that has been redeemed from the sea is cultivated intensely. Wheat, oats, barley and rye are staple crops; flax, sugar beets, tobacco and hemp are also grown; vegetables are cultivated to near-perfection, while Dutch dairy products are world famous.

Dutch farmers are trained to get the maximum from their holdings. Each bit of ground must grow its two crops. When the wheat is cut, the stubble is turned under and planted to young cabbages or some other vegetable. Days are spent in tying up the heads of endive. These farmers bring to their larger holdings on the rich Alberta prairies the determination and skill to get the last available bushel of wheat from their acres, and the last pound of butter from their dairy stock. They are planning the fine homes they mean to build with their wheat fortunes, and looking forward to putting their children in the Canadian schools, where all children are social equals, and to taking part in the administration of the land of their adoption.

MYSTERY OF THE LAKES.

Early Voyageurs Note Rise and Fall of the Waters.

Why does the water in Lake Ontario and it's sister fresh water seas rise and fall in periods which average seven years? This natural phenomenon has been puzzling people since the old days when France held sway in Canada.

Looking through the unpublished diary of an English traveler, who voyaged up the St. Lawrence to Niagara in the summer of 1785, the following reference to this mystery of the waters, will be discovered dated under July 1 of that year, the diarist little thinking that 82 years later Confederation would take place on that day:

"A remarkable circumstance was told me," writes this traveler up the St. Lawrence 135 years ago, "by Mr. Pansee, our conductor, who has been constantly engaged in this navigation for nearly twenty years, and which he advises me is a matter of fact, both from his own observation and that of the oldest men living. Each year the River St. Lawrence settles or falls a little until the seventh year, when it is visible that it has sunk between three and four feet, and then for the next seven years continues to rise in the same proportion. The river is at this time at its greatest elevation. I took some pains to gain some information of this uncommon phenomenon. I find that the lakes have the same appearance."

Thus the rising and falling of Lake Ontario, etc., has been under observation for about 200 years. Careful Government records were begun about 1840 and since then it has been found that the periods between the high water and low water are sometimes as low as four years and sometimes as high as nine years, though they do average seven years.

But the cause is apparently as inexplicable to modern scientists as it was to the hardy explorers of the olden days.

Seal Hunting Slaughter.

Hunting the seal from the icy, storm-swept coast of Newfoundland is not sport; it is toil, whereby in part the Newfoundlander wins his scanty measure of bread, says Spare Moments. The hunt is a dull and hideous slaughter—a leap into the whining and scurrying pack, and the swinging and thrust of an iron-shod gaff, a merciless raining of blows, with a silent waste of ice all splashed with red at the end of it. There is no sport in this, nor is there any fear of hurt, for the seal pleads and whines like a child, even while the gaff is falling; but the case is beset with multitudinous and unforeshadowed perils. The wind gathers the ice into floes and jams it up against the coast, an immeasurable, jagged expanse of it interspersed with plains; then the Newfoundlander takes his food and his goggles, and sets out from his little harbor, starting at midnight that he may come up with the pack at dawn. But the wind which sweeps the ice in inevitably sweeps it out again without warning in an hour, or a day or a week; nor does it pause to consider the situation of the men who are twenty miles off shore. It veers and freshens and drives the whole mass, grinding and heaving, far out to sea, where it disperses it into its separate fragments.

The lives of the hunters depend upon the watchfulness of the attenuated line of lookouts, from the women on the headland to the first sentinel within signalling distance.

Population of Growth.

Department of Trade and Commerce estimates the present population of Canada at 8,835,102, compared with 7,204,838 in 1911, and 5,371,315 in 1901. By provinces the present estimate is:

Ontario	2,820,000
Quebec	2,326,528
British Columbia	718,660
Saskatchewan	754,090
Manitoba	618,903
Alberta	587,770
Nova Scotia	518,761
New Brunswick	368,760
Prince Edward Island	93,728
Northwest Territories	18,481
Yukon	8,512
Total	8,835,102

Meighen Is a Presbyterian.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, the new Premier, is the most talked of man in Canada at the present time, and wherever two or three people are gathered together there will one hear at some time discussion of him and his merits for the office he has been called upon to fill. There is much speculation as to his religious beliefs, and many people who are heard discussing him appear to think he is a Roman Catholic. As a matter of fact he is a regular attendant at Chalmers' Presbyterian Church, Ottawa, where the Minister is Rev. J. W. Woodside, who was called there two years ago from Chalmers Church, Toronto.

Step by Step.

"Supposing," said the man who wants to see everybody happy, "that we somehow arrange to give you a six-hour day. Are you sure that you will be contented?"

"For the present. Of course, I shouldn't think of asking for less than six hours work to the day. But I have an impression that in the course of time our chronological system will need revision so that we'll have 25 or 30 minutes to the hour."

Camping In 1920.

It was dawn and very chilly in camp, and one man was unable to find any of his outer garments. He wandered about, asking all his mates if they knew where they were. "Has any one seen my b-b-blanket?" he demanded and was told that no one had. "Has any one seen my t-t-trousers?" No answer. "Well, I'm jolly g-g-glad I have got on my nice w-w-warm pair of suspenders."

SEEK GOLD IN THE ARCTIC

Adventurers Are Now Prospecting the Coasts of Baffin Bay and Davis Strait.

One of the really pathetic stories of modern history is the mutiny of Henry Hudson's crew when he was exploring the arctic waters of North America, and his abandonment, with his son, in that vast inland sea that bears his name, a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle remarks. Many lives have been sacrificed in the quest of the North and South poles. Sir John Franklin's and the Jeannette's parties in the north and the recent Scott expedition at the south only need be mentioned.

Plans are afoot to open up the Baffin bay region to commerce. For many years small steamers have been making summer visits to Hudson bay to trade with the natives, and the Canadian government is building a railway to one of its ports. Railroad and commercial development of Alaska by American enterprise has caused prospecting of the mineral resources of the coasts of Baffin bay and Davis strait, with the result of finding, at the former place, gold in sufficient quantities to justify development, and coal of excellent quality along the latter. The latitude is about the same as that of the Yukon region and only a few degrees north of that of Nome, which has developed into a large community. So impelling is the lure of gold that the hardships of an arctic climate will not deter adventurers from hazarding their lives against the wealth said to be buried under the eternal snow and ice of Baffin island.

CHAUNCEY'S TURN TO LAUGH

Close-Fisted Farmer Learned Something About the Value Legal Lights Set on Services.

Chauncey M. Depew, in writing the story of his life, recalls his first law case. It was in Peekskill. The client was a farmer and he wanted an opinion on certain property rights.

Depew spent a week in looking up the points of law that had bearing on the case and when he had finished charged the modest fee of $5.

"Too much," cried the farmer.

"But it's taken me a whole week to prepare this," protested Depew.

"Don't make no difference," declared the farmer. "I figure $1.50 is all it's worth and that's all you're going to get."

About a week later the man came to the office again.

"Mr. Depew," he said, "I had some doubts about that opinion of yours, so I took it down to New York and showed it to Mr. ——. And what do you think he charged me, just for readin' that opinion of yours and putting his O. K. on it?"

"How much," demanded Depew, all excited.

"Five hundred dollars!"

Border Traffic Record.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 17. —All records for volume of traffic on the border were broken Sunday. The bridges were congested with automobiles and people all day, and extra provincial and city police had to be called out to handle the abnormal traffic. Queen Victoria Park and the park over the river were almost a solid mass of people.

A boy was killed by a fall in his father's barn near Agincourt.

26,800,000 WOMEN CAN NOW VOTE IN THE U. S.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Ratification of the Suffrage amendment by the Tennessee Legislature today was hailed with great joy in the capital.

Secretary of State Colby, upon whom rests the final act of proclamation, all that is needed to confer the voting privilege upon 26,800,000 women citizens, announced that he would act at the earliest possible moment. Under State laws 19,000,000 women already hold the Presidential franchise, but only 7,000,000 were entitled to vote for members of Congress. The ratification of the amendment therefore gives Presidential suffrage to an additional 8,000,000, and the right to vote for Congress to 20,000,000.

"Hello!

"Hello, is that you Rose.

"Yes, I'm feeling fine—couldn't be better.

"I called you up, Rose, to congratulate you on your engagement—received the announcement this morning.

"But, Rose, before you buy your trousseau you must read

The Thirteenth Commandment

"This is the new story by Rupert Hughes—you remember Hughes—author of 'The Unpardonable Sin,' 'Gloria's Romance,' 'Excuse Me,' and all those other good stories.

"Daphne Kip, the heroine of 'The Thirteenth Commandment,' was a girl just like you Rose, who also became engaged and then went to New York to buy her trousseau. Then things began to happen; just what I refuse to tell—don't want to spoil the pleasure of your reading.

"By all means read this story; the publisher of this paper tells me he will publish it as his next serial. Mother, father and Brother Jim will enjoy it just as much as you, so tell them about it.

"Don't forget, now; watch for the issue with the first installment.

"Bye-bye; remember me to Clay.

"Good-bye."

INDIAN TELLS PUBLISHER HE'S A PREVARICATOR

Cobalt, Aug. 19.—Northern Indians are not pleased with a story which was recently published in Toronto to the effect that they had been awestruck and terror-stricken by a giant hydroplane in the service of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company.

One of the spokesmen of the Indians has written a Porcupine paper protesting against such an effort to hold the Indians up to ridicule and show they are back numbers. The language used should remove all doubts as to the position of the Indians in these modern days.

"You can tell the world that the paleface newspapers are black-hearted fabricators. Us, afraid of hydroplanes, Humph! Nothing doing! The Indians are too used to seeing the white men going up in the air to be bothered by any little hydroplane. Why, we are not afraid of a threshing machine, an Ingersoll watch or a Ford automobile. The Indians are not afraid of noise nor are we alarmed or mystified by machinery. We use wheelbarrows and phonographs regularly ourselves. The paleface newspapers should quit kidding themselves and their readers."

FIRE CAPTAIN SAVES HIS OWN WIFE IN A BLAZE

San Francisco, Aug. 20.—Captain E. T. Courtney, of the San Francisco fire department, rescued a score of persons, including his own wife, from eight frame apartment buildings here which fire damaged to the estimated extent of $1,000,000 before it was brought under control.

Prospects Good For Auto Industry

Prominent Detroit Manufacturers Looking Over Belleville Prospects.

The call of Belleville to her "Old Boys" reached the ears of two former residents of the city now successful manufacturers in Detroit in the persons of C. R. Wilson and J. C. Wilson who have been staying with W. C. Mikel, K.C., of this city for a few days and looking over some of the industrial possibilities of Belleville and surrounding district.

Mr. J. C. Wilson, who is accompanied by his wife, has his car with him, and has driven through the section surrounding Belleville and expressed the view that Belleville would yet be a great city.

J. C. Wilson is the president of the J. C. Wilson Auto Truck Company, one of the largest truck manufacturers in the United States. Theirs was the first truck to climb Pike's Peak, 14,000 feet, fully loaded.

C. R. Wilson is president of the C. R. Wilson Automobile Body Company, has two plants in Detroit and one in Bay City, employing over four thousand men in the three plants. The Company expended $800,000 on their Bay City Plant and over $1,000,000 on their Detroit plant in improvements since the war. They manufacture all the bodies for the Paige car and over seven hundred bodies every day for the Ford Company, also for other companies. The value of the output of bodies of this company is over one million six hundred thousand dollars every month.

Both these gentlemen have many Canadians in their employ. They agree that the natural advantages of Belleville are great and that if a progressive spirit can be infused in the people of the "Old Town" it will surely be a great city.

Called by Death

HIRAM W. SAGER

Hiram W. Sager, employed as a clerk in John Dalton's hardware store on St. George street, Deseronto, expired suddenly at his home on Mill street early Wednesday evening. Taken ill at the store shortly before six Mr Sager was taken home where he died a short time afterwards from an affection of the heart. The late Mr. Sager was born in Richmond where he farmed. Selling his farm he moved into town and a few years ago entered the employ of John Dalton. As an employe he was courteous and trustworthy. As a citizen he ranked high in public esteem. He was a Liberal in politics and a devoted member of Deseronto Methodist church.

MRS. SAMUEL LESLIE

Death came suddenly last night to Mrs. Samuel Leslie, an aged and highly respected resident of College Hill. Heart trouble was the cause of her demise. Deceased was in her 85th year and was born in Rawdon Township being a daughter of the late Mr. Wm. Campbell. Mrs. Leslie removed from Thurlow to Belleville sixteen years ago and had since lived here. She was an estimable lady who by her kindly and lovable disposition made many friends who will regret her passing. She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and for many years took an active interest in church work. An aged partner in life survives also three sons and three daughters. The sons are John at Lavieria, Man., A. C. of Brighton and William, shoe merchant of this city. The daughters are Mrs. W. S. Fargey, of Laveria Man. Mrs. C. F. Anderson of Carl, Man., and Mrs James Donaldson of Belleville. Mrs. Alex. Moore of Plainfield, Thurlow Township, a sister, is the sole surviving member of the family.

THE 13TH COMMANDMENT

"Thou shalt not spend more than thou earnest" is the 13th commandment according to Rupert Hughes, the popular author, who illustrates the result of breaking this commandment in Hughes' great story of New York life "The Thirteenth Commandment" which begins in Saturday's Intelligencer.

MRS. LUCY DOUCETTE, of Manchester, N.H., who says she's just so happy over the way Tanlac restored her health she can't keep from telling people about it.

"I am just so happy over the way Tanlac has restored my health that I can't keep from telling people about it," said Mrs. Lucy Doucette, of 76 Stark street, Manchester, New Hampshire, a few days ago. "I suffered so long with chronic indigestion that I didn't know what it was to sit down and enjoy a single meal. My stomach was so badly disordered I had to live on the strictest diet, and nothing seemed to agree with me. At times my breath seemed to be cut off, and I would suffer terribly for hours at a time.

"I lost my strength completely and became so weak and run-down I would give out several times during the day and would have to stop and rest. I was extremely nervous and irritable, and just felt like I would break down completely.

"One day I saw a statement from a friend of mine who said Tanlac had helped her wonderfully, so I was convinced it was a dependable medicine and I began taking it immediately, and I am more than pleased at the splendid results. My appetite improved right from the first, and the horrible indigestion from which I suffered so long has entirely disappeared.

"I have now finished my fourth bottle, and can eat just anything I wish without any bad after-effects. I also sleep better and have more strength and energy. It is a pleasure to tell others what Tanlac has done in my case."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's drug store and by the leading druggists in all other towns.

CANADA'S PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY

The Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, which comprises within its membership most of the large producing companies engaged in this line in Canada, has just issued a handbook of the industry which covers the subject from every angle, and supplies a wealth of information on the development of paper making in Canada, and its kindred enterprises. Its history is traced from the first paper mill established at St. Andrews, Lower Canada, in 1803, down through the decades of progress to the present year, which shows ninety-four establishments, including 37 pulp mills, 31 paper mills and 26 combined pulp and paper mills, all actively engaged within the Dominion, with an aggregate capital employed of over two hundred and sixty-four million dollars.

The interesting narrative of early paper-making in Canada records the second mill established in 1818; two later in 1825, which were situated on the Don river, Toronto, and the mills in Upper Canada by the Barber family in 1853, which are standing in the same spot today at Georgetown, Ont.

Pioneers in Industry.

The most important pioneers in the pulp and paper industry were Riordons, first in the business as paper traders in Brantford in 1857 and six years later with a wrapping paper mill on the old Welland Canal. In 1867 they built at Merritton what was at that time regarded as one of the finest paper mills in America, with a daily capacity of 10 tons of news and wrapping paper.

GAVE THEIR LIVES FOR A CHUM

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 20.—Four boys, ranging in ages from eleven to fourteen, gave their lives yesterday in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue a fifth companion, who also perished. The latter became caught in an undercurrent while swimming in the Red Lake River at Fisher, eleven miles from here. When the lads on shore saw their chum being pulled under they attempted to breast the swift current to rescue him, but one by one they disappeared beneath the swirling muddy waters.

Two other boys who attempted to save them were rescued by workmen who heard their cries. The dead are: Ethan and Elmer Attendahl, Thomas Anderson and Theodore and Oscar Olson.

GERMS IN WARFARE.

Canadian Scientist Does Not Think Scheme Practical.

If Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minnesota, really did say at a dinner in London, England, that germs would be the ammunition of the next war—well, Col. George G. Nasmith, C.M.G., of Toronto, isn't at all convinced.

Col. Nasmith is familiar with germs, too. When the great war broke out he was director of laboratories, Department of Health, Toronto. When the conflict came he offered his services, and became adviser in sanitation, etc., to the First Canadian Contingent, and for eighteen months commanded the Canadian mobile laboratory in France.

"Dr. Mayo is reported as expecting war to become one of bacteria dropped from airplanes over enemy cities," an interviewer said to Col. Nasmith as he was making some scientific test or other in his office in the Confederation Life Building.

Col. Nasmith smiled. "Are you sure that Dr. Mayo said it?" he asked. When informed that a cable made the affirmation, Col. Nasmith laughed a little.

"Get away from the question of humanity, and come down to cold-blooded practicability," prefaced Col. Nasmith in comment. "It's the business of armies to kill and destroy. Yet, respecting the prediction attributed to Dr. Mayo, it is interesting to recall that no epidemics were started deliberately. Why? Well, if an epidemic had been launched by one army, it would have been a boomerang, recoiling on the sender. Consider it in this light, and you will perceive that common sense is opposed to such a thing as between armies. I don't know which army had it first. But both suffered."

"During the war, Col. Nasmith, there were rumors of poisonous wells," observed the interviewer.

"There was never any proof of such a thing during my time," Col. Nasmith replied. "In 1916 I represented Canada on the War Allies' Sanitary Commission in Paris. We took every angle of infection and contagion, and there was no evidence submitted that disease germs had been or were being used."

"Science would combat science if Dr. Mayo's fears were realized, Col. Nasmith?"

"Certainly. If the enemy, in the last war, had desired to use the germ weapon, they would have attempted it with typhoid and cholera. But they didn't. Now, as between armies, the germ system would hit back, and, anyway, the method would not develop fast enough.

"Say that germs were dropped from the skies, I see only one condition under which the plan might operate: If Germany were at war with the United States, German airships might cross the ocean and drop their war-tokens on American territory. The spread of the disease back to the Germans, in such an event, would be barred by the seas. But difficulties are manifest."

"Then, Col. Nasmith, while Dr. Mayo's forecast is interesting, the world need not be downcast at the possible horrors?"

Col. Nasmith nodded assent, and then went back to his little powders and his work of mystery which the interviewer had interrupted.

And the colonel was as calm as ever.

Keep Green Their Memory.

Canadian fathers and mothers whose sons were laid in soldier graves of the Garrison Churchyard, Shorncliffe, Eng., will find comfort in the fact that the entire district holds an annual flower memorial service to commemorate the Canadians who died at Shorncliffe.

Hundreds of little children with bunches and wreaths of fragrant English flowers attended this year's service and placed their tributes on the graves. Local governing bodies, clubs and associations were represented and sent floral tokens. The ceremony opened with the singing of "The Maple Leaf" by the children and afterwards addresses were given by the mayors of Folkestone and Hythe. Among the noted assembly were many people whom returned men will remember for their hospitality to the C.E.F. They included: The Mayor Wood of Folkestone, Deputy Mayor Sir Stephen Penfold, Ald. G. Spurgen, the Mayoress (Mrs. Wood), Lady Penfold, Town Clerk Kidson, Town Sergeant Chadwick, Mayor Twopeny of Hythe, Deputy Mayor Price of Hythe, Councillors Tunbridge, Col. Osborn, Rev. Mr. Macpherson, G. C. Walton, Rev. H. D. and Mrs. Dale of Hythe, and Mr. E. Palmer, the organizer. There were detachments of men from the M.G.C. (cavalry), 14th Brigade, R.F.A., and the M.G.C. The band of the Machine Gun Corps played.

Soloman's Temple.

It is believed to-day by many savants that the Old Testament description of Solomon's temple was written by the Jews after their return from the captivity, with the memory of the real splendors of Babylon fresh in their minds, says Anstruther Mackay, writing in the Atlantic Monthly. It is possible that the actual temple was a simple place of worship. If it had been otherwise, it is hardly possible that no remains of it would be visible to-day, seeing that the temples of Egypt, which are so much older, remain, in some cases, almost in toto.

Freddie's Conundrum.

Little Freddie's mother lived quite near the railway and it happened one day that the King passed that way on his way to Balmoral; and everyone was eager to get a glimpse of the royal train.

Freddie was lucky and saw it, and then he asked his mother where the King was going to.

"He's going to his other big house, dearie," said his mother.

Freddie was deep in thought for a moment, then he burst out: "Oh, mummie, how did he get the other people out?"—Spare Moments.

Battleships Now Operated at Full Speed by Wireless

GERMAN SECRET HAS BEEN DISCOVERED AND IMPROVED BY THE U. S. NAVY—SHIP CAN BE DIRECTED AS EASILY AS IF GUIDED BY A NAVIGATOR ON BOARD.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The German secret of operating a battleship at full speed by wireless has been discovered by the Navy Department. This was learned from high officials of the Navy Department.

The tests have been in progress on the United States battleships during the past six months and have now reached their final stage. It is understood that these tests have been more than gratifying. The Iowa and Ohio are obsolete vessels, but of sufficient tonnage and speed, that a successful test with them means success with the largest vessels afloat.

The practical application of the discovery, naval officials believe, will make naval warfare of the future sharp and decisive for the Government that may monopolize the invention.

It was with this invention that Germany hoped to destroy the British navy. In fact it is known that a very practical demonstration was given at Zeebrugge. With the operator four miles away, the hulk of a vessel was directed against the British blockading squadron. One of the vessels was struck and materially damaged.

Principle of the Secret.

All that officials admit is that the secret is based on the principle of concentrating electrical energy on the steering apparatus. They say it has been known for many years that objects could be moved in the water by "wire," and in a general way it has been known that it could be done by wireless or radio. Germany, it is stated, worked the problem to a finish and was about to put it into general operation when the war ended. The practical application of the principle by the navy was made possible by a certain modification which is entirely American, and which officers say it will be their object to keep secret as long as possible.

It is explained that the proved possibility of moving the Iowa and Ohio from a shore station or flag ship is enough to warrant the statement that naval warfare of the future will be totally different from that of the past.

It has been shown that ships can be directed from any point from which they are visible. Vessels of heavy tonnage can be directed as easily as if guided by a navigator on board. It is easily feasible, officers pointed out, to construct large steel-clad rams, and launch them against the enemy.

It is certain the United States navy will be immensely strengthened by the addition of radio-propelled rams. In the future "obsolete" battleships instead of being scrapped, could be equipped with the new device. These would be substantially all the navy would need in the way of structures for ramming. They are already powerfully armed and could run the gauntlet of the enemy fire. They could strike most disastrously before they themselves were put out of commission. The steering gear is to be placed so as to be least of all exposed to the enemy fire.

Paid Police Staff for the Province

Commissioner Plans Scheme to Abolish the Fee System.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 21.—The abolition of the county constables' fee system and the substitution of an arrangement under which police protection would be provided by a staff of salaried men, is one of the recommendations that will probably be made by the commission appointed by the Drury Government to investigate the judiciary of Ontario.

According to E. A. Pocock, of London, one of the commissioners, the fee system is the root of many evils that must be checked. He has under advisement a plan that would provide a paid staff for the whole province under a chief stationed in Toronto. Each county would have half a dozen regularly paid constables under a chief in the county town. These men would be mounted on horses or motor cycles, and would be assigned to patrol beats, on which they would attend to motor speeders as a side line. Mr. Pocock proposes that police patrol boxes, with telephone equipment could be placed at certain points, from which the public could send emergency or other calls, and the staff could keep in regular touch with headquarters. The men would also be required to qualify in first aid work.

The function of this new force, said Mr. Pocock, would be to keep men out of trouble, in contrast with the enterprising fee-paid workers whose ambition is said to be to get men into it. The ultimate result would be a saving to the community and improved protection for the people, he claimed. Mr. Pocock stated that the commissioners are also giving consideration to the proposals for the establishment of juvenile courts in cities.

Hotel Murder Still a Mystery

VANCOUVER, Aug. 21—The murder of Mrs. Alma Sampson, wife of a Great Northern Railway trainman, in her room at a local hotel here late Monday night, is still shrouded in mystery. This morning William Coleman, arrested on Tuesday in connection with the case was able to prove an alibi and was released. Fred Saunders, held as a material witness, has also been released, it being certain that neither had any connection with the case.

Empire Commerce Aim Of Congress

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—When the Ninth Congress of Chambers of Commerce meets in Toronto on September 18th, a labor of experts which was interrupted by the great war for the benefit of Imperial trade and the cohesion of the Empire will be resumed. Under the presidency of Lord Desborough, an Empire builder and sportsman, representative business men from every part of the Empire will gather once more, and the gathering if it follows the precedent of earlier congresses will initiate movements which will mean much to British trade.

The Earl of Elgin, then Colonial Secretary, who welcomed the delegates to London on the occasion of 1906 congress in addressing the members said: "You are business men. You come from every part of the Empire. Each of you has knowledge of the products, of the necessities, and the capabilities of the countries from which you come and which you represent. You are conversant with the means of communication which they enjoy, and also the want of means of communication. Therefore I take it that each of you may be termed an expert. And if I look at the object of the Congress, what is that to be? I imagine that we meet here on the basis of a common interest—that we may be enabled to understand the aims and aspirations and needs of one another. And having got to that measure of agreement then I suppose it is for the Congress to take action in the name of the commerce of the Empire.

Canada has felt "the measure" of the action which Lord Elgin referred to in the development which has resulted directly from the work of the Imperial Trade Congress. In 1886, the date of the first meeting, emigration from the United Kingdom to Canada was trifling. The result of the closer relationships, brought about by the congress was a steady rise in immigration. In 1913 no less than 139,009 persons came directly from the British Isles. The post-war conditions in the Empire render the coming Congress of the supremest importance and it is fortunate for Canada that the turn of the Dominion to be the meeting place should have come round in what must prove one of the most momentous conferences of British traders.

The members of the Congress represent 116 Chambers of Commerce from every part of the Empire and among the most vital matters which they must discuss will be that of inter-Imperial tariffs which will be proposed to offer the maximum benefit for the expansion of Imperial trade.

It was on account of Canada and the sending of a deputation to England in the eighties that the London Chamber of Commerce, now one of the most influential bodies in the Empire, was founded. A deputation from the Dominion to urge closer commercial union found itself in London when there was the greatest difficulty in getting a representative meeting. It was this want, then felt, for the first time, which led to the formation of the London Chamber.

Marshal Foch Homeless in Paris

PARIS, Aug. 19.—For six weeks every real estate agent in Paris has been trying to find an apartment for Marshal Foch, and not one has yet succeeded. Meanwhile the Marshal's lease on his flat in the Avenue de Saxe is drawing to an end and it will not be renewed.

Several proprietors of apartment buildings flatly refused to rent flats to the Marshal, because they said their buildings were "bourgeoise" habitations and the presence of so busy a man as Foch would cause too great a stir.

"What would happen to our quiet house if a new war was to occur?" they asked; "or a revolution?"

Learning of the Marshal's predicament, Lord Northcliffe, the English newspaper Baron offered to start a subscription to buy the great soldier a house "worthy of his fame." "I will start the subscription myself with $10,000," he telegraphed.

Asserting, however, that he was as yet not an object for public charity, Marshal Foch refused.

SENATOR J. M. DOUGLAS DIES IN SASKATCHEWAN

Calgary Aug. 21—A private despatch received here reports the death of Senator J. M. Douglas at his country home at Tantallion, Sask.

No Reason Found for Collapse of Scaffold

Jury Returns Open Verdict In Regard to Death of Clavell Atkins

"We, the jury empanelled to enquire when, how and where Clavell Atkins came to his death find that death was the result of a fall by the collapsing of a scaffold on which he was working when decorating St. Andrews Church in the City of Belleville. There has been no evidence submitted to show what caused the scaffold to give way and fall."

The above was the verdict rendered by the coroner's jury last night in the case of Clavel Atkins who passed away as the result of injuries received when a scaffold he was working upon at St. Andrew's Church collapsed. Dr. Yeomans, coroner, presided over the hearing and Mr. Carnew, County Attorney, conducted the examination of witnesses.

P. G. Deniko testified that he was a carpenter contractor, but had not much experience in building scaffolds. He was present at the church when the accident occurred, but did not see the scaffold that caused the accident. He had not viewed the scaffold since the accident and knew nothing as to its construction.

Charles Cochrane testified that he was a decorator and painter and was associated in partnership with the deceased Clavel Atkins. They had the contract for the decorating of St. Andrew's church which included the building of a scaffold. Witness knew Cephas Johnson who erected the scaffold. They gave no instructions to Johnson as to the building of the scaffold. Deceased and witness were, on the morning of the accident, working near the organ loft. They could not reach the arch and a plank was extended beyond the scaffold. Witness got on the other end of the plank which was 16 feet in length and of hemlock. The plank extended about 2 feet over the platform. They had did this same thing before the accident occurred. Three or four were working on the scaffold the day before the accident. There was no creaking or intimation that the scaffold was insecure. It appeared to be of sufficient strength for the work. Witness did not see what nails were used in connection of the scaffold. He stood on the end of the plank for a while and then he laid down on the board whilst Atkins was doing the painting. Witness was in this position for about 2 minutes when the scaffold collapsed and he fell being rendered unconscious. Witness was unable to tell what caused the collapse. Atkins was a careful man. No ladder was being used by Atkins at the time of the accident.

This concluded the taking of evidence and after Coroner Yeoman's had reviewed same the jury retired to consider their verdict with the above result.

Ponzi Content to Remain in Jail

Total Liabilities Exceed $4,000,000 With 10,200 Claims

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—Charles Ponzi said last night that he was "content to remain in jail" after being arraigned in Federal court on a charge of using the mails to defraud in connection with his plan to pay 50 per cent. in 45 days on all investments. He waived examination and was being held on the $25,000 for the September session of the court

Ponzi's liabilities as uncovered by the States Attorney-General totalled $4,208,874, representing the claims of 10,200 investors, plus the 50 per cent. interest promised. The Attorney-General said his investigation showed the liabilities of the Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company, a concern which ran as a rival to Ponzi's Securities Exchange Company, to be $300,000 with available assets of $150,000.

Senate Rumor

Regina, Aug. 21.—It is rumored that Sir Richard Lake, Lieutenant-Governor of Saskatchewan, whose terms expires in October will be successor in Senate to Senator Douglas, who died Thursday.

More successes for—Poles. Battle may be decisive one. Peasants slaughter Reds. Axes and scythes used by peasants and they take no prisoners.

Dewitt Elwood Clears His Name

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—Dewitt C. Elwood, who came a distance of 3,000 miles from Miami, Fla., to prove himself innocent of the charge that he was implicated in the Rosenthal robbery, has been entirely cleared of suspicion, numerous witnesses having failed to identify him. Rosenthal himself, who was injured on the night of the robbery, and who had seen the face of the fake Salvationist who cleared the way for the big coup, could not identify in Elwood the man who had attacked him.

West Calls For Harvest Hands

WINNIPEG, Aug. 21.—Because the original estimate of 20,000 harvesters from the east to help gather the West's crops has proven totally inadequate, railway officials last night began to make informal arrangements to bring at least 10,000 additional workers to the West.

When the reinforcements arrive all records for harvest excursions will be broken. The railways undertook in the first place to supply 25,000 men.

Saskatchewan alone needs 10,000 more men. The chief grain province of Canada would be able to use 25,000 or more men this fall. Alberta will need about 5,000 more men than has been provided.

Late trains have helped the wheat crops tremendously in the northern sections of the Prairie Provinces, it is reported. Cutting is just beginning in the north.

Wages for harvest hands have reached the high water mark. Six dollars a day is the prevalent wage, but $7 a day is being offered in the further west districts.

Daylight Robbers Clean up $8,000

MONTREAL, Aug. 21.—Two Chinamen are in the General Hospital, one of them seriously beaten as the result of a daring hold-up at the Chinese Merchants' Club, 41 Lagauchetiere St. W., at 8.30 this morning. At that hour three men entered the place and, flashing a badge, declared they were city detectives on a search for drugs. They demanded that the safe be opened at once, saying that they expected the dope was there. The Chinese did as they were told, when they were covered at once by three revolvers in the hands of the alleged detectives. Scooping up $8,000 that was in the safe, the trio fled from the room.

As they started to run away two Chinamen jumped on the backs of two of the thieves. One of these, Ing See Wah, was beaten mercilessly over the head with the butt of a revolver. He is in the General Hospital now in a serious condition. The other, Ing Quon Hong, dropped with a revolver bullet in the leg, the victim of one of the gang.

A little later two detectives arrested a man in a restaurant on Vitre street who they suspect knows something about the affair.

ONTARIO PRIEST'S VIEW AFTER VISIT TO IRELAND

Kingston, Aug. 21.—Rev. Father Kelly of Smiths Falls, has returned home after an absence of about three months upon a trip to Ireland, the land of his birth. Speaking to a reporter of the Sinn Fein activities in Ireland, he said: "It is hard to find out who these fellows are. In fact I don't know anything about the movement. In my time we were Nationalists, followers of Redmonds, looking for Home Rule by constitutional agitation, but the younger element is in the Sinn Fein and physical force business; is doing something that doesn't appeal to the ordinary sense of the country, to people who have a stake in the country. But, of course, there is more in the papers than really exists."

RIOT ENQUIRY OPENED AT THOROLD

St. Catharines, Ont., Aug. 21.—The provincial investigation into the riots at Thorold is in progress before Inspector Boyd at Thorold Police Station. A long list of people known to have been about the town hall on Monday afternoon during and after the preliminary hearing of David McNeal, are being summoned to tell all they know about the disorders. The sidewalk is almost blocked by the summoned parties awaiting their turn to be questioned. There has as yet been no issue of warrants.

Revolt in Mesopotamia Assumes Serious Proportions

ANARCHISTIC REBELLION AGAINST BRITISH ADMINISTRATION—BRITISH GARRISONS INVESTED, RAILWAYS CUT AND BRITISH OFFICERS MURDERED—REINFORCEMENTS ON THE WAY.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Fears are expressed here that recent events in Mesopotamia will involve Great Britain in a costly military campaign. Official reports show that the country is in a state of anarchistic rebellion against the British administration, particularly northeast and west of Bagdad and below and above Mosul. British garrisons have been invested, railways cut and British officers murdered. Already there are seventy thousand British and Indian troops in Mesopotamia and ten thousand or more with artillery are on their way thither from India, but apparently many more such reinforcements will be required to restore order. The revolt is presumed to be against the methods of the British administration, which is wholly in the hands of British political and military officers.

Fifteen Thousand Prisoners Captured By Poles

HEAVY FIGHTING CONTINUES—MANY PRISONERS TAKEN BY POLES—RUSSIAN STATEMENTS CONTINUE INDEFINITE, BUT ADMIT FIERCE FIGHTING.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 21.—The Poles had captured fifteen thousand Soviet prisoners up to Thursday, it was announced here today.

RUSSIAN STATEMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Heavy fighting continues north and northeast of Warsaw, near Plonsk and Ciechanow, according to a Bolshevik official statement issued yesterday at Moscow. Further to the northeast the Soviet and Polish armies are engaged near Wyszkow and Stanislavow, while in the region of Brest-Litovsk fighting is proceeding along the line of the western branch of the Bug River. Near Lemberg the Bolsheviki are developing their advance, while in the Crimean sector the Bolsheviki have occupied the village of Vasilyevka after fierce fighting. The statement reports the landing of Anti-Bolshevik troops on the Sea of Azov and Soviet troops have been engaged in an attempt to expel them. The fighting is said to continue.

Gen. Wrangel Wins Important Victories

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 21.—General Baron Wrangel, Anti-Bolshevik commander in South Russia, has landed three additional invading forces in Kuban ports with the purpose of encouraging Kuban uprisings against the Bolsheviki. The landing parties are reported to aggregate over ten thousand and were landed on the coast of the Sea of Azov on the Taman Peninsula and on the Black Sea coast. French warships covered the landing.

General Wrangel took five thousand prisoners on the lower Dnieper in Alechi region, where he permitted the Bolsheviki to cross the river, and then cut them off by a speedy cavalry movement and giving his infantry which had feigned a repulse, the chance to attack the surprised enemy.

In the northeastern sector Gen Wrangel has taken a thousand prisoners and many guns.

LARGER NEWSPRINT OUTPUT

Montreal, Aug. 21.—It is understood that production of the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Co. in the fiscal year ended June 30 shows an increase of close to 47,000 tons of newsprint ground wood, sulphite and board and wrapping paper combined over the previous fiscal year. It will be recalled that the company added an additional paper machine to the Espanola plant in the latter part of 1919 and still another early in 1920, so that the newsprint will show in the annual report an increase of upwards of 21,000 tons for the year.

ROBS HIS VICTIM, THEN PRESENTS GUN

Montreal, Aug. 19.—J. Martin, a stranger to the city, was held up on St. Elizabeth street at an early hour this morning by a swarthy-looking man, who relieved him of $50 and then to his victim's astonishment handed him the revolver and darted away. Martin was so surprised that he could do nothing. The pistol was later discovered to be a toy one.

Lord Burnham Now Chief Old Sun

Gleichen, Alta., Aug. 21—With flourish of tom-tom and the "chiike" of enthusiastic braves, the Rt. Hon. Viscount Burnham and his wife were invested with the dignity of chiefship of the Blackfoot tribe of the Indians yesterday, and added to their list of titles those of Nah-to-Sah-Pi and Ni-Na-Ki, respectively. Lord Burnham is now Chief Old Sun of the Blackfoots and Lady Burnham is appropriately "Chief, Lady," for that is the literal translation of the titles bestowed upon them. They have added to their wardrobe two striking suits of leather and feathers.

Lord Burnham, along with his confreres, numbering over a hundred, witnessed a stampede in Gleichen, where a splendid exhibition of cattle roping and broncho-busting was staged for the benefit of the newspapermen under the auspices of the Southern Alberta committee of the Imperial Press Conference.

The Picturesque Scenes.

A touch of the picturesque past of the western plains has been injected into Western Canada's welcome to the newspapermen of the Empire. They have met the dignified greeting of Chief Yellow Horse, successor to the first Chief Old Sun of twenty years ago, and they have witnessed the prowess of Vincent Yellow Old Woman an Indian scout in the real sense of the word, who roped an Indian murderer just a few years ago while the outlaw was brandishing the six-shooter with which he had killed a mounted policeman. Due note was taken by the delegates from ancient and sober lands of the dignity of Chief Sixty-Six, the Only Owl, who journeyed to the station with his relatives to welcome his fellow Britishers. His title is still a source of wonder to the delegates, who take things literally.

MAY GET INDUSTRY

Another industry looms in sight for Kingston. On September 10th the rate payers will vote on a proposition to give a free site, exemption from taxation and a railway siding to Thomas Watson of Woodstock, who purposes erecting a plant here for the manufacture of machinery and who agrees to employ not fewer than one hundred hands for nine months in the year.

AUDITOR ATTACKS COUNCIL

In presenting his annual report to the Kingston City Council City Auditor Muir makes the following observation: "The municipal business of 1919 was the most poorly conducted business that I have ever seen. For five months from July 1, the city business, especially the Works Department, was conducted without regard to statutes, municipal by-laws or any other procedure, being done principally by so-called round robins. There is no authority for doing business in this way."

PICTON PEOPLE TOUR

Thursday it was estimated that fully one thousand Picton citizens were in Cobourg for the Horse Show. Picton Motor Club had their annual run to Cobourg and Mayor Newman and prominent citizens went up in full force to enjoy the big event. About 250 cars arrived and were given special parking privileges. Present with them upon invitation of the President of the club was Mr. Geo. Hodgson, President of the Ontario Motor League. Another prominent visitor was Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, Superintendent of Horticultural and Agricultural societies and Fairs and Exhibitions of Ontario.

OPPOSES PHONE INCREASE

Kingston City Council passed a resolution opposing the proposal of the Bell Telephone Company to increase its rates. Mayor Nickle asked the resident manager where the company purchased teh crossbars used and was informed that they were purchased from the Northern Electric Company to which Mayor Nickle stated that the Northern Electric Company practically controlled the Bell Telephone Company. He asked the manager to supply the Council with a list of the chief shareholders of both companies.

BONES OR POTTERY?

Odd Dispute Arises In Our National Museum.

Old bones from Alberta and old art specimens from Greece are contesting for floor space in the national museum at Ottawa. It is a question whether the collection of fine art relics from Grecian masters that Sir Edmund Walker has got together or the collection of dinosaurian remains from the prehistoric Canadian West, on which the Geological Survey has been at work for several years, shall have the right of way.

The Victoria Museum building at the national capital is now being restored to the purposes for which it was intended, its recent Parliamentary tenants having vacated it in favor of the new state house on Parliament Hill. When it was hastily converted into a meeting-place for the Commons and Senate after the fire in 1916, the specimens and exhibits which it was built to house were removed from their places and packed away in boxes, their floor space being occupied by Parliamentary and departmental offices. But the Hall of Vertebrates, covering the whole floor of one wing on the second story, had some specimens in it that were a bit awkward thus to pack away, and they were left as they were.

There was, in particular, the big duck-bill dinosaur from the Red Deer River valley. This mammoth relic was unearthed in 1913, taken with a quantity of other fossil remains and big bones to Ottawa, and there mounted in the museum. It stands in a thirty-foot concrete-bed box bolted to the side of the wall, and the most convenient thing to do with it, because of its proportion, was to leave it where it was. Other boxes and cases were stacked up around it, but old Duck Bill was undisturbed.

Now, however, that the building is coming back to its pre-fire uses and purposes, it has been proposed to make room in it for Sir Edmund Walker's collection of Grecian art and pottery, and the space formerly occupied by the Alberta big bone specimens and others of a more or less similar kind was commandeered for the exhibits from Greece.

The Northern Alberta branch of the Canadian Mining Institute at a recent meeting in Edmonton passed a resolution of protest against this displacement of the exhibits in the Hall of Vertebrates and wired accordingly to the Minister of Mines, under whose direction the Geological Survey is carried on and whose department is responsible also for the national museum and the preservation of its natural wonders. The Alberta people felt that, however good and valuable Sir Edmund's art work might be, it was a matter of scientific importance that these made-in-Canada specimens should be given prominence and should not be removed for any other exhibits, even though more beautiful to look at.

Alterations in the museum had already commenced. Carpenters and renovators were at work, and a generous amount of floor space in addition to that formerly occupied by the vertebrates had been marked off for the new art gallery. The Alberta bones were to be put somewhere else, and even old Duck Bill was to be moved. At this stage the Department of Mines asked the Public Works Department to halt proceedings, and the division of the floor space in the museum is to be reconsidered. The Geological Survey is understood to be backing up the protest from Alberta, and an effort will be made to find suitable accommodation for the Grecian art exhibits without displacing the big bone specimens from the prehistoric West.

A large stack of boxes in the basement of the museum building, which have never been opened, hold additional fossil specimens from Alberta, and space will be desired for these also. They represent discoveries made by the Geological Survey in the Red Deer fossil beds which it has not yet been possible to put on display. Among the specimens already mounted and included in the list in the Hall of Vertebrates, however, are several sections of dinosaurian remains, pieces of fossilized plants and trees, mounted buffalo skeletons, Indians' head and such like, the whole making a unique contribution to the national curio shop.

Hon. Arthur Meighen has declared himself strongly in favor of preserving in a fit and worthy way the remarkable collection of ancient relics from the West. That it is a popular feature of the museum is evidenced by the fact that thousands of people came to see it when the museum was in running as such, and an effort will be made to restore it to its former place and prominence.

Trade With Italy Grows.

Canada's exports to Italy in 1919 were more than thirty times greater in value than in the year before the war, according to a statement on Canada's trade with that country published in the bulletin of the Trade and Commerce. The value of Canada's exports to Italy during the eleven months, January to November, 1919, was $19,130,079. In 1917, with exports valued at $2,230,428, for the eleven month period, Canada stood twelfth in the list of exporters to Italy. In 1919, she was fourth, being preceded only by the United Kingdom, United States and France. Canadian exports to Italy in 1919 included wheat, wheat flour, canned vegetables, salmon, canned meat, cheese, codfish, locomotives, brass rods, sheets and tubing, hardware, metals, asbestos, and mineral wax. The Canadian Trade Commissioner, in his current report, emphasizes the need of a Canadian bank opening a branch in that country.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME"

(What the Press Agents Say).

"The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," one of the greatest of John Fox, Jr., novels, has been dramatized by Sidney Toler, an actor-playwright of distinction, and with the New York company headed by Geo. Simpson, Dorothy Dunn, formerly the Wendy in Maude Adams' production of "Peter Pan"; Fay Brennan, winner of several beauty contests for the women of the screen; James Kennedy, Walter Carmen, Ralph MacDonald, John Houston, Grace Fries, David Callis, J. M. Bradford, L. Heron, Edward Kenyon, Bert Kay, Arthur Wood and John Williams in the cast, will be seen at Griffin's Opera House next Friday night, August 27th.

In adapting the story, Mr. Toler adhered to the Fox narrative pretty closely, although some changes, that are believed to lend to dramatic interest were made. The management has staged the play with fine regard for attractiveness of scene and the settings of Kentucky mountain neighborhoods are photographic in realism. The scene of Major Buford's home has the charm of the South of 1861 and furnishings are typical of the period. Humor and romance preserve a balance, and the scene in which the dog Jack is tried for sheep-killing is amusing and at the same time most stirring in intensity. This is not the moving picture.

THE MOFFATS ARE COMING.

The announcement that Mr. and Mrs. Graham Moffat, Miss Winnifred Moffat, and their Scottish company are making their first annual tour of America should be of especially interest to theatregoers in that, until this year, Mr. and Mrs. Moffat have appeared personally in every other English-speaking country. When William Morris, who is best known in Canada as the manager of Sir Harry Lauder's tours, was abroad last spring, his attention was directed to an article chronicling the production of a new Scottish comedy by the author of "Bunty Pulls the Strings" and without waiting for further advices he journeyed to Glasgow, saw the new play and forthwith secured the right for the United States and Canada. The result is that he will present here, for the first time in America, Mr. Moffatt's newest comedy of Scottish life, "Don't Tell," and with it Mr. and Mrs. Moffat and their Scottish company in their original roles, as it was done in Glasgow. "Don't Tell" is best described as a Scottish comedy of the present decade. It deals chiefly with a Glasgow plumber who is suddenly elected to the Magistracy, and, yielding to the demands of his family, consents to hold a private rehearsal in his home of the duties he will be called upon to perform officially. During the mock trial he suddenly discovers that his eldest daughter is really concerned in a matter which seriously affects the entire family, and it is upon this promise that Mr. Moffat has developed the complications in his latest opus. The entire Glasgow company and production intact has been brought to America, and is being presented in the principal cities of Canada for four weeks before it opens for a run on Broadway on September 27. "Don't Tell" will be presented in Belleville for one night only at Griffin's Friday, September 3rd.

MAY ALLISON AT GRIFFIN'S TODAY IN "THE WALK-OFF'S"

The feature offering at Griffin's today, matinee and night, is "The Walkoff's". May Allison appears in this feature attraction dealing with society and appears in fashionable gowns specially designed for her in advance by several Parisian modistes. Frederick and Fanny Hatton, the gifted collaborators of "Upstairs and Down," wrote the play.

In addition to gowns and beautiful women adorning them, the production is set in a background of rich society and studio life in New York city. Herbert Blache, who has a long record of big productions to his credit, directed May Allison and a notable cast in this production and absorbing comedy. British Canadian New pictorial, "Brownie's Busy Day," featuring the cleverest dog in picture, "Brownie"; an interesting Outing Chester Travelogue, "Temple Bells," and the third chapter of the thrilling "stunt" picture, "The Whirlwind," are also being screened on the same program in addition to the feature offering.

NEXT WEEK'S MOVIES

While "Speedy Meade," Louis Bennison and Katherine MacDonald's co-starring vehicle is top-heavy with suspense and thrills, touches of delightful comedy, in which the smiling star excels, are frequent. Essentially a comedian, Bennison always seeks to give his audiences flashes of his original humor as a visual relief from a series of intensely thrilling situations. In "Speedy Meade," which is to be shown at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday, the infectious Bennison smile is ever present. When the genial western cowpuncher toured the country in his famous stage triumph, "Johnny, Get Your Gun," critics everywhere sang the praises of his good humor. On the screen he has lived up to the opinion of the Cincinnati reviewer, who said: In Bennison we have an absolutely new type of humorist. He has the build of Jim Thorpe the smile of a tooth powder advertisement, and the grace of a jazz band, and there is realism in his every action, whether it is in a comedy scene or in some thrilling incident that calls for the use of his big fists against the jaw of some desperate villain. Jack Dempsey, best known man in America appears on the same program in "Daredevil Jack". A selected program of comedy and travelogues will also be screened.

TRAFALGAR SQUARE WILL BE REPRODUCED

"The Empire Triumphant" the evening spectacle in front of the Grand Stand at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, will be a pageant of splendor, color, light and action and will provide a striking object lesson in the making and keeping of the British Empire. Trafalgar Square, a spot so alive with associations and memories for thousands of returned men and other Canadians, will be the setting for this new triumph in stagecraft, and the very spirit of Nelson will seemingly hover over the scene glorying in the fact that we have never relinquished our beneficent heritage of sea-wide supremacy. Reproduced with truthful attention to detail, Nelson's monument will be shown towering 75 feet in the air, with the National Gallery in the background, St. Martin's church on the left, and public buildings on the right. Profoundly impressive will be the musical treatment and divertissement, including the Empire ballet sailors' drill, etc., while an added touch of realism will be given by a large battle tank in action—"Over the top with the Canadians"—and a great battleship moving majestically to her anchorage crowded with cheering bluejackets—"Britannia Rules the Waves." Another of the many stirring episodes will be the breaking out of the largest Union Jack in the world and the trooping of the King's Colors, a gorgeous event and one of the oldest of British Army ceremonials, appropriately conducted on Trafalgar Square.

Summer Heat Hard On Baby

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentry and colic are most prevalent. Any of these troubles may prove deadly if not promptly treated. During the summer mother's best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DOMINION SUGAR COMPANY TO CLOSE DOWN PLANT

Chatham, Aug. 19.—The plant of the Dominion Sugar Company will be closed down at the end of the week, as the run on raw sugar has been completed. The factory will open again as soon as this year's crop is ready, which will be much earlier than usual. The weather conditions have been so favorable that the crop has made wonderful progress. The yield is the best in the history of the beet sugar industry.

BUILD IT NOW

Reconstruct the Old Home For Longer Usefulness

Reconstruction begins at home. If the old house isn't all you desire, and you can't build a new one, a little of the right kind of repairing and remodeling will readily restore it to present day standards.

Perhaps it's a new porch, a summer kitchen, a side entrance, a new roof, extra rooms in the attic or a renewing of old, cracked walls and ceilings that is needed.

The right kind of lumber used in the right way will make the change and we have all the material you will require including that knotless and crackless manufactured lumber Beaver Board, for better walls and ceilings.

Suppose you ask us about it?

Musical Comedy Opens Theatrical Season

Light and Airy Singing and Dancing Skit is "Vanity Fair of 1920"

Variety is said to be the spice of life so Manager Forhan of Griffin's Theatre injected a little spice into the local entertainment season Friday evening with "Vanity Fair of 1920" the first road show of the season. This production is of the roof garden variety, very summery, with a scant plot and scantier costumes for the ladies of the cast. It was a typical hot weather entertainment with singing and dancing and amusing comedians providing a light but laughter-provoking program. Elmer Coudy, the principal comedian has a style all his own, quiet, unique but fetching. Elmer does not have to shout or turn handsprings to creat a laugh, but in a droll, quiet manner in dialogue, monologue and songs pleases the audience. Pat Barrett as a down south small-town Yankee also created considerable amusement. The dancing numbers were very entertaining, the costumes were fresh, rich and varied and the scenery was plentiful and appropriate. The attendance was satisfactory for so early in the season.

GAME LAWS.

The latest available Game Laws of each Province, including the International Migratory Birds Act are included in ROD AND GUN IN CANADA for August. This issue of Canada's sportsmen's monthly contains seven live-blooded stories of adventure with canoe, gun, rod and trap in Canada. In addition to these stories of fact and fiction there are the usual high class Guns and Ammunition Department for the "gun crank"; the Angling Department for the Waltonian, and the Kennel and Conservation Departments for the admirers of the canine and lovers of true sport. A. Bryn Williams the well known big game hunter, takes the reader on another "leg" of the hunting trip into the hills of British Columbia, after sheep and goats. ROD AND GUN IN CANADA is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont.

EX-SOLDIERS QUALIFY AS SCHOOL TEACHERS

Toronto, Aug. 21.—Some two hundred ex-soldiers of Ontario will enter upon their new duties when the public schools of Ontario open on September 1. The entry of the war veterans into the teaching profession is regarded with great favor by the Education Department authorities, because the male school teacher had been lately fast disappearing from public school life.

It was one of the last acts of Hon. H. J. Cody, when Minister of Education under the Hearst government to provide for the training at public expense of returned men for the teaching profession. To his call there was a splendid response, the students including ex-officers, men with business experience, men with university training ex-N.C.O.'s, young men and married men of mature age and experience.

These were classified according to qualifications and assigned to courses at the faculties of education and normal schools. Every man passed his examination successfully at the faculties of education and at the normal schools. Every man passed his examination successfully at the faculties of education Only a dozen failed, chiefly through ill health.

Anecdotes of New Premier

Canadian writers must be less inventive than Americans, which perhaps explains the fact that there never springs up such a crop of anecdotes about our leading public men as American statesmen are favored with. The Winnipeg Tribune attempts to remedy this defect by publishing some "I-remember-when" stories about the new Prime Minister. It is recorded that when, twelve years ago, in Portage la Prairie he contemplated entering politics a friend said to him: "Arthur Meighen, you're demented if you contemplate neglecting a growing practice for the sake of a forlorn hope." This does not strike us as much of an anecdote, and is only repeated for the sake of emphasizing the nature of the task that confronted the young lawyer. He was to enter the lists against John Crawford, the Liberal nominee, and appeared to have only a very slight chance of success. Nevertheless, he was elected, and from that day to this his career has been a succession of difficult tasks mastered.

It is related by Mr. Meighen's neighbors that he is extremely absent-minded, the result of becoming so completely absorbed in a train of thought that he is unconscious of externals. In the early days of his residence in Portage, Mr. Meighen shared bachelor quarters with Col. C. D. McPherson, now member of the Manitoba Legislature for Lakeside, and Capt. F. B. Bagshaw, a Regina lawyer. Before dawn one morning he arose to catch the five o'clock train for Winnipeg, where he was going to be best man at a wedding. Late in the afternoon when he was half way home he happened to glance at his trousers and discovered that he had figured at the wedding in highly inappropriate garb. Not only did the trousers fail by many shades to match his coat, but they were not his own trousers at all, but the property of Mr. McPherson. Nor had he chosen his roommate's best pair, but instead had donned trousers that Mr. McPherson commonly wore when working round the press in the office of the Daily Graphic, with which he was then connected. However, the marriage did not turn out any the less happily on that account.

It is reported that frequently Mrs. Meighen has to ring her husband up at his office to inquire why he hasn't come home for lunch, and that his usual answer is, "What! Haven't I been home yet?" Mr. Adam Daum, a next door neighbor of Mr. Meighen's who used to accompany him when he drove to make political speeches, says that frequently they would drive for twenty miles and not exchange a word, which is no mean tribute to Mr. Daum's own qualities as a traveling companion. Mr. Daum also deposeth that on one occasion when Mr. and Mrs. Meighen went out in the evening to attend a wedding, they left their little boy Teddy in charge of the Daums. Mr. Meighen, who is not greatly excited about social events, left the party before the close of the exercises, saying that he would call for Teddy. When Mrs. Meighen arrived home some hours later she found her husband sound asleep, but there was no sign of the boy. It was discovered later that Mr. Meighen had forgotten all about him, and as the saying is, "it happens in the best regulated of families."

Mayor Metcalfe, another old friend of Mr. Meighen's, reports that when the young lawyer first announced his intention of entering politics, Mrs. Metcalfe predicted, that he would become Minister of Justice, if not Prime Minister. Mr. Meighen's first Western experience really began in Winnipeg, in 1898, where for a while after his arrival he taught bookkeeping in the Winnipeg Business College. He was a master of his subject, and it is said that when it was his duty to instruct in mathematics his knowledge of the science was profound. He graduated with honors in mathematics at the University of Toronto two years earlier. It might also be remarked that Sir Thomas White is a sound mathematician, which with his strong literary bent makes rather an unusual combination. Occasionally Mr. Meighen would be called upon to double in brass to the extent of teaching calligraphy, a subject in which he did not greatly excel, but by the use of good headwork he was able to "get by."

It is not clear just when the ambition to enter public life seized Mr. Meighen for the first time, but when it did he left nothing undone to qualify for it. He had his room filled with volumes of modern orations, and devoted his spare time to declaiming from them and in studying the careers of famous men. His interest in sport was never particularly strong, but it is related that at one time he was a member of an amateur baseball team, called the McKenzie Colts. He was a pitcher, but distinctly inferior to Walter Johnson and one or two others who might be named. Once he was playing in right field, but became immersed in thought to such an extent that when the opposing Babe Ruth lammed one over his head he forgot to follow the ball, and continued to cogitate. Shortly afterwards he was waivered out of the league, and perhaps it was just as well. Canada's Prime Minister should not be an enthusiast for the national sport of the United States, which is so typical of that nation.

HOW LONG CAN A BIRD FLY?

It is said that the longest continuous bird flight in the world is made by the golden plover, covering a distance of 2,400 miles between Nova Scotia and South America, without pause or rest in forty-eight hours. This bird nests along the Arctic coast of North America. As soon as the young are able to care for themselves they migrate, by way of the Labrador coast of the Atlantic, to Nova Scotia, from which they shape a straight southerly sea-course to the Argentine.

After six months vacation in the south, the golden plover finds its way back to the Arctic by an entirely different route, going northwesterly across South America and the Gulf of Mexico to the coasts of Louisana and Texas, thence up the Mississippi valley and more northerly streams to the Arctic.

Equally wonderful in its way is the flight of the golden plover of the Pacific coast from Alaska, 2,000 miles across the trackless, islandless sea, to Hawaii.

The black poll warblers and cliff swallows, both nesting northward to Alaska, are winter neighbors in Brazil and the Argentine. The former wings his rapid progress by long night flights over land and water from one feeding station to another. His course is direct. The swallow, on the contrary, travels by day and, although starting several weeks earlier than the warbler, is behind the latter in reaching his destination.

BADLY INJURED IN MOTOR MISHAP

Toronto, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Stella Jones 60 Orchard Park Boulevard, is in the General Hospital with a torn ear, broken nose, fractured cheekbone and lacerated eye, as the result of an accident on the Toronto-Hamilton Highway near Port Credit early yesterday morning, when her car, driven by J. McGee, of the above address, collided with another motor in charge of Bert Scripture, of Brighton, Ont. The force of the collision badly smashed the two cars, and Mrs. Jones was thrown heavily against the steel framework of her car, sustaining the aforementioned injuries. McGee and Scripture escaped injury. Inquiry at the hospital last night led to the reply that Mrs. Jones condition was serious.

CALL IT REAL REVIVAL OF THE OLD TORY PARTY

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 21.—Conservative members and Senators have departed from Ottawa much heartened by the conference. From all accounts it was a real "revival of the old party," which for the past three years or so has been in a more or less dormant condition. Those of the Liberal Unionists who remain and were here yesterday are now apparently content to be absorbed into the resuscitated Conservative organization, and to take their chances under the fighting banner of Premier Meighen. The Prime Minister in his Belleville speech, threw down the gauntlet to all and sundry who may come against him and yesterday was commended by his followers for so doing. Win or lose they believe "fight" is the best policy.

An information bureau has been created. At the head of it is said to be Jno. Bain, a former Liberal, who organized the Unionist Propaganda Bureau in 1917.

WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE.

The little red school house of Marsh Hill, or "contagious" thereto, thinks well of itself because within its historic walls once upon a time, Gilbert Parker taught the young idea how to shoot there—not pea-shoot—they acquired that themselves.

The germs of genius which germinated within the narrow confines of the little country school house at Marsh Hill grew so wisely and well that its final habitat had to be in Old London, the world's centre in art, literature, finance, diplomacy, and everything worth while.

What dreams were dreamed in the long summer afternoons when the humming of the bees mingled pleasantly with the sing-song of the children at their recitations, forming a symphony of slumber-inviting music, may never be known to the general public, but the dream children born there in the active brain of that school teacher grew out of the hazy days and romantic nights into living people loved by millions of readers of the books of Sir Gilbert Parker.

AN EASY QUESTION.

Hon. Mackenzie King in his speech at Paisley asked what constructive legislation Union Government had passed. That is an easy question. No Canadian Government ever passed so much advanced legislation. Here are four examples: The abolition of patronage, the nationalization of Canadian railways, women's suffrage, and the Soldiers' Land Settlement plan. The attitude of the Opposition on these advanced measures is instructive. The first move was luke-warmly supported by the Opposition; the Liberals, or a majority of them, voted against the enfranchisement of women; the Opposition has arrayed itself against government ownership and no mention of the question was made in the Liberal platform. As for the Soldiers' Settlement Board and its work it drew generous praise from all parts of the House.—Ottawa Journal.

MACKENZIE KING'S FORLORN HOPE.

After reading the distortion of Premier Meighen's words at Stirling by the press and politicians so inoculated with the disease of partizanship that they can not see straight, let alone write straight, it is refreshing to turn again to the text of what Premier Meighen actually did say at Stirling, and then wonder at the audacity of political hacks who try to make something else out of plain statements.

Premier Meighen said at Stirling in regard to the tariff policy:

> "The financial policy of this Goverment is to go in debt no farther.
>
> "The financial policy of this Government is to get revenue to carry on the work of government and to pay our debts.
> "The tariff policy of this country is to keep Canadian workingmen in Canada.
>
> "When you find workingmen's houses put up in hundreds for sale you will find hard times for everybody.
> "The policy of the Government is to enlarge the employment market and add to the size of Canada.
> "The policy of the Government is to make goods here and keep people here with plenty of work for every class of man.
> "The policy of the Government is to give Canadian industries of every kind just enough advantage in the Canadian market as to make it pay them better to stay here and expand than to diminish their plants or to leave.
> "We are starting now an inquiry, the most thorough we can make, to determine what is absolutely necessary to secure these ends.
> "Wherever there is a tax or schedule that is not absolutely necescsary it will be wiped away."

The same thing could easily be said by Mackenzie King, so-called Liberal leader, and he practically does say the same thing after making the pretence of attacking Premier Meighen's speech in toto.

Mackenzie King evidently thinks he can fool some of the people all of the time.

Perhaps he can, but we have our doots.

Power of he People
(Spirit River Echo, Alberta)

The final power lives in the people. They can, if they desire it enough to use their strength, shape their government in any way they please, in spite of "invisible interests and the party machines." Their voice is public opinion and the pressure of public opinion will be heeded—if raised. Statesmen must follow the clarified common thought or be broken. Public opinion shapes the nation, it controls everything, and can create, destroy, reward, punish, compel and prevent. It can accomplish anything it chooses if it be educated and roused to make the effort.

Who Will Pay the Debt
(Edmonton Bulletin)

The national debt of Canada is six times greater than it was before the war. The annual interest on it is greater than the total national revenue before the war. How is the increased burden of taxation to be carried without ruin to the country? There is only one answer: By increasing production. How can production be most largely and most rapidly increased? With less than 2 per cent. of available prairie land as yet under cultivation it is obvious that by no other means can production in Canada be increased so largely or so rapidly as by increasing the cultivated area of the west.

THE POET'S CORNER

AUGUST IS LAUGHING

West wind, blow from your prairie nest
Blow from the mountains, blow from the west.
The sail is idle, the sailor too;
O! wind of the west, we wait for you.
Blow, blow!
I have wooed you so,
But never a favor you bestow.
You rock your cradle the hills between
But scorn to notice my white lateen.

August is laughing across the sky,
Laughing while paddle, canoe and I,
Drift, drift,
Where the hills uplift
On either side of the current swift.
The river rolls in its rocky bed;
My paddle is plying its way ahead;
Dip, dip,
While the waters flip
In foams as over their breast we slip.

And forward far the rapids roar,
Fretting their margin for evermore.
Dash, dash,
With a mighty crash,
They seethe, and boil, and bound, and splash.
Be strong, O paddle! be brave, canoe!
The reckless waves you must plunge into Reel, reel,
On your trembling keel,
But never a fear my craft will feel.

We've raced the rapid, we're far ahead
The river slips through its silent bed.
Sway, sway,
As bubbles spray
And fall in tinkling tunes away.
And up on the hills against the sky,
A fir tree rocking its lullaby,
Swings, swings,
Its emerald wings,
Swelling the song that my paddle sings.

Gross Carelessness

The traffic was at its height and there were the usual piles of passenger's baggage on the platform. In the usual way the porters were banging it about, while the owners looked mournfully on. Suddenly the station master appeared and approaching one of the porters, shouted in stern tones: "Here what do you mean by throwing those trunks about like that?" The passengers pinched themselves to make sure they were not dreaming, but they returned to earth when the official added: "Can't you see you're making big dents in the concrete platform?"

A BROKEN HEART.

It May Cause Death, So Say Scientific Men.

Common expressions such as "have a heart," a "heartless person," i. "comes from the heart," are more scientific than the scientific world is ready to acknowledge. Modern doctors tell us the heart has nothing to do with the affections, emotions and feelings, being merely a blood-pumping organ formed of involuntary muscles and beyond the influence of the will, if not of the mental sphere, but Dr. Aurelius R. de Janies, of Boston, points out in the Medical Record (New York) that this is not entirely correct.

"A sudden and painful mental shock of the heart or to excite it to such degree as even to injure its valves or their coolest temperament will give immunity from this susceptibility. It has long been noticed that long-continued anxiety will lead to a feeble and slow action of the heart and at the same time render the organ irritable and liable to become excited under the slightest access of emotional feeling.

"The heart," he writes, "is an organ which is highly susceptible to emotional excitement, and neither volition nor the cordae tendineae. Furthermore, we often hear the phrase 'died of a broken heart,' and this is not purely figurative, because sudden death may undoubtedly be sometimes due to a ruptured heart caused by violent emotions. Terror or joy, when it suddenly seizes a person already overpowered by despair, may paralyze the heart. History tells us that the Roman matrons, after the battle of Cannae, on seeing their sons, whom they supposed to have been killed, dropped dead on the spot.

"Fear, which is the chronic form of fright, occasions a tremulous palpitation; rage also may produce precordial oppression, and is known even to have brought on an attack of angina pectoris. Excessive grief will cause functional disorders with deranged action of the valves, the patient becoming pale and anaemic. It is a general rule that hope will excite and sustain the organ, despair and anxiety will depress it, and contentment and peace of mind will give it healthy action.

"I am convinced that but few physicians realize the great importance of the relations of the brain with the heart, or even appreciate the connection between the soul and that centre of physical life. We might even assert that as there is a corporeal heart (the life-giving centre of the body, so there must be a spiritual heart (the centre of soul-life). Else, why is the word 'heart' continually applied to the feelings, the impulses and emotions?

"It is further said, a man 'has a heart' or 'no heart,' that such an emotion 'comes from the heart or the head,' thereby indicating that one kind of feeling may come from the soul and another from a more 'calculating' centre. And all the grand, noble and loving impulses of our nature are said to come from the 'heart,' while the cold, unemotional and 'practical' acts are said to emanate from the brain.

"This sympathy between the mind and the heart should not be overlooked, for certain cases to form more correct diagnosis than could be otherwise made. A physician may be treating the heart with medicines when his efforts should be directed to a diseased mind."

Weight of Earth.

The weight of the earth, in round figures, is 6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons. This conclusion has been arrived at by an English university demonstrator as the result of experimental observation.

Two small balls of identical weight were suspended by quartz threads from the ends of a rod. When they were at rest two balls of about ten pounds each were brought close to them. Their mutual attraction caused the freely suspended spheres to swing toward the fixed heavy balls. The distance the spheres moved toward the lead balls being known, as well as the weight of both, it was then possible to calculate the force exerted on the one by the other. It being also known what force the earth exerted upon the balls, a sum in proportion gave the weight of the earth as above.

The result was checked by another method of weighing — by calculation based on the known distance of the earth from the sun and the known speed of the earth's rotation.

The Thirteenth Commandment

"This is the new story by Rupert Hughes—you remember Hughes—author of 'The Unpardonable Sin,' 'Gloria's Romance,' 'Excuse Me,' and all those other good stories.

"Daphne Kip, the heroine of 'The Thirteenth Commandment,' was a girl just like you Rose, who also became engaged and then went to New York to buy her trousseau. Then things began to happen; just what I refuse to tell—don't want to spoil the pleasure of your reading.

"By all means read this story; the publisher of this paper tells me he will publish it as his next serial. Mother, father and Brother Jim will enjoy it just as much as you, so tell them about it.

"Don't forget, now; watch for the issue with the first installment.

RUPERT HUGHES

One of the Most Popular of American Authors

At first glance Mr. Hughes might be taken as a man who has chosen an army career. Be not deceived, however. The uniform only signifies the patriotism of Rupert Hughes, who served as a captain in the intelligence department of the government during the war. It might be added that he is also a veteran of the Spanish-American war, enlisting as a private and coming out as a captain.

But Rupert Hughes' chief claim to fame is as a writer of fiction and plays, being the author of some 20 odd books and a dozen plays. His stories have won for him a place among the most popular and successful writers of the day. One of the best of his stories is "The Thirteenth Commandment," a remarkably entertaining tale of modern life. We have secured this story for our next serial and if you will read the first installment you'll surely want to follow it to the end. And, what is more, you won't regret it.

Canada's Bird Refuge.

It is something for one bird to tell another that Canada has created a series of reserves in the province of Quebec where birds are safe from man-made troubles.

Unlike most bird refuges, Perce Rock, a picturesque island near Perce village; the east and north cliffs of Bonaventure island, three miles further away; and the northernmost of the Magdalen islands, 124 miles out to sea, have been set apart specifically to protect birds whose value to mankind is chiefly their beauty as a part of nature.

There is no attempt to argue, for example, that the gannet, the kittiwake, or the razorbill auk should be protected because they "help the farmer"; they are protected simply because they are birds.

No human being may steal an egg from their nests; no weapon dangerous to their welfare may be brought within a mile of their island sanctuaries.

Naturally all other birds are equally safe, and the refuges will be a help toward carrying out the purpose of the international treaty for bird protection.

Yellowstone Park Grows.

Yellowstone national park is expected to grow 1,263 square miles larger as soon as the present congress reaches a bill neglected by the last session. The proposed extension, 30 miles to the south of the established boundary, as described in Popular Mechanics magazine, takes in Jackson lake and the wonderful mountain scenery about it, part of the famous Jackson's Hole country.

Besides providing the only variety of scenic beauty now lacking in the park, the addition includes the summer grazing ground of America's last large herd of elk, and some of the finest trout-fishing water in the country.

Fish Had False Teeth.

A fish wearing false teeth was hooked in the Gulf of Mexico, near Indian Rocks, Fla., by A. L. Anderson of Independence.

Judge Anderson was invited to go out in a boat with H. H. Ingersoll, a well known resident of Indian Rocks. During the day they brought up a specimen of the "swell toad" or burfish variety.

As the hook was pulled out it brought with it a front plate with four false teeth attached to a gold bridge.

Later it was learned by the astonished fishermen that a few days before a visitor from Oldsmar, a nearby resort, had dropped his teeth while bathing.—Kansas City Star.

Would Come to Canada.

"Fifteen to twenty thousand Roumanians, Serbians and Poles, who left Canada for their native countries since the signing of the armistice in November, 1918, are eager to return to this land, but they can't, because they can't get passports," declared John Sinkiewicz, of Prince Albert, Sask., upon his arrival from an extensive tour of Europe. "I want to warn any citizens of foreign birth who are so fortunate as to be in Canada to stay here," he added.

Where Did She Belong?

"Yes," said the snobbish young lady, "I realize that it takes all kinds of people to make a world and I can say I am very glad I am not one of them."

Pallid Cheeks Mean Anaemia

New Health Can Be Obtained by Enriching the Blood Supply.

When a girl in her teens becomes peevish, listless and dull, when nothing seems to interest her and dainties do not tempt her appetite you may be certain that she needs more good blood than her system is provided with. Before long her pallid cheeks, frequent headaches and breathlessness and heart palpitation will confirm that she is anaemic. Many mothers as the result of their own girlhood experience can promptly detect the early signs of anaemia and the wise mother does not wait for the trouble to develop further, but at once gives her daughter a course with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which renew the blood supply and banish anaemia before it has obtained a hold on the system.

Out of their experience thousands of mothers know that anaemia is the sure road to worse ills. They know the difference that good red blood makes in the development of womanly health. Every headache, every gasp for breath that follows the slightest exertion by the anaemic girl, every pain she suffers in her back and limbs are reproaches if you have not taken the best steps to give your weak girl new blood, and the only sure way to do so is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

New, rich, red blood is infused into the system by every dose of these pills. From this new rich blood springs good health, an increased appetite, new energy, high spirits and perfect womanly development. Give your daughter Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and take them yourself and note how promptly their influence is felt in better health.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail post-paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FATHER WENT TO GALLOWS FOR SON

Toronto, Aug. 20.—Medical specialists, who have had Arnel Love, aged 22, under their observation for the past six weeks, express the opinion that he is telling the truth—that he did, eight years ago, kill his mother, as he has confessed, and that his father paid the extreme penalty on the gallows to save his son. There appears to be no doubt in the minds of the doctors that the boy is perfectly rational, and understands thoroughly the gravity of his admission.

While no official statement has been made to the Parliament Buildings as yet, it is learned that the doctors believe the story of young Love to be true in every detail.

It appears that the boy's mother had asked Arnel to get some wood, and do some other little things for her. The boy was extremely cranky, and although he did what his mother asked, acted ugly over it. When he entered the house with an armful of wood he became enraged at his mother and took one of the sticks and clubbed her over the head with it. This temporarily deranged him, and he then killed her.

It is believed that the father helped dispose of the body. At the trial, when the lad testified against his father, Love, senior, out of affection for and pride in the boy, went to his death a willing sacrifice.

Now in Asylum.

The whereabouts of young Love, since he was brought to Toronto by the minister in whose church the revival meetings were being held which led Love to make his confession have been kept secret by the authorities. It is believed that he is being detained in Hamilton asylum. Just what will be done with him will be definitely decided after the alienists who have had him under observation make their official report.

EASTMAN KODAK STOCK SELLS AT $533 A SHARE

New York, Aug. 19.—There was a sale of ten shares of Eastman Kodak stock on the big board at $533 a share. This is the first sale on the New York Exchange in five years, the last previous sale having been in August, 1915, with the price $605 a share. Today's price was therefore 72 points behind that last recorded. It must be remembered, however, that in that time holders of the stock have received in regular and extra dividends about $200 a share.

The THIRTEENTH COMMANDMENT

by

RUPERT HUGHES

CHAPTER I.

As usual nowadays, instead of knocking at the door Fate called up on the telephone.

Though the bell shrilled almost in Mrs. Kip's ear she would not answer it. She winced, shook her head, agitated her rocking chair with petulance, embroidered vindictively, and hardly so much called out as sighed very loudly toward the hallway:

"Daphne! O-oh, Daphne! the telephone again!"

On the stairs there sounded a muffled scurry like the rush of an April shower chased down a hillside by the sun. An allegory of April darted across the room and raised the telephone to her lips as if it were a beaker of good cheer.

Her mother was used to this humor of Daphne's and paid no heed till a sudden frost chilled the warm tone of the girl's voice. The smile of hospitality wasted on the telephone had given place to a look of embarrassment.

Mrs. Kip whispered anxiously, "Who is it?"

Daphne motioned her not to interrupt, and her voice grew deep and important. It became what her brother Bayard called her "reception voice." In her grandest centralto she said:

"This is Miss Kip. Yes, I have. Yes, he does. I beg pardon? Oh!—Oh! Oh! How do you do, Mr. Wmbwm."

"Mr. Who?" her mother keened.

Into the telephone she was saying, and bowing and nodding the while with her politest face. "Indeed I'll try to be. Of course Cleveland's not New York, but— By the way, do you dance? That's good. That's right; might as well be deaf if you don't! How long will you be in Cleveland? Oh, is that all? Well, then, you must come out here and have tea with us this very afternoon. I'll call for you at the hotel in my little car. No; it's not one of those; it's an electric. I run it myself. Afraid to risk it? Brave man! I'll be there in fifteen minutes, and you might be on the steps. Goodby, Mr. Wmbwm."

This last was said in the fond tone of ancient friendship, and she hung up the receiver with a gesture like shaking hands.

She turned to find her mother thinning her lips in a long, tight line; her cheeks bulged explosively. Daphne forestalled her:

"He's a young fellow in the same firm as Bayard. Says he's here on business for ten days. Bayard told him to call me up and tell me to be nice to him. That sounds like By. Also said he hadn't time to write. That sounds liker still. Bayard told him to kiss you for him, so he must be all right. I was going to take him to the hotel to a tea-dance, but I thought I'd better give him a look-over first. So I'll roll him out here. Get out the nice china and the napkins I monogrammed, and—"

"But, Daphne! Wait! I can't—"

"I haven't time to argue with you, mamma. Please do as I tell you for once, and don't fuss. Mr. Wmbwm will probably have a lot of news to tell you about your prodigal son. G'by!"

She popped a kiss on the forehead that anxiety had turned to corduroy and ran upstairs like another April shower chasing the sun uphill. She dashed down again with hat and gloves, and, with nose repowdered, slammed the front door gayly, thrummed the steps, and strode across the long lawn to the little electric car standing under the porte cochere. The car was very large for a beetle but pretty small for an automobile.

CHAPTER II.

The night train from New York had deposited Clay Wimburn in the grimy cavern of the station at an early hour. He had dawdled over his breakfast, feeling lost without his New York morning papers.

When at last it grew late enough to telephone for an appointment with the man he had come to see he was disgusted to learn that the wretch would not be visible till the next day.

It was then that Bayard Kip's parting behest to call up his sister recurred to Wimburn. He planned to compose a formal note of self-introduction, but Bayard had forgotten to tell him his sister's name or his father's initials. There were several Kips in the telephone book, and he could not tell which would be which. He decided to call up each number and ask a maid or somebody if Mr. Bayard Kip's people lived there.

The very first number he called brought Daphne herself suddenly voice to voice with him. Voices are characters, and it was a case of love at first hearing with him. She had him smiling and cooing at the second phrase. He felt that she was going to make his stay in Cleveland pleasant.

He formed all sorts of pictures of her while he waited on the hotel steps, but when she stepped out of her car and looked about she was none of the Misses Kip he had planned. She was a round, pretty little thing, amiable of eye and humorous about the lips, and cunningly dressed. She looked as if she would be a plucky, tireless sportswoman; yet she had a wistful, tender huggableness that a girl ought not to lose, however well she plays tennis.

"Is this Mr.—" she began. He was too nervous to notice her pause.

He retorted, "Is this Miss Kip?"

He noted that she shook hands well, with a boyish clench accompanied by an odd little duck of the head.

"Mighty nice of you to take me off this desert island," he beamed.

"Mighty glad to have the privilege," she said as she verified the fraternity pin on his overcoat. "Mother is dying to hear how Bayard is."

Mothers have little power left as guardians, but the children find that the title has a certain value at times in keeping order.

"Won't you get in?" said Daphne, pointing to her car. She made him crowd in first, then followed and closed the door and pulled the throttle.

He meditated aloud: "How wonderful it really is that you should talk to me over the telephone and invite me to your home and come and get me like this."

"What's so wonderful about that?" said Daphne. "Everybody does it."

"Everything that everybody does is wonderful," said Wimburn. "But how especially wonderful it is to live in a city where there are no walls about the gardens. Look! there aren't even fences. The lawns are all joined together and the houses are mostly windows. Everything is so open and free, full of sunlight and frankness. You're taking me home in this charming little glass showcase to introduce me to your mother. I tell you the world do move! A woman of today has a lot to be thankful for. You ought to be mighty happy."

"Ought-to-be hasn't much to do with is," Daphne sighed. "We've got a lot to get yet—and a lot to get rid of."

He sank back discouraged. The sex was still insatiable.

After a short ride they turned into a driveway leading through a spacious expanse of grass dotted with trees and shrubs, to a homelike house without beauty or ugliness—a house that had grown with the personalities of the occupants. The only ostentations about the place were the cupola of an earlier day and the porte cochere stuck out like a broken wing.

She led him into the house and waved him toward the hall tree. When he had set down his hat and stick she led him into the drawing room.

"Mother, we're home."

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Kip, who called Daphne "dear" before company.

"Mother," said Daphne, "I want to present Mr.—" (mumble—gulp). She had not yet achieved his name.

Her mother shocked her by saying, "Delighted to meet you, Mr.— I didn't quite catch the name."

Daphne blushed for her mother's query, but was glad to overhear the stranger's answer:

"I am Mr. Wimburn, Mrs. Kip—Clay Wimburn."

At this moment a tall, shambling man walked in. He looked as if he looked older than he was. His spectacles overwhelmed a rather unsuccessful nose. Daphne hardly needed to introduce him as her father. She gave Wimburn a name now, and he felt called upon to explain his incursion.

"I know your son Bayard very well. I'm in his office. We belong to the same fraternity—different chapters of course. We struck up a great friendship. When he knew I was coming to Cleveland he said, 'Tell my sister to be nice to you,' and—and—"

Wimburn paused in some embarrassment before the ballroom manner of Mrs. Kip, but the pompous disguises of timidity fell from her as she murmured—and blushed in a motherly way:

"Daphne told me. He said for you to kiss his mother for him."

"Ye-es."

"Well, I am his mother."

"Oh! May I?"

"Will you?"

He pressed his lips respectfully on her cheek, but she, closing her eyes to imagine him her son, flung her fat arms about him and held him a moment. He kissed her again with a kind of vicarious devotion.

"I'd want Bayard to deliver such a

GRAY-DORT

Where Can You Match This Value?

THE GRAY-DORT has gained new comfort, new convenience, new style. Ten major improvements and a dozen refinements make it easier to drive, easier to ride in—add to its already superlative VALUE.

Among features usually found only in much higher-priced cars, to-day's Gray-Dort offers—gasoline tank in the rear; husky rear axle and cantilever springs, both Chatham built; Westinghouse starting and lighting; hand-tailored Rayntite top; side-curtains which open with the doors.

In spite of doubled production, dealers report that the demand for Gray-Dorts far exceeds the supply. It would be wise to see your Gray-Dort dealer at once.

City And Country

AUTO MARKER FOUND

An auto marker, 125,413, is at the police station awaiting an owner. It was last evening picked up on the street.

PAINFULLY INJURED

Mrs. Thos. French of Bancroft met with a painful accident on Sunday afternoon last. She tripped and fell breaking her right arm between the elbow and the wrist.

A girl's trials and temptations, failures and triumphs in a great city are startlingly and plainly set forth in Rupert Hughes great story "The Thirteenth Commandment." Read Saturday's Intelligencer.

GIRL DROWNED.

Virginia Wallace, aged 12, of Herman, N.Y., was drowned while bathing in the St. Lawrence at Lalonde's Point. The body has not yet been recovered.

A GREAT HARVEST

Harvesting is general in the northern portion of Hastings County. Grain is reported to be heavy and the root crop will be a bumper one. It is one of the best harvests of this section of the country.

EXCELLENT FELDSPAR ORE

The feldspar property which is being opened up on the Robinson farm about a mile from the village of Bancroft is proving very satisfactory. The ore is considered the best yet found in this district. A number of men are engaged and under the supervision of Mr. T. Morrison are doing considerable heavy blasting. Shipping will commence shortly.

BOOTLEGGING IS STOPPED

As a result of activity on the part of license officials, whose forces along the St. Lawrence have been augmented, bootlegging in that district is practically at a standstill although it is said consignments continue to be smuggled across the border in fast motor boats.

CAR STOLEN AT COBOURG

The police here this morning received a message from Cobourg stating that an auto was stolen in that town last night. It was a five passenger Chevrolet 1920 model, painted black. License number 115,907, serial number 79,343.

RURAL CREDITS.

That it was quite possible that a scheme of rural credits modelled upon the Manitoba system would be introduced in Ontario was the statement made before a Gananoque audience by M. H. Staples, Toronto, a member of the Drury Commission on rural credits. He claimed the banks had treated the farmers with unfair discrimination in the negotiation of loans. Lt.-Col. A. W. Gray, M.P.P., and A. E. Donovan, ex-M.P.P., also spoke.

BELLEVILLE FAIR

The management of the Belleville Fair, which will open on Labor Day, September 6th and continue the two following days are making every effort for the success of same. Hon. Mr. Manning, Minister of Agriculture will be present at the opening day and deliver an address. An interesting programme of events will be presented each day including speeding events. A first class midway has been provided for the three days and in addition there will be baseball matches, tugs of war, band concerts, etc. Already entries in various classes are being received by the secretary, Mr. R. H. Ketceson of this city.

POPULAR PASTOR

St. Peter's Church, Trenton, presented a very festive appearance on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of the Ordination of the Pastor, Rev. J. J. Connelly. The sanctuary and the altar were artistically decorated with nature's choicest flowers among which were concealed varied coloured lights, thus converting the sacred precincts into a veritable bower of beauty. Excellent music lent a charm to the occasion Rosewig's Mass was interpreted according to the spirit of the composer. The soloists, who were Mrs. McConville, Misses L. Cumming, M. Robinson A. O'Rourke and Messrs. Greaney, McDonald and Connelly executed their respective parts admirably. The sweetness of the sacred music was enhanced by the violin accompaniment very effectively rendered by Mr. T. Cuff. After Mass Mr. O. E. Fortune read in a very pleasing manner an address, at the conclusion of which Mr. J. L. Lewis presented to Father Connelly, a well-filled purse, the gift of the congregation. The recipient of this testimonial is well known in Belleville where he has many friends. Rev. Father Connelly was for some time assistant priest at St. Michael's church here.

MOTORIST EXONERATED

At Bowmanville on Thursday evening, an inquest was concluded to inquire into the cause of the death of Henry Love Newlove on Saturday, August 7th when he was struck by a car driven by Mr. G. Casey of this city. Witnesses examined were: Guy Casey, W. J. Ross, W. Mills and Allan Morden Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Pollard Harry Roberts, Dr. D. J. Hazelwood, Bowmanille; Fred Cowan and Fred Souch, Newcastle; Albert Belyea, Toronto, and Melville Newlove, son of deceased. The jury's verdict is to the effect that Henry Newlove's death was due to being struck by an auto driven by Guy Casey and that there was negligence on his part.

DIED OF BURNS

Marjorie Armstrong, aged three years daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seward Armstrong, of Oshawa, met a tragic death on Thursday. The unfortunate little girl had been playing around the garage and got a quantity of gasoline on her clothes. She stood near the fire and was instantly enveloped in flames. Her clothing was burned off and she was rushed to the hospital where she died an hour later.

BAND CONCERT

At Victoria Park Sunday evening at 8.30, the G.W.V.A. band will give a concert. Bandmaster Hinchey promises a program of exceptional merit.

SATURDAY'S MARKET

There was a good attendance upon the market this morning and much produce was offered for sale for which remunerative prices were obtained Fresh dairy butter sold readily at 68c and 70c per pound, fresh eggs from 57c to 60c per dozen, dressed chickens from $3.00 to $3.50 per pair and broilers from $1.25 to $1.60 a pair. Garden produce was plentiful and found ready buyers. Potatoes sold at $1.00 per bushel; tomatoes 30c a peck and $1.00 per bushel;cabbage 5c and 10c each; onions, beets and carrots, 5c a bunch. Plums sold at $1 per basket and peaches at $1.50 and $1.75 per basket.

Obsequies

LEON GOYER

Many were this morning in attendance at the obsequies of Leon Goyer, the young man whose death was caused by electrocution at Windsor. From the family residence, south George street, the cortege proceeded to St. Michael's church where Rev. Father Killeen conducted services. At the interment at St. James' Cemetery, Rev. Father Whalen officiated. The floral tributes were many and exquisite in design and the Mass Cards were numerous, which were evidences of the popularity of deceased. The bearers were six brothers of deceased.

MONTREAL CASHIER FACES CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Montreal, Aug. 19.—Hector Watier, 1244 Papineau Street, a cashier in the employ of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company, appeared before Judge Lanctot in the arraignment court on a charge of appropriating $11,100 from the company. He pleaded not guilty. Bail was refused at the request of the prosecution until the crown prosecutor could be consulted, as further developments are expected. According to the officer who made the arrest, the thefts extended over a period of several years.

If he returns to Canada in time, Michael O'Leary, V.C., will be a member of the Northwest Mounted Police detachment at the Canadian National Exhibition this year.

Called By Death

JOSEPH V. WICKETT.

Joseph V. Wickett was born on Nov. 2nd, 1860, on the second concession of Thurlow and died on August 4th, 1920 He was married to Miss Emma Grills on Feb. 2nd, 1884, and is survived by his wife and three children, namely, Mrs. Lena Ridley, of Belleville; Russell V. and Percy Roy, of Toronto. The deceased was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him. His life was true to the cardinal virtues of honest living. To him death was not unexpected, and to this event he referred many time is recent months. He was fond of expressing his religious experience in the use of the great hymns of the church. In quiet confidence in Christ, his Saviour, he met death without fear. "Life is ever Lord of death, and love can never loose its own." The funeral services were held at the late residence near Shannonville and the body laid to rest in the village cemetery.

They Say In Newfoundland

That a Seal Grows from the Time it is Born to Full Size in Forty-Eight Hours

People will not believe this, but the fishermen say that you can stand on the ice and see them grow. Do you want to see yourself grow strong and healthy? Do you want to feel the vigour of youth tingling through your veins? Do you want to feel disease moving out, and your nerves being fortified and made strong? Do you want to feel young in body, mind and looks, despite your years? Do you want to feel as you did at twenty? Are you depressed easily? Are you low spirited at times? Are you nervous? Do you want to feel ambitious, and be able to carry out your ambitions? You cannot do this unless you are strong and healthy. Your nerves must be strong, you must have a strong will power. You must have the strength. Do you know what will make you strong, your nerves and will power so strong that you will be able to get at it as you did in your younger days? It has been proven that PHOSPHONOL contains just the elements to make one strong and robust. It increases grey matter. Go to your drug store and get a box today and watch yourself getting strong. Price $3.00 per box or two for $5.00, or we will mail it to you on receipt of price. Phosphonol has twenty years reputation. Thousands in America have taken Phosphonol and been benefitted. BELGIAN BARON TRAVELS THROUGHOUT CANADA

Montreal, Aug. 20.—To serve as a private in the Belgian army while British troops were garrisoning his 400-year-old chateau nearby, after they, with the Belgians, had driven out the German invaders, was one of the peculiar experiences of Baron Edouard de Blondelde Beauregard de Viane, a scion of an ancient Belgian family who is at present visiting Montreal, as commencement to a tour of Canada and the United States, in which he hopes to recover from his war efforts. The Baron is the heir to one of the oldest Belgian nobility, his family tree having roots traced back to about A. D. 1020, while a number of his ancestors took part in the various crusades, and in more modern days the family became allied with certain Irish Kings which probably accounts for his fighting blood.

He served throughout the war, always in the ranks, and was mentioned in despatches five times for distinguished services, also winning the Croix de Guerre Belgique and the Medaille Militaire, getting his decorations on the same day he was wounded. His name is also included in the list of "Heroes Belgiques."

MILLIONAIRE SLACKER GIVEN FOUR-YEAR TERM

New York, Aug. 21.—A sentence of four years at hard labor, to be served at Fort Leavenworth Military Prison, was imposed by court-martial on Erwin Rudolph Bergdoll millionaire slacker, today. Major-Gen. Robert L. Bullard approved the decision this afternoon. Bergdoll will be hurried off to Leavenworth, the authorities said.

Bergdoll himself was quoted as saying that he would rather break stones than roam about the country like a hunted animal.'

Collide on Lake Superior 29 May Be Drowned

FOUR MEMBERS OF THE CREW OF SUPERIOR CITY PICKED UP AFTER SHE SANK, FOLLOWING COLLISION WITH STEAMER WILLIS L. KING—CARRIED CREW OF THIRTY-TWO—SANK ALMOST IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE COLLISION.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Aug. 21.—The lives of twenty-nine persons, one of them a woman, are believed to have been lost shortly after nine o'clock last night when the steamer Superior City, a freighter, sank four and one-half miles northeast of Whitefish Point in Lake Superior, after colliding with the steamer Willis L. King.

FOUR ARE SAVED.

Four members of the crew, including Captain Edward Sawyers of Albion, Mich., were saved. Names of the missing could not be learned today, as all records of the Superior City were lost. The missing woman is known to have been the wife of the second engineer.

CAPTAIN IS SILENT.

Captain Sawyers would make no statement except the night was clear, no fog being in evidence. Walter Richter, boatswain, one of the survivors, and who was brought here by the steamer Turner, is in a local hospital seriously injured.

"The captain's alarm signal rang just two minutes before the crash," said Richter.

NEEDED TWO MINUTES.

"If we had had two minutes more, no lives would have been lost. The steamer struck just aft of amidships on the port side, and the impact took away the entire stern. The crew kept their heads and all waited calmly for the boats to be launched, but there was no time.

BOATS TORN AWAY.

"Several of the boats were torn away while the men were attempting to launch them.

"A boat I was attempting to launch was thrown overboard, carrying me with it."

Richter reached a floating hatch cover and later was rescued by the Turner. Richter's home is in Lorain, Ohio.

Other survivors were Gal Lenne, of Chicago, second mate, and Peter Jacobson of Cleveland, wheelman. These two with the captain were brought here this morning.

Woman Jumped Into The Moira River

Shallow Water Prevented Possible Drowning Tragedy—Young Man to the Rescue.

Considerable excitement was caused on Front street Sunday afternoon about five o'clock when it became known that a woman had attempted to commit suicide by throwing herself from the stone wall into the waters of the Moira River. The unfortunate woman, whose husband lives in Toronto, has been staying with relatives in Prince Edward County and was suffering from mental trouble. She was being taken to a Kingston hospital for treatment.

While arrangements were being made here for the trip to Kingston she visited at the residence of a friend, Mr. S. Wheeler, who keeps the St. George restaurant on Front Street, and while there managed to slip out unobserved and jump into the river at the rear of the restaurant. The river being very shallow at this period of the year, a drowning tragedy was happily averted, but the woman was severely bruised by contact with the stones.

Mr. Harry Sweet, an employee of the G. T. R. operating department, jumped into the river and assisted the woman to the foot of the wall, and she was taken out by means of a rope and ladder, as she weighs considerable over two hundred pounds. Later she was taken to Kingston by motor car for medical treatment.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF FORT GARRY CAPTURE

Winnipeg will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the capture of Fort Garry, Aug. 24, 1870, with a banquet for the survivors of the Red River expedition, who live in and around Winnipeg. The banquet will be held under the auspices of the Army and Navy Veterans.

It was just fifty years ago that the expedition under Lord Wolseley, then General Wolseley, came up from Fort William over the Dawson route to wrest Fort Garry from the French and halfbreeds holding the post during Riel's rebellion. It took the expedition three months to make the trip and a sharp battle to take the post. Many survivors of the expedition are still alive and probably fifty of them are in this province.

Twenty Little Pigs Born in One Litter

Some people evidently are not aware that the war is over. Perhaps they are right at that—but this is not a tale of people but of a pig, not an ordinary porker by any means, but one who has contributed so liberally to the great cause of increased production as to be worthy of newspaper attention on more than one occasion, to wit and to whoo, as the lawyers and owls say, one Yorkshire sow owned and appreciated by Mr. George Cook, of Corbyville.

This sow gave birth to twenty lusty young porkers last Friday morning, thus adding materially to her record of nineteen on April 15 last, or a grand total of one hundred and eight pigs in six litters, covering a period of a little over three years. She is four years old, and her highest record is twenty-one pigs in one litter.

One narrow escape had this phenomenal producer when salt pork boilings were accidentally mixed in with her feed at her first litter, and she lay three weeks between life and death as a result. Mr. Cook certainly appreciates this prolific animal, and it would take a very attractive price to tempt him to part with her.

BUILD YOUR OWN HOME.

Winnipeg has entered on a new age so far as housebuilding is concerned, according to an opinion expressed by N. T. MacMillan, president of the Building Owners' Association here. He said that private capital would not, under present conditions, invest in houses for revenue purposes for the simple reason that there were too many more attractive investments.

"As far as I can see," said Mr. McMillan, "people in the future will have to build their own houses if they want them. They will have to look upon a house as a personal necessity, just as they consider a suit of clothes and a pair of shoes as indispensable and they will recognize the fact that they must provide the house just as they do the wearing apparel."

Mr. McMillan declared that the only way to make the building of houses attractive to private capital was to make it reasonably remunerative. He believed that those who now owned houses for rental purposes would be forced to increase their rents and that new houses for rental purposes would not be built until a reasonably profitable basis of revenue had been established.

Uprising if Mayor of Cork Dies

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

DUBLIN, Aug. 23.—The executive of the Irish Labor Party made an appeal to British Labor to stop the war with Ireland as they did with Russia, and state that the death of the Lord Mayor of Cork will lead to an uprising which can be suppressed only by wholesale slaughter. The appeal also declares that Home Secretary Shortt will be personally responsible if the death of the Lord Mayor ensues.

Fire Damages Victoria Bridge

Big Montreal Bridge Sustains Fire Damage.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—The Victoria Jubilee bridge in this city, connecting Montreal with the south shore of the St. Lawrence, and over which the Grand Trunk Railway, electric cars, and an automobile highway run, was damaged by fire this morning, when about one-third of the auto and wagon driveway on the west side was destroyed. The fire was not sufficiently serious to tie up the railway or electric lines, and was under control by noon today. The roadway will be out of commission for about a week.

RIEL REBELS FIRED THE FIRST SHOT

What appears to be the original declaration of a corporal of the Royal North West Mounted Police, establishing the fact that the first shot fired in the hostilities between the police and the Riel rebels in the Duck Lake country in 1785 was fired by the rebels, was brought to Regina recently by W. H. White, of Winnipeg.

It is a single sheet of foolscap signed by Hugh J. A. Davidson, Corporal, Royal North West Mounted Police, who was a member of the party that accompanied Major Crozier to Duck Lake in March, 1885, stating that he distinctly heard a shot fired from the rebel ranks before Major Crozier gave his men the order to fire. The declaration was made at Prince Albert on May 30, 1885, and attested by Stephen Brewster, a notary public.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND MEN LAID OFF

Production of automobile tires, the chief industry of Akron, Ohio, has reached low ebb of the year, and 25,000 workers have been laid off, according to rubber company officials. They say the upward trend is not expected before November 1, and until then half-time shifts will be the rule.

Railroad and coal strikes, tightening of credits and lessening of demands following weather not encouraging to touring, are among the reasons cited for decreased production.

No surplus labor problem is reported in Akron, as workers laid off have generally found employment elsewhere.

The Right Hon. Lord Desborough, K.C.V.O.

The Right Hon. Lord Desborough, K.C.V.O., Empire Builder and Sportsman, who will preside at the Ninth Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, has played a part in many varied fields. During the war he was responsible for the protection of the water supply of London, and was also made responsible for the release of trained mechanics from the fighting lines for service in munitions. As an athlete he holds many records. He was president of the British Imperial Air Fleet, and presented three airplanes to Canada. He was on the Treasury Committee which started War Savings Certificates. In the Great Policy Enquiry in London he distinguished himself by asking 10,000 questions. Lord Desborough will attend the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire at Toronto on Sept. 16.

Poles Cautioned.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Poland has been cautioned by the United States government not to permit her armies in their present counter offensive against the Bolsheviki to advance beyond the ethnographic boundaries of Poland.

Canada's Navy.

Ottawa, Aug 23.—Cable advices received by the Naval Department state that the cruiser Aurora and destroyers Patriot and Patrician will be in commission on October 1 and will probably proceed to Canada the week following. These three vessels together with two submarines now in Canadian waters comprise Canada's new fleet.

Wage Increases.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—Substantial increase in wages to employes of the Toronto Railway Company, Toronto Power Company and Niagara Power Company are recommended in a majority award of the Conciliation Board. In general it gives 600 men affected 10 cents per hour increase, some however receiving more and some less. The award is retroactive from June 16th, and hours have been fixed by previous boards at 44 to 48 for shift employees.

Large Wheat Crops.

Rome, Aug. 23.—Australia's wheat fields for the season are 50 per cent. larger than last year and weather and crop conditions were reported good as late as August 17, says a bulletin of the International Institute of Agriculture. During July the Indian monsoon was generally favorable and the price of wheat at Karachi is lower than at any date since July, 1918. Exports of wheat from India, however, is still prohibited. The aggregate of wheat shipments from Argentina exceed all estimates of available surplus during 1920 the bulletin says.

New Offensive By Turk Nationalist

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 23.—British and Greek columns are advancing in the direction of Eskishear, 77 miles southeast of Brussa, from the Ismid area to put down a new Nationalist offensive which on Saturday resulted in twenty killed, including one British officer and sixty wounded. The offensive against the allies in that sector began Saturday with a surprise attack on Greeks bivouacing fifty miles east of Brussa. French troops are advancing from Aintab, northeast of Aleppo, to attack Marash thirty-five miles further northeast. Hard fighting is reported.

Barn Burned With Crop Of Hay

Cobourg, Aug. 23.—A disastrous fire occurred about 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the farm of Mr. Joseph Greer, who resides about two miles east of Cobourg on the Kingston Road, near what is known as the Kingston Crossing. From some cause, as yet unknown, the fire originated in his large brick barn, and completely gutted it. His season's crop of hay and about 20 loads of wheat were burned. The fittings of the cow stable, a silo and straw shed were also destroyed. The Cobourg fire brigade went down in response to Mr. Greer's message for help, and by their efforts the east barn was saved.

Begins Fight For Defence of Sane Labor

OTTAWA, Aug. 23.—A strong indictment of Sovietism in reply to "Socialistic and revolutionary literature" distributed in Canada is contained in a pamphlet just issued by the department of labor. It is believed to be the beginning of a big fight for supremacy between trades unionism and the Socialistic and red elements. The standing of various labor organizations in Canada is relatively: International, 260,247, non-international, 38,372; Independent, 8,278; National Catholic, 35,000, and One Big Union, 41,150. An attempt is being made to coalesce the non-international and One Big Union, but with little probability of success. The National Catholic Union is very anti-Socialistic and will align with the forces of stability and order.

Unity of Purpose.

Unity of purpose and agitation is traced between Canadian "Reds" and Russian sovietism through the connection of Rev. William Ivens and The New York Call during the revolutionary propaganda and disorder in Winnipeg last year. Among the organizations named as spreading socialistic propaganda in Canada are the Socialistic Party of Canada; International Bible Students, the One Big Union, the Labor Church, the Communist Labor Party, the Anarchistic Communists, the Socialist Revolutionary group, the Jewish Bolshevik Party, the Russian, Ukrainian and Finn Socialist groups, Soldiers' and Sailors' Labor party, Winnipeg; Union of Russian Workers, Ukrainian, Polish and Bulgarian Bolshevik parties.

History of O. B. U.

In conclusion the history of the One Big Union is reviewed and also the organization of a Labor Church in Winnipeg, another in Brandon, and attempts to establish similar organizations in Fort William, Calgary and Vancouver. The Labor Church is characterized as "merely a subsidiary of the Socialist Revolutionary movement and a piece of hypocrisy, evidently conscious in the case of most of its promoters, designed to interest in the revolutionary movement persons of religious and humanitarian principles to whom the ordinary Marxian propaganda would not be attractive."

The pamphlet declares that war is declared between sane and revolutionary labor. Trades unionism has seen persistent attempts made by Bolsheviks and dangerous "Reds" to seduce its members into revolutionary agitation and effort. It is evident that this will now be fought to the limit. Trades unionism will no longer permit its members to be used for political or revolutionary purposes by those who would destroy law and order and challenge the supremacy of government.

75.000 Prisoners Captured In Polish Counter-Offensive

POLISH VICTORIES CONTINUE AND RUSSIAN REDS ARE BEING DRIVEN BACK IN DISORDER — REDS LEAVE BREST-LITOVSK — POLES CUT RAILROAD, HAMPERING RETREAT OF RUSSIANS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The retirement of Soviet forces from Brest-Litovsk was officially admitted in a statement issued in Moscow and received here today.

PRISONERS NUMBER 75,000.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The number of Russian Soviet prisoners captured in the Polish counter-offensive will amount to seventy-five thousand, according to Warsaw advices to the French Foreign Office today.

WARSAW, Aug. 23.—Polish forces have taken the town of Grudesk, twelve miles north of Ciechanow, and have cut off the retreat of Bolshevik forces northwest and west of this city by way Mlawa and Prezasnysz.

The Eighteenth Polish division, which has been attacking Ciechanow, has been met by desperate resistance on the part of enemy detachments covering the retreat of the Fourth Soviet Army, which last week advanced along the Prussian frontier until it threatened Polish defences along the Vistula. After capturing Ciechanow the Poles advanced rapidly northward and succeeded in cutting the only direct line of railroad running eastward from the Polish position.

Volunteer Polish divisions are now attacking Prezasnysz.

Soviet Forces are Bottled Up

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 23.—The process of bottling up the Russian Soviet forces on the northern front between Prussia and the Vistula river has been completed, according to an official statement issued last night. The Poles have closed the gateway of escape taking prisoners and material in such quantities that it is impossible to count them.

"DIME FLOP" IS NOW A THING OF THE PAST

Demand for private rooms, with sunshine and hot and cold running water, has supplanted that for a dime "flop" among wayfaring working men, according to the observations of the Salvation Army in Chicago.

Lieutenant-Colonel Emil Marcussen, head of the Industrial Department of the Army for the states west of the Mississippi, says:

"The day of the dormitory, or, more accurately, the 'flop house,' has passed. The kind of men who used to come to us seeking free beds or glad to get them for a dime, now ask for private rooms. Since prohibition became effective, I have closed several of our working men's hotels, including one in Chicago and another in Kansas City.

"There is a real need for good, modern hotels for men at reasonable prices and those which we have are run along such lines. Our Working Men's Palace in Chicago has 571 beds. Three years ago, we would have found ten or twelve men in the Palace with bank accounts. Last month there were 312 men in that hotel who carried bank books.

"As for industrial homes, they used to contain many young men who ceased to be producers and who had to be made over, sometimes by a long and painstaking process, into good citizens and wage earners. To day there is hardly an able-bodied man in any industrial home in the United States.

"The men who are there are nearly all permanently disabled to some degree, or they are convalescents from hospitals who are unable to do an ordinary day's work. These men are not only able to take care of themselves but even to save a little from their earnings.

"There is room in every industrial home. The Chicago home is not half full. That is why the Salvation Army is able this year, through its home service program, to extend an offer of the facilities of these homes to every small community in the West."

MONEY MISSING AND MEXICAN PAYMASTERS

Proceedings against forty-eight paymasters are actually pending in Mexican district courts, involving the disappearance since 1914 of more than 2,000,000 pesos of army funds, according to The Excelsior, which quotes Eduardo Neri, attorney-general. The attorney-general, it is stated, is desirous of pushing these cases and demanding the extradition of those missing paymasters known to have sought refuge in other countries.

Russian Waif's Long Journey

Voyaging around the world to reach their homes, 780 Russian waifs, all that have been accounted for of probably 6,000 children sent out of Petrograd by their parents when revolution gripped the old Russian capital, are on their way from San Francisco to New York by way of the Panama Canal. They came from Vladivostok under the care of the American Red Cross, of which they have been wards for two years. They are going back to Petrograd after sufferings and wanderings that for some of them have blotted out every recollection of their parents, the places of their birth or even of their names.

Speaking of the experiences of the children, who range in age from 3 to 17 years, a statement by the Red Cross said:

"The long sea journey writes the last chapter in a history of wandering and adventure in a revolution-torn country that can hardly be matched in the whole record of world upheaval in the last six years," the announcement says. "It seems almost a tale out of the Old Testament or Greek Mythology and a thousand years from now, it is perhaps not too much to say, the Russians, with their dramatic instinct and mysticism will have made it a part of their rich folklore."

When the revolution broke out in Russia, the report continued, many parents in Petrograd decided to send the youngsters into peaceful Siberia "until the trouble was over." They were sent east in charge of nurses and teachers.

Later a barrier of fire marking the battle lines of the opposing Russian and Czech armies had been stretched between the youngsters and their homes. Months passed. Winter arrived, funds were exhausted and hunger and war horrors menaced the wanderers. The Omsk government, appealed to for help, passed it on to the Red Cross.

Group after group was taken over by the Red Cross, which established colonies in western Siberia and had apparently solved the problem of caring for its charges when the battle line swayed eastward and the Bolsheviki captured town after town. Groups of the children barely escaped capture. Finally it was decided to take them to Vladivostok.

"Three trains of specially equipped box cars with a guard of American doughboys transported the precious cargo on a journey lasting several weeks through a country stripped bare of provisions," the report continued. "It may be said that ingenuity was taxed to the utmost in obtaining supplies, avoiding disease epidemic areas and evading other troubles."

Finally the children were settled at Russian Island in Vladivostok harbor in barracks with German and Austrian prisoners pressed into service to do the heavy work. Schools and hospitals were established, natural talents were cultivated and thirteen of the larger girls took a course of training which fitted them to be nurses. Several youngsters showed unusual abilities at music, painting and dancing.

The children will visit at Panama Canal ports and in New York city on their way home.

"Pip-Pip, Toot-Toot, Good-Bye-ee"

Letters have been received from London and New York in which the phrase "Pip Pip, Toot Toot, Good-Bye—ee" is substituted for the customary "Yours truly" or "Yours faithfully." Considerable curiosity has been aroused amongst the recipients as to the origin of the queer phrase.

It turns out now that London has been captured by a new song with this unusual title, which translated into dictionary English means "Good-bye, Sweetheart, Good-bye." This catchy song has now "caught on" in New York and is becoming the dance riot of the Gothamites.

Local music dealers report the receipt of a few sample copies. The snappy, irresistible melody of the chorus and its wealth of classy London slang make a novelty song that is something new for America. It will, no doubt, be very popular with all the boys who served overseas, who will appreciate this breeze from music halls of Blighty—"Pip Pip, Toot Toot, Good-Bye—ee."

STONE WALL REMOVED.

The stone wall supporting the boulevard in front of the Montreal Bank is being removed to widen the roadway on account of the rails being moved to the centre of Pinnacle street.

TOO MUCH NOISE.

A little boy on Bleecker avenue was exercising his new auto wagon on the sidewalk on Sunday, and the noise bothered the neighbors to such an extent that the police were notified. The blue coat convinced the youngster that a little less noise would be in the interests of all concerned.

LOST WRIST WATCH.

H. N. Roblin, a young man employed in the Bank of Commerce at Brighton, visited Belleville on Saturday and while taking a meal in a local restaurant lost his wrist watch. He took the watch off in the wash room, laid it down and forgot about it. Returning a few minutes later the watch was gone. The matter was reported to the police.

(What the Press Agents Say.)

JACK DEMPSEY AT GRIFFIN'S

Louis Bennison, firmly established as the premier portrayer of Western cowboy roles, surpasses all his previous brilliant attainments by his remarkable characterization in his new offering, "Speedy Meade." Successful as was his recent screen production "Sandy Burke of U-Bar-U," and his stage triumph, "Johnny Get Your Gun," Goldwyn executives predict that "Speedy Meade" is Bennison's greatest picture. It is an unusual and engrossing story that "Speedy Meade" depicts, with a plot so baffling that the climax is certain to keep Belleville Bennison admirers guessing until the very last incident. And the star's progress through it demands frequent tests of his fine talents. A cast of notable players, headed by beautiful Katherine MacDonald, surrounds the handsome hero of the plains. Miss MacDonald's performance as Louis Bennison's leading woman, eclipsing even her consummate portrayal opposite William S. Hart in "Shark Monroe." "Speedy Meade" is announced for presentation on the double feature bill at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday. Jack Dempsey, "best known man in the world," appears on the same program in a thrilling story of engrossing interest, titled "Daredevil Jack," a two-reel comedy, and an interesting Burton Holmes travelogue have also been arranged for presentation on the same program.

"LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME"

One of the most artistic and delightful productions of the season is that which will be offered here at Griffin's next Friday night, for one night only. "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come", a dramatization by the able playwright, Sidney Toler, of John Fox Jr.'s novel of the same name, tells a story of the mountaineers of Kentucky before the civil war, at its beginning, and again at the conclusion of the fighting. However, war enters very slightly into the tale, which is atmospheric in its family feuds, its romance its chivalry and its humor. An incident that is fraught with seriousness but that has its touch of humor is the trial of the sheep dog, Jack, the faithful companion of Chad, who is the hero. The play is new this season and the production has already been enthusiastically received in Philadelphia and other cities of the East. The production and cast, intact, will be presented here and among the players are George Simpson, who is one of the most promising juveniles on the stage; Dorothy Dunn, remembered as Wendy for two years in the company of Maude Adams in "Peter Pan"; Fay Brennan, a prize winner in motion picture beauty contests; James Kennedy, Ralph MacDonald and a host of others of equal prominence. The dog Jack is played by himself. The production to be presented in Belleville is the stage version, not the moving picture.

HISTORY OF "O CANADA."

Famous Melody That Came Out of Province of Quebec.

The death of Hon. Judge A. B. Routhier may not make such a stir in remote parts of Canada as that of Sir Wilfrid Laurer, but there are millions of people in this country who only need to be reminded that it was he who very nearly achieved fame by writing the original words to "O Canada."

"O Canada," unlike most great songs, was composed backwards. The tune was made first. It was in 1881 at a great convention of St. Jean Baptiste in Quebec City when a call arose from the delegates for some sort of nationalizing hymn that should express the aspirations of the French-Canadians as a nation in Canada. A committee was struck, with Judge Routhier as chairman, for the purpose of getting a French-Canadian composer to do this on behalf of the convention. The only French-Canadian composer capable of such an inspiring task was Calixte Lavallee, a famous pianist then living in Quebec. So quickly was it all done, so much after the manner of an inspiration that the very next day the composer sent word that he was ready. When the committee called upon him they found that he had composed not one, but four or five melodies, all of which he played on his piano. Unanimously they accepted the melody since become so famous as the voice of the French-Canadian race. Catching up the inspirational mood of the composer, Judge Routhier at once wrote his memorable verses to fit the tune, and before the convention broke up both words and music were enthusiastically acclaimed, adopted and sung. Within a few years thousands of French-Canadians had learned this majestic hymn, but it was almost twenty years before it got up as far as Ontario, where it was used first at military tattoos in Niagara Camp, later as a march-past in the reception accorded the present King, George V, in Toronto, when A. S. Vogt, then conductor of the Mendelssohn Choir, asked a bandmaster, "What is that wonderful thing?" On being told, he made a note of it, and a few years later, much thanks to the admirable choral and orchestral setting and English translation, all made by Dr. T. B. Richardson, of Toronto, who had become familiar with the piece when an officer at Niagara Camp, the Mendelssohn Choir gave the first choral performance of "O Canada." Since that time, scores of Anglo-Saxons have written English versions, one of which is now in use in Ontario schools, and a dozen composers have written various arrangements for choirs, men's voices, quartettes, etc. But the original Lavallee-Routhier setting survives as the greatest of them all, and by long odds one of the greatest national hymns ever known under any flag.

Theories Regarding the Moon.

A great many curious ideas exist in various parts of the world regarding the dark spots on the moon's disk. In Eastern Asia the spots are believed to be a rabbit or hare; the Chinese in particular look upon them as a hare sitting up and pounding rice in a mortar. Most of the Siamese take the same view.

Some few, however, see in the moon a man and woman working in a field. Curiously enough, the North American Indians have almost the same superstition as the Chinese, and on old monuments in Central America the moon appears as a jug or vessel, out of which an animal like a rabbit is jumping.

The South American Indians, on the other hand, believe that a girl who had fallen in love with the moon sprang upward toward it, was caught and kept by it, and that it is her figure which is seen on the moon's face.

The Samoa Islanders look on the spots as representing a woman carrying a child, and many other southern people have similar beliefs, the woman and child sometimes being altered into an old woman bearing a burden on her back.

The Eskimos have an original superstition. They say that one day Aniga, the moon, chased his sister, the Sun, in wrath. Just as he was about to catch her, however, she suddenly turned around and threw a great handful of soot in his face and thus escaped him, and of that soot he bears the traces to this day.

The people of Northwestern India, who account for the moon's monthly disappearance by declaring that she is burnt up regularly and replaced by a fresh moon, explain the dark spots by saying they are the ashes of the former moon.

Other nations explain its disappearance in various ways. The Dakota Indians have it that the moon is eaten up by mice; the Polynesian superstition is that the souls of the dead feed on it; according to the Hottentots, the moon suffers from headache, and when it gets very bad the moon hides its head with a hand and covers up the face from the gaze of the world; the Eskimos maintain that after shining for three weeks the moon gets tired and hungry and withdraws to take one enormous meal after their own fashion, and then re-appears and begins to shine again.

WINNIPEG MEN INTERESTED IN BOY LIFE.

Last winter a committee from the Rotary Club of Winnipeg made a survey to the boy life of the city with regard to its facilities for play and of its juvenile crime. Mr. Robson, the chairman of the committee, said recently: "When we consider that 844 boys were arraigned in the juvenile court and that 176 of this number were detained for varying periods for correction and education, one realizes that there is far too large a number of boys whose abilities and vitality are misdirected. We discovered that approximately 19,000 boys were enrolled in day and night schools.

"A further survey was undertaken to ascertain what proportion of the boys in the city were organized for recreation, with either public or private facilities for play. The findings of the committee, Mr. Robson stated, were in line with the result of similar investigations in other cities, that when boys were not provided with facilities for recreation, there was a greater danger of drifting into bad company, with the inevitable consequence of, sooner or later, finding himself before the courts charged with more or less serious offences.

"Two of the boys' work institutions in Winnipeg are preparing a map of the city showing conclusively from what districts the majority of juvenile offenders come," said Mr. Robson. "With the completion of this map the committee will be able to ascertain definitely whether the proximity of a public playground does not act as an effective remedy.

"A large number of city churches and other local organizations are making great efforts to provide educational and recreational means for Winnipeg boys," Mr. Robson pointed out. "Among these are the Y.M.C.A., with a membership of approximately 1,500 boys of the age under consideration. The Winnipeg and Norwood Boys' Clubs have an enrollment of about 300, the Boy Scout movement has more than 2,000 and the various churches are taking care of almost 2,000 in week-evening activities."

MADOC MOURNS DEATH OF STEPHEN WELLINGTON

(North Hastings Review)

The announcement of the death of Stephen Wellington came as a great shock to the citizens of Madoc. It was known that Mr. Wellington was sick, but reports were to the effect that his case was not serious. Some of the members of his family who were visiting friends had not even been called home.

Mr. Wellington, who was a man who had led a very active life, a man who had a strong predeliction for mining pursuits. There are very few pursuits in which the percentage of failures are greater than in mining, and when it is said that Mr. Wellington had been successful in a field where the history of mining for the past 50 years had been marked largely by failures a high compliment has been paid to his intelligence and to his industry. It has been well said that the man who has made two blades of grass grow where formerly only one grew was a benefactor of mankind—that the man who implanted two good ideas in the mind of youth where there was only one was the real teacher. What then shall we say in Madoc's indebtedness to Mr. Wellington, who out of the secret recesses of the earth has produced material the handling of which has enabled many families to live in comfort and independence. Some people say "Give us this day our daily bread" but it would be better to say "Give us this day our daily work." For many citizens of Madoc Steve answered this prayer by furnishing work for those who wanted it. His life work is recorded largely in the manifestations either singly or in conjunction with others in the Queensboro, the Blakely, the Perry, the Henderson, and the Noyes mines, and the magnificent theatre erected at the corner of Durham and Elgin streets for the entertainment of our citizens. To the citizens his death is a material and social loss, to his family a kind and very indulgent father and husband.

The citizens of Madoc showed their esteem and appreciation by closing up their places of business Tuesday afternoon and by their attendance at the services in the Methodist church where Rev. Wm. Higgs delivered a very clever and appropriate discourse.

To the bereaved wife and the fatherless children The Review extends its most heartfelt sympathy in this the hour of their great affliction.

Graham Moffat, who will appear in the principal role of his newest Scotch comedy, "DON'T TELL," which is to be presented here at Griffin's with the entire Glasgow and London Company and production intact on Friday, Sept. 3rd.

PULSING ABUNDANCE OF WHOLESOME AMUSEMENT

While the Canadian National Exhibition is designed to provide an object lesson in the making and keeping of Canadian and British citizenship, and as a stimulus to the advancement of the arts, sciences and the mighty forces of industry, the lighter side is not neglected. Purveyor of wholesome amusement on a mammoth scale the Big Fair has always been, and this year it will furnish an unprecedented abundance of entertainment to meet the varied tastes of its vast patronage. The pick of the men the continent over who make a life work and study of catering to the public appetite for fun and frolic have been engaged for the purpose of making safe the supremacy of the Exhibition in this respect. The programme here as in all other departments is far more ambitious in elaboration of plans and in investment of capital than has been the case in any preceding year. Over $75,000 is being spent on two new amusement devices alone.

CHAPTER I.

As usual nowadays, instead of knocking at the door Fate called up on the telephone.

Though the bell shrilled almost in Mrs. Kip's ear she would not answer it. She winced, shook her head, agitated her rocking chair with petulance, embroidered vindictively, and hardly so much called out as sighed very loudly toward the hallway:

"Daphne! O-oh, Daphne! the telephone again!"

On the stairs there sounded a muffled scurry like the rush of an April shower chased down a hillside by the sun. An allegory of April darted across the room and raised the telephone to her lips as if it were a beaker of good cheer.

Her mother was used to this humor of Daphne's and paid no heed till a sudden frost chilled the warm tone of the girl's voice. The smile of hospitality wasted on the telephone had given place to a look of embarrassment.

Mrs. Kip whispered anxiously, "Who is it?"

Daphne motioned her not to interrupt; and her voice grew deep and important. It became what her brother Bayard called her "reception voice." In her grandest contralto she said:

"This is Miss Kip. Yes, I have. Yes, he does. I beg pardon? Oh!—Oh! Oh! How do you do, Mr. Wmbwm."

"Mr. Who?" her mother keened.

Into the telephone she was saying, and bowing and nodding the while with her politest face. "Indeed I'll try to be. Of course Cleveland's not New York, but— By the way, do you dance? That's good. That's right; might as well be deaf if you don't! How long will you be in Cleveland? Oh, is that all? Well, then, you must come out here and have tea with us this very afternoon. I'll call for you at the hotel in my little car. No; it's not one of those; it's an electric. I run it myself. Afraid to risk it? Brave man! I'll be there in fifteen minutes, and you might be on the steps. Goodby, Mr. Wmbwm."

This last was said in the fond tone of ancient friendship, and she hung up the receiver with a gesture like shaking hands.

She turned to find her mother thinning her lips in a long, tight line; her cheeks bulged explosively. Daphne forestalled her:

"He's a young fellow in the same firm as Bayard. Says he's here on business for ten days. Bayard told him to call me up and tell me to be nice to him. That sounds like By. Also said he hadn't time to write. That sounds liker still. Bayard told him to kiss you for him, so he must be all right. I was going to take him to the hotel to a tea-dance, but I thought I'd better give him a look-over first. So I'll roll him out here. Get out the nice china and the napkins I monogrammed, and—"

"But, Daphne! Wait! I can't—"

"I haven't time to argue with you, mamma. Please do as I tell you for once, and don't fuss. Mr. Wmbwm will probably have a lot of news to tell you about your prodigal son. G'by!"

She popped a kiss on the forehead that anxiety had turned to corduroy and ran upstairs like another April shower chasing the sun uphill. She dashed down again with hat and gloves, and, with nose repowdered, slammed the front door gayly, thrummed the steps, and strode across the long lawn to the little electric car standing under the porte cochere. The car was very large for a beetle but pretty small for an automobile.

CHAPTER II.

The night train from New York had deposited Clay Wimburn in the grimy cavern of the station at an early hour. He had dawdled over his breakfast, feeling lost without his New York morning papers.

When at last it grew late enough to telephone for an appointment with the man he had come to see he was disgusted to learn that the wretch would not be visible till the next day.

It was then that Bayard Kip's parting behest to call up his sister recurred to Wimburn. He planned to compose a formal note of self-introduction, but Bayard had forgotten to tell him his sister's name or his father's initials. There were several Kips in the telephone book, and he could not tell which would be which. He decided to call up each number and ask a maid or somebody if Mr. Bayard Kip's people lived there.

The very first number he called brought Daphne herself suddenly voice to voice with him. Voices are characters, and it was a case of love at first hearing with him. She had him smiling and cooing at the second phrase. He felt that she was going to make his stay in Cleveland pleasant. He had formed all sorts of pictures of her while he waited on the hotel steps, but when she stepped out of her car and looked about she was none of the Misses Kip he had planned. She was a round, pretty little thing, amiable of eye and humorous about the lips, and cunningly dressed. She looked as if she would be a plucky, tireless sportswoman; yet she had a wistful, tender huggableness that a girl ought not to lose, however well she plays tennis.

"Is this Mr.—" she began. He was too nervous to notice her pause.

He retorted, "Is this Miss Kip?"

He noted that she shook hands well, with a boyish clench accompanied by an odd little duck of the head.

"Mighty nice of you to take me off this desert island," he beamed.

"Mighty glad to have the privilege," she said as she verified the fraternity pin on his overcoat. "Mother is dying to hear how Bayard is."

Mothers have little power left as guardians, but the children find that the title has a certain value at times in keeping order.

"Won't you get in?" said Daphne, pointing to her car. She made him crowd in first, then followed and closed the door and pulled the throttle.

He meditated aloud: "How wonderful it really is that you should talk to me over the telephone and invite me to your home and come and get me like this."

"What's so wonderful about that?" said Daphne. "Everybody does it."

"Everything that everybody does is wonderful," said Wimburn. "But how especially wonderful it is to live in a city where there are no walls about the gardens. Look! there aren't even fences. The lawns are all joined together and the houses are mostly windows. Everything is so open and free, full of sunlight and frankness. You're taking me home in this charming little glass showcase to introduce me to your mother. I tell you the world do move! A woman of today has a lot to be thankful for. You ought to be mighty happy."

"Ought-to-be hasn't much to do with is," Daphne sighed. "We've got a lot to get yet—and a lot to get rid of."

He sank back discouraged. The sex was still insatiable.

After a short ride they turned into a driveway leading through a spacious expanse of grass dotted with trees and shrubs, to a homelike house without beauty or ugliness—a house that had grown with the personalities of the occupants. The only ostentations about the place were the cupola of an earlier day and the porte cochere stuck out like a broken wing.

She led him into the house and waved him toward the hall tree. When he had set down his hat and stick she led him into the drawing room.

"Mother, we're home."

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Kip, who called Daphne "dear" before company.

"Mother," said Daphne, "I want to present Mr.—" (mumble—gulp). She had not yet achieved his name.

Her mother shocked her by saying, "Delighted to meet you, Mr.— I didn't quite catch the name."

Daphne blushed for her mother's query, but was glad to overhear the stranger's answer:

"I am Mr. Wimburn, Mrs. Kip—Clay Wimburn."

At this moment a tall, shambling man walked in. He looked as if he looked older than he was. His spectacles overwhelmed a rather unsuccessful nose. Daphne hardly needed to introduce him as her father. She gave Wimburn a name now, and he felt called upon to explain his incursion.

"I know your son Bayard very well. I'm in his office. We belong to the same fraternity—different chapters of course. We struck up a great friendship. When he knew I was coming to Cleveland he said, 'Tell my sister to be nice to you,' and—and—"

Wimburn paused in some embarrassment before the ballroom manner of Mrs. Kip, but the pompous disguises of timidity fell from her as she murmured—and blushed in a motherly way:

"Daphne told me. He said for you to kiss his mother for him."

"Ye-es."

"Well, I am his mother."

"Oh! May I?"

"Will you?"

He pressed his lips respectfully on her cheek, but she, closing her eyes to imagine him her son, flung her fat arms about him and held him a moment. He kissed her again with a kind of vicarious devotion.

"I'd want Bayard to deliver such a message to your mother," she explained.

Already Wimburn was a member of the household; he had been kissed and sympathized with.

He turned to Daphne with an apologetic look and saw that she was staring at him with softer eyes than he had thought she had.

Definite anxieties engaged Mrs. Kip, for tea had come in tottering on a tray carried by a panic-smitten cook, as agile as a hippopotamus and as shy as a violet.

Daphne and her mother and father went through the tea ceremony with the anxiety of people in an earthquake, and the "Swedish dromedary" stared at the unaccustomed sight as if the tea bibbers were drinking poison and she watching for the convulsions to begin.

Clay Wimburn talked altogether about Bayard and his wonderful progress in business in spite of the hard times. Bayard, he said, was sticking to his desk like a demon, and he let nothing distract him.

"It must be glorious living in New York," Daphne sighed.

"Why don't you come and pay Bayard a visit?" Wimburn suggested.

"He wouldn't have time to take me anywhere, and I don't know anybody else there."

"You know me. And I'd be only too glad to try to repay your hospitality to me."

Off to a Good Start!

WITH a cheery "Race you to the next corner," away they go.

Father and Mother watch them with admiring affection.

"Great youngsters" chuckles Father approvingly.

Mother smiles at him a little wistfully and then brightens.

"Didn't they look smart, our boys? I'm so glad I bought them Wearbetter suits. They're made just as stylishly as yours are dear, and how they do wear."

Father laughs.

"They need to. Those boys are terrors on clothes. Into every sport that's started. Yes, you had better stick to Wearbetters. They're the only outfit to get a high spirited healthy boy."

Blue's "Wearbetter"
Clothes for Boys

Wearbetter clothes are designed for real boys by men who specialize in the manufacture of boys' clothing. They allow for the hard wear and tear an active boy will subject them to, by making them of staunch, strong, materials and reinforcing every seam, every vulnerable part of the garment.

28 STOWAWAYS ON BOARD SHIP

New York, Aug. 21.—Captain Perguies of the Portugese steamer Mormugia discovered after he had been at sea some days that there were 28 stowaways on board. His crew is only 22. He touched at New Bedford where the 28 were jailed.

The stowaways waited until the jailer had gone to bed. Then one among them produced a button-hook, unlocked the jail door and the 28 departed leaving the jail intact.

The next morning the citizens of New Bedford, who don't get a chance every day to see 28 stowaways arrived early at the jail only to find the cage empty. Greatly disappointed, the razzed the Police Chief until he became indignant, and promptly arrested the officers of the ship, charging them with complicity in the escape. But there was no proof against them, so they were released.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY—

> Leaders are ordinary persons with extraordinary determination.—F. A. Silverwood.

TOM KING ON PICNIC POLITICS.

Tom King, Parliamentary writer for the Toronto World, and one of the best known and most popular newspaper man in Canada, was one of the bright galaxy of journalistic stars in attendance at Porter's Picnic, and like the other visiting scribes, Tom was amazed at the pep and progress of Belleville and the great prosperity evident among the farmers. Editorially in the Sunday World Mr. King voices his views of Porter's Picnic as follows:

> The Farmers' party has made great use of the political picnic. There is no better way to get the people together and feel out public sentiment. All the people that go to the picnic may not listen to the speeches, but thousands who would listen to a speech in the woods on a summer day could not be dragged into a crowded hall. The farmers did not originate the picnic, but they have developed it to a high point of political efficiency.
> E. Guss Porter, M.P. for West Hastings, is not a farmer or a member of the Farmers' Party. On the contrary he is a life-long Conservative and staunch supporter of the Meighen Government. Guss did not see why the Farmers should do all the picnicking, and he put on a tremendous affair of the kind in his constituency of West Hastings a few days ago and invited the new Prime Minister to attend and deliver his first political speech to the people of Canada.
>
> Thousands of people turned out and there was something like a general holiday in that part of the country. It so happens that the village of Stirling, where the picnic was held, is a veritable hub, and big posters announced that Stirling was sixteen miles from everywhere. As a matter of fact, it does happen to be about sixteen miles distant from Belleville, Madoc, Tweed, Trenton, Brighton and one or two other places. Thus, a strategic position was achieved for the Prime Minister's picnic.
> That Mr. Meighen made a good speech and that he and his charming wife made a favorable impression, goes without saying. The daily papers have the whole story in considerable detail.
> The picnic also demonstrated the general prosperity prevailing in the old Bay of Quinte district. The automobiles were numbered by thousands and there was a smile on every face.
>
> Desirable publicity was also obtained by the arrangements for the newspaper men, made by Mr. Porter and his friends in Belleville. They were of the best.

POLITICAL SQUIRMING AND A CROOKED PEN.

"I find myself wondering if the spirit of true chivalry and the love of fair play of The Globe of other days had departed from the editor's pen," writes a Shannonville man to The Toronto Globe, after perusing the garbled Globe editorial purporting to be a review of Premier Meighen's address at Stirling. The Shannonville man heard the Premier and was naturally astonished at the squirming of the editorial pen of The Globe in an attempt to twist the meaning of the Premier's words.

People are getting tired of this political bunk which seeks to magnify molehills into mountains and twist the utterances of public men to suit political purposes. The people can understand what they hear and see and read and naturally resent political trickery which seeks to inject different meanings into plain statements by public men.

Premier Meighen's address was straight from the shoulder, plain and outspoken, without pretence or sham or sugar-coating. He gave his opinions and pronounced his policy frankly and fairly so that there could be no misunderstanding, and even those who did not agree with him altogether expressed admiration at a man bold enough to be honest.

Premier Meighen's tongue is not forked, but there are several forked pens working overtime trying to convince newspaper readers that he said something different to what he really did, or meant something at variance with his words.

There are no doubt many who feel like the Shannonvill man who wrote to The Globe as follows:

> To the Editor of The Globe: It was my privilege to listen the other day to the Premier of Canada speaking for an hour and a quarter upon the subject of his Government's particular policy, and after reading your editorial of August 13th, "The Policy of Mr. Meighen," I found myself wondering if the spirit of true chivalry and the love of fair play of The Globe of other days had departed from the editor's pen.
> It surely must be, more the hope, by means of "half-truths," "misinterpretations" and even misstatements, to heal the wounds of the advocates of the long-rejected Liberal policy than to lead young open-eyed Canadians to totally reject "the policy" under review and to attempt to "launch the national craft in uncharted seas." GEO. HAM'S OBITUARY NOTICE.

Col. Geo. H. Ham, chief publicity director of the C. P. R. and entertainer in ordinary to almost everybody who visits Canada, has—like Mark Twain—been permitted to read his obituary notice during his life term. About fifteen years ago the Charlottetown (P.E.I.) Guardian unblushingly reported his death and published an eulogistic account of his life. Telling the story in MacLean's Magazine, Col. Ham says: "I didn't demand a retraction, but when Mr. J. E. B. McCready, the editor, was seen during my visit to Charlottetown a year or two later he was willing to make one. Finally Mac and I agreed that it would not be advisable to spoil a good news item just because it wasn't altogether correct. So we let it go at that, although I have always maintained that it wasn't true. But to this day the paragraph, neatly framed in black, lies before me on my office desk, and when anything goes wrong and I feel down in the mouth I pick it up and read it and say to myself: 'Oh, well, things might be worse; this might have been true.' Which is some consolation."

The U. F. O. ministers may be acquiring the private car habit, but they are not paying any luxury taxes on their "glad rags"—as yet, and the private car porters are not brushing many nickels out of those deep pockets, also yet.

Marshal Foch, who was a large factor in saving the world for democracy, failed to save a residence for himself in Paris and is having great difficulty securing a place wherein to lay his head. After several years of living in tents, box cars and ruined chateaux the greatest military genius of the age should not be obliged to go house-hunting.

OTHER VIEWS

Walled Nations

New York Globe

The English Labor delegates visiting France to confer with the French Labor leaders on the question of war with Russia, have been requested by the French Government to go home, and warned that failure to comply would be followed by expulsion. The correspondents see nothing remarkable about the affair. The news is printed without emphasis, and the casual reader is likely to gather from it only that European radicals are more difficult to reckon with than the American variety. We are used to summary action and crisp speech whenever a government meets dangerous opposition in these post-war years. We think little of it.

Yet in instances such as these lies the key to a profound change in modern thinking and habits. Authorities are more military, civilians are more docile than they used to be. No chances are taken today with the man who goes about making out a case against the existing regime — even though he advocate no violence and break no law. Propaganda is recognized as the most effective of weapons—the most insidious and potent of offensive methods. "Ostensibly," M Millerand might say, "your errand in France is peaceful and honorable. In reality you constitute a threat to my government which I should be idiotic to overlook. You may leave; and make it fast or you'll be ejected." In 1913 labor delegations, and even syndicalists, floated about without passports and nobody cared. Russian revolutionists were looked upon as noble martyrs to a sacred cause. Times have changed.

A Proper Protest.

Westminster Gazette

Mr. Justice Darling is wholly justified in the denunciation he makes of the proposal that film producers shall be allowed to study the procedure and the arrangement of the courts during a murder trial. There is a revolting callousness about the suggestion that cuts deep into the sense of what is right. It matters nothing, as Mr. Justice Darling said, that the Court was not asked to allow the cameras to work during the progress of an actual murder trial. The intention was to reproduce as faithfully as possible the incidents of a real trial. The film producers have a censor of their own. It is a pity he was not consulted before application was made for admission to the courts. We cannot believe that in such circumstances there would have been opportunity for denunciation of the proposal in words that are not a white too strong in the circumstances. Everybody concerned in murder trials has a disagreeable task. A new horror would be added to their painful duty if they felt that they were posing for a picture to be reproduced on the screen.

Overseas Scholarships.

Sydney Record.

Quebec is the latest province to establish scholarships to enable Canadian university graduates to take up post-graduate study in France. Under the plan of the Taschereau Government, as announced a day or two ago, five scholarships of the annual value of $1,200 each, and tenable each for four years, are to be awarded to graduates of Quebec Universities. One or two of the western provinces have already taken similar action, the thought being that not only will ambitious young Canadians be given new educational opportunities in this way but that those who win scholarships will help to interpret Canadian spirit and sentiments to France, and, on their return to Canada, help to give this country a clearer understanding of the French people.

Germany's Main Fear.

New York Times.

Junkers and Bolsheviki have a common interest in breaking the Versailles treaty and attacking the predominance of France and England. Russia has Poland already without German aid. If Ludendorff attempted to repay the favor that Lenine did him in 1918, both Junkers and Bolsheviki might gain great immediate advantages, but Germany has lost her chance to strike Poland in the back. The two parties might gain a moment's diversion by attacking the Czechs, but ultimately such an alliance must be directed against France, and with Foch holding the Rhine, Germany would be the battleground. This would hardly appeal to Germans who saw how Northern France was devastated by war.

A LAUGH OR TWO

In Either Case.

One chilly autumn morning, a Scottish villager met his minister in the main street.

"Guid-day!" he said cheerily. "Are ye cauld this morning?"

"Ay, Sandy!" retorted the minister with a smile. "And remember that many are called, but few are chosen."

But Sandy was as nimble-witted as he, and promptly back came the remark:

"Ah, well, minister, if ye are no' chosen, ye'll no' be cauld!"

"What are you doing in the kitchen, Thomas?" inquired the inquisitive wife.

"I'm opening a can of tomatoes, if you particularly wish to know," he impatiently rejoined.

"And what are you opening it with?"

"Why, with a can opener. Did you think I was using my teeth?" he added, savagely.

"Oh, no dear," she sweetly replied; "but I do know you are not opening it with prayer."

THE POET'S CORNER

SOME DAY, PERCHANCE!

I cannot send you gifts of price or art,
You will not share the happiness I bring,
And for my love you have not need, it seems,
Yet I will give it you with all my heart.
It cannot harm you, dear—this tender thing—
It will not even trouble your faint dreams.

But some day when you're drooped with circumstance,
And weariness drags at your finger-tips,
And you sit staring grimly in the eye
Your sad philosophy—ah then, perchance,
My love will flutter up against your lips
And you will smile, although you know not why.

TOO MUCH MONEY IN "OLD SOX" BANK

The combined "Lisle Thread National Bank," "The Old Sox Bank," and the "Feather-Bed-Matress Bank" now hold more than $3,000,000,000 of the country's cash.

This is the estimate of William H. Hutt, acting governor of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank, made of the loose cash being carried around in pockets and stowed away in various places. He was addressing an organization of business men.

Even a small proportion of this three billions invested in Liberty bonds would bring them back to par, he pointed out, or if the money was deposited in savings banks it would inject new life into industry.

The Financing Of Your Telephone Service

THE way in which telephone service has been financed is a matter of importance to every telephone subscriber.

If the service has been over-capitalized, then it is burdened by heavy dividend charges to be paid from rates.

If it has issued "watered" stock or "bonus" stock or stock sold below its par value, then a part of its rates have to go to pay dividends on these shares.

If the dividend rate is too big—then you as a subscriber must be paying too much.

But this is the story of your telephone finance—the financing of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

First: It is capitalized at only $33,485,000 (stock and bonds)—although its actual telephone property cost over $55,000,000. Obviously it is not over-capitalized.

Second: It has never issued "watered" stock nor "bonus" stock. Every share of Bell Telephone stock represents its face value or more paid into the treasury of the Company. Premiums on new stock amounting to $1,459,000 have been re-invested in the plant.

Third: The dividend rate, starting at 6% rose never higher than 8%.

All surplus earnings were re-invested for improvement and extension of the plant. They saved the Company thousands of dollars per year in interest charges it would have had to pay on borrowed funds. It added nothing to the dividend of the shareholders.

That is the financial history of your telephone system. It is a record of honest business, moderate profit and progressive administration.

SPOTTER IS CRITICIZED.

The Gananoque Journal claims that there is more "hard liquor consumed in Gananoque than when the bars were open." The newspaper also attacks the "low tactics" of the license department in sending a returned soldier, wearing a veteran's button, to Gananoque as "a spotter for the Drury Government."

LONG CANOE TRIP.

Two young men from Jersey City, U.S.A., have made a canoe trip from New York City to Peterborough. They made the trip through the Hudson and Erie Canal to Oswego. They transported their canoe across Lake Ontario in a larger boat, and arriving at Belleville, proceeded up the Trent. At Peterborough they bought a Canadian canoe and are making the return trip in it.

FIRE DESTROYS MILL.

Fire destroyed the office, sheds, planing mills and kiln owned and operated by the Pearce Company, Limited at Marmora, Ont. The fire is supposed to have started in an outbuilding near the office. Dwellings nearby were slightly damaged. The Pearce Company's loss is roughly estimated at $25,000, and is partly covered by insurance.

PRESENTATION.

After service at John street church last evening the members of the choir remained to express to Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Clark their great regret at their approaching departure from this city. Miss Jessie McLean presented them with a hand-painted picture, a scene in Muskoka, suitably framed. She said every member was sorry to lose two of their number, especially as Mr. Clark was the choir leader. Though taken by surprise, Mrs. Clark made a suitable reply, thanking them for the gift, saying she would always remember the kindly feelings John Street choir had always shown her since coming here a stranger in the city about four years ago. Mr. Clark thanked the choir for the splendid support they had always given him and expressed his own regret at leaving them. Rev. D. C. Ramsay said on behalf of himself and the congregation that they were sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Clark and expressed the hope that John Street's loss would be Peterborough's gain.

KIND TREATMENT APPRECIATED

A man giving the name of John Forman, suffering from the effects of a drug, and looking for more, was arrested by the police a week ago, charged with vagrancy and remanded to jail. He was then in a condition bordering on dementia. This morning he was brought before Magistrate Masson and the week in jail had made a marked improvement in his condition and appearance. He expressed deep gratitude at the kindly treatment he had received in the jail, enabling him to recover his health and reason. Forman claims to have been born in Cape Town, South Africa, and to have roamed over most of the earth following several occupations. Recently he came to Montreal as steward on a vessel from Boston, and while seeing the sights of the Quebec metropolis was robbed of his money by a companion. He then started for Toronto, sidetracked at Belleville, and while under the influence of dope fell into the hands of the police. As he had served a week in jail the Magistrate allowed him to go on the promise that he would leave town immediately and look for employment.

ANOTHER NURSE NOW MAKES FACTS PUBLIC

Sixteen Years of Stomach Trouble Overcome And She Gains Twenty Pounds Taking Tanlac Work is Now a Pleasure

Mrs. Alice Minnick, who has been a professional nurse for thirty-six years and resides at 1815 Twenty-third Ave., Seattle Wash., adds her voice to the hundreds of others in this profession who have already endorsed Tanlac.

"Since I began taking Tanlac I have not only gained twenty pounds in weight, but for the first time in sixteen years I am free of pain and enjoying good health," stated Mrs. Minnick. "I constantly had cramping gnawing pains in my stomach all these years, my appetite was extremely poor and the little I did eat caused me great distress. After every meal my food began to ferment and sour almost at once, I would bloat up with gas, and these terrible pains would get so bad I could hardly stand them. I became badly run down, lost weight and strength, and felt so tired and worn out all the time that I could hardly get around. I had pains in every part of my body just about all the time, but they were especially bad in the small of my back. I also suffered with severe headaches and dizzy spells, and my nerves were so badly upset that I could get but little sleep. often lying awake the whole night long

"I had heard so much of the good Tanlac was doing others I decided to try it myself, and it proved to be the very thing I needed. I began to improve right away, it was only a few days before my appetite returned and I can now eat anything I want without having a particle of trouble afterwards. Those terrible gnawing pains that had troubled me so many years have entirely disappeared. I never have a headache or become dizzy and the pains that were all through my the pains that were throughout my body have all gone. In fact my whole system has been built up by Tanlac. I have regained my strength so I can do my work as a nurse, which keeps me on my feet severa lhours a daycmfwyu on my feet for hours, day and night, without a particle of trouble. Several of my patients have taken Tanlac, and it has proved benificial in every case. After what Tanlac has done for me I can never say enough for it."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostroms Drug store and by leading druggists in every town.

Pure Water For Soft Drink Making

Remarkable Water Filter, Water Forced Through Stone Cylinders.

One of the greatest difficulties of today is to get good pure water for drinking and cooking purposes. Chlorination and filtration plants are going in fast since scientists discovered that the water in the inland rivers and lakes was polluted and unfit for drinking purposes without treatment. Knowing this a representative of the Intelligencer was very much interested in a filter which drives the water through solid stone cylinders, solid as far as the eye can see or magnifying glass can disclose but necessarily containing minute pores through which the water is forced and purified by rapid contact with the stone surface, while all particles of foreign matter are rigourously excluded. This filter is the latest in water purifying machines and has been installed at the works of Foy & Irwin, Pinnacle street, soft drink manufacturers. Every drop of water used in the popular drinks of this concern is forced through the stone cylinders of the filter and purified, which no doubt is one of the reasons the Foy & Irwin drinks are so popular.

Another appliance to be seen at this factory is a bottle sterilizer wherein the returned empties are subject to 150 degrees of heat, each bottle being subjected to this treatment for seven minutes, six bottles being cleaned at once. A solution of hot water and alkali is used in the cleansing process and three different brushes used, the final process being a drenching in filtered water.

There is other machinery, including the carbonater where gas is added to the soft drinks in the making. While several varieties of drinks are made ginger ale seems to be the most popular although Iron Brew runs it a close second Foy & Irwin report that during the recent hot spell they put out from 100 to 150 cases a day to satisfy the public thirst the family trade being a large factor in their business. This means 2400 to 2600 bottles a day, some thirst for a small city.

The Foy & Irwin business is conducted by W.H. Bottum & Son and is noted for its superior quality of goods, good business methods and modern ideas.

TONSILITIS.

It is ingratitude to dismiss one who serves you to the best of his ability, only to be overcome for his hard efforts in your behalf. Yet that is just what happens when the tonsils are removed. The tonsils never become sore or swollen when the other organs of elimination are doing their share of the work. It is only when these other organs become sluggish and laggardly that the tonsils in their efforts to throw off the accumulating poisons, become "sick" themselves.

When your muscles are overworked they become stiff and sore. Do you cut them out? Then why remove the tonsils for the same offense? Better by far to get the other organs in condition to perform their share of the work, permitting the tonsils to do only their part.

Don't punish your tonsils for trying to keep you well by throwing off an excessive amount of poison. This does not remove the poison, which IS NOT generated in the tonsils. Look to the cause. Have your Chiropractor remove it. Prevention is far better than operations. Consultation and Spinal Analysis without cost to you. Drs. Redick & Redick, 283½ Front St., Belleville. Phone 900.

MOUNTAIN SLIDE BURIES VILLAGE

Manila, P.I., Aug. 21.—Collapse of a mountain top in this island in a recent storm, buried an entire Igorote village under hundreds of feet of earth, blotting out the lives of seventy natives, according to official advices received here today. The village was located in the mountain province within two hundred miles of the city of Manila. The top slid down upon the village at midnight. No bodies have been recovered.

MRS. JOHN DALTON.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John Dalton took place from her residence, Wickett street on Saturday afternoon. Services at the house and Belleville cemetery were conducted by the Rev. George Brown. The bearers were: Sergt. Geo. Tilley, Thos. Wills, B. Quincey, H. Naylor, W. Alford and W. J. Hinchey. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

MRS. SAMUEL LESLIE.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Samuel Leslie took place from her late residence, College Hill, Sunday afternoon at 1.30. Rev. Mr. Ramsay, Presbyterian minister, officiated at the house and grave. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Owens, Jas. Anderson, Wm. Donaldson, Wm. McIntosh, Jas. Mather and George Bates. Interment took place at St. Andrew's cemetery, Thurlow.

A large number of relatives and friends of deceased were in attendance, both at the house and cemetery. The floral tributes were numerous, showing the esteem in which the late Mrs. Leslie was held.

Preference

Brides, like the rest of humanity, have preferences. And invariably their preferred wedding presents are from Blackburn's.

For the gift from Blackburn's is so pretty and so practical---such a fine addition to the new home's equipment, and such prideful quality---that one can't help preferring it.

Called By Death

JAMES BUNNETT

Sincere regret is felt by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances over the death of James Bunnett, of Shannonville, which occurred on Thursday, August 19, 1920, at his home in that place. Mr. Bunnett was a prosperous farmer, a splendid citizen and a friend to be prized. He was in his eightieth year and had lived most of his life in Shannonville district. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Maggie DeCourcey, of Belleville, also by two daughters and one son, Mrs. Winters, at home, Mrs. Reid, of Shannonville, and James Bunnett, who has charge of the farm. He was an Anglican in religion and a member of the A.O.U.W. The funeral was held on Sunday with services at the home and Anglican church conducted by Rev. Mr. Cantwell of Shannonville, and Rev. A. L. Geen of Belleville. The pallbearers were Messrs. Houston, Vivian, Henry Littles, Wm. Clazie, George Greatrix, Albert Mark. Interment was made in Shannonville cemetery.

The funeral was very largely attended showing the great esteem in which the late Mr. Bunnett was held by all who knew him, and the floral tributes were many and magnificent.

MR. PETER WELCH.

Mr. Peter Welch, a well-known and highly thought of resident of Thurlow passed away on Saturday. He was born in Hastings County in 1841 and had resided in this section all his life. He was at Springbrook for over forty years as storekeeper and postmaster. He had been in poor health for past two years. He is survived by two sons, Wallace in Texas, and Cecil in Alberta; also four daughters, Mrs. Oliver in Alberta, Mrs. Walsh of Calgary, Mrs. Bailey, Saskatchewan, and Mrs. Virgil Carr of Peterborough. Mrs. Carr and her husband, and Mr. and Mrs. Carr, Sr., of Peterborough arrived to take charge of the body and the funeral took place this morning from Tickell & Sons' undertaking rooms to Belleville cemetery, the Rev. Archdeacon Beamish officiating.

Wedding Bells

FROST—MacGREGOR.

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday last, when Margaret McGregor of Toronto was united in marriage to Fred J. Frost of this city, at the home of her brother, Mr. A. MacGregor, Napanee. The Rev. Mr. McCorkindale, of Deseronto, performed the ceremony.

DALL—McHUGH.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at 8.20, when the Rev. Father Killeen united in the holy bonds of matrimony Miss Kathleen McHugh and Mr. Thomas Dall of this city. The bride, who was given away by her brother, John A. McHugh, looked pretty in a dress of white georgette and satin with hat to match, carrying a bouquet of carnations and was assisted by her sister, Miss Stella McHugh, attired in grey voile, carrying a bouquet of sweet peas. Mr. Joseph Royce did honors for the groom. After the ceremony was performed the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's brother, where a dainty wedding breakfast was partaken of. The newly married couple then left for Toronto. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

Russian Reds Trapped Try to Save Remnants

BOLSHEVIK FORCES RETREATING ALONG THE WHOLE LINE—ADVANCE GUARD TRAPPED — FORCED TO FACE TWO POLISH ARMIES, ITS POSITION IS DESPERATE.

WARSAW, Aug. 23.—Russian Bolshevik forces are retreating virtually along the whole line in an effort to save the remnants of the Red army, but they have so far been easily frustrated by the Poles.

On the north there is heavy fighting in the region of Mlawa and Soldau. Forced to face two Polish armies, one advancing from Modin and the other from Graudenz, the Bolsheviki are making desperate efforts to extricate their advance guard, some of which ventured as far as Sylau and Plonsk. The Red losses in prisoners in this region have amounted to 11,000 in the past two days.

The attempt of the Reds to break the Polish lines on the Przasnysh-Makov-Rozany road and cross the Narew River has completely failed. Polish troops advancing up the right bank of the Narew, threw back the Bolsheviki to the north. Meanwhile, the main body of the Poles, advancing from Warsaw, occupied all the territory in the fork of the Bug and the Narew.

ONLY ONE CHANCE.

The only chance of the Bolsheviki is to open a passage in the direction of Ostrolemka and Lomza, so as to get through to Bielystok and Grodno. The Polish troops, accordingly, are hastening their march towards Ostrolemka and Lomza, while the Polish cavalry, which has reached the upper waters of the Narew, has already cut the road between Lomza and Bielystok.

The battle now beginning on the middle Narew is likely to decide the fate of all the Red forces between the Narew and the Prussian frontier. Red troops, comprising infantry and cavalry, are making a bold thrst in the direction of Brody and Lemberg. Farther north Bolshevik detachments, debouching from Lutsk and Vladimir Volinsky, tried to force a passage of the Bug before Prubresov, but were hurled back with heavy loss.

The same fate befell the Reds who appeared in the region of Lemberg.

Coal $19 a Ton at Brantford

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 24.—The increase of thirty-five per cent. in the United States freight rates and other increased costs was given by local coal dealers this morning as the reason for increasing the price of anthracite coal here from $15 to $19, as announced this morning.

Bodies Found Victims Bushfires

Winnipeg, Aug. 24.—The bodies of the three victims of the bush fires which swept through the Mulvihill district on Friday and Saturday have not yet been found. Communication with the district, which is 96 miles north of Winnipeg, by telegraph and telephone, is still very fragmentary, and nothing has been learned of the identity of the victims other than that they were the father, mother and wife of Geo. Ward, a farmer. It is believed that the Ward place was caught between two lines of flame ,and that the three people were destroyed along with the farm buildings.

THIRTY FARMS BURNED.

Kamloops, B.C., Aug. 24.—Passengers on the Canadian National Railway are still being transferred across streams where bridges were burned in the great forest fires which occurred over a large territory north of Kamloops on Monday night and Tuesday. Latest reports received from the district show that 20 ranchers or homesteaders were absolutely burned out and many people had a very narrow escape with their lives. At one time sixty fire-fighters were in an exceedingly precarious position. They were trapped by flames but successfully sought refuge in the Thompson River. More than 40 employees of the Fennell Mill, which was burned, had to cover four miles of burning territory, threatened every moment with the flames.

MONTREAL O. B. U. BRANCH SUPPORTS SOVIET RUSSIA

Montreal, Aug. 24.—A meeting held under the auspices of the Central Labor Council of the O.B.U. took place today on Fletcher's Field here, when a resolution was adopted pledging the support of the meeting to the Russian Soviet Republic "in the same manner as the workers of England, France and Italy. The resolution called on the workers of Canada to do likewise and prevent Canada from "interfering in the peaceful progress of the Soviet Republic of Russia."

Some 500 to 600 people gathered at the meeting.

Rum Running Runs Riot

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

REGINA, Aug. 24.—"Rum running runs riot" according to Assistant Commissioner Tracey of the Saskatchewan police, who has returned here from Estevan after investigating conditions along the international border.

In discussing the provincial situation the police official said: "Estevan resembles Banff or some other national resort. Day after day the streets are lined with automobiles bearing license plates from every state in the Union.

Rum running on the border, especially from Estevan, has assumed huge proportions, declared Mr. Tracey, with a regular line of communications and the men engaged are clearing thousands of dollars monthly. Minot, North Dakota, contains enough liquor to float a ship, and is being utilized as a general clearing station for an organized gang. It is not unlawful to carry liquor in cars unless it is for sale or has been purchased unlawfully. Once across the border it is out of our jurisdiction."

YOUTHFUL WORKERS TO BE ASSISTED.

Officials of the city of Winnipeg and the province of Manitoba have inaugurated for the first time in Canada a survey to determine the best plan for handling the employment of young workers systematically. Letters have been mailed to more than 1,000 employers asking for information concerning the employment of the juvenile workers. In each letter was a questionaire for the employer to fill out, and a number of blanks for the young workers themselves to fill out.

After reports have been received a series of committee conferences will be held to outline the best plans for aiding the workers under 18 years of age to get a proper start in life and to gain the right kind of employment.

SIXTY MILES OF LOADED COAL CARS AT BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Aug. 23.—Sixty miles of coal cars, loaded with fuel cargoes, are choking the roads between Brunswick and Curtis Bay terminals, Baltimore, according to President M. C. Byers, of the Western Maryland Railroad, who added that the present congestion, due to the failure of shipowners to load on the coal and to the laxity in the issuance of coal permits was the worst he had ever known.

This congestion is all the more deplorable, he said, in that there is such a demand for coal in New England and elsewhere and the idleness of so many freight cars will cause production at the mines to suffer.

Rounding up Rum Runners

Provincial Officers Capture Cargo of Liquor on the Cornwall Road.

CORNWALL, Aug. 24.—Provincial Officers Stick, McCready and Debaitre had an exciting time on the road east of Cornwall. While out in their car reconnoitring for booze-runners they passed a motor truck which contained a suspicious-looking cargo covered with a large tarpaulin. They hailed the driver and found the truck held a shipment of liquor and the inspectors took charge. On the way to town, while McCready was on one side and Stick on the other, an auto drove up alongside the truck and a man jumped on the truck and proceeded to belabor Stick, bruising the officer's face with his fist. Stones of good size flew, and Stick was struck in the chest with one of them. In effecting the capture of his attacker, a man on the truck made his exit in the darkness and the truck was driven off, but was later found in a side street in the east end of the town.

The man who escaped is supposed to be the party who brought the load from Montreal, presumably for shipment across the border. The truck was brought to town and the cargo—some 30 cases of whiskey and gin—as well as five gallons of high wines, was unloaded and locked up, and the truck was placed in a garage.

Officer Stick's assailant and the driver of the truck were placed in the cells.

Soviet Cavalry Corps Surrounded By Poles

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 24.—The capture of Przaanys, sixty miles north of Warsaw, and Mlawa, on the Polish frontier, seventy-five miles northwest of the capital, is reported in a Polish official statement issued last night. The bulk of the Fourth Soviet Army and the entire Third Cavalry Corps have been surrounded by the Poles, the statement says.

M'CURDY'S SEAT BELIEVED SAFE

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—Hon. Arthur Meighen speaks at Truro, N.S., Tuesday night in support of Hon. F. B. McCurdy's candidature in Colchester County, and will not be back in the Capital until Thursday night. This will make a quiet week in Government circles with no Cabinet meeting of any importance before Friday.

While reports from Colchester indicate a pretty stiff fight, the belief prevails in Government circles that Mr. McCurdy will win by a fairly substantial majority over Dixon, the Farmer candidate. Mr. McCurdy will remain in the constituency until the vote is polled.

TO ERECT MONUMENT OVER LAURIER'S GRAVE

Montreal, Aug. 24.—Architects and artists in Canada have been invited to submit designs for a monument to be erected over the grave of the late Liberal leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in Notr Dame Cemetery, Ottawa. The competition is under the direction of a sub-committee of the National Liberal Committee of Canada.

In view of the fact that it is the Government's intention to erect a statue to Sir Wilfrid's memory on Parliament Hill, it has been decided that the monument shall not take the form of a statue, but a simple, dignified monument, fitting his character and career. The first prize will be $500 and the next two designs will receive $250 each.

TAR AND FEATHER BOTH FOR ELDERLY LOTHARIO

Brantford, Aug. 24.—William Rose, of Echo Place, found himself chastised severely by his own sons and some of the neighbors. He left his family of eight children and went to Buffalo with the widow of his brother, who was killed in France. On his return he was promptly captured by his own sons and after a sticky bath of tar he was put into the feathers and left to his fate. He has since disappeared.

TWO STILL HELD FOR LARGE RANSOM

Mexico City, Aug. 24.—Pedro Zamora has released six of the United States citizens who were kidnapped recently by him in the state of Jalisco, but is holding W. A. Gardiner, Supt. of the Esperanza Mining Company, for 100,000 pesos ransom, and W. B. Johnson, a British subject, for 50,000 pesos, according to advices received here today.

Charles Edwin Musgrave.

One of the outstanding figures of the Ninth Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, which meets in Toronto on September 16th, is the Honorary Secretary, Charles Edwin Musgrave, who, as the Secretary of the British Imperial Council of Commerce, is the convenor of the Congress. He was Assistant Secretary at the first Congress, which was held in 1886 in London, as an outgrowth of the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, which was held in that year. He has been in the service of the London Chamber of Commerce since 1882, and is a Freeman of the City of London.

Educate Public in Care of Teeth

Dentists' Campaign Will Urge Efficient Inspection in Schools.

A Dominion-wide campaign to educate the public to the need of proper attention to teeth is being undertaken by the Canadian dental profession. Preliminary steps were taken at the Canadian Dental Association at its recent convention at Ottawa, where Dr. J. F. Conboy, dental officer for Ontario, was appointed chairman of a Dominion Oral Hygiene Committee, under which the campaign will be carried on.

The establishing of efficient and universal inspection in schools is to be advocated as one of the chief steps in a program of prevention of diseases of the teeth. Under an adequate system of inspection minor defects will be discovered and repaired before it is too late to save the teeth. Dr. Conboy who inaugurated and has had charge of the Ontario Department of Education, will be loaned to the Western Provinces for a time in order to assist establishing a similar system there.

The chief features to be emphasized in the educational campaign will be regular inspection and treatment of teeth, proper diet, efficient mastication and oral cleanliness. The dental profession is prepared actively to cooperate with provincial authorities in the carrying out of this program.

TOO MANY PICNICS DRURY ET AL

Toronto, Aug. 24.—Members of the Ontario Legislature are kicking because the members of the Government are not to be found at their desks when wanted. Hardly a day goes by that some member does not make the trip to Toronto in vain. Even when the Ministers are in town the majority of them arrive at their offices very late in the day and then a congestion or engagements makes it extremely difficult for deputations to receive proper attention.

"My idea is that there is far too much picnicing," said Peter Heenan, Labor member for Kenora, who this morning was kicking his heels around the Prime Minister's door. Meantime Premier Drury was jogging along the country roads from Crown Hill to Toronto in his little Ford and had not arrived at the Parliament Buildings at one o'clock.

"These Ministers should be in their offices every day," said the member for Kenora.

OWEN SOUND COUNCIL FIXES RATE AT 40 MILLS

Owen Sound, Aug. 24.—The City Council set the rate of taxation for Owen Sound for 1921 at 40 mills on the dollar for Public School supporters and 35.5 for Separate School supporters. The total amount required is $271,665.01, and the assessed value is $7,012,581.

BUSH FIRES STOPPED BY HEAVY RAINFALL

South Porcupine, Ont., Aug. 23.—Heavy rain which has been falling since last evening has extinguished the bush fires which were menacing this district and no further danger is anticipated this season.

Hiram Walker Labels on Bad Booze

Alleges Use of "Canadian Club" Labels by Montreal Liquor Firm.

MONTREAL, Aug. 24.—A case following on several others instituted by Messrs. Hiram Walker and Sons, Limited, Walkerville, Ont., prosecuting offenders alleged to be forging or affixing forged labels to spurious liquor, supposed to be Walker's "Canadian Club," was heard before Judge Lanctot at the preliminary hearing.

The case was taken against a local liquor firm for the sale of 500 cases of Walker's "Canadian Club." They were prosecuted on a double charge of theft of $15,000, paid by one Mr. Davis, believing that he was buying the genuine article, and also by Messrs. Hiram Walker & Sons, Limited, firm for the illegal use of their trade mark.

The accused were committed to stand their trial on both the charges. The case will very likely be heard in September.

Irish Moderates Gather at Dublin

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

DUBLIN, Aug. 24.—Irish moderates gathered here today to enable every shade of home rule sentiment to unite in a statement to Lloyd George relative to the future government of the island. A number of Catholic priests were present but took no part in the proceedings. A resolution was put forward declaring it to be the conviction of the conference that it is possible for the British Government to secure peace in Ireland by an immediate and binding offer of full national self-government to be accepted or rejected by specially elected representatives of the Irish people.

RELIANCE CREDITORS MAY BE PAID IN FULL

Toronto, Aug. 24.—The Standard Reliance Loan Corporation enquiry will be resumed in September or as soon as possible after the long vacation at Osgoode Hall.

Col. W. S. Dinnick may not be examined again, as his health is said to be poor. It is reported that he has gone to England to live.

According to F. C. Clarkson, the financial expert, the receiver hopes to pay creditors, depositors and debenture holders in full, but liquidation may take years.

He does not look to shareholders to receive anything on their investment. Creditors under $25 already have been paid off, and considerable "compassionate allowances" made. The liabilities at the time of liquidation were: Depositors and deposit receipt holders $1,248,000. Debenture holders, $4,021,578. The share capital of the defunct corporation was given at $2,611,020.

FALLON GOES TO EUROPE.

London, Aug. 24.—Rt. Rev. Bishop M. F. Fallon, head of the Roman Catholic diocese of London, will leave Wednesday for Rome to make his quinquennial report to the Sovereign Pontiff Pope Benedict. Bishop Fallon will be accompanied to Europe, including England, France, Belgium, Italy, and possibly Germany, by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Pocock of London. He stated that he does not anticipate visiting Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. Pocock will cross to Ireland while Bishop Fallon is occupied for a week with visiting Oxford, Cambridge, and other educational centres in England, in connection with the important educational expansion of the Roman Catholic colleges affiliated with the Western University.

MUTE WHEN CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED MURDER IS READ

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 24.—Arraigned yesterday in the Walkerville police court charged with the attempted murder of Miss Daisy Blake, 19 year old daughter of John Blake, Joseph Drouillard, aged 17, a farm laborer living in Sandwich East, stood mute and was remanded seven days for preliminary hearing.

Miss Blake, who was found Thursday night by William Hackney, of Windsor, in a ditch on the Walker road, Walkerville, in a statement to the police declared she had been struck on the head and legs by an iron pipe. She received a fractured skull and injuries to her legs.

There are nearly 100 buildings, large and small used for display purposes at the Canadian National.

Russian Soviet Must Withdraw Demand Upon Poland

PREMIERS OF BRITAIN AND ITALY SERVE ULTIMATUM ON RUSSIAN SOVIET GOVERNMENT — SINISTER PROPOSAL THAT PROLETARIAN ARMY BE MAINTAINED IN POLAND NOT ACCEPTABLE—NO RECOGITION OF SOVIET GOVERNMENT UNLESS PROPOSAL IS WITHDRAWN.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Great Britain and Italy will refuse recognition to the Russian Soviet Government if it does not withdraw its demands presented as part of the peace terms at Minsk for a proletarian army in Poland. This has been decided upon by Premiers Lloyd George and Giolitti, who have been meeting since Sunday at Locerne. A statement given to the press in that city yesterday by the two Premiers declared that they had resolved to defer the resumption of diplomatic relations with the Moscow Government until it withdrew what was described as "this sinister proposal."

It is understood that virtually an ultimatum has been sent to Moscow by the two Premiers, whose decision relative to the recognition of the Bolshevik Government is viewed as an approval of the stand made against that step by Premier Millerand.

Russian Flight Becomes a Panic

Cattle, Horses and Men Intermingled in Confusion of Retreat—Officers Use Revolvers.

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—The Lokal Anzeiger's correspondent on the Russian front reports that the Russian retreat along the East Prussian border has developed into a panic under the pressure of the Polish cavalry. Herds of cattle, cavalry and infantry are intermingled in the flight. Officers and commissaries are trying to restore order with their revolvers. Some of the regiments have thrown away their weapons.

The correspondent says that the Reds declare they could not stand the fire of the Polish and French aviators, who attacked them from short distances and whose bombs worked havoc. They evidently were unaccustomed to western fighting methods.

The correspondent of the Tageblatt at Prosken says that the first Russian army is in full retreat in the direction of Grodno. The staff of the fourth army and all the revolutionary committees have evacuated Lomza, whose inhabitants had formed a militia force in the service of the revolutionary which is also in flight. Lomza was pillaged before the evacuation. The Lomza-Bielysto-Brest-Litovsk railway is in the hands of the Poles, consequently retreat in the southeasterly direction is impossible. The revolutionary committees have fled from Grajevo and other places.

Sinn Feiners in Pitched Battle

A Pitched Battle Staged by an Ambush Party in County Cork.

DUBLIN, Aug. 24.—More than a hundred cases of destruction of property, assassination of police, Royalist reprisals and similar incidents were reported in Ireland during the last week end and the list continues to grow.

Among the latest reports is that of a fierce pitched battle, at Lissaoda, County Cork, between the police and an ambush party. A considerable number of men are said to have been wounded in the engagement. A lorry loaded with police was returning from the scene of the murder of Police Sergeant Maunsell when the men in ambush opened fire. The police assumed a military formation and returned the fire. After the battle had lasted two hours, the raiders were driven off.

Several of the police were slightly injured and it is believed that some members of the attacking party were hit, but that no deaths resulted.

An officer commanding troops at Charleville, County Cork, received a death notice yesterday, and last night the customs offices at Bantry were burned, all of the records being destroyed.

Ruin at Lisburn.

Lisburn, Aug. 24.—The business portion of Lisburn today presented a scene of ruin and desolation as a result of the burning of shops by loyalists in revenge for the murder of Police Inspector Swanzy here yesterday.

During the night the sky was lighted up by flames from the shops of supposed Sinn Feiners, the fires also involving a number of loyalist premises.

The private homes of Sinn Feiners were burned and the furniture carried into the street and ignited. The military authorities have posted a guard over the Catholic chapel.

William Shaw, a local Sinn Fein councilman, was beaten so severely that he is being detained in the infirmary.

MANY THRILLERS AT THE CANADIAN NATIONAL

Cols. Bishop and Barker will again have charge of the flying at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. Five machines of the latest and speediest types will be in use each evening and a display of daring and aerial skill even greater than last year is assured.

Mile-a-minute motor boats will also provide much excitement while lovers of thrills will find an additional treat on Saturday, August 28, and Monday, August 30, when the great dirt track kings of the continent will hold a two-day automobile meet. There will be a regular programme of races and $1,000 and $500 have been provided for the drivers establishing a new world's or Dominion record for a half mile track. The entries already include Sig. Haugdahl the world's dirt track champion, Bob Kline, Burr Lampkin, the British sensation, and others equally well known.

Miss Toronto, the boat which will take part in the races off the waterfront, recently established a world's record for a mile at 52.7 seconds and averaged 56 miles in her two forty-mile races for the Webb trophy. She showed an official mile at 68.3 miles an hour and unofficially made 70 miles an hour on Toronto Bay and her owners expect to attain 72 miles before the season is over.

VICTORIA BRIDGE FIRE.

Bridge and building workers on the G.T.R. fifth and sixth districts were rushed to Montreal on Sunday to restore the wooden floor of span No. 11 of the Victoria bridge, which was destroyed by fire. Three emergency trains in all carrying men and materials were sent over the lines the first, which left Brockville at 1.45 o'clock, being in charge of District Bridge and Building Foreman E. J. Leeder. Another special was sent from Belleville later in the afternoon in charge of Foreman E. Johnson, and a third went east Sunday evening. The fire started at five o'clock Sunday morning and was not got under control until late in the morning.

DIED FROM SUNSTROKE.

Apparently unconscious from a sunstroke, an unidentified man was found lying alongside the G. T. R. tracks just east of Coteau Junction on Friday afternoon by the crew of the Moccasin train. The man was found on the right-hand side of the tracks when the train was nearing Coteau Junction at 5.30 p.m. Engineer Jos. Rowledge, of Brockville, stopped the train and the unconscious man was taken aboard by Conductor A. B. Davenport. He was removed to Coteau Junction, where Dr. J. L. Herbert was summoned, who diagnosed the case as one of sunstroke. The man was then transferred to train No. 14 and taken to Montreal General Hospital. There was nothing found in the pockets of the man which could serve for identification. He was dressed in a dark suit of working clothes and appeared to be between 55 and 60 years of age. He had a grey moustache. He died in the hospital Saturday afternoon.

ADRIFT ON LAKE.

Swept all night in the heavy winds and high waves on Lake Ontario, Geo. Miller and a friend, both of Kingston, had a thrilling experience. The two men left Picton in a small motor boat Friday night to go to Kingston market. During the night they encountered a heavy gale. The engine stopped dead, and the boat was tossed like a cork on the waves. With no lights and the waves beating against them they worked all night trying to remedy the engine trouble. At daybreak they were about a mile and a half off Lamojne's Point. Mr. Miller donned a life-preserver and swam to shore and secured another boat to go out to rescue his friend. Both men were exhausted from their trying experience.

COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless) and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and few ounces will supply every member of the family for months,

FORTUNES IN SUGAR.

Cuba Grows Wealthy Almost Over Night.

Many stories are told of the marvellous rapidity with which fortunes have been made in Cuba in the sugar business. A young man from Havana who three years ago was copying clerk in an establishments in Havana at $20 a week became dissatisfied, and, believing that the country offered opportunities, secured a small ten-caballeria cane plantation near the Ingenio "Santo Tomas" in Camaguey Province. This was three years ago. The results of the first two years' work were not satisfactory. Two friends of his in Havana were given the opportunity of purchasing a much larger cane plantation in the same district, for which they paid $160,000, and he was made manager at a salary of $300 per month.

Becoming dissatisfied last fall the owners of the plantation offered to sell it to him at a profit of $20,000 to each, permitting him to pay in instalments from the returns from the crop. The cane from this plantation was delivered to Central Cunagua, thus making financing of the crop a simple matter for the young man, and the result has been that he has been able to sell all his sugar to the mill at excellent prices, permitting him not only to pay the expenses of the harvesting of the crop, but the entire cost of the plantation, having left in addition some $80,000 in cash. To cap the climax he has now received an offer of $700,000 in cash for the plantation. Thus it may be said that since November this young man has cleaned up over three-quarters of a million.

A short while ago Don Manuel Rionda, president of the Cuba Cane Corporation, was seated in the office at Central Tuinucu. A man approached him and bade him good morning. Don Manuel did not at first recognize him, but the man asked him if he did not remember the cartman who four years ago used to deliver the wood needed for the kitchen at Central Tuinucu. Don Manuel then recognized him and asked him what he was doing at that time. The reply was that he was growing cane, and upon being asked what his annual production was, he replied, "About 4,000,000 arrobas," sufficient to give him a princely income.

Such stories as these could be repeated many times. There is hardly a wide awake Spanish storekeeper throughout the island of Cuba who, through interests in cane plantations, has not amassed a fortune. While these developments have been in progress throughout the last four years, the sudden jump and tremendous increase in productive power and in wealth-producing capacity have occurred since this crop commenced, and merely an outline has been given of what is sure to continue for the next two or three years.

Previous to 1914 it was estimated that the lands sufficient for a sugar mill, the establishment and installation of the mill, the building of the railroads necessary for transportation of cane and the purchasing of all equipment of rolling stock, oxen, carts, etc., required for the proper operation of a sugar mill, would cost at the rate of $10 per bag of productive capacity of the mill. Thus a mill capable of producing during the season 100,000 bags of sugar could be built and all necessary lands, railroads, equipment and so forth would cost $1,000,000.

To-day it is estimated that the same mill could not be built and the equipment, etc., purchased for less than $20 to $25, and in cases of thoroughly equipped, first-class modern mills for less than $30 per bag of production. Mill owners have for this reason seen the value of their properties increased from 100 to 200 per cent.; mills that formerly could not have been sold for more than $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 having been sold for from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000. Central "Espana," a mill supposed to have a producing capacity of about 600,000, has recently been disposed of for about $19,000,000. This increase in wealth, of course, reflects itself in spending capacity, and therefore in the prosperity of the island and its people.

The Salton Sea.

The Salton sea in Imperial valley, one of the natural wonders of the west, is constantly shrinking. At present it is about eighteen miles long and nine miles wide at the greatest point. In the last five years the water is said to have retreated about a mile a year, leaving a salt-incrusted adobe land, which is eagerly seized by homesteaders. Often their location stakes are planted far out in the water. The sea, which lies 169 feet below the level of the ocean, abounds in fish, mullet and carp, which local and Arizona capitalists are planning to utilize by erection of a great cannery.

Transferred Large Fortune.

As quietly as possible a dozen men in two small motor cars moved about $80,000,000 in cash and securities on a recent Sunday in New York from the Citizens National Bank, 320 Broadway, to the Chemical National Bank, 270 Broadway. In addition, they transferred almost $1,000,000 worth of gold and silver plate and jewelry which was tucked into safe deposit boxes. Six and three-quarter millions of the moved treasure was in actual cash. Only eight policemen—three in uniform and five in mufti—kept watch over the transfer.

A Unique Bakery.

The city council of Reykjavik, in Iceland, has begun the operation of a special bakery in conjunction with the municipal gas works, whereby much of the heat which formerly escaped up the chimney of the latter is utilized in the ovens of the former. It is expected that before long all the black bread consumed in the city will be baked in this establishment. Three-pound loaves are completely baked in three hours, and other sizes in proportionate time.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. Goyer and family wish to thank their many friends for sympathy shown them in their recent bereavement, and for floral and spiritual offerings.

"BORN FOOLS."

Mentality of a Growing Child May Be Improved.

Thomas Carlyle estimated that London had 4,000,000 people, "mostly fools." While there are many fools and many kinds of them, optimists for the human race say that Carlyle's estimate, as per London, was exaggerated.

Medical authorities hold that the worst fool of all is the "born fool."

"If a man is born stupid," writes one authority, "his stupidity does not necessarily diminish as he grows older, unless he has been fortunate enough to undergo the necessary course of treatment which it is now generally understood is the only remedy for congenital mental dullness. He must be taken in hand young—when he is in the backward-boy stage of development.

"At this period he is generally slow in his movements, backward at his lessons, apparently almost impervious to mental impressions, lethargic and listless. He says stupid things and performs foolish actions. His parents regard him hopelessly; they rather hastily classify him as a born fool, and deem it useless to attempt to make anything of him.

"No matter how stupid a child may be, parents should be on their guard never to suggest this so often or so positively that the suggestion sinks into his mind only to act as a positive handicap to the development of average intelligence.

"In the majority of cases the slow-wittedness, the lethargy of mind and body so characteristic of the mentally dull, is due simply to some inefficiency on the part of a small gland situated beneath the skin of the child's neck, in immediate proximity to his collar stud. This gland is known to the learned in these matters as the thyroid. Its business is to provide what is called an internal secretion or essence, which in some mysterious way influences the development, and nutrition of various tissues and organs of the body. It exerts a profound influence on the brain, and may be said to operate by lubricating the machinery of the mind.

"When this secretion is altogether absent growth is stunted, normal brain development is nipped in the bud, the tissues become thickened and coarsened and a condition of idiocy is produced.

"But there are many graduations between complete absence of the thyroid secretion and a condition of normal or even oversecretion. When it is insufficient you get a flooding of all the tissues, the muscles, the nerve cells, etc., with a gummy-like matter, which causes a thickening with consequent cloggng of the organs concerned. Hence muscular movements and thinking are performed slowly and with difficulty. A brain in this condition grasps ideas, memorizes, recollects and judges slowly. Those very colloquial expressions 'thick-head' and 'fat-head,' express the physical basis of the condition very graphically.

"A brain insufficiently supplied with thyroid secretion can no more digest and assimilate mental nourishment than can a stomach short of gastric juice deal properly with the food that is put into it. To make up for this deficiency, thyroid secretion must be supplied from outside. It is not necessary to implant a new thyroid. Medical science can administer by the mouth the necessary extract derived from the glands of humbler animals. This, however, must be given only under medical supervision, as the dose must be very carefully graduated in accordance with the age of the subject and degree of thyroid insufficiency that may be present.

"Skillful treatment will then be found to improve the mentality of the growing child by sharpening his wits."

Long-Lived Tortoise.

Sparrows have been known to live for forty years, so no wonder some of our sparrows are knowing little fellows, because they are quite "grown up."

A horse does not live much more than twenty-seven years, and if hard worked would probably not live as long as that.

The tortoise is supposed to live to be anything between 300 and 400 years old. Some people say toads can live for ever, but, of course, that has not been proved, though certainly they live to a great age.

Both an eagle and a crow have been known to live to be 100, but the poor little wren only lives about three years.

An elephant's lifetime lasts about 100 years, and he isn't considered grown-up until he is about twenty-five years old.

Wedding Bells

DAVIS—CONNEL.

A quiet wedding took place at St. Thomas' Church parsonage when Miss L. Connel, of Scotland, became the bride of Mr. Henry Davis, 111 College street, Belleville. Mrs. B. W. Parker assisted the bride, while Mr. Parker did honors for the groom. The ceremony was performed by Ven. Archdeacon Beamish of St. Thomas Church.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME"

At Griffin's next Friday night, for one night only, the latest play of Sidney Toler, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," an adaptation of the famous novel of the same name by John Fox, Jr., will have first local presentation. This play coming here with the acclaim of several of the latest eastern cities, was recently given in Philadelphia, where cast and production won the heartiest commendation. The story is of Kentucky—of the feuds and the primitive loves and quarrels of the true hearts but rough mannered mountaineers. The period is during the five years from 1860 to 1865 and the tale is devoted to the happenings that mean so much in the life of Chad, a wandering mountain lad and to the petite and lovely Melissy. George Simpson is said to be ideal for the role of Chad, is in the leading male role. Dorothy Dunn, who was the Wendy with Maude Adams' company in "Peter Pan," is the Melissy. The settings give a splendid idea of Kentucy mountain scenery and the third act interior is a perfect reproduction of the living room of an old Southern family.

Reconstruct the Old Home For Longer Usefulness

Reconstruction begins at home. If the old house isn't all you desire, and you can't build a new one, a little of the right kind of repairing and remodeling will readily restore it to present day standards.

Perhaps it's a new porch, a summer kitchen, a side entrance, a new roof, extra rooms in the attic or a renewing of old, cracked walls and ceilings that is needed.

The right kind of lumber used in the right way will make the change and we have all the material you will require including that knotless and crackless manufactured lumber Beaver Board, for better walls and ceilings.

Already Wimburn Was a Member of the Household.

Mrs. Kip looked on and listened with the fond alarm of one who has seen fatal courtships begun with just such fencing.

When at length Daphne suggested that there was still time to rush down to the Hotel Statler for a dance or two Mrs. Kip smiled at her. Wimburn did not know that he had been brought home on approval. Mrs. Kip realized that he was not to be returned as impossible. Her fancy gambled in futures.

Wimburn was the victim of an onset of that delirium amans known as love at first sight. He was at the right age, and he found something exotically captivating in this strange girl in the strange city. He was poisoned with love, and his opinion of Daphne was lunatically fantastic. No one in the world equaled her. No one ever had equaled her or could equal her in any future ever.

Spring and love are the perennial miracles, always new, always amazing. It was springtime in Wimburn's years and in the calendar of the world; and countless other youth of mankind, animal kind, bird and fish kind, flowers and fruit trees, and perhaps of chemicals in the ground were feeling the same mania.

Daphne's cordiality was at first merely the hospitable warmth of her unusually cordial community. But she caught the fever from Wimburn and decided that he was the final word in human evolution.

They began to dread the society of others, to resent the existence of a squatter population on their private planet. The world was too much with them. The little car was transparent. Even at night etiquette required them to light it up within.

Wimburn did not return to New York so soon as he expected. It seemed impossible to uproot himself from that pleasant soil. One afternoon when he had already overstayed his furlough Daphne and he were riding in the little car through the outer suburb known as Shaker Heights—a section rapidly evolving from a sleepy religious community to a swarm of city residences.

The late afternoon moon had risen in a sky still rosy with the afterglow of sunset. The air was murmurous with pleading.

Suddenly Wimburn cried aloud, to his own surprise and hers, "Daphne! Miss Kip! I can't stand everything, you know! I'm only human, after all."

"What's the matter?" she asked in prosaic phrase but with a poetic flutter of breath.

"I love you, d——n it!—pardon me, but I'm infernally in love with you. I'm tormented. I came here on business, and instead of my finishing it you've finished me. I'm two days overdue in New York and I've had to lie to the office to explain why. And all I can think of now is that I'd rather resign and starve to death than go back and leave you here."

"Honestly?" she barely breathed.

"Desperately!" he moaned. "What's to become of me?"

"You'd better go back, I suppose. You'll soon get over it and find somebody else to love."

"There's nobody else in the world worth loving. I'd die if I gave you up! I'd simply die."

He went on with aching anxiety: "Could you care for me just a little? If you could love me or just promise to try to, I could face my exile for a while. Do you think you could love me ever?"

She dropped her chin on her breast and sighed.

"I guess I do now."

The miraculous felicity of this situation overwhelmed them both. He clipt her in his arms and she flung hers about him, forgetting entirely the steering wheel. The neglected little car promptly scuttered off the road, crossed a gutter into a vacant lot, scooped up a "For Sale" sign, and was about to tip over into an excavation when Daphne looked up long enough to shut off the power. Then in a blind rapture she returned to where she belonged—his embrace.

Soon she was assailed with fears for the credibility of this wonder work, and when he said:

"When shall we announce our engagement?" she protested:

"Oh, not till we are sure."

"I'm sure now."

"But we must be terribly sure. It's such a dangerous thing, getting married. So many people who think they love each other find out their mistake too late. You don't know me very well."

"You mean you don't know me very well."

"I'm not afraid of you, but for you. I'd hate to disappoint you, and I don't really amount to much. I can't do anything except gad around; and you'd tire of me."

"Not in this world—nor in the next."

"It's darling of you to say it, and you think you mean it—now. But—"

"I know it, Daphne, honey, now and forever. I don't want anybody but you. Life won't be life without you. You've promised to be my wife. I hold you to your promise."

"All right." It was exceedingly satisfying to surrender her soul into his keeping. She had reached harbor already after so brief and placid a voyage.

He ended a long, cozy silence with the surprising remark, "I suppose I ought to ask your parents' consent?"

The daughter of the twentieth century laughed: "Parents' consent! You do read a lot of ancient literature, don't you?"

"Still I imagine we'd better break it to 'em."

"You leave it to me to break it to 'em. They'll be glad enough to get me off their hands."

"I'll never believe that."

When they reached her home it was late and his hotel was so far that, since he would be spending his last evening with her, anyway, she asked him to stay to dinner.

She broke that news to her parents, and it caused them acute distress. Her father and her mother were deep in the battle that always broke out between them when the monthly bills arrived. Daphne was so used to this that she hardly noticed it.

After dinner the parents retired to the living room to read and sew and mumble over their mutual grievances, while Daphne and Wimburn sat and the piazza which the moon turned into a blue portico of mystic spell.

Accurate Thorough Lubrication

IMPERIAL Polarine gives thorough lubrication under every operating condition. Cars and trucks give longer, cheaper service when lubricated with Imperial Polarine.

Imperial Polarine will not break up or run thin under continued operation. It reduces friction to a minimum by maintaining a coating of oil on every wearing surface. It seals all the power behind the piston by establishing a perfect piston-to-cylinder seal.

AUTO BANDITS STOLE
$100.000 FROM BOY

Chicago, Aug. 20.—A mail pouch believed to contain money and valuables worth $100,000 was stolen by two men today from a suburban station of the Illinois Central Railroad. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

The money was to be used to cash was all in bills of one, five, ten and Sherwin-Williams Co. The $100,000 was all in bills of one, five, ten and twenty dollar denominations.

Police reports say that while the bag was temporarily in charge of Leo Wilgus, a 13-year-old boy, it was taken from him by an elderly man wearing brown glasses. He leaped into a car and disappeared in the direction of Chicago.

Exclusive of live stock and outdoor exhibits there is an exhibit space at the Canadian National Exhibition of over 500,000 square feet.

FREE HOTEL SERVICE IS NOT APPRECIATED.

Belleville is noted for the excellence of its hotels.

In number and excellence in proportion to population no community in Canada can compare with Belleville for hotel accommodation.

Rooms, meals and general accommodation for the travelling public are distinctly superior in Belleville hotels to many other places.

In all hotels there is provided a service to the public which has come to be regarded by the public as a right, not even worth saying thank you for. Free use of parlor, reading room, writing room, pens and paper, also wash rooms and lavatory.

It is sometimes suggested that hotels make a charge for service where patrons do not occupy rooms or pay for meals, but this would be somewhat difficult to operate.

In view of the service to the public rendered by hotels the municipalities should encourage them in every way possible and patrons who take advantage of the free service afforded by hotels should not go outside for their meals to save five or ten cents when perhaps they have had a dollar's worth of free service.

A HEDGER AND DITCHER.

The Brantford Expositor, which has always been regarded as a good Liberal paper of the independent type, accuses Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, of "hedging" in regard to the tariff plank of the platform adopted by the convention which selected him to be party leader. Speaking at Hanlan's Point recently, the Liberal leader declared that in regard to the implements of production there should be a "substantial reduction of duties," adding that it was not a question of free trade or protection. The Expositor points out that the platform adopted by the convention which chose Mr. King as party leader, demands absolute freedom from duties where the leader demands only a substantial reduction of duties.

Mr. King, no doubt, fully understands the meaning and use of party platforms.

DON'T ROCK THE BOAT.

Tom King, one of the most sane and sensible writers on public affairs in Canada, who represents the Toronto World in the parliamentary press gallery at Ottawa, attended Porter's Picnic and listened to the address of Premier Meighen. His editorial summary of the speech will be endorsed by all fair-minded Canadian citizens who listened to the Premier's able address. Says Tom King:

> Premier Meighen brought a message of homely good sense to the people of Canada. He looks with horror upon the revolutions that are rending Europe, and desires to see Canada walk in the paths of pleasantness and peace. Wild theories of social revolution, mysterious mouthings about "currents" and "movements" do not attract him. He is willing to let Russia try all the experiments she has a mind to, but he would keep Canada in the middle of the stream.
> With characteristic boldness he bracketed the O.B.U. with the I.W.W., and declared war upon all who were secretly plotting to destroy the authority of the government, which, in this country at least, is the rule of the people.
> The Prime Minister addressed a gathering of happy and contented people.
> The farmers were looking forward to bumper crops and bumper prices.
> The town people were enjoying unprecedented prosperity, as anyone could see on his way through Belleville, which has sprung into new life and activity under the leadership of a vigorous Board of Trade for the past few years.
> Every man there could name you half a dozen factories that would go out of business in five minutes if the free traders carried the country.
> To such an audience, Mr. Meighen's appeal not to rock the boat came with impressive force. Such an appeal might carry less weight in the western provinces, where fewer industries have been established, and where comparatively few farmers have gone in for mixed farming and a local market.
> It will be interesting to see what declaration the leaders of the U. F. O. are going to make on the tariff question. They probably do not see eye to eye with the grain growers of the West. Free trade would not have a chance at any election in the province of Ontario, but the Western grain growers demand free trade with the Mother Country.
>
> Free trade with England would cripple Canadian industries, and in practical operation would mean free trade with all the world. The German, French and American manufacturer would ship his goods to some agent in England and then have them exported to Canada as goods of British origin. To avoid this would be almost impossible.
> For example, English marmalade had a tremendous sale in this country before the war, and got the benefit of the British preference. It was distinctly and typically a British product, yet the oranges came from Spain, the sugar from Germany, and the glass containers may have come from the United States.
> The British preference should be high enough to place the British manufacturer or merchant upon an equality with his American competitor, otherwise he would be handicapped by distance, greater cost of salesmanship and higher freights. Beyond that, it would not be wise to go without careful thought; for, after all, our duty and ambition must be to produce everything used in Canada in our own country, as far as possible.

CRISP COMMENT

A fool and his money may be soon parted, but it takes a super-wise guy to hang on to any money these days.

Canadian free traders want the tariff taken off the things they buy and tacked on the things they sell. Free trade for Us Fellows Only is a grand thing if the membership is limited.

Prohibition may succeed in Scotland, as the drys prophesy, but there are a lot of people from Missouri who have their doots about the place where the best whiskey comes from giving up their wee deoch and doris.

The press representatives of the large city newspapers who were in Belleville attending Porter's Picnic carried away very pleasant memories of their visit here. Indeed, some of them were Belleville Old Boys delighted at the opportunity of again visiting familiar scenes. The arrangements for the press men were so complete and the entertainment provided so satisfying that E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., was unanimously voted a Prince of Good Fellows and Greater Belleville has since received a generous advertising in the editorial and news columns of the metropolitan press worth thousands of dollars.

Harold Bell Wright, the author, has divorced his wife and there is grief in the Ozarks. Harold Bell Wright comes from Missouri and his former parishioners in Lebanon, Mo., where he labored as an impecunious sky pilot until fame and fortune favored him, are shocked that in the day of his prosperity he should be willing to part from the partner of his joys and sorrows who helped him so much when his joys were few and his sorrows many.

There was an M.P. in Toronto on Thursday on his way home up north from the Unionist caucus at Ottawa. He said he had been shocked by the "two-masters" at the capital. Asked to explain he said: "Did you ever see a two-masted yacht tied up in winter, bound by ice and white snow all around, and her sticks dismantled? Well, when I was in front of Chateau Laurier on a bright sunny forenoon I saw a lady come sailing across the square in a slight gale. And when she got in the sunlight she looked all the world like the two-master upside down. Her transparent dress of organdie or thin silk showed her masts the whole way. And I saw many others; and when I got in Toronto I saw still others. And my friends tell me you can see them on the golf links. I don't mind them on the seashore—and I don't quite mind them on the street. But where is it going to end?" A reporter made further enquiry, and was told there never was such an unveiling as in these war times and after. Riding on a train, he got into conversation with a middle-aged woman who is a section foreman's wife in a railway village forty miles from Toronto. She said it was awful. A woman came to sing at a church concert in the village, and when she got on the platform—oh!—Toronto World.

Kingston is hot after industries, and to secure a machinery concern is offering a site valued at $30,000, a railway siding, a fixed assessment of $10,000 for ten years, and exemption from all but school taxes. Looks to be a high price to pay for one industry.

If the U. F. O. ministers can sleep and eat in the legislative halls at Queen's Park, why not put in cots for the common or garden variety of farmer M.P.P.'s with a cafeteria in the basement? Drury Lane could be made into a nice apartment home for the homeless with chambermaids on every floor.

OTHER VIEWS

Newspaper's Public Service.

London Express.

The most interesting feature of this vast disposal of Government war stores has been the part played in it by advertisement in the newspapers. The greater proportion of these sales of over five hundred millions has been in response to advertisements costing the Government in money a very small fraction of one per cent. on the total sales. Newspapers can congratulate themselves on having done a public service in this matter and on having proved conclusively the rewards that await this form of expenditure.

Soldiers as Teachers.

Toronto Globe.

Two hundred returned soldiers took advantage of the means offered by Hon. Dr. Cody, when Minister of Education, to train for the teaching profession, and nearly all of them have been successful in passing the courses prescribed for certificates. The knowledge of life and habits of discipline acquired during their military experience have enhanced their value as teachers, and many of the larger cities have already availed themselves of the opportunity to obtain their services for male vacancies on the staffs. The present Minister of Education, Hon. Mr. Grant, has carried out the scheme in a broad way, and this recognition of patriotic work should prove of great profit to the schools of Ontario.

THE POET'S CORNER

REMEMBER.

Remember the things in your life that are fair,
The thousand delights to be had!
Look long at the sunshine, hark low to the birds,
And learn to be thankful and glad!

The roses grow sweet on the thorniest bush;
There are stars and moonshine at night;
And no one yet entered a valley of gloom
But some little joy flashed a light.

It's true that life's troubles may fall on your path,
That trials in the darkness may throng,
But sorrows that hush you in silence today
Tomorrow will teach you a song.

New blessings come swift in the place of the old.
Dreams fail—but other dreams start,
The journey of life will for ever be bright
While sunshine is kept in your heart.

—E. S. M.

A LAUGH OR TWO

Tombstones remind us that the average man isn't as white as he is sculptured.

When a widower begins to take dancing lessons it is a sign that he means to grasp another opportunity.

A Fine Comeback.

Husband—Didn't you throw your hat in the ring for presidency of your club?

Wife (sarcastically) — I couldn't, dear, it was out of style.

Usually the Way of It.

Scandalising She—Everybody knows about it. Some people take her part and some her husband's.

Mere Man—And a few eccentric individuals mind their own business.

Armed to the Teeth.

"He caught her to his heart with eager tenderness, one hand still clutching the sandwich, the other absently waving the plate of beans."—White Roses," by Katharine Holland Brown.

One of Few Things.

A woman went into a New York drug store the other day and said she would like to buy a wash boiler.

That may sound strange, but the strangest, the almost unbelievable part of it is that the druggist replied:

"I am sorry, madam, but I do not keep wash boilers."

Life's Tragic Moments.

When you take your best girl to the show and find that your seats are separated by the aisle.

CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL.

Ratepayers of Cardinal and vicinity are considering the erection of a consolidated school in that village. A meeting was held recently when the matter was introduced by T. A. FREE TRAIN RIDE.

On the arrival of the steamer Britannic at Kingston on Friday from Brockville, it was discovered that the craft was carrying over the alloted number of passengers and about 100 citizens of Gananoque, who had boarded the boat at that point for the Limestone City, were compelled to return home by rail at the expense of the Cornwall and Montreal Transportation Company, owners of the Britannic.

PRINCE EDWARD U. F. O.

Prince Edward county Farmers at their annual meeting here elected Watson Ireland President of the county U.F.O. Association, and James R. Anderson county director. James Hatfield was elected Vice-President and Clarence Mallory Secretary-Treasurer. R. W. E. Burnaby, President of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, and Mrs. Laws, Secretary of the United Farm Women of Ontario, were the speakers present. Mrs. Laws has been in the county for the past week, and during that time has organized half a dozen U.F.W.O. clubs.

HAD A SPLENDID PACK.

Prince Edward Canning factories are just completing one of the biggest packs of green peas for many years. And the peas have been of the very finest quality. The cool weather was exceedingly favorable for an unusually large yield of the very best grade. The bean crop is now being canned, and it will also be a record one. Tomatoes and corn are looking well. A few weeks of warm weather with a fair amount of moisture will mean a bumper yield of these valuable canning crops.

CONVICTED FALSE PRETENCES

On Thursday Lyle Aubin, Toronto, appeared before Judge Reynolds of Brockville, charged with obtaining money under false pretences. In company with another man named Christ Thomas he was arrested near Delta for obtaining subscriptions for the magazines, Everywoman and Needlecraft, and in pursuit of the work engaged the attention of Women's Institutes by proposing to give a flag with the names of soldiers engraved on the same, the soldiers to be from the particular districts. They also took private subscriptions for the same periodicals. A number of charges were against them, but only three were tried, namely, of obtaining subscription rates from O. Brown, C. Lafleche and C. Carr, all of Delta. Aubin was previously out on bail. He asked to be tried summarily and on being found guilty was sentenced to two months in jail. The other man Thomas is slated to come up at the general sessions in September.

RACED MOTOR COP.

A well known resident of Lindsay visited the Cobourg Horse Show this week. He was driving over that good piece of road between Port Hope and Cobourg when a motorcycle drove alongside his car, and then moved a little faster as if inviting a race. This was too much for the Lindsayite, and he opened up and took after the cycle and finally passed him in a cloud of dust. On arriving home he received a summons to call and settle, as he was charged with exceeding the speed limit. He had been racing with a motor cop. Of course, coming from Lindsay he would be expected to bite. —Port Hope Guide.

SPOTTING SPEEDERS.

For the past few weeks a spotter from the Provincial Highways Department has been operating between Port Hope and Napanee, catching autoists who are exceeding the speed limit. One from Lennox county appeared in police court at Cobourg this week and was fined ten dollars and costs. There are several more due to report for trial shortly.

TAX ON SILKS.

Dry goods merchants and others have received notification of a new ruling in the luxury tax on silks, as follows: "Silk purchased upon which is paid a luxury tax and taken to a dressmaker to be made into a dress, the purchaser is required to produce to the dressmaker the counter sales slip with the tax shown thereon. The tax paid on the silk may be deducted fro mthe dressmaker's tax on the total dress, and sales slip must be kept by the dressmaker to support the tax return."

KILLED WHEN AUTOMOBILE SKIDDED INTO THE DITCH

Dunnville, Ont., Aug. 23.—As the result of a motor accident on Thursday night on the Rainham road a miles west of Silkirk, Arthur P. O'Leary, a controller of the city of Rochester, N. Y., is dead, and J. H. Berniard, of Buffalo, and C. R. Wood, of Philadelphia, are in the Haldimand Soldiers' War Memorial Hospital here suffering from serious injuries.

The party were coming east in a big touring car, owned by B. G. Little, of the City Hall staff, Buffalo, when the heavy car broke down the sloping of the road and skidded into the ditch. When being righted it struck a rough spot, the steering pinion broke, and the car went over twice, the five occupants being pinned underneath. Mr. O'Leary died enroute to the hospital four hours after the accident, without having regained consciousness. Berniard has a broken collar bone, broken ribs, and is badly shocked. A splinter went through the lower part of a leg of Mr. Wood and carried away a portion of the large bone. Little was shocked, but not seriously, and G. C. Andrews, of Buffalo, escaped injury.

Breezy Western Play is "Speedy Meade"

Louis Bennison, Larry Semon and Jack Dempsey, the Champ., at Griffin's.

Once again Louis Bennison shows himself a true son of the West. This time it is in "Speedy Meade" that the smiling cowboy star exudes his breezy charm and infectious humor that have established him as one of the most popular screen stars of the day. In "Speedy Meade," which was shown before a large audience at Griffin's last night, Bennison has the role of Speedy Meade, a Texas ranger, famed for his recklessness and ability to finish any job he starts. He is assigned the task of rounding up a band of cattle thieves on the border. Bidding good-bye to his sweetheart, Mary Dillman (Katherine MacDonald) a student in a country convent school, Meade sets out on a man's size task. While trailing the outfit Speedy is shocked to learn the brains of the robber band is Henry Dillman, father of his sweetheart. A still greater shock comes to Meade when he comes across Mary in a lonely road near the scene of the crook's operations in the dead of night. Her father has turned her out of the house. Speedy enlists her aid for the battles he knows must come with the cattle thieves. How this slip of a girl helps her lion-hearted sweetheart in bringing to bay one desperate plunderer after another brings a series of thrills and a smashing climax.

A beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue of Japan, "The Grocery Clerk," a 2-reel Larry Semon comedy, and easiest the funniest that the popular comedian has yet appeared in, in Belleville; Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight prize fighter of the world, appears on the same program in a thrilling drama which is alive with action from start to finish titled "Daredevil Jack."

Called by Death

Mrs. MARY A. BARLOW

Mary A. Barlow, widow of the late Geo. Barlow, passed away Tuesday morning, Aug. 24 1920, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Davis, Kingston, aged 93 years. The late Mrs. Barlow was born at the village of Ringer, County of Sussex, England, in December 1827. At the age of ten years she came to this city and has since resided in Belleville, with the exception of the last two years when she had resided with her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Naylor, Madoc. She leaves to mourn her loss, one brother, Mr. Henry Alcock, of California, four sons, Jonathon of Tyendinaga, Isaac of Havelock, J. W. and J.G. of this city; three daughters, Mrs. Jas. Naylor, Madoc; Mrs. Carr of this city; and Mrs. Geo Davis of Kingston. She leaves an unusually large number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren numbering respectively, 43 and 71 fourteen grandchildren having served overseas with the C.E.F., two having made the supreme sacrifice.

When Mrs. Barlow first came to Belleville in 1837, all that was to be seen of the present city was the section between Dundas and Bridge streets.

She was remarkably active for her age and until the last her mind remained perfectly clear To those left to mourn the loss of a loving mother is extended the heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends in this city.

JOHN HENRY WANNAMAKER.

Mr. John Henry Wannamaker died in Belleville Tuesday morning, Aug. 24, 1920, aged 72 years. He lived in Prince Edward County all his life at Mountain View, was a Methodist in religion and a carpenter by trade. He leaves to mourn his loss a widow and two sons, Grant of Mountain View, and Ralph of Watertown, N.Y.; also two sisters, Mrs. Jane Bovay of Crofton and Mrs. Sarah Bovay of Picton.

HEAVY WEIGHTS TO MEET.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Georges Carpentier, French boxer, and Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight, will fight in New York in November or December, according to an announcement by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, here today.

Kearns, according to the announcement, has been advised that Carpentier will cancel his bout with Battling Levinsky "and oppose Dempsey, with Tex Rickard promoting, along in November or December," he said. Following the Carpentier battle, Kearns said, the champion will take on Jess Willard at New York.

The Canadian National Exhibition grand stand has a seating capacity of 16,800, with room for 8,000 more on the lawn.

DIED

BARLOW—At the home of her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Davis, Kingston, Mary A. Barlow, widow of the late George Barlow, aged 92 years. The funeral will take place from her son's residence, J. W. Barlow, 11 Forin street, city, Thursday, 3 p.m. Service at the house at 2.30. 24-2td

GRASSHOPPERS CUT TWINE ON RYE STOOKS

Grasshoppers are interfering with harvesting operations in the Maple Creek country, Saskatchewan, by cutting the twine on the winter rye stooks, according to advices reaching the field crops branch of the provincial department of agriculture.

Though rails felt a rally, Wall street generally failed to respond.

American Cyanamid Co. reports increased profits and a larger surplus.

READ THIS.

Weary traveller, step within—
No temptation here to sin.
To save your soles is our delight,
To make them strong and water-tight.

Just sit down upon the chair
While your shoes we soon repair.
We heel the sick and save the soles,
And patch up any ragged holes.

And when it comes our time to dye,
We will not be the least bit shy;
But hust'e 'round and feel quite gay,
For we are dyeing every day.

Since man to man has been unjust
We do not know which man to trust;
So pay today and trust tomorrow—
We give no tick, and do not borrow.

MORRISON ATTACKS DRURY.

"Drury didn't fight the increased freight rates in Ottawa the other day. He should have. The western provinces were represented by counsel and the Ontario Government should have been represented. We say he was wrong, and we don't care whether he likes it or lumps it," said J. J. Morrison, secretary of the U.F.O., speaking at the Orange Hall at New Dublin, Leeds County, Saturday night. Mr. Morrison was illustrating the democracy of the Farmers' movement by touching upon the points of disagreement between the U.F.O. executive and the government in power. "The government, he said, was wrong in the superannuation bill. "We don't believe in it," said Mr. Morrison, we thought it wrong and we still think it wrong. Drury said he was going to put it through and he did put it through." On the Hydro Radial issue the executive, said Mr. Morrison, knew Drury was right "and we put it through," he added.

MOVING TO HAMILTON.

A large motor moving van arrived in Belleville Tuesday morning from Hamilton, having left there at seven o'clock Monday evening. The truck came down for the household effects of Mr. A. E. The truck was loaded before noon and started back to Hamilton, being scheduled to arrive during the night.

CHEAP SUGAR PREDICTED.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Eleven cent sugar for New Year's was the prediction today of R. J. Poole, secretary of the City Council's H.C.L. committee. Poole said his advice to the housewife was to purchase as little sugar as possible and watch the price dwindle as holders of the sweetener enter the market against enlarged beet sugar crops and in incoming flood of Cuban cane sugar.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1920.

First Woman Prisoner Brought Into Warsaw

SAT UPRIGHT IN A CART IN MIDDLE OF A NONDESCRIPT HORDE IN ALL KINDS OF CLOTHING AND ALL STAGES OF UNKEMPTNESS—WOMAN PRISONER WAS SOVIET NURSE.

WARSAW, Aug. 25.—The first woman prisoner of the Russo-Polish war, a Soviet Red Cross nurse, was brought into Warsaw yesterday. She was dressed in the regulation uniform, soiled with the dust of the road.

The nurse sat upright on a cart in the middle of a long convoy of prisoners. For a time she gazed straight ahead, almost statue-like. She broke down and cried when the parade halted to permit several Polish Red Cross nurses to take her from the cart to care for her. Their greeting was friendly, and in a moment she was sobbing in their arms.

The parade of prisoners was viewed by thousands. Polish soldiers in uniform were in the lead and then came the nondescript horde in all kinds of clothing and in all stages of unkemptness. They were the prisoners of Soviet commissaries who ruled in towns captured by the Red troops, but who failed to get away when the Polish troops swept back over the area.

Part of the guard was made up of Polish peasants who had captured fleeing Bolshevists. They wanted the thrill of bringing their prizes to the capital. The peasants were armed chiefly with scythes and clubs.

Issue Last Pension Cheque on old Basis

September Payments. Will. Carry. Increase Recently Granted

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—The last pension cheques before the coming into effect of the new scale are now being issued These are the August pension cheques which have been going out from the Pensions Board offices since August 10.

The September cheques will carry the increases reccomended by the Special Parliamentary Committee and which were the basis of the amendments made to te pensions act made during last session.

Canada's pension bill for the twelve months ending August 31 this year will be in the neighbourhood of $25,000 000. With the increases going into effect on September 1 of this year it is estimated that the pensions bill for the next twelve months will be increased by $10,000,000, and the total will be 315,000,000. This is exclusive of the payments necessary through the commutation of pensions, as provided for in the amendments to the act.

Across Canada By Airplane To Test Possibilities

CANADA AIR BOARD ARRANGING FOR TRANS-CANADA FLIGHT—AIRPLANES AND SEAPLANES WILL BE TESTED—COL. LECKIE WILL BE A PILOT.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—While no definite choice has yet been made it is practically certain that the first trans-Canada flight to be attempted next month under the auspices of the Canada Air Board will see Col. Robert Leckie, superintendent of the certificate branch of the C.A.F., as pilot. It is understood that the first half of the trip will be made by seaplane, and from Winnipeg west by airplane. While the general operations of the Air Board are for exploration, survey and fire protection purposes, the Board proposes to test out the commercial possibilities of air transportation. The Board does not propose to make any commercial ventures, but will supply general information on the subject.

Northern Russian Red Army Seeks Surrender Terms

SOVIET ARMY OF 250,000 WHICH MARCHED ON WARSAW REDUCED BY 150,000, ACCORDING TO POLISH ESTIMATES — OTHER DETACHMENTS SHOT TO PIECES—NEGOTIATIONS UNDER WAY FOR SURRENDER OF NORTHERN RED ARMY.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Negotiations are under way leading to surrender to the Poles by the Northern Russian Bolshevik army, according to a Vienna despatch received here. The latest information from Warsaw indicates that the advance of the Polish armies continues rapidly and the Bolsheviki seem anxious only to lose contact with the Poles.

Warsaw advices report the capture of Kolno, near the East Prussian frontier, north of Lomza. More than ten thousand prisoners were captured in this region.

Reports from various fronts, particularly the northern sector of the battle line, indicate that the Bolsheviki are demoralized and fleeing everywhere in great disorder. The Polish Minister of War has issued a statement stating that of 250,000 Bolshevik troops participating in the offensive on Warsaw, more than 140,000 have been accounted for and nearly all other detachments have been shot to pieces.

DOCTOR CAN RESTORE LIFE AFTER THE HEART STOPS

Paris, Aug. 25.—Resurrection from the dead is no longer merely a Biblical legend, but an authenticated fact, according to the celebrated French surgeon Tuffier, who asserts that a heart which has stopped beating can be reanimated.

"Injections of andrenalin in the cardical cavity," says Dr. Tuffier, "may restore life to a heart already dead. The heart may also be kept beating artificially for a certain length of time by means of massage or certain chemical excitants."

Dr. Tuffier's statements have created a great sensation in Paris, where medical circles are discussing the possibilities of saving lives by artificial heart stimulation just as is now practised by artificial breathing.

Dr. Tuffier also claims that a man can live for years with a bullet in his heart. In fact, says the eminent surgeon, the heart is far from being the fragile organ it is generally supposed to be. Delicate operations, he says, can be performed in the heart tissues without mortal effect.

Brockville, Aug. 25.—Report associates the name of A. E. Donovan, ex-M.L.A., for Brockville, now residing in Toronto, as an aspirant for the Conservative nomination in the Federal riding of Leeds, which embraces the provincial riding of Brockville. Mr. Donovan is now in the riding.

Burnham Liked Ride on Engine

Donned Overalls For Trip To See West At its Best

GOLDEN, B.C., Aug. 25.—"I've had a splendid ride," said Viscount Burnham as he stepped from the cab of a locomotive yesterday morning, clad in business-like overalls. The chairman of the Imperial Press Conference travelled from Lake Louise to Field yesterday morning baide the engineer of the C.P.R. train carrying the visiting newspapermen of the British Empire across Canada. In the last few days, the visitors have been doing just such unaccustomed things and enjoying relaxation from formal fuhctions and continuous travelling. The beauties of the Rockies have occupied them to their great satisfaction. The week-end at Banff and Lake Louise was followed with a visit to Lake Windermere Camp for boating and fishing and today the fruit country of British Columbia will be inspected and the Vernon Board of Trade will entertain the party to luncheon at the Long Lake Coutnry Club.

On To Vancouver

Vancouver will be reached Wednesday morning. There have been pony rides and long tramps up hill and through the valleys of the Ten Peaks to Moran Lake; swimming and golf and tennis During the few days the party has been made free of Canada's famous beauty spot in the hills. Southern Alberta afforded the newspapermen their first real holiday since their arrival in Sydney nearly a month ago since when they have been entertained in twenty-eight cities and towns and have listened to scores of speeches of welcome and have responded in kind. Their enthusiasm about Canada is not less keen in their private conversation than it is in their formal speeches.

Gov't Will Not Release McSweeney

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

LUCERNE, Aug. 25.—Premier Lloyd George in a statement today concerning the case of Lord Mayor McSweeney of Cork, whose condition is grave because of a hunger strike in Brixton jail, said in substance that whatever the consequenes the Government could not take the responsibility of releasing McSweeney. The Premier declared he regretted McSweeney had decided to starve imself, but said that if he were released then all other hunger strikers would have to be released. A law which is a respector of persons is no law, he continued, and if the cabinet departs from its decision, a complete breakdown of the whole machinery of law and Government in Ireland inevitably would follow.

He is noted for the protest which he made against the charging of double income taxes within the Empire, which subject he will pursue at the coming Congress. Mr. Jenkins was Agent-General for South Australia in 1908, and is personally interested in production and development in Canada. He is a director for Great Britain on the Paris International Chamber of Congress. He was born in Pennsylvania, U.S.

Carvell Will Hear Telephone Case

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—"You say that I will be on the bench when the application of the Bell Telephone Company for increased rates comes up for hearing," said Hon. Frank Carvell, chairmna of the Board of Railway Commissioners, to the Canadian Press this morning, when his attention was drawn to newspaper reports that he would not be able to hear the Bell Telephone Company's application for increaed rates, because of his connection wit hthe New Brunswick Telephone Company. Mr. Carvell said he had been a director and small shareholder of the telephone company which is operated under the Utility Board of New Brunswick and does not come under the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission.

HON. MR. DOHERTY USES PRIVATE CAR

Toronto, Aug. 25.—The bitter hatred of pomp and the keen desire to economize, of the present provincial government, is again exemplified by one of its members, Hon. Manning Doherty was called to Vancouver last week through family illness. With three excellent Pullman services on the railroads to travel by he elected to take the government private coach, "Whitney."

It is not so long since Hon. Beniah Bowman and a large number of his relatives went holidaying in one of the government cars, which, of course, was Hon. Mr. Bowman's privilege, and that of his relatives, if he chose to take them along. But, computing the cost of each government car on the scale that the C.P.R. computes the cost of its trains, a tidy little sum is piled up on each trip that one of these cars makes.

Price of Sugar is Coming Down

Canadians Buying Sugar in Detroit at 17c. Pound.

WINDSOR, Aug. 24.—Sugar has started a return trip to Canada. Two months ago householders in Detroit were seeking relief from the sugar famine in Michigan and the United States by procuring a pound or two of sugar on this side of the river, "just for our coffee."

Customs officials on either side did not bother persons bringing a small quantity across. Today Windserites were in Detroit to get sugar at 17 cents a pound, for the price here is still 24 cents.

Local merchants and commission men today expressed the opinion that the price of sugar in Canada would stay at 24 cents. The refiners, they say, have not dropped their prices, and they even predict another increase within a week or two.

"We are losing money at the present selling price," one commission man said. "It isn't going any lower in Canada, no matter what the United States does."

Indignation was expressed by a few business men because Canada had been sending sugar to the United States. They declare these shipments are the basis for the dropping of the sugar-prices across the border.

Mrs. Coleman Drowned While Bathing

Wife of Former Belleville Resident Drowned in British Columbia

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25.—Mrs. Coleman wife of D. C Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway was drowned at noon today at Windmere, B.C., while bathing in the lake. Reports which have been received here indicate that Mrs. Coleman got into water beyond her depth and assistance came too late to save her life. Word of the tragedy reached Mr. Coleman here yestrday afternoon and he left for the West.

Mrs. Coleman had spent the past month with her children in a cottage on the western shore of Lake Windermere which is south of Golden, B.C.

Before her marriage to Mr. Coleman in 1906, Mrs. Coleman was Miss Anna Grant of Calgary.

Mr. D. C. Coleman was at one time a resident of Belleville and a member of The Intelligencer editorial staff.

CONDUCTOR CHARGED WITH TICKET THEFT

Toronto, Aug. 25.—David J. Carson, a C.P.R. conductor, living on High Park Boulevard, was arrested last night on a charge of theft, and Samuel Shiffman, a merchant, of King street, Hamilton was taken into custody on a charge of receiving. The arrests were the work of Detective-Sergts. McConnell and Nursey.

Carson is alleged to have stolen railway tickets from the C.P.R. and sold them to Shiffman. The method of operation, according to the police, was for Carson, when he accepted a passenger's ticket to punch a piece of cardboard into his pocket and when sufficient tickets had accumulated, sell them to Shiffman. Shiffman, the police say, resold them. The investigation was made by the C.P.R. Investigation Department and it lasted a year and a half. It is estimated that the two men have made thousands of dollars in this way during that extended period.

Russia's Answer Is Awaited

Communique, Result of Conference Is Served on Soviet Representative

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Arthur J. Balfour, Lord President of the Council, on behalf of Premier Lloyd George, last night sent to Leo Kameneff, Russian Soviet representative here, a copy of the communique issued in Lucerne as a result of the conference of Premiers Lloyd Georg and Giolitti.

Mr. Balfour pointed out that, according to the latest information, the Bolshevist terms to Poland fundamentally contradict those Kameneff communicated to Great Britain recently. Mr. Balfour asked if this information was correct and, if so, whether the Bolshevists intended to adhere to the new terms.

An answer by Friday evening at the latest was asked for by Mr. Balfour, who cited the urgency of the matter and said that on the answer to these questions depended the future policy of Great Britain.

Poland Rejects Russian Peace Terms

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

LONDON Aug. 25—Poland's reply to the peace terms presented by the Russian Soviet delegation at Minsk amounts to a flat rejection, says the Manchester Guardian's Minsk correspondent in a wireless despatch filed in that city Monday. Out of the fifteen Russian demands he continues only one is acceptable, relative to demobilization, and that only on condition that Russia takes a similar course simultaneously.

"HUMAN FLY" WELL ENOUGH TO RETURN TO TORONTO

St. Catharines, Aug. 25.—Harry Thompson, better known as Charles Hutchinson, the human fly, who fell from the exterior of the fourth storey of the Welland House in the course of a climb of that building, on June 24th last, and was picked up in a supposed dying condition, has recovered sufficiently to return to Toronto. Before leaving he was tendered a benefit performance at the Griffin Theatre. While unable to walk any distance, he still has hopes of being able to climb again.

WILL DEVELOP SODIUM

Regina, Sask., Aug. 25.—A plant with a capacity of 20 tons a day is in process of being installed to mine sodium sulphate found a few months ago at Fusilier in the northwest of the province. Capital of $20,000 has been raised at Calgary and efforts are being made to have the first shipments leave the mine this week. The products will go to the pulp mills at Fort Frances, Ontario, and British Columbia.

BRITISH GIFT OF 300 PLANES FOR MOST PART IN CANADA

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—Officials of the Air Board claim to have no knowledge regarding a shipment of German airplanes, reported to be coming to Canada, unless they are to be added to the collection of war trophies already under the supervision of Dr. Doughty, Dominion Archivist. The three hundred British planes for shipment to Canada, have, for the most part, already arrived here and many o fthem are in use at Camp Borden and elsewhere. Only the "tail-end" of the British gift of airplanes now remain to be shipped to Canada.

Last Minute Telegraph Briefs

Canadian Press Limited

London, Aug. 25—An immediate rupture of the Russo-Polish peace negotiations at Minsk will result if the Poles adhere to their demand for the withdrawal of the main Russian terms says a message received here today from George Tchicherin, Russian Soviet Foreign Minister, dated Monday at Moscow.

Rioting At Belfast

Belfast, Aug. 25.—Rioting was renewed here today. A crowd tried to rush St. Mathew's Catholic Church on New Townards Road and was fired upon by military.

MONTREAL TO OPPOSE PHONE RATE INCREASE

Montreal, Aug. 25.—Vigorous protest was made by the City Council yesterday against any increase in telephone rates being allowed the Bell Telephone Company, a resolution to that effect being passed, and the aldermen left it to the Mayor to name a committee to look after the city's interest.

Mayor Martin spoke strongly in favor of public ownership of telephone systems and other public utilities, and quoted the taking over of the Grand Railway Company by the Government in support of his argument.

CANADIAN CAR EMPLOYEES HAVE RETURNED TO WORK

Montreal, Aug. 25.—Most of the employees of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company, Limited, who have been idle since the company closed down its plant on account of a small strike, returned to work this morning. Those who did not do so are evidently thinking the situation over and it is anticipated they will be back shortly. In the meantime the plant is being run on a smaller scale.

SIX MILLION DOLLAR MATCH PLANT FOR QUEBEC

Montreal, Aug. 25.—Through the medium of a Canadian associate company the enterprise of a recent amalgamation of four British match-manufacturing firms will erect a large mill in this province and install a match-manufacturing plant at an investment of five million dollars.

SHOOT AT SPRACKLIN DURING LIQUOR RAID

Windsor, Aug. 25.—License inspectors Hallam, Churchill and Spracklin, of this city, while arresting four men and confiscating a large quantity of liquor near Sunnyside Hotel last night, were shot at from nearby marshes by supposed friends o fthe quartette, and forced to fight their way to safety. Luckily none of the officers were injured. The police are now searching for the men who fired the shots.

Wanted for Murder Arrested On Ship

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

RIO JANEIRO, Aug. 25—Eugene Leroy, wanted in Detroit in connection with the murder of a woman supposed to be his wife, was arrested on board the British freighter Dryden which arrived yesterday. Leroy was a member of the crew. Th ship will sail to Buenos Aires and then to New York where the man will be turned over to Detroit officers. The body of the murdered woman was found in a trunk about a month ago in a baggage room in New York City.

Belleville Man Killed at Lindsay

Robert Turner, of G. T. R. Bridge and Building Dept., Killed by Locomotive.

Robert Turner, of Belleville, working with a gang constructing a new platform at the G.T.R. yards at Lindsay, was killed Tuesday afternoon by a locomotive. He was standing very close to the track when an engine, in charge of Engineer Jeffries came along. The engineer sounded the whistle and a brakeman shouted a warning. Mr. Turner became confused and failed to get out of the way. He fell under the train, which dragged him a short distance. He was rushed to the hospital, but died a few minutes after admission.

Mr. Turner was connected with the Bridge and Building department of the G.T.R. He resided with his wife at 46 North Front street.

Sugar Ten Cents In Near Future

Ottawa Government Expert Has Issued a Prophecy

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—A Government expert on the sugar situation is quoted by th eCitizen as stationg that while sugar prices are tumbling in the United States, and it is selling in places at 17 cents a pound, retail, Canadian wholesalers, jobbers and others maintain their united front to the effect that it is not going down in Canada.

He prophesies that sugar will be around 10 cents a pound in the not distant future. He says, of course the refiners and wholesalers will try to keep up the price, but economic laws may work in such a way as to make it impossible.

The present situation in Canada is that sugar is selling on the average of 26 cents a pound retail. There is no excuse for this he maintains. Refiners in Canada, it is true, paid 18 or 19 cents a pound for their last lot of raw sugar, but since then the bottom has been knocked out of the boom in the United States and sugar is slumping.

COMMANDS WINNIPEG C.

Kingston, Aug. 25.—Major H. P. Lafferty will be in command of "C" Battery, R.C.H.A., which will leave on September 7 for Winnipeg, where it is to be stationed. The other officers will be Lieut. Penhale, Lieut. McParker and Lieut. Routier. The battery is not yet up to strength, 120 men, but it is expected that the full quota of men will leave for Winnipeg.

THIEVES RAID OFFICES

Sneak thieves were at work on Sunday in Kingston, and as a result the offices of two dentists were entered, that of Dr. Ruby Millan at 84 Princess Street, and Sparks & Sparks, 157 Wellington Street. Both offices were robbed of considerable gold. The biggest haul was made at the office of Dr. Millan.

CADETS AT R. M. C.

The Royal Military College at Kingston opened on Monday evening at six o'clock, and over fifty freshmen reported for the course. There will be 114 other cadets in attendance. Some new instructors will be on the staff including: Lt.-Col. K. M. Perry, general staff officer, M.D. 12, Winnipeg, who is succeeding Lt.-Col. A. D. Cameron, D.S.O., M.C., as professor of tactics.

WAS NOT INJURED.

Defective steering apparatus was the cause of the overturning of an automobile on the south shore of Consecon Lake. The car was driven by G. Bedell, Kingston, who was accompanied by his sister. The driver was pinned beneath the car, but when assistance arrived, it was found that fortunately he was uninjured. Miss Bedell was also unhurt, but the top of the car was badly damaged. The occupants of the car are son and daughter of Dr. T. Bedell, Kingston, and are holidaying with their uncle, W. Bedell, Hillier. Their many friends rejoice at their fortunate escape from injury.

PRODUCE PEAT OR SHOW WHY

An interim report concerning the experimental work at the Alfred peat bog for which work a sum of $150,000 as quoted by the Ontario Government three years ago has been received by Hon. Harry Mills, Minister of Mines. The report asks that an extension of one more year should be given before a final report is made.

Hon. Harry Mills, however, holds the view that the authorities there have had sufficient time t omake their experiments and that a final report should be forthcoming this year.

DID NOT ATTEND

The non-appearance of J. J. Morrison, secretary of the U.F.O. at a meeting of which he was billed to speak; assertions by the substitute, M. H. Staples, Millbrook, that the reason the farmers did not take the interest in public affairs that they might was because their intelligence had not been developed by reading and study; a vigorous retort by Lt.-Col. A. W. Gray, M.P.P., that the farmers of Leeds were as well read as any other class anywhere and the statement of A. E. Donovan, ex-M.P.P., that he was opposed to drifting to "classes and faddisms" and thought old party lines were the best—these were some of the high lights in the addresses delivered at the lawn social held under the auspices of the Gananoque East Methodist church.

NERVE STRAIN

The tendency of the present age is to live under a terrific nerve strain. Continued living under this strain is making us a nation of neurasthenics. In truth, neurasthenia is now called the American disease. Circumstances have compelled us to relinquish the calm, uneventful life of our forefathers and have thrown us into the turmoil of the 2th century. Intensive, excited living tenses the strains of our nerves to an appalling degree. Only an exceptional nervous system can resist such a strain very long.

In the end, a nervous breakdown or a long list of nervous disorders is our portion for breaking Nature's laws. The modern individual must have his nervous system looked after—must give it some attention. Your Chiropractor is a nerve specialist. By relieving the pressure upon your nerves, Nature renders your body more capable of meeting and resisting the daily nerve strain. Avoid nerve disorders. Use the "ounce of prevention." Consultation and Spinal Analysis without cost to you. Drs. Redick & Redick, Chiropractors, 283½ Front St., Belleville. Phone 900.

EARLY NEWSPAPERS.

Our First Daily Was Published in Montreal.

The delegates to the Imperial Press Conference are members of a profession many centuries old. The word newspaper is capable of so many interpretations that it would be difficult to name the publication entitled to be called the pioneer in that field. The Acta Diurna of ancient Rome were chronicles of events, and China had what might be called newspapers as long ago as the sixth and seventh centuries. In the more modern sense, the Oxford Gazette, of 1665, might be described as the first English newspaper. The name Gazette was a favorite one with early publications. It came from Italy, and is traced by some to the Greek word "gadza," a treasury, which in turn hailed from Persia. But the preferred derivation is from gazetta, a small Italian coin, which was the fee charged for hearing the reading of a manuscript "newspaper" at Venice during the war between the Venetians and the Turks. Uncharitably-minded people point out that the same word means a magpie or chatterer.

In Canada, as abroad, the name Gazette was the early favorite in the journalistic world, so much so that the first nine newspapers published in this country bore that name. They were: Halifax Gazette, 1752; Quebec Gazette, 1764; Nova Scotia Gazette, 1766; Gazette Litteraire (Montreal), 1778; St. John Gazette, 1783; Royal Gazette and New Brunswick Advertiser, 1784; Montreal Gazette, 1785; Royal Gazette (Charlottetown), 1791; Upper Canada Gazette (Newark), 1793.

The first daily newspaper in Canada was the Montreal Advertiser, 1833. There is record of a Royal Standard published daily at Toronto in 1836, and the Kingston Whig, still flourishing, was a daily in 1849, in which year a Daily Telegraph had a short and unexciting career in Toronto.

It is not generally known that the Christian Guardian is the oldest publication in Toronto, dating from 1828.

Irish Stormy Petrel.

Broken in health because of his devotion to the Irish Nationalist cause, Laurence Ginnell is at present in Montreal, where he intends to stay for some time in an effort to regain some of his former strength. At present the Montreal branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom are endeavoring to get him to give them an address, but there does not seem to be much chance of that for some time to come, as he has crossed the ocean solely because his doctor insisted that he have a change.

Being a nervous wreck, and suffering from a complication of other diseases, the stormy petrel of the British House has been forbidden by his medical advisers to give out interviews.

"I cannot talk at length," said Mr. Ginnell, "my nervous trouble is very bad and I am suffering from other complications, too. Yes, I intend staying in Montreal for a while. I am not sure yet whether I have benefited by the voyage or not."

Mr. Ginnell, who is the Nationalist ex-M.P. for West Meath, is said to hold the record for having asked more questions in the British House of Commons than any other member in the same term of service. After his many terms of imprisonment for contempt of court, inciting to cattle raiding, seditious utterances, etc., Mr. Ginnell is now a very sick man. His last sentence to prison was in 1918, and with the strain of the past five years of war his health is completely broken.

Our Imports.

During the twelve months concluding with the end of June imports into Canada showed a remarkable increase as compared with imports in the twelve months previous. The increase was marked in both dutiable and free goods. There is evidence also of recovery in Canadian exports following on the fall due to the cessation of munition shipments. Imports $210,204,323 compared with $862,503,416 in 1919. Total exports of merchandise was $1,276,311,542 as against $1,259,568,977 in 1919.

During the past twelve months imports from the United Kingdom have more than doubled. For the year ending July, 1919, they were $75,091,775, in comparison with $177,494,102 in the last twelve months. Imports from Australia, New Zealand and South Africa have decreased. From the Argentine they have increased in the twelve months from $1,043,988 to $4,012,971; from United States from $696,370,469 to $861,103,465. Imports from the British West Indies increased from $8,339,902 to $13,564,807.

Exports of Canadian produce to the United Kingdom decreased during the twelve months from $544,581,834 to $426,252,096; to the United States, they increased from $439,983,496 to $488,974,311. The increase in exports to Belgium and Greece, largely no doubt due to credits extended, was most marked. Exports to Belgium increased from $1,268,456 to $35,797,469; to Greece from $1,663,602 to $88,520,335.

Butterfly Pest.

We are accustomed to admire the butterfly. It is even regarded as an emblem of the soul. For out of a seeming and temporary death it emerges winged and beautiful.

But every butterfly is to start with a caterpillar, and the caterpillars of some species do a great deal of damage to plants. They are like us. Before we can expect to acquire wings, we are bound to do a lot of mischief.

Finally she rapped sharply on the counter.

"Here, young lady," she called, "who waits on the nuts?"

PERSIAN LAMB IN WEST.

New Product Said to Be Equal to the Very Best.

Persian lamb fur of a quality equal to the best that can be imported from Asia is now an Alberta product on an increasing scale, and ultimately it will be a product on a very large scale, as the Karakule sheep from which the pelts are taken thrive in the Canadian province. Originally the stock came from a country of extreme temperatures and of a dry climate, and while it is never extremely hot in Alberta, it is sometimes extremely cold, but the air is dry and invigorating, and the Karakule breed developed out there is even an improvement over the original.

Every one has heard of Persian lamb and every woman admires and perhaps covets this handsome fur, but as a matter of prosaic fact it is not Persian lamb at all, but Bokhara lamb, the fur in question being the pelts of Karakule lambs ten days old or less, and not those of Persian lambs. The Persian sheep are a seal brown, and while their fur is fairly valuable, it does not compare with that of the Karakules, being more of the Astrakan type, rather looser in the curl and woollier. The appellation "Persian lamb" comes from the fact that all the trading for the Karakule pelts is doing in market in Persia, which, being the centre of the industry, naturally gives its name to the widely, known article of commerce.

The object of introducing the blood of the domestic Cotswolds, Leicesters, and so on, and of the Persians is to produce a bigger framed animal with a close, high-class fur and wool, and the experiments have been so successful on the Patrick ranch, where there are 1,200 Karakules and grades that are being developed up to the Karakule type, that the industry may fairly be said to be established. In any event Dr. Patrick marketed the first of his Albert Persian lambe last year and the pelts brought from $18 to $32. This year the quantity is higher and the market prices are also higher, ranging up to $50 for a lamb pelt.

When the lamb is killed for its pelt the ewe breeds twice in the same season, which means a fur product from the lambs of $40 to $100 a year. Besides the pelts there is the wool of the older animals, and for this a market has been found in New York City, where it is used in the manufacture of Persian rugs. The price in the Alberta market is about 50 per cent. higher than that of the domestic animal. The clip from a Karakule ranges from 8½ to 15 pounds, although a cut of twenty-five pounds from one animal is recorded.

Dr. Patrick has five families of pure-bred Karakules in his herd and is independent of importations.

If the Karakules can be supplied to Alberta farmers at prices within their means the industry would flourish. The question is whether they will spend the sum necessary to start a small herd. Those that do will certainly have Persian lamb of their own raising and also wool, meat, hide and tallow for the market.—Monreal Star.

A Descendant of David.

Recent comment upon the success in Canadian public life of three young men who entered Parliament in their early thirties leads interest to the report that another of the "younger statesmen" is in line for the British Premiership. While Premier Meighen of Canada, Premier Martin of Saskatchewan, and Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Ottawa Opposition, were all considered young men when they were introduced to the House, Sir Philip Sassoon, M.P., Lloyd George's chief secretary, was eight years their junior in that respect—elected at 24 and to-day spoken of as an embryonic Premier.

He is a Hebrew. Canada has had no Premiers of that race; Mr. Jacobs, of Montreal, is the one Hebrew in the Ottawa House. But England has had Disraeli, and may yet have Sassoon, whose experience has embraced a secretaryship to Sir Douglas Haig, and who has shown diplomatic ability of the highest order. He is immensely rich.

In the seventeenth century the Sassoons flourished at Bagdad, and they trace their descent to Shephatiah, the fifth son of David. Their banking house is one of the most influential in the Orient, and no name is better known throughout Asia and Africa. If a descendant of Israel's greatest king achieves the Premiership of Great Britain, Biblical scholars will doubtless subject prophecy to a new examination in the light of that fact. In the meantime, the rise of this young man will be watched with the greatest of interest, not only because of his youth, but because of his nationality and family history.

"Fathers" of Canadian Commons.

As the first Parliament of the Dominion met in 1867, there was no "Father of the House" until the time when there was but one member remaining of those elected to the first Parliament. That "last rose of summer, left blooming alone," was the Hon. John Costigan. Here is a list of "fathers":

1. Hon. John Costigan, M.P. for Victoria, N.B., 1867-1907; senator 1907-1916.
2. Hon. John G. Haggart, 1907-1919 (M.P. for Lanark South, 1872-1913.)
3. Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, 1913-1919 (M.P. for Quebec East, 1877-1919), only prime minister to gain the honor.
4. Hon. John Dowsley Reid, 1919- (M.P. for Grenville, since 1891).

Next to Dr. Reid in length of service without a break are: Sir Sam Hughes, elected in February, 1892, and W. F. Maclean, elected in May, 1892.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"THE LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME"

Sidney Toler, who dramatized "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" for O. E. Wee, Inc., was born in Virginia and his familiarity of the people of the Southland stood him in good stead when he dramatized the play from novel by John Fox, Jr., "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" recently had its first production in one of the large Eastern cities and the instant success of the performance was heralded in many newspapers. This original production intact with the same metropolitan cast of players including G. Simpson, Dorothy Dunn, Fay Brennan, James Kennedy, Ralph MacDonald and a host of others will come to Griffin's next Friday night, for an engagement of one night only. Humor and romance of heroic self-sacrifice, which however reverts to the benefit of loyal and lovable Chad, when at the conclusion of the war, he returns to the valley of Kingdom Come in Kentucky and is greeted by the ever faithful Melissy. The production to be presented in Belleville this Friday night is the stage version not the moving picture.

GISH COMEDY COMING

Can you imagine peppy Dorothy Gish suppressed for life in a sleepy Southern town that closes up shop every evening at nine o'clock? In "Mary Ellen Comes to Town," which will be presented at Griffin's to-morrow and Saturday, matinee and night, the vivacious comedienne starts out as chauffeur at the local soda fountain and plays checkers with the "hicks" who congregate there. But of course, that is too slow for Dorothy, and when a pretty actress lady gets stalled near town in the one single train that runs daily, Dorothy gets the inspiration to go to New York and make a hit in dramatics. She doesn't score the expected sensation, but she does encounter some exciting adventures and wins her self a rich husband, who by the way is a native of the drowsy town from which she herself springs. Ralph Graves is the leading man in the picture and Rhea Haines and Raymond Cannon are also in the cast. An interesting Outing Chester Travelogue, a funy 2-reel Universal comedy, British Canadian News Pictorial and other varied plays of interest are also announced for exhibition on the same program.

JACK DEMPSEY AND LARRY SEMON AT GRIFFIN'S

Wholesome fun of the variety at which Louis Benison is without a peer is mixed up in the thrilling scenes of the famous cowboy star's Goldwyn picture, "Speedy Meade," which is being screened at Griffin's to-night for the last time. More pronounced than ever are the remarkable fresh style and the engaging personality of the delightful screen star, who thousands have come to look upon as the kingpin delineator of Western cowboy roles. "Speedy Meade" is replete with the situations that made Louis Bennison a name to conjure with. In face the role of his career has given the breezy westerner greater opportunities than that of Speedy Meade, a government sleuth, assigned to the herculan task of rounding up a band of cattle thieves on the border. And its fight from start to finish for the heroic son of the plains—a fight to overwhelm the most desperate band of plunderers that ever roamed the range and a fight to save his sweetheart, Mary Dillman (Kathleen MacDonald), from their grasp. Love and right triumph but not until after the interprid sleuth and the beautiful heroine are combatted to the last ditch by the murderous outlaws chief among whom is Henry Dillman, father of the hero's sweetheart. An interesting Outing Chester Travelogue, a very funny 2-reel Larry Smon comedy, "The Grocery Clerk," and the world's heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey in a thrilling drama of adventure and daring called "Daredevil Jack."

"The Raney-Drury Government is not an independant government but a Grit-first combination of party bigots headed by Hon. W.E. Raney and Hon. E.C. Drury, pro-Laurier fanatics who followed my leader through all the atrocities of the pro-corporation pro-clerical iniquities of Laurierism.

TROTTING SENSATION.

The tongues of the followers of the harness turf have been busily wagging about the performance of the little bay gelding, Prince Loree, which paced a work-out mile over the North Randall track in 2.00¼, the fastest mile negotiated by a harness horse this season. A sensational mile by any horse, this performance is all the more wonderful when it is considered that it was made by a horse which has campaigned the last several months, or rather seasons, as a successful trotter; in fact, has won some of the classics of the harness turf, including the Transylvania and the Empire State, and took a record of 2.03¼ in winning the first named event, time which has never been beaten in that classic.

Everybody knows the history of Prince Loree; how he was thrown in as an extra measure in the celebrated Lee Axworthy-Sir Thomas Lipton trade between Walter Cox and the Pastime Stable syndicate; how the syndicate later disposed of the little gelding to Al Pennock for $60, and the latter sold him to the present owner, Captain David Shaw, for $125. Then he was used in the matinee races at North Randall and in 1917 worked in 2.07¾ at a trot. The following season he won the Tavern Stakes at the opening meeting and later was returned the winner of the Empire State and the Hoster, $10,000 stakes at Syracuse and Columbus, respectively, and was beaten by only a narrow margin in the sensational race for the Transylvania, won by Binland.

Last season Prince Loree was not at his best early in the season. In a race at Columbus in August he shifted over to a pace at the start of the first heat and stuck to that gate for the entire mile. Later he improved and wone, and his trainer decided to shift the little gelding to the pacing gait, at which method of locomotion he would be eligible to start as a "green" horse. The result is the recent mile in 2.00¼. He will not be started for the money this season, but reserved for the 1921 Grand Circuit Stakes. However, he will later be started for a record against time to secure the double-gaited championship, now held by Harvester, 2.04¼ pacing and 2.06¼ trotting. With his trotting record of 2.03¼ it ought to be easy fo rthe little gelding.

INDOOR BASEBALL

The Indoor Baseball Leaue being organized by the Argyle Light Infantry is progressing favorably. There are already four teams in the league, namely, Argyle Light Infantry, Y.M.C.A., Grand Trunk Shops and G.T.R. Office. Four more teams are desired if possible and the meeting Thursday night at the Armouries any team wishing to enter should have a representative there. The Armouries is being fixed up with very good lights this year. A good season of Indoor Baseball is expected. At the meeting Thursday night the schedule will be drawn up, and any team ont erpresented will not have another chance to enter.

REDNERSVILLE.

Our annual picnic was held on July 22nd in the grove at Mrs. A. E. Phillips' home with an unusually large attendance.

Mrs. Phillips received her guests in her usual cordial manner and all went down to the pretty little grove where tables and seats were arranged, and a short business meeting was held, with Mrs. Orvis presiding.

A discussion on Medical School Inspection was held and the district director, Mrs. Alex. Anderson, gave an outline of the address given on this subject at the annual convention in Picton.

Mrs. Clara Anderson read a paper entitled "The Proof of the Tarts is in the Passing." Rest, recreation and enjoyment add to the fullness of life and we must not let these things pass us unnoticed. Miss Evelyn Dempsey, B.A., gave some natty little readings and several selections on the gramophone filled the program.

Lunch followed and a vote of thanks tendered Mr. and Mrs. Phillips for the delicious treat of ice cream and fresh berries, and all went home feeling that they had spent a delightful day.

Among visitors were: Mrs. Hough, and children of Toronto, who are here for the summer; Mrs. Geo. Roblin, Toronto; Mrs. Buck of Rochester; Miss Merriman and Miss Pitcher, Toronto, and Mrs. Earle Anderson and Miss Morden, Mountain View.

SHIPWRECKED SAILORS SUBSIST ON SEAWEED

New York, Aug. 25.—Picked up unconscious in an open dory after living for twelve days on seaweed, two fishermen were brought into port by the American steamer Mazama, from London. The fishermen, Thomas Constant and Raphael Goger, said they had become beached in a fog from their vessel, the Glycine, of St. Servan, France.

The Mazama brought in four members of her engine room crew in irons, charged with mutiny, alleged to have assaulted the assistant engineer. They were taken off by a police boat.

AFTER SHAVING

Heal the Skin and Prevent Infection with "ABSORBINE JR."

The most healing, most soothing, most effective skin lotion you can use after shaving is one you can make up at home by adding one ounce of "ABSORBINE JR." to a quart of water or witch hazel.

To rub this lotion over the face after shaving is a luxury indeed. It takes away all soreness—prevents chapping and irritation—heals the skin—and prevents infection.

A solution of "ABSORBINE JR." in water makes an excellent mouth wash; it thoroughly cleans the mouth, destroys germs, and prevents decay; fine for the teeth and gums.

$1.25 a bottle—at most druggists or sent postpaid by W. F. Young, Inc., Lyman Building, Montreal.

WESTERN INDUSTRIES.

Industrial development in Western Canada is proceeding at a rate little appreciated by people in other parts of the Dominion. The provincial governments in the Prairie Provinces are realizing as never before the potentialities of their natural resources. Today there are more than 700 members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association located west of the Great Lakes, whereas twenty years ago there was not one.

The July issue of Industrial Canada points out that certain lines of industry are gradually transferring a considerable part, and in many cases the chief part, of their activities to Western Canada.

The Government of the Province of Alberta, in its official publication the Public Service Monthly, is now devoting an entire section to industrial news of that province. In the last issue it was stated that there were now 208 factories in actual operation in the province, giving employment to 3,171 people.

PROTECT CANADIAN DOLLAR BUY IN CANADA.

During August of last year the premium on New York funds when purchased with Canadian currency was around four per cent., and during the latter part of the month went somewhat below that amount. This year, despite increased agricultural production and the prospect of a considerably larger exportable surplus of grain from the current crop, both of which factors might reasonably be expected to help to improve exchange, the premium has been ranging from 12 to 13 per cent. It is time that the Canadian people realized that the exchange situation, apart from seasonal fluctuations, is becoming decidedly less favorable to this country. The explanation is found largely in an analysis of Canadian trade. The latest report issued by the Department of Customs shows that for the months of April, May, and June, 1919, exports of Canadian products exceeded imports into this country for consumption by $43,481,284. For the corresponding period this year imports for consumption have exceeded exports of domestic products by $109,066,879.

There may be some temporary improvement in exchange as a result of the sale of Canadian grain abroad, but no permanent betterment can be looked for until imports are drastically curtailed and exports increased to the largest possible amount. Otherwise, the discount on Canadian money is certain to attain a considerably higher level than at present and the premium on New York funds may even make new records.

In view of the trade situation, which is highly unsatisfactory from a national point of view, it cannot be emphasized too strongly that Canadians ought:—

1. To buy Canadian-made products in preference to goods of non-Canadian origin, patronize Canadian railways, Canadian insurance companies, Canadian shipping, and, generally, to keep Canadian money in Canada.
2. To limit imports to absolutely necessary commodities.
3. To develop Canadian natural resources so as to make this country economically self-sufficient to the greatest possible extent.
4. To stimulate investment of Canadian and imported capital in industries which will help to relieve Canada of the necessity of importing on so large a scale as at present and to provide a surplus of Canadian products for export; and
5. To encourage the final processes of manufacture in this country so as to save payment to foreign labor and foreign capital for manufacturing goods which could advantageously be made in Canada from Canadian raw materials by Canadian workers.

CRISP COMMENT

The trenches over there had nothing on the trenches over here—Bridge street east for example.

The sweetest news which has come over the wires in many days is the report that the price of sugar is falling. The sugar manipulators, however, took good care that the price of sugar should remain among the clouds when it was most needed in the berry preserving season.

At Ottawa the city and country police are uniting in a campaign against the glare headlight, and demands are made in other parts of Canada for its abolition. The Winnipeg Free Press urges the police commissioners to prohibit such lights there, as they are not only a nuisance but a danger on city streets.

If a man shows an exuberance of the joy of good fellowship he is accused of looking upon the beer when it is brown; if he hides his happiness behind a frown he is a grouch. Of the two labels we prefer a mug of good old nut-brown October ale. But alas, the brown has turned to black and the black has turned to two per cent., so what would you, my friend?

Our David Harum.
Calgary Albertan.

In the negotiations between the provincial and Dominion governments, Sir James Lougheed goes into the conference with the ultimatum that the Dominion has nothing to give but the province should have certain advances to make. In a different age and under different circumstances Sir James Lougheed would have made a very excellent horse trader.

General Dyer's Case.
London Express.

General Dyer, a gallant and zealous officer, who believed that he was doing his duty, remains the victim of circumstances which he failed adequately to control. He did a hateful duty in what he believed to be the right way. The judgment on him is that he overdid it, and was betrayed into allowing cruel slaughter. That judgment stands.

Gabriel's Klaxon Will Stop 'Em.
Worcester Telegram.

When the millenium is firmly established and running in good order, drivers of motor cars who, when held by the traffic officer, persistently and incessantly honk the horns as though by such action the traffic could be made to move faster, will be placed in special ward with the truck drivers who rumble through the city with screeching siren. Those who suffer the threat of shattered eardrums fear such novelty will come only when earth's last picture is painted.

THE POET'S CORNER

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER.

In courtly days of old,
When knights and maidens fair
Swept over "fields of gold,"
All gay and debonair.

And through the welkin's sound,
The clarion's silver tone,
As steed and palfrey bound
Swift o'er the tented zone.

While martial music rolled,
O'er hill and verdant vale,
And minstrels proudly told
The troubadour's sweet tale.

Brave knights in armor dressed,
Proud lords in bright array,
Sweet dames their steeds caressed,
In silk and satin gay.

From tent and turret's height
Floated in azure air,
Bright in the morning's light,
Pennon and banner fair.

Brave trials of skill and play
Beguiled each blithesome hour,
As passed each happy day,
"When Knighthood was in flower."

Past are those courtly days,
Those quaint old times of yore,
No more are warlike lays
Sung by proud troubadour.

But men are still as brave,
And maidens quite as gay,
As in the days of old,
When minstrels thrilled their lay.

A LAUGH OR TWO

Wiser to Go Elsewhere.

"When you get your groceries today," said the butcher to his wife, "don't go to that little grocer next to my shop."

"Why not?" she demanded.

"Not yet. But I've seen more than one alleged race horse do the trick."

She was weeping bitter tears into her afternoon tea.

"Oh, my dear!" she said to her only friend, "I don't know what I shall do. Ted and I have only been married six months, yet he spends every evening at the club."

"Well, don't worry, darling," said the other. "Percy's just the same. But I shall never scold him again for spending so much time at his club."

"Why not?"

"Well, last night a burglar got into the house, and my husband knocked him senseless with a poker. I've heard several men speak of him as a poker expert. He has evidently been practicing at the club for just such an emergency.

Won't Deal With Lenin.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 24. — Russian deposits lying in Copenhagen banks must be returned to the Bolshevists, is the decision of all the banking corporations here, who decree that in future there must be no deal with anyone connected with Lenin's Government.

This decision was prompted by revelations regarding the purposes for which Litvinoff's propagandists are operating with the millions of smuggled Russian gold throughout Denmark.

Litvinoff already has withdrawn some gold which he transferred in storage to his summer residence outside of Copenhagen.

Germans Attack Train.

LONDON, Aug. 24. — A mob of three thousand Germans attacked a Franco-British troop and supply train at Pila, robbing the troops of watches and money, and taking the food and supplies, according to a statement from the Polish legation here Saturday night. The train, the legation said, was taking the troops to Memel.

Adana Garrison Relieved.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The French garrison at Adana, Asia Minor, which had been besieged for two months, made a sally Friday, and, according to the Foreign Office, has now virtually been relieved.

The Foreign office says that the garrison badly defeated the besiegers and that the situation no longer is critical.

Holding Up Munitions.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 24. — The Antwerp dock workers have refused to continue loading munitions aboard the United States vessel Warszawa, to be transported to Poland, according to the Nacion Belge. The newspaper adds that thirty carloads of munitions sent by the United States army on the Rhine have been consigned to railway sidings.

Men and Women Who Have Gone Over Niagara Falls.

When Charles G. Stephens, England's daring young man of 56, went to his death over Niagara Falls in a barrel he was merely following the trail that was blazed by a woman, comments the New York Evening Post. Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor, 43, entered an oaken barrel weighed down by a blacksmith's anvil and tumbled over what is never called anything but "the fearful brink." She emerged somewhat hysterical but quite alive, and being a school teacher said she was not sorry she had done it "if it would help her financially."

People will tell you that numbers of mad adventurers have gone over the falls in a barrel, but only two are on record: Mrs. Taylor, the pioneer, in 1901, and Bobby Leach, who made the dive in a steel cask in 1911. Plenty have plunged without a barrel, willingly or unwillingly, and uncounted breath-taking feats have been performed at the Whirlpool Rapids, where the only barrel fatality (also a woman, Maud Willard) occurred. But Mr. Stephens will by no means be guilty of a commonplace in braving the Horseshoe Falls itself. It is a drop of 168 feet, and the time and place of exit cannot be arranged beforehand.

Bobby Leach is the one human being who ever saw the falls, so to speak, from the inside. Mrs. Taylor dropped from the higher to the lower level of the river outside the main flow of wild waters, but the weight of Leach's barrel caused him to pierce the spill and drop through the heart of the cataract, at which point he pulled the plug out of the airhole in order to enjoy the unique glory of the view. He had telephoned his wife that he was coming home by way of the Horseshoe.

Efforts were made to arrest him before he could start on the voyage, but once launched he quicked reached a location to which the police did not care to follow him.

The fashion of doing Niagara stunts began in 1829, when Sam Patch leaped from a tower ninety feet high on Goat Island to safety in the waters of the lower Niagara. The appalling tightrope performances of M. Blondin and the Signorina Spelterina followed, and in 1861 Capt. Joel Robinson in his heavily mortgaged old tub, "The Maid of the Mist," dashed through the rapids in order to escape paying levy. After Carlisle D. Graham, the Philadelphia cooper, began knocking about among the giant waves and wicked currents of the whirlpool in a barrel in 1886, he was followed by so many barrel voyagers, some even journeying in couples, that the feat lost its novelty.

To cap the climax a venturesome cow in 1910, having been brought up beside the falls and hence knowing no better, got into the extraordinary habit of wading out near the whirlpool's edge and standing there chewing her cud, greatly vexing sightseers who had come to be awed.

Eskimo Develop Mentally.

Although isolated for thousands of years, anthropologists assert the Eskimo has developed mentally and physically to such an extraordinary degree that he can teach every race many things. He developed theories long ago that modern men are beginning to think about only now. He has outstripped other races in that he makes himself the playmate and the educator of his own children. An orphan among the Eskimos soon finds a home and is given the best of care and education.

The Eskimo regards honesty as paramount. He will never misrepresent facts, and although he may want to dispose of an article badly he will rather depreciate it than run the risk of over-praising. A man who lies or deceives another is severely punished.

An Eskimo will not permit a fellowman to need for food or clothing, once he has enough for himself and his family. War, to the parka-hooded men of the north, is unknown. They decide differences by staging dance-duels and out-singing each other, and old men act as judges to decide winners. In this way honor is satisfied. Brutality is unknown. In combating nature, fighting the walrus, the whale and the bear with primitive weapons, the Eskimo displays unusual coolness and plans his way out of danger with extreme self-possession.

Water We Carry.

The body of an average man, weighting 154 pounds, contains forty-six quarts of water. The bones are nearly one-fourth water, the fat a little less, the nerves more than one-half water, and the skin nearly three-quarters water. The brain, muscles, lungs and heart are three-fourths water, while the blood is more than four-fifths water.

MOTOR NEWS.

The average automobile tire costs $39.48.

New Zealand is having a "good roads" campaign.

Motor tractors for removing snow have been perfected.

There are 26 states in the United States which have a registration of more than 10,000 motor trucks each.

In 1919 there were 16,412 motor drivers' licenses issued in Norway. Of these, 403 were to women.

The average life of motor trucks on farms is estimated between 6½ and 7 years.

With headquarters at Sioux Falls, S.D., a motor freight company covers 80 towns in Minnesota, Iowa and South Dakota.

On account of marked increase in the cost of everything, motoring in Europe today appears to be a sport for kings only.

City assessors in Washburn, Wis., found more automobiles than dogs in that town. Motor vehicles total 140 against 122 dogs.

In England a commercial motor vehicle fitted up with temporary seats for Sunday excursions is known as a "chars-a-bancs."

In the Pacific Coast States there were 239,000 motor vehicles and 3,000 tractors five years ago, whereas today there are 780,000 motor vehicles and 250,000 tractors.

Nelson and The Kootenay

(1) Nelson, B.C., beautifully situated beside mountains and lakes.
(2) The S.S. Kuskanook, one of the C. P. R. boats plying the Arrow Lakes in the Kootenay District.

The name Kootenay has long been familiar to the mining and lumbering worlds. Kootenay has extensive, varied and rich mineral deposits and every valley and mountain side is a store-house of valuable timber. The city of Nelson, on the Kootenay Lake, is the distributing centre for the district, from which the wholesale trade of the interior is carried on. Nelson owns the public utilities, electric light, street railway, water works and gas works. Special attention is given to the forestry department in guarding the timber resources of the district. With an unlimited supply of wood in the mountains, there is a great future in the pulp industry. Within a radius of twenty-five miles, there are twenty-five saw mills in operation. The Board of Trade of Nelson is now in communication with New York capitalists regarding the establishment of a pulp mill. Tributary to the proposed mill site are 21,300 square miles of territory from which wood supplies can be procured. The slopes, forested with timber, are easily workable. The population of the region embracing about forty thousand people, is fairly well spread over the entire area. There are about 15,000 inhabitants in ten towns and the balance are scattered on homesteads, ranches, lumber and mining camps through the district. Many, in order to obtain working capital, accept contracts for delivery of logs, trees, shingles, cedar poles and other products from their lands and there are a number of forest product operators around the Lake. It is computed that nearly 14 million cords of pulpwood could be secured, enough to last one hundred and fifty years, figuring three hundred cords per day.

The maximum distance of raw material from Nelson is sixty-five miles with an average of thirty-five miles. There are excellent railroad connections to market, and there is abundant cheap electric power. The most important power development in the interior of British Columbia is that of the West Kootenay Power and Light at Bonnington Falls. Power and light are furnished to Trail, Rossland, Grand Forks, Phoenix, Greenwood, Boundary Falls, the smelters and mines forming much the largest consumers.

There are openings for the manufacture of wooden ware. A sash and door factory of Nelson are branching out this year into the manufacture of wash-board, screen doors, brooms and various wooden articles and that a large business of this kind can be developed is assured.

The Kootenay can make other appeals to the world. Fortunes are still to be made by extracting her precious metals from the earth and hewing the trees from her hillsides but she has another treasure to offer in the fertile valleys that girdle every lake and border every stream—these are rich fruit lands. There are exceptional advantages in diversified farming where are combined dairying and the production of hay, grain, poultry, hogs, sheep and a variety of small fruits and vegetables. In the district are many retired military and naval officers who are able to find congenial occupation and for leisure hours there are no waters in Canada that offer greater attractions to the sportsmen or lover of the beautiful in Nature, than the Kootenay Lakes and rivers. Bee-keeping is a new industry that is making progress.—C. C. [illegible]

NEW RECORDS LOOKED FOR AT CANADIAN NATIONAL

"Work and Prosper" is the motto adopted for the 1920 Canadian National Exhibition, and the entire machinery of the organization has been turned to the task of making the forty-second annual event a striking exemplification of the appropriateness of the slogan. Unwilling to rest on the standard of previous expositions the directors and management have utilized every resource of this mighty Canadian institution in the effort to make the position of the enterprise more noteworthy. Early indications point to new records in every department, perhaps also in the matter of attendance, which reached the magnificent total of 1,201,000 last year, a figure never attained even by the monster World's Fairs at Paris, London, Chicago, San Francisco, etc., in the same number of consecutive days. To be one of the crowd that establishes an even greater record this year will in itself be a thing to boast about, but even more important still will be the fact that all who come will see a field of marvels which will make the Big Fair undoubtedly the most remarkable and interesting array of activity and achievement ever presented.

U. S. REVENUE CUTTER TO PATROL ST. LAWRENCE

Brockville, Aug. 21.—The services of a United States cutter will shortly be employed to patrol the St. Lawrence River in this district with the object of catching whiskey smugglers. In the immediate vicinity the illicit traffic is thought to have been plied extensively. The revenue cutter will make its headquarters in Ogdensburg.

Evangeline Immortalized in Bronze

(1) At the unveiling of the statue of Evangeline by Lady Burnham, when the Imperial Press Conference party visited Grand Pre, N.S.
(2) Some members of the party assembled around Evangeline's well.

Five continents were represented at the unveiling of the statue of Evangeline, Grand Pre, Nova Scotia. Nearly all those present belonged to the Imperial Press Conference party, and the unveiling ceremony was performed by Lady Burnham, who said:

"Evangeline is the beautiful conception of an American poet whose verses we learnt to read on both sides of the Atlantic when we were children. History has shed another light on the Acadian story. We see today that British policy was not as black as it was painted. Whatever may be the truth of this story, as a woman, and an English woman, I shall always regard it as one of the most painful episodes in our annals. Thank God those cruel old days lie behind us forever, and from the fate of Evangeline has sprung a great wave of sympathy which has been carried on the healing hand of time. It is a good omen that the beautiful sun, God's healing hand, should be resting upon us all today, who are here to do honor to that sweet woman. Under those rays in your wonderful land so full of beauty and promise the old hatred is dead. I have now the great honor and privilege of unveiling the statue of Evangeline."

The statue, which is of bronze, is the work of Henri Hebert from a model by his father the late Philippe Hebert, a descendant of the Acadians of whom Evangeline was one. It is a magnificent work of art, and was presented to the Park at Grand Pre by the Dominion Atlantic Railway, which is now part of the C. P. R.

FITS OF FAINTING.

Why Certain People Are Subject to Them.

Fainting is a sudden weakness or loss of consciousness owing to a transitory failure in the circulation of the blood and the consequent anaemia of the brain. In an attack of fainting the person becomes dizzy and sometimes nauseated, his sight fails, his face is pale and often covered with a cold perspiration, his pulse is rapid and very feeble, and finally the sufferer falls and loses consciousness. In a few minutes consciousness gradually returns, and, after a brief moment of confusion, full consciousness and strength return and recovery is complete. Because a young woman does not fall heavily, but chooses a "soft spot" and sinks gently into it is no reason for believing that she is shamming—feigning instead of fainting — for there are always premonitory symptoms that a person who has once fainted recognizes as a warning.

When fainting occurs in young adults it is not necessarily cause for alarm, physicians say, unless the person is known to have disease of the heart or the attacks recur with frequency.

Since the faint is owing to lack of blood in the brain, the first thing to do is to place the sufferer at full length with his head lower than his body if possible, and then to loosen the clothing about his waist and neck in order to allow for free circulation. Sprinkling his face with cold water and bathing the temples freely with eau de cologne will often help. If the patient is able to swallow, give him half a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in half a glass of water, or a cupful of hot black coffee. The windows should be opened and air brought to the patient by fanning. Smelling salts should be used very cautiously, as too strong a whiff would be far from beneficial.

If those measures do not prevail in a short time, summon a physician, for the condition may prove to be much more serious than a faint.

Only Ships Will Suffer.

Is the time approaching when sea battles will be fought between ships manoeuvred by wireless from a station ashore?

Such a development has been predicted by scientists, and the remarkable successes achieved recently by British naval investigators induce a belief that it may be attained one day.

By using Hertzian waves, the wireless wizards have succeeded in controlling torpedo craft at a distance of some miles. During the experiment a destroyer was manoeuvred at will by wireless.

Nobody aboard the vessel touched her wheel. She was steered wholly by wireless—and steered easily. The demonstration was a striking success.

Other remarkable feats have been performed with wireless, such as burning a ship's searchlights. In fact, only those naval scientists who are experimenting with this medium know just what they can do with it, and they are only at the beginning of things.

Although the application of wireless to the control of vessels and torpedoes is not a new idea, the latest results obtained in our navy are considerably in advance of any that have gone before.

In 1917 the Germans made an ineffectual attempt to attack our ships off the Belgian coast with electricity-directed torpedo boats. These craft were run by means of a wire on the same principle as the Brennan torpedo, and had an airplane equipped with wireless "spotting" for them.

As weapons of attack they were useless, being far less effective than those two other ugly "war babies," the magnetic torpedo and the magnetic mine.

The trials carried out in the United States by Mr. John Hays Hammond with wireless-steered boats are well known, for they were conspicuously successful. As long ago as 1908 the German Admiralty saw tests made at Kiel with a wireless-controlled boat, and apparently concluded that the invention was not practicable. Three years later this German system was again tried on the Danube, after which nothing more was heard of it.

But the feats recently accomplished in controlling vessels by wireless in our navy are in a different category altogether from those just mentioned, for they show practical achievements that will in the end have most important results, whereas the others merely indicated possibilities.—Tit-Bits.

Henry on Holiday.

Henry had come home after being at college three months. And he was a very changed young man from the village youngster that had been sent away. He had that know-everything air, a patronizing manner toward his whole family, and a bit of black fringe on his upper lip which he was wont to caress affectionately and call a "moustache." Now that black fringe worried grandmother more than anything else. She complained to grandfather as she lovingly eyed his flowing white beard. "Just to think that your beautiful beard originated from such an insignificant moustache as Henry has now," she deplored. Back came a retort from grandfather, who was also being much patronized by his grandson. "Worse still," he groaned, "my brain was once just as meager as his now is."

Legations In Washington.

There are now forty-four accredited embassies and legations in Washington, and almost half as many more that are trying to win recognition, says the Youth's Companion. Finland, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Armenia and the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes have recently established independent diplomatic relations with the United States. Russia and Montenegro are represented by rival missions, and Albania, Lithuania, Korea and Ukrainia desire to be recognized.

Where are Your Victory Bonds?

Could you still wear the "subscriber's button" of which you were once so justly proud? The possession of Victory Bonds to-day is as great an evidence of patriotism as it was when the campaigns were in full swing. And as the supply of these bonds has been definitely curtailed, the possession of them is even stronger evidence of sound business judgment than it was before.

We are in the midst of what is known as a "buyer's market" and 1934 maturity Victory Bonds can be bought at 96 and interest, which yields nearly 6%.

At this price, Victory Bonds are unquestionably the most attractive investment obtainable.

If you have parted with your Victory Bonds, today is an opportune time to re-purchase—and you should re-purchase.

The Telephone Army!

Helping them meet the H. C. L.

THE BELL TELEPHONE ARMY is over thirteen thousand strong; an organization with high morale and a keen sense of its duties and responsibilities.

They are neighbours, friends, customers, and clients of yours. Their prosperity is reflected in your prosperity.

The advanced cost of living affected this army as it affected everyone else, and The Bell Telephone Company increased the average wage since 1915 by 95.1%.

The scale of wages now in effect would exceed by more than $3,845,000 a year, the amount payable on the scale in force November 30th, 1918, when our last application for rate increase was made.

Almost 65 cents out of every dollar of revenue goes to our employees.

This increased, and increasing pay roll is another reason for the advance in telephone rates.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Introducing Clay Wimburn, young New Yorker on visit to Cleveland, and Mrs. and Miss Daphne Kip.

CHAPTER II—The acquaintance of the young people ripens into love and Wimburn and Daphne become engaged.

CHAPTER III

The next morning Wimburn woke from dreams of bliss to the realization that his hotel bill would require all of his funds except enough for the porter's tip and a few odd dollars.

He could not buy Daphne an engagement ring with a few odd dollars, and he was afraid to leave her without the brand of possession on her finger.

But how was he to come at the necessary sum? He could not decently ask the firm he was dealing with to lend him money. He might have asked it to cash a check on his bank, but his account was at the irreducible minimum.

After an hour or two of meditation he determined to beard a jeweler in his lair and try to coax him into the extension of credit.

He loitered in front of several windows, staring at the glittering pebbles on the velvet beaches till he found a tiny gem that he thought might feebly represent his exquisite adoration. He went in and asked the price. An eager salesman peered at the very small tag and announced the very large price—$185. It was not much for a solitaire, but it was too much for that bachelor.

He clung to the counter for support and in a husky tone asked for the credit man. He was escorted to a barred window where a very sane old person gazed out at people insane enough to buy jewelry. Mr. Gassett had a look of hospitality toward cash and of shyness toward credit.

Wimburn hemmed and blushed and swallowed hard. With the plausibility of a pickpocket he mumbled as he pushed a card across the glass sill:

"I am Mr. Clay Wimburn of New York city. I have been out here closing up an important deal for my firm with one of your big mills. I happened to see a little ring in your window—rather pretty little thing. Took a fancy to it. Had half a mind to buy it. But rather short of cash and—er—and—"

Mr. Gassett waited with patience.

Clay went on: "I have no right to ask you to give me credit. But I'm very anxious to leave the ring here."

"Leave it here! I thought you wanted to buy it!"

"Of course! I want to leave it on the finger of a young lady."

"Oh," said Mr. Gassett, to whom ladies' fingers were an important market.

Finally he said: "I don't suppose you would care to tell me who your fiancee is. That might make a difference."

"Why shouldn't I tell you? I'm certainly not ashamed to. I have the honor to be engaged to Miss Daphne Kip."

"I Have the Honor to Be Engaged to Miss Daphne Kip."

Mr. Gassett smiled. "Not old Wesley Kip's girl?"

"I believe I did hear Miss Kip call her father Wesley."

"Well, I'd like to help Wes out. I suppose I might take a chance. Do you think you can pay for the ring in ninety days?"

"Easily!"

Wimburn would have promised to tear down the world and rebuild it in ninety days.

"I shall have to add a little to the price for the risk and the accommodation."

"Anything you like," said Clay magnificently.

"Call it two hundred dollars."

"Certainly!" One could hardly haggle over an engagement ring.

"I'll ask you to sign a little document."

"With pleasure."

He would have signed an agreement to surrender a pound of his flesh.

Clay hurried out to find Daphne and fasten on her the glittering gyve.

He might have taken further alarm from the immense and greedy rapture Daphne revealed at the sight of the petrified dewdrop set in the golden circlet. Women are all misers when it comes to diamonds.

Wimburn noted only the joy the bauble gave to Daphne, and the pretty submissiveness with which she poked out her slender finger and slid it into the fetter. He felt that the kiss of affiance was worth years of hard labor.

It was hard and bitter to rend their cemented hearts in twain, but he had to go at last. She floated him to the station in the little car and waved him through the iron paling. She was unimaginably precious and pitiful as she stood there, and he wanted to blubber when the vestibule was slammed shut and the train slid out of the station like a merciless snake.

He vowed that he would work with the strength of ten and pile up a fortune in the bank for her. But first he must pile up enough to pay for that solitaire.

• • • • • • •

Clay wrote Daphne a fat letter every day. He usually sneaked it in among his business correspondence and took great pains that it should never miss the Lake Shore limited at five-thirty in the afternoon. A special-delivery stamp put the letter in Daphne's hands every next forenoon.

But after the letter had gone he usually remembered that he had omitted to include some message of frightfully important urgence. So he had to send her every night a night letter, and frequently of mornings he must fire off a day letter. These cost only sixty cents apiece, but often he had to send them in double or triple length.

For occasions where time was yet more unendurable there was the telephone—a pittance of three dollars and twenty-five cents for the first three minutes, and a dollar and five cents for each additional minute or fraction thereof would bring his lips to Daphne's ear.

To Be Continued

Who Goes Home?

There are many quaint old customs kept up and phrases in use which nobody stops to enquire the meaning of. One of these is still in use in the Houses of Parliament in London, England. When the House of Commons adjourns a policeman goes through the lobbies shouting: "Who goes home?" All the members know by this that the business for the day is over.

This phrase, which has but little meaning now, is a relic of the bad old days when traveling was none too safe. Those days, we hoped, had gone forever, but they seem to have returned to some degree, since the war.

In the eighteenth century the streets and roads of London were very unsafe after dark. Footpads and highwaymen infested every district. Once King George II. had his watch, purse and shoe buckles stolen by a highwayman while walking in the Kensington Gardens, and on another occasion a Prince of Wales and his brother were robbed near Berkeley Square.

So serious was the state of affairs that the members of Parliament returning from Westminster to London dared not venture alone, and so parties were made up. Thus originated the cry, "Who goes home?" which meant that some members were ready to start and wanted to know who was going their way.

The Chameleon.

A naturalist, poking his way through the underbrush of Madagascar wilds, one day came upon a chameleon which had been caught and was being held by a small snake. Already the captive had three coils of stout snake rope about its body, and was looking forward to being swallowed—headfirst. Whether or not the snake could have made a go of a mouthful so bulky is another matter; but the chameleon thought it could, and in terror had faded to a pure white color. Feeling sorry for the little fellow, the naturalist shook off the coils from about its body and set it, white and shaky, on a nearby bush. As the chameleon's nerve returned, the color also came ebbing back. In no time it was as good as new, its bright tints flashing when a stray beam penetrated the jungle.

Gathering Junk at Panama.

In the thriving town of Balboa, on the Pacific side of Panama, junk and scrap that has accumulated during the building of the canal is gathered, classified, and sold. There is a scrap dock eighty-two feet wide and five hundred feet long that has a capacity of fifteen thousand tons of scrap. In the wasteful days before 1914 valuable left-over pieces of iron, steel, copper, brass, and finished rail were dumped into the jungle. But since that time scrap gangs have gathered approximately three hundred thousand tons of junk. A large percentage of this scrap is made up of obsolete construction equipment left by the French Canal Company years ago.

Alloys Stronger Than Steel.

An Italian engineer has discovered a new alloy of zinc and copper which is stronger than steel and less corrosive than copper, says the Scientific American. The most important characteristics of the new alloy, which has been named "Blak-metal," are the highest known breaking point, the highest limit of elasticity, perfect homogenecy and higher resistance to both heating and chemical action. It has been stated that it can successfully be cast, machined, rolled, forged, drawn and stamped. It is expected that it will prove an acceptable substitute for steel, brass and aluminum.

ARREST FOLLOWED GIFT TO MINISTER

Ottawa, Aug. 25—The arrest of David Shepherd, his wife and two children of Bristol Corners, Ont., on the charge of burglary followed the presentation of a beautiful centre piece by Mrs. Shepherd to Rev. Mr. Smith of that place, who is leaving to accept a position in a University in Eastern Quebec. The centre piece was identified as one stolen from the summer cottage of Mrs Lowthian at Norway Bay. It is said the Shepherd children made a statement. A number of other articles were also taken from the cottage and the authorities are endeavoring to locate them.

Sight

The greatest of all our possessions

THE beauties of nature—the wonders of creation—the works of man—spread themselves before our eyes day after day. We read and study—exclaim over forms of art—combinations of shades and colors—that reach our senses through our eyes. Do we realize that our eyesight is the greatest of our possessions? Do we guard it as such?

Human eyes are wonderful in construction—but of infinite delicacy. Parodoxical as it may seem—not many people give their eyes the care that is lavished on their hair—their teeth—or even the appearance of their skin! Yet their eyes are more important than any of these.

When teeth need attention—nature sends out prompt, sharp warning.

If we suffer bodily injury—nature—through pain—gives us unmistakeable notice of it. But the eyes of many people may be impaired and suffering strain and tension that is slowly, imperceptibly wrecking and impairing them. Eyes often are the source of ill-health—or nervous strain—and we may not be aware of it.

The questions you should ask yourself are: "Are my eyes strong and healthy?" "Are my eyes affecting my health?" "Should I wear glasses?" "Are the glasses I got years ago the best for my eyes to-day?"

You cannot answer these questions yourself.

But there are men who can—whose study, experience and lifework is the care of our most priceless possession—eyesight. These men are members of the Optometrical Association of Ontario, and by training and study and experience they are equipped to be the guardians of your sight.

Don't wait till nature drives you to consult these men. If your eyes are not 100% perfect—to-day is the time they need professional attention.

"Save your eyes."

BOYS IN TROUBLE.

Tuesday evening about 250 feet of cement curbing on Bridge Street east was damaged by boys and a police court session will result.

DISTURBANCE ON STREET.

Disorderly conduct by men on John and Jane streets Tuesday evening was reported to the police, who responded in each instance to find that the noisy ones had vamoosed.

BODY ARRIVED.

The body of Mrs. Mary A. Barlow, who died in Kingston, arrived in Belleville Tuesday evening and was taken to the residence of her son, Mr. Jesse Barlow, Forin street.

DIED FROM INJURIES.

An accident occurred at the cement plant at Point Ann on Tuesday afternoon when an employee named Louis Bardy fell from a ladder and struck his head upon a cement floor. He died later in the Belleville Hospital. An inquest will be held.

DROPPED DEAD

John Leslie Watts, of Kingston, a member of S.C.R. and a patient of Sydenham Military Hospital, dropped dead on Wellington street. Deceaesd was walking with his wife when heart failure overtook him. He served over seas with the C.A.M.C., and was thirty one years of age.

A LONG SEVERE WINTER

With the shortage of coal it will be interesting to the public to know that the Indians predict a long and severe winter. This they say is indicated by the huge crop of wild plums and nuts of which there are more this year than several previous years. The wild grapes promise some compromise for the thirsty ones, every vine along the fences and clearings being laden with them.

QUEEN'S GRAD. FOR JAPAN.

Durin 1920 nineteen new missionaries will be sent out to the Chinese and Japanese fields by the Methodist Church of Canada. Rev. G. Tench, a graduate of Queen's sailed for Kobe, Japan, with his wife, on August 21st. Both will teach in the Univeristy at Kobe. On the same boat was Miss Hamm and Miss Moir who will also teach in Japan. Dr. Armstrong, Kobe, who has been spending his furlough in Toronto, will sail with his family on August 26th.

FASHION PARADE

An event rather out of the ordinary will take place Thursday evening at that busy hive of industry, 105 Pinnacle street, where several new manufacturing enterprises are in active operation. The public of Belleville are invited to inspect the plants of the Natural Tread Shoes, Limited, and the H. A. Wood Mfg. Co., Limited, also to view a Style Show and Fashion Parade which will be presented jointly by Natural Tread Shoes, Limited and the Ritchie Co., Limited, in which professional models from Toronto will display the latest styles in costumes and footwear. Light refreshments will be served and music will be provided for dancing.

ANTICIPATES COMPLETE CURE.

William McNeely, Beckwith, went up to Toronto to undergo treatment for cancer with Dr. Glover, specialist, who has been having such success. Mr. McNeeley's case was pretty well advanced and he went away not any too sanguine of the result, his age also being against him. For some weeks Mr. McNeeley has been taking the treatment and now he anticipates practically a complete recovery. The pain, which formerly was almost unbearable, had subsided and the progress of the disease has been completely stayed. Mr. McNeely arrived home on Monday to recuperate out at his farm for a few weeks after which he will return for further treatment. The Toronto specialist anticipates a complete cure in time.

AMALGAMATE G.T.P. WITH C.N.R.

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Amalgamation of the western lines of the Canadian National railways with the Grand Trunk Pacific, which has been made effective, is expected to result in greater economy and better service to the public, who are using both lines of railway. The Grand Trunk Pacific is, of course, in the hands of Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways, as receiver, and by amalgamation of this line with the Canadian National, Mr. A. E. Warren, general manager of Western lines, also takes charge of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. W. P. Hinton, vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, becomes consulting officer to tre receiver. The official staff of the Grand Trunk Pacific is to be retained, but there will be amalgamation of the two offices at Winnipeg.

BICYCLES STOLEN

Chief of Police Newton received word to look out for two bicycles stolen at Trenton, one a McBride, nearly new, 46625, the other a Red Bird, 556 Model, No. 33418.

Married 50 Years Ago In Belleville

Mr. and Mrs. George Wallbridge Celebrated Golden Wedding

Fifty years ago a wedding took place at Belleville, the date being August 24, 1870, and on Tuesday, August 24, 1920, the event was celebrated in the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George Wallbridge at their residence on Bridge street east. The bride of fifty years ago was Miss Phyllis M. Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Clarke, and the groom was Mr. George Wallbridge, who has since achieved success in the business world of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallbridge were both born in Belleville, were married here and have been residents of Belleville all their lives. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Grier, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallbridge are still hale and hearty and the passing years have touched them but lightly so that the Golden Wedding Anniversary was one of great pleasure to all concerned. Congratulations from relatives and friends were the order of the day and Mrs. Wallbridge was the recipient of many beautiful boquets of lovely flowers reminiscent of the day of days fifty years ago when she set out on the journey of life with the partner of her choice, a partnership which has been blessed with prosperity and happiness in great measure.

At the anniversary dinner there sat down with the parents five sons and two daughters and it was indeed a happy gathering. The sons are Dr. (Capt.) F. G. Wallbridge, Mr. A. R. Wallbridge of Belleville; J. E. Wallbridge, K.C., of Edmonton; Major C. F. Wallbridge, of Belleville; Capt. Joseph D. Wallbridge manager of the Merchants Bank, Woodland, Manitoba; and the daughters are Misses Helen and Amy Wallbridge of Belleville.

The Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wallbridge was indeed a happy event and a host of friends and well wishers trust that they will long be spared to enjoy the evening of life together in health and happiness.

Wealth of the World.

It is reassuring to learn on high authority that the world's wealth is still expressed in twelve figures—that, if it were possible to realize it, it would represent over a hundred thousand millions in good gold; and that of this colossal sum John Bull can lay claim to nearly a sixth, says Answers. He still remains the richest man on earth, with the solitary exception of his cousin Jonathan.

Figures that run to thousands of millions convey nothing to the unaided mind; and if we would gain any conception of the world's riches we must juggle a little with them. Let us in fancy convert them into gold; we shall then find them represented by a cube, rising nearly as high as Nelson's monument in Trafalgar Square, a cube more than 40 yards in each dimension, and containing as much gold as all the mines of the world could yield in a thousand years.

So heavy would our cube be that it would outweigh three times the population of Australia; all the people in England to-day could not raise it a fraction of an inch from the ground; and its transport by rail would tax the powers of twenty-five thousand locomotives.

Of the world's wealth it is interesting to know that towards every pound of it farms contribute, approximately, 6s., houses 4s., railways 1s. 8d., and merchandise 1s. 7d., leaving 6s. 9d. in the pound for wealth of all other descriptions.

Cotton In Mesopotamia.

The possibilities of Mesopotamia for cotton growing are said to be very considerable, but its potentialities have yet to be investigated and put to the test to decide whether cotton growing can be established there on a commercial basis. The rainfall is so small that the summer cultivation of the country must depend entirely upon irrigation. Mesopotamia, it is said, differs from Egypt as regards the conditions under which the work of irrigation will have to be carried out. The irrigation system is dependent, not on a single river with a well defined and permanent course, like the Nile, but on two great rivers—the Tigris and the Euphrates—meandering through a wide plain in very ill-defined and frequently changing courses, with many tributary branches and cross connections.

The Critical Cuisine.

"This coal shortage—" began the apprehensive citizen.

"It doesn't interest me," interrupted Mr. Stormington Barnes. "My Hamlet gets roasted regardless of the coal supply."

Has Now Thrown His Crutch Away

Weatherdon Says He is Entirely Free of Rheumatism Since Taking Tanlac

"I feel I ought to let everybody know how Tanlac has relieved me of rheumatism, for I doubt if anyone has suffered worse than I have during the last ten years," said William Weatherdon, of 118 Agricola St., Halifax, N.S.

"I used to ache all over with pain that seemed to go right to the marrow of my bones and drive me almost frantic. At times I couldn't bend my arms enough to get my coat on and it was only with great pain and difficulty that I could stoop over at all.

"My feet swelled up so that I was unable to get my shoes on and my knees got so stiff that I was barely able to get around with the help of a crutch. My hands were all drawn up so I could not use them and at night my whole body ached so I couldn't sleep.

"The way Tanlac helped me is simply wonderful. I have taken seven bottles altogether and the rheumatism seems to have left my system entirely. Today I haven't an ache or a pain in my body and all the stiffness and swelling has left my joints. I no longer need crutches to get about and although I am working every day, exposed to all kinds of weather the rheumatism never gives me a bit of trouble. Never in my life have I known a medicine to do what Tanlac has done for me, and I strongly recommend it to all who suffer as I did."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

Social And Personal

Mr. and Mrs. J. Reid of Buffalo are at present the guests of Miss Bowen, Belleville. They will remain in the city a few days before returning home.

Wedding Bells

LEAVENS—WAITE.

At high noon, Wednesday, August 25, 1920, the marriage took place of Mr. Ernest Everett Leavens, of Oshawa and Miss Ernestine Waite, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. E. S. Waite, Sidney Township. The house was prettily decorated with hydrangeas, ferns and asters, and the bride was given away by her father. The bridesmaid was Miss Marjorie Davidson and the flower girl little Miss Lenna Pearce. The Wedding March from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. C. Snider, of Smithfield, and the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, passed through an aisle formed by eight girl friends holding ribbons suspended from a white bell, and leading up to an arch of hydrangeas and ferns, under which the marriage ceremony took place.

The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of white satin, daintily trimmed with French embroidery, and wore a veil with wreath of white lilies, carrying a bouquet of white Ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marjorie Davidson, wore a costume of maize georgette, accordeon pleated, and carried pink roses tied with maize tulle. The flower girl, little Miss Lenna Pearce, was dressed in white organdy and carried a bouquet of white asters.

A handsome lady's suit case was the groom's gift to the bride. To the bridesmaid he gave a beautiful cameo pendant, to the groomsman gold initialed cuff links, to the flower girl a signet ring, and to the pianist a pearl brooch.

The bride's going-away costume was of brown tricotine with brown hat to match.

Rev. A. H. Foster, pastor of the Holloway street Methodist Church, performed the ceremony, at the conclusion of which a dainty buffet luncheon was served on the lawn. Guests were present from Oshawa, Picton, Hamilton, Brighton, Wellington and Smithfield, in addition to those from Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Leavens left during the afternoon on a wedding trip to Toronto, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other places, and upon their return they will reside in Oshawa. They have the best wishes of a wide circle of friends.

CALLED BY DEATH

JAMES HERBERT RUSSELL.

Many friends were saddened by the news of the sudden death of Mr. Jas. Herbert Russell, which occurred at his home at Rednersville Tuesday afternoon from an affection of the heart. Mr. Russell was highly esteemed in a wide circle of friends, being possessed of a genial disposition and generous nature. The eldest son of the late Mr. S. B. Russell, he was born in 1867 on the homestead and resided there all his life following the occupation of a farmer. He was never married and was a member of the Church of England, being survived by one brother, Capt. S. B. Russell.

A PLEASURE CRUISE.

A party of jolly yachtsmen out on a cruise on the trim cruiser Patricia put into Belleville harbor for a day or two for supplies, recreation and information, all of which was found a-plenty. Mr. Jack Bartlett, of Toronto, is captain of the cruise and he has a jolly party of friends with him. Both sides of the lake and Bay of Quinte were thoroughly explored, but Belleville bay and Belleville girls surpassed every other point of interest in the cruise thus far, according to unanimous vote taken at eight bells in the galley, and the cookie's name was not Rosie.

AUTO STOLEN

A Dodge motor car No. 125328, serial number 339,700, the property of Mr. Moses Tobe, merchant, 385 Front street, was taken from the rear of his place of business Tuesday night and the matter reported to the police. Several boys who are missing from their homes today are suspected of knowing something about the missing car.

PECULIAR DAMAGE ACTION AGAINST PETERBORO COUNCIL

Peterboro, Aug. 25.—J. F. Strickland, solicitor, notified the Council that he would take action to recover damages to compensate Geo. Farrance, who sustained a broken leg when the trail of a captured German gun fell on him. It was pointed out that the gun was not properly fastened in its resting place in Central Park. The boys used the gun as a teeter and the accident resulted. The matter was referred to the legal committee.

STOLEN CAR LOCATED.

The Dodge car removed from the premises of the owner, M. Tobe, Front street, merchant, Tuesday night, has been located by Chief of Police Newton at Marmora station.

HAS SCOTLAND YARD CLUE OF DOUGHTY?

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Persistent rumor in police circles has it that Scotland Yard is close on the trail of John Doughty, secretary of Ambrose J. Small, missing millionaire, and that within a very few hours he will be located, supposedly in France.

INQUEST OPENED

Coroner Dr. Yeomans opened an inquest at Tickell's Undertaking Establishment Wednesday morning into the death of Louis Baudy, who died at Belleville Hospital where he had been taken following an accident at Point Ann when he fell from a ladder striking his head on a cement floor. It was not thought at the time of the accident that Baudy was seriously injured as he was unable to walk but when taken to the hospital it was found that he had suffered a fracture of the skull and death ensued shortly thereafter. His home is in Deseronto but he has been working in Point Ann. The jury is composed of Mr. J. D. Collip, foreman, Messrs. Ellis, Large, Day, Deschane, Tice, Quinsey, Wheeler, Archbold. After viewing the body an adjournment was made until Friday evening next.

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF THE MEDICAL ACT

Winnipeg, Aug. 25.—Charged with eight breaches of the Medical Act and with having obtained money under the pretence of being connected with the Mayo Brothers, of Rochester, Minn., Russell Dumas pleaded not guilty in Police Court today, and elected summary trial. The trial will be resumed tomorrow, and if necessary at a special session tomorrow afternoon. Dr. J. E. Coulter, Registrar for the Manitoba College of Physicians and Surgeons, testified that Dumas was not a registered practitioner, and unless he was such had no lawful rights to give treatment for money even with electrical appliance. Several of the instruments found in his "Mayo Curtis" office could be used for illegal operations, Dr. Coulter said.

SAFETY DEPOSIT VAULTS.

They Are Much More Popular Than They Used To Be.

In these insecure and revolutionary times, the bureau drawer and the shelf in the clothes' closet are regarded with suspicion as safe places to keep valuables.

You never can tell what might happen to the old family Bible or the mattress in the spare bedroom.

So bonds, life insurance policies, mortgage papers, jewelry and other treasures of everyday life have been finding their way the last year or two into the safety deposit vaults of Toronto's banks and trust companies.

The Victory Bond campaigns brought a great boom to the safety deposit vault business. Bonds carried about in pockets or mislaid about the house presently took on a frayed appearance not at all in keeping with their value, which forced upon the owner's attention the need of some safe place for their keeping. The scares of revolution and disorder in the past year have also caused great numbers of careless citizens to get the "strong-box" habit. And once got, it sticks.

The safety deposit vaults are considerable rooms of steel entirely lined with little steel drawers, each drawer having a separate lock. The prices of these boxes run from $3 up, per annum. The $3 size holds all an ordinary man's personal documents such as bonds, insurance papers, leases and valuable receipts.

Victory bonds, insurance papers and wills lead as the commonest content of the plain man's treasure chest.

As the man becomes a man of property, the safe boxes grow in size, until there are huge drawers, two feet deep, containing the books and records of companies or individuals not possessed of safes in their own offices.

There are, it appears, few valuables such as jewels stored in the average bank safety deposit vault. The vast bulk consists of documents. And, of course, there are many humorous and quaint uses of the safety boxes.

For $3 a year, a person may purchase the right to come, as often as he likes, into the offices of a great bank or trust company, and there consult in the distinguished privacy of a little sanctum, his valuable documents. Many old gentlemen of modest means and a few old ladies take a great deal of pleasure out of this practice.

They bring with them carefully sealed letters to add to their collection in the safe box; or take away a letter, after lengthy study of their possessions. And all the boxes likely contain are a life insurance policy, a few personal letters, a faded notebook—relics of a bygone active day.

One old lady makes regular visits to her safe box in a certain large bank. She brings and carries away numberless little documents. As far as is known, her safe box contains nothing but scores of these little scraps of folded paper with memoranda on them. She loves the mystery and the romance of possessing and consulting a secret and inviolable treasure-chest.

Into another bank came two elderly ladies who rent a box as they said "to guard against the Bolsheviks." Into the box went a few pieces of old-fashioned jewelry and ornament, a few letters and some cancelled cheques — a little hoard over which there had apparently been much discussion and selection.

Many military documents, records of service and clippings are preserved by younger men who were soldiers. One of the most pathetic treasures so safely preserved by a young woman in mourning was a tiny pair of baby bootees.

How Beetles Travel.

In considering the case of a ferocious beetle, imported not long ago for the purpose of wiping out a destructive caterpillar, much was held to depend upon the ability of its larva, or grub, to travel a long distance in search of food.

The question was one of "staying power," on which largely hung the prospects of survival and successful distribution of the species.

To decide it, resort was had to a novel expedient, a vigorous young grub being placed upon a roll of paper, spread on a table, and allowed to walk as it wished, though prevented from getting off the roll at the sides by a cardboard fence. The roll was so arranged as to be reeled back and forth across the table by turning spools at each end.

As the grub traveled, its every movement was followed with a lead pencil, so that its track was continuously marked. So fast and far did it go that the paper roll had to be replaced with a fresh one again and again, eleven rolls in all being used.

The grub kept going for seventy-two hours, at the end of which it lay down and died of fatigue and starvation, after traveling nearly a mile and three-quarters. Its greatest speed was five feet a minute. The test was deemed highly successful, proving the insect to be a first-class "stayer."

The Name "Canada."

The name "Canada" may have been derived from the Huron-Iroquois word "Kanata," which means a village. In Jacques Cartier's narratives, Canada is spoken of sometimes as a district, but more often as a town or village, and this is how Cartier understood the word. The Indians seem to have divided the St. Lawrence region into four districts, the one known as Canada extending from Isle aux Coudres to a point some leagues west of Quebec; the district thence to the Lachine rapids was called Hochelaga. Lescarbot applied the name to the whole St. Lawrence valley from Hochelaga (now Montreal), to the gulf.

A Siamese Custom.

It is the custom of Siam for every man to enter the priesthood once in his lifetime, for a period which varies from a few months to several years.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 26, 1920.

Premier Meighen Given Ovation At Truro

DEFENDS GOVERNMENT'S RECORD IN PEACE AND WAR—CRITICISM BASED ON VOLTAIRE'S CREED, "WHATEVER IS, IS WRONG"—RAILWAYS WILL BE OPERATED APART FROM POLITICS, SAID PREMIER.

TRURO, N.S., Aug. 26.—Crowds that overflowed the Princess Theatre and spread out into a nearby hall heard Premier Arthur Meighen, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Militia, and Hon. F. B. McCurdy, Minister of Public Works expound the policies of the new National Liberal and Conservative Government here and show why in their judgment the last-named should be returned over Hugh Dickson, United Farmers' candidate, in the Colchester by-election of September 20.

Premier Meighen occupied the greater portion of the time at the Princess Theatre meeting held simultaneously with the overflow meeting with a review of the achievements of Premier Borden's war-time administration, and a discussion of the party's plans for the future. He was most effective perhaps in criticism of the farmers' attitude towards the present Government.

Quoting from a resolution of Colchester farmers denouncing the corruption of the Unionist Government, the Premier said that the fifteen members of the Farmers' party at present in the House knew of no corrupion or else they did not possess the capacity to expose it in the House. In either case he did not think it would help matters very much to add another farmer to the present list.

In opening, the Premier, after stating that he had come to Colchester to present reasons why his colleague, Mr. McCurdy, should be returned in the present bye-election, described the criticism levelled at the Government as based on the theory that "whatever is, is wrong." "That, according to John Hay, Mr. Meighen said, "was the creed of Voltaire. It is a creed that does no good; it is dangerous, unwholesome and untrue. A mere impulse to destroy is the worst epidemic that ever cursed a country. It takes various forms, but there is the same spirit back of them all. It has drenched humanity and brought millions to starvation more than once. In our own day it has paralyzed and prostrated more than half the population of Europe. Every other country is stiffening its front and fighting harder and harder against the plague. Every one of you know that that is true, and you must keep it in mind in measuring the value of criticism at this time."

The Premier then dealt briefly with the Government's record, both during the war and afterwards in its treatment of the returned soldiers. He touched on the taking over of the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk lines and said that they were operating and intended to operate them apart from politics and to give public ownership a fair and vigorous trial. And now, said the Premier, after all we have done, we are opposed to this constituency in the name of "progress."

"Have you analyzed the platform of those who oppose us, their platform and their speeches?"

They are against protection of every kind, against tariffs of every kind. They want the old discarded free-trade-as-in-England-policy and all that in the name of "progress."

Means Workmen's Homes For Sale

"It means industries in other places and in other countries, instead of here. It means workmen's homes put up for sale. It means more taxes for others and a bigger debt for all and a smaller Canada to pay.

"I don't believe onethird of the farmers of Canada are free traders. I don't believe one-tenth of labor is free trade. About two years of free trade would curb those that are.

Mr. McK. King he classed among those who believe in a tariff for revenue and in customs tariff as well as for the sake of keeping industries and work in Canada. Mr. Fielding was in the same position.

After showing that the tariff was higher under the Laurier regime though there was then far less need of revenue, the premier declared that opposition to the government's tariff policy from such men was fiscal humbug.

In conclusion Mr. Meighen said, "The Government which I have the honor to lead, will have for its motto, progress, intelligent orderly progress. A truly great future is ahead of Canada if we only keep our heads and seriously believe in the doctrine of work. Work, after all, is the normal condition of man, I mean of every man, and it is the best answer and antidote to socialistic, Bolshevik and Soviet nonsense.

Former Young Turk Leader Reaches Moscow From Berlin

MADE SIX PREVIOUS ATTEMPTS, WHICH ENDED IN FAILURE—SPENT TWO MONTHS IN ALLIED DETENTION CAMP WITHOUT IDENTITY BEING DISCOVERED.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—After six attempts which ended in failure Enver Pasha, the dominant figure of the anti-British movement in the Near East has reached Moscow. He arrived simultaneously with a detachment of Turkish Nationalists, sent by Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader. These men are in Moscow to confer with Premier Lenine and Foreign Minister Tchitcherin of the Soviet Government on ways and means of conducting a Mohammedan Bolshevik movement against Great Britain in general and call Russian support in finance, troops and war material for the Nationalists in particular.

It is understood that for the present Enver will remain in Moscow and with the advice and assistance of the Soviet Government, will take over for all of Asia the direction of the Mohammedan movement against England.

Enver, making his sixth attempt to reach Moscow by airplane from Germany, was forced to land near Dunaberg, Lithunia, and was arrested on suspicion that he was a Bolshevik emissary. He spent two months in an interment camp at Riga and was quizzed daily by allied officers who did not suspect his identity. He was subsequently sent to Kiel aboard a prisoner's exchange ship and afterwards came to Berlin.

The moment the Red troops touched the German border, Enver was delivered to them with credentials which caused him to be moved along rapidly. He watched the fighting around Warsaw for a few days and then went to Moscow.

Russians May Make a Stand

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 26.—Soviet troops are reported to be concentrating in great numbers along the Beresina River, and military observers are speculating as to the possibility of them launching an attack against the central Polish front. It is believed possible that the Bolsheviki may make a stand in the event that the Poles continue their pursuit of the retreating Soviet armies eastward from the River Bug on the south and Grodno on the north.

Persian Cavalry Defeat Russians

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Persian Cossacks have recaptured Resht, Persia, on the Caspian Sea, from the Bolsheviki, according to an official despatch which was received in London. The Bolsheviki made only a slight resistance.

Victim of Own Burglar Trap

Bachelor With Gun Arranged to Shoot Burglars is Himself Killed.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—Robert Davis, forty-seven years old, and a well-to-do farmer of March township, three miles from Carp, Ont., was found dead in his home, lying in his own blood and with a horrible bullet wound in his head and a discharged gun not far away. The discovery was made by a hired man, with whom he had made an arrangement to cut some grain on his farm this morning.

Victim of His Own Trap.

While it is not definitely known how the fatality occurred, it is thought the late Mr. Davis fell a victim to his own trap, which he had laid for burglars. He was a bachelor, and lived alone on his own homestead. He was greatly troubled by burglars, who on two occasions this spring broke into his house and in each case stole either money or property to the extent of almost $200. Some time ago the house was again entered, and the burglars got off with $69 worth of booty.

Mr. Davis decided to put a stop to these proceedings, and arranged an inner and an outer door, between which he placed a loaded gun in such a manner that should the outer door be broken through the man entering would find the inner door unlocked and gain entrance into the house.

Door Fires Gun.

On opening this second door, however, the second door was connected by a contrivance with the gun, and on shoving it open the gun was discharged. He made this arrangement every night, and had since not been troubled with burglars.

It is thought he, without thinking entered the house after the trap was set, and the gun was accidentally fired. He was found dead about seven o'clock in the morning.

Stolen Bonds Being Returned

One Million Dollars' Worth Already Given Up—Remainder Expected.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The examination of Jules W. (Nicky) Arnstein in the bankruptcy proceedings scheduled to take place Tuesday before Special Commissioner William Tallman, was further adjourned until September 10.

The adjournment was made at the request of William J. Fallon, counsel for Arnstein, who said he had not yet been served with a copy of Judge A. N. Hand's decision to the effect that his client, having filed schedules, had waived his constitutional privilege, and must, therefore, submit to an examination as to his assets.

Million Returned.

Saul S. Myers, representing the creditors, did not oppose the adjournment.

"One million dollars of the stolen bonds have been recovered," Myers announced after the hearing had been postponed. "We have found $600,000 of them in banks and trust companies in Philadelphia and Washington. Four hundred thousand dollars have been recovered through the confessions of persons implicated in the thefts.

"We are confident of recovering another million dollars' worth of the securities by election day and the remainder by Christmas."

Names Concealed.

Myers refused to say by whose confession the securities had been returned, or from whom the confessions revealing the remaining bonds are expected. To reveal the names of the minor men with whom he was negotiating, he said, might put a stop to the arrangements, and give some of those now hiding the bonds a chance to get rid of them.

Anxious To Conciliate Britain

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

PARIS, July 26.—Soviet Government is prepared to withdraw the clause from Soviet peace terms to Poland concerning the formation of an armed militia of two hundred thousand working men in Poland, says a Moscow wireless, picked up by the Eiffel tower today. The Moscow Government however, insists that peace negotiations must be discussed with Poland alone without any outside interference whatsoever. Wireless despatch says that this concession is made in an effort to meet Lloyd George's objections to the clause and try to arrive at a complete understanding with the British Government.

Stanley Machin, J.P.

Mr. Stanley Machin, J.P., the chairman of the British Imperial Council of Commerce, who will attend the Ninth Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, in Toronto on September 16th, is one of the best known merchants of London, England, and has diplomatically handled numberless crises. He was for five years a member of the Imperial Board on Commercial Intelligence. He is a member of the London Labor Conciliation and Arbitration Board, and a member of the London Court of Arbitration, which deals with business disputes. He was born in Surrey, England, in 1861. He is a Past Grand Treasurer of Freemasonry in England.

Trotsky was in East Prussia

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Germany has shipped supplies and ammunition to Soviet Russia, according to a correspondent of The London Times, who insists that Leon Trotsky, Russian Bolshevist Minister of War, visited East Prussia, in spite of official denials of reports to that effect from Moscow.

"The retreat of the Bolshevik armies from the gates of Warsaw," declares the correspondent, "may be explained by the fact that they lacked ammunition. Trotsky foresaw the need of arms during the frantic effort to capture the Polish capital, and made plans accordingly, but was too late. He crossed into Germany and reached an agreement with representatives of the German Government by which it would supply ammunition to the Bolsheviki.

"The ammunition has been paid for in part out of the Soviet 'jewel fund,' which includes the Crown jewels. It was the intention of the Bolsheviki to reserve this fund solely for propaganda purposes in the East, but Germany insisted on a cash payment. The second object of Trotsky's visit to East Prussia was to prevent munitions from reaching Poland, and to accomplish this objective he employed Germans at Danzig with money from the same 'jewel fund.' A large traffic in arms took place between the Russians and Germans in the neighborhood of Soldau."

Life Insurance For Returned Men

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—Insurance policies may be taken out as from September 1st under new schedule instituted by Government for the benefit of returned soldiers who now have an opportunity of insuring their lives without medical examination for sums ranging from $500 to $5000 at a premium slightly less than the ordinary life insurance premium. Literature is being distributed throughout Canada. Applications for policies should be made on a prescribed form and may be forwarded through local pension offices, post offices, military district offices, C. R. offices or any veterans' association.

2,000 CANADIAN CATTLE ARRIVE AT ANTWERP

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—About 2,000 head of Canadian cattle arrived at Antwerp a few days ago, according to word received here. The city of Paris which is expected to complete a contract for the purchase of cattle in Canada had two representatives on hand to examine the quality of the animals sent to Belgium, their condition on arrival, and the requirements for receiving such cargo. It is also understood by the Trade and Commerce Department here that within the past few days retail prices of meat have fallen considerably in Belgium.

Forcible Feeding For Cork's Mayor

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The pall of tragedy today overhung Brixton prison, where Lord Mayor Terrence MacSweney of Cork passed the 12th day of his hunger strike, while doctors, relatives and sympathizers watched his life slowly ebbing.

This morning the home office reaffirmed the Government's determination to let the Mayor commit suicide if he wished, but it is hoped it will relent at the last moment. MacSweney is threatened with tuberculosis.

Crowds of Irish men and women gathered outside the jail today and recited the rosary in unison, while Dr. Higson vainly sought to move the Mayor from his resolution not to submit to the British sentence of two years in prison.

"Your condition is most serious," the doctor said. "We do not intend forcible feeding now, but I must warn you that when you are no longer able to use your will power, we will be bound to give you liquid food to preserve your life as long as possible. Surely you realize that alive you will be more useful to Ireland than dead."

"I am a soldier and am not afraid to die," replied MacSweney. Ireland has no use for a soldier who would surrender. Surrender in my case would be treason, not only to the Irish Republic, but also to civilization."

The doctor gave up his pleading and MacSweney's sister came to his bedside. The Mayor then dictated a message to the Irish people. It read:

"We must be prepared for casualties in this last battle for Irish independence. Let every man offer his life and the future of the Irish republic will be safe. God is with us."

Miss MacSweney has appealed to the Labor leaders to make a move for her brother, but they are all deaf to her pleas.

She also telegraphed Premier Lloyd George, saying that if the Mayor died his relatives and the people of Ireland "would hold you and your government responsible for murder."

Mrs. MacSweney visited her husband again this afternoon.

A despatch from Cork said that all business was suspended for one hour today while the people attended masses offered for the release of MacSweney.

There were disorderly scenes tonight near the Brixton Prison where Lord Mayor MacSweney of Cork is confined, incident to the assembly of several thousand persons who waved red flags, booed the Government and cried "Up Sinn Fein, Up Rebels."

The crowd rushed the police guarding the avenue leading to the prison. Several persons were injured and a number arrested.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The proclamation announcing officially that the suffrage amendment to the constitution had been ratified was signed today by Secretary of State Colby on receipt of the certificate that the Tennessee Legislature had ratified the amendment.

Soviet Desires Peace.

London, Aug. 26.—The Soviet reply was received by the Russian delegation here today. The Moscow government states that it is subordinating everything else to its paramount desire to secure the establishment of peace throughout the world. The Russian delegation in London claims that this concession meets the wishes of the British and Italian governments.

Savings Deposits Increase.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Current loans by banks in Canada show a further increase of approximately twelve million dollars during July, according to a bank statement for that month issued today by the department of finance. Call loans are practically unchanged, while savings deposits continue to increase, with a gain over the previous month of about ten million dollars.

Thirteen Policemen Injured McSweeney Demonstration

CROWD OUTSIDE BRIXTON PRISON ENGAGE IN FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT WITH POLICE—LORD MAYOR OF CORK STILL REFUSES FOOD AND IS IN CRITICAL CONDITION—HAD TWO SERIOUS COLLAPSES WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Terence McSweney, Lord Mayor of Cork, despite two serious collapses last night due to his critical condition resulting from his hunger strike in Brixton Prison, was brighter this morning when visited by Father Dominic, his private chaplain. He was too weak to speak more than a few words, however.

It was officially stated today that thirteen policemen were injured, none seriously, during the disturbances last night outside the prison when the crowd engaged in a free-for-all fight with the police.

Fortress Of Ostrolenka Captured By Poles

HARD BATTLE WON BY POLISH TROOPS, WHO FORCED A PASSAGE OF THE NAREW RIVER AND CAPTURED FORTRESS FROM BOLSHEVIKI — RED RESERVES BEING RUSHED UP.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Polish troops yesterday afternoon, by hard fighting, captured the fortress of Ostrolenka, 22 miles southwest of Lomza, and forced the passage of the Narew River. The Central News' Warsaw correspondent says it is officially posted in the Polish capital today.

Warsaw advices say that Soviet reserves are reported as arriving on the southern front in great numbers. According to information in the hands of the Polish General Haller, reserves this morning behind the Bolsheviki north front are being brought up.

Average Yield 18 Bushels Per Acre

A. E. Whitmore Estimates Western Crop at 230,000,000 Bushels

REGINA, Aug. 26.—Saskatchewan's wheat crop this year will total 122,496,400 bushels, on the basis of 13 bushels to the acre, from 9,422,800 acres sown in wheat. Manitoba will have 41,026,000 bushels from 2,563,500 acres or 16 bushels per acre. Alberta will have the highest of the prairie provinces: 66,295,200 bushels from 3,516,400 acres, an average of 18 bushels to the acre.

These estimates were supplied by Mr. A. E. Whitmore, who for many years has made a close study of crop conditions in the prairie Provinces and whose estimates of former years have been remarkably accurate.

Under Mr. Whitmore's estimate Saskatchewan gains three bushels to the acre over 1919; Manitoba gains one bushel to each acre under cultivation and Alberta makes the harvest gain of all. Last year the yield for the Western Provinces of the prairie was based on a production of six bushels to the acre. This year the estimate, and it is conservative, according to Mr. Whitmore, is 18 bushels to the acre, a jump of 13 for each wheat acre in the Province.

Polish Victories Halt Peace Parleys

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The unstable military situation has made a negotiated peace impossible. The general impression at Minsk is that the next sitting of the Russo-Polish Peace Commissioners will be the last, and that peace will not be made.

The above is the substance of a despatch to the London Daily Herald from its correspondent at the conference. According to the despatch a rupture was barely avoided Monday when the Polish reply, which the correspondent characterized as a "rejection of all the vital peace conditions," was made.

The Poles, the correspondent adds, refused point blank to consider disarmament or to discuss the creation of a militia. Demobilization was rejected unless it is mutual.

There is not the smallest prospect of the Minsk negotiations resulting in a swift conclusion of peace, but all ethnographic Poland soon will be cleared of the Bolshevik forces, says the London Times' Warsaw correspondent in a despatch dated Monday.

Railwaymen Plan to Fight O.B.U

Labor Official Launches Canadian Campaign in London, Ont.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 26.—A campaign to fight the spread of the One Big Union idea and also the propoganda of the I.W.W. and the Bolshevists was launched in London by P. J. Flannery, Canadian general representative of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, and A. A. Woodward, general representative in Canada of the International Brotherhood of Railway Firemen.

President Frank McKay of the London Trades and Labor Council says he is not aware that the organizations named have been working in London and he does not think they have, but Messrs. Flannery and Woodward state that the danger to organized Labor is very great and must be combatted energetically. The following statement was issued by them today:

Bolshevism Denounced

"The seventeen railway brotherhoods that obtained the award handed down by the United States Railway Board will establish in Canada a council composed of the Grand Vice-Presidents for the purpose of offensive and defensive action on all matters pertaining to the welfare of the bona fide international unions from any encroachment of dual or outlawed radical organizations. The latter are endeavoring to undermine the trade doctrine in order to create class hatred and discontent along the lines of darkest Russia. This means the ultimate destruction of all forms of civil government, thereby degrading civilization to the level of the dark ages. Co-operation and production will solve the industrial problem along conservative lines."

Man Killed In Belfast Rioting

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

BELFAST, Aug. 26.—Rioting was resumed early this morning in Ballymacarrett, section of city east of River Lagan. Military forces summoned to scene of disorder, fired on crowds killing one man and dangerously wounding two girls.

The Board of Commerce commissioners go to Montreal to investigate the sugar situation. Action is expected by the end of the week.

The strike of miners in England is sure to fail. The vote was 3 to 1 to quit. British unions are refusing to countenance it.

PIANO WORKERS IDLE.

Seventy-five employees of the Piano Works at Oshawa have been laid off. The factory was turning out eighteen pianos daily, but this number has been reduced to seven.

BARBERS DON'T AGREE.

Lindsay barbers are excited, one tonsorial artist having decided to drop the price of hair cuts from 45c. to 25c. Recently the prices were advanced. It is also stated that the same barber is dropping the price of a shave from 20c. to 15c.

UNITED COUNTIES SELL BONDS.

The united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry sold $400,000 ten-year 6½ per cent. debentures to A. E. Ames & Co., Toronto at 97.79. The proceeds will be used in paying for road construction in these counties.

HIGH PRICES.

Fifteen cents for two small slices of bread on a dining car. This was a surprise to a number of travellers at the morning meal when their bills were handed them. Some of the passengers objected and several refused to pay, but were told by the officials in charge that this was the price placed upon the bread this week.

CORN KILLED CHILD.

Following an operation, when a kernel of corn was taken out of her windpipe, Frances James, 18-months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John James, of Lanark county, died Monday afternoon in the Ottawa Hospital. The little girl is said to have found some grains of corn on the floor at her home a week ago, but her parents did not know she had swallowed anything.

BRIGHTON HOTEL SOLD.

After having conducted the Clarendon Hotel, Brighton, in a highly satisfactory manner for more than two years, Herbert Greenfield has disposed of the plant and good will to Geo. Goheen, until recently manager for Ameseff & Sayer. Mr. Goheen has taken charge.

ROBBING DENTAL OFFICES.

Evidently a specialist is working in the theft of gold from the offices of dentists. A report received from Ottawa states that Dr. R. F. Rice of that place had his dental office broken into and his entire supply of gold fillings stolen. The offices of Dr. Sparks and Dr. R. Milan of Kingston have been broken into and gold filling stolen, and it is thought by the police that the work is that of a man conversant with dentistry.

BUSH FIRES.

Bush fires are raging in the Parham district, according to a report received from Crow Lake. The dry weather which has prevailed for the past couple of weeks, has not been broken there, as the heavy rain which fell over the central part of the country did not reach that district. So far no damage to farm buildings has been reported, but the residents are watching the fires and hoping for rain to put an end to their progress.

GOOD OATS.

When Mr. Charles Smith returned to Uxbridge from Bridgenorth he took with him a small sheaf of oats which were grown on the farm of Mr. Edward Archer, Smith Township. The stocks measured 6 feet 6 inches in length with heavily loaded heads eight inches long and well filled. He has seventy-five acres of such oats. Mr. Archer also has strawberries which are out in bloom for the fourth time this year, and he expects to get the fourth picking.—Port Hope Guide.

WELL KNOWN VETERINARY.

Dr. R. H. McKenna, one of the best-known veterinary surgeons in the province, died at Toronto on Friday. He had been in poor health for nearly a year and for the past two or three months had been confined to bed. Dr. McKenna commenced practising in Picton. He remained in that town for thirty-five years, going to Toronto in 1907. While in Picton he was an ardent member of the Oddfellows and the Picton Lode, A. F. & A. M. In politics he was a Liberal.

HURT ON HAY LOADER.

A distressing accident occurred near Washburn when James Quinn, aged 22 years, fell backwards on a hay loader and suffered severe injuries to his neck and spinal cord. The young man had been engaged in unloading hay at his father's farm and while hauling up a load the trip lock on the fork broke and he lost his hold. He fell backwards and was rendered unconscious. Assistance was immediately summoned and he was brought to the Kingston General Hospital, where it was found that his neck had been dislocated, and his spinal cord broken. Tuesday he was still in a very serious condition and little hope is held out for his recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Quinn came to Canada from County Armagh, Ireland, about fifteen years ago and were bereaved last year when another son was drowned while painting a boat in Kingston harbor.

CHIC HAT AND DAINTY VEIL

One of the best models that has come from Paris for spring and summer wear and its simple elegance makes a wonderful frame for any face. It is of old rose crepe de chine embroidered with old rose silk and is draped with a prettily figured veil.

VEIL CHANGES FOR MILADY

Face Covering Lends Note of Personality and Distinction—Adds Completeness to Outfit.

When an attractively groomed woman adjusts her smart-looking little hat at a certain angle and fastens over it one of the clever new spring veils the effect is ravishing.

Personality and the final note of distinction may be expressed in the mere cobwebby substance of the veil. It adds a completeness to the simple tailleur and street dress.

After a strenuous day of shopping the woman whose small street hat is snugly veiled returns home as neat and trim looking as when she left.

It is generally understood that the street veil is not appropriate in the evening. More and more, however, the American woman is appearing at the restaurant and theater in her severely tailored suit or gown, with her close-fitting toque nicely veiled. And she harbors no qualms as to being correctly dressed.

In fact, the latest fashions are showing the more elaborate hats with veils. For instance a charming wrought creation of black tulle and silver lace appeared in a box at the theater.

The fair spectator watched the play from behind a thin tulle veil, which was extended from the crown of the hat, just beneath the nose—much as the oriental lady is veiled. And, by the way, there is a decidedly oriental touch to the hats shown this season. Hardly a tulle hat is shown without the drop of tulle at least over the eyes.

Another gay little model hat was seen in one of the smart shops of interwoven ribbons of blue, gold and brown, against a horsehair brim which is satin threaded in gold squares. There is a gold ribbon around the brim and from this a short brown tulle veil is extended.

A hat of black horsehair with a low crown banded in black satin ribbon, tilts at the back, and droops under a beige lace veil.

Many of the new veils are edged prettily and hang loose and full. Some are close fitting over the face and long and flowing down the back. In fact there is a style of veil for every face; heavy figures, French dotted and exquisitely fine meshed veils are equally attractive in the new spring collection.

RAFFIA TO ORNAMENT VEILS

Material Is Among Other Novelties Used to Make Face Coverings Attractive.

The most striking feature in the new spring millinery is the return of the loose flowing veil, which is worn carelessly thrown over the toque or hat, falling over the shoulders at the back, the front length merely coming down a little below the eyes.

The embroideries and applique work on these veils are most elaborate and varied. One of the newest ideas in this line is the use of black patent leather or oilcloth, which is appliqued on the net, either in bands, discs or elaborate cut-out designs.

A fine make of colored kid is also made use of in the same style. Cut out fruit designs are the favorites. The kid is cut out in the shape of the fruit, tinted in natural colors and appliqued on the net, with a buttonhole stitch in silk to match.

A handsome veil is in navy blue filet net with a border of cut-out red kid in a cherry design, showing green leaves embroidered in silk.

Raffia is also being used to ornament veils. Deep straggling designs are appropriate for this work. A shade of jade green raffia on a black or tete de negre brown net is unusually effective.

Cretonne applique on veils is again in vogue. A motif of flowers and leaves is so placed as to cover the upturned brim of the hat, making all further trimming unnecessary.

To Remove Rust Stains.

Iron rust has a most astonishing way of appearing on garments. Sometimes a pin will be a bit rusty and leave two little brown spots in a most conspicuous place. Wet the spot with a drop of lemon juice, add salt and put on more lemon juice. Put in the sun and when the salt is dry the rust spot will be gone. If the sun refuses to put in an appearance for the day, hold the stain with its saturated solution of lemon juice and salt over steam. The rust will be removed.

SITES FOR WAR MEMORIALS.

Canadian, Australian, and British Forces to Honor Dead.

The Battle Exploit-Memorial Committee, which was constituted by the Army Council last year, has made progress with the work of correlating the claims of individual units to erect permanent memorials of their exploits on the battlefield and of facilitating the acquisition of sites from landowners in France, Belgium, and other theatres of war. Claims have been submitted by two corps, 23 divisions, six brigades, and 42 lesser formations. In addition, the various Dominions have negotiated their claims through the committee.

The Australian memorials have already been erected at Pozieres, Mont. St. Quentin, Sailly-le-Sec., Bellenglise, Polygon Wood (Zonnebeke), and Villers Bretonneux. For the Canadians, a battalion memorial has been erected at Passchendaele. Other memorials are to be erected at St. Julien, Observatory Ridge, Courcelette, Vimy (Hill 145), Caix-le-Quesnel, Dury, and Bourlon, and representatives of the Canadian Government are arranging for the acquisition of the necessary land. Details of the sites required have not yet been received from other Dominions.

Complete particulars as to the sites required have been received from several divisions and other formations. The sites required by these units are at the following places: Vielle Chapele, Fricourt, Bellenglise, La Boiselle, Etreux, Bailleul, Givenchy, Fayet, Lagnicourt, Graincourt, Thiepval, Pozieres, Bois des Buttes, Vendresse et Troyan, Mont Noir, Neuve Chapelle, Beaumont, Hamel, and Villers Outreux. In each of these cases negotiations have been opened with the mayor of the commune and the landowner concerned, except where, as at Vendresse, the country is so devastated that local government has not been restarted, and it has been impossible to find the owner. Free offers of sites have been made to units by the owners of the commune at Vieille Chapelle, Fricourt, Bellenglise, La Boiselle, and Fayet.

The Belgian Government has generously offered to reserve, so far as plan of reconstruction admits, sites for possible memorials at the following places: Boesinghe, Bixschoote, Langemarck, Poelcappelle, Passchendaele, St. Julien, Gravenstafel, Zonnebeke, Polygon Wood, Sanctuary Wood, Gheluvelt, Hooge, Hill 63, Neuve Eglise, Messines, Wytschaete, St. Elio, Hill 60, Kemmel, Klein Zillebeke, and Ypres.

In certain much-fought-over areas, notably on the Somme, at Ypres, and in the valley of the Sambre, several units have selected the same or closely adjacent sites, and the question of priority has to be examined.

The sites in France and Belgium, in regard to which complete particulars have not been supplied by the claiming unit (and in the absence of complete particulars negotiations for acquisition cannot be prosecuted), are at the following places; Point du Jour, Longueval, Arras, Ephey, Trescault, Havrincourt, Thiepval, Gommecourt, La Verguier, Moeuvres, Mons, Monchy-Le-Preux, Villers Carbonnel, Zandvoorde, Guillemont, and Montagne de Bligny.

In theatres of war other than France and Belgium, units have registered preliminary claims for sites at Papadapoli Island (Italy), Gallipoli, Geza, Doldzeli, and the Doiran Front, Nevoljea (Saloniki), Aleppo, Kantara (Palestine and Suez) and Tanga (East Africa.

Clever Ants.

The reputation of King Solomon as a naturalist has been much enhanced by the comparatively recent discovery of the fact that certain ants do, as he asserted, make a business of gathering and storing grain. But there are other ants which pursue a much more remarkable practice. They cultivate mushrooms.

The so-called parasol ants of Brazil get their name from their habit of marching along in single file, each one with a piece of green leaf held over its head. These scraps of leaves are taken to underground chambers, well chewed, and allowed to ferment and decay in a mass, through which the mycelium or a fungus soon begins to run in white threads. When little mushroom buttons have started to develop the workers bite them off and feed them to the baby ants.

Experiments have proved that these mushrooms, if permitted to develop, will attain a diameter of six inches. But the ants prefer them immature. Man has discovered that by preparing suitable beds in dark places where he can control temperature, he can grow mushrooms all the year round, but the leaf-cutting ant got the idea long before he did and acted upon it.

Dairying.

Canada had 3,343 dairy factories in 1919, viz., creameries, 1,043; cheese, 1,835; butter and cheese, 442; condensed milk, 23.

Canada's annual dairy production value, $250,000,000; exports, $65,000,000.

Canada ranks fourth in world production of cheese. Exported over $40,000,000 worth in 1919, or 78 per cent. of total production of 190,000,000 pounds.

The Election In the U. S.

The careful candidate had been asked for his views on the League of Nations. "Gentlemen," he remarked cautiously, "about all I can say is that I am in favor of any kind of a league which will best conserve the interests of humanity, providing a plank is inserted which will insure to men at all times the right to eat strawberry shortcake in season." He was elected by an overwhelming majority.

Broke the Saucer.

Georgie came crying to his mamma. "I've broken pussy's saucer," he said. "Never mind, darling," said mamma, "we can get pussy another. How did you do it?" "I was hammering it with daddy's watch," sobbed George.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"THE LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME"

Pistols and love-making are concomitants of the play, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," which comes to Griffin's this Friday night for an engagement of one night only. The play is, of course, taken from the famous novel of the same name by John Fox, Jr., and his intimate knowledge of the people of Kentucky who are the members of the cast, was impressed by the familiarity of the adapter, Sidney Toler, also a Southerner. Humor and romance are in combination in this play The inaugural at the historic Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, was marked by great crowds and by applause that was echoed in extravagant write-ups in newspapers of cast and production. "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come has come to the stage and the admirable adaptation of the John Fox Jr. novel together with the original cast including George Simpson, Dorothy Dunn, Fay Brennan, James Kennedy and Ralph McDonald as well as a number of other actors of ability and of special fitness for their respective roles will be here. This is not the motion picture version of the story, but the stage version and will be found both beautiful and picturesque.

FUNNY GISH PICTURE

Belleville admirers of the rapid-fire style of screen comedy dispensed by Dorothy Gish will welcome the news of the vivacious little star's appearance at Griffin's to-night and Saturday, matinee and night, in her new picture "Mary Ellen Comes to Town." The heroine is a Southern girl, soda clerk in a dry goods emporium, who aspires to shine in brighter surroundings and journeys to New York with the idea of going on the stage. She advances no further than a Broadway cabaret where she is no great success as a singer, but encounters many thrilling and laughable adventures. Miss Gish is supported by such prominent players as Ralph Graves, Raymond Cannon and Rhea Haines. It is a Paramount-Artcraft picture. An interesting Outing Chester Travelogue, a funny 2-reel John Cumberland comedy, British Canadian News Pictorial and other varied attractions will also be shown on the same program.

Local Industry Extending Plant

The Judge-Jones Milling Company are increasing the capacity of their hard wheat bread flour mill and are installing a separate plant for the manufacture of local wheat or pastry flour. This is believed to be the only plant in Canada that has distinct and separate plants for the manufacture of bread and pasty flour.

The Judge-Jones Milling Company are also now erecting a building and installing machinery to manufacture 500 bags of rolled oats and other cereals, also a separate plant to make degerminated kiln-dried cornmeal, corn flour, also installing feed grinding plant to enable making 1500 to 2000 bags of feed per day.

The Judge-Jones Milling Company have acquired the property No. 50 Albion street, running the length of the railway siding and extending to and including 133-135 Station street.

The Judge-Jones Milling Company claim there is no other firm of flour millers in Canada making the variety of cereals and feed they will be able to turn out when their full plant is in completion. When running at full capacity they will be able to turn out between four and five thousand bags per day of flour, cereals, feed, re-cleaned and bagged oats.

RAILWAYS ARE READY TO HANDLE GRAIN CROP

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—All that officials of the different Canadian railways can do in the matter of preparing to handle the Western grain crops this year has already been done, and Railway Department officials here are hopeful that the wheat movement will progress satisfactorily.

It is stated here that every available box car has been concentrated in the West, and all railways are bending their energies to handling the annual flood of wheat, which is expected to start with very little further delay.

Officials of the Department of Railways state that, while it is not possible, at this date, to gauge the flow of wheat to the head of the lakes, they can see no reason to anticipate a blockade, because the railways are doing all in their power to prevent such a condition arising.

FOUR HORSES KILLED

Mr. E. S. Waite, who resides on his farm about half a mile west of Belleville in Sidney Township, suffered a severe loss Wednesday night when four of his horses were killed on the G.T.R. tracks The animals were in a pasture about three miles from Mr. Waite's residence and in some manner made their way to the tracks where they were caught between two trains, one going east and the other west. All four horses were killed entailing a loss of $650, one of the animals being a thoroughbred valued at over $300.

BOXER IS KNOCKED OUT BUT WINS HIS BOUT

A peculiar incident happened at a boxing match in San Francisco recently. Jimmy Ryan and Johnny O'Neil were fighting and Johnny was getting far the worst of the exchanges. Just before the end of the fourth and final round O'Neil shot a dandy to the stomach and Jimmy went down like a shot. Billy Snailham, old-time fighter was the referee and he started counting Ryan out. At the count of six the gong sounded ending the fight.

Referee Snailham, with the sanction of two judges awarded the verdict to Ryan, notwithstanding that he had been knocked out and was still out when the decision was being rendered. O'Neil had been beaten on points up to the final blow and the referee could not take into account the knockout after the final bell rang at the count of six.

DESERVED TO SAVE PUPPIES

Shrewd Old Mother Coyote Wasted No Time Trying to Get Them Out of the Sack.

The coyote is unpopular both among human beings and among its fellow animals; but the coyote is very intelligent as well as unpopular, evidently sharing these peculiarities with the fox.

Two young men who lived near Garfield, in the state of Washington—Mathews and Babcock by name—were plowing one spring when they came upon a family of three young coyotes. They took possession of the little creatures; and meantime the old coyotes, the little ones' parents, kept hovering about in an unpleasant way.

By and by, to get rid of them, Mathews went to his house, got his brother Henry, a gun and a gunnysack. The little coyotes were put into the sack, which was then securely tied at the mouth. The old coyotes now disappeared, but in the hope of luring them so near that he could get a shot at them Mathews went to following the plowmen about the field, leaving at the end the bag with the little ones. Two or three times the party went around the field; but although the old coyotes were seen they kept at a safe distance.

But soon as the plowmen and the gunner came around toward the place where they had left the sack they saw a strange sight; it was the old mother coyote, with the sack in her mouth, making off over the hill at full speed.

Henry fired at her, but without effect. She made good her escape with her puppies tied up in the sack, and doubtless she had no difficulty in ripping the bag open and liberating the young ones as soon as she reached a safe place.

If she had been so foolish as to attempt to open the sack before picking up the puppies she would certainly have lost the young ones and her life.

Man-Eating Tigers.

"Man Eaters" begin their scourge of villages in India only when age begins to stiffen their muscles, and when human flesh is once tasted they crave for nothing else, according to Paul Drevy, in the World Wide Magazine.

Increasing difficulty in seizing the small and agile denizens of the jungle, writes Drevy, leads the tiger to attack persons as a means of gaining his food. The success with which the man eaters have been able to secure human flesh has led them to throw off the old instinct of terror of man.

Incursions of man eaters in India often die down for ten or fifteen years, says Drevy, and then some community finds within a few days that any number of its members have disappeared and a search is made for the animal. In one district of the central provinces, 32 persons disappeared in 45 days. The beast was finally killed by an English officer.

In another section 12 villages were the scene of invasions for more than three months. Finally, more than 2,000 armed men set out to find the man eater, but without result. The animal, on one of its incursions, bounded over a garden fence and impaled itself on a stake.

In India few animals under fifteen years of age have been known to attack persons. It is generally after that age that they begin their attacks on human lives.

Belleville Rinks Win from Visitors

Napanee Bowlers on Belleville Green Fail to Win, but Have a Good Time.

Wednesday afternoon and evening the grounds of the Belleville Bowling Club presented a lively and attractive appearance, the occasion being a visit from eight rinks of Napanee bowlers. There was sure some great bowling, but the Belleville bowlers were unkind enough to take most of the games from their visitors. However, Napanee came back with the threat: "Just watch what we'll do to you at curling next winter" Mayor Riggs, that enthusiastic bowler, was there with the glad hand of welcome and a good sure shot for the kitty every time, and those veteran bowlers, Col. S. S. Lazier and J. J. B. Flint, more than held up their end with the colts.

Lunch was served by the ladies of the club and the visitors enjoyed their trip very much. The scores during the afternoon and evening were as follows:

CHERSO.

It May Be the Heligoland of the Adriatic.

The Versailles conference set Canadians searching the gazetteers for Yap; the San Remo conference turns the spot-light to another obscure island—Cherso.

Practically unheard of on this side of the Atlantic, eluding most travelers, even escaping many of the seekers after the little-known places of Europe, Cherso neither is inaccessible nor unattractive.

It dangles like a pendant in the Gulf of Quarnero, low hung from the neck of Fiume. It is the Long Island of that port, its shore line rising 12 miles to the south of d'Annunzio's present stronghold. Its slender form extends to the southwest for 40 miles, though it never exceeds seven miles in width, and its area is somewhat more than twice that of the District of Columbia.

Holding in mind this location, near the head of the Adriatic, in view of the tentative plans to make Fiume a buffer state between Italy and Jugo-Slavia, the strategic possibilities of Cherso became apparent. Indeed one may picture it as a potential Heligoland of the Adriatic.

A natural curiosity of the island is Lake Vrana, or Crow's Lake, with a surface 40 feet above the sea level, fed and drained by invisible streams. The island is rugged, with one mountain peak rising more than 2,000 feet above the Quarnero waters. Gibraltar-like rocks rise precipitously to a thousand feet along one of its shores.

The devastating Bora, which sweeps the Dalmatian coast, drips its salt spray over Cherso, excluding many varieties of plant life. The absence of large trees and scarcity of springs are two physical characteristics. In the north laurel and mastic grow, and vines and olive trees abound in the southern portion.

Politically Cherso was included in Istria, when under Austrian rule. With its neighbor islands, Lussin, to the southwest, and Veglia, to the east, it was a part of the Lussin district.

Cherso lies off the shores of the northern part of Dalmatia and the Croatian littoral, a region formerly known as Morlacchia. The Morlacchia channel preserves this name, originating with the Slavic invaders of Dalmatia, who called the Latinized people they found there "Vlachs, or Mavro-Vlachs—Black Vlachs." Thus the Slavs of this region have come to be known, by a corruption of this title, as Molachs.

In rural districts Morlacchian women retain their historic costume, which includes a kerchief for the head, many strands of beads, a waistband from which hang amulets and various trinkets, and, over a blue cloth gown, an apron of exquisite embroidered pattern. About her neck an unmarried girl wears a string of coins and rings which comprise her dowry. Formerly the men wore their hair in a plait, which their wives were expected to comb, adorn with ribbons and charms, and anoint with fats.

Discovery of Helium.

A large commercial company for the production of helium has just been formed with retired officers of the United States air service among its directors. Helium is the non-inflammable gas which is now used in the place of hydrogen for the filling of dirigible balloons. While believers in helium do not under-estimate the possibilities of the airplane, they regard the helium-inflated balloon as the safest and most practical airship, especially for long voyages. They declare that the dirigible can travel a much greater distance than the airplane without stopping for fuel, that it affords a smoother way to travel the air, and with helium substituted for hydrogen, is practically indestructible.

The original discovery of helium in America was made in a little town called Dexter in southern Kansas. The men drilling for the natural gas had been confident of securing a supply sufficient for the households and industries of the community, so the event of opening the well was made a holiday for the people of Dexter.

A crowd collected and the well was dramatically opened, the gas rushed forth and in order to make the demonstration complete a lighted torch was thrust into the mouth of the well.

According to all rules, the gas should have immediately ignited and blazed forth the news of the opening of the well to the community, but it did nothing of the sort. The torch promptly went out and the people returned to their homes in a rage with nature, who had cheated them out of their promised supply of cheap fuel.

Samples of the mysterious gas were sent to the state university, where the secret of its fireproof qualities was disclosed. The gas was found to be particularly abundant in southern Kansas, where for years it was called "wind gas" and allowed to waste into the air.—Detroit Journal.

"Kava" Is Samoan Beverage.

The national beverage of the Samoan islanders is "kava," obtained from the dried fruit of a plant known to the botanist as Piper methystium, says the Kansas City Star. The classic method of its preparation was by chewing. Water was added, and, after straining, the stuff was ready to drink. Missionaries convinced the natives that this method did not accord with the best social customs, and so nowaday they grind the kava root in a stone mortar with a stone pestle. To any unaccustomed person, kava tastes rather like soapsuds, though some say it has a flavor of varnish. Many Americans, however, having acquired a liking for it, drink it by the gallon. But the native way of preparing it is too slow for them and they prefer to use a meat grinder.

Very Common.

"They don't amount to much."

"No?"

"No. They're not even paying $100 a month rent for the place they live in."

IMPERIAL PRESS DELEGATES

The further they travel westward on their tour of Canada the more enthusiastic the delegates to the Imperial Press Conference grow as to the condition and prospects of Canada. It is not in the nature of Britons to be exuberant in the expression of their views, but the beauty, resources and great destiny of the Dominion seem to have driven our visitors almost to enthusiasm.

Speaking in Winnipeg, in response to the provincial welcome, Lord Burnham declared that the tour had been a mighty uplift of the spirit. He paid a tribute to the builders of the Canadian commonwealth and expressed the hope that the men of the future would be men of the same vision. He advanced a new doctrine, that instead of the British Empire being a commonwealth of independent nations, we were a commonwealth of inter-dependent nations. After all there is not much to choose between the two expressions. They mean about the same thing, so long as the cohesive power is the crown of England.

THE LIBERAL PLATFORM.

Continuing his wail of "Kamerad" to the Farmers, Mr. Mackenzie King protests that the Liberal and U.F.O. platforms are identical. May-be so; but the trouble is that according to Mr. Fielding, Mr. King's ablest lieutenant, the Liberal platform was merely made to "get in upon" and must be accepted with "interpretations and reservations." Nor is this merely the view of Mr. Fielding. It was the collective opinion of the entire Opposition in the Commons last session, when, on the occasion of the budget, the Ottawa platform was abandoned and a milk-and-water, meaningless policy brought forward in its place.

The truth is that Mr. King's party has no fixed policy at all. It is merely opportunist; one thing on the plains and something else in the east—all things to all men in its desire for the flesh-pots of office. "They have stolen our labels, but the goods are not in the cans," said a famous Republican leader of the Democrats. This is what the Farmers think, and think rightly, of the platform of Mr. King.—Ottawa Journal.

GET-RICH-QUICK CRAZE AND PONZIED FINANCE.

The Wall Street Journal, interested like everybody else in the extraordinary exploits of this latest "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," has gone to considerable pains and some expense to learn all there is to know about recent transactions in international reply coupons, in which Ponzi claims he made his money. It has been established that the coupons have not be bought or presented for payment in the United States. From Switzerland, where the coupons are printed for the entire world, comes news that the demand for them hasn't grown to any appreciable extent in the last few months. The total number redeemed in that country in the last thirteen months has been 5,813, which would have been worth $280.48 at the normal exchange rates. How impossible it is to make millions in this way is shown by the fact that 100 nations in the postal union redeemed only 7,598,982 such coupons in the six war years ended on July 1, 1919, and that the total United States value of all these coupons was $379,949. This is quite enough to explode Ponzi's fictions. They only remain to supply evidence, if more is needed that the class of people who want to get something for nothing is being everlastingly renewed.

Doubtless it is as futile as ever to point out that the obsession of playing the financial game in order to rake off enough to stake yourself and your family for life, without giving any service in return, is at once lazy and immoral. To endeavor to obtain from some other inhabitants of the earth the means of luxurious living, without giving value in exchange is an anti-social act more serious because more obscure than a straight bank robbery. That, of course, is the evil of gambling of any kind, yet so ingrained is the desire to achieve wealth in that way that the successful gambler at once becomes the object of admiration and envy even from those who profess to regard gambling as immoral and reprehensible. The habit and temper of mind has been markedly intensified by the war. Work once regarded as honorable is now largely shirked. Money had been easily earned and lightly spent, and the step is short between that and idleness as the gift of luck. But there is no time for drones and parasites. The material salvation of the toteering world can only be found in honest and steady work. Those who seek riches without labor are adding to the burden that is the inheritance of war.

CRISP COMMENT

One of Mary Pickford's husbands has been injured in an airplane accident. It just shows what a far-sighted little girl Mary is, says the Toronto Star. Ordinary women keep only one husband apiece and when he's damaged where are they?

Mr. Mackenzie King, referring, at Paisley, Ont., to Mr. Meighen's Stirling description of men who walk firmly in the middle of the road, got somewhat mixed. He thought he said Mr. Meighen was assuming the role of the Pharisee and avoiding the common people; as for himself, Mr. King would take the part of the good Samaritan, and do what he could to bind the wounds and better the conditions of humanity. In the parable the men who passed along the road and neglected to help the stricken traveller were, one a priest, and the other a Levite. Mr. King must have been learning his scripture from the obsolete Ross Bible, which never was received as authoritative.—Montreal Gazette.

But Premier Drury cannot be credited with fidelity to his democratic faith when he justifies his colleague, Hon. Mr. Doherty, taking a government car on a private trip across the continent, even if that gentleman does pay the cost. That is not the point. The people are sick of railway charges and complain at times of inferior service; and one of the greatest drawbacks to fast passenger trains is overloading by private cars, often carrying a single politician riding in state! A section or an apartment is good enough for anyone; there are Ministers who have business to do along the way—like the Minister of Militia in the late war, the Premier and the like, but for a Minister who is a professed farmer to seek to travel in state because he is a Minister is a little too much of a good thing. But a private car on regular trains interferes with the speed and movements of the public who use the same train. Mr. Drury's excuse for Mr. Doherty will not go with the farmers themselves. And the motor habit has suddenly developed in many Ministers. The sedate Beniah Bowman of Manitoulin has set a pace unparalleled in the democratic pretensions of the past. Oh, Beniah!—Toronto World.

OTHER VIEWS

Times Change.

The man who used to go out between acts to get a drink now goes out to see if his motor car is still there.

The Uncle Was Dense.

A proud young father, telegraphed the news of his happiness to his brother in these words: "A handsome boy has come to my house and claims to be your nephew. We are doing our best to give him a proper welcome."

The brother, however, failed to see the point and wired back—"I have no nephew. The young man is an impostor."

Placing the Blame
(Brantford Expositor)

There is now said to be talk at Washington of sending military aid to help Poland. If the United States had joined the League of Nations a year ago, the need would not have existed today. Most of the trouble in Europe is due to the encouragement which discontented nations took from the refusal of the United States to ratify the Treaty of Versailles.

Coal For the Northwest
(New York Globe)

Experts appear to disagree on the bituminous coal shortage. From Washington arrives simultaneously a report from the Geological Survey to the effect that we are ahead of last year's production, and despatches asserting that the operators of the eastern district are 7,000,000 tons behind in deliveries to lake ports. But there is no inherent contradiction in these statements. This is a large country, and we may, for some inexplicable reason, need more bituminous coal this year than last. It is possible that we are, as has been stated, 44,000,000 tons ahead of last year, and that we still face a fuel famine in the northwest. We have sent more coal to tidewater this year than ever before, and industry in general has been crying out for tonnage. The lake ports have been neglected until it will be difficult to supply them before the winter sets in. If there are orders for 7,000,000 tons outstanding and unfilled the capacity operation of the railroads could no more than catch up before winter settles down over Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, and Montana. All the evidence tends to show an accelerated movement of cars during the latter part of July, but the movement will be short of our need. The present mileage per day is less, by a hopeless margin than was achieved under federal operation. The roads may have today the advantage in personnel but the government had so much the advantage in organization that private competitive management is unable to equal records of wartime service. Cars get lost; roads run parallel trains; there is nobody who can send rolling stock where it is needed, because every line is out for its own profit and not for the good of the community.

At any rate it is a problem of cars, not of coal. If the cars circulate rapidly enough the coal will be forthcoming. Too many mines lie idle waiting for meagre allotments of gondolas that arrive only after discouraging delay.

THE POET'S CORNER

WITH A SMILE

Meet whatever the world may bring with a smile and a jog along;
There's always a song for the song
you sing if your heart is in the song.
And when you meet the world with a smile it's sure to smile on you,
While over your head the sun burns bright and the velvet skies are blue.

Meet whatever the world may bring with a cheery hope and trust;
Kick up your heels and dance along,
and sing and smile and be just.
Whatever you give the world it gives a measure of that and more
To add in the end as on you wend to the wealth of your little store.

Meet whatever the world may bring with a faith that naught can shatter;
There's always something that's not just right, there's always something the matter.
But the heart that goes along with a song and the lips that go with a smile
Shall win a song for their own ere long and a smile from the after while.

Honoring Pilgrims.

Preparations for the tercentenary celebration in September of the sailing of the Pilgrim Fathers are already in advanced stage in Plymouth, England.

The program, as present arranged, opens on September 3 with a civic reception. On the morning of September 4 a literary and historical conference is to take place. In the afternoon there is to be an historical procession with tableaux and a united religious service will be held in the evening.

An open-air service is to be held at the Mayflower stone on Sunday morning, September 5. This is the historic spot on the Barbican from which the Pilgrim Fathers embarked in 1620.

A play based on the story of the Pilgrim Fathers is being written for production in England. In all probability there will be a ball in the Guild hall.

From September 1 to 10 the Mayflower pageant is to be presented with Captain the Rev. Hugh Parry as the pageant master. This will later be produced in the provinces and subsequently taken to America.

An Artist's Soul.

A man who is given to doing "odd jobs" about his house was very proud of a bit of painting he had accomplished. About midnight following the completion of the outside of the house he was awakened by a noise. Creeping to the window, he looked out, and, to his horror, saw a burglar climbing up a ladder to the second-story window. "Look out there!" yelled the householder to the burglar. "Look out for the paint!"

He Didn't Buy It.

Jack (to his fiancee): "I think of getting a musical instrument, Maud. Say, perhaps, a cornet."

Maud (in dismay): "Oh, not that horrid thing!"

Jack (in surprise): "And why not, dear?"

Maud (blushing violently): "It makes the lips so hard."

A Canadian Tenor.

The British Foreign Office, through Earl Curzon of Kedleston, has just transmitted to Edward Johnson, the opera tenor, the Cross of Officers of the Order of the Crown of Italy, conferred upon the singer by his majesty, King Victor Emanuel. The decoration was forwarded by the Italian Ambassador to the British office inasmuch as Mr. Johnson is a Canadian and a British subject. Last year he returned to America from Italy, where under the name of Eduardo di Giovanni he has been widely known as a leading figure in the opera houses and the creator of the tenor roles in many of the modern Italian operas, notably "Gianni Schicci," "Il Tabarro," "La Nave," and "L'Amore dei Tre Re." He was brought back to America by the late Cleofonte Campanini to undertake principal parts with the Chicago Opera Association, and his success has been most pronounced.

Buffalo Milk.

Experiments are contemplated with the Asiatic buffalo in the United States. It is a very valuable animal, its milk containing three and a half times as much butter fat as that of the every-day cow.

The dairy breeds of buffalo in northern India are huge animals, standing five feet high at the withers and with their huge spiral horns have a ferocious aspect; yet they are exceedingly gentle. The female yields over thirty pounds of milk a day, and from this quantity about two and one-half pounds of butter are obtained.

Buffaloes of these breeds are now being imported into the Philippines in large numbers, to furnish milk.

When the Americans first went to the Philippines they were much interested in the odd-looking beast known there as the "water buffalo"—a smaller variety commonly used as a draft animal, but giving little milk. It is extensively utilized in the same way in China.

The brute cannot endure hard work in the sun unless its skin is frequently wet, and hence its habit of wallowing in mud or water. If overcome by the heat it may go crazy and is liable to be dangerous. But the milch buffalo, kept for dairy purposes, needs no waterhole. At all events, it can get along without.

Revenge Is Sweet.

"Yes," proudly announced the ex-captain, who is manager of a new seaside hotel, "all our employes are former service men, every one of them. The reception clerk is an old infantryman. The waiters have all been non-coms., the chef was a mess-sergeant, the house doctor was a base hospital surgeon, the house detective was an intelligence man; even the pages were cadets."

"And have you any former military police?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied joyously. "When there's a good stiff wind blowing we set them to clean the outsides of the windows on the eighth floor!"

Tomatoes In Italy.

Italy harvests more than 20,000 acres of tomatoes yearly and wastage amounts to practically nothing. The skins and seeds, formerly discarded, are now utilized, the former as cattle food and the latter as a source of oil suitable for soap making and for lamps.

Smallest Bank in the World.

There is a saying among country people that "the smaller the bank the safer the money," and therefore the Wake County Savings bank, at Raleigh, N. C., should be the safest bank in America, since it is the smallest.

Of course, it is a trifle larger than a sock and easier to get money out of than the tin banks or the china pigs of one's childhood, but it manages to gather in a very great deal of money in the minimum space.

As a matter of fact, originally the space occupied by the bank was a hallway into the building back of it. Some changes in the architecture of the place made the hallway unnecessary, and so the savings bank decided on an "office" there. Now it is a "regular bank," with an imposing entrance—and that is about all. Its frontage, to be exact, is 7½ feet.

"Bachelor of Commerce."

The plan of the University of London to grant degrees in commerce is attracting much attention. Under this scheme it is proposed to grant the degree of bachelor of commerce to candidates who pass the necessary examinations after a three years' course of study. Those who so desire may later proceed to the degree of master of commerce, after a minimum of two years' practical experience in the particular trade or industry taken up.

The first year's course comprises the compulsory subjects of organization of industry, banking, trade and transport; modern economic development of the British empire and of the chief foreign countries; elementary commercial law, and statistical method. The second and final year will be devoted to specialization.

Placing Himself.

Luther Burbank, like Thomas A. Edison, has had his brain incorporated and capitalized. He has done many wonderful things, one of the biggest being the perfecting of the spineless cactus, which is a great cattle food staple. Also to his credit are the Shasta daisy, the stoneless prune and the seedless grape. His patience is wonderful and they say that at one time he raised 50,000,000 lillies to get a single half-dozen that were perfect.

"No wonder they call you the 'wizard' of California," remarked a Los Angeles reporter once. Burbank laughed, and replied: "They might better call me the gizzard of California."

A Spartan Father.

A French-Canadian father of two sons, one of whom was gassed in France and the other escaped service in the United States army through misrepresentations as to his age, will aid the United States district attorney in the prosecution of his "derelict and unpatriotic son," it was announced recently. The district attorney would not divulge the father's name.

This case is only one of 7,572 draft evaders in the southern district of New York who will be hunted by United States federal authorities in a round-up which will start in a few days. Authorities state that after many months of secret work the United States Government now was ready to gather in the offenders.

CURIOUS CLOCKS.

Two of Them Never Struck One o'Clock.

The announcement that the British Home Secretary has appointed a committee to consider and report as to the advisability of adopting in the United Kingdom, for official and other public purposes, the twenty-four hour method of expressing time, reminds one that among the most curious clocks in the world are two in Worsley, Lancashire, that never strike one. Instead they strike thirteen at one a.m. and one p.m. One of them is over the Earl of Ellesmere's place, called Worsley Hall, and is the original clock which the Duke of Bridgewater had placed in the tower. It is said that the duke had the clock made to strike the "unlucky" number so as to warn his workmen that it was time to return after dinner, some of them having excused themselves for being late on the ground that they could not hear it strike one.

This recalls the incident when the big clock of the Houses of Parliament saved a man's life. A soldier in the reign of William and Mary was condemned by court-martial for falling asleep while on duty on the terrace at Windsor. He stoutly denied the charge, and by way of proof solemnly declared that he heard Old Tom (the predecessor of Big Ben) strike thirteen instead of twelve. The officers laughed at the idea, but while the man was in prison awaiting execution, several persons came forward and swore that the clock actually did strike thirteen, whereupon the soldier was pardoned and released.

Wells Cathedral contains one of the most interesting clocks in the world. It was constructed by Peter Lightfoot, a monk, in 1320, and embraces many devices which testify to the ancient horologist's ingenuity. Several celestial and terrestrial bodies are incorporated in the interesting movement and relationship. They indicate the hours of the day, the age of the moon, and the position of the planet and the tides.

When the clock strikes the hour two companies of horsemen, fully armed, dash out of gateways in opposite directions and charge vigorously. They strike with their lances as they pass as many times as correspond with the number of the hour. A little distance away, seated on a high perch, is a quaint little figure, which kicks the quarters on two bells beneath his feet and strikes the hours on the bell. The dial of the clock is divided into twenty-four hours and shows the phases of the moon and a map of the universe.

An oddity in clocks is the invention of a Frenchman, Paul Cornu. It consists of a dial mounted above a reservoir and having a sort of seesaw mounted upon its support. The reservoir holds sufficient alcohol to last for a month, and this serves as fuel for a small flame that burns at one end. The heat from the flame causes the air to expand in the bulb of the seesaw directly above it. As a result, the seesaw moves every five seconds. This movement is the motive power that actuates the clock.

In Switzerland are made clocks that do not require hands and faces. The timepiece merely stands in the hall, and one presses a button, and by means of the phonographic internal arrangements calls out "Half-past four," or "Five minutes to ten," or whatever the time may be.

A Swiss has invented a remarkable sick-room clock. When a button is pressed an electric lamp behind the dial throws the shadow of the hours and hands magnified upon the ceiling, so that invalids can see it from bed without craning their necks or putting themselves to any inconvenience.

A Dutch shoemaker spent fifteen years of his leisure moment in constructing a clock of the grandfather shape nearly six feet high, made entirely of straw. The wheels, pointers, case, and every detail are exclusively of straw.

Heating Boilers by Electricity.

Some boilers for generating steam by means of heat produced electricity are applicable to cases where coal is scarce but water power is cheap; such, for instance, as in some wood pulp and paper factories of the far north. The heating is effected by the passage of electric currents through the water. For this purpose narrow tubes of insulating material are provided. These contain water, and are vertically arranged so as to communicate with the interior of the boiler at the upper and lower ends of the tubes. Current is sent through the water columns contained in the tubes, and, as the resistance is great, considerable voltages are required. Alternating current must be used, and, in the case of three-phase currents, the tubes are connected in groups of three. The strength of the current is regulated by moving the electrodes in the tubes. The inefficiency of the boilers in 95 per cent. and over, and one unit of electricity produces about 1.25 kilogramme of steam at 6 to 8 atmospheres. Up to the present electric steam boilers have been built in units up to a capacity of 1,500 kilowatts, with voltages of supply up to 10,000 volts.

Smokeless Powder.

The size and shape of powder grain is based on the fact that when smokeless powder is ignited, it burns only on the surface. The larger the exposed surface is, the faster the grain burns. In order to give cannon powder a larger burning surface, the grains are pierced with seven holes. When a grain is ignited, it burns not only on its outside surface, but also on the inside surface of these holes. As the outside of the grain burns away, the surface diminishes, but as the inside surface of the holes burn, the surface increases. These two factors may be made to balance.

The innovation of supplying comfortable armchairs and rockers on board the vessels of the British navy is to be made soon. Heretofore it has not been regarded as wise to give the men these comforts.

Ponzi to Pay Fifty Cents on Dollar

This is Estimate Made by Officials After Examining Estate

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—A payment of less than 50 cents on the dollar to the creditors of Charles Ponzi's quick-rich scheme, if officials' estimates of his liabilities are correct, was indicated by his statement of assets at the receivers' hearing.

Assuring the Federal receivers that he had disclosed all he knew, Ponzi told of assets, which Robert G. Dodge counsel for the receivers declared 000,000." The official estimate of his 000,000." The official estimate of hih liabilities, made after an audit of his accounts, stands at $7,000,000. Ponzi said he thought this was an error. He claimed that he was solvent and had nearly four millions of assets to meet his liabilities which he set at three millions.

FINED FOR SELLING MILK BELOW STANDARD

Brantford, Aug. 26.—It cost J. A. Campbell, a Brantford township dairyman, $12.78 in Police Court for selling milk below the standard set by the Government. Professor Dean of the Ontario Agricultural College was present and much technical evidence as to the butter fat contents of milk was taken.

FISHERY SOCIETY TO HOLD CONVENTION IN OTTAWA

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—The annual convention of the American Fisheries Society will be held in Ottawa from September 20 to 24. This is the first time this convention has been held outside the United States, and the Ottawa meeting will mark the fifty-eighth anniversary of the society. As members of the International Association of Fish, Game and Conservation Commissioners will be meeting here at the same time and as the membership of the different organizations is largely the same, the meetings will be held conjointly.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Introducing Clay Wimburn, young New Yorker on visit to Cleveland, and Mrs. and Miss Daphne Kip.

CHAPTER II—The acquaintance of the young people ripens into love and Wimburn and Daphne become engaged.

From the little rubber mouth of the receiver her voice came to him as from a distant star by interplanetary communication. The sense of remoteness was unbearable. Life seemed to be dead and wailing across eternity.

Clay Wimburn was in complete distress. His health wavered and his office work suffered till it won rebukes and threats from his chiefs and comment even from Bayard Kip, who never suspected and was never told of Wimburn's infatuation for his sister.

With lover's logic Wimburn persuaded himself that the only one who could save him from destruction was Daphne. With her married and all, and ensconced in a little nest in New York, he could take up his office tasks with a whole heart. So he began to write, and to telegraph, and to groan across the living wire wilder and wilder cries for help.

Daphne wept back and repaid his longings in kind and suffered heart-rending ecstasies of yearning. And finally she promised frantically to marry him without further delay.

With a desire to economize in pain she broke the double news to her two parents at the same time, telling them both that she was engaged and that she was about to wed.

They were stunned. They had never experienced a suspicion of the acute state of Daphne's heart affairs. It is really astounding how blind parents are to their children's activities and how much can go on under their noses without catching their heavy eyes.

Daphne easily browbeat her father and mother into consenting to her early marriage. Her father groaned at the thought of the wedding expenses, but consoled himself with a Pisgah-sight of the Canaan when the last of his dear children should be living at another man's cost.

Mrs. Kip made one stipulation; "I won't let Daphne sneak away to New York and be married by a justice of the peace or a coroner or whoever does such things in New York. She must have a church wedding and a home reception."

Daphne accepted this unanimously, with one amendment.

"I must go to New York to get my trousseau."

"Of course," said Mrs. Kip.

"Of course not!" said Mr. Kip.

"Why not?" said Mrs. Kip.

"The expense is the why not! What's the use of spending a fortune on clothes? The money that goes out for these honeymoons might better be turned into the wedding fund. Lord knows Daphne will need dollars more than she needs duds if she marries that young fellow."

Daphne broke out in a revolt. "Oh, but I'll be glad to be free from this everlasting talk of money, money, money! I hate it. I hate to take it from you. If it weren't for the disgrace I'd bring to you and mamma I wouldn't accept a cent; I'd be married in my old bathrobe. Thank heaven, I'm marrying a man who doesn't hang onto every penny like grim death."

In her own heart she did not realise what a grievous wound she dealt the battered old heart of her father till he sighed:

"I was like him when I was his age. Maybe he'll be like me when he's mine. If I had been more of a miser then I guess I'd be less of one now."

Then Daphne caught the hunted, hounded look behind his spectacles and flung herself in his arms, weeping: "Forgive me, daddy. I'm a little beast to talk to you so. I don't mean it. I'm just excited. I'll get only the simplest things, and some day when Clay and I are rich I'll pay you back a thousandfold."

He patted her and kissed her gawkily, and, manlike, having gained his point, threw it away:

"You get whatever is best and nicest. You're the pirtiest girl in Ohio and you're going to have the finest wedding ever was seen in Cleveland. And I'll find the money all right, never you fear."

He had just remembered a bit of real estate that had not yet been decorated with a second mortgage. He had bought it secretly with the proceeds of a windfall. That was his double life. Instead of spending money surreptitiously on dissipations, when he had a bit of luck he sneaked out and invested it in something he could borrow money on in a crisis. The crisis never failed him.

So Daphne wrote to her brother that she was coming to New York to buy a trousseau for her wedding to the dearest boy on earth, whose name she would not tell him till she saw him.

Her letter crossed a letter from Bayard, who began it with his regular apology for his unavoidable delay in writing home.

Dearest Mother, Dad and Sis—Received several sweet letters from you, mother, and meant to answer, but been very busy. These hard times forced us to cut down staff and threw extra work on men retained. But business has been so bad so long it can't get any worse. Bound to get better.

So I'm going to—don't drop dead yet—I'm going to get married. Found the angel of the world. Known it for a long time; been engaged a year, waiting to get rich enough to place her where she belongs. Not there yet, but can't stand bachelorhood any longer.

Wedding date not settled yet, but probably some time in June. That would make a good song, "Some Time in June." Will let you know exact date.

Silence followed the document. And there are few documents that mean so much to every family as that bearing the news that one of the children has gone into the world and found a mate and given up the ancient loyalty for the new.

CHAPTER IV.

The two old Kips sat brooding over their mystery. The fruit of their almost forgotten romance, the little, squalling, helpless baby that had come to them and strangely evolved into a great, grown man, was now in the toils of romance in his turn. He had found, in a far city, somebody there that he loved better than his family or his friends or his freedom.

Daphne was delighted at first. Then she realized that the news of his marriage would throw her own plans into disarray. She sighed:

"I suppose I'd better postpone my wedding till we get Bayard off our hands."

"That's a fine idea!" her father exclaimed. It was always a joy to him to defer an expense. Mrs. Kip flung him a glare and Daphne rolled her eyes in distress, but he redeemed himself with an unexpectedly graceful turn. "It lets us keep Daphne with us a little longer."

Daphne wrote this new decision to

WELCOMED AS RIGHT SORT

Newcomer's Record Made Him Eligible to Inner Circles of Indiana's Big Penitentiary.

Frank P. Litschert, secretary to Governor Goodrich, spent several days at the state prison, Michigan City, recently, and being fortuuate enough to get out again is telling the following yarn:

Warden Fogarty of the prison likes to make as easy as he can the hard lot of the prisoners, and has arranged for ball games at intervals within the prison walls. Convicts form the teams, and while there is some difficulty in getting one to act as umpire, the games usually are pulled off in good style.

A visitor from South Bend was at the prison one day when a game was scheduled, and being a former ball player it was suggested that he put on the prison uniform and get into the game "incog" and put a little professional "pep" into it.

Eventually the "ringer" was all fitted out and was placed in the lot. He was sitting on the bench when a typical convict "hard guy" swaggered up to him and sympathetically inquired:

"Hello, bo! What ya in fer?"

The outsider was nonplused, but recovering in a moment he replied:

"Oh, I beaned a guy."

"Did ya put 'im clean out?" again inquired the hard guy, with professional interest.

"Yep," said the ringer.

Whereupon the convict, fraternal to the core, gleefully commented:

"Atta boy!"—Indianapolis News.

HAVE NEW SENSE OF DUTY

America Probably Has Taught Much to French Women of the Highest Social Position.

They were handing out pots and pans to the returned refugees at Reims that day.

It was really a very gay occasion, says Blanche Brace in World Outlook. The pots and pans made it so, in spite of the ghosts of dead homes (mere hollow shells of ruined houses) all around the shattered building where the distribution was being made, the broken cathedral over yonder, the miles of desolation everywhere. Sometimes the refugee women hugged the cheap utensils to them and crooned over them as if they had been children; sometimes they wanted to pay a few centimes "rent" for them, so that they might feel the things were their own. These were not just pots and pans, but the promise of comfort and security again, the nucleus for new homes that should rise from the ruins.

A countess with smudged fingers, and half a dozen other French women of prestige, stood behind the counter and handed out the utensils. All at once a middle-aged, homely mere dropped her pan with a clatter.

"Mon Dieu!" she gasped, "is she a countess? And I fought with her for a bigger pot! And working so hard—what does it mean?"

What it meant was that France learned two new words from America during the war—social service.

Business had been bad with the touring theatrical company in the last two towns they had visited.

But the advance booking in the next town was said to be good, and it was only this hope that held the little company together.

At last, in the late hours of Sunday evening, the company reached the city of its hopes.

The manager stepped from the train and gazed over the railway station railings.

"What a glorious sunset!" he exclaimed.

"Garn!" yelled a passing youngster. "That's the theayter burnin' down!"

OVER 70,000 PRISONERS OFFICIALLY COUNTED

Washington, Aug. 25.—A cablegram received by the Polish Embassy last night says:

"The Bolshevik army is completely defeated and cannot resist the attacks of our troops. Every day thousands of prisoners are being taken, until now there are 70,000 prisoners. The peasants, armed with scythes, are bringing in prisoners. The military spoils are great.

"Bielystok is retaken, which cuts off the rest of the Bolshevik army.

"I ended corns forever in this scientific way",

Millions have said that about Blue-jay.

Others tried it and told others the same story. So the use has spread, until corn troubles have largely disappeared.

If you have a corn you can settle it tonight. And find the way to end every corn.

Apply liquid Blue-jay or a Blue-jay plaster. The pain will stop.

Soon the whole corn will loosen and come out.

Think what folly it is to keep corns, to pare or pad them, or to use the old harsh treatments.

Here is the new-day way, gentle, sure and scientific. It was created by a noted chemist in this world-famed laboratory.

It is ending millions of corns by a touch. The relief is quick, and it ends them completely.

Try it tonight. Corns are utterly needless, and this is the time to prove it.

THE MARKET

One dollar per bushel was asked for tomatoes on the market Thursday morning and $1.25 per bag for potatoes. Corn and apples were offered in abundance.

LIQUOR CASE ENLARGED.

Charged by Inspector Arnott with selling liquor a local resident appeared before Magistrate Masson Thursday morning and the case was enlarged for one week.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

William McDonald, charged with assaulting Harriet Levesque, was committed for trial by Magistrate Masson. The alleged offence occurred on August 14. Col. E. D. O'Flynn appeared for the defence and Crown Attorney Carnew for the prosecution.

SECTIONMAN INJURED

At Napanee on Wednesday a G.T.R. sectionman named Bruce Matthews was injured. He was pushing a lorry loaded with rails and in making a switch some of the rails rolled off on Mr. Matthews. The injured man was taken to Kingston hospital with a broken leg and other injuries, but no serious result is anticipated.

BRIGHTON PIONEER DIES

One of the few remaining pioneers of Brighton township has passed in the death of John Wade, in his ninetieth year. He was born in England and came to Canada when a child and settled at what is now Wade's Corners, which was named after the family. He was married 68 years ago and his wife survives him, besides six sons and two daughters.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Little four-year-old Mary Kuz, of Olive Avenue, Oshawa, narrowly escaped death last Wednesday afternoon when she ran out in front of Mr. Walter Killoran's car just in front of her father's grocery store on Olive avenue. Mr. Killoran was driving east on Olive avenue at a moderate rate when the little girl made an attempt to dash across the street in front of him.

A BIG FISH

A monster maskinonge, four feet three inches in length and weighing thirty-five pounds, was caught by Samuel Hart of Rossmore, while trolling on the bay Wednesday afternoon. The fisherman had no gaff but managed to stun the big fish with a stick and safely land him. The monster fish was on exhibition in the window of the Ellis fish store Thursday morning and attracted considerable attention.

MANY HARVESTERS.

According to all reports received on the matter, Ontario has sent a goodly number of harvesters to the Western harvest fields. On the harvesters' excursions which closed last Thursday, 15,000 passengers booked from Toronto alone, while the entire systems of the C.N.R. and C.P.R. accommodated approximately 30,000 people. An idea of the immensity of the harvest may be obtained from the fact that 7,000 more harvesters have been called for.

CHILD BURNED.

Helen Brown, aged about nine years, whose home is on the corner of Lewis and Yeomans streets, had a very narrow escape from death Wednesday evening. The little girl, in playing with matches, some way ignited her dress. Her life was undoubtedly saved by the thoughtfulness and quick action of her mother, who, as soon as she saw the child's danger, ripped her dress off, which was a mass of flames. Although severely burned and suffering from nervous shock, she is doing nicely.

DEATH OF H. W. SAGER.

Hiram W. Sager, employed as a clerk in John Dalton's hardware store, Deseronto, expired suddenly Tuesday evening. Taken ill at the store shortly before six, Mr. Sager was taken home, where he died a short time afterwards from an affection of the heart. The late Mr. Sager was born in Richmond, where he farmed. Selling his farm he moved into town and a few years ago entered the employ of John Dalton. He was courteous and trustworthy. He was a Liberal and a member of Deseronto Methodist church.

FINE CATCH IN CONSECON

Just a little the nicest catch of fish that has come into Oshawa for years was shown by Jeck Kellow, and Ben. McCabe, upon their arrival from a week-end trip to Consecon, Prince Edward county. This catch consisted of twenty-one bass, the largest of which, after being out of the water twenty-four hours, weighed five pounds four ounces; nineteen pikes varying in weight from two pounds to eight pounds, and four pickerel of three to four pounds. This is their seventh fishing trip together and they pronounce it the banner trip of all. Consecon, which is situated twelve miles south of Trenton on the C. N. Railway, one of the handiest fishing grounds to reach.

EX-CORPORAL HAD NO SHOW

Not Exactly a Willing Father-in-Law, but He Couldn't Forget His Army Training.

The youthful ex-lieutenant felt ill at ease as he approached the young looking but the older ex-corporal. They had been in the same company. That was before the young officer knew the corporal had a beautiful daughter.

"Er—Mr. Jenkins," the young man addressed the other. "I—er—wish to—"

"Speak freely, sir, sir—er—Mr. Hadley," replied the older man.

"Well, the fact of the matter is I want to marry your daughter."

"Not, by a darned sight. Why, you impudent young dog, if I had you outside I'd whale you good and proper. You lay off that stuff. Get me?"

Whereupon the angry Jenkins started for the young man. Hadley simply straightened up.

"'Shun!" he snapped, as only one who has been in the army can say it.

Involuntarily the other drew himself up a second quicker than greased lightning. Hadley went on.

"Now, Bernice and I love each other and—"

"Cut it out. By George—"

"It's K. P. for you if I hear any more talk like that."

"But—"

"No liberty for ten days, either."

"Say, whose house is this? You are not my—"

"'Shun!"

Habit was too strong and Jenkins came up standing. Then he burst out:

"You get the—"

"Extra guard duty for that. If I have to speak again it'll be thirty days in the brig."

Bernice herself came into the room at that moment. She annexed herself to young Hadley, who promptly put his arm around her. Jenkins advanced as if to separate them when Hadley roared:

"As you were!"

"Look here—"

"'Shun!"

The older man's eyes blazed for an instant. His mouth set in a fine line. Then he spoke quietly but firmly, as a man who has difficulty in keeping control of himself.

"Sir, the war is over, although you don't seem to know it. Take that girl away from here and marry her. As an ex-corporal, I can't seem to get your number, and you know it. But as your father-in-law, I can tell you where to get off at. Beat it!"—Cartoons Magazine.

Japanese Rockefeller.

A formidable oil field described by William Dietrich in a recent issue of the Petroleum Age lies in the Higashiyama district on the Sea of Japan. "Coolies dig a hole with a pick and shovel," says the writer, "and crib or brace the walls as they go down. Their wives pull up the dirt and the shale. Some of these hand-dug wells are exceedingly deep, and the natives pump air into them with an old-fashioned blower.

"The field covers about sixteen square miles, and in this are several producing wells. The largest of these produce about ten koku (or 480 gallons) a day. Other wells furnish not more than five gallons daily.

"It is a common practice for the head of a family to go to the oil wells with two of the familiar five-gallon oil-tins hanging from a yoke about his neck. He carries the tins, filled with crude oil, from five to seven miles to his little home refinery, and the whole family then turn to and help him refine it. When that is finished, the children take the oil to residential districts nearby, and peddle it from house to house in one or two sen lots."

Britain's Debt to Gordon.

Sir Reginald Wingate talked of the Sudan in war and peace, the other day, and asked a question. "Is it realized that this country, which Gordon characterized as an 'utterly useless possession,' comprises a territory of considerably over a million square miles, a large portion desert and wilderness, it is true, but through which the great Nile flows, spreading its fertilizing waters over vast areas?" Three outstanding dates, 1882, 1898, and 1916, milestones of Sudanese history, and then peace. Gordon, Omdurman, the defeat of Ali Dinar of Darfur, and then the Sudanese chiefs congratulating the king of England on victory in his own capital. That is 1919. Nineteen hundred and fourteen saw the great Sudanese leaders in Khartum vow loyalty to the cause for which Great Britain had taken up arms. And none of it would have been but for Gordon's sacrifice.

Breaking a Bad Habit.

"I see you have brought your dear old-fashioned father to the Catskills again this season, Miss Slick."

"Oh, yes, Miss Peck, we could hardly get along without papa, even if his manners are horrid."

"But I note a great improvement in his style of eating."

"In what way?"

"Why, now he invariably uses his fork."

"Yes, yes. You see, we bribe the waiter to put soap on papa's knife."

Goes Eve One Better.

Mother (indignantly) — Why did you strike little Nancy, you naughty boy?

Peter—What did she want to cheat for, then?

Mother—How did she cheat?

Peter—Why, we were playing at Adam and Eve, and she had the apple to tempt me with, and she never tempted me, but went and ate it herself!

Wedding Bells

LEAVENS—WAITE.

At high noon, Wednesday, August 25, 1920, the marriage took place of Mr. Ernest Everett Leavens, of Oshawa and Miss Ernestine Waite, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. E. S. Waite, Sidney Township. The house was prettily decorated with hydrangeas, ferns and asters, and the bride was given away by her father. The bridesmaid was Miss Marjorie Davidson and the flower girl little Miss Lenna Pearce. The Wedding March from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. C. Snider, of Smithfield, and the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, passed through an aisle formed by eight girl friends holding ribbons suspended from a white bell, and leading up to an arch of hydrangeas and ferns, under which the marriage ceremony took place.

The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of white satin, daintily trimmed with French embroidery, and wore a veil with wreath of white lilies, carrying a bouquet of white Ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marjorie Davidson, wore a costume of maize georgette, accordeon pleated, and carried pink roses tied with maize tulle. The flower girl, little Miss Lenna Pearce, was dressed in white organdy and carried a bouquet of white asters.

The groomsman was Mr. Eugene Kimber.

A handsome lady's suit case was the groom's gift to the bride. To the bridesmaid he gave a beautiful cameo pendant, to the groomsman gold initia'ed cuff links, to the flower girl a signet ring, and to the pianist a pearl brooch.

The bride's going-away costume was of brown tricotine with brown hat to match.

Rev. A. H. Foster, pastor of the Holloway street Methodist Church, performed the ceremony, at the conclusion of which a dainty buffet luncheon was served on the lawn. Guests were present from Oshawa, Picton, Hamilton, Brighton, Wellington and Smithfield, in addition to those from Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Leavens left during the afternoon on a wedding trip to Toronto, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other places, and upon their return they will reside in Oshawa. They have the best wishes of a wide circle of friends.

Miss Anna Shannon of Bay City, Mich., is visiting her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Foltz, 42 Grove St.

Miss Melissa Reims of Toronto has been visiting a few days with her aunt Mrs. W. M. Whyte.

NEW C.N.R. BRANCH

It is expected that a branch of the C.N.R. will be built from Westport into the township of Bedford, Frontenac county, for the benefit of the feldspar mines in that region. The best feldspar in the world comes from this county and better railway facilities are required. An effort is to be made to have grinding mills established on this side of the line so that all the spar will not be shipped free of duty into the United States. Kingston has a tile works that uses much feldspar and the development of the mines is expected to be a great thing for this district.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Thos. Williams, an inmate of the House of Refuge who was committed from Murray township, attempted to take his life on Wednesday of last week by cutting his throat with an old tobacco knife. The wound extended from ear to ear, but was not deep enough to sever an artery. Dr. Field the gaol physician had to put seven stitches in the wound. The old man has been melancholy and has not just been right in his mind for some time. He was taken to the hospital ward at the gaol and is recovering nicely under the care he is getting.—Cobourg Sentinel Star.

CALLED BY DEATH

ROBERT TURNER

The many friends of Robert Turner who died in Lindsay hospital following an accident on Tuesday were shocked by the sad event and sincere sympathy is felt for the bereaved widow. Mr. Turner was thirty-eight years of age, was born in Ireland and came to Canada sixteen years ago, entering the employ of the Grand Trunk Railway as bridge carpenter ten years ago. He was a member of the Baptist church and a member of Moira Lodge, No. 11, A. F. & A. M. The body arrived from Lindsay Wednesday evening and was taken to the home of Mrs. Turner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster, corner of Earl and Gordon streets.

All the Kitten's Fault.

My father and mother were married at St. Paul. The room in which they were to be married had a white cloth tacked down over the carpet and an altar arranged at one side.

Just before the wedding party entered a little black kitten ran into the room and jumped about on the white cloth and in front of the altar until some one drove it out. Some said it was a sign of bad luck, but the others laughed at their superstition.

The couple traveled to Chicago on their honeymoon. The night they arrived the old cow kicked the lamp over and Chicago burned up. They lost their entire wardrobe, and all their money, barely escaping with their lives.—Exchange.

Widows Are Wonderful.

"I love you! I love you!" he murmured for the nineteenth time. "Speak! Answer me!"

The maiden coyly hung her head.

"I—oh, John, this is so sudden!" she pleaded.

He drew her closer to him.

"Don't be afraid, darling!" he said gently. "Would you like me to ask your mother first?"

With a cry of alarm she threw her arms round his neck.

"No, no!" she gasped. "Mother is a widow. I want you for myself!"

KINGSTON MAY REDUCE HYDRO RATES AGAIN

Kingston, Aug. 26.—The Utilities Commission is going to try and arrange another reduction in the local electrical power rates if the Provincial Hydro-Electric Commission will permit it. Mayor Nnickle advocated making an endeavor to effect a further reduction, claiming that when there was a profit of $32,000 on $112,000 of electrical business last year, a reduction of 20 instead of the 10 per cent. recently made was quite in order. Kingston still pays $28 a horse power, but when it takes a larger block of power the rate will drop to $25.

Montreal, Aug. 26.—The Montreal Gazette will carry in to-morrow's issue an announcement that the paper will "On and after Wednesday, September 1st, 1920 be sold at five cents," while the subscription price will be raised to $12 a year. The announcement states that the new price represents an advance to subscribers of about one-third the increased cost of publication and that the average percentage increase in costs has been 170 per cent. in the past six years.

Stolen Motor Car Found At Marmora

Four Belleville Youths Arrested By Marmora Chief of Police

Armed with German automatic revolvers, a plentiful supply of ammunition and inspired by some foolish dime novel dreams, four Belleville youths ranging from fourteen to eighteen years of age reached Marmora Wednesday in a Dodge motor car owned by Moses Tobe, merchant of Belleville and abstracted from his garage between dark and daylight. A blowout at Marmora halted the caravan there as there was no extra tire and the lads gave the place the once over without causing any undue alarm as their appearance was anything but ferocious despite the sinister armament concealed upon their persons. A Trenton young man named Ray Morden, who was at Marmora, seeing the car and the boys thought there was something wrong about the outfit and telephoned to the office of H. F. Ketcheson to ascertain who owned the car. The Ketcheson staff telephoned to Chief of Police Newton who at once got in touch with Marmora and sent Sergt. Naphin and P. C. White there in a motor car to apprehend the boys.

In the meantime Chief of Police Gillen, who had been advised by Chief Newton of Belleville, of the stolen car got busy and assisted by several towns people, rounded up the quartette. Two of the youths made a break for liberty when approached by Chief Gillen but were soon captured and handed over to Sergt. Naphin and P. C. White who arrived shortly after the arrest. The quartette when searched were found to be carrying two vicious looking automatic revolvers of German make with ammunition to fit and the weapons were confiscated.

In Police Court Thursday morning Magistrate Masson remanded the prisoners for one week and they will come up for trial on September 1.

Chief of Police Newton is very much pleased at the prompt and efficient action of Chief of Police Gillen of Marmora and his assistants in bringing the pilgrimage of the youths to a sudden end as they were repairing the tire preparatory to resuming their journey when apprehended.

DRAGGED ACROSS FIELD IN CULTIVATOR TEETH

St. Thomas, Aug. 26.—Holon Walker and James Anderson were seriously injured on the latter's farm at Springfield last evening in two curious accidents. Mr Anderson was cultivating and accidently dropped the lines, and in reaching for them fell forward among the cultivator teeth. The horses became frightened and dashed across the field dragging Mr. Anderson with them. Before they were stopped Mr. Anderson's leg was broken and other severe injuries sustained. At the same time Mr. Walker, who was driving to the farm was thrown from a buggy when the horse he was driving reared. His knee was badly wrenched.

RITCHIE'S NEW SERGES

FOR THE NEW SEASON

With the approaching Autumn season, new styles and new dresses are in demand.

The Ritchie Co., Limited, have much pleasure in announcing the arrival of a large stock of New Serge Dresses and Suits for the approaching season.

SERGE DRESSES

The new arrival of Serge Dresses are the smartest styles that have ever been introduced. The gold thread work on these dresses has been executed with the utmost skill on the part of the embroiderer to give effect. The tailoring is in every way perfect and the quality of the material is the best that can be got. We can assure our customers that this stock is well worth your inspection. A few have been placed on exhibition in our windows but there is a very fine assortment in the Mantle Dept. (Main Floor) and we shall have great pleasure in laying any out for your inspection.

The New Serge Suits

The new Serge Suits that are now on hand are exceptionally well tailored and extremely smart in appearance.

The new style has the popular narrow loose belt attached and the long style coat, which is so much in demand at the present time. Some of the Skirts are made in the accordeon pleated style and are very smart. Others are finished with little tucks which give a very smart and attractive look to the suit. Large buttons to match the material have been used with good effect and altogether the turnout of the new style is perfect

We ask you to call and see these Suits. Our space will not allow us to describe the many beauties and the fine points. By seeing them you will understand their value. On show in the Mantle Dept. (Main Floor).

The New Fall Coats HAVE ARRIVED

Many very beautiful and smart Autumn Coats have arrived and will be on show in the Mantle Room this week. On account of the large assortment we cannot fully describe them in this advertisement, and again we ask you to call. One of the very many styles is a

Lord Mayor Of Cork Given Only 24 Hours More To Live

INTEREST IN MACSWEENEY'S CASE AT FEVER HEAT THROUGHOUT ENGLAND—BREAKERS AHEAD—BRITISH PAPERS FEAR THAT MAYOR'S DEATH WILL FAN IRISH ANARCHY.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Terence MacSweeney, Lord Mayor of Cork, was given but 24 hours to live by physicians at Brixton Prison today.

Interest in the condition of the Irish official, who is near death from a hunger strike, was at white heat throughout England and Ireland.

The majority of British papers urged the Government to release him, declaring it would be a "fatal blunder" to allow him to die. They pointed out that the situation in Ireland rapidly is nearing an irreparable breach, and that MacSweeney's dramatic death would fan the flames into veritable anarchy.

Abandon All Hope.

Hope for MacSweeney's release, abandoned yesterday with receipt of Premier Lloyd George's message from Lucerne declaring it would be impossible to make an exception to the law in the Lord Mayor's case, was revived today by King George's reply to a communication from Redmond Howard, nephew of the late John Redmond.

Howard urged MacSweeney's release. The King "gratefully acknowledged" the Redmond family's sacrifices for the country and concluded: "Your appeal will receive my immediate and careful consideration."

Thirty thousand Irish sympathizers staged a demonstration outside the prison last night. The police dispersed them after arresting several. Members of the British Labor party participated in the demonstration.

Contentions Clash.

British Government officials in Dublin issued a statement denying that MacSweeney was arrested while peacefully performing his civil duties. The statement said that on the contrary, he was attending a meeting of officers of the "Republican army," in which he held the rank of brigadier-general, when he was taken in a raid.

"This is characteristic Sinn Fein strategy," said the Post editorially. "Where there is murder afoot they pose as belligerents engaged in legitimate warfare. When captured they are peaceful citizens, claiming indulgence of the law. On their own pretensions MacSweeney is a prisoner of war with no more claim to escape internment than the Germans had in war time."

Fifteenth Day of Mayor's Fast

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Terence MacSweeney, Lord Mayor of Cork, today began the fifteenth day of his hunger strike in much the same condition of yesterday. He was weak this morning but was conscious and able to speak a little. It was said that Mayor MacSweeney might live another week if his lungs have not been attacked as a result of previous illness.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Nationalist forces of Mustapha Kemal Pasha are reported to be concentrating in the vicinity of Eskishehr, Asia Minor, according to advices reaching the French Foreign Office. These advices say that clashes already have occurred between British and Kemalists a few kilometres south of Ismid, while the Greeks have been attacked by Nationalists in the vicinity of Demirdje. There were casualties in both affrays.

CANCER EXPERT HAS SIX ASSISTANTS

Toronto, Aug. 26.—Dr. Thomas J. Glover, who has established an office in the former home of the late Cawthra Mulock, at 538 Jarvis street, to continue his "cancer serum" treatments, is working strenuously, often from eight in the morning until three the next morning. Assisting him are some six medical men, conducting clinics and laboratory experiments.

Rev. Father Bench, secretary of St. Michael's Hospital, told The Star that the new office has no connection whatever with St. Michael's Hospital. The work was becoming impossible there, he said.

The Star met Dr. Glover as he left his offices at eight o'clock last night after finishing a long day's work. Accompanying the doctor was his business manager, Mr. Peter Griffin.

"Is it permissible to ask who has purchased the house and furnishings?" The Star asked. "There is nothing at all that I can tell you."

Dr. Glover was rather displeased with a report in Toronto papers that one of his patients, an Italian, had died. The man in question had never received treatment, but came to the hospital in a dying condition from a complication of ailments, the doctor said.

It is interesting to note that the new offices of the doctor are situated directly across from the home of Father Bench of St. Michael's Hospital, and that several residences close by have been purchased by Roman Catholic agents for hospital and educational purposes.

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER WAS ASLEEP AT POST

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 27.—C. E. Bassett, engineer of the Lake Shore train which ran into an open derailer near Schoolcraft last Saturday, killing himself and two others, was asleep at the time of the accident, according to a verdict of the jury returned on Tuesday afternoon.

The verdict was based on the indirect testimony of the engineer himself the doctor and the night operator at Schoolcraft having repeated statements purporting to have been made to them by Engineer Bassett just before his death.

Bassett, they said, admitted he was asleep at his post when the engine flew past the block signal.

British Public Turns Hostile To Reds

Lloyd George Finds Solid Support in His Ultimatum to Soviet.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Whether most of Europe again will be involved in war was expected today to be decided within 48 hours.

Russia has until Friday evening to reply to the Anglo-Italian note demanding modification of her peace terms to Poland. Unless a satisfactory reply is forthcoming within the time limit, Great Britain will change its policy toward Russia.

Committed to the same action are Great Britain, Italy, France, and possibly Belgium. In the event of a resumption of hostilities on a major scale, the Germans may become partially involved, since the sentiment of the German populace bordering on Poland is frankly pro-Russian.

Even if the Bolshevik reply should only be evasive, it is believed Lloyd George's patience has reached the point where he would attempt to institute military action just the same as though the Reds' answer had been absolutely negative.

The British press is practically unanimous in supporting the Premier's stand. Even the pacifist Daily News is dismayed at the prospect of breaking off commercial negotiations with the Soviets and expresses the hope that the whole situation is due to misinterpretation of the Bolshevik terms. The Times says the majority of the Bolshevik sympathizers believed in the Reds' honesty—"A belief that could not withstand the shock of the latest disclosures."

Fuel Dealers Slash Prices

Bituminous Coal Falls to $8.75 Ton Following Palmer Order.

Washington, Aug. 27.—On the heels of Attorney-General Palmer's instructions to all United States District Attorneys to put an end to all profiteering in bituminous coal, the Federal Trade Commission today made public its findings on bituminous coal costs, based on its latest monthly returns. The information contained in this report is understood to have been in the hands of the Department of Justice when the Attorney-General issued his order to District Attorneys to put a stop on alleged coal profiteers.

Admiral Benson, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, complained on Friday that he has to pay from $20 to $22 a ton for coal for bunker purposes. The report made public by the Federal Trade Commission states that if the operators reporting for the West Virginia fields are representatives of the State, the average reported sales realization of West Virginian operators f.o.b. the mine, which is $3.40, plus transportation, which amounts to about $2.00, lays coal down f.o.b. cars at railroad terminals serving Hampton Roads at about $5.40 per ton net. This is the coal for which the Shipping Board has had to pay from $20 to $22 a ton.

Simultaneously with the making public today of the Federal Trade Commission's report, and following Attorney-General Palmer's orders of yesterday to the District Attorneys, the District Attorney's office at Baltimore this afternoon informed the Attorney-General's office that there has been a great break in the bituminous coal market in Baltimore. According to the information telephoned by the Baltimore Attorney, bituminous coal at Baltimore first dropped to $12.75 a ton, then to $9.75 a ton, and then to $8.75 a ton. Even at the latter figure there were refusals to buy by those who seemed to think there would be a further drop in the price of soft coal.

VETERANS MAKE GOOD IN NEW PROFESSIONS

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Some interesting details of the work of the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department are furnished in a statement today. Total number of enquiries and problems dealt with and directly affecting men under the scheme is 1,218,472.

The statistics show that the total number of men who have received medical treatment with pay and allowance is 49,369; the total number of clinical treatments is 422,225, and the total of dental operations is 84,576.

The total number of men who have commenced vocational training is 49,414 and the total number of vocational graduates is 38,273; in other words, more than fifty per cent. of the students have already made good in their newly chosen professions.

Mr. Hobson will attend the congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire in Toronto on Sept. 16.

Was Last Seen With Dead Man

Sudbury Police Bringing Back Suspect From Montreal.

SUDBURY, Aug. 26. — Detective O'Connell, of the local police force, arrives in Sudbury tomorrow morning bringing with him Alfred Juteau, whom he arrested near Montreal yesterday on a warrant charging him with the murder of Antoine Larocque, the young French-Canadian who was found dead in the bush on the outskirts of the town two weeks ago. Chief of Police Fyvie and Detective O'Connell have been working on the case ever since the discovery of Larocque's body. With but the slimmest clues to guide them, working from a time slip found in the murdered man's pocket, they discovered that he had been employed in the nickel plant at O'Donnell, and had given up his job on July 22. He was last seen in the company of Juteau, who left O'Donnell with him on the same day. The two registered at the King Edward Hotel here that night, and Larocque was killed the next day. He had a considerable sum of money on him at the time, and this was missing, as was also a suit case containing his personal possessions.

ACTION TAKEN ON PRICE OF SUGAR

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—Action as to the price of sugar in Canada can be expected before the end of the week.

It is understood that Mr. F. A. Acland and Major Dillon, two of the Board of Commerce Commissioners, are leaving for Montreal to make a final investigation on the spot of the situation, and that before Monday, a statement will be made.

The low prices at which sugar is being sold in the United States at present, coupled with reports that Canadian refineries are exporting sugar to Michigan at prices lower than the same sugar is sold for in Canada, is making the Canadian public very restrictive.

SHOW GIRLS CHARGED WITH THEFT FROM STORE

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Should Pearl Burton and Agnes McGillis be convicted in the Women's Court and sent to the Jail Farm, the Johnny Jones' Shows will be minus a lion tamer and "disappearing lady." The two women were taken into custody last night by Detective-Sergeant Elliot on a charge of stealing a blouse, a pair of stockings and a cap from the T. Eaton store. The Burton woman stated that she was employed as a lady lion tamer by the aforementioned shows, and the McGillis woman as the "disappearing lady" in the trunk mystery.

FARMER DRAGGED INTO THRESHER AND KILLED

Stratford, Aug. 27.—David J. Moore, of Ellice township was fatally injured while assisting in threshing on William Bean's farm, in Fullerton township. While adjusting a belt on a threshing machine his arm was dragged into the machinery and terribly mangled. He died from shock before medical aid could be secured.

Twelve Come To "Get Their Stuff"

All Were Chicago Saloon-Keepers and All are in Jail.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Twelve saloonkeepers walked into a trap set for them by Government agents. A carload of whiskey valued at approximately $150,000 was confiscated, as well as a number of automobiles and trucks.

Major A. V. Dalrymple, chief Federal prohibition officer, said it was the first step to break Chicago's $1,000,000 whiskey ring.

The liquor was shipped to Chicago from a bonded warehouse at Louisville on a forged Government permit, according to the prohibition officers. It was left on a siding in the Chicago yards. Prohibition officers concealed themselves in nearby empty box cars.

Soon an automobile drove up. The driver left his seat and went toward the car. An agent wandered out from his place of concealment and asked him if he "had come to get his stuff."

"Yes, I've got the money to pay for 100 cases and I'll take them with me." The man was arrested, and escorted to a box car and placed in charge of another prohibition officer. The first agent again took up his vigil. In a few minutes another man came for whiskey. He too was arrested. Twelve men in all walked into the trap. The car contained 2,000 cases of whiskey.

"The raid marks the beginning of the end," Major Dalrymple said. "I have been working on this thing a long time. There will be other arrests in a few days."

War Toll Was Thirty Five Million

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press Limited.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Due to war influences ten European nations engaged in the world war show a potential loss in population of thirty-five million persons since 1914, according to a statistical search conducted by the Society for Studying the Social Consequences of the War, of Copenhagen, made public today. At the end of 1913 these nations had a population of nearly four hundred and one millions and under normal conditions this should have increased by twenty-three millions. Instead, the population has fallen to three hundred and eighty-nine millions.

Farm Hand Kills 11-Year-Old Child

Subsequently Takes His Own Life With a Rifle.

Fort Francis, Ont., Aug. 26.—James Masters, 38, and Anna Melin, 11, are dead as the result of a shooting tragedy at the home of Andrew Melin, a farmer in Dobie Township. Masters shot the Melin girl through the head with a rifle and then killed himself with the same weapon. He had been employed on the Melin farm.

About one o'clock in the morning Masters went into Melin's room, secured a rifle and threatened to shoot the whole family, who rushed out of the house. Masters followed them and deliberately shot the girl. He failed in an attempt on the life of Elmer Melin, her brother, and then he placed the muzzle of the rifle in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

Masters was an Englishman and had been in the district two years. It is believed he was insane.

MIRACULOUS CURES BY SACRED IMAGES IN IRELAND

Templemore, Ireland, Aug. 27.—An incessant stream of pilgrims from all parts of Ireland continues to pour into Templemore to visit the home of Thomas Divan, where, it is claimed, miraculous cures were being effected through the medium of sacred statues, which Divan declared began to bleed mysteriously last week.

Lodgings and hotel accommodations are insufficient for even a fourth of the visitors, and the town's food stocks are virtually exhausted. Not only Templemore is overcrowded but the neighboring villages and towns are overflowing with people who are unable to get into Templemore.

The pilgrims are being looked after by a corps of volunteers who are going through the surrounding country commandeering food, for which, however payments are being made.

80,000 Russian Soldiers Captured in Poland

FORTY THOUSAND KILLED AND 30,000 INTERNED IN EAST PRUSSIA—FRANCE COUNSELS POLAND TO OBTAIN BEST STRATEGICAL POSITION POSSIBLE REGARDLESS OF FRONTIERS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Eighty thousand Russian Soviet soldiers have been captured in Poland, forty thousand killed, and thirty thousand interned in East Prussia, according to the latest report received from the French mission in Poland.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—The Foreign Minister announced today that France had counselled Poland to attain the best strategical military position possible, until peace is signed, regardless of her ethnographical frontier, because her military situation will influence the peace terms. France has advised Poland, however, to withdraw her armies within the Polish frontier upon the signing of the peace treaty, the Foreign Office added.

Sworn To Take Life Of British Premier

LONDON, Friday, Aug. 27.—The Daily Mail's Lucerne correspondent sends the following:

"Owing to the reported departure from Ireland of six Sinn Feiners, believed to be members of a group sworn to take Premier Lloyd George's life, the authorities are taking special precautions to safeguard him."

Great Loss In Belfast From Incendiary Fires

TWENTY FIRES IN BELFAST THURSDAY NIGHT OCCASION HEAVY LOSS—ONE KILLED AND MANY WOUNDED IN RIOTS—SNIPERS FIRED ON SOLDIERS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

BELFAST, Aug. 27.—Disorders in Belfast ceased after two o'clock this morning and a portion of the military was withdrawn from the streets, special constables patrolling thoroughfares. Last night's casualties included one person killed and a considerable number wounded. The military had to fire repeatedly in Netownards Road, where snipers fired on soldiers in the darkness.

Enormous damage was done by fires, of which there were twenty during the night.

Trotsky in Command of Russian Army

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 28.—General Tuchatschewski, known as the Soviet Napoleon, has been relieved of his post as Commander-in-Chief of the Bolshevik army on the Polish front because of his failure to take Warsaw, according to information given to the press here. Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik Minister of War, has personally taken command of the army, according to Bolshevik officials who have been taken prisoners.

French Laborites Are Antagonistic To Soviet Policy

Proclamation of Third Internationale By Lenine Associate Causes Breach

PARIS, Aug. 27.—A statement made by Leon Jouhaux, president of the General Federation of Labor, at a meeting of the National committee of that body yesterday, caused a profound impression. He said:

"Up to the present we have neither in the General Federation of Labor nor in the International Federation de- the recent congress of the third intersired to take a position with regard to the third internationale, but the proclamation signed by Zinoveff (associate of Lenin), addressed to the proletariat of the whole world is a declaration of war against our organizations, as clearly shown by the statements made at nationale. We can no longer keep silence, notwithstanding all the sympathy we feel for the Russian resolution."

Reduction Coming in Price of Flour

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

MONTREAL, Aug. 27.—There is a distinct possibility that within the next month or so following the big wheat crop in the West and the resumption of competitive dealing by millers that the price of flour will decrease, and be followed by a drop in the price of bread. Already it is stated by representative milling interests that there will be a decline in the market price of No. 1 Northern wheat, which is the standard wheat for flour purposes.

Following telegraph advice from Canadian sugar refiners, the price of sugar dropped in Belleville today to $22.25 per one hundred pounds.

REPAIRING STEAMER

The steamer Keybell which met with an accident at the end of the Lachine Canal and stove a hole in her bow, has arrived in Kingston and was put into the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company's dock for repairs. The bow plates will be torn off and new ones adjusted.

CHILDREN COMING

Sailing from Liverpool, September 3rd, 1920, a band of boys and girls are expected to arrive about September 13, at the Marchmont Home, 193 Moira street, Belleville. Their ages range from 8 years to 15 years of age. They are well trained and healthy and some are orphaned through the war. Only a few are over 13 years and good homes are specially desired for the younger children.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

Field parties belonging to the Geological Survey Branch of the Department of Mines, Ottawa are carrying on surveys in the Marmora, Ontario, district this season. The work includes the preparation of a geological map of a strip of territory extending for fifteen miles in width from Belmont township on the west, to Hungerford and Elgeria on the east and also the examination of all mines and prospects in this area. The survey necessary for the preparation of the map is being carried on under the direction of Messrs. E. E. Freeland and R. A. McDonald.

SLIGHT COLLISION.

What might have been a serious accident occurred on the Havelock Road near Bethel Church, on Tuesday evening, when Mr. E. C. Dolman's car was run into by Mr. Burgess, of Havelock. A garden party was being held at Bethel Church and cars were parked along the road. Mr. Dolman was going toward Havelock and Mr. Burgess was on his way to Campbellford. Noticing that Mr. Burgess was coming along on the wrong side of the road, Mr. Dolman had almost stopped his car when it was struck by the other car. Both cars received slight damages. The windshield of Mr. Burgess' car was broken and a little girl who was in the front seat had her face cut by a piece of glass. She was taken to Campbellford, where the wound was dressed. Mr. Burgess said he was unable to see just where he was driving, which accounts for the collision. It is fortunate no further damage was done.

BONFIRE MASQUERADE

On Saturday evening, August the twenty-first, the campers at Oak Hill Lake had a bonfire masquerade in honour of Mr. H. J. Clarke's birthday. It is an annual event at the Lake to have a corn-roast for Mr. Clarke's birthday. This year they decided to show him to some degree at least, how they appreciated his continual kindness to them all and so they arranged to have a presentation at the bonfire. At eight o'clock a bell was rung and the masquerading campers from both ends of the camp grounds marched to the central lane, where the bonfire had already been lighted. To the tune of "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here," they marched round and round the fire. The costumes were splendid and varied and it was difficult to recognize osme of the campers beneath their disguise as darkies, gypsies, shepherds, etc. After a short snappy programme of camp songs and parodies, Mr. Clarke was called to the centre of the circle where a short address was read and little Fuller and Joe Hitchon presented him with a cane and Daylo flash light on behalf of the campers. Mr. Clarke thanked his fellow campers feelingly. Then the program over, the campers fell to roasting corn, but rain which had obligingly kept off, began to fall and sent the campers scurrying to their various cottages.

Belleville Citizens Visit Industries

Unique Demonstration of Processes of Manufacture of Goods Made in Belleville

Fully one thousand citizens took advantage of the invitation of Belleville Chamber of Commerce to visit the manufacturing establishments of the H. A. Wood Company and the Natural Tread Shoe Company, Thursday evening. The occasion was unique and interesting and the opportunity of seeing two factories in active operation was taken full advantage of. The manufacture of the Wood Air-Tight Valve and the Wood Detachable Tilting Steering Wheel for automobiles and the various operations necessary in the making of a shoe proved very interesting to all. This was followed by an address of welcome by His Worship Mayor Riggs emphasizing the benefit of community loyalty and co-operation in reaching out for industries and supporting them when we do get them. An address was also made by Mr. E. P. Fredericks, Secretary-Manager of the Chamber of Commerce on the duty of the citizen in the march of progress and the community spirit of all pulling together for the best there is obtainable. Belleville is forging ahead as these new industries indicate and every support should be given to Belleville institutions and goods made in Belleville. If all will pull together progress and prosperity is bound to follow.

Mr. V. E. Taplin, specialist, originator and designer of the Natural Tread idea in shoes, gave an illustrated talk on foot deformities, their causes and remedies, also how to prevent foot trouble.

Professional models from Toronto gave a very interesting exhibition of the Natural Tread Shoes, also gowns and hats from the stock of the Ritchie Co. The evening closed very pleasantly with a dance.

Evolution of a Valve.

It is said that the ordinary valve is occasionally air-tight, some valves are almost air-tight, but the Wood Airtight Valve is always air-tight, and there you have in a nutshell the reason for that splendidly equipped factory on Pinnacle street where a large force of employes are busily engaged trying to turn out enough Wood valves to supply the demand, and the present capacity is five thousand Wood valves per day. These valves are manufactured by automatic machines, the last word in modern mechanics, one machine performing six distinct operations in the making of a valve, the entire six operations being accomplished in twelve seconds.

Cannot Steal This Car

The motor car equipped with the Wood Detachable Tilting Steering Wheel is protected against theft as well as having the very latest and handiest device known to motorists. When not in use the wheel folds up and can be removed in a second and carried by the driver when leaving the car, making it non-stealable.

Mr. Henry Angrove, recently of Kingston, is the managing director of the Wood Co., and Mr. Ernest Rowsome, formerly of Brockville, is mechanical superintendent. Both of these gentlemen are live wires, keen and capable and have production keyed up to the highest pitch of efficiency.

Shoes in the Making

It is a far cry from the old-fashioned cobbler who fashioned a pair of boots in a laborious way and turned out foot wear neither handsome nor comfortable as a rule, to the modern up-to-the-minute processes used in the Belleville factory of Natural Tread Shoes Limited. Hundreds of people were very much interested in the various processes entering into the making of Natural Tread shoes from the cutter who began on a roll of leather until the final finished article was ready for its dainty box. Machinery that is almost human and in fact more exact and reliable than most humans is used in the making of these shoes and the process is one of extreme interest, so much so that the rooms of the factory were crowded from early in the evening until nearly midnight.

Mr. C. Stoneburg is business manager of the Natural Tread Shoes Company, Mr. V. E. Taplin, originator and designer, and Mr. Smith, plant superintendent, each of these gentlemen having a wide and varied experience in the shoe manufacturing business.

In the same building are located two other industrial enterprises of a very promising nature, the A. S. Richardson Co., Limited, manufacturers of paper mache forms and figures for merchants, and the Toronto Hat Co., manufacturers of ladies' hats, busily engaged with a large staff turning out the latest in feminine headgear in the fall styles. This business is in charge of Messrs. Russell and Herbert Baker formerly of Toronto, now citizens of Belleville, the latter having purchased the residence of Mr. P. J. Lee, 178 Bridge street east and the former the residence of Mr. J. C. Blaylock, 278 Albert street.

All of these factories are working to capacity giving employment to many operatives and contributing materially to the prosperity of Belleville.

Possibility That Waters of the Rhone Will Give Up Sarcophagi Long in Their Keeping.

An ancient story of the greed of kings has been resurrected by an erudite member of the Institute de France, Mr. Adrien Blanchet. The fact is there is some prospective work on hand for the utilization of the Rhone water power. Thus do ancient history and modern enterprise come to hobnob in the revue des etudes anciennes. The story tells how the king of France, Charles IX, coming one day to Arles, saw the Roman sarcophagi and wished them his. He did not covet long, for the next act in this kingly episode was the shipping of the most perfect of Rome's monuments en route for the capital city. This may have furnished a later king of France, namely, Louis XIV, with the precedent for the removal of the statue of Messalina from Bordeaux; not that that monarch ever needed either precedent or encouragement for his actions. The sarcophagi started on their journey. It was in the year 1565. They had unfortunately not gone beyond the famous Pont-Saint-Esprit, before the boats sank beneath so unusual and weighty a load. Now, the congress for the development of water power, which sat in February this year, discussed among other schemes the transformation of the Pont-Saint-Esprit. The question is—and it will be admitted to be an absorbing one—during the excavations in the bed of the Rhone will those sarcophagi, lost nearly four centuies ago, be recovered?

MORE THAN WILLING TO GO

Senator's Suggestion, Meant as Sarcasm, Probably Was Wish Closest to Adventurer's Heart.

Maj. Cushman A. Rice of Minnesota, the original "Soldier of Fortune," dropped in to see Senator Knute Nelson the other day, on his way back from war. This last war made about the fortieth Rice has been in, so the veteran Minnesota senator thought Rice had had enough.

"Cushman," the senator said, "why don't you quit roaming around, go home and run for office? Your male relatives have been governors, senators, etc., and there is no reason why you should not serve your state."

Rice did not seem greatly impressed, so Nelson became somewhat warmer in his remarks.

"If you're bound to fight, why not get over into Russia, among the reds, and get some real action?" Nelson said, sarcastically.

Whereupon Rice leaped into the air. "Say, senator," he shouted, "if you'll fix it up so I can get over there, there isn't anything I wouldn't do for you."

That's the curse of the wandering foot, as the poets would remark.—Washington Star.

Didn't Know Ty.

Hiram Johnson, Republican senator from California, is one of the hottest baseball fans in the country, Jim Phelan, Democratic senator, knows nothing about the game. Here is proof of the latter statement.

The other day Walter Johnson, premier pitcher of the American league, and Ty Cobb, the greatest ball player in all history, perhaps, paid the senate a visit. After they had been introduced all around and been the subject of a great deal of hero worship, Phelan went over to Eddie Halsey of the senate staff, and asked:

"Who is this Ty Cobb, anyhow?"

Halsey almost passed away, but he managed to tell Phelan that "Cobb is a fellow who plays ball for a living."

Meantime Johnson was enjoying hugely the visit of the two ball players.

Next Morning.

My brother told me this. Marie is his lady friend, Mrs. Hemming, the mother of his chum. He said:

"You know Marie has one of these bright-red sweaters. I took her to a dance in the park one night and she wore it. Some of the fuzz from the sweater rubbed off on my coat sleeve. Next morning I was in a rush to catch my train and forgot to brush it off. Mrs. Hemming and Dud were on the train and we all sat together. While I was talking Mrs. Hemming leaned over and began to pick this lint off my sleeve. Well, that was an embarrassing moment.—Chicago Tribune.

The Engineer's Eyes.

The importance of the eyesight test is understood in a general way, but few people realize the tax laid on the eyesight of an engine driver during a long run. It takes years for a driver to learn thoroughly all the signals on a complicated system, and he must be able to pick out his own at a glance in the maze of a great junction. On the Northwestern railway alone more than 17,000 signals are lit every night, and a driver working from London to Crewe and back is controlled by nearly 600 signals.—London Chronicle.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

(What the Press Agents Say)

"THE LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME"

Not only children but their elders as well will be delighted by "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," just brought to the stage in elaborate and sympathetic fashion. This production represents months of careful preparation and of rehearsal and is due at Griffin's to-night where it will be presented for one night only.

The cast has distinction in its leading players and each member of the company was chosen from a number of applicants who were carefully considered as to type. George Simpson, Dorothy Dunn, Fay Brennan, James Kennedy, Ralph MacDonald and others who are well-known in the profession are in the various roles. The play is of mountaineers of Kentucky and the love, thrills and the fun of the action are said to be finely transferred from the pages of the novel to the stage. The sheep dog Jack, who is important in the second act trial scene is said to be one of the most intelligent canines to be seen on the stage.

When Mary Ellen Comes To Town

Disturbing Dorothy Gish is at it again in her new picture, "Mary Ellen Comes to Town," which was presented before a large audience at Griffin's last night. This engaging little comedienne with her seemingly inexhaustable energy and always new bag of tricks is a welcome visitor in worrisome days. The film, as usual, is diverting as a small boy's visit to the circus.

Prohibition has evidently cut into the ranks of the movie star's too and Miss Gish, as Mary Ellen, is a soda dispenser at a small southern town drug store. However, playing checkers with the farmers in her leisure and mixing nut sandaes during working hours aren't exciting enough for Mary Ellen. She longs for a career on the stage in the Big City. Finally, a combination of circumstances lands her there. But she doesn't progress in her dramatic career further than a job as singer in a third rate cabaret. Her boss is a crook and plans to fleece a young man of his wealth by using Mary Ellen with her big innocent eyes as a sort of milk-fed 'vamp' to lure his victim's pocket-book. Of course Mary Ellen's nerve fails at the last moment, she confesses, they love at first sight, and all is peaches.

You'll like "Mary Ellen Comes to Town," not only Miss Gish, but Ralph Graves, Kate Bruce, Charles Gerrard and the others who support her.

British Canadian News Pictorial, a very funny 2-reel Hank Mann comedy, "Blowing Bubbles," an interesting Outing Chester Travelogue and a thrilling chapter of the stunt picture, "The Whirlwind," completes the program.

Owing to the road show "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" holding the boards to-night, the program will not be repeated again till to-morrow when it will be shown, matinee and night.

NERVE FORCE

Nerve force is that buoyant driving force within us which impels us to accomplish, and which makes us yearn for bigger tasks to cope with. It fills our bodies with that pulsating something that inspires us—makes us eager for new worlds to conquer.

Unless your nervous system is allowed to function unhindered, you will never experience this splendid sensation. If your vitality is great one day and low the next, you will not be able to complete your bigger tasks.

Look to your nervous organization for lowered vitality—that "all in" feeling and the numerous defects which attend lower vitality. Let your Chiropractor remove the cause of this disadvantage in your make-up. Rid your body of this handicap by removing the pressure upon your nerves. Normal nerve function will follow. Your body will receive the required amount of innervation. Your vigor and vitality will return. Consultation and Spinal Analysis without obligation. Drs. KORESHANS.

Strange Religious Cult Found In London, Ontario.

Of course, you say, everybody knows the earth moves around the sun. Don't be too sure of that. London, Ontario, has long been rated as the home of more unusual religious cults than any other community in America with the possible exception of San Diego, Cal., or Boston, Mass., but only recently the strangest of them all appeared here, namely the Koreshans.

Now the remarkable thing about Koreshanity, as it is called, is its peculiar doctrine of cosmogony which teaches that the sun, instead of moving around the earth as the ancients believed, or that the earth moves around the sun as most moderns believe according to the conception of the universe framed by Galileo and Copernicus, is in reality the centre of a great, hollow sphere, that this hollow sphere is the earth and that the mountains, oceans, trees, forests, houses, cities, all the landmarks of the old world, are on the inside of the earth instead of on the outside.

Only a little group of Koreshans has appeared in Ontario, but in view of their strikingly unusual ideas of cosmogony, a very few of them are creating no end of interest by the propagation of their doctrines. Most of them are recent converts and as soon as they become more thoroughly immersed in their new faith, they will, in all probability, leave for sunny Florida, where at Estero, in Lee County, is already gathered the nucleus of the citizenship of a new Holy City they propose to build. For a time a colony existed at Englewood in Chicago, where the Koreshan faith first attracted attention, as far back as 1886, when street meetings were held and literature extensively distributed. But in 1903 the Chicago Koreshans removed to Estero, and an edict went forth that no more permanent colonies were to be established elsewhere than at Estero, which place had finally been selected by the leaders as the one location for the city of the Messiah. The Estero colony was founded in 1894.

Dr. Tyrus R. Teed, born in Utica, N.Y., in 1839, was the founder of the new faith, and the name Koresh, which is Hebrew for Cyrus, was adopted by him as his title as the Messiah of the new cult. According to the Koreshan interpretation of a scriptural passage in the 45th chapter of Isaiah, "Cyrus" is referred to as the Messiah." To his followers, Dr. Teed came to be known as Koresh, the new incarnation of the Messiah.

The divine mission of the Koreshan movement is the building of "the Church Archtriumphant." The Koreshans believe that "the Bible is a column erected to the memory of transcendental literary genius." It is "the product of the Word of God; the Word of God is its genius; the Word of God is its Author."

Communism is held to be "the very foundation of the social life of the followers of the Lord," and the colony at Estero, Florida, is conducted on a communistic basis of wealth and labor.

Our Youngest Premier.

Hon. Arthur Meighen is the youngest Premier of Canada since Confederation and the first Ontario man to hold that office. Owing to his residence in the West, he may also claim to be the first Westerner.

BUFFALO BOAT UPSET AND SANK IN 70 FEET OF WATER

Alexandria Bay, Aug. 26.—The bing-bang boys, John P. Bickell and F. S. Ericson, and the hydroplane, Miss Toronto II., the syndicate boat sent east by the Toronto Motor Boat Club to bring the Thousand Island Gold Cup, emblematic of the motor boat championship of the east, back home made good with a vengeance here today in the first race for the cup. The combination won by ten miles—that's all. It wouldn't have been ten or better than a small fraction of ten but for the near-tragedy, which robbed the race of interest as a contest, the very first lap of 5 miles.

Miss Toronto's chief opponent was Arab IV. of Buffalo, owned by Commodore Ralph Sidway, the Buffalo Launch Club, an old boat with a new engine. She had shown 68 miles per hour in trials and was reckoned as good a boat as the famous Miss Toronto, which up to date holds all American competition speed records. Jack Bickel, who was driving Miss Toronto, let Arab away in front with an idea of finding out quickly just what they had to face. Arab roared down the course a ball of foam, but when the Ericson-Bickell combination opened up all Miss Toronto had they slammed by Arab IV. like Man-o-War romping by a selling plater. They rounded the first turn and had Arab IV. beaten by 200 yards in four miles, when Arab reared on one of Miss Toronto's quarter waves, bucked, jumped and somersaulted like she did in Toronto last fall, and dove headlong to the bottom of 70 feet of water—Sidway and his mechanician were hurled 50 feet. Both were rescued. Sidway was unhurt, but the mechanician was badly bruised. The boat will be raised tomorrow.

With Arab out of it the race was a procession, for Miss Toronto beat P D. Q. IV., the second boat, 10 miles in thirty.

The Mile-a-Minute Boat.

While Arab did sky up she forced Miss Toronto, already the holder of the world's mile record, into a new American record. She did five miles in five minutes, far the fastest five miles ever recorded in competition. The boys have talked a mile a minute and better for years, but this is the first time it was ever actually accomplished under race conditions, and to do it Bickell and Ericson had to drive her over 70 miles an hour on the straights, for the turns were short and dangerous, and the regatta fleet so thick and the captains so foolhardy that Bickell dared not round the ends faster than 20 miles an hour. A half mile in every five slowed down to 20 miles cut down the time for the 30-mile course away below what she actually did when she had a straight run. Anyhow, in doing a five-mile lap in five minutes flat she beat Miss Detroit III.'s record, 1.12.

After Arab went crab-hunting the Toronto crew eased up and took it easy.

RUTH'S FORTY-FOURTH

The Chicago White Sox opened their final series at New York Thursday and won from New York 16 to 4. The visitors batted three Yank pitchers for 17 hits. New York hit Kerr hard in the first innings, but after that the Chicago midget had things his own way. Babe Ruth made his forty-fourth home run in the first inning hitting the ball into the lower right field stand.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY—
He who only hopes is hopeless.—Anon.

TO THINK STRAIGHT DUTY OF THE HOUR.

"A truly great future is ahead of Canada if we only keep our heads and seriously believe in the doctrine of work. Work, after all, is the normal condition of man, I mean of every man, and it is the best answer and antidote to socialistic, Bolshevik and Soviet nonsense.

"The great task before the people of Canada is to get back, not to old conditions, but to old time sanity of thought and action, to get back to our old high standards of living and character. . . . We have been living for the last six years in a highly abnormal and artificial age, and the sooner we get to normal conditions the better it will be for all of us.

"The plain duty of the hour is to think straight, to take a good square, clear-eyed look at ourselves and our conditions, and to resolve that we will know for a surety the wisdom of every step, that we will have none of the nostrums of the political theorists and agitators, that we will not be led astray by any ism or theory; resolve that by hard, honest, intelligent endeavor, by less extravagant living, and clean, straight thinking we will work out our salvation. . . . making this a great nation of happy, contented, prosperous people."—Premier Meighen at Truro.

WHO ARE THE CAPITALISTS?

Much of the criticism directed against capitalists is prejudiced and ill-informed. The idea that the owners of capital represent only a comparatively small part of the population is disproved by a recent report issued by the Controller of Currency of the United States, which shows that in the national banks of the United States there are no less than 20,380,000 time and deposit accounts. The demand deposit accounts represent 12,315,000 and the time deposits 8,065,000. This represents an average of approximately one bank account for every five and a half of the population, or almost one bank account for every family.

These figures take no account of the very large deposits in state banks and trust companies.

Besides this evidence of ownership, of capital distributed to a remarkable extent over the entire population, there are something like 20,000,000 owners of Liberty Bonds, and besides many millions of people who own bonds, stocks, mortgages, and other securities which are nothing more or less than titles to wealth.

It may safely be said that there are comparatively few adults in Canada and the United States who are not capitalists either large or small.

MOTHER OF TWINS IN SHADOW OF SCAFFOLD.

Marie Anne Houde (Mme. Gagnon), of Quebec, is under sentence of death to be hanged on October 1st next for the killing of her step-child. The Canadian Prisoner's Welfare Association has taken up her case with a view to get her a reprieve and to have her sentence commuted to imprisonment for life. The association urges that the commutation of her sentence be recommended to the authorities on the following grounds:

"1. Since being convicted and sentenced, Marie Anne Houde has given birth to twins, which means (if they live) that two human beings will go through life as the children of a woman who perished on the scaffold.

"2. Any woman who has gone through the process of maternity under such circumstances has some special claim to leniency, whatever her crime.

"3. There was a conflict of opinion among the medical men as to the sanity of the woman. In our opinion the very extremity of the cruelty should give rise to serious doubt as to whether she was normal from the pyschological standpoint in view of approaching maternity, even if she would pass muster as sane. Surely this is a case where the full benefit of the doubt should be given.

"4. In our opinion owing to local feeling the venue of trial should have been removed.

"There is no thought on the part of those supporting the petition of allowing the woman to go unpunished, but we hold that the laws of justice can be fully satisfied on this earth.

"The province of Quebec has already hanged a youth under age this year. Shall it also place on the record of 1920 the only hanging of a woman for the past decade?"

Hon. George P. Graham is president; Robert Bickerdike, ex-M.P., honorary president, and Mr. J. Kidman honorary corresponding secretary. The appeal for commutation of the sentence should be favorably received. Capital punishment is revolting at all times and is particularly so in the case of a woman. Justice would be well satisfied by imprisonment for life.

OTHER VIEWS

Bill For Luxuries
Toronto Sun

According to the statistics compiled by the Treasury of the United States Government, Uncle Sam,' his wife and family," are spending upward of $8,700,000,000 a year on luxuries. Tobacco heads the list with an annual outlay of $2,110,000,000; cigarettes cost $800,000,000; snuff and loose tobacco a like sum; cigars $570,000. The tidy little sum of $2,000,000,000 goes for motor cars and their parts. Candy makers reap a harvest of $1,000,000,000, while $50,000,000 is spent annually for chewing gum. Soft drinks cost the public $350,000,000; perfumery and cosmetics $150,000,000; furs $300,999,999; carpets and luxurious clothing, $1,500,000,000.

The labor and capital employed in producing these things might otherwise have been employed in producing coal, food, houses and other necessities. In other words, the nation might have had more bread if it had had less cake. And as is always the case, the dancer pays the fiddler. In this instance the luxury consumer is paying a higher price for his necessities because he is abnormally consuming luxuries, is the comment of the Research Commission.

We are satisfied that a day of reckoning is coming. Hungry stomachs will force the luxury loving world to turn its attention from the froth and frills to the necessities of life. We are an extravagant people. Canada's per capita expenditures for luxuries is not far below the amounts spent by our neighbors to the South.

Imprudent Talk
Hamilton Spectator

If Miss Hague, one of the party of Canadian teachers now visiting the old country, is correctly quoted, she cannot be complimented on her tact or good taste. "Teachers have a better social status in Canada than they apparently have in this country," she is reported to have said: "there is only one profession now barred to women in Canada and that is chartered accountancy. Our girls will not go into domestic service; we get nearly all our domestic servants from the old country." Surely a very foolish utterance, especially coming from a school teacher. Moreover, the still greater indiscretion is committed of making unfavorable comparisons with the style of dress adopted by the London girls. This sort of thing is little likely to promote amicable feelings.

Now, when the domestic help question is so acute in Canada, as elsewhere, is surely the very worst time to cast a slur over that most essential of all feminine vocations. If all the daughters of Canada are to be schoolteachers, stenographers, doctors, lawyers, etc., it is a poor outlook for the national domestic comfort. Under such circumstances the despised domestic help will be at a premium and her professional sisters at a discount. "When everybody's somebody, then no one's anybody."

There is altogether too much of this false superiority displayed towards our immigrants. On the one hand we are doing everything possible to attract industrious settlers to this country and on the other affecting to despise them for their industry. The disinclination to tackle the hard but necessary work of life is a bad and growing symptom of modern industrial conditions. It was hard work which formed the Canadian character and it is a sign of degeneration not of progress to look askance on honorable manual employments.

But, at least, do not let us insult those who are willing to help us out of our difficulties.

THE POET'S CORNER

THE MOON
F. W. Harvey in the London Spectator.

What have you not seen
 Old White-face, looking down
Since the heaven was hollowed out
 And winds were blown?

You saw White Helen
 On the walls of Troy Town
You silvered dew on the ruin
When Troy shook down.

Ulysses you saw
 And the strange seas that bore him,
But all he wandered to see
 You had seen before him.

Bodies black and yellow,
 Gold tresses and brown,
The brown earth covers them
 And you look down.

A LAUGH OR TWO

It is easier to start a rumor than it is to head it off.

The test of a man's qualities is in his remembrance, when he has reached the top, of the friends he left behind lower down.

Don't waste any time looking back over your mistakes; there is more fun in looking up the mistakes of others.

The Result

"It took me an hour yesterday to convince my wife that I was right"

"You succeeded then?"

"Oh, yes, but she hasn't spoken to me since."

Minister of Finance Was County Crown Attorney And Did Many Big Jobs

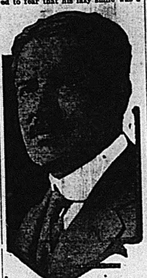
PEOPLE may be inclined to think Sir Henry Drayton a hard-hearted man because as Minister of Finance he imposes heavy taxes on their clothes, jewelry and automobiles. They do not know him. He has a very kind heart and making the people pay must be really a painful process for him.

Once when he was County Crown Attorney for the County of York it fell to his lot to prosecute a girl accused of setting fire to a farmer's barns. The story was that the farmer had broken a promise to marry her, and that she had sought revenge in this way. Footsteps leading from the girl's window to the farmer's barn were alleged to have been discovered, and the case looked pretty black against her.

Harry L. Drayton, as he was then, was evidently very much in sympathy with the prisoner. He did not want to see her convicted. His cross-examination was a masterpiece of unfriendly friendliness and halting ineffectiveness. As a result she was acquitted and Mr. Drayton was as pleased as anyone in court over the verdict.

It is not often, though, that he lets his heart run away with his head as in this case, but he is a very human fellow. His head and his heart are both in the right place and work together as a team splendidly.

He was only thirty-five years of age when he succeeded Mr. Hartley Dewart as County Crown Attorney for York, and the wiseacres were inclined to fear that his lazy smile was a sign of weakness. He showed soon that it was merely a sign that he was always willing to give thieves and others an even break with justice or a little better. But at times a crime stirred his indignation and it was not pleasant then to be the accused. Mr. Drayton could make him shrivel with the slow clash of his drawling speech.



SIR HENRY L. DRAYTON.

H. L. Drayton, according to his friends, had always an infinite capacity for taking pains. There was never, perhaps, any particular brilliance about him, but he tackled everything with thoroughness, mastered it and made good. He never shelved his work on anyone else. If there was a job to be done, and it was his he did it. He seemed to have a facility for being on the spot when big jobs were going, but his success in a succession of them has been altogether due to himself.

After resigning from the County Crown Attorneyship in 1909, he went into private practice, but the next year he was appointed Corporation Counsel for the city of Toronto. This as well as a big interest in Hydro affairs prepared him for the position of Chairman of the Dominion Railway Board, to which he was appointed in succession to the late James Pitt Mabee in July, 1912.

In a country where public ownership is always a live question and where the railways are always an issue in politics he carried on for several years on the Railway Board without criticism from anyone. In 1915 he was created a Knight Bachelor.

Sir Henry Drayton will long be remembered as one of the joint authors of the Drayton-Acworth report, the famous document which resulted from an exhaustive enquiry with a view to putting the transportation question of Canada on a better basis and providing for a permanent policy. It was one of the rocks round which eddied all the swirls of the controversy over the taking over of the Canadian Northern Railroad by the Government. It was characteristic of Sir Henry Drayton that he should refuse the $15,000 offered by the Government for his services in connection with this report although the work was long and arduous. He preferred to have his efforts looked on merely as his contribution to the public good.

Sir Henry Drayton had a big job during the war in helping to handle Canada's railway problems. He played the part in averting a coal famine. The United States railways were taxed to the limit in rushing munitions and supplies to the seaboard and moving troops. Little effort could be spared in shipping coal to Canada. But Sir Henry succeeded in coming to arrangements with the U. S. railways whereby coal was assured to the Canadian consumer.

Try Magesia For Stomach Trouble

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisurated magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

The E. P. Ranch in Alberta

Geo. Lane, who entertained the Prince of Wales on his Prairie Ranch.

There is a strange magic in the lure of the prairies; there is charm in the Alberta foothills, there is a grandeur in the snow-capped Rockies. Such is the setting for the ranch acquired by the Prince of Wales in Alberta.

This property, for many years owned by Mrs. Bedingfeld, adjoins the famous Bar-U ranch, owned by Mr. George Lane, who entertained the Prince in September, 1919, and who negotiated the transaction by which the heir to the British throne became a farmer and rancher.

A more charming situation could not be found. In the West are the snow-capped mountains, to the north and south are the rolling foot hills and the gentle slope of the prairies to the east. Winding its way through the estate is the Highwood river, a crystal-clear mountain stream where there are choicest fish, the cut-throat trout. To the west, in the higher foothills and Rocky Mountains proper, are found deer, bear, partridge, the big mountain grouse, and other game. On the ranch, the prairie chicken flourish. In every direction, from the ranch house, stretch inviting glades, carpeted in summer with luxuriant grass and brilliant flowers. After his visit to the Bar-U ranch, the Prince expressed the wish to spend twenty-four years instead of twenty-four hours there, and the lure of it all impelled him to leap from his bed, in the grey dawn of his first morning there, jump through the window, unknown to his attendants and walk five miles to the rising sun and back again. His Royal Highness saw visions that morning and the culmination of the impression that was made was the acquisition of the Bedingfeld ranch. Mr. Lane took the Prince away to the Bar-U ranch, for a full day and night, as his guest and not even the Prince's retinue or personal attendants, beyond his body servant, were permitted to go. It was simply a family party with Mrs. Lane as hostess. The prince, exhausted with a lengthy round of formalities, literally revelled in the experience—it was, to him a delightful fairyland. The cow-boys, many of whom, had served overseas and had already met the Prince, were his chums. The round-up, the cutting-out, the branding, the old trails, the clear skies, the vast distances, were all a clear delight—is it any wonder the Prince was impressed?

In 1883, Mrs. Bedingfeld, on her first horseback journey through the foothills, in search of a western home, was captivated by the entrancing environment of what is now the "E. P." Ranch, and homesteaded the property, adding from time to time, until 1,600 acres were acquired. In addition to this, 20,000 acres of leased land passes into control of the royal purchaser.

Recently the Prince of Wales shipped by Dominion Express from England a number of horses and ponies for his new Canadian ranch. The animals were landed in Montreal from the C. P. O. S. ship "Montcalm".

At the dock's side, box cars built especially for the royal horses by the Dominion Express company, were waiting for their passengers, fresh in red paint and with the walls tinted in soft greys. Pitner lights, and running water in the troughs were a few of the arrangements prepared for the transfer of the horses to the prince's ranch near Calgary. On the floors were scattered quantities of sterilized shavings.

H. W. Monsell was in charge of the transfer of the horses by rail to the ranch and he personally attended to the fitting up of the cars.

The racing fillies are well worthy of a royal ranch, for they have in their veins the blood of derby winners, the blood of Ben D'Or, the progeny of Ormond of St. Simon and Galopin.

The fillies and ponies made a wonderful trip from Avonmouth. Though the latter had to be caught wild at Dartmoor on the ranch of the Prince of Wales, at Tore Royal, at Princeton, Devon, they were in fine fettle when the ship tied up at the quay. Two of the ponies are named "East" and "West." Another, "Owarka," a beauty, is sired by a horse which was presented to British royalty by an Indian prince, and never was beaten.

Some Notable Fillies.

The fillies of the greatest note are:

Drizzle, out of Marcoville, out of Dripsy, by Desmond.

Carabosse, by Freddie King, out of Cyllene, by Buenos Vista, by Ben D'Or.

Miss Milligan, a very fast short distance racer, three years old, by Loch Ryan, out of Little Patience (a great winner), by Felleron, by Gallinule.

De Beers, (the best bred of the lot), by White Magic, out of Dollars, by Matchmaker, by Donovan, by Millopin. White Magic the sire, is by Sundridge, by Sun Star by Ormond.

There is also Laggon, by Cyllene out of Cylgad.

All fillies are two and three year olds and the ponies up to six years.

Dr. Baker, the dominion government inspector of health of animals, stated that he never saw horseflesh arrive in as good condition.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Introducing Clay Wimburn, young New Yorker on visit to Cleveland, and Mrs. and Miss Daphne Kip.

CHAPTER II—The acquaintance of the young people ripens into love and Wimburn and Daphne become engaged.

CHAPTER III—Wimburn returns to New York, from whence he writes urging Daphne to marry him at once. She consents, and arranges to go to New York for her trousseau.

Clay. He sent back a letter that fairly howled with protest.

When Daphne told her parents of Clay's anguish they made light of it. It was a long, long while since they had been young. They had learned that marriages contain surprises that may sometimes be postponed without misfortune.

"That's a Fine Idea," Her Father Exclaimed.

Bayard did not write again for several days. This time he wrote to Daphne:

Dear Sis—Yours of no date (as usual) received and beautiful contents noted. I can hardly believe that my little sis is announcing intention to join the procession and get married, too. You're more sensible than I used to think. This is subject to revision when I know who the lucky man is. Who is he? Some Cleveland Appolo (or however you spell it), I suppose.

Before I could write you a bombshell exploded in the office. Heads of firm decided that since we can't sell any goods in America, might try England. They want me to go over at once and see what can be done about establishing a selling agency in dear old Lunnon, doncher know. And so now I intend to combine business trip, vacation, and honeymoon in same voyage. So we get married Thursday and sail Saturday. Just time to get settled in our dove-cote before leaving.

Was worrying over not being able to accept your kind offer to pay me a visit. Then the blessed wifelet darlingly suggested that her sweet sister-in-law-to-be should come to New York and make our apartment her home while she shops.

We won't get back from honeymoon hike for six weeks at least. You and mother just settle down there until you have finished shopping. Will leave key and instructions with superintendent.

The letter ended with the usual oceans of love and kisses and the usual haste. It set the family to pondering. Old Wesley was the first to speak and his train of thought startled the women:

"So he's going to get married tomorrow. That's awful sudden! Saves us buying a wedding present, though!" When he had recovered from the impact of his wife's look he saved himself again with a quick, pleading suggestion: "What I was thinking was—it leaves more money for Daphne's trousseau."

The poor wretch had grown used to seeing unexpected gifts of fortune float into view like soap bubbles, drift close in iridescent loveliness, and then wink out, leaving hardly a damp spot.

As soon as he had bravely added what he had saved from his son's wedding to what he had already voted to his daughter's trousseau he was doomed to learn that Daphne could not start East to buy clothes to get married in until she had bought some clothes to start East in. And, besides that, she could not go East alone, and her mother could not go with her unless her mother had also some new clothes to tide her mother over till her mother could get to New York and buy some clothes to stay married in.

Wesley Kip went forth to peddle that second mortgage. This was a commodity not easy to dispose of, and it took him a week or two to find a purchaser, and then he paid an ingeniously disguised usury for it. But he got the cash.

When he came home he proudly announced that Daphne and her mother could start for New York as soon as they'd a mind to. They had a mind to as soon as their clothes were ready.

He accompanied them to the train. He was not even to have the doleful luxury of seeing them spend his money. But he put a brave front on his folly and his last words to Daphne were:

"Have a good time, honey, and if you see anything you absolutely got to have, just you get it. And if the money you got isn't enough, why, I'll get more somehow. You can usually depend on your old dad to do his best."

He felt repaid when his beautiful child cried, "I know I can! you angel!" and reached high and drew his head down like a faithful camel's. He never told her that she was squeezing his eyeglasses into his nose. He managed not to sneeze at the exquisite agony of her curls tickling his nostrils, and she feasted his hungry ear with eager gratitude.

Daphne slept little that night in her Pullman pigeonhole; she was too busy with her thoughts, and the wheels made a banjo of the rails. But she was glad of her insomnia. Even better than sleeping well is staying awake well.

The train was on time and rolled chariot-smoothly into the Grand Central station. Clay Wimburn was there by special dispensation from the office, and he had had the forethought to secure a permit to come down to the platform. He told the station master that he had a crippled aunt to meet. He did not tell Mrs. Kip that. He let her believe that all doors opened to him.

Daphne had not finished pointing out her hand luggage to the redcap when Clay's arms were about her. She turned to draw her trusty "Sir!" but smothered it on her lips. He charged her mother next, and kissed her well, saying:

"That's not for Bayard; that's for me. How are you, mamma!"

Mrs. Kip blushed and squealed as she had squealed long ago when her first lover stole the first kiss.

After making arrangements about the baggage with magnificence and tipping the porter like a freshly baked millionaire, Clay taxicabbed them to Mr. and Mrs. Bayard's apartment house, a towering habitable chimney on Fifty-ninth street, overlooking Central park and Columbus circle.

The convenience and ingenuity of the apartment enchanted Daphne. It seemed impossible that all this luxury, this ozone of wealth, could be secured in so small a space, on part of one floor, the twelfth of a building. Everything came up in baskets by pulley—people, food, everything; it was like a monastery in the mountains—with some differences.

She was grateful beyond words to the young man who embraced her and stared over her shoulder—over her left shoulder—at the tiny commerce of the streets and the toy park. She said to him:

"Oh, Clay, this is heaven! What do you say to our having an apartment just like this? Let's!"

OLD HOUSE TO BE MUSEUM

Movement for Preservation of Structure Identified With Early Days of Southern California.

A movement is on at Riverside, Cal., for the preservation of a number of the old landmarks of the vicinity, buildings and spots intimately connected with the early-day period of southern California. The plan is being fostered by the local chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution and the Pioneer society.

The first project to be undertaken is the restoration of the old Rubidoux home, an adobe structure, which was built by Indian labor three-quarters of a century ago. The Rubidoux family was one of the most prominent of the early Spanish residents, and the home was a social center for the interior section. Many of the notable events of history of the period just previous to the forty-niners are more or less intimately connected with this old building which in recent years has been abandoned and has begun to crumble away.

After the work of restoration is completed, the building will serve as a nucleus for a pioneer museum for the housing of many relics of the early days.

Mediterranean Air Base.

A far-reaching program of aviation in the French colonial possessions in Africa has been drawn up by the commission on aerial transports at Tunis, Algeria, which recommends that a great aerial transport center be established, with Tunis as its base, in order to centralize aerial traffic over the Mediterranean sea. Inasmuch as Tunis occupies an advantageous position, at the junction of French and international colonial possessions, a regular aerial service, it is urged, between Tunis and outlying districts would benefit the French protectorate. Already a line of airplanes is in operation between Gabes, an Algerian seaport, and the frontier of Tripoli; and this, in the expectation of colonial officials, will be extended to Tunis. So the "unchanging East" is fast becoming a by-word only of times past.

Flax in the War.

With restoration of the industry on a peace-time basis cotton once again goes ahead of linen in the world's favor. The exigencies of the recent conflict raised flax to the position as leader among fabrics, a rank which it had held for centuries but lost almost simultaneously with the advent of the cotton gin.

With realization of the importance of cotton in the making of munitions, there came a speedy reversion to linen for the more commonplace usages—waistcoats, sails for ships, even "wings" for airplanes having lately consisted of linen. But flax has reached the end of its days of monopoly. King Cotton now rises to the fore in ordinary pursuits, and linen once again becomes the aristocrat in this field of supply.

CHARMING GARDEN FROCK

Here is shown one of the season's garden frocks. It is composed of a white silk skirt with an unusual old gold blouse, set off by a broad-brimmed white hat.

ABOUT THE LATE NECKWEAR

Separate Collars, Scarfs, Net Frills, Jabot Ruffles, Ribbons and Beads in Favor.

This is a season of neckwear.

The shops are full of lovely "separate" collars, and that, of course, is an indication of the style for separate bits of white and colored neckwear.

There is, perhaps, nothing new that might be used for neckwear. Within the last few years we have used batiste and handkerchief linen, organdie and net, lace and crepe de chine, tulle and embroidery. These things are still used, all of them, for neckwear. It is just the way they are used that makes them seasonable.

For one thing, there are batik scarfs of silk this season. They are lovely in color and design.

Then there are lovely waistcoats of brocaded and embossed ribbons.

Net frills are fastened on the edge of organdie collars and jabots.

Fine handkerchief linen is heavily embroidered in satin stitch.

Sheer, cobwebby lace is used to form jabot ruffles, attached to high collars, that suggest the beruffled shirts of the dandies of bygone days.

Not exactly neckwear, but in these days sensibly classed with it, because it all goes to produce the right effect at the neck finish of the bodice, is the bead chain. Some new ones are made of ribbon and beads. The ribbon forms the center part of the chain, and at each end of the ribbon, a strip perhaps three-quarters of a yard long, there is attached a chain of beads.

BLOUSES FOR SPRING WEAR

Over Garments to Accompany New Tailleurs May Be Constructed From Tricolette.

To accompany the charming new spring tailleurs there are the most delightful blouses of tricolette. All the lovely pastel shades, too, are being worn, with perhaps a preference for the new parrot green. And, by the way, not in many seasons has any color been taken up so quickly as the spring shades of green. But then there are those soft shades of rose, French blue, violet gray, raspberry, orange, cream, sand and apricot.

These unusual blouses assume the lines of the Balkan model and are of hip-length, with short sleeves and round neck. The blouse is sometimes made into a broad band at the hips and puffed over gracefully. One tricolette blouse in this style chose green for its color and trimmed the neck and sleeves with bands of cut steel beads.

"The overblouse to be smart must be simple and have good lines," says one authority, and that's why these new tricolette blouses are among the leading models of the season. A stunning blouse to accompany a suit of gray duvetyn was developed in raspberry colored tricolette. It was a basque effect with round neck and brief kimono sleeves. Odd motifs of wool in various colors graced the front and lent not a little charm to the silky fabric.

Round Hat Is Passe.

As far as Paris is concerned the round hat is passe, at least so runs the report. Shapes are irregular being broken on the sides and in front, the Breton style being popular. Silk plush crowns with a straw facing are shown, while a partiality is evidenced toward hats of taffeta and satin with medium height crowns.

Hats of Black Lace.

Hats of black lace, with and without straw, malines or tulle, are much in evidence. Many—in fact most—of these hats are on the large picturesque order.

IN JEWELRY FADS

Decorations Sensational Rather Than Extravagant.

Throat Latch and Pendant With Matching Earrings Brings Forth the Most Comment.

The present mode of wearing all sorts of striking jewelry has passed the stage where it may merely be referred to as extravagant; now it has become positively sensational, according to a Paris fashion writer. Quantities of remarkable jewelry were seen everywhere during the season in the south of France.

The jewel which created the most comment was a throat latch and pendant with matching earrings. These were very large and were made of platinum and diamonds. The earrings and the pendant were the same size and of the same design, the delicate chain which held the three together being of platinum and brilliants to match the three pendants.

A famous Parisian beauty wore this extraordinary ornament with the simplest possible coiffure, the hair being brushed straight back and twisted into a low knot at the nape of the neck. Her dress was an extreme decollete in black and she kept a sable coat on most of the time, as her back was absolutely nude to the waistline. No other jewels were worn, not even a finger ring, but the marvelous brilliancy of her throat latch and earrings was the more pronounced because of the severity of the remainder of the toilette.

Another striking novelty in jewelry is a double bracelet of onyx set with rows of pearls with little chains of pearls holding the two together. This, like many of the new bracelets, is worn above the elbow.

Very large earrings are much in vogue. They, like other present-day jewelry, are usually in combinations of black and white or white and one colored stone, green and white being the combinations most often chosen. The preference for green and white jewelry has brought the emerald into even greater prominence and, despite the fact that the prices of these stones have become almost fabulous, quantities of them are worn.

Watches are quite as elaborate in their design as earrings and bracelets.

FEMININE FANCIES

Scotch heather sweaters are prominent.

The new Balkan blouse has a high collar.

Real laces are used on tailored lingerie.

Figured net is the latest lingerie material.

Figured voile is used for children's play frocks.

The entire hat today is expressed in the crown.

Shot taffetas are printed in pompadour patterns.

Eccentric trimmings are features of the overblouse.

Colored cotton embroideries are very charming.

The new up-and-down trimming is much in vogue.

Some tailored and Irish-trimmed negligees are of heavy, lustrous silk.

Black satin draped with black tulle, is a wise choice for an evening gown.

A smart accessory is a dressy scarf of silk tissue, bordered in printed silk.

An all-white evening dress for second mourning is made of ring dot silk net.

Angora cloths in Scotch plaids, or with blazer stripes, are used for sport coats.

Entire capes of gray squirrel fur are among the most luxurious garments.

Gospel by Airplane.

A missionary preacher in the far northwest makes his visits to remote communities by airplane. Unless the weather is unsuited he needs no pulpit, for he makes use of the cockpit of the machine for this purpose.

RANCIS WEIRATH, foreman at Goodrich Rubber Co. Akron, Ohio who declares he has improved so since taking Tanlac that no one would ever take him to be the same man. Says he gained fourteen pounds.

"To look at me today no one would ever take me to be the same person I was before I began to take Tanlac. It has simply done wonders for me, and I want everybody to know about this medicine," said Francis Weirath, foreman of a large department of the Goodrich Rubber Company plant at Akron, Ohio. Mr. Weirath resides at 210 West State Street, that city.

"I was in an awfully bad state of health for fourteen years and during the past ten years I got to the point where life was a burden. I suffered terribly with indigestion and dyspepsia. I never had any appetite, and all I could eat for breakfast was a soft boiled egg and a little milk. I would get so nervous and miserable that many a night I never slept a wink and when nothing would bring me relief I had just about come to the conclusion my case was hopeless.

"I haven't taken but three bottles of Tanlac, but I feel better than I have felt for twelve years. I've gained fourteen pounds in weight and am getting heavier and stronger every day. I never have indigestion any more, my appetite is splendid and I eat just anything and everything I want. I sleep sound every night and all that tired, worn-out feeling is gone. In fact I am a well man in every way.

"The men at the plant all tell me I am looking fine these days and getting fat. They all want to know what I am doing to myself, and it's always a pleasure for me to tell them about Tanlac."

HEART FAILURE

Pte. L. W. Bradt, Demorestville, a soldier in Sydenham Military Hospital Kingston, died Tuesday afternoon of heart failure. He was aged 38 years He went overseas with the 129th Battalion and was transferred to the 4th Battalion.

CADET CAMP OPENED

The annual cadet camp for Military District No. 3 opened Thursday at the Exhibition Grounds, Peterboro. Lieut. Col. G. Gillespie of Kingston, O. C. cadet corps for this district, is in charge. About 500 cadets are expected to take part when all the units arrive. Stirling and Campbellford cadets were the first to arrive.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

A woman about sixty-five years of age was struck by a freight train Thursday night near Trenton while walking on the G.T.R. tracks. Stepping out of the way of a west bound train, the woman was struck by an east bound train and seriously injured. She was conscious and able to talk when picked up and was taken to Trenton hospital.

FEWER MOTOR ACCIDENTS.

Mr. H. Passmore, of the Motor Vehicles Department, provincial government, was in the city Friday, and spoke very highly of the excellent results which have followed the efforts of Chief of Police Newton and his staff to enforce the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act, which has had a tendency to reduce the number of motor accidents. The reckless speeder is the menace of the highways, said Mr. Passmore, and if the people would cooperate with the police and report all cases of reckless driving there would be fewer accidents.

MADE IN BELLEVILLE

A Made in Belleville Exhibit will be one of the features of this year's Belleville Fair and Secretary-Manager Fredericks, of the Chamber of Commerce, is perfecting arrangements to make this feature one of great interest and value to local manufacturers and the citizens generally. The fair this year will continue three days and the attractions will be many and varied. The speeding events promise great entertainment as a large number of the speediest horses in Canada will be here to compete. A good programme of field sports has been arranged and there will be a midway with merry-go-round, ferris wheel, and all the varied attractions of this popular amusement enterprise.

MOTOR TRUCK BURNED.

A large McLaughlin motor truck, owned by Mr. Wm. Rodbourne, of Belleville, was destroyed by fire on Thursday morning while en route to Deseronto for a load of furniture. The truck had started early in charge of Mr. J. Adams, and between seven and eight o'clock, when nearing Deseronto, flames broke out from some unknown cause and speedily enveloped the vehicle. Mr. Adams tried to extinguish the flames and called upon the crew of a threshing machine nearby for assistance, but the men refused, being afraid of an explosion of gasoline. Mr. Adams sustained slight burns while endeavoring to extinguish the flames. The truck was empty at the time and Mr. Rodbourne estimates his loss at about $1,500 with no insurance.

SHOWED SPIRIT OF AMERICA

Connecticut Youth Good Example of the Men That Made Victory Over the Hun Certain.

What was the spirit, French, British, Italian, American, that made possible the day of the signing of peace? Well, as for the American spirit, a story, which Gen. Clarence Edwards told me at St. Mihiel, has the meaning as I felt it, writes Lucian Swift Kirtland in Leslie's. He was visiting the hospital. Just as he was leaving a nurse ran after him. "A Connecticut boy," she said, "has heard you are here. He has begged me to ask you to see him. He's dying, but he doesn't know it. He says he has a great favor to ask." Just then the chaplain came and had the same request. They hurried back, the chaplain leading. The boy looked up and saw the chaplain.

"My God! Chaplain," he called out, "what are you looking so darn glum about? Just 'cause you think I'm going to die and you don't know how to tell me about it? H—, what did I come over here for? Didn't I come over here to die if that had to be the chance? Haven't I had my big chance? Have I failed? What the h— are you worrying about?"

Just then he saw the general. "Oh, General," he said, "excuse me for bothering you, but I'm dying. I know it. I don't want to ask for favors, but the Connecticut band is here, and I thought I'd ask you if you'd have them come and play just once outside here. I want to hear the 'Connecticut State March' just once more."

In a minute the band was there—and it was playing the strains of the march. The lad lifted himself up, a smile of satisfaction on his face. His arm beat the time of the music. He pretended to be leading the band. At the last note he dropped back to his pillow—dead.

Girls Play Fox and Hounds.

French village streets are admirably adapted to the American game of fox and hounds, according to Miss Vera B. Haines of Lake Bluff, Ill.

Miss Haines is in charge of a summer camp which the Y. W. C. A. has opened for industrial girls at Quiberon, France.

The camp is similar to those which the association has established in this country for girls who want an out-of-door vacation with plenty of sports and good times, but who cannot afford to pay much for it. It is only one of three established in France by the American Y. W. C. A.

Swimming is taught every afternoon for those who wish to learn it at Quiberon, but the weather is almost too cool to make this sport popular, Miss Haines writes. The girls are anxious to learn American games, so they have been playing fox and hounds through the streets of the village in the afternoons and becoming acquainted with "bacon and bats," on the beach and long hikes. Bonfires are next to impossible in arranging because of the scarcity of all the essentials—wood, wienerwursts and marshmallows.

Didn't Stay to Say.

One rainy morning in the early fall I was awakened by a noise, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. I listened, heard some more noises, and decided there must be some one in the house. I jumped from my bed, turned on the light in the dining room, and there, to my horror, stood Mr. Burglar at the kitchen door. He had jumped through the pantry window and got only as far as the kitchen when I caught him. I screamed at the top of my voice: "Get out of here! What do you want here, anyway?" and quietly he unlocked the door and went, never saying a word.

A Canadian Tenor.

The British Foreign Office, through Earl Curzon of Kedleston, has just transmitted to Edward Johnson, the opera tenor, the Cross of Officers of the Order of the Crown of Italy, conferred upon the singer by his majesty, King Victor Emanuel. The decoration was forwarded by the Italian Ambassador to the British office inasmuch as Mr. Johnson is a Canadian and a British subject. Last year he returned to America from Italy, where under the name of Eduardo di Giovanni he has been widely known as a leading figure in the opera houses and the creator of the tenor roles in many of the modern Italian operas, notably "Gianni Schicci," "Il Tabarro," "La Nave," and "L'Amore dei Tre Re." He was brought back to America by the late Cleofonte Campanini to undertake principal parts with the Chicago Opera Association, and his success has been most pronounced.

The funeral of the late Robert Turner was held this morning from the residence of Mrs. Turner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster, corner Earle and Gordon streets. An impressive funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. H. Wallace of the Baptist Church. The funeral was held under the auspices of the A. F. & A. M., the service being in charge of Bros. Barlow, Newton and Rose. The bearers were Messrs. A. Blackburn, W. H. Faulkner, R. Andrews, Geo. Cornish, Geo. Clarke and C. Rose, of Brantford.

DRILLER WAS KILLED

Cobalt, Ont., Aug. 27.—A fatal accidental shooting has robbed the north country of its champion mine driller, Jim McMillan. McMillan was a mine captain at the Keeley Mine in South Lorraine. Col. McIntosh Bell is the manager and he having just recovered from recurrence of trench fever went on a fishing trip on the Kipawa River with McMillan. In the woods Mr. Bell became lost and fired a shot to attract his companion. Later there was another shot. Mr. Bell later found that it was this shot which ended McMillan's life. He found him sitting on a log with a cigarette in his mouth. A shot from a shotgun had torn his heart to pieces.

Wedding Bells

MUSGRAVE—BAKER.

A quiet wedding took place August 24th, at St. John's Church, Warkworth, Ont., when Jessie, fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker, was married to Jack E. Musgrave, B. A. Sc., of Longford. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. R. Courage, of Hastings. The bride, who was given away by her father, was dressed in a smartly tailored suit of navy-serge, opening on a shell-pink georgette blouse. She also wore a navy taffeta and velvet hat, a corsage of sweetheart roses and acacia, and the groom's gift, a necklace of pearls. Miss Annie Baker, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a pretty costume of green satin veiled in georgette, embroidered in green and gold and a taupe and black velvet hat. Her flowers were Gloire Dijou roses. The groomsman was Arthur H. Musgrave, B.S.A., brother of the groom. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Alice Baker, sister of the bride, who also sang "All Joy Be Thine" during the signing of the register. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a signet ring, to his best man a sterling silver pencil and to the organist an oriental necklace. After the ceremony a dainty breakfast was served at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Musgrave left immediately afterwards for Toronto en route to their home in Longford. Among many beautiful gifts was a handsome cut glass water set from the staff of the Hopewell Avenue School, Ottawa, of which the bride was a member.

BRITISH DOLLS.

War Helped to Establish This Industry Firmly.

During the war, reports U. S. Consul Gassett at Leeds, England, there has been firmly established at Dewsbury, in the Leeds district, an industry which formerly was almost a German monopoly. Soon after the outbreak of hostilities not only were the children of the United Kingdom deprived of their customary supplies of German made dolls, but British manufacturers lost the whole of their export trade with the Central Powers, to whom they had been accustomed to send large quantities of makings of dolls' wigs and in construction of pads for woman's coiffures. There was also an extensive business done with the continent, as well as at home, in theatrical wigs and masks, hair frames and hair pads.

For several years before the war a Dewsbury firm had been engaged in handling mohair and other kinds of hair for a variety of purposes and had at its command trained labor which could be readily adapted to enterprises on somewhat different lines. The Board of Trade realized the practicability of this firm extending its business and thus helping to overcome the situation created by the lack of German dolls and the very small supplies that were coming from France and the United States.

Some dolls were being made in England, but they were outclassed by foreign productions with which there was no effective competition. In a remarkably short period these conditions have been changed and the Dewsbury firm is now carrying on a flourishing business in all branches of the doll-making trade at a large factory equipped with up-to-date plant and machinery. Already upward of 300 workers are employed and the output has reached considerable dimensions, with constant developments under way. The range of designs in dolls number fully 1,000 and many of the models are equal to any formerly produced in foreign countries. The position has been so reversed that it is hoped that not only can the home market be adequately supplied, but a considerable number of dolls exported. The production of hair frames is also being developed; the output of these is over 20,000 a week. A large percentage of them being sent abroad, there being an excellent demand for them in all parts of the world.

2,000 SERBS CAPTURED BY ALBANIAN ARMY

London, Aug. 26.—A Reuter despatch from Rome, quoting the Tempo says that the Albanian command has issued the following communique:—"The Albanians have gained a victory over the Serbs in the Dibra region. The Serbs lost 2,000 men. The Serbs have been driven back to the frontier which they crossed on July 16.

"Pending a communication from Belgrade, the Tirana government has ordered its troops to halt at the demarcation line fixed in 1913."

AGAINST IMMODEST DRESS

Haileybury, Aug. 27.—His Lordship Bishop Latulipe, the Catholic Bishop of this diocese has issued another exhortation to the women of the diocese to dress modestly. His Lordship is down on low necks and short sleeves and has frequently had his priests admonish the women for attending church in what he declared to be "immodest attire."

RITCHIE'S NEW SERGES

FOR THE NEW SEASON

With the approaching Autumn season, new styles and new dresses are in demand.

The Ritchie Co., Limited, have much pleasure in announcing the arrival of a large stock of New Serge Dresses and Suits for the approaching season.

SERGE DRESSES

The new arrival of Serge Dresses are the smartest styles that have ever been introduced. The gold thread work on these dresses has been executed with the utmost skill on the part of the embroiderer to give effect. The tailoring is in every way perfect and the quality of the material is the best that can be got. We can assure our customers that this stock is well worth your inspection. A few have been placed on exhibition in our windows but there is a very fine assortment in the Mantle Dept. (Main Floor) and we shall have great pleasure in laying any out for your inspection.

The New Serge Suits

The new Serge Suits that are now on hand are exceptionally well tailored and extremely smart in appearance.

The new style has the popular narrow loose belt attached and the long style coat, which is so much in demand at the present time. Some of the Skirts are made in the accordeon pleated style and are very smart. Others are finished with little tucks which give a very smart and attractive look to the suit. Large buttons to match the material have been used with good effect and altogether the turnout of the new style is perfect

We ask you to call and see these Suits. Our space will not allow us to describe the many beauties and the fine points. By seeing them you will understand their value. On show in the Mantle Dept. (Main Floor).

The New Fall Coats HAVE ARRIVED

Many very beautiful and smart Autumn Coats have arrived and will be on show in the Mantle Room this week. On account of the large assortment we cannot fully describe them in this advertisement, and again we ask you to call. One of the very many styles is a

Bishop Of Ontario Says Prohibition Is Unfair

WRITES IN NATIONAL REVIEW, ADVOCATING STRICT GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF LIQUOR BUSINESS AS BEST MEANS OF COMBATTING DRUNKENNESS—DRINKING WITH MEALS IS ALL RIGHT, SAYS BISHOP BIDWELL.

(Toronto Telegram)

The widely divergent views regarding liquor held by the mass of the people of Britain and the majority of Canadians are dwelt upon in an article from the pen of Rev. Dr. Edward Bidwell, of Kingston, Anglican Bishop of Ontario. In the August issue of the National Review the bishop seeks to explain conditions in Canada to British readers. The bishop who is strongly opposed to prohibition, declares that it is unfair, that it has led to the taking of drugs, of alcoholic substitutes and that the frequent breaches of the O.T.A. by otherwise highly respectable citizens who, when apprehended, receive public sympathy rather than reprobation, tends to bring all law into contempt. Extracts from his article are given below.

Opposes Holy Writ

"I do not," declares the bishop, "believe myself that prohibition (so called), is the best means of dealing with the terrible problem of drunkenness and have so stated publicly. It appears to me that all the good results it accomplishes could be equally well effected by strict Government regulation of the drink traffic, including the closing of all bars and saloons without the evils prohibition brings in its train. The view that any and every use of alcoholic beverages is wrong in itself, which was strongly pressed in the recent campaign in Ontario and undoubtedly largely influenced the voting appears to me to be inconsistent not only with common sense, but with the Sacramental teachings of my church, indeed, with the actions and practices of the Founder of Christianity."

Puritan Ideas

"For the better understanding of this question," continues the bishop in part, "it should be stated at the outset that in Canada in general and perhaps in Ontario in particular, the almost universal practice in England of taking wine or beer or some other alcoholic beverage at meals was never common except in houses run on English lines and at clubs. The present writer on first coming to Canada 17 years ago was greatly impressed by the fact that when dining at a large and popular hotel in Montreal, scarcely any of the guests drank any water with their dinner. And this was equally true of hotels everywhere. But a roaring trade was done at the bars between times. This practice which seems peculiar to an Englishman appears to have been a concession to a certain Puritan strain of public opinion which considered any use of alcoholic beverages however moderate, a crime in itself.

One Glass—"He Drinks"

"The result was that men usually consumed far more liquor than they probably would have done had they used it as an accompaniment to their meals, and the custom also tended to surround the whole practice with a furtiveness and discredit wholly unknown in England. In the country districts of Ontario especially the ordinary English view of the proper and rational use of alcoholic beverages is practically unknown. A man who at any time takes a glass of beer or wine or spirits "drinks"—though his potations may be most moderate and infrequent and he may never have been the worse for liquor in his life. In the country, even thos who keep it in the house seldom or never put it on the table."

Our Air Is Wine

But the Bishop is willing to give the other side. Says he—"It should be observed also that climatic conditions in eastern Canada at any rate do serve to lessen the need for stimulants. The exhilarating clear and invigorating air with the absence for the most part of fog and damp, together with glorious sunshine which prevails during the greater part of the year, undoubtedly render alcoholic beverages less necessary. Many Englishmen who come to live in Canada greatly reduce their use of stimulants, simply because they do not feel the need of it to the same extent. But per contra, when the vice of excessive drinking does get hold of a man, it seems to destroy him more quickly and completely than in England.

Col. Grasett's Views

The testimony of Col. Grasett given below comports well with the sentiments in the above paragraph. In reply to a question by the bishop, Toronto's former police chief wrote him: "The closing of the bar has been of the very greatest benefit to the community, young and old, particularly the former, who in days to come will have good reason to bless their predecessors for suppressing the greatest curse in Canada. Having had the opportunity during 38 years' experience of Chief Constable, watching drunkenness and its effects in this city, I have no hesitation in saying that in my opinion prohibition has been a success. I do not however, support those who would go to extremes in this direction, but would favor some modification in existing regulations if such could be devised, that would not impair the present Act, so far as drunkenness is concerned, but would give more liberty to the great bulk of law abiding citizens who for no reason of their own have in the public interests to endure the restrictions imposed by the Ontario Temperance Act for the benefit of those who cannot control their appetite for too much strong drink."

"Pros." Put One Over

Bishop Bidwell stigmatizes the methods resorted to by the Prohibitionists as grossly unfair and declares that by means of the four different questions which had to be answered on the referendum ballot the issue was clouded, the vote split in favor of the "Drys," with results entirely misrepresentative of public sentiment. Says he—"If the Government had placed before the people the one question: 'Are you in favor of an amendment of the Ontario Temperance Act, substituting a system of strict Government control of the liquor traffic for the practical prohibition now in force" a clear issue would have been placed before the people and those who did not believe in it would not have been left as they are now, with a rankling sense that they did not have quite a square deal."

Police Capture Windsor Rum Fleet

WINDSOR, Aug. 28—The capture of ten men and five boats believed to be a rum-running fleet headed for Toledo was effected shortly before daylight in the Detroit River below Sandwich after an exchange of shots between the officers and the alleged rum-runners.

The largest boat was the cabin cruiser Eugenia of Toledo, the other four being launches. Two were in tow of the Eugenia, and two were running on their own power. Fifty-two kegs of beer and 27 cases of whiskey were seized on the beats.

The party of License Inspectors made up of Rev. J. O. L. Spracklin, Hallam, Connor and Johnson were patrolling the river at 4 a.m., when the Eugenia and the other craft were sighted on their way down the river According to the officers' story, their attention was attracted when men on the Eugenia, on sighting the patrol began to heave kegs overboard.

The boats refused to stop till the officers opened fire, which was returned by the Eugenia. No one was hit. The men on the Eugenia used a 45-calibre rifle.

Boats and men were brought to Windsor where the men appeared this afternoon before Magistrate Miers for violation of the O.T.A.

They gave their names as P. Foley, Otto Yost, Harry Heulus, Herbert Horzeley, Matthew Brennan, Floyd Herbert, Clarence D. Wallat, Harold Palmer, Fred Waldorg and Anthony Spath. The first five were let go with a fine of $200 each and the others released for lack of sufficient evidence to convict.

70,000 CASES OF LIQUOR CONFISCATED

Windsor, Aug. 27.—Some idea of the vast proportions of the liquor traffic along this frontier may be had from the published fines which showed that from April 1, 70,000 cases of liquor with a Canadian valuation of $225,000, and a "bootlegging" value of four times that sum, have been confiscated by the local License Inspector's office. Fines amounting to $215,000 have been collected during the same period. Today one carload of confiscated liquor was shipped to the Provincial Government at Toronto. The car contained 800 cases. Efforts to clean up Tecumseh have authorized the confiscation of liquor amounting to 2,500 cases in that town by the license inspectors.

Means Collapse Of The Soviet

If Defeat at the Hands of the Poles is Admitted—Lenine Realizes This

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—The Soviet Government is firmly determined to carry the war through until Poland is utterly defeated. Lenine and Trotzky will order a general mobilization of all Russia.

The above is contained in a despatch from Vienna to the National Gazette. The correspondent says his information is from an authentic source. It is presumed that the source is the Soviet representative in Vienna.

The basis of this decision is alleged to be the realization by leading Soviet statesmen that an admission of defeat at the hands of the Poles as expressed in a peace proposed by Poland would mean the end of the Soviet regime in Russia. Therefore, an early end to the war cannot be reckoned on.

This despatch conflicts with reports from other capitals that Moscow is ready to modify its terms—that it is willing to meet the Poles half way in order to get peace.

A second Vienna despatch presumably from the same source, says that Russia has 450,000 troops on the fighting line and huge reserves at a considerable distance back. Poor transportation makes the re-grouping of the armies a slow process. There are only 5,000 locomotives in all Russia and of this number only 1,500 are available for military use.

Ponzi's Palace Seized By Police

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—The receivers in bankruptcy of Charles Ponzi, who skyrocketed into fame as an alleged maker of millions in international postal reply coupons, today formally received Ponzi's expensive home in Lexington and several automobiles which he bought in his days of affluence. The wife and mother of the imprisoned promoter were allowed to continue their residence there, and it is understood that they will not be disturbed until the estate is settled.

Fifteen-Cent Sugar Says Detroit

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—Detroit firms are offering sugar in Montreal at $17 per hundred pounds, freight, duty and exchange paid, a local wholesale dealer announced this morning. This dealer did not buy, he said, because he was waiting for the price to drop to 15c.

A. S. Richardson, sugar broker, claimed to have 50,000 bags of St. Lawrence sugar which could sell below refinery price. He held that the Government knew the excess profits of the refineries and must be familiar with their enormous profits of the last few years.

"Why should all the refineries be allowed to sell at the same price?" he asked. "They buy their raws independently and their refining expenses must be approximately the same; why should the Board of Commerce not compel competition amongst them? In the United States they have the Lever Law, to prevent just such cutting of competition."

IRISH FAIR SHOT UP BY ARMED SINN FEINERS

Omagh, Ireland, Aug. 27.—While a fair was in progress at Drumquin, about seven miles northwest of Omagh, this morning, a party of armed Sinn Feiners dashed through the village in motor cars and opened fire on a small force of police controlling the traffic, wounding two of the men. A sergeant in command was wounded slightly and a constable received critical injuries. After the opening dash, the raiding party turned its attention to barracks, which the remainder of the police were striving to defend. After a long and futile siege the Sinn Feiners departed. A large military force was despatched to the scene from Omagh, but arrived too late to be of assistance.

GERMANS STORM POLISH AND FRENCH CONSULATES

London, Aug. 28.—During a demonstration in Breslau by the old bourgeois parties, Thursday evening, against the Polish agitation in Upper Silesia, a crowd of German Nationalists stormed the Polish and French consulates and destroyed the records and demolished the furniture, says a Berlin despatch to the London Times.

Children Stoned By Sinn Feiners

BELFAST, Aug. 27.—Military rifles are cracking in Belfast. Tanks of the type that tore through the German defences of the western front are patrolling the streets. The sky is lighting with flames from burning buildings. A man and a girl are dead, the man a victim of a rifle shot during a street melee and the girl of a mob attack on a school.

The rioting is the aftermath of the killing of Police Inspector Swanzy, who was shot Sunday at Lisburn.

The rioting is steadily increasing in volume and frenzy. The Government is reinforcing the garrisons and has authorized the hasty swearing in of emergency constables.

Twenty-six houses were fired today. More have been touched with the torch. Early in the afternoon the fire brigade was called out seventeen times in two hours. At more than one blaze the work of fire fighters was hindered by the torch. Hose were cut At two of the fires the victims and their friends who were attempting to aid the firemen were stoned by the mob of incendiaries. Pitched battles followed.

In several instances soldiers fired over the heads of the throngs that would not disperse. In one instance they fired into the crowd. It was here that the man was killed. Four others fell beside him wounded.

The defenders of a Catholic church were repulsed and the mob started looting. A patrol of soldiers cleared the church area with several volleys. An attempt was made to set fire to a ship yard but failed.

The rioting originated in a report that Nationalists yesterday stoned children leaving the Comber Street National School at Ballymacarret, a Belfast suburb. Robert Caldwell, principal of the school denied that the pupils were attacked, but there is no doubt that the report was believed by both sides and that it acted like matches to tinder especially since the recollection was still fresh of the stoning of a Sunday School excursion at Castle Dawson, which precipitated a great riot following the Larkin engineering strike in 1907.

As the report spread that the children had been stoned at Comber Street School, mothers flew to the scene and excitement, already inflamed by the Lisburn events, rose to fever heat. Word reached the shipyards and many workers left in a mood for the events which followed.

Machine Guns in Action

To-night's rioting began in the Falls district of West Belfast, the scene of the deadliest fighting in the July disturbances. It started with revolver-firing near the Kashmir Road of evil memories. Albert Street in the Falls area, situated in the populous mill locality mainly inhabited by Nationalists, became the new storm centre.

During the trouble an armored car appeared and fired on the rioters, a number of whom were taken to hospitals suffering from machine gun wounds. Crowds of shipyard workers appeared from the side streets waving union jacks.

The military was heartily cheered as was a section of the fire brigade which was summoned for an incendiary fire brigade which was summoned for an incendiary fire at the foot of Seaford street. A few minutes after the fire started the whole block of buildings was a seething mass of flames. There was much looting.

Could Be No Worse

"Belfast could be no worse." This was the description given by high police officials of the conditions in Belfast to-night.

A large creamery at Knocklong, County Limerick, was burned today. A creamery at Shongelden was set on fire, but the flames were extinguished.

Donovan May Run In Leeds Riding

Brockville, Aug. 27.—The claims of A. E. Donovan, of Toronto, ex-M.P.P., for Brockville, as Conservative candidate in the Federal riding of Leeds, in succession to Hon. Sir Thomas White, whose resignation is expected next month, are being pressed by his friends in the Athens district, where Mr. Donovan is at present spending a few weeks.

It is understood that Mr. Donovan would not be unwilling to be selected as the candidate of the Government in the riding, which embraces his old constituency, but no statement has yet been made by him. The presence of Mr. Donovan at the recent picnic of E. Guss Porter, M.P., at Stirling, at which Hon. Arthur Meighen spoke, lends color to this belief.

John G. Mitchell of Ottawa, a native of Lansdowne, who is understood to be an aspirant for parliamentary honors, has been in the riding this week, in company with Lieut.-Col. A. W. Gray, M.P.P. for Leeds. Mr. Mitchell is chief clerk in the Department of the Interior, of which Hon. Mr. Arthur Meighen was formerly the head. The Farmers' organization at present covers only scattered sections of the riding, but considerable interest has been aroused through the recent visit to the county of J. J. Morrison, Secretary of the U.F.O., who urged organization.

Longshoremen Strike For Love Of Mannix

Sympathizers March to Cunard Line Piers in New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Longshoremen who were unloading four big White Star liners went on strike here in protest against the action of British authorities in taking Archbishop Mannix, pro-Irish prelate, from the Baltic on her last trip to England. This report was telephoned to police headquarters by officials of the line, who asked that reserves be rushed to the piers.

From the White Star Line Irish sympathizers marched to the Cunard Line piers, where they claimed they had pulled out other longshoremen. Then they started for the docks of the Anchor Line.

When the Baltic docked here today on her arrival from England, her crew found women at the piers carrying banners denouncing the British Government's attitude toward Ireland and taunting the British sailors for allowing a passenger to be taken from their decks.

The women, who claimed to be members of the "American Women's Pickets," called on crews of the ships as well as longshoremen to quit work in protest against the action of the British authorities in the Mannix case.

A demonstration was staged by longshoremen, whose number was estimated at several hundred, when they stopped the work of loading and unloading the White Star liners, which included the Baltic, Celtic, Olympic and Canopic.

Then the pickets and their escorts started out to tie up every other British ship in port, but announced that they would not attempt to hamper work on any craft flying the United States flag.

It was a scene of wild confusion along the waterfront. Hundreds of excited men and women ran along West street gathering recruits as they dashed from pier to pier. Entering each dock and swarming up the gangways of the ships the throng cried: "All off." At virtually each stopping place the crowd was joined by dockworkers and here and there a stray seaman was seen to take his place in the ranks.

The throng of Irish sympathizers led by the women, carried signs reading:

"When Mannix goes to Ireland let the Baltic leave New York."

Other signs read: "The Baltic cleared with Mannix aboard, sing Ho-Ho-Ho for the stokers won."

The plane will start on the next leg of its journey tomorrow morning, expecting to make Riviere du Loup, Quebec, a journey of about the same distance.

Russian Reds Slaughtered By Polish Artillery

RETREATING COLUMN CAUGHT AT SHORT RANGE BY POLISH ARTILLERY AND ALMOST WIPED OUT—600 CAPTURED, INCLUDING GENERAL STAFF OFFICERS—COMMANDER AND CHIEF OF STAFF KILLED.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WARSAW, Aug. 28.—Polish artillery has decimated the principal column of retreating Soviet forces on the northern front, catching the Bolsheviki at short range, according to an official statement issued here. More than six hundred men, including two general staff officers and all line officers have been captured. Among the killed was the commander of the 57th division and his chief of staff.

TRANSFER PEACE PARLEYS.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Willingness to transfer the Russo-Polish peace negotiations to a neutral country is expressed in a wireless message from Moscow, picked up by the Eiffel Tower station today. Details of the Soviet offer could not be deciphered, however, the Foreign Office announced.

Pride Causes Fail Of Tricky German

Impersonated U. S. Officer, but Photograph Gave His Game Away.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Inordinate pride caused the downfall of Theo Schude, German spy, confessed murderer of three persons in Berlin, and who has been posing as Lieut. Arthur Kincaid. When he took over the personality of the United States officer and began drawing Kincaid's back pay, Schude destroyed everything that would point to his real identity, with the exception of a photograph of himself in a German uniform. He was so proud of the picture he would not destroy it, but hid it in the bottom of a trunk. One day his playful buddies upset the trunk, found the poatrait, and Schude's arrest and exposure followed.

The spy arrived here today from San Francisco in the custody of two Deputy United States Marshals. He said he was ready to plead guilty to posing as Lieut. Kincaid and of defrauding the Government out of $1,600, but denied that he had operated at any time as a German Government spy in American army ranks.

Captured by French.

"I came to the United States in 1913," he said, "and was here for five months. Then I went back to Germany and the war started. I entered the Germany army and served until 1917, when I was captured by the French. I escaped, returned to Germany, and entered the secret service.

"I got hold of the papers captured from Lieut. Kincaid, an American. I did not need them then, but kept them for an emergency. After the war I shot one of the leaders of the Communist party in Berlin, April, 1919, and was sentenced to die on May 19. I managed to escape from prison by killing two men, and reached Brussels, where I fell ill.

Signed Pay Cheques.

"I told the Belgians I was a United States officer, and showed them Kincaid's papers. They notified the United States Legation, which sent me to Antwerp, and later to Paris. Then I was brought to Fort Sheridan, Illinois. At the fort they told me to get a uniform, but I replied that I had no money. Then I signed a pay cheque voucher as Lieut. Kincaid, bought a uniform and went to San Francisco. By signing Kincaid's vouchers I received $1,600 back pay. Everything would have worked out nicely had I only destroyed that photograph of myself in German uniform."

Schude is slim, a decided blonde, 23 years old, and a thorough German. He will be arraigned before Commissioner Mason in a few days.

Boy Bandits Plotted Murder

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Confession of a plot to shoot Charles A. Comiskey, baseball magnate, and the office force and police guard at the White Sox baseball park box office, September 16, was made to the police by the three boy bandits who were arrested yesterday in an attempted robbery of a $40,000 pay roll of Wilson & Company, stockyard packers.

According to the police, the three said that they intended to rob the gate receipts of the White Sox-Yankee game, September 16, when they figured "Babe" Ruth would draw a record-breaking attendance. They said they also planned "to shoot the witnesses."

James Ryan, one of the trio, was identified at the State Attorney's office as a member of the gang that shot and killed Detective Sergeant Frank McGurk recently while the detective was defending a local plant against a robber's raid.

Theatre Magnate Commits Suicide

BOUND BROOK, N.J., Aug. 28.—Guy Briggs, wealthy theatrical promoter, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in the cellar of his home here. He promoted the "Greenwich Village Follies," "What's in a Name?" and the "Greenwich Village Follies Number 2," which will open in New York next Monday night. He is said to have inherited an estate estimated at $1,000,000 from his father, the late Benjamin Briggs, a financier largely interested in the Cunard Steamship Company.

Briggs had lost considerable money in theatrical enterprises, but this is not supposed to have been the motive for his suicide.

Sinn Fein Women Cause Trouble

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Hostilities were resumed today by five Sinn Fein women pickets, who yetserday started a demonstration that resulted in a walk out of more than two thousand longshoremen employed on British ocean liners, as a protest against Great Britain's Irish policy. Plans are said to be on foot to spread protest strike to other Atlantic ports and to extend if possible to the ship companies as well as longshoremen. Action taken was not expected to prevent the sailing today of a number of ships due to clear port during the day.

NINETY YEARS OF AGE WALKED TWO MILES

Mrs. Mary Wiggins, wife of the late Thos. Wiggins, was visiting friends in the city yesterday. On Wednesday, Aug. 25th, she celebrated her ninetieth birthday, while at her home in Trenton. On this day she walked two miles to see a friend. Mrs. Wiggins spent 38 years of her life a resident of Belleville. Though aged she is enjoying perfect health and happiness, and has been a reader of The Intelligencer for many years.

When Dancing Was Sacred

AT present it seems strange to many of us that the clergy should be advocating dancing as an aid to morality, but unusual as this at first appears, a little thought as to the origin of dancing shows that we are only returning to the earliest conception of the art.

Even so, it is impossible to imagine our "bishops, priests, and deacons" countenancing the use of their churches for such festivities, and yet in the Church of St. Pancras at Rome, there still exists a sort of stage separated from the altar, on which, we are told, priests and worshippers in the early days of Christianity joined in measures led by their bishop.

These early Christians, no doubt, bore in mind the sacred dances of the Hebrews, for the choir at Jerusalem, forming a sort of stage, was reserved for dancing by the Levites, a sacred tribe who sang as they danced to the sound of stringed and wind instruments.

The air is full of the excitement of Victory Balls, in towns both big and small; here too, if we turn up the Book of Kings, we find that it is only in accordance with Biblical precedence, for the women came out of all the cities of Israel, singing and dancing to the sound of flutes and tablets, after David had slain Goliath —the Kaiser of those days!

But many centuries earlier than this, the art of dancing as a religious ceremony had had its dawn under the Egyptian skies. The first steps were guided by priests before the great granite sphinxes, the monstrous columns, and the high pediments of their temples, now so well known to many of our gallant soldiers. Here the mysterious grandeur of the sacred dances symbolized the harmony of the stars, the altar in the middle of the temple representing the orb of day, while the dancers took the parts of the signs of the zodiac, the seven planets, and the constellations revolving round the sun.

In Greece, too, dancing always held a prominent place in religious ceremonies, even the physicians of the days of Aristophanes, 500 B.C., advocating it just as they are doing at the present day as a healthful exercise; while Plato considered it a very efficient remedy in certain forms of mania, the patients also listening to songs that were calculated to heat their blood and open the pores so as to facilitate the ejection of the supposed poison.

Mahomet, imitating Christian practice, instituted a sect of dancers—the well-known Dervishes—who twirl round and round with astonishing swiftness, sometimes even till they fall down in a swoon.

Even as late as 1806, a new sect was founded in New England — the Jumpers—who looked on dancing as an act of worship and whirled round and round for hours at a time, until they, like the Dervishes, would fall down exhausted.

Amongst the Indians, with their worship of the sun and moon, dancing, accompanied by singing, was for a long period the only form of homage. In this fashion, they adored their gods, the sun and the moon, at their rising and setting, altering the form of their adoration to lamentation during the eclipses, for this deep ecstasy out of which the dance sprang, was not necessarily joy — it might be the ecstasy of worship or the ecstasy of grief.

A child's words are never enough to express the heart's delight; the whole body becomes a lively instrument for joy to play upon, for all human emotion expresses itself most spontaneously in bodily gesture; it was on this account that the Greeks never regarded dancing as a mere frivolous entertainment.

From its power of affecting the emotions—and with them the character—they attributed to it a grave importance. Plato in constructing his ideal republic went so far as to advocate its regulation by the state, so as to actually foster and prescribe the best dances with a view to elevating and perfecting the character of the citizens; and if it be true that dancing determines the emotions, and that the emotions of a people determine its character, what could be more reasonable?

When manors decay, the dance becomes decadent also. It is not the dissoluteness of the dance that poisons the morals of the age, it the corruption of the age that poisons the dance. If it suffers from any general relaxation of morality more swiftly and more disastrously than any of the other arts, it is because it expresses the emotions with such fidelity and emphasis.

There is no doubt that, however modified the popular dances of ages most remote and of countries most widely apart may be, they are all deducted from one common origin—viz., the religious dance. There are instances—some of which are so secular—which it seems difficult to think of as forming part of a ritual, but that is probably only because of our inability to trace the dance far enough back. Take our ballet, for instance, which originated in Egypt, the dancers personifying the movements of the stars and planets.

From a superficial point of view, it is true, the dance is only a frivolous amusement, but if we understand its historical import, we shall be able to see what a power it can exert on creating instincts of culture and refinement.

But what greater encouragement for such a pleasurable pastime can be found than St. Basil's Epistle to Gregory, wherein he says that since dancing is "the only occupations of angels in Heaven, happy are those who can imitate them upon earth!"

MUSIC AND DRAMA

SCOTCH COMPANY COMING

Coincident with the arrival here of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Moffat, playgoers will have an opportunity of seeing "Don't Tell," the new Scottish comedy interpreted by the original Scottish cast and in the scenic environment of the original production, all of which have been brought intact from Glasgow by Mr. William Morris, who is known throughout the world as the manager of Sir Harry Lauder's tours.

While Mr. Morris was in London last spring, he heard of the new Scottish comedy which Mr. Moffat has produced, and, recalling the success of that author's earlier work, "Bunty Pulls the Strings," he forthwith journeyed to Glasgow, saw the new play and secured the rights for the United States and Canada.

Mr. Moffat's newest piece, "Don't Tell," which is to be presented at Griffin's next Friday, September 3rd, is described as a Scottish comedy of Glasgow life . It is concerned chiefly with a local plumber who is quite suddenly and unexpectedly elected to the magistracy Yielding to the demands of his family, he consents to hold a private rehearsal of the duties he will be called upon officially to perform as the the new Baillie's official position. It is velops that his eldest daughter is really concerned in a matter which seriously concerns the whole family and each in turn attempts secretly to furnish the money for the girl's release without jeopardizing the dignity of the new aBille's official position. It is from this promise that Mr. Moffat has developed the complications and suspensive interest in his new comedy which will be revealed here the first time at Griffin's Theatre Friday, September 3.

DOROTHY GISH A "VAMP"

Dorothy Gish is an unwilling 'vamp' in her new picture "Mary Ellen Comes to Town," which will be shown at Griffin's today, matinee and night. According to the story she is an innocent country girl come to the big city with ambitions to star on the stage. She never gets further than her job as singer in a cabaret. The manager schemes to use her as the lure with which to relieve a worthy young man of his roll. And Dorothy, facing a trumped up charge that might land her in prison, goes about her task of trapping the unwary, until she loses her nerve and confesses to her victim. Whereupon they foil the crooks and all ends happily. The proposed "fall guy" is handsome Ralph Graves and the rest of the cast supporting the little comedienne is of a high standard. British Canadian News Pictorial a funny 2-reel Hank Mann comedy, an Outing Chetser Travelogue, and a thrilling chapter of the great stunt picture, "The Whirlwind."

"WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE"

Will Rogers does some of the finest riding of his screen career in the Goldwyn picture, "Water, Water Everywhere," which comes to Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday. There is a mad race across country, which taxes to the utmost the strength and ability of both horse and rider which seems at times almost to end in disaster. There is a run which ends in a leap through the door of a saloon, the horse bringing up short in the middle of the floor. This required the most excellent co-ordination of brain and muscle to avoid being swept from the horse when he entered the low door. The exit from the saloon is even more sensational. Mr. Rogers mounts the animal, dashes madly at the door, throws himself partly out of the saddle, hanging by one foot, to avoid hitting the door frame and is just recovering from this position hen the horse leaps the high railing in front of the saloon and is off at a mad gallop. Just to work off cowboy spirits Rogers races through the streets of the town standing upright on his horse swinging and swaying in perfect rythm with the motion of the animal as he rounds curves and dodges pedestrians. And at the finish of the picture, comes a leap of horse and man into the swirling waters of a rocky stream to save the life of a girl. The picture is more than an exhibition of wonderful riding it is a gripping story throughout, with a big, human theme, and an appealing love story. A funny 2-reel Sunshine comedy, a beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue and Jack Dempsey in a gripping drama Daredevil Jack will also be shown on the same program.

John Fox Story Interesting Play

"Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" Pleased Audience At Griffins

The dramatization of John Fox's novel—The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come—was the offering at Griffin's Theatre Friday evening. This novel is very well known and its theme needs little sketching. The company presenting the play was a very adequate one and several roles were outstanding because so well portrayed.

The plot concerns a boy, Chad, who is a waif and shepherd of the Virginia hills. He and his dog Jack have incurred the enmity of the Dillons a family of outlaws. He is befriended by Joel Turner and his daughter. Melissy who becomes Chad's comrade, Nathan Cherry, a friend of the Dillons seeks to take Chad away with him, but through the interference of Major Buford the boy remains with Turner. The major afterward finds out that Chad is his nephew, son of a brother with whom he quarreled years before. Margaret Dean, daughter of a neighbor of the major's is in love with Chad, but the boy remains true to his playmate Melissy. The civil war has a place in the story and brings on the denouncement which is a pleasing and satisfactory one.

Among the principals whose excellent acting of the performance stood out were Geo Simpson as Chad, Miss Dorothy Dann as Melissy, Joe Franklin as Major Buford, W. J. Ollo as Daws Dillon, Miss Dorothy Rafuse as Margaret Dean, James P. Horton as Joel Turner and especially James Kennedy as Squire Middleton, the magistrate who was so fond of "moonshine."

HUSBAND HAD LEG AND WIFE RIBS BROKEN

On Monday afternoon, while stopping their horse to allow the ponies from the Pontiac Stock Farm to be driven out on the Front Road, their horse took fright and started to run away. The horse first ran into the ditch, and then out on the road, the buggy striking a large stone and throwing Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, Front Road East out on the road. In falling Mr. Morrison alighted on a stake, breaking his leg near the hip, while Mrs. Morrison had three ribs broken. Both were also bruised and badly shaken up. They were taken to Cobourg Hospital by Messrs. Barnes and Feakes, of Pontiac Stock Farm, and their injuries attended to. After throwing them out of the rig the horse ran away, the buggy striking a telephone pole east of the C.N.R. subway, and breaking both wheels.—Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

TOWNS AND VILLAGES BURN IN GREAT RUSSIAN FIRE

Stockholm, Aug. 28.—A despatch to The Tidningen from Helsingfors, Finland, says terrible fires are raging in Russia.

Entire towns and villages have been burned. In Vologna province alone 500 houses have been destroyed and 150 persons have perished.

Tens of thousands of acres of forest lands in the Moscow district are in flames, and enormous peat bogs are burning in the government of Vladimir.

Government Report on Farm Conditions

The following is a summary of the weekly reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, dated Aug. 24:—

The bulk of the spring grains have been cut, and this week will probably see the finish of that class of harvesting, with the exception of some late oats, etc.

Considerable cut grain is lying in the fields as this year most of the cereal crops ripened close together, and labor at present is very scarce owing to the annual rush to the western grain fields. Many farmers could not have got through with their harvesting but for the help of their wives and daughters. Oats and barley are giving large yields in practically every part of the province, with straw to match.

The Army Worm.

Lambton, however, reports injury by the Army Worm to a six acre field of oats in the township of Dawn, about one half of the crop being lost. Practically every Army Worm examined had from one to five eggs of the parasite known as the Tachina-fly deposited on it.

References to buckwheat are of a favorable nature. New fall wheat is threshing out well. As a rule the sample is plump and well up to or over the standard weight. Bruce reports some making 65 lbs. to the bushel.

About the usual acreage of fall wheat is likely to be sown, but much of it will go in late to avoid injury from the Hessian fly. Some farmers clubs in Lambton are trying to arrange for their members to sow their fall wheat on the same date and as late as possible.

Plenty of Potatoes.

There will be a large yield of potatoes, speaking generally, and so far most of the tubers appear to be unusually clean and wholesome looking.

All classes of roots have been making great growth during August. Sugar beets are setting up a record for yield and general appearance.

Corn also has picked up considerably during the last few weeks and will give a fair return, although fears are expressed as to all of the crop fully maturing.

Lennox and Addington reports that a number of farmers in that county are raising alfalfa for seed.

Apples Plentiful.

Summer and fall apples are unusually plentiful. Plums and peaches will give a fair yield. Fruit baskets and other containers are scarce; so also are pickers.

The land at present is said to be in good condition, as the pastures have kept up well. Lambton reports a fair number of choice cattle on grass, although some herds have been marketed recently.

Cheese has been selling at local boards at from 26 1-8 to 21 1-8 a lb.

A carload of horses were shipped from Ontario county a few days ago, ranging in value from $160 to $225.

Hogs are moving rather slowly but steadily at from $18.50 to $20.50 a cwt.

The Prescott and Russell representative states that farmers and villagers are trying to overcome the coal scarcity by buying peat for fuel at $4 a ton f.o.b., which has proven to give satisfaction to the users. The plant at Alfred is putting up about one hundred tons of local peat a day.

MORE CHICAGO BANDITS CAPTURED BY POLICE

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Bandits who have been annexing payrolls with the utmost east, now and then finding it incumbent upon them to kill a man or two, appear to be slipping of late.

Acting on a mysterious tip received several days ago, the police captured three bandits, after a spectacular pistol battle, as they were about to rob a messenger of Wilson & Company of a $40,000 package of money. All the captured bandits have long police records, and one of them has made a fairly complete confession. The police expect, through these three desperadoes to clear up a number of mysterious robberies and murders.

The capture of the three men was sensational. They were circling the bank, waiting for Wilson & Company's messenger. The police, watching them, feared the messenger would be slain, so they drove their machine directly into the side of the bandit machine and swarmed over the running boards. There was an exchange of shots, but the police had the jump on the bandits and quickly knocked them unconscious and handcuffed them. All were heavily armed.

Yesterday three bandits fell down when they attempted to steal $100,000 from the State Pawners' Association, and one of them was captured.

MRS. CHAPLIN REFUSES $125,000 AS SETTLEMENT

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 28.—One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, it became known here today, is not sufficiently large a sum to appease the divorce-bent feelings of Mildred Harris Chaplin. The offer was scorned. Her attorney told her to avoid meeting her husband or anyone representing him if they came to her bearing money bags.

PAYING PRICE OF BOOM

TAXES ARE AWAY UP IN ALBERTAN TOWNS.

Cities and Other Communists Paid Big Price for Expansion That Proved Unnecessary, And Are Now Loaded With Debts—Wild-cat Subdivisions Would Not Realise Any Money If Put Up In Tax Sales.

TO-DAY the West is reaping the results of the over-expansion of the "boom" period. There is hardly a city, town or village in Alberta which is not suffering financially because of foolish expenditure in the days when the boosting of land values took up a good deal of most men's time. The building of sidewalks and the installation of waterworks and electric light plants are modern conveniences, but such in themselves can hardly create healthy and permanent growth. As an argument for the sale of town lots, such improvements and facilities usually helped much, the buyer generally overlooking the fact that a day would come when the town's borrowings would have to be repaid.

Had the development continued, conditions might have adjusted themselves. With a substantially increased population, the debt for each inhabitant would have been less. But in most of the towns the anticipated development did not mature, and the city fathers are to-day somewhat puzzled over matters of finance. In the cities, too, there are debts to be met which can but lead to a heavy rate of taxation. Calgary now has a rate of forty-seven and a half mills; Camrose forty-nine; and Macleod sixty-six. Wetaskiwin has had to impose a tax on incomes; Medicine Hat, a tax of ten per cent. on rentals; and Athabasca is just about "broke." Poll taxes have been introduced in several places, in Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, for example.

The difficulty of collecting taxes on vacant lots has created a serious problem almost everywhere. Tax sales have been tried and have now been made compulsory. But these cannot be said to have been satisfactory. Last year Calgary was unable to sell lands on which taxes were in arrears to the extent of nearly one and a half milion dolars. So far only about five per cent. of this has been paid. The city will in due course acquire title to the land, but it will be interesting to learn what use it can make of vacant lots in "wild cat" subdivisions. And meanwhile it is facing a shortage of over two and a half million dollars in its sinking fund as at December 31 last.

The urgency of the situation in general is reflected in the time given at the recent session of the Legislature to the discussion of municipal problems. Perhaps more time was devoted to municipal legislation than to any other thing. Apart from amendments to city charters such as those of Calgary, Edmonton, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge, certain news laws were enacted which affect all municipalities.

It was decided that every city, town, village or municipal district should make a valuation of its lands this year, and every fifth year thereafter, so as to ensure equalization of assessments. These appraisals, which will be made by local assessors, may be changed if considered unfair, by the Assessment Equalization Board of the Department of Municipal Affairs. Authority has been taken from the Minister of Municipalities to dismiss and appoint councillors, where necessity for such step existed. What the Minister can now do is to arrange an election for the filling of vacancies. But the Board of Public Utility Commissioners has been given power to make an investigation into the financial condition of any municipality and to advise on the best means of relieving financial pressure. And the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council has the right to discharge the civic fathers and to appoint a receiver should this be deemed necessary. The Legislature has by no means loosened its grip on municipal administration.

Over-expansion in any form has been successfully checked. All municipal expenditures have to be approved by the Public Utility Commissioners. Calgary last year, for example, had considerable difficulty in obtaining leave to build a bridge, the necessity of which undertaking could hardly be questioned. But then, Calgary has the reputation of planning big things in advance. The debenture indebtedness of the city is about twenty-three million dollars, and, according to Commissioner Samis, it would have been about fifteen millions had there been sane development. The city has eighty-two miles of street car tracks, of which half are in pavement, with sewer and water mains in proportion. Probably about half of this expansion would have sufficed but for foolish speculation in land.

The agitation for "home rule" for cities, which was sponsored by the Mayor of Lethbridge, has died a natural death. While the Legislature decided not to bolster up the credit of any municipality, yet it is striving to obtain uniformity of procedure and evidently intends to retain the power to interfere, where necessary, in city government. It will do so obviously through the Public Utility Commissioners.—Angus Lyell, in Toronto Star Weekly.

CANADA FOR CANADIANS.

By their works ye shall know them; also by the company they keep.

Pro-Germans, alien enemies, slackers and agitators of all kinds have been against Union Government, conscription and all Greater Canada measures. Real Canadians will watch what side of the road these gentry take and take the other side. One thing sure, they will not be found following in the footsteps of Premier Meighen. It isn't a question of politics, but of Canadianism.

PASSED BY ON THE OTHER SIDE.

Hon. Mackenzie King likens himself to the Good Samaritan and intimates that Hon. Arthur Meighen is the priest that passed by on the other side when Mr. General Public, going down from war-time Jerusalem to peace-time Jericho, was attacked by anarchistic free-trader thieves and robbed of his raiment, beaten, and left for dead.

Mackenzie King does not fit into the picture as the Good Samaritan; rather does he resemble the Levite who swung the golden censers in the Temple. Mackenzie King can make a noise and a smell but outside of that he is just an accident, the club used by Quebec to express their displeasure at Union Liberals.

ANOTHER DRY TRAGEDY.

U. S. Congressman Volstead, the author of the bone-dry prohibition enforcement act, has joined the nble army of dry martyrs, with Bryan, Hearst, et al, who have passed into the political discard on the dry wave. Volstead has been defeated at the primaries by a parson, who although "as dry as Volstead, and then some," according to his own tell, was supported by the wets who were out to get Volstead at any price. It is worthy of note that Volstead has not accepted defeat lying down, for he has secured a conviction against his preacher opponent, whom he charged with corrupt practices in writing and sending out a circular attacking Volstead as an atheist.

CUT OUT PICNICS AND GO TO WORK.

Ottawa papers give publicity to a letter from Mr. H. P. Hill, M.P. P. for West Ottawa, to Hon. F. E. Biggs, Minister of Public Works in the Ontario Government. The communication, which speaks for itself, deals with the work being done on the Ottawa-Prescott highway. It is as follows:

> "My Dear Mr. Biggs,—I enclose herewith an article from a local paper referring to the work being done by the Quebec Government on the Aylmer road, and also a letter which appeared in the paper. The Aylmer road runs from Hull to the village of Aylmer, just across the river from Ottawa, and the contrast between the businesslike efficiency of the work on this road compared with the seeming indifference with which the work is proceeding on the Ottawa and Prescott road is the cause of much comment in this city. I would suggest that the officials of your department who are responsible for the operations (or perhaps lack of operations would be better) on the Prescott road be instructed to cross the river and observe how the Quebec Government employees do their work. The Prescott road has now come to be regarded in this city as a joke, and any time it is spoken of it is with a laugh. Despite your repeated assurances to me that the whole road would be in good shape for travel before winter sets in, it is apparent to anyone that at the present rate of progress it will not be completed before the winter of 1921. I am aware that you are meeting with unexpected difficulties, but surely it is possible to put some more energy into this undertaking."

CRISP COMMENT

If the Ponzi estate will pay fifty cents on the dollar, as estimated, it is probably because the game was nipped in the bud before the sucker crop was all harvested.

Advantage should be taken of the bequest of five thousand dollars willed by the late Senator Harry Corby to establish a swimming pool in Belleville. Sugar is coming down a little, which is more important than a change of Government. Sugar is not only a physical but a moral agent. Not Quite So Bad
(Hamilton Times)

The Buffalo News fears that the Canadians have no sentiment regarding the Falls of Niagara and that they are planning to turn the stream into electric power no matter how it destroys the scenic effect. We do not think that we are so bad as all that. Canada takes a deep interest in her side of the world's wonder, and has spent much money in beautifying the surroundings.

An Open-Air Library
(Ottawa Journal)

In Madrid, Spain, there has been established a new kind of public library—an open-air library. It has been set up in one of the city's principal parks and the idea is that anyone using the park may at the same time make use of the library if so inclined. He may obtain a book from the librarian and read it as he avails himself of the fresh air of the park.

An American newspaper suggests that the idea might be adopted in other countries for the encouragement of the reading of good literature. Equipped with the right kind of reading it would bring such to the notice of the casual reader. Many people who do a lot of reading do not go to the public libraries. The Madrid idea is, in a sense, taking the library to the people.

GENERAL MANAGERSHIP OF G.T.P. FOR WARREN

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—A. E. Warren, in addition to being General Manager of the Western Line of the Canadian National Railway, has assumed the position of General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. He states that the matter of co-ordinating in every way the operations of the two railways is now in hand, and that the announcement regarding the official changes resulting therefrom will be available in a day or two.

NEW SYSTEM OF VOTING

TEST IN WINNIPEG PRONOUNCED A TRIUMPH.

Proportional Representation Shown To Be Practicable — Analysis Made of the Vote By an Expert Who Declares That the Fairness of the Method Is Demonstrated by the Results In Manitoba's Capital.

THERE are three lessons to be drawn from Winnipeg's recent test of proportional representation, in the opinion of A. E. Parker, editor of Canadian Finance and himself an authority on "P. R." They are: (1) Candidates now know that it is dangerous to risk an election deposit under the P. R. system if they are not sure of reasonable support from the electors. (2) Voters know that the figure 1 is not sufficient on a ballot and realize that their choices should be equal under ordinary conditions to at least the number of the candidates to be elected. (3) Voters know that P. R. is practicable and produces equitable results.

Mr. Parker in his journal analyzes carefully the features of the election, and declares it was "an absolute triumph for the advocates of proportional representation." He proceeds to set out in detail the method of counting the ballots and draws his conclusions.

P. R. was used in Winnipeg only in the provincial election, the contests in the remainder of the province being conducted under the old system. The whole of the Winnipeg area was grouped into one constituency and ten seats in the Legislature were allotted to it. Forty-one candidates were nominated, consisting of 10 Liberals, 10 Conservatives, 10 Labor nominees and 11 Independents. This superabundance of candidates was the cause of considerable trouble to the election officials and the counting staff, and turned out to be somewhat costly to those candidates who lost their deposits. The Manitoba Election Act provides that any defeated candidate who received first choices less in number than 25 per cent. of the quota shall lose his or her deposit of $200.

Under the P. R. system the voter has only one vote, but that vote is transferable. When marking the ballot the voter places the figure 1 opposite the name of the candidate whom he wishes to see elected. That figure 1 is called his first choice. He continues to place numbers opposite the names of candidates he favors, the figure 2 against one, the figure 3 against another, and so on. The figure 2 denotes his second choice, the figure 3 his third choice, etc.

The first task of the counting staff was to tabulate the number of first choices given to the respective candidates, and to segregate the ballot papers in separate bundles according to the candidates for whom they were given.

When the first count was completed it was found that 47,427 good ballots had been cast. The quota was then ascertained by dividing this number by one more than the number of seats to be filled, adding one to the result. This meant that to secure election at this stage of the proceedings a candidate had to have at least 4,312 votes. Two candidates were elected on the first count and a third candidate was elected on the second count. The fourth candidate was not elected until the 21st count, the fifth was elected on a 32nd count, the sixth and seventh on the 33rd count and the remaining three on the 37th count.

The Independent candidates were entirely eliminated from the contest before it ended, plainly demonstrating that a candidate must be supported by a fairly strong group of votes before his election can be secured. There were 6,362 votes cast for the 11 Independent candidates on the first count, but not one of these candidates benefited sufficiently from the subsequent count to secure election. In the ordinary form of election those who voted for these Independents would have wasted their votes, but under the P. R. the votes were simply transferred to the next choices marked thereon. As a result of the various transfers, the Liberal candidates received approximately 2,500 votes and the Conservatives gained approximately 1,400 votes, and Labor received over 500 votes more than was shown in the original count. It will be noted that the Independent vote went principally to the Liberal and Conservative candidates when it was distributed.

The final result demonstrates the fairness of proportional representation as a method of elections, says Mr. Parker. The Labor vote represented a little more than 40 per cent. of the total vote and Labor elected 40 per cent. of the members. The Liberal vote represented nearly 40 per cent. of the total vote and the Liberals elected 40 per cent. of the members. The Conservatives were supported by voters representing a little less than 20 per cent. of the total vote and they elected 20 per cent. of the members.

Advocates of proportional representation declare that P. R. gives absolute freedom of choice to the voter; that it encourages independence on the part of the voter. An outstanding instance of this was given in the transfer of the surplus of Dixon, the Labor candidate. Dixon received 11,586 votes, being 7,274 more than he needed. As a result, Dixon's ballots were re-examined to ascertain the 2nd choices marked thereon. The result was as follows: 2nd choices for Labor candidates, 10,075; 2nd choices for Liberal candidates, 368; 2nd choices for Conservative candidates, 310; 2nd choices for Independent candidates, 766; nontransferable, 67. This clearly shows that over 1,400 voters who originally voted Labor marked their second choices for non-Labor candidates.

BISHOP R. C. HORNER.

Big Camp Meeting At Ivanhoe

A large camp-meeting, held under the auspices of the Standard Church of America, will commence at Ivanhoe, Ont., on Sept. 3rd, and continue over the following two Sundays. Bishop R. C. Horner will be in charge, assisted by an able staff of preachers, evangelists, and singers.

This camp-meeting is held for the salvation of souls, and the good of humanity. It has been a memorable event in the yearly history of the Ivanhoe people. Thousands congregate on the grounds. There scores have been saved from a life of sin, and have found the Pearl of great price. A hearty invitation to attend is extended to the people of Belleville.

NEW STAR IN MILKY WAY.

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 27.—A new star was discovered last night by Professor William H. Pickering, of the Harvard Astronomical Station at Mandeville, Jamaica. The Nova, as newly discovered starts are called at first, is in the milky way, in Cygnus, about mid-distance between Vega and Alpha Cygni, but nearer the pole star than either of the two last named.

What is a Dollar?

A Dollar, whether on Government paper or in gold, is of no value in itself but only as it represents the products of man's labor.

It is not the number of dollars a man owns that makes him rich but the amount of the necessaries of life the dollars actually represent.

The value of the dollar therefore depends upon production which to-day is inadequate, so that we require many more dollars "to get along with."

A period of scarcity like the present demands more money than would be needed were the production of food, clothing, houses, furniture, etc., more abundant.

We should have almost twice as much money for the same purposes as we did ten years ago and therefore we require twice as much life insurance as we held ten years ago to secure the same protection.

IT IS NOT THE NUMBER BUT THE VALUE OF THE DOLLARS THAT COUNTS 218

BOLD GERMAN BANDIT

CAREER WAS A SPECTACULAR ONE.

Max Hoelz Was Originally a Spartacan, But He Became a Bold Outlaw, Pillaging the Bourgeoisie and defying the Government Until He Fell Into the Hands of the Czechs.

IN what a demoralized condition affairs are in many parts of what was once the well-disciplined German empire is well illustrated in the short career of one Max Hoelz, now in the hands of the Czechs and about to be returned to Saxony for trial. For several weeks he acted the star role in a play that in Germany has been obsolete since the middle ages — the robber baron holding a countryside for ransom and defying the Government. The most significant phase of the episode, in the opinion of William C. Dreher, the Berlin correspondent of the New York Tribune, is the ease with which an ordinary criminal, gifted with some eloquence and glibly using the shibboleth of Socialism, was able to impose himself upon large numbers of German workingmen. Hoelz was nothing but a bandit, but he threatened the Government with a general strike if troops were moved against him, and leaders of workingmen endorsed this defiant note. In the end a vote of workingmen overwhelmingly decided that to arrest Hoelz would not be a violation of the sacred principles of Karl Marx, and they left him to his fate.

Hoelz first burst into print at the time of the Spartacist revolt in southern Saxony, for in the turbulence he saw the same opportunity that a pickpocket sees in a crowd. When the military moved into the district and order was about to be restored Hoelz escaped, but several of his gang were placed under arrest. He remained in hiding until the Kapp revolution began. Then he made a sudden appearance in Plauen, chief town of the Vogtland, as southern Saxony is known, just as the military were withdrawn. Gathering around him a gang of other desperadoes he made an attack upon the prison where some of his former associates in the Spartacist episode were confined and released them. His band thus strengthened, he appeared before the prosecuting attorney and made him surrender the papers by which the prisoners had been held. These he burned. He was then in a position to become the dictator of the district. He dismissed the town officials and drove them out of town. Then he called upon the local manufacturers to supply him and his increasing gang with automobiles and other supplies.

Well armed and breathing threats against the bourgeoisie wherever he went he kept the working population in a state between awe and terror while he proceeded to make excursions into the surrounding country and loot whatever was worth looting. On one of these trips he released more Spartacists and carried off plunder to the extent of 100,000 marks as a pledge for something or other. He caused notices to be published in the paper that so far no bourgeoisie blood had been shed and that personally he would not order any wholesale extermination if he could avoid it, a warning that made the bouregoisie amenable to reason when he made fresh levies. He held up the Berlin-Munich express train, on the lookout for somebody, but not finding him went to a hotel and there discovered the correspondent of a Leipsic paper who had sent a report of his outrages to the city. Him he carried off, and the reporter found on reaching the bandit's retreat two other young men being held for ransom.

By this time his fame had spread, with the usual sequel that he received many letters from impressionable women. But the staunch Hoelz caused a notice to be published in a newspaper to the effect that such communications were forbidden, because he was a married man. In the meantime the Government of Saxony was at a loss to know what to do with the bandit. It feared to send troops, and expressed the hope that the workingmen of Saxony themselves would discipline this formidable comrade. The Socialist representatives showed no disposition to take this step, being hypnotized by Hoelz's claim that he was acting as a true Communist. Indeed, it was the organ of the Independent Socialists in Dresden that threatened a general strike if the Saxon troops were marched against the bandit, who was in possession of a feudal castle near Plauen, and was pillaging the countryside with impunity. Finally the situation became so intolerable, with the prestige of Hoelz increasing every day, that an appeal was made to Berlin for troops.

They were despatched and proceeded with extreme caution to the disturbed area. Nevertheless, their approach cause the workingmen, who had previously rather sided with Hoelz, to reflect that bloodshed and wholesale hangings were likely to occur in the event of open defiance. So, with true German craft, they disowned Hoelz, and the bandit was left with only his immediate followers. When the troops were a considerable distance off, Hoelz burned the castle where he had established himself and took refuge in a little town near the Bohemian border. Realizing that he was near the end of his tether, he proceeded to plunder more recklessly than ever, even robbing the waiters in the hotel as well as the guests. He also demanded and received 1,000,000 marks from the town authorities. Then the band scattered, the chief making his way into Marienbad, where he was subsequently arrested by the Czechs.

A Lost City In Mesopotamia.

An ancient city has been discovered in Mesopotamia, bordering the Tigris river for some twenty miles, yet so well "lost" that a traveler, approaching it under ordinary conditions, would have merely noticed the presence of a number of low, scattered mounds, and gone his way, without realizing that here was once a city. One must go higher up and look down on the arrangement of the mounds before one realizes their relation to each other, and sees the plan of the city: and this is what happened, says the London Sphere, when Lieut.-Col. C. A. Beazeley noticed the mounds from an airplane, and took aerial photographs of them. Blue prints were made from the photographs, and when these were supplemented by the measurements of surveyors working on the ground, the plan of the city was revealed as it might have been by its own architects and builders, if such plans were then customary. The ruins extend above and below the present town of Samara, and show that the forgotten city, here following the left bank of the river, was from one to two and a half miles in width, with wide streets intersecting at right angles, and with larger blocks near the river, indicating that here were the homes of the wealthier citizens. One sees in the plan what was probably a large public garden, with a pavilion in the centre, and discovers also the square forts that protected the town from enemies, or perhaps the authorities from mobs, as well as the remains of the irrigation system that helped its gardeners. How old the city may be is not yet determined, but evidences of considerable antiquity have been discovered in the ruins.

Meanest Man.

"The meanest man on earth" has been discovered.

Even insurance men, possessing most human traits, have revealed occasional phases of meanness, but it remained for a clergyman, an ordained preacher of the gospel, to outclass superlatively all other contestants for the croix de gall.

This pastor, who resides within eye range of the Woolworth tower, makes a practice of charging claimants under life insurance policies a fee of 1 per cent of the face of the policy for filling out the clergyman's certificate on death claims.

The medal for concentrated and undiluted meanness is hereby awarded. The contest is ended.—Insurance Press.

MADE REAL SPORT

Bulls Not Always Easy Victims in Arena.

One Animal So Noted for Its Fighting Qualities as to Be Deemed Invincible—Imported Texan Furnished Excitement.

The toreador has not always been the hero of the bull ring. There was once a bull that earned the plaudits of a Spanish arena on more than one occasion by clearing it of his antagonists. Strangely enough the bull neither killed nor injured any man. But he did put to flight every toreador, matador, picador, chulo or banderilero who dared to enter the ring with him; and, although the crowds came to see him slain, his conduct proved so valiant that the people demanded that his life be spared.

This bull was named Lechuzo. His first appearance in the arena was made at San Lucar. He so suddenly cleared the ring of his enemies that the people rose in admiration and demanded his reprieve, for despite his bravery, he would have been treacherously approached and put to death in accordance with the usual practice had not the people intervened.

Again at Cordoba upon the healing of the wounds inflicted upon him by the picadors at San Lucar, Lechuzo drove all his enemies before him and again his life was spared at the demand of the spectators.

So in time Lechuzo began to be regarded as invincible, and finally he ended his days in peace at the age of ten years.

Some years ago a herd of Texas bulls were imported from their native land to Seville to give special attraction to a bullfight of more than ordinary importance. Those American bulls furnished the Spaniards with some interesting sport.

The first of the intended victims when confronted in the ring by horse and picador wholly neglected the horse, but paid instant and undivided attention to the man. The bull bellowed as if from sheer delight at the anticipated encounter and attacked the picador furiously. He pressed the fighter so hard that, defense being useless, the man sought safety in inglorious flight by scaling the barrier erected between the audience and the ring as a provision of safety.

The picador was ardently and efficiently assisted over the barrier by the horns of the animal and was followed so closely that he narrowly escaped with his life by reaching a convenient gallery. The bull did his best to get at him, but, finding this impossible, looked about for other game.

The stone seats in the inclosure at Seville were ten feet above the ground, and this height has always been an insurmountable barrier for a bull, but this time things were different, for as soon as the Texan bull saw the throng above his head he stepped back, and the next instant he was among them.

Before the people could escape he had tossed half a dozen of them into the ring, but they were all rescued by the ring attendants. The stone seats cleared, the steer returned to the ring, and seeing no one else to whom he might throw the gage of battle, he took the exact center of the ring and bellowed his defiance to the world. Meantime the management had got busy, and a soldier with a Mauser was summoned from a nearby barracks and the bull's life was ingloriously ended.

Effort to Classify.

"What is the difference between a bandit and a brigand?"

"Not much," replied the Mexican citizen. "My impression is that a bandit is a Villista and a brigand is a Carranzista."

Keep Children Well During Hot Weather

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry, colic and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Introducing Clay Wimburn, young New Yorker on visit to Cleveland, and Mrs. and Miss Daphne Kip.

CHAPTER II—The acquaintance of the young people ripens into love and Wimburn and Daphne become engaged.

CHAPTER III—Wimburn returns to New York, from whence he writes urging Daphne to marry him at once. She consents, and arranges to go to New York for her trousseau.

She felt in the arm about her a sudden slackening. The chin on her shoulder seemed to weigh heavier.

"Er—it—would be nice," said Clay.

She turned out of his embrace and looked at him.

He explained: "Do you know how much Bayard pays for these seven rooms and two baths?"

"No."

"Well, I've been looking about for a little nest for us, and I priced one like this. They charge twenty-five hundred dollars a year."

She asked, shyly. "And that's more than we can afford?" She had no idea what salaries were paid to fairy princes in this city of fabulous wealths. She had merely a glamorous impression that her lover was there to get what she wanted.

"Well, we could afford it, all right," he laughed, meekly, "if we could eat the view and wear the altitude. But we've never talked about money, honey, have we? I suppose we ought to. I don't want to give you any false impressions. Shall we talk about it now?"

"No! please!"

Daphne sat suddenly. She felt as a stranger to tall buildings feels when an express elevator starts downward. She had rejoiced to think that she was escaping from her father's nagging dollarocracy to a region of love and light. She sorrowed a moment, then she gazed at her lover and saw how anxious he was. Her love came back to her. The express elevator was shooting upward now.

"What does it matter where we live, so long as we have each other?"

"You're a little saint," he said as he took her in a very secular embrace.

And then she began to laugh.

The whimsy struck her that she was like a bird gaining its freedom from a cage only to find itself in a trap. It was a good joke on her. She enjoyed the jokes fate played on her—sometimes—more or less.

CHAPTER V.

He taxicabbed them down to the Knickerbocker and lunched them so lavishly that Daphne and her mother felt thoroughly reassured as to his means. Then he left them and descended to the subway.

Clay had insisted on their dining and theatering with him. They ate at the Astor and he fed them handsomely again. Mrs. Kip managed to catch a glimpse of the bill for the meal. It made her heart ache till she noted that Clay gave the waiter a dollar bill for the tip, without visible excitement on either side. She resolved that Mr. Wimburn must be very rich or very rash.

He Celebrated the New Era With a Twelve-Dollar Dinner at the Plaza.

Next morning the attack on the shops began in earnest. Clay did not lunch with them, and so Daphne and her mother ate in the restaurant of a department store and paid for their own meal. It made a difference. Even the bargain prices for food totaled up unpleasantly, and Mrs. Kip missed Clay's shining presence.

The chaos of the styles was so complete that the two women decided to retire and study out their campaign on the war maps. They began to make out lists and tally up prices. The afternoon went by, and they had accomplished little except an itemized despair.

"It's awful, that's what it is; it's simply awful," Mrs. Kip wailed. "It costs a fortune to get nothing at all."

"I guess I'll go home and be an old maid," said Daphne. "Dad's money wouldn't buy me enough to get married in Sandusky."

But when Clay arrived to take them out to dinner he brought romance with him. He had had a good day at the office. There had been a flurry of hope in Wall street, and everybody said that the business world had reached the rock bottom of depression and started up again.

He celebrated the new era with a twelve-dollar dinner at the Plaza and another theater, and after that he made Mrs. Kip accompany them to a roof garden, where Daphne and he danced with other laity in the intervals between professional dances on the floor and vaudeville turns on the stage.

The next day there was another foray on the shops and the dressmakers, with a baffling result. The list of necessaries with their minimum prices began to grow so long and ominous that they decided to give up keeping a list. They would buy what just had to be got, as cheaply as they could, and if they overran their appropriation papa would simply have to help them out.

The wedding date had yet to be fixed and the invitations ordered, with their royal phraseology in the latest formula.

They placed the day late enough for Bayard and his wife to get back from Europe. Bayard had not written, of course, since his marriage, except a brief note from the steamer the day he landed. But he had set six weeks as the limit of his absence.

One evening Clay announced that he had reserved three seats for a new comedy that had opened with success a few nights before. Mrs. Kip begged to be excused from going.

Clay urged her to reconsider her refusal. "Sure you won't go? You ought at least to see the star, Sheila Kemble. Some people say she looks a little like Daphne. Of course she doesn't; she's not a tenth as beautiful or young or attractive, but there is a kind of a resemblance. And they say she gets a thousand dollars a week. Daphne could give her cards and spades and beat her. Sure you won't go?"

"I wouldn't put my poor feet into those tight slippers tonight to see Daphne herself play Lady Macbeth."

So Clay and Daphne went alone

Why Beauty Fades

A Condition Due Entirely to Poor, Watery Blood

The girl who returns home from school or from work thoroughly tired out will be fortunate if she escapes a physical breakdown, because this getting tired so easily is probably the first warning symptom of a thinning blood that must not be disregarded if her health is to be preserved.

When the blood becomes thin and impure the patient becomes pale, haggard and angular. She not only tires out easily but suffers from headaches, palpitation of the heart, dizzy spells and a loss of appetite. This condition will go from bad to worse, if prompt steps are not taken to increase and enrich the blood supply. To make the rich, red blood that brings the glow of health, no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If given a fair trial their use brings rosy cheeks, bright eyes, a good appetite and good spirits. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made thousands of pale, lanquid girls active and strong. On the first sign of poor, thin blood mothers should insist upon their daughters taking a fair course of these pills. They will not only restore health, but will save further doctor bills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MAY MOVE HEAD OFFICES OF G. T. R.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—"Nothing definite decided as yet," was all Major Graham Bell would say when asked if the report that the headquarters of the National Railway would be located in Toronto. In semi-official circles, however, it is believed that Mayor Church was not far from the truth when he foretold the location of the headquarters as indicated above, also that the head offices of the G.T.R. will be moved from Montreal to Toronto.

Port Arthur, Ont., Aug. 26.—Dr. Murdock, Mayor of Rainy River, who a few days ago was fined $2,000 and ten days in jail for violation of the Temperance Act, has again been fined $2,000 on a similar charge.

Mud Wallows Are Hygienic.

An old proverb says: "Mud does not stain." It might be completed by: "It even serves as soap, at least in Esthonia."

There are from three to five million inhabitants in Esthonia who have no soap.

It is difficult, in a country where there is such a lack of transportation facilities, to assure sufficient quantities of a necessary product to a population which is greatly in need of other things besides. That is why the American Red Cross, while waiting for new supplies of soap, has instituted mud baths. Esthonian mud has no healing powers, but thanks to regular mud baths, public hygiene has improved in this country.

A very simple thing; but it had to be thought of.—From Le Figaro, Paris.

Had Advanced Rates.

Whenever Warren went on an errand for aunty she invariably gave him a penny for a stick of candy. Last week she sent him to the drug store and upon his return with the desired article she, as usual, remunerated him with a penny.

"I'll 'cept this on account," compromised Warren.

"What do you mean by that?" demanded aunty.

"My charge for running an errand has gone up to a nickel," independently explained Warren. "Don't forget that the price of candy has been raised now."

His Great Idea.

Frederick, aged four, has a beautiful mother, whom he very much admires. One day he accompanied his father to an art exhibition and for the first time he saw marble statuary. His father explained to him that many of the busts represented real people and how the artist cut them out of marble.

On the way home he was unusually quiet. Finally he exclaimed: "Oh, daddy, couldn't we have mother busted in marble?"

Copious Letter Writers.

The English-speaking race is the most industrious in the world in the matter of letter writing. The Australians take first place with 130 letters per head per year, Canada and the United States follow with eighty each, and the United Kingdom comes third with seventy-five. The German average is only forty-nine, and Italy is a long way behind with only eleven.

The coast of Argyllshire, Scotland, measures more than 2,000 miles.

GRAY-DORT

Adding Many Improvements to Original Value

TO-DAY'S Gray-Dort is modern, refined, a year ahead of other light cars. From the front axle to the gasoline tank in the rear, our engineers have made changes at every point where change meant improvement.

And from the European-type hood, with its many long, narrow louvres, to the Rayntite top, hand-tailored in our own shop, to-day's Gray-Dort has the simple, dignified elegance, and quality look, that makes every owner speak proudly of "his car."

You must see, drive, ride in, the new Gray-Dort. Our dealers tell us that they are going to be short of cars. Better see your dealer now.

DISCHARGED

William McDonald, charged with assaulting Harriet Levesque and committed for trial was brought before His Honor Judge Wills on Friday, and discharged. Col. O'Flynn for defence, Crown Attorney Carnew for prosecution.

SATURDAY MARKET.

The attendance was large at Saturday's market and a brisk demand for the offerings. Butter sold from 65c. to 70c. per pound, eggs, 60c., potatoes $1.25 per bushel, tomatoes 75c. and 80c. bushel, apples $1.00 per bushel, corn, two dozen for 25c., chickens, $1.25 and up.

NO BLAME.

That no blame could be attached to anyone was the finding of the jury investigating the death of Louis Bardy, who died from injuries received in a fall at Point Ann while working at the cement plant. The inquest was held before Coroner Yeomans.

ARRESTED ON RAILWAY.

Three men were arrested by the police Friday night while alighting from a freight train at Cannifton crossing. The arrest was in response to a telephone call that freight cars had been broken into at Brighton. The men gave their names as Wm. Rickwood, aged 46, of England, fireman; Harry Mayo, aged 24, Ohio; Harold Ryan, aged 24, Dallas, Texas, a baker.

Doctor Fined For Having Liquor

Former Mayor of Amherstburg Has to Pay $1,000 and Costs

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 28.—Dr. Fred Park, for many years Mayor of Amherstburg and also a magistrate of that place, was fined $1,000 and costs by Magistrate Alfred Miers in the Police Court following a plea of guilty entered by Dr. Park to a charge of having on May 26 last been in possession of liquor in a place other than a private dwelling.

In explanation of the matter, Dr. Park told the Court that the liquor in his barn was not his property and that he had merely had it put there in the public interest, so that it might not be stolen.

Sam Renaud, an Amherstburg constable who was arrested on the same charge as Dr. Park and who pleaded guilty, this morning changed his plea and denied any illegal connection with the affair. He said he had merely helped Dr. Park to put the liquor in the barn. He will be tried Tuesday.

MRS. MARY A. BARLOW

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary A. Barlow, widow of the late George Barlow, took place on Thursday afternoon. Tribute to the memory of the deceased was paid by a large number of friends by their attendance and the numerous gifts of flowers The Rev. George Marshall, Rector of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church conducted a very impressive service at the home of her son, Mr. Jesse W. Barlow, 11 Forin street, after which the cortege formed and proceeded to Belleville cemetery, where the interment was made. The bearers were six grandsons: F. Barlow of Tyendinaga; G. Barlow of Trenton; C. Barlow, of Deloro; M. Barlow, of Belleville; C. Buskard, of Deloro, and P. Naylor of Madoc.

JAMES HENRY RUSSELL

The funeral of the late James Henry Russell took place on Thursday morning from his late residence, Rednerville, to Albany Church, where Rev. Mr. Postum officiated at an impressive service. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Interment was made in Albury cemetery. The bearers were six cousins, Pem. Peck, Harry Peck, Wm. Peck, Clifford Peck, Frank Peck, and Clarence Russell.

Shannonville Garage Destroyed By Fire

Early Morning Fire Threatened Village—Call For Assistance Sent to Belleville

About five o'clock Saturday morning fire broke out in the pool room of building occupied by Hudson Cook at Shannonville and before being discovered, the flames made considerable headway, spreading to Mr. Cook's garage adjoining. Most of the contents were removed but the building was destroyed.

A telephone call was sent to Belleville for assistance and Chief Brown had the fire engine in readiness in case of need, but the fire was got under control by Shannonville citizens and outside assistance was not needed.

Mr. Cook's residence adjoining, caught fire but by hard work the flames were extinguished before much damage was done to the house.

Sheds at the rear of the garage were destroyed.

BOTH NEW AND OLD

Mexico a Mixture of the Ancient and Modern.

Prehistoric Remains Show That the Builders Had a High State of Civilization—Native Tribes and Races Still Exist.

What manner of folk are the Mexicans?

Whatever one's views on the wisest political course toward Mexico, it will help in a thorough understanding of that country to examine the rich history, the ancient civilization, the prehistoric remains to be found among our southern neighbors, says the National Geographic society.

"Of the 16,000,000 inhabitants, two-fifths claim direct descent from ancient tribes or families which are accepted as the basis of Mexican history, two-fifths are of mixed native and foreign blood, the remainder being classed under the common appellation of 'foreign.'

"Throughout much of the country, and often within short distances of railroads, are remnants of some of the ancient native tribes or races, adhering to customs, methods and speech of their ancestors. Thus in Oaxaca are the Zapotecas and Mixtecas, the estimate for the two races being a half million, and a government publication mentions a dozen other families in the same state.

"In Hidalgo and adjacent states, the Otomis; in Puebla and Oaxaca, the Mexicanos; the predominating Mayas in Yucatan; in Michoacan and Jalisco, the Tarascans, and the Tlaxcalans, in their native state, and other groups elsewhere, still maintain the tribal individualities.

"Although Spanish is the language of the country and much English is spoken in the regions most visited, a large number of the natives use only the vernacular.

"Prescott refers to the Aztecs, Tlaxcalans and others as producers of delicate fabrics, colored by vegetable dyes; intricate designs in the precious metals, and beautiful decorations made of feathers; numerous ruins also indicate marvelous skill of ancient peoples in stone-work, especially as the tools used were obsidian or copper.

"Evidence that this deftness in handiwork has been retained appears in the feather-work, wood-carving, stone-cutting, etc., of the present day. The beautiful pottery and unique weaves of serapes, made with the crudest appliances, and excellent fabrication in cast or wrought iron, filigree silver, etc., also bear testimony to the skill of the Mexican Indian.

"Mexico has a wealth of archaeological relics, remnants of an ancient civilization of which no well-defined trace exists. Volumes have been written to demonstrate that the builders of what are now ruins were of Mongolian, Semitic, or Phoenician origin, but the riddle cannot be admitted as solved. All authorities, however, unite in praise of the magnitude and the perfection of workmanship shown at various ruins found throughout the Mexican territory. The region adjacent to some of these raises question as to the source of sustenance for multitudes which must have then existed, and causes speculation upon changes which may have occurred in the interval.

"Prominent among these ruins are Uxmal and Chichen-Itza, in the state of Yucatan; Palenque, in the state of Chipas; Mitla, in the state of Oaxaca, and Xochicalco, in the state of Morelos.

"The pyramid of Cholula, in Puebla, and those of the Sun and Moon, in the state of Mexico, have also been liberally described, but distributed over wide areas are many other ruins which have had but little or no investigation, and rock sculptures, images, idols and ancient pottery, found in numerous localities, are the only records of peoples whose history is unknown and whose names even are lost."

Center of Attraction.

Angelina was, of all my acquaintances, the most vain. Happiness for her seemed an impossibility unless she was the center of attention. So when we learned of her coming marriage we knew that in style and display the event would surpass anything that had ever taken place in our town, and we were not wrong in our expectations. Under a bower of roses the happy couple had been pronounced man and wife and the organ pealed forth a flood of music. At this point we were surprised to see the bridegroom shaking hands with those nearest him. He didn't stop there, either, but, leaving his blushing bride to face the audience, alone, he passed up and down the aisles of the church greeting all the guests!—Chicago Tribune.

Almost Zero in Ownership.

I was entertaining little Charlotte one afternoon while her mother was otherwise engaged. She asked if I had any little children, to which I replied in the negative. Then she wanted to know if I had a dog, or cat, or bird, and to all of these questions I replied "No." She thought a minute and then said: "Nuffin but furniture."—Exchange.

Wedding Bells

M'CRACKEN—M'GINNIS.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, August 25, at St. Paul's Church, Lindsay, when Lillian M., youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David McGinnis of East Ops, became the bride of Ross W. McCracken, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCracken of Roseneath, Ont., the Rev. G. R. Maconachie officiating. The bride was becomingly attired in a navy blue serge suit with hat to match and grey fox fur and was attended by Miss Ruby Dobson of Lindsay, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. Gordon Honey of Roseneath. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold wrist watch.

The happy couple left on the 8.13 train for Trenton, Kingston and points east, carrying with them the good wishes of their many friends. On their return they will reside at Lakeview Farm, Roseneath.

HYATT—CARTER.

On the morning of Saturday, August 21st, a quiet home wedding took place at Picton, when Marjorie, elder daughter of Mr. William J. Carter, was united in marriage with Mr. Harry Edgar Hyatt, elder son of the late Mr. John W. Hyatt and Mrs. Hyatt, Picton, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. J. Hastie of London, Ont., a valued friend of the groom's family, in the presence of a small party of immediate relatives. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked handsome in a beautiful gown of brocaded Georgette over charmeuse, picture hat and bouquet of sunset roses with tulle streamers. The apartments were artistically decorated with a variety of beautiful blossoms in pink and white, and the arch beneath which the service was conducted was banked with flowers and ferns. At the conclusion of the brief but impressive ceremony a buffet luncheon was served, the exquisitely arranged table being done with white flowers with the wedding cake occupying the place of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt motored to Belleville, proceeding by train to Toronto, and will take boat to Fort William via Fort McNichol.

The bride's travelling costume was a dark brown duvet velour trimmed with beaver, sand georgette overblouse, feather hat and moleskin stole.

The young pair carry with them the best wishes of many friends, who earnestly desire their future happiness.

Called By Death

GEORGE FRIEND

Mr. Friend was a native of England who with his wife and family came to Trenton some seven years ago. He was a mechanic by trade and worked at the C.N.R. Round House. He went to Belleville Hospital Tuesday to be operated on for appendicitis and died Friday evening at seven p.m. He leaves a wife and three children. He was a member of Salvation Army and served as Sergeant Major of Trenton Corps. His funeral was conducted by Adjutant Jordan of St. Thomas, Ont., the Officer he was converted under and Staff-Captain Laymen of Montreal, at the S. A. Hall. Members of the Royal Templers, the Boiler Makers Union and the workers of the C.N.R. Shops attended in a body.—Trenton Courier.

WIND UP OF C. E. F. NOW CONCLUDED

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—The Canadian Expeditionary Force is no more. The fourteen N. C. O.'s who were employed to conclude the statistical work of the army have written "30" on the concluding page of a mass of records covering every unit and every man who ever donned the Canadian uniform.

Just the number of records kept of every individual man would come as a surprise to even the soldier whose records they are. The Militia Department has original and duplicates of about twenty-one army forms relating to every one who served.

Asked what was to be done with the thousands of apparently useless books and army forms, a Militia Department official stated that they would be carefully preserved and locked away.

Phone DAY 531

DULLNESS IN HIDES.

The Canadian hide market continues dull and dealers do not seem to see any signs of greater activity for some time to come yet. Demand from the tanners they say has lessened as the result of a slower demand for leather, and with stocks of hides at country points growing, some look for even lower prices. The situation in the United States is much the same. A prominent firm there has issued a circular to the effect that a lower price basis may be reached before long. The tanners there, it is claimed are pretty well out of the market, and only a scattered lot is sold here and there. Long haired hides are not wanted in either country, while calfskins in the United States, it is stated, are absolutely unsaleable.

In view of the fact that the hides at this season are considered by many authorities to be the best of the whole year, being free of grubs, etc., and that there is no buying by the tanners at the moment, some dealers claim that the outlook is almost the poorest they ever saw.

The optimistic ones, however, hope that with the good crop now being harvested, the boot and shoe trade as well as other leather consuming businesses will improve and with it will come a better demand for hides.

Meanwhile prices are away the lowest they have been since pre-war days.

ROTARIANS LISTEN TO SIR THOMAS

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Roars of laughter and rounds of applause at the Rotary Club luncheon today betrayed the fact that genial Sir Thomas Lipton, the guest of honor, was telling some of his inimitable anecdotes. Here is one:

A patriotic American citizen named Belcher, who married a girl named Murphy, wrote to Sir Thomas on the occasion of his second last effort to lift the cup, saying: "The first time you came over my wife rose to the occasion and presented me with a little girl. The second time she again rose to the occasion and presented me with a baby boy. On the third occasion she brought me another girl. There is no more patriotic American citizen than I am, but I hope you never come again or I'm a busted man." Sir Thomas invited the family aboard Shamrock the III. and was godfather to the latest born.

"Today I am among loyal Britishers," said Sir Thomas to the Rotarians "and all I can say is, that no man could have had fairer treatment than I have had at the races. Every time I was licked by a better boat."

Sir Thomas spoke very briefly. He said again that he was going to have another try for the America's Cup, and if he won, he was going to bring it to Toronto.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, AUGUST 30, 1920.

Schuster Wharf Freight Shed Was Destroyed By Fire

SERIOUS BLAZE EARLY SUNDAY MORNING — CANADA STEAMSHIP LINES OFFICE DESTROYED, ALSO OFFICE OF SCHUSTER CO., LIMITED, WITH FREIGHT SHED, WAITING ROOM AND WHARF—GALLANT FIGHT BY FIREMAN SAVES THREATENED PROPERTY ADJACENT, INCLUDING IMMENSE TANKS FILLED WITH GASOLINE.

Early Sunday morning fire broke out at Schuster's wharf and spreading rapidly, the entire wharf and freight warehouse was soon a mass of flames. About 3.15 a.m. Chief Brown was notified that a small blaze had broken out at the wharf He immediately had the laddies at No. 1 station turn out with the hose wagon and chemicals and started for the dock. At the railway crossing the firemen were delayed by express trains for some minutes, the gates being down. When they reached the wharf the flames had gained great headway and Chief Brown at once turned in a general alarm. The freight shed and coal offices of the Schuster Co. Limited were in flames and the wharf with its heavy timbers was also burning briskly.

The firemen speedily got to work and it was seen that the freight shed had to go and the big fight was to prevent the flames from spreading. Everything was favorable for a big conflagration except the direction of the wind which fortunately was toward the harbor and Victoria Park. Close to the burning building were two large tanks of the British American Oil Co. one containing gasoline and the other coal oil. On the other side was the government boat house, a wooden structure containing Capt. Fleming's fishery cruiser, Athene. Adjoining the boat house is the premises of the Imperial Oil Co. with immense tanks of gasoline. All about are old wooden buildings and piles of lumber. The gasoline tanks were smoking as the result of the intense heat and Chief Brown placed a special detachment, drenching the tanks with water to prevent conflagration and explosion.

The freight shed contained a quantity of beaver board and doors, also a shipment of spikes and other goods for the steamer Belleville, but there was less freight than usual. The office of the Canada Steamship Lines was in this building and the fixtures and records were destroyed.

Considerable loss was sustained by the Schuster Co. Limited in office fixtures, records, etc., and in damage to the large coal scales.

The firemen had a stubborn blaze to fight in the wharf the flames eating into the heavy timbers and spreading in all directions. Chief Brown put a bunch of his fire laddies in a boat and from the level of the harbor poured water between the beams and drowned every last spark of fire.

After about two hours hard fighting the firemen were able to call it a complete victory and although the freight shed was in ruins and the wharf a mass of charred timbers ,the fire had been confined to a small area and no damage resulted to the oil companies or any of the buildings adjacent.

Burning shingles .covered Victoria Park and were carried by the wind far into West Belleville but on damage resulted.

The cause of the fire is unknown one theory advanced being that tramps were camping on the wharf and in smoking dropped lighted matches or butts under the planking.

The freight shed and wharf belongs to the G.T.R. and is leased by the Schuster Co. Limited.

The destruction of the freight shed and wharf will not interfere with the steamer service as the government wharf and warehouse are available. The steamer Belleville called at the government wharf about seven o'clock Sunday morning and unloaded considerable freight for local firms.

The Schuster Co. Limited are agents for the Canada Steamship Lines and the office at the wharf was looked after by Mr. Ralph Morden. The freight loss sustained by the steamship company is unknown as records were destroyed. The Schuster Co. loss will be about $2,000, covered by insurance, and includes a quantity of beaver board, cement, doors, etc., stored in the building. The building and wharf were owned by the G. T. R.

The fire made a most spectacular blaze and the reflection was visible for miles around.

VANCOUVER CHOOSES FLORAL EMBLEM

The "General McArthur" rose was formally chosen as the official bloom for Vancouver at a joint meeting of committees representing the board of park commissioners and the Kiwanis club, which has in hand an ambitious scheme for making Vancouver the rose city of the Pacific coast.

The "General McArthur" as most horticulturists know, is a very hardy variety, and has a deep scarlet bloom, almost cardinal. Besides being distinctive it will combine well with almost any other flower decoration.

Mr. and Mrs. Nihilistus Crankovitch will give an old-fashioned house-wrecking party at the city hall this evening in honor of their son, Spouter, just out of jail. Dynamite will be provided for twelve.

Germany Sad At Red Defeat

Must Now Forego Advantages Crushing of Poland Promised.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—A feeling of bitterness and dejection pervades Germany. The belief was expressed during the recent Russian victories that the worst that could happen had already happened to Germany, while a great many advantages in the future could be expected fro mthe outcome of the Polish war. The Polish victories have brought sadness throughout Germany, while Lloyd George's change of front has brought bitterness.

SEEKING LOCATION FOR TRUCK FACTORY

Toronto, Aug. 27.—American truck manufacturers will soon have brisk competition on the Canadian market from a British firm of wide repute if the plans of Walter E. Walker, director and general manager of the Vulcan Motor & Engineering Co., of Southport, England, mature. Mr. Walker is in the city conducting negotiations for the erection of a Canadian branch factory.

"Our aim," said Mr. Walker, "is to place on the Canadian market a medium sized truck of infinitely superior quality to those being sold at present. It will be a truck made by British for British."

If the project is carried out the new branch will have to depend on the home factory for supplies at first, but it is the intention of the directors to have ultimately all the necessary products supplied by the Canadian market. Canadian tires will be used from the first, and the Canadian buyers will save the duties which are now being paid to the United States Revenue Department.

A lorry manufactured by the Vulcan Motor Company will be displayed at the C.N.E., and Mr. Walker will be in attendance to furnish any desired information.

World Gradually Swinging Back To Old Stability

Sir Auckland Geddes Declares Pre-War Prices a Long Way Off.

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—"That would be getting the Democratic party at a bargain—to buy it for $87,000," laughed Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States ,as he talked at the New York Club about the "charge" made by Congressman Britton of Illinois, that $87,000 voted by the British Parliament for British Embassy expenses at Washington had found its way into the Cox campaign fund. "I have already denied that statement," said the British Ambassador, "and I hardly think it requires any more attention."

Sir Auckland is here officially to open the Canadian National Exhibition, and makes it plain that he is not delivering himself of opinions on international politics. However, he did offer a few comments on world-wide conditions.

"It is unthinkable that prices will be again returned to the pre-war scale at least for many years," he said. "While there is chaos in Russia and Poland, and while production has not increased as it should, and probably will later on, it cannot be expected that prices will drop very much.

"But the world is on the way back to stability. Prices are tumbling in certain parts of the world now. There is enough of the world at peace to make this possible."

Tribute to Canada.

In his speech at the Canadian Club Sir Auckland paid high tribute to Canada's war record, laying particular stress upon the part played by the Canadian troops at Ypres and in the last hundred days of the war.

Louis Riel Expelled Just Fifty Years Ago

Jubilee of Capture of Fort Garry is Being Observed.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 28.—The celebration in Winnipeg today of the fiftieth anniversary of the expulsion of the famous rebel leader, Louis Riel, and his band of French and half-breed followers from Fort Garry, now Winnipeg, by the little army of Toronto and Ontario men under Gen. Wolseley, afterwards Lord Wolseley, has awakened interest in the Red River Expedition and the events leading up to that long march over the old Dawson trail to Riel's stronghold. An outstanding figure in connection with the early days of Riel's rebellion is Adam W. Graham of St. Thomas, Ont., a man well in his eighties and one of the few survivors of the forty-five volunteer soldiers who were made prisoners by Riel early in December, 1879, a few days after he had openly declared war on the British Empire.

One of the First to Enlist.

Mr. Graham is a splendid type of the pioneer of those eventful days when the West was very young. He had gone to Portage la Prairie with his father and brother to take up land, but hearing that the work on the Government highway was soon to start, they had journeyed on to Fort Garry to secure employment. Almost simultaneously with their arrival at Fort Garry came word of Lieut.-Governor McDougall's appointment from the Premier, Sir John A. Macdonald. Riel was already causing troble, and had collected quite a little army around him for the purpose of preventing Lieut.-Governor McDougall from entering the new territory. Lieut.-Governor McDougall issued a call for volunteers to form a Governor's Guard. Adam W. Graham was one of the very first to enlist, Dec. 2, 1879, being the momentous day. He and his forty-four comrades were detailed to guard the Government storehouse on Dec. 3. Riel had taken possession of the fort and was well provisioned and also well supplied with ammunition. His men were armed with old Queen Anne rifles. The forty-five guards were armed with good rifles, but their food supply was limited. On Dec. 4, Riel surrounded the storehouse with his guerillas, and on Dec. 10, worn out with loss of sleep and hunger, the brave little band of defenders surrendered and were marched to the fort, there to remain at the mercy of the outlaw general until Feb. 16, 1880, when fear of the approaching relief armies caused Riel to reelase them on condition that they would not take up arms against him again.

Was a Prisoner of Riel.

Those sixty-seven days in the custody of Riel were memorable ones for Mr. Graham. Despite the fact that half a century has elapsed, little incidents in connection with his days in prison are still fresh in his mind. He has a distinct recollection of the inevitable pemmican or dried buffalo met that he and the other prisoners shared with the husky-dogs while Riel's men lived on the fat of the land.

WILSON SAUNDERS MORDEN
B.A., LL.B., K.C.
Vice-President Chartered Trust and Executor Company, Toronto.

To add to the prisoners' discomfort the weather was extremely cold and they were herded together in the guard-rooms without adequate clothing. When Dr. Schultz made his escape, early in January, by cutting his buffalo robe into strips and forming a rope, there was trouble. Riel came into the prison demanding to know how the plucky doctor had escaped. A big half-breed named Hallet sauced the insurgent chieftain and immediately there was a rush for Riel, who beat a hasty and rather disorderly retreat. The enraged leader threatened to shoot every prisoner if they did not quieten down.

Tom Scott's Daring Escape.

Then followed the daring escape of Tom Scott, afterwards shot by Riel's orders, and Peter McArthur, a Chatham man, and a man named Hyman. They succeeded in digging out the casing of the window in their cell with their pocket knives during the night. With clothing intended for summer wear the three ventured out into a temperature registering around twenty degrees below zero. McArthur and Hyman were captured the next morning in a deplorable condition, their feet and hands being badly frozen. The intrepid Scott made his way to Portage la Prairie and immediately proceeded to raise a company of rescuers. It proved an ill-fated expedition, however. He and his followers were captured by Riel's men the day following the release of the first prisoners and took their places in the fort. On March 4th, 1870, Scott was shot on the charge of having broken his parole.

Mr. Graham remained near Fort Garry until March 10th, when in company with two other men he tramped on snowshoes to St. Cloud, Minnesota, a distance of nearly three hundred miles; each man pulling a sleigh with provisions behind him. The journey covered twenty-two days and snow-blizzards raged the greater part of the time. He remained in the United States six months, when he returned to Fort Garry.

During his incarceration Mr. Graham had a splendid opportunity of studying Louis Riel. He was an eccentric character, to say the least, Mr. Graham states—a mixture of good and evil. Apparently well educated, he possessed considerable leadership abilities, but he had a fondness for liquor, and, in Mr. Graham's opinion, was half drunk the greater part of the time. When Riel's men took possession of the fort they also acquired some three hundred casks of rum and whiskey.

TOOK IN HUGE SUM IN SHORT OPERATION

Boston, Aug. 27.—The Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company, which, imitating the methods of Charles Ponzi, promised 100 per cent. profits in six months, took in $316,503 during its seventeen days of operation before the authorities closed its doors. This was the report which John E. Hannigan, receiver of the company, was given today by accountants.

Mr. Hannigan to date has been able to locate only $154,000 of assets, and thinks he has a clue to the whereabouts of $20,000 additional, leaving approximately half of the money taken in by the company unaccounted for.

Although the bail demanded of Charles M. Brightwell and other officers of the company who are under arrest on larceny charges was reduced yesterday, bondsmen were still lacking today.

Sugar Price Not Affected By Cut Made By Refiners

Wholesalers Claim They Can Buy at $17 and Are Waiting Further Drop in Price.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28—The two cents drop in the price of sugar announced late yesterday afternoon by the local refiners after a conference with two members of the Board of Commerce will not affect that retail price of sugar in 90 per cent. of the stores in the larger cities of Canada.

This statement was made by several people closely in touch with sugar conditions. The situation is a very unusual one brought about, so the refiners state, by the fact that the many brokers throughout Canada, the big firms and the others who use large quantities of sugar annually, have become panicky due to the drop of prices on the United States side of the border and so are getting out from under rather than undergo the further loss they fear would come if they held on longer.

Whether they are right in their diagnosis of the situation or the refiners are, is something time alone will tell. The brokers and others feel that sugar is due for a big drop right away and a bigger drop when the new crop is offered in a few months time. The refiners on the other hand say there is not enough sugar to go around in either the United States or Canada, and the present situation is a panic pure and simple. They state that it will take till about the 15th of September for the present unloading to be all used up and then sugar will go back to its real price as dictated by market conditions.

Stores Lower Than Refiners.

Several were asked how it was the brokers and others were able to get hold of supplies when the refiners had stated there was a shortage, sufficient to overthrow the market and allow retailers to sell at a price lower than the refiners were quoting. No one was able to give a satisfactory answer. The fact remains, however, that a majority of the retail stores in Montreal were selling sugar by the pound yesterday and for a week past at a price almost as low as quoted by the refiners today, despite the cut of two cents announced by them after yesterday's conference.

Murder Of Czar Is Confirmed

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—All possible doubts that former Emperor Nicholas of Russia and his family were assassinated in the basement of their prison at Ekaterinburg seem to be dispelled by accounts of two independent investigators, which are published here. Both writers agree on important details of the story, stating that the victims numbered eleven. They were the former, Emperor, his wife, son and four daughters, Dr. Botkin and three servants. Yurovski, their jailer, arranged the assassination, which was carried out by twelve soldiers.

Dundalk Swept By Flames; Blamed On Sinn Feiners

Entire Business Section Destroyed and Three Persons Burned to Death.

BELFAST, Aug. 28—The entire business section of Dundalk has been destroyed by fire, alleged to have been set by Sinn Feiner sympathizers in reprisal for the burning of Catholic property in Belfast and Lisburn by Unionists.

Thirteen persons sleeping in rooms over a dry goods store were trapped and three of them burned to death.

Dundalk is a city of 15,000 on Dundalk Bay, midway between Belfast and Dublin.

Greeks Concentrating.

Smyrna, Aug. 28.—Greeks are concentrating their forces in preparation for a new offensive, the object of which is said to be Ushak, 150 miles northeast of Smyrna. Considerable Turkish forces are concentrating against the Greeks.

Sinn Feiners in many towns seize control of local Government under cover of Republican guard at Dublin.

Bitter Battles In Belfast Death Roll Grows Fast

MACHINE GUNS SPOUT DEATH IN THE STREETS—MONDAY'S RIOTING THE WORST YET—SHIPYARD EMPLOYEES ATTACKED ON THE WAY TO WORK—YOUNG WOMAN KILLED—MANY CASUALTIES.

BELFAST, Aug. 30.—Rioting and destruction of property was renewed in this city early this morning, the Unionist quarter being the scene of serious disorders. Troops rushed to the centre of the disturbances opened fire to clear the street, several young women being gravely wounded and one man injured. Further grave developments are apprehended. Shipyard employees who were unarmed, were on their way to work at 8.30 this morning, when they were attacked, it is charged by the police, by Sinn Feiners and shooting soon began. Soldiers arrived soon after the disorder cmmenced and assumed the firing position across York street, giving the crowds three minutes to clear the thoroughfare. Most of the people fled to cover.

FOUR DEATHS MONDAY.

BELFAST, Aug. 30.—Today's rioting was said by the police to be the worst that Belfast has yet seen. Up to one o'clock this afternoon it was definitely known that four deaths had occurred as the result of the disorders. These included a young woman named Grace Orr, who was shot early this morning when the troops opened fire to clear the street in the Unionist quarters. Numerous persons with wounds were admitted to the hospital.

11 KILLED SATURDAY NIGHT.

BELFAST, Aug. 30.—Eleven men dead is the toll of Saturday night's fighting in Belfast. In addition to the six men killed during the height of the battle, two of the wounded died today.

A feature of the rioting was the extent of the destruction of property by incendiarism. The fire brigade had an especially hard time during the night in fighting the flames. Their work was rendered hideous by the constant rattle of machine guns. The Sinn Feiners were in strong force, and appeared to be well supplied with arms and ammunition.

Mohawk Reserve Woman Sues Fishery Inspector

ELIZA SORROW, INDIAN WOMAN, SUING INSPECTORS FLEMING AND GALT FOR ALLEGED WRONGFUL CONFISCATION OF NETS—$680 DAMAGES ASKED—CLAIMS TREATY RIGHTS.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

OTTAWA, Aug. 30.—Whether Indians have constitutional rights under treaty in regard to fishing and therefore are not bound to comply with legislation requiring fishermen to take out licenses is the point of contention in the case now being argued before Justice Riddell here.

The plaintiff, Eliza Sorrow, an Indian woman from the Mohawk Reserve on the Bay of Quinte, was fishing in those waters with nets in 1919 and as she did not have a license she was stopped and her nets confiscated. She was deprived of her means of earning a living. She sues Inspectors Fleming and Galt for $680 damages. The case was heard by the late Chief Justice Falconbridge, who died just before he had delivered judgment. Justice Riddell is hearing the re-argument of the case.

Hunger Striker's Condition Critical

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The strike of MacSweeney, Lord Mayor of Cork, has progressed so far that he is in such a condition that even if he took food now it would do him no good, according to a statement by the Brixton prison doctor to the Mayor's wife, who visited her husband this morning. Mayor MacSweeney is said to be even more gravely ill than at last reports and a change for the worse may come at any time in the next twenty-four hours.

Coal Mimers Get Increased Wages

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—President Wilson today approved the majority report of the Anthracite Coal Commission increasing the wages of contract miners by twenty per cent. over present rates. Miners employed as company men aer given an increase of seventeen per cent. and the same amount is given cosideration miners and miners' laborer and monthly men. The findings, the report said, would fix a minimum rate of 52½ cents an hour for lower paid men in the anthracite industry. Anthracite mine workers will receive about eighteen million in each pay under the retroactive feature of the award which makes it effective April 1 and the total increase will average at elast eighty-five million dollars annually.

Soviets Overthrown By Peasants

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Aug. 30.—Western Siberian peasants have overthrown the Soviets at Tomsk, Novonikolaeivsk, Omsk, Barnaul and other important towns, it is reported here from reliable sources. Isolated peasant uprising which have been in progress since spring appeared to have culminated in a general insurrection. This was led by an uprising of the Kirghiz tribesmen, which followed the withdrawal of Bolshevik troops, presumably for the Polish front.

Germany Fears Red Fugitives

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

WARSAW, Aug. 30.—The German Government has advised the Polish Government that there are now seventy thousand fugitives of the Red army interned in Germany. The German authorities cosider it dangerous to leave such a hot bed of Bolshevik propaganda in the neighborhood of the frontier and requested the permissian of the Polish Government to take them across the Polish corridor in order to convey them to the centre of Germany.

MacSweney must consent to eat if he wishes to save his life. There is no change in the Government's decision.

Old-time telegraphers will open a convention in Toronto on Tuesday.

RETREAT ENDED

The retreat for the priests of the priests of the Archdiocese of Kingston ended at St. Mary's Cathedral Friday evening and the priests from outside places left Saturday for their various parishes.

PROGRESSIVE TOWN

The Renfrew Council has made a contract with the Renfrew Dairy Co. to collect free of cost the garbage in the town, commencing September 1st. The company will use the garbage for hog feed and hold a license from the Provincial Board of Health for that purpose. The town has been paying a collector $70 a month.

IMMENSE FLOWER

What is probably the tallest sunflower reported in Ontario this season is growing in the garden of James A. Holland, 429 Johnson street, Kingston. It measures 12 ft. 7 ins. in height and has attracted a great deal of attention. Such a growth is seldom attained and Mr. Holland's success is highly commendable. He will enter the plant in the horticultural exhibition.

BELLEVILLE'S BIG FAIR.

Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture, is expected to make an address at Belleville Fair, and the visit of the Ontario Minister is awaited with considerable interest. A big list of attractions have been arranged for Belleville Fair, including an up-to-the-minute Midway with something doing every minute, sports, including trials of speed on the track, some of the fastest horses in Canada being entered; baseball games, St. Michael's vs. winners of Deloro-Picton championship final; other teams will also take part in a tournament; tugs of war every day and other field sports. Concerts by the G.W.V.A. band will take place every day.

In Memoriam

FRENCH—In loving memory of our dear son Malcolm Linford French, who gave his life, August 30, 1918.

Two years has passed our hearts still sore
As time goes by we miss him more,
His loving smile his welcome face
No one can fill his vacant place.
The only one God gave us
Our one and only joy
Our lives and love was centred on
Our one and only boy.

We saw him in his infant days
Grow up from year to year,
That he would some day be a man
We never had a fear.
Tenderly we watched his every step,
'Twas our united joy
To think what he might be one day
Our one and only boy.

When war broke out, to us he said
"My conscience tells me go
For I must do my duty Dad,
They need my help you know.
Be brave, dear mother, don't worry, please
For I'm no better than they
Who suffer and die on Flanders' fields
With their loved ones far away."

A chance to do something, be someone
To prove there's a purpose in life
With a vision of manhood before him
He longed to take part in the strife.
One day—there came a message
That message it gave us pain
For the one we loved and lived for
Would never come back again.

Some day, some time, our eyes shall see
The faces kept in memory
Who grew to highest manhood
Modeled on Christ's plan
Who dies for others dies a perfect man
Only a little while? And then with joy
We do believe we'll meet again
Our one and only boy.

—Father and mother.

Called by Death

C. W. JONES.

Mr. Charles Wesley Jones died at his home in Bancroft, Ont., on August 20, after a protracted illness. He was born in Clark Township, Durham County, on November 27, 1842, the son of Rev. George Jones and Laura Mallory. His father was an Episcopal Methodist minister, and his paternal grandfather was a British army officer who served during the American Revolutionary War, and afterwards settled near Perth, Ont. Mr. Jones was educated at Albert College, Belleville. After leaving college he taught Public School for one year, and then began his business career at Madoc. After clerking for some time for the late E. D. O'Flynn, he was taken into partnership by his employer. About 1870 he moved to Port Perry to manage a general store for Paxton & Jones. Shortly after, he and his brother William bought the business, and for eight years carried on a large trade under the firm name of Jones Bros. After selling out their business, to Abbs, Patterson & Reid, the Jones brothers went into iron mining near Kinmount with the late Thomas Paxton, M.P.P. In 1883, C. W. Jones returned to Port Perry, and resumed business, this time in partnership with Mr. D. R. Davenport. Some years later they sold out, and went to Michigan and California, but eventually returned to Port Perry, and once more engaged in business there. Mr. Jones remained there until 1909, when he moved to Haliburton County, and afterwards to the Village of Bancroft, to engage in the pulpwood and lumber business, in which he has been associated for some years with his son, Gordon.

Mr. Jones was twice married, in 1870 to Mary Elizabeth Paxton, and in 1885 to Mary A. O'Brien. He is survived by his widow; four sons, George M. of Toronto, and Gordon W., R. Grant and Charles H. of Bancroft; four daughters, Mrs. W. J. M. Craig of Kobe, Japan, Mrs. E. F. Hunt of New York City, Mrs. E. L. Stackhouse of Ottawa, and Miss Endora H., of Bancroft; two brothers, Dr. G. W. Jones of Imlay City, Mich., and W. M. Jones of Roland, Man.; by three sisters, Mrs. Hodges of Hyde Park, Ont., Mrs. Bedford, of Hillsboro, N. B., and Mrs. Tuer of Liberty, Texas.

MRS. ANNIE BATEMAN

Died on August 15th, Annie Hurst Bateman, eldest daughter of the late William Hurst, and relict of the late John Thomas Bateman, who predeceased his wife sixteen years ago. For the past three months deceased had been a great sufferer, which suffering she bore with remarkable christian fortitude. Her family, friends and nurse were always greeted with a bright smiling face and sure and steadfast in the faith she passed to be with her Saviour, surrounded by the family. Two daughters and one son mourn the loss of a devoted mother, Mrs. Phillip Vance, Minto; Mrs. Wm. Hogle Harold; and Wm. J. on the homestead. There are also five sisters and one brother, Jas. Hurst, of Belleville, and an aged mother, Mrs. Ellen Hurst of Harold.

Beautiful floral offerings covered the casket: Pillow, the family; wreath the grandchildren; wreath, her sisters sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hurst of Belleville; sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. Adams; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. John Bateman, Marmora; wreath, Miss Tanner, Ivanhoe.

The impressive service of the Anglican church was conducted by Rev. S. Morton, Rev. T. H. H. Hall, Madoc and Rev. R. Nicholas Stout, Frankville. The family have the sympathy of the community in their affliction.—Contributed.

UNIQUE TRIP MADE BY OTTAWA WOMAN

Toronto, Aug. 27.—A special to a Toronto paper from Winnipeg says:

"Miss Alice E. Wilson, of Ottawa, returned to Winnipeg, Tuesday, after a 200-mile trip by rowboat down the east shore of Lake Winnipeg, collecting fossils for the Dominion Geological Department. She was accompanied on her expedition, which was the first of its kind ever made by women, by Miss M. A. Fritz, school teacher, who graduated from Royal Victoria College, Montreal, in 1919. The women took a month to make the trip, travelling south along the east shore from Berena river. They carried their tent, camp outfit and geological tools with them and were "on their own" all the time. They will remain here a few days before proceeding to Ottawa.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Harp and Violin Are Among the Most Ancient.

Did the Emperor Nero play the fiddle while Rome burned?

There is no question that he may have owned a fiddle. The violin is one of the most ancient of musical instruments, dating back to the early dawn of history, though in its present form it first appeared in the latter part of the sixteenth century.

Perhaps, however, it was the bagpipes that Nero played. On a coin issued during his brief reign the instrument is plainly represented, and an ancient Roman sculpture shows a piper whose costume weirdly resembles that of a Scottish Highlander.

Even more interesting is the harp. We know why angels wear crowns. It is because they are all kings and queens, just as every man in a Knight Templar parade is uniformed as a full general. But why do they play on harps?

It is because the Hebrews in the days of Moses and doubtless long before that looked upon the harp as the most admirable of all instruments of music. Undoubtedly it is of prehistoric origin. The Egyptians had perfected it thousands of years before Christ was born and their harps, beautifully made and elaborately ornamented, were substantially of the same pattern as those of to-day.

The harpsichord, comparatively modern, represented an attempt to construct a horizontal harp that was played upon by means of oblong wooden keys called "jacks." Our piano is a modified and improved harpsichord, invented in 1711 by Bartolomeo Cristofalo, of Padua.

It seems not unlikely that the earliest form of the harp was the instrument we call a lyre. The latter was possibly the first of all stringed instruments. One finds it represented on the monuments of ancient Egypt and, though so long obsolete, it often appears in modern architecture as a decoration.

In the stillness of the night, what more beautiful or soul-elevating than the mournful music of a flute? It was this instrument which the shepherds of Bethlehem were playing that memorable night 1920 years ago, when the angels interrupted to announce to them the birth of the Saviour.

And, on the other hand, what instrument is better adapted for martial uses, when accompanied by the drum, than the flute's sister-instrument, the fife? Like the pibroch, it rouses to deeds of valor!

Reason of Leap Year.

It was in the year B.C. 46 that Julius Caesar introduced the Bissextile, or what we know as Leap Year, into the calendar, says Pearson's Weekly.

Previous to the adoption of the Julian system, the Roman year consisted of 365 days only, divided into twelve lunar months, with an occasional intercalary month to make up for the fact that more than twelve exact lunar months are required to complete the natural year.

This system was very unsatisfactory, and Julius Caesar much improved matters by his calendar which made each year to consist of 365¼ days on the average by inserting another day every four years between February 24th and 25th.

This reckoning was not quite accurate, however, as the natural year consists of 365 days 5 hours 48 minutes 50 seconds only, and when Pope Gregory XIII. studied the subject in 1582 he found there was a difference of ten days between the Julian and the natural time. This led to the Gregorian Amendment, which enacted that what would have been October 5, 1582, was to be regarded as October 15.

To guard against future discrepancies the Pope drew up a list of leap years, and although 1700, 1800 and 1900 were not included, 2000 will be a leap year. There is now only a difference of 22 seconds per annum between calendar and natural time.

The Gregorian Amendment was not accepted in England until 1751, by which time the difference between the Julian calendar and natural time had become eleven days. A decree was issued to meet the case, and September 3, 1751, became September 14.

Sikh's Sacred Emblems.

It was recently reported that Gen. Dyer had been presented by the Sikhs with the sacred comb, the quoit and the dagger.

By being presented with these Gen. Dyer has received what is practically the greatest honor a Sikh can bestow upon any man not of his religion.

When the son of a Sikh himself becomes a Sikh, in other words, when he is admitted to the religion he is given the comb, dagger and quoit, and from the day he receives them he guards his sacred possessions most jealously.

The quoit, of course, is the national weapon of the Sikhs. Men serving in Sikh regiments of the Indian army wear a small quoit, about four inches in diameter, in front of their turban, but the actual weapon is much larger and heavier, and has a razor-like edge.

The Sikhs have a deadly aim. The quoit is thrown in much the same manner as was the discus in days of old—that is, the thrower gets a firm footing, flings his hand right back, and then brings it suddenly forward, releasing the weapon—and woe betide the unfortunate enemy whose neck gets in the way.

Reason Enough.

"Why did you strike the telegraph operator?" asked the magistrate of the man who was summoned for assault.

"Well, sir, I gives him a telegram to send to my gal, an' he starts reading it. So, of course, I ups and gives him one."

(What the Press Agents Say)

"DON'T TELL"

Playgoers of the present generation seldom have an opportunity to enjoy what their parents and grandparents would have called a "treat" such as the joint starring tours of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall, Booth and Barret, Mr. and Mrs. Royle and the various other combinations of talent which were wont to be popular in the so-called "palmy" days of the theatre. Tastes have changed and with them the fare provided by the theatrical entrepeneur of today, who must needs cater to his public or close up his playhouse. The same condition, however, does not exist in Europe and especially in England and Scotland where the playgoing public is still loyal to its favorite players.

In spite of these ultra-advanced ideas in America there is doubtless a public for the kind of entertainment which our cousins abroad still enjoy, and with that idea firmly in mind William Morris who sends us Sir Harry Lauder each season induced Mr. and Mrs. Graham Moffat to come to America this season and show their new Scottish comedy. Mr. and Mrs. Moffat and their Scottish company of players have been touring the English-speaking countries of the world for these many years and although Mr. Moffat's "Bunty Pulls the Strings" has been seen here frequently, he has never attempted to play in this country personally. Mr. Morris after seeing the new Scottish comedy, "Don't Tell," decided that it would be an almost hopeless task to secure a company of players here who could adequately interpret its quaintness characters and preserve the delightful charm of Mr. Moffat's newest work and so he induced the Moffats to come to America for their first annual tour. "Don't Tell," is described as a comedy of life in Glasgow of today. It will be shown here at Griffin's next Friday night, September 3rd, for one night only. "Don't Tell," is to be presented on Broadway for an all-winter run starting Monday, September 27th.

ON THE WATER WAGON

The remarkable art of Will Rogers, both as a comedian and as the portrayer of pathos, is once more registered on the screen in his new Goldwyn picture, "Water, Water Everywhere." In this picturization of William R. Lighton's series of "Billy Fortune" stories which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, Will Rogers has the role of a western cowboy bent on sacrificing himself so that his friend and the girl that he himself loves in vain may find the happiness that is denied him.

The humorous background of the story centres about the attempts of a temperance society to banish liquor from the town. In the course of the story the town saloon becomes a soda water parlor and the men stay away from their homes—as usual to congregate there and swap stories. However, Will Rogers succeeds in his attempt to reform his rival, and then resignedly steps aside to permit him to wed the girl he loves. A small but excellent cast supports the star. Among the cast are Irene Rich, Howland Lee, Wade Boteler, Marguerite Livingston, Lillian Langdon and Lydia Yeamans Titus. "Water, Water Everywhere," will be shown at Griffin's to-night to Wednesday. It is a picture that will make one better for seeing it.

On the same program with the above feature offering, a beautiful Burton Holmes Travelogue, a funny 2-reel Sunshine comedy, "Through the Keyhole," and Jack Dempsey champion heavyweight pugilist of the world in a thrilling 2-act drama Daredevil Jack.'

Letters To The Editor

HOSPITAL AND HOME PENNY BAGS.

Belleville, Aug. 28, 1920.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—May I draw the attention of the citizens through your columns to the Hospital and Home Penny Bags distributed throughout the city by the W.C.A.? The ladies in charge have been very much pleased with the results for they show what can be done by systematic giving. Last month, though, the amount collected was an exception, for the bags netted only $86.00 instead of $186.00, or thereabouts. The reason for this was that many of the collectors and donors were out of the city. Therefore we are looking for a larger amount than usual to be collected during the week commencing August 29th, realizing that the collectors know the real necessity for a thorough canvass of their districts.

The citizens can well understand that these two public institutions are feeling very keenly the H. C. of L., and while the government statistics show that the cost of their maintenance is below that of the majority of like institutions, yet the revenue is not equal to the demand caused by the increase in prices unless the public remember them as liberally as they can. One medium is through the Hospital and Home Penny Bags.

Thanking you for your many kindnesses in connection with the work of the W.C.A., we remain, Mr. Editor,

Yours sincerely,

LILIAN E. MIKEL,
President

After the last act he proposed Claremont for supper. Daphne accepted with zest. They entered an open taxicab and scudded up the long bias seam of Broadway to Seventy-second street and whisked across to Riverside drive and up its meandering splendor.

"This is too beautiful to go through so fast," Daphne cried. "It's wonderful. We ought to walk. Promise me we can walk home. It's such a gorgeous night."

"You're crazy, darling," he said. "I've got to get to my office tomorrow, and you've got to get home for breakfast."

"All right for you," she pouted. But it was none too serious a tragedy, and her spirits revived when the taxicab turned in through the shrubs about the old inn that had once been the home of Napoleon's brother and had heard the laughter of Theodosia Burr and of Betty Jumel in their primes.

Daphne did not like the table the head waiter led them to. It missed both the breeze and the view.

"Can't we sit over there?" she said.

"I'll see."

The head waiter came reluctantly to his beck. When Clay asked for the table, the answer was curt:

"Sorry, sir; it is reserved."

Clay felt insulted. He whipped out his pocketbook and rebuked the tyrant with a bill. He thought it was a one-dollar bill, but he saw a "V" on it just as the swift and subtle head waiter absorbed it without seeming to. To ask for it back or for change was one of the most impossible things in the world.

Clay made it as easy for his new slave as he could.

"I don't think you understood which table I meant," he said, pointing to the one he had indicated before. "That one."

"Oh, that one!" said the head waiter. "Certainly, sir."

He led the way, beckoning waiters and omnibuses and snapping his fingers.

Clay ordered a supper as chastely perfect as a sonnet. It showed that he had both native ability and education in the art of ordering a meal. He impressed even the head waiter, and that is a triumph. That was Clay's purpose. Also he wanted to preserve his self-respect and the waiter's attention in the face of the supper that was being ordered at the next table. That was well ordered, too, but it was not a sonnet: it was a rhapsody. It was ordered by a man whose guests had not yet arrived. When Clay had dispatched his waiter he whispered to Daphne:

"See that fellow. That's Thomas Varick Duane, one of the wellest-known bachelors in New York. He was crazy about Leila."

"Not Bayard's Leila!"

"Yes. That's really why Bayard got married so quick. He was afraid Tom Duane would steal her. Nice enough fellow, but too much money!"

Daphne looked at the big man, and caught him looking at her with a favorable appraisal. She stared him down with a cold self-possession of the American girl who will neither flirt nor flinch. Duane yielded and turned his eyes to Clay, recognized him, and nodded.

"Hello, Wimburn! H'ah ya?"

"Feeling fairly snappy," said Clay.

Duane showed a willingness to come over and be presented, but Clay kept him off with a look like a pair of pushing hands.

Duane loitered about, waiting for his guests. He looked lonely. Daphne felt a mixture of charity and snobbery in her heart. She whispered to Clay:

"Invite the poor fellow over here till his guests come. I'm dying to be able to tell the people at home that I met the great Duane."

Again Clay shook his head.

"And that you introduced him to me."

Clay nodded. He beckoned Duane over with hardly more than a motion of the eyebrows. Duane came with a flattering eagerness. He put his hand out to Clay; and Clay, rising, made the presentation.

"You're not related to Bayard Kip, I hope," Duane said, with an amiable frown.

"He's my brother. Why?"

"I owe him a big grudge," said Duane. "He stole his wife from me, just as I was falling madly in love with her. Beautiful girl, your new sister."

"I've never seen her," said Daphne.

"Beautiful girl!" he sighed. "Much too good for your Brother, infinitely beyond me. Why don't you both move over to my table? Miss Kemble is to be there with her manager. Mighty clever girl—Miss Kemble. Have you seen her new play?"

"We were there tonight," said Daphne. "She's glorious!"

"Come on over and play in our yard, then."

Daphne had never met a famous actress. She was wild to join the group and to know Tom Duane better. But Clay spoke with an icy finality.

"Thanks, old man. We've already ordered." He still stood, and he had not invited Duane to sit down.

Tom Duane looked at Daphne and smiled like a boy rebuked. "All right, I'll go quietly. I know when I'm kicked out. But next time I won't go so easily. Good night."

He put his warm, friendly hand out again to Daphne and to Clay, who nodded him away with an appalling informality, considering how great he was.

Other people came in, some of them plainly sightseers, some of them personages of quality. Everybody seemed happy, clandestine, romantic. This was life as Daphne wanted to live it. But at length she yawned. Her little hand could not conceal the contortion of her features.

"I'm gloriously tired, honey," she confessed, with a lovable intimacy. "It's the most beautiful supper I ever had, but I'm sleepy."

He smiled with indulgent tenderness and said to the waiter, "Check!"

Daphne turned her eyes away decently as the slip of paper on a plate was set at Clay's elbow. But she noted that he started violently as he turned the bill over and met it face to face. He studied it with the grim heroism of one reading a death-warrant. The amount staggered him. He turned pale. He recovered enough to say to the waiter, "You've given me the wrong check."

MONTREAL 8—BELLEVILLE 4.

The baseball match on Saturday afternoon between Montreal and Belleville Grand Trunk shop baseball teams resulted in a win for Montreal by a score of 8 to 4. Carter at shortstop, and Kenny at second base played great ball for Montreal and had a lot to do in winning the game for their team. Knox in centre field made a fine catch of Weir's drive in the seventh innings, robbing him of a sure home run. O'Connor, in right field, had four hits and turned them all into runs.

Sullivan, although not very big, pitched a fine game and kept the locals down to a few scattered hits. Fred Goyer pitched good ball for the locals and with a little better support in the field would no doubt have won the game. Hagerman caught a good game, and with a little more experience should turn out to be a very good catcher. Bunton and Goyer were best at the bat, Bunton getting three hits and Goyer two.

The line-up was:

Belleville—Weir s.s., Symons 3b, Hagerman c., W. Miles 2b, Bunton c.f., J. Miles 1b, F. Miles r.f., Welch l.f., Goyer p.

IMPERIAL PRESS ON EMPIRE UNITY

Vancouver, Aug. 28.—At the banquet which concluded the visit of the Imperial Press Conference to Vancouver addresses were given by Hon. J. W. Kirman, of Australia, a member of the Commonwealth Parliament and publisher of the Kalgoorlie Miner; O. D. Don, editor of the Johannesburg Star, and Sir George Toulmin, M.P., publisher of the Lancashire Daily Post, and other north county papers.

The first named, referring to immigration from the United States to Canada said there was nothing in the idea of devotion to the Empire which was inconsistent with the development of the highest democratic ideals. Canada, New Zealand and Australia were examples of this contention.

Canada, said Sir George Toulmin, needed direct news from London which did not pass through other hands. He expressed the hope that there would be an all-red cable route connecting every place marked red on the map. The delegates left for Victoria this morning.

The members of the party spent yesterday enjoying themselves sight-seeing.

MASKED BANDITS TERRORIZE SARNIA.

Sarnia, Aug. 26.—City and Provincial police are scouring the city and county in an effort to locate five masked and armed men who terrorized a section of the city when they entered the home of David Marks, Exmouth street, tied up three occupants and stole ninety dollars. The men knocked on the door of Mr. Mark's home, and when it was entered the whole gang entered, each pointing a revolver. The house was ransacked from cellar to garret, the money and a few trinkets was all that was taken. Mr. Marks, who is an employee of the Holmes Foundry Co., on his return home from work found his relatives bound and helpless. He sent an S. O. S. call into police headquarters. Beyond a few footprints, no trace was left by the hold-up men.

A Cross-Arm Brace—And Your Telephone!

"WELL" you may say, "What is a cross-arm brace?"

"What has it to do with me? What do I care if——"

A cross-arm brace is an uninteresting-looking piece of iron. One end is fastened to the telephone pole, the other to the cross-piece to hold it firmly at right angles across the pole.

We use at least two on every pole, and they have increased in price 249% since 1913.

A small item! But only one of scores of the vital parts of a telephone system the costs of which have advanced in like manner.

Here are a few other items:

Batteries	121%
Pole line brackets	275%
Insulators	359%
Poles	136%
Transmitters	257%
Top Pins	204%
Cross-arms	151%
Ground Line	247%

This is but another reason why telephone rates must be increased.

PULP RESOURCES IN MANITOBA

Pulp resources in northeastern Manitoba will remain undeveloped until means of transportation are established, F. H. Herchmer, inspector of Dominion forest reserves, said on his return from a forest inspection trip in the district north of Norway House. He reports a good quality of spruce is found which would make excellent pulp, but there is no outlet for the finished product, the rivers being unnavigable except by canoe.

"That's The Best Looking Suit He's Had Yet."

FATHER looks approvingly up from his paper at his son and heir as Mother slowly turns him around for inspection.

"He does look nice, doesn't he," she answers fondly. "I made up my mind to get him a good suit this time so I bought Wearbetter. The others he had were a little cheaper but they lasted no time at all—and he looked horrid in them"

Father nods his head.

"It never pays to buy cheap clothes. You may save a dollar or so on the price but, when you figure up what we have had to pay in the past because that young man was so hard on clothes, you can see we'd have saved money if we had always fitted him with Wearbetters."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY—

The whale gets into trouble only when he starts to blow.
—Anon.

MAN OF EMERGENCIES IS LLOYD GEORGE.

An interesting sketch of Lloyd George, from the point of a disinterested onlooker, is written for the Wall Street Journal by its London correspondent, Herbert N. Casson. "As long as there are emergencies there will be Lloyd George," is the writer's conclusion.

"Probably no one in Europe since Napoleon has been as central and as eminent as Lloyd George is today," says the article. "As the generals have fallen back one by one into the background, Lloyd George has come steadily to the front, until he has become the foremost figure of Europe.

"At the moment he has no rival. He has no parliamentary opposition worth worrying about. He has confounded his political enemies; and since the Spa Convention he has come back to England with more prestige than ever. Even the French editors are applauding him. In parliament he and no one else holds the reins of power. More and more he is establishing himself as the government.

"Lloyd George is a master of opportunism. He deals with emergencies as they arise. He is the most successful destroyer of emergencies in the world. This is his genius and the secret of his power. He is not at all like President Wilson, who is a fixed and immovable man. Lloyd George has mobility above everything else. He is not a doctrinaire. He has never had an opinion that he would not lightheartedly throw out of the window.

Springs to Action.

"His policy is to let things drift. Then when a crash threatens he springs to action and prevents it. He loves emergencies. He prefers them to all else. They enable him ten to twelve times a year to rescue his country from disaster. Anyone can go to a British newstand and buy two different biographies of Lloyd George. The one is Pro and the other is Anti. One testifies that Lloyd George has got Great Britain into most of her messes and muddles, and the other testifies that he has triumphantly got her out. The probability is that both are right.

"As he has no plans, neither can he really be said to have any advisers. He takes short views of life. He deals with each day as it comes. He has learned in thirty years of British public life that the British public prefers the leader who deals with trouble rather than the one who prevents it. He has a personal staff, whom he consults constantly. This staff changes as the problems come and go. At the moment it consists of Mr. Bonar Law, Lord Riddell, Lord Reading and Sir Philip Sassoon.

A Young Disraeli.

"Lloyd George's greatest strength is Bonar Law, who, if he had wished, might without much difficulty have been Prime Minister himself. For four years Bonar Law has been the most faithful and devoted assistant that Lloyd George has ever had. As to Lord Riddell, he is the owner of the principal Sunday newspaper in Britain—The News of the World. This publication has a circulation of 3,500,000 copies. As for Lord Reading, he was originally a very shrewd and artful lawyer, who by ability and daring climbed to the topmost pinnacle of the British bar. As for Sir Philip Sassoon, he is a remarkable young diplomat of 32—a member of the Rothschild family. Rich, ambitious, and as silent as the Sphinx. Many people look upon him as a young Disraeli.

"The two most dangerous enemies of Lloyd George are Lord Northcliffe and Sir Edward Carson. The latter recently voted against the government and led 100 voters temporarily out of the coalition. Mr. Asquith, too, is an enemy in a sense, but he is not dangerous. He is not even serious in his enmity. In a recent speech he became almost an apologist for the government. Mr. Asquith has very few supporters in parliament. His only stronghold is the National Liberal Club, of which he controls nine-tenths of the members.

"So it seems quite possible that Lloyd George may succeed in creating his own party, in case the coalition fails. In the coming year there will be no end of emergencies. We shall be "on the verge of something or other" almost every week; and as long as there are emergencies there will be Lloyd George.

NO MIRACLES IN INVESTING.

Money honestly employed earns a fair return. This is a sound and unchangeable principle of finance and business. The investor who expects more is not investing, he is speculating—and many are asking for miracles.

There are hundreds of propositions in which the investor can make six to eight per cent. with a minimum of risk. But with a great many there is no attraction in this. Instead of putting their money where it will bring a fair return they seek to make a fortune over night—gold mines, oil wells, impracticable inventions, magic fuels, etc., etc., attract the small savings of the wage-earner when the man of means is buying bonds.

The man who can afford to "take a flier" in the speculative market is usually the last one to do so. The person who cannot afford to take chances is always willing to take a jump in the dark, taking the advice of the Ponzis and the Sheldons and ignoring the counsel of experienced bankers and brokers.

Despite the alluring talk of the socialists we believe that the poor—that is, those who are comparatively so—will always be with us, and that those who are provided with more of the world's goods will always be envied. But if people would save and invest their money properly it would go a long way towards bringing about a practical Utopia.—Financial Post.

A cheerful loafer is not a menace. But beware of those who toil not, neither do they grin.—Kingston Whig.

During his recent visit to Picton Sir Gilbert Parker remarked that the people of Ontario have the finest heritage in the world, "for," said he, "I have not yet seen any country that is its equal in resources and opportunities." This is a fine tribute, and one that should make us all appreciate just a little more if possible the birthright that is ours. Sir Gilbert is a true Canadian and a true Britisher. Referring to Goldwin Smith, whose picture hung in a rather prominent place in a Picton office which he happened to visit, Sir Gilbert said, "I have always been thankful that young Canadians did not accept the opinions of Goldwin Smith, for," said he, "he was an annexationist." He paid a warm tribute to his literary ability, and shared the opinion of all true Canadians as to his political doctrines. Goldwin Smith had remarkable gifts as a writer, and it is a tribute to the loyalty of the Canadian people that these brilliant gifts were altogether ineffective to mould public opinion in favor of his policy of union with the Republic to the south.—Picton Gazette.

Paper Prices in New York
(Kingston Standard)

The difficulties in running newspapers are by no means confined to Canada, and the public here should take notice of the fact that the prices of paper in New York have gone up, while it is reported that a further increase is not at all unlikely owing to the increasing costs of wages and materials. Nearly all the evening papers in that city have sent up their prices and the Morning Telegraph has increased its price from 5 to 10 cents a copy. The Wall Street Journal now costs 7 instead of 5 cents. There does not seem to be any chance of wages and materials decreasing in cost in Canada and it may be that the example of the New York papers will have to be followed.

All's Right With the World
(London Daily Mail)

The world is always new and fresh, if we will make it so especially if it pursues the line of tradition. There are those who draw long faces, but it is at least something to the good that more of our people are taking pleasanter holidays than ever were taken before. An early spring has given us a supreme chance at this date to "annihilate all that's made, to a green thought in a green shade," and a green thought is good for all of us against the return of a work-a-day world. The roads are good, the country is fair and leisure increases. If these are not good enough grounds for indulgence in the holiday spirit, then England was never merry.

Our Great Ally, France
(London Daily Telegraph)

We have seen the French people endure with unshaken courage losses, injuries and outrages greater than our adversary was able to inflict upon ourselves. Not only bereavement, not only hardship and privation, but the bitter spiritual suffering of a barbarous invasion were borne by them with a fortitude that no one who knew France in war-time can ever forget. It is the sense of these things that is the new foundation of our relationship with the French people, and it goes far deeper than the policy of governments. The people themselves have shown it at such times as the great men of France have visited this country since the war ended; it is a living and enduring national sentiment, an indestructible part of our public consciousness pervading the whole people. We are prouder of nothing in history than of the necessity of that partnership in the years to come. That necessity was never more clear than it is at this moment; but it ought at no time to be out of our thoughts.

A GRAVE IN FLANDERS

Darkness and stars and brooding of the sea,
You bring no peace to me;
No dreams nor any visions strange and new.
Dreams, visions were of you
Heroic lover, vanished from my sight,
Leaving to me the night.

Here in the darkness, by the brooding sea,
I thought my secret thoughts most secretly
Dreamt of the baby of my dreams like him
O wondrous life when growing tall and slim;
Yet in his eyes' gray deeps a hint of mine
And his mouth matching my mouth's curving line.
But in a grave in Flanders o'er the sea
My lover lies, that dream, and all of me.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBIT HAS MANY STRIKING FEATURES

Great Panorama of Rocky Mountains and Wireless Telephone Demonstration to Attract Visitors

The Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways have this year combined to make one of the most striking displays in the history of the Canadian National Exhibition. The exhibit which occupies two of the three main sections of the Railway Building gives a new vision of the extent and resources of the Dominion.

One of the sections is devoted to a vivid portrayal of the beauties of the Canadian Rockies at the point where the peaks reach their greatest heights. The grandeur of the Yellowhead Pass and its surrounding peaks is shown on a scale commensurate with the magnitude of the great mountain chain. The visitor stands under the shadow of a giant pine, the branches of which arch over the whole of the ceiling. At his feet are the Maligne Falls and the turbulent silver stream of the Maligne River threading its way among the foothills. In the background is a panorama 100 feet in length of the magnificent mountains in Jasper National Park and Mount Robson Park, the two great scenic reserves through which the Canadian National and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railways make their way to the Pacific Coast.

The atmosphere of Canada's mountain world has been retained in a wonderful way, and it is difficult for the observer to realize that he is not viewing the scene from some favorable vantage point in the Rocky Mountains. The system of lighting has been arranged to give in various periods of the day, the effects seen among the mountains at sunrise, noonday and evening.

In the second section of the Exhibit the working of the Canadian Government Marine is featured in connection with the great network of railway lines that is now the Canadian National system. Adding a graphic touch to this display the ships of Canada's Merchant Marine are seen flashing actual wireless messages, and these are picked up in turn by no fewer than forty-three wireless stations along the Dominion's chain of waterways from Cape Race to the Pacific Ocean. In order to make this possible, the Marconi Company has installed an aerial system above the Railway Building to receive messages from all points, these being handled by an operator housed in an exact replica of a steamship's wireless cabin. Simultaneously the messages are spelled out in Morse by a wonderful system of miniature lamps spread over a gigantic map of the Dominion of Canada. In addition to the wireless telegraph apparatus there is kept working the new system of wireless telephony. Expert engineers are on hand to explain in full the working of the various forms of apparatus.

The Canadian Government Department of Marine is also lending its assistance in making the Canadian National Exhibit complete and is showing a remarkable series of aids to navigation including large revolving light house lanterns and beacon lights, fog horns, etc.

Emphasis is also placed in the exhibit on the opportunities awaiting the settler along the lines of the Canadian National Railways, the whole display being excellently planned and carried out on a high scale of excellence.

RAILWAY SHOPMEN RECEIVE SAME SCALE

The same conditions of pay as were granted the railway shopmen in the United States will apply to shopmen on the Canadian railways in virtue of a contract between the men here and the Canadian Railway Association. The 44-hour week is adopted, and tradesmen are to receive 85 cents an hour.

BOY SCOUTS ENTRAIN

Belleville Boy Scouts entrained Sunday for Toronto Exhibition.

COTTAGE GARDEN

One of the best cottage gardens in this vicinity is that of A. W. Thomas at the cemetery. Mr. Thomas had splendid success and his vegetable harvest was a notable one.

LONG FREIGHT TRAIN

A freight train with seventy-five loaded cars and caboose passed east Sunday morning on the C. P. R.

WHEAT DESTROYED

The city sparrows made a devastating raid upon the wheat fields of Col. W. N. Ponton which occupy about forty acres just west of the city. The sparrows descended upon the wheat in swarms and soon cleaned up a great patch, the loss being estimated at about 200 bushels.

PLEADED GUILTY.

On the 28th of July last Roy Charles Gatcum, residing at 26 HillcrestAve., lost the sum of $164. The money disappeared during the process of moving to another abode. For safe keeping the money had been placed in a cup and the cup placed in a dresser. Temporarily forgotten the cup and money were packed up, but afterwards remembered, and a search made, but the cup was empty. Henry James Evans, a young man assisting in the moving, was suspected and a warrant sworn out for his arrest, but he disappeared. On Saturday evening P. C. White arrested Evans, who has been working out of the city, and returned for the week-end. In police court Monday morning, before Magistrate Masson the theft was acknowledged by Evans, who was remanded until September 6 for sentence.

CLERICAL APPOINTMENTS

Prisoner Meets Terrible Death

Pitchfork Penetrated R. Stewart's Brain When he Fell from a Ladder.

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—Ronald Stewart, a prisoner at the Jail Farm, who was serving a three months' sentence for B. O. T. A., met with a shocking death Saturday morning.

The accident occurred at eight o'clock while Stewart was assisting in hoisting some barley from the wagons to the barn. Noticing that the rope was dragging against the barley straw, and fearing that the heat thus generated might cause an outbreak of fire, Stewart ascended a five foot ladder with a pitchfork in his hand in order to clear the straw from the rope. He slipped and fell, and let go of the fork. On striking the ground the fork pierced his right eye and penetrated the brain.

Stewart died 20 minutes later from hemorrhage of the brain. Dr. Langstrass, of Richmond Hill, arrived just after the unfortunate man had expired. Stewart was 29 years of age. Major Morrison would be glad of any information as to his relatives or former place of abode.

The Major said he thought the man may have assumed the name of Ronald Stewart, and ventured the opinion that he may have come from Cobalt. There was nothing in the man's belongings which would throw any light on his identity.

U-BOAT PRISONER NOW TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE

Richard Cannon, Officer of Ill-fated U.S.S. Neptune, Gives Story of Remarkable Adventure and Recovery.

Richard Cannon, Chief Petty Officer of the U. S. S. Neptune, whose dramatic capture at sea by a German U-boat and subsequent experiences aboard the submarine and in a German prison hospital, thrilled the entire country, is still another world war hero to test the remarkable reconstructive powers of Tanlac and give it his strong endorsement. Mr. Cannon's adventures were so harrowing that his constitution was completely shattered but after months of suffering he has now regained the wonderful health that enabled him to pull through his adventures alive and is today the same strapping two hundred pound fighter that embarked on the ill-fated collier. But let him tell his own story:

"When the Neptune was torpedoed off the Irish coast," said Mr. Cannon, who now lives at 707 E. LaFayette, Tampa, Fla., "I had my right leg and five ribs broken by the explosion, and when I came to my senses I found myself on board a submarine bound for Germany. I was kept in a German prison hospital for five months, and you can imagine what I must have suffered when I tell you that I fell off in weight from two hundred and twenty-five to a hundred and thirty-one pounds. When I was repatriated and finally got my discharge in February, 1919, I was little better than a living skeleton. I had no appetite and my digestive system was so upset that what little I did eat always gave me severe pains in the pit of my stomach. Before I joined the service I never knew what nerves were, but after what I went through my nerves were so shattered that I couldn't keep still a minute, and the slightest thing upset me. For six months I continued in this condition, unable to pick up strength, and so weak that any attempt at work tired me out completely. I began to think that I should never be a well and strong man again.

"But the way Tanlac overcame my troubles and built me up was nothing short of marvelous. It gave me such an appetite that I wanted to eat all the time. I had no more bother with indigestion and from then on I picked up strength and put on weight until now I tip the beam at two hundred and four pounds and am as well and strong as I ever was before I joined the service. My nerves are as steady as a die and I'm like my old self again. Tanlac is certainly a grand medicine and I think every suffering person ought to try it."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store and by the leading druggists in every town.

FIRST NEWSPAPER IN SASKATCHEWAN

Forty-two years ago this month the first newspaper was published in Saskatchewan. After a journey of 650 miles over boundless prairies and unbridged streams, the late P. G. Laurie, following the brigade of Red River carts which carried his plant, reached Battleford, the capital of the Northwest Territories, and printed the first edition of the Saskatchewan Herald on the 25th of August, 1878. It was a four paged sheet 14x10 inches and contained as well as the news of the vast territories, telegraphic communications from all parts of the world. The Herald has continued to publish weekly from that time to the present with the exception of during the Northwest Rebellion in 1885, when publication was suspended for six weeks while the late editor did garrison duty in the fort.

Donovan. The Man For Leeds Says Traveller

Could be Elected by the Largest Majority Ever Recorded, Says Traveller, After Covering Constituency.

Sir Thomas White is expected to resign his parliamentary seat in Leeds constituency on account of his appointment to the G.T.R. arbitration board. There is considerable speculation as to what will happen in Leeds after Sir Thomas retires, but a Scotch-Canadian commercial traveller who spent Sunday in Belleville says that he has just been all over Leeds constituency and made special enquiries as to the political feeling. The result of his enquiries, he says, was to establish the fact that from one end of the riding to the other the opinion was expressed that the strongest candidate possible would be Mr. A. E. Donovan, formerly of Athens, who recently represented Brockville constituency in the Legislature, but was swept aside by the anti-Hearst referendum vote which produced so many surprises. The traveller said that no stronger "come-back" than that of Mr. Donovan could be imagined. His defeat for the provincial house was a disagreeable surprise to his hosts of friends, and the result was not pleasing either to Conservatives or Liberals, being one of those flukes which occasionally happen in abnormal times.

According to the observations and conclusions of the traveller in question A. E. Donovan could win Leeds with the largest majority ever recorded, getting a generous measure of Liberal support as well as Conservative.

Harmony does not seem to prevail in Leeds Liberal ranks. Hon. Mackenzie King spoke at Brockville Saturday, the occasion being a Liberal political picnic. He was assisted by Hon. George P. Graham, who came all the way from his summer home on Staten Island to take part in the big pow-wow in which he was featured as the big chief next to Sir Mackenzie King. Strange to relate, the defeated candidate, Mr. A. C. Hardy, who ran against Sir Thomas White, seems to have been entirely ignored in the picnic advertising, as his name did not appear in the newspaper displays. It was all King and Graham. It is alleged that there has been friction between Mr. Hardy and Mr. Graham dating from the last general election, and this may account for the apparently studied ignoring of Mr. Hardy in the presence of the Big Chief.

Leeds constituency is a combination of South Leeds and Brockville ridings. South Leeds was represented by Geo. Taylor (Conservative) of Gananoque; and Brockville by John Webster (Conservative) of Brockville. Both were translated to the Senate and Sir Thos. White is the present representative, being elected first by acclamation on the resignation of George Taylor and being returned at the last general election by a majority of 3,167 over Mr. A. C. Hardy, the Liberal candidate.

Pre-war Flour Will Return This Week

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

WINNIPEG, Aug. 30—Winnipeg millers expect to resume the manufacture of pre-war grades of wheat flour Wednesday, following the relinquishment of control of grain market by the Dominion Board. No more 95 per cent. flour will be milled they say. A drop of $1 a barrel on higher grades and $1.50 on Government standard grades is expected to result immediately. It was believed probable today that all of the mills in his district would resume full operation by the latter part of the week.

Four Men In Army Uniform Wanted For Robbery

HELD UP MONTREAL MAN AT POINT OF REVOLVER—QUARTETTE ANSWERING DESCRIPTION OF MEN WANTED WERE IN BELLVILLE—WANTED ON BOTH SIDES OF THE BOUNDARY LINE—GIRL COMPANIONS ARRESTED.

Four young men in U. S. army uniform are being sought by the police of various places in Canada and the United States for alleged crimes. Last week four men answering the description of the men wanted were in Belleville and came under the observation of the police. Later when a telegram was received from Montreal asking for the arrest of four men dressed in U. S. military suits, no trace of the doughboys could be found.

The men were also at Brockville where two female companions were arrested, the males again eluding the police. The Brockville Recorder gives the additional particulars of the adventures of the quartette in uniform:

At police court Saturday morning, Annie Pike and Annie Nolan, the two Montreal girls who were arrested early Friday morning at W. R. Swain's residence, Perth street, on information from P. Belanger, superintendent of the Montreal police, were taken before Magistrate Page on a charge of vagrancy and remanded to the counties jail for one week, or until an officer arrives from Montreal to take them to that city.

The four men dressed in American army uniforms, who accompanied the girls to Brockville on Tuesday last, and who escaped arrest by the Brockville police by departing from the town during Thursday night, have so far avoided arrest. They are wanted in Montreal for the theft of $70 from George Christia, 673 Wellington street a storekeeper, whom they held up at the point of a revolver on Tuesday last after entering his store and calling for soft drinks. They met the girls in a Montreal restaurant and drove in an automobile to Vaudreuil where they boarded a train and came to Brockville.

The four men and two girls were seen frequently about town from Tuesday until Friday night when a message came to Chief Burke from Montreal requesting assistance in locating the party. Two men and the girls were located at Mr. Swain's residence while the two other men were rooming at Mrs. Welch's residence, 118 Perth street. The Montreal police department were advised that the party was sojourning here but when the Brockville police went to the residences to put them under arrest they found that the men had "beat it," after the two at Mrs. Welch's residence had entered a bedroom and stolen two suits of clothes, the property of a Mr. Warren, a roomer.

The girls stated at police headquarters that they had last seen the men on Kingston bridge about 11 o'clock Thursday evening. It has been learned that on Friday they arrived at Oak Point in a Chevrolet automobile which they abandoned after securing a rowboat from S. Tilden, a resident of the summer resort, who is now minus his pleasure craft. The men were next heard of on Saturday at Rockport, where they were seen rowing westward up the St. Lawrence.

"Bandits," Says Ogdensburg

Concerning the escape of the four men the Ogdensburg News yesterday stated:

The local police were notified last night through the immigration department to keep watch for four armed and uniformed bandits who were reported to be making their way toward Ogdensburg. The four bandits are former Canadian soldiers. They robbed a store in Montreal and with two girls fled to Brockville. The police at Brockville were notified and the bandits escaped to Alexandria Bay. They were later reported near Theresa and then reported as headed for Alexandria Bay. They were later reported near Theresa and then reported as headed toward Ogdensburg. It is believed that they may attempt to again cross back into Canada farther down the river and try and lose their identity in Montreal or some other Canadian city. All government agencies at this port are on the watch.

The four men carry heavy Colt revolvers and are said to be desperate. Reports from Montreal stated that they declared to friends that they would die rather than be taken.

The Daily News called Constable Burke, of Brockville, on the telephone at 11 o'clock last night and he stated that a report earlier in the day stated that soldiers had been seen near Rockport. He said that if the men were sighted at Ogdensburg to notify his department immediately.

Miss Lillian Huot, Manchester, N.H., came to Brockville on Saturday afternoon to locate her brother, Pte. Huot, who is a deserter from Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont. He was one of the much wanted party and had wired his sister from here for funds. She immediately came to town and learned that he had departed with his companions.

Stole Clothing and Money

Early this morning two unknown men, one described as being quite tall and the other as short, entered a tent situated near the C.P.R. spur line west of the Kingston bridge, and occupied by laborers engaged in road work and stole a suit of blue serge clothing, $10 in cash and a cheque for $38.70.

Pope Receives Polish Mission

Tells Them He Firmly Believes That Virgin Mary Saved Their Country.

ROME, Aug. 31.—The Pope's interest in Poland's fortune is undiminished with the repulse of the Bolsheviki. When Warsaw was threatened Pope Benedict XV. organized the most solemn intercessory services in Rome for Warsaw's safety. Now that Warsaw is safe he has received the Polish colony in Rome in special audience and has congratulated them and their country on the splendid resistance to the Bolshevik invasion. The Pope said:

"We firmly believe the blessed Virgin, who is Poland's special patroness, saved the country in its hour of supreme peril. We never doubted she would save Warsaw, not even in the darkest moments when it was evident that only a miracle could save it. That miracle was performed and the prayers and solemn intercessions of so many faithful Catholics undoubtedly caused it."

The Pope's reference to the Virgin being Poland's special patroness is supposed by the Poles to lay peculiar stress on the miraculous picture of the Virgin which is at the monastery in Czenstochowa in Piotrkowski province. It is 1,400 years old, and is painted on wood, inset with many precious stones and came from Turkey. Its shrine is the Lourdes of Eastern Europe.

Halifax-Ottawa Flight Finished

OTTAWA, August 31.—The Halifax-Ottawa hydroplane flight, probably the longest official flight yet tried in Canada, ended successfully Saturday evening about seven o'clock, when Captain H. Allen Wilson, of Montreal, the pilot, made a graceful landing on the Ottawa River at Rockliffe.

The plane left Halifax on Thursday afternoon for Fredericton, N.B., arriving there that evening. Friday morning the plane left for Riviere du Loup, making a landing there, and then proceeding to Quebec City, where it arrived Friday evening.

There were some minor damages to repair at Quebec, and the start for Ottawa was not made till well on in afternoon.

Captain Wilson stated that the trip was a safe and pleasant one. The weather generally was favorable. He will remain in Ottawa for a short time.

While the planned flight was only from Halifax to Ottawa, it is now stated that in a short time the trip may be continued further west, just how far it is not stated. However, some officials believe that the trip may ultimately be extended through to Victoria, B.C. It is stated that the matter is now before the air board, and that a decision to cross the country may be reached in a day or two.

It is possible that a hydroplane might be used as far as Winnipeg. It is fairly certain that west of Winnipeg the aviator would have to transfer to an ordinary airplane, as the western prairies in some sections have not sufficient water to ensure a safe landing.

Government Quits Alcohol Business

Manufacture of Denatured Article Made Over to Licensed Distilleries.

OTTAWA, Aug. 31.—Regulations to govern the manufacture of denatured alcohol for industrial purposes under the plan adopted by Parliament at its last session have been sent to all licensed distilleries in Canada. With the copies of regulations framed have also been forwarded approved specifications covering the quality of wood alcohol which must be used as a denaturant.

Heretofore methylated spirits, or "denatured alcohol," as it will be known in the future, has been manufactured at Ottawa by the Department of Inland Revenue. In view of the great and growing demand for the spirit for industrial purposes, however, Parliament last session enacted legislation providing for the manufacture of denatured alcohol by licensed distilleries. The increase in the demand is indicated by the fact that the output of the Government denaturing plant in 1918 was 319,800 gallons and 643,700 gallons in 1919. The balance of the supply of ethyl alcohol held by the Inland Revenue Department is to be denatured and will be disposed of through George Taylor, deputy head of the department, shortly at cost price to a licensed distiller on condition that he sells at current prices.

Heretofore the denatured spirit has been sold by the Government at an advance of 15 per cent. over the cost of producing it. Hereafter the price will be determined by market conditions. There is believed to be opportunity for a reduction in prices in the saving in freight charges heretofore paid for the shipment of the basic spirit from the distilleries to Ottawa.

A considerable increase in production is also expected. Later on, a board consisting of representatives of the Industrial and Scientific Research Council and of the Inland Revenue Department will be named to take control of manufacture. From time to time, too, formulae for new and cheaper grades of spirits will be furnished to the distilleries. There are nine licensed distilling firms in the Dominion, as follows:

The Canadian Industrial Alcohol Co., Ltd., Belleville, Ont.; the B. C. Distillery Co., Ltd., New West Minster, B.C.; Hiram Walker & Sons, Ltd., Walkerville, Ont.; Jos. E. Seagram, Waterloo, Ont.; Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., Toronto; J. P. Wiser & Sons, Ltd., Prescott, Ont.; Montreal Products Co., Ltd., Montreal; St. Hyacinthe Distillery Co., Ltd., St. Hyacinthe, Que. and Melchers Gin and Spirits Distillery Co., Ltd., Berthierville, Que.

These firms will be allowed to sell to certain persons and firms, holding permits, methylated spirits, Grade No. 1, consisting of 80 per cent. ethyl alcohol and 20 per cent. methyl alcohol, or Grade No. 1 "benzine," consisting of 90 per cent. ethyl alcohol, 9 per cent. methyl alcohol, and 1 per cent. commercial benzine. They may sell to hospitals and universities holding permits, Grade No. 1 "special," consisting of 90 per cent. ethyl alcohol and 10 per cent. methyl alcohol.

They may sell to anyone, without restriction, Grade No. 2, consisting of 70 per cent. ethyl and 30 per cent. methyl alcohol. They are required to arrange that the portion of their premises used for the manufacture of denatured alcohol and the storage of raw material can be secured under Crown lock to the satisfaction of the inspecting officer.

Death Follows Auto Accident

PETERBORO, Aug. 31—W. Nicholls died on Saturday morning as a result of the auto accident that took place Friday morning on the Keene Road. The deceased was returning to Peterboro from Hastings when his car turned turtle. He sustained a concussion of the brain and lingered until Saturday morning.

Rupert Glidde, principal of the Peterboro Conservatory of Music who was traveling with Nicholls, also received a fractured skull but may recover. Mr. Nicholls was a traveller and leaves a wife and one child.

Prices For Canadian Victory Bonds Officially Reduced

ALL THE ISSUES BROUGHT INTO LINE WITH WORLD CONDITIONS — $135,000,000 OF BONDS REDISTRIBUTED AMONG INVESTORS SINCE THE CLOSE OF THE LAST LOAN.

OTTAWA, Aug. 31.—It is officially announced that the prices for Canada's Victory Loan Bonds have been reduced to the following levels:

	Per cent.
1922—98 and interest, yielding	6.37
1923—98 and interest, yielding	6.15
1927—97 and interest, yielding	6.00
1933—96½ and interest, yielding	5.88
1937—98 and interest, yielding	5.68
1924—97 and interest, yielding	6.27
1934—93 and interest, yielding	6.24

The above prices bring all the Canadian Government issues well into line with world conditions, even considering the abnormal financial demands of the crop-movement period. It is felt that at the new prices the demand will quickly absorb any floating supply of bonds. Over one hundred and thirty-five millions of Canada's Victory Bonds have been redistributed among investors since the close of the last loan, thus affording an outlet for bonds which subscribers have required to sell from time to time.

Negro Prisoner Seized By Mob

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 31.—Local city and county officials were searching early Monday to ascertain the whereabouts or fate of Claude Chandler, a negro, 19 years old, who on Sunday night was taken from the county jail here by two men who supposedly were joined by others awaiting for them in motor cars outside.

No trace of Chandler or his captors could be found, and the authorities said they were not prepared to express an opinion as to whether the negro had been lynched. Chandler was arrested Saturday in a raid upon an alleged moonshine still near Arcadia, Okla., in which Stanton Weiss, a Federal prohibition enforcement officer, deputy sheriff Homer Andrean, and Charles Chandler, father of Claude Chandler, were killed.

The two men who took the prisoner away obtained admission to the jail, officials said, on the pretext that they were an officer and his prisoner. Once inside, they produced revolvers, those in charge of the jail said, and forcibly took possession of the negro.

Last Minute Telegraph Briefs

Wrangel-Petlura Alliance

Paris Aug. 31—General Wrangel has proposed the formation of an alliance with General Petlura, Ukranian leader according to the leading Ukranian newspaper. General Wrangel expressed his readiness to recognize the independence of Ukrania, the newspaper says.

McSweeney Still Lives

London, Aug. 31.—McSweeney, Lord Mayor of Cork, who has been on a hunger strike since August 12, was still alive this morning, but his sister Mary who visited him said he was growing weaker and that the end may come at any moment. McSweeney spent a restful night and his sister remained near Brixton prison thinking she might be called for. An official who saw the Mayor early today decided his condition as being like that of a man on a precipice adding that the slightest breeze might blow him over at any time.

G.T.R. Arbitration

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—It is probable that the date of the opening of the arbitration proceedings to fix the price the Government will pay for the Grand Trunk Railway will be decided upon here this week. Sir Walter Cassels, Chief Justice of the Exchequer Court, chairman, Sir Thomas White and ex-President Taft of the United States will all be in the capital to-morrow and it is expected that the commissioners will decide when it is possible to open a formal enquiry for the taking of evidence.

Miners May Not Strike

Wilkesbarre, Penn., Aug. 31.—Although expressing dissatisfaction with the award of the Anthracite Coal Commission made public yesterday by President Wilson, strike talk was not so general today among loyal members of the United Mine Workers of America. The award given the men wage increases of seventeen and twenty per cent. They ask for at least twenty-seven per cent. President Wilson's forceful language in his telegram to the group of miners that if their communication to him did not approve, the award was a threat to strike. That the challenge would be accepted, is expected to cause dissatisfied workers to act slowly according to leaders of miners' union.

Transfer Peace Parley.

WARSAW, Aug. 31.—Letvia has agreed to permit Poland and Soviet Russia to transfer the Minsk peace conference to Riga. This was done on the request of the Poles. The exact date of the new conference will probably be announced as soon as Foreign Minister R. Sapieha returns from Brest-Litovsk.

Two Little Girls Drown At Meaford

Bathing in Georgian Bay and Waded Beyond Depth

MEAFORD, Aug. 30.—A double drowning fatality occurred here this afternoon when two bright little girls, aged about twelve, lost their lives while bathing in the Georgian Bay. One, Ruth, the daughter of Harry Rumley, of Buffalo, N.Y., visiting here with her grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Rumley; the other, Violet, the daughter of Mr. Freeman House, of this town. The girls waded out beyond their depth and were unable to make their cries for help heard. The bodies were recovered about three quarters of an hour after the accident.

Lumber Dealer Killed By Train

LINDSAY Aug. 31—Just west of the C.P.R. station here, last night, David Kirkpatrick, a lumber dealer, was struck by a freight train and killed. It appears that the deceased was walking on the track and apparently failed to hear the approaching train. He sustained a gash on the head and a hard blow beneath the heart.

Little Boy Dies Result of Scalds

PORT HOPE, Aug. 31.—A distressing accident took place at Bethesda, about five miles northeast of here, Saturday afternoon, when the two sons of Stanley Macklin were horribly burned, Kenneth, the elder boy, succumbing to injuries a few hours later.

A large kettle of water had been heated on the coal oil stove in the kitchen, and the fire had been turned out Kenneth, aged five and Gordon, aged four years were playing about when they ran against the stove and overturned it.

Kenneth was pinned beneath the stove and was unable to free himself, while the contents of the large kettle poured over his body. Mr. and Mrs. Macklin who were in an adjoining room rushed to his assistance, but the upper portion of his body was literally cooked and he died a few hours later. Gordon was badly burned about the face and head, but will recover.

20 Killed, 200 Injured In Belfast Rioting

MONDAY'S DEATH ROLL WAS NINE—FOUNDRY EMPLOYEES STONED TUESDAY—BLAZING INFERNO IN SHANKILL DISTRICT OF BELFAST MONDAY NIGHT—SCORE OF INCENDIARY FIRES.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

BELFAST, Aug. 31.Nine persons are dead as the result of yesterday's rioting in this city, another man being killed last night, and two of those wounded in yesterday's disorders dying. Revised reports of casualties show that since the rioting began last Wednesday twenty have been killed and two hundred injured. Today the only actual outbreak reported was the stoning of the employees of Mackie's foundry in the Kashmir Road district; but groups of men collected at many corners give unmistakable indications that trouble might come.

BELFAST, Aug. 30.—The Shankhill district of Belfast late tonight was a blazing inferno. Nearly a score of fires had been started, and virtually all the grocery stores and public houses owned by Catholics in the district were being destroyed.

The police fired on the crowd during the disturbances, inflicting severe casualties.

NEGOTIATIONS PROCEED WITH GOVERNMENT,

A proclamation issued at Unionist headquarters today says:

"Sir Edward Carson (the Ulster leader) has called on all loyal citizens to assist the authorities in quelling disturbances and restoring peace.

"Negotiations have been proceeding with the Government, and an important statement is expected to be delivered to the Ulster Unionist Council on Friday next.

"Meanwhile all loyalists are earnestly urged to exercise the utmost restraint and forbearance, however great the provocation they may be subjected to, and to comply with the orders issued by the military authorities."

Rebellion In Mesopotamia Is Spreading

Anarchistic Movement Reported by War Office to Be Extending.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Reports from Mesopotamia indicate a further spread to the Muntefik area, in the south of the anarchistic rebellion against the British administration which has been prevalent recently, the war office announced officially today.

The situation on the Shatt-El-Hai is reported critical, political officers at Shatra-El-Muntefik, 35 miles north of Naseriye (on the south bank of the Euphrates, 112 miles northwest of Busrah) being withdrawn by airplanes to Naseriye, the statement said.

Encounter Strong Band.

The war office stated that there had been considerable hostile movement in the vicinity of Hillah, west of the Euphrates, and about seventy miles south of Bagdad. A British brigade column encountered a strong band along both sides of the railway northwest of Hillah and drove it toward the river.

Tuz Kurtmai Besieged.

Northeast of Bagdad, the statement added, opposition to the British is still strong. A small body of Arabs hold Bakuba, about 20 miles northeast of Bagdad, and Tur Kurtmai ninety miles north of Bagdad, is reported to have been besieged. Kifri, twenty miles southeast of Tuz Kurtmai, has been occupied by tribesmen and an assistant political officer has been captured. The war office announcement further reported that Sheraban, forty miles south of Khanikin, where a British garrison withstood repeated attacks, has been relieved by a column from Khanikin, which is eighty miles northeast of Bagdad.

Bolshevists Reinforced.

The statement confirms reports that Bolsheviki in the northwestern part of Persia have received reinforcements from Baku, on the Caspian Sea, and the south coast of the Aspheron Peninsula, and have assumed the offensive, forcing the Persian Cossacks to abandon Resht, which is near the sea coast. The Cossacks were reported to have lost heavily.

C.P.R. WAGE INCREASES GO INTO EFFECT AT ONCE

Montreal, Aug. 31.—Negotiations have been in progress for some time between the Canadian Pacific Railway and its employees in respect to the adoption of the American wage award, and it was stated by an official of the company that the negotiations have now resulted in the clerks and freight handlers in certain freight offices and freight sheds immediately being granted these increased wages. He stated that it had been agreed with these men that the basis of the award should be accepted and that the men would get back pay, dating in some cases as far back as May last.

Ferguson Is Sure As To The Result Of Timber Probe

Says No Arrangement Made to His Knowledge to Suppress Evidence.

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—"I hope to get a hearing at an early date, when I will be able to clear up a lot of misunderstandings and false impressions that have been created about the administration of the Department of Lands and Forests, remarked Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, in reference to the timber probe just before leaving for Kemptville. "There is absolutely nothing to conceal, and I will be very glad to give the commission every assistance in my power. The broader they make the inquiry, the better it will please me."

"What have you got to say about the suggestion that some arrangement was made to suppress evidence," the former Minister of Lands and Forests was asked.

"So far as my knowledge goes," he replied, "the story is absolutely untrue, and is a mere figment of somebody's imagination. I have never had any communication with commission, counsel, government, or anybody else about the character of the evidence that should be brought out."

Asked about the allegation recently made that the International Nickel Company had dictated to Cabinet Minister, Hon. Mr. Ferguson answered—"I never had a share of International Nickel stock, nor had any business connection with the company or any of its subsidiaries. As a matter of fact I am not persona grata with the International Nickel people, and never have been."

The ex-Minister, referring to the Crown Lands investigation, stated he came here a week ago expecting to have an opportunity of making a statement, but Mr. Harding advised him they would not be able to hear him at the present time. Pending his evidence, Mr. Ferguson was averse to going into details by way of interview in regard to matters which have come before the commission.

According to his friends, Mr. Ferguson's statement before the commission will be lengthy, and may take some days.

Reds Claim Success.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Anti-Bolshevik forces landed in the province of Kuban, east of the Sea of Azov, by Gen. Wrangel, have been completely annihilated, according to a statement issued here last night by M. Kameneff, head of the Bolshevik trade delegation. The statement was based on a wireless received from Moscow. An official Soviet statement received here says that Russian forces north of Brest-Litovsk have occupied a number of villages from ten to twenty miles southeast of Bialystok.

After having conducted the Clarendon Hotel, Brighton, in a highly satisfactory manner for more than two years, Herbert Greenfield has disposed of the plant and good will to George Goheen, until recently manager for Amesell & Sayer. Mr. Goheen has taken charge.

WATER IN MILK

Before Justice of the Peace Hunter, at Kingston, a resident of Wolfe Island was fined $50 and costs for supplying deteriorated milk to the cheese factory. The tests showed that there were 14 pounds of water to 100 pounds of milk.

BEQUESTS TO HOSPITALS

Mr. A. E. Wood, who was proprietor of the British Hotel, Cobourg, for a number of years, and who died May 20 this year, made bequests of $1,000 each to the Hospital for Sick Children Toronto, Cobourg Hospital and Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, also $500 to Cobourg Public Library.

BRAKEMAN INJURED

Brakeman Kellett, of the C.P.R., an old Bobcaygeon boy, met with a peculiar and somewhat painful accident at Burketon. While lighting the rear vestibule light, the heavy globe fell, the brakeman sustaining a bad gash on the hand, from which the blood flowed profusely.

BROKE BOTH LEGS

The death occurred at the Cobourg hospital of Miss Mary Brown, an old resident of Cavan township, aged 75 years. Deceased was an inmate of the home for the aged, and some time ago broke her leg. After the fracture was set she broke her other leg, and the double shock proved too much for her system. Interment took place in Millbrook.

FINED $400

"He could have said $200 and costs as easily as $400 and costs," said Mrs. Eleanor Smith after the Oshawa magistrate had given her option of a fine of $400 and costs or six months at hard labor in the county jail. She was charged with having and keeping liquor for sale and pleaded guilty. She is a widow and it was her first offence and although she tried to get the Major to reduce his fine he was adamant.

RAIDING DENTAL OFFICES

Oshawa seems to have been included in the itinerary of one or more clever thieves who have been moving around Ontario and cleaning out dental offices of all the gold in them and three of the offices of Oshawa dentists were entered and all the available gold taken. An attempt was made to break in the door to a fourth place. A dental office was robbed in Peterboro a few days ago, that of Dr. Morrison, and all the loose gold in the place taken, while two offices in Kingston were burglarized and several hundred dollars' worth of gold removed.

SHIPPING ACID

The sulphuric acid plant of the Chemical Products, Limited, at Trenton, has commenced operation, and already two carloads of acid have been shipped. The acid plant was part of the British Chemical Co.'s holdings sold to Briggs & Turivas, Limited, and the entire property, including the acid plant was acquired by the Chemical Products, Limited, last year. The company will next undertake the production of Aspirin, for which there is a great and growing demand. This is indicated in "Canadian Export Pioneer" in its issue of July 20th, which says: "Chemical Products, Limited, who have taken over the large munitions plant at Trenton, Ontario, are making a specialty of the production of "Aspirin" (of which at one time Germany had a monopoly), and will supply their product to the world's markets. They contemplate an annual production amounting to 1,080,000 lbs., which will be exported chiefly to England, Argentina, Australia, Russia, and China. Two English firms have offered to take 500 tons annually in bulk."

OIL FROM OUR SHALE

ANOTHER SOURCE OF WEALTH IN CANADA.

There Are Valuable Deposits In Our Country If They Could Be Operated Successfully—Ontario Shale Was Worked Some Years Ago, But the Discovery of Oil Gushers Caused Owners to Close Down.

FROM time to time alarmist figures are quoted to show the rapid decline in petroleum production. Even more significant of the trend of affairs is the rising price of crude oil, with a corresponding boost in the price the motorist pays for gasoline.

Last year, according to Victor C. Alderson, dean of the Colorado School of Mines, the United States produced 366,000,000 barrels of crude petroleum and consumed 436,000,000. The shortage was made up, partly by importation from Mexico, and partly by drawing on reserve stocks. And the immense demand for petroleum products brought the price of American crude oil to the highest point in the history of the industry.

Prof. Alderson sees as a remedy for the situation the development of the immense oil shale deposits of Colorado. In this connection Canada possesses oil shale deposits the exact extent of which has never been determined; but which, if developed, would relieve this country of dependence on outside sources for its crude oil supply.

At present, Canadian production of crude oil is merely nominal — approximately 300,000 barrels last year. Millions of barrels are imported from the United States, Mexico and Peru. Most of the Canadian crude oil comes from southwestern Ontario, though there is a small production in the Okotoks field southwest of Alberta, and a still smaller production in New Brunswick, near Moncton. Determined efforts are being made to develop new production in the Canadian West; but so far without commercial success.

The possibilities of producing crude oil from Canadian oil have frequently been discussed, and at present interests closely associated with the Anglo-Persian Oil Company are preparing to take hold of the extensive deposits in Alberta county, New Brunswick, with a view to practical development.

The New Brunswick deposits—commonly known as the Albert shales—are the best known of the Canadian shale deposits, and probably the richest. Samples sent to the Scottish shale works tested 40 imperial gallons of crude oil to the ton, with a by-product of 50 pounds or better of sulphate of ammonia. This is a better yield than secured from the Scottish shales, and the latter have been profitably worked for more than sixty years. Yet particularly rich samples of the Albert shale have tested even better, as high as 56 gallons of crude oil and 110 pounds sulphate of ammonia to the ton.

Between sixty and seventy years ago these shales were extensively worked. Large quantities of the shale were shipped to American retorting plants in Maine, Massachusetts, New York and other Eastern States, for distillation into crude oil; and shipments were also made to gas plants. In New Brunswick was at least one successful retorting plant, the "Baltimore Oil Works" at Rosedale, about ten miles from Hillsboro.

The industry, however, was just nicely established when the discovery of liquid oil by drilling in Pennsylvania wiped the shale oil industry out of existence. The Scottish plants improved their processes, affected characteristic economies, and are still operating; but the industry in America could not stand up against the competition of crude oil from the wells which at times sold as low as 10 cents a barrel. The New Brunswick shale workings have remained inactive for more than half a century.

Besides the New Brunswick deposits, there are oil shales in Nova Scotia, notably in Pictou county. The present town of Stellarton takes its name from the stellarite deposits found there in 1859. Samples of this stellarite yielded on distillation as high as 200 imperial gallons of crude oil to the ton, probably the richest oil shale in the world. The deposits were worked for a couple of years in the early 60's of the last century, till the competition of drilled wells put the retorting plants out of business.

There are shale outcrops in eastern Quebec, notably in Gaspe Peninsula; and Newfoundland has deposits sufficient, it has been optimistically estimated, to supply the petroleum needs of the world for 200 years. In Ontario there is a shale outcrop at Kettle Point on Lake Huron, not far from Forest. Manitoulin Island has some shale outcrops; and there are oil shale deposits in the James Bay area, and generally around Georgian Bay.

There are distillation possibilities, also, in the famous tar sands of the Athabaska; though no process of distillation has been yet evolved to utilize them in a commercial way.

The main reason why capital has been slow to develop these resources has been the competition of crude petroleum from drilled wells. When oil was $1 a barrel or less, retorting oil from shale was not a commercial proposition, since at least $250,000 investment was involved for a relatively small plant and all the expense of mining and operating had to be considered. Now, however, with crude oil commanding $3 a barrel and upward, the crude oil proposition is brought within the limits of commercial possibility. Indeed, Prof. Alderson estimates that crude oil from shale can be sold at $1.85 a barrel.—Victor Lauriston.

CANADIAN PACIFIC ROCKIES SHOWN AT FAIR

The exhibition of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at the Toronto Exhibition this year is unique and very representative of the glories and beauties of the Canadian Pacific Rockies. It is housed in the popular Railway Building, and immediately catches the interest of the visitor. It is the C.P.R. Sun Dance Lodge and quite typical of the Rockies and the Indians of the West. The premier attraction on entering the building is the huge Sun Burst which throws its rays around the gigantic tepee in which are garnered the side scenes portraying in miniature form some of the gorgeous settings which none but the Canadian Rockies can produce. The roof of the Indian tepee is hand painted with symbolic writings and signs typical of the Rocky and Plain Indians. The side embellishments are finished in white birch, the bark of which was always a favorite with the Indian not only for the construction of his canoe, but for the building of a quick camp fire. On each side of the entrance office accommodation has been worked into the setting where information of every description can be obtained and telegraph service is also installed. This has the tepee finish and real Indian tepee poles transported from the West for the purpose have been used. The lighting effect of these elaborate interiors are electric with miniature Indian tents as shades, producing an interesting effect.

The scene from Sulphur Mountain overlooking Banff Springs Hotel in the foreground, and the beautiful Rundle and Tunnel Mountains, and the stretch of the Bow River in the background is undoubtedly realistic. A fine model of the C.P.R.'s famous hostelry built specially for the occasion by Messrs. H. Morgan, Ltd., Montreal, is electrically illuminated and gives the visitor the impression that he is paying a visit to Banff instead of sweltering under the atmosphere of an exhibition. The Banff Hot Springs, famous for their health-giving qualities, especially for curing rheumatism, were known to the Red men long years ago and accidentally discovered by some engineers when surveying for the C. P. R. The huge swimming tank hidden from the view, but situated directly in front of the hotel has a depth of water of from three to eight feet and is one of the great summer attractions. The beauties of Banff are to be found on all sides. There are mountains to the right, mountains to the left, mountains in front and also behind, and the Bow river seen in the back of the picture reminds one of opals with its pale green color, and its ever-changing fires. The view is entrancing, and one need never feel dull or suffer ennui, in this delightful spot. The scene cannot be eclipsed for grandeur, although Lake Louise, depicted on the opposite side of the tent, certainly gives it a close running, and many people prefer this exquisite location up amidst the innumerable peaks of the Canadian Rockies. This picture is a representation which meets the eye of the tourist looking for the grandeurs of Lake Louise from almost any spot behind the Chateau, with a glimpse of the wonderful gem of a lake and a gigantic glacier and mountain in the rear. On arrival here feelings of wonder, awe and admiration grip the mind, compelling a reverential silence. The Victoria Glacier, which forms the background, feeds the lake, which is shown by real water, while the towering peaks of Mount Lefroy and Mount Aberdeen are observed in the distance. The model of the Chateau is another masterpiece from Morgan's. The frieze of Indian decorations and the magnificent transparencies lend a perfect finishing touch to the whole Sun Dance Lodge effect. The remaining sides of the Lodge are of typical white birch interspersed with pannelling of beautiful real Indian mats made from cedar bark, and there are many reproductions in miniature of the famous totem poles from Alert Bay. There is also on exhibition a very valuable collection of Indian relics from the West Coast, all of which are original, and many over a hundred years old. They include eating and cooking utensils made of wood and whalebone, bows and arrows, coffins and tom-toms cedar chests and model Indian houses. The illumination effect is perfect, comprising some five hundred lights. The scenic paintings were executed by Mr. Hal Ross Perrigard, assisted by Mr. A. Robinson, and the decorations by Mr. Perrigard assisted by Mr. James Crockart, all of Montreal. Taking the exhibition as a whole, fifteen or twenty minutes could be spent to advantage in the Railway Building, as it is not only an historical representation, but educational from every viewpoint.

GASOLINE PRICE JUMPS TO $1.11 IN ENGLAND

London, Aug. 31.—The London Daily Mail says the price of petrol has been raised 22 cents a gallon to $1.11 cents. This is owing to the demand in the United States, from which the chief supply in Britain comes.

"We are in the hands of the United States," says Sherman Smith, oil expert, "until we develop our own resources. I wouldn't be surprised to see the price $1.25 by 1921."

When Redstone Woman Voted For Booze

Northwest Cow Country Background For "Water, Water Everywhere" In Which Pathos and Humor Mingle

Hundreds of long-horned range cattle running, dodging, milling about in dense clouds of dust of their own raising, are features of the Goldwyn picture, "Water, Water, Everywhere," featuring Will Rogers which was presented before a large audience at Griffin's last night. Rogers, himself, as Bill Fortune, is the first of the range riders, those daring fellows of days now nearly past, whose lives were centred on the Western plains.

The picture is a change from the old type of wild west drama. It is painted without the exaggeration which characterizes many pictures of this kind; nevertheless, it is not lacking in the virile quality which permeated the life of the cattle country. The men are there bold hardy riders, the cattle are there, the limitless expanse of wild rocky plain is there as a background for gripping action, in which humor and pathos mingle.

Irene Rich, a talented and beautiful actress has the principal feminine part. She is cast as a rugged Westerner's daughter. Marguerite Livingstone plays as her weaker sister. Wade Boteler appears as the small town physician who has become a victim of drink and is shaken to the realization of his folly only by a great accident. Rowland Lee is the hypocritical agitator who urges prohibition only to fatten his own wallet and surreptitiously drinks his whiskey. Lillian Langdon and Lydea Yeamens Titus both have character parts that afford them great opportunity for clever work.

A very interesting Burton Holmes Travelogue, "Belgium Smiles Again," an amusing 2-reel Sunshine comedy, "Through the Keyhole" and a thrilling episode of the "Daredevil Jack" serial featuring Jack Dempsey completes a varied bill of screen entertainment.

Parson Pelted By Angry Bather

TRENTON, N.J., Aug. 31.—Rev. Frederick Kopfman, pastor of the Methodist Church at Titusville, N.J., who has been endeavoring to "drive the devil from the hearts of the immodest bathers at Washington Crossing," was greeted Sunday with a shower of over-ripe tomatoes when he appeared at the resort to lecture them on the immodesty of their attire.

The pastor's automobile was wrecked, and he was punched and mauled, and an attempt was made to duck him in the Delaware River. He finally escaped when a constable held the mob back with a drawn revolver.

Parson is Undismayed.

Later the parson was found nursing a bruise on his face. His clothing was covered with tomato seeds and juice, and his face streamed with perspiration. He was still full of fight, however, and determined, he said, to appear at the hearing before the township board next Tuesday to present his evidence on immorality among the summer colonists.

WIRELESS COMPANY TO BUILD BIG STATION

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Preparatory to building a huge experimental station for wireless communication between Canada and England, the Marconi Wireless Company of Canada, Limited, have purchased property in Markham Township, York County, about nine miles from Toronto. The property is twenty-three acres of the 300-acre tract of garden farm land recently acquired by the Toronto firm, Anglin and Robinson, and was purchased for $5,737.50. It is located about three-quarters of a mile from the post-office and station at Milliken.

Although local officials of the Marconi Wireless Company refused to elucidate on details, it is understood that this is the first of a chain of wireless stations with which it is hoped to dot Canada and finally encircle the British Empire. Merchants in Toronto, if the experiment succeeds, will be able to communicate directly with the Old Land, and in the word of an informant, "We can talk to King George himself."

Local officials could not give information as to when the erection of the station will begin.

The Thirteenth Commandment

By RUPERT HUGHES

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

The waiter shook his head. "Oh, nossair!"

Clay studied it again. He called for the bill of fare, and studied that. Daphne felt so ashamed that she wanted to leap into the river. Abroad, it is believed that the man who does not audit his restaurant bill is either an American tourist or some other kind of fool. But in Daphne's set it was considered the act of a miser. Clay worked over his check as if it were a trial balance.

"Ah, I thought so," he growled. "The bill of fare says that this Montreal melon is seventy-five cents a portion. You've charged me three dollars for two portions."

A look of pitying contempt twisted the waiter's smile.

"The melon you ordered, sair, was all out. I served you a French melon instead."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I deed not theenk it mettered to the gentlaman."

Clay sniffed. He was not to be quieted by such a sop. He whipped out his pocketbook and laid down every bill in it. He stretched his legs and ransacked his trousers pockets and dropped on the plate every coin he had. He withdrew a dime and waved the heap at the waiter.

It was evident, from the way the waiter snatched the plate from the table, that Clay had not tipped him. In fact, Clay said, "This will be a lesson to you."

They slumped down the steps. The starter said, "Cab, sir?" and made to whistle one up. Clay shook his head and walked on toward the monument of Grant. Daphne followed. They went as humbly as a couple of paupers evicted for the rent.

Daphne was afraid to speak. She saw that Clay was sick with wrath, and she did not know him well enough to be sure how he would take her interference in his thoughts. She trudged along in utter shame.

The worst of her shame was that she was so ashamed of it. Why should she care whether a waiter smiled or frowned? But she did care, infinitely.

Daphne could not pump up any enthusiasm for the scenery. Her lover took no advantage of the serial of arbors and the embracing bowers. He never kissed her, not once.

Daphne ceased to be sorry for Clay and felt sorry for her neglected self. Then she grew angry at herself. Then at him.

At length she said, with ominous sweetness, "Are you going to walk all the way, dear?"

"You said you wanted to, didn't you?" he mumbled, thickly.

"That's so."

She trudged some distance farther—a few blocks it was; it seemed miles. Then she said, "How far is it home—altogether?"

"About three miles and a half."

"Is that all? The heroine of an English novel I've been reading used to dash off five or six miles before breakfast."

Patriotism and pride helped her for a quarter of a mile more. Then she resigned:

Patriotism and Pride Helped Her for a Quarter of a Mile.

"I guess I'm not an English heroine. I don't believe she ever really did it. I'll resign! I'll have to ask you to call me a cab."

"Pretty hard to find an empty one along here at this hour," he said, and urged her on.

"Let's go over that way to the inhabited part of town," she said, "and take a street car or the subway."

And then he stopped and said, with guilty brusquerie, "Have you got your pocketbook with you?"

"No, I left it at home tonight. Why?"

"Daphne, I haven't got a cent!"

"Why, Clay! you poor thing!"

"That's why I was so rough with the waiter. If I'd had the money, do you think I'd have made a row before you about a few little dollars? Never! You see, I didn't expect to go out to Claremont after the theater. The taxi cost more than I expected, and then I gave the head waiter five dollars instead of one. I ordered with care so that it would come out right. But that business about the melon finished me. I just made it. I never was so ashamed in my life. And I had to drag you into it, and now I'm murdering your poor little feet."

"That's the funniest joke I ever heard. Why didn't you tell me before?"

"It's no joke."

"Why, of course it is! You have only to go to your bank tomorrow and draw some more."

He did not answer this. He said nothing at all. She had a terrified feeling that his silence was full of meaning, that his bank account would not respond to his call. She could not ask him to explain the situation. She was afraid that he might.

She marched on doggedly, growing more and more gloomy and decrepit. Her little slippers with their stilted heels pinched and wavered, and every step was a pang.

"Let's go over there and get on a street car, and dare them to put us off," she suggested.

"It's a pay-as-you-enter car," he groaned.

The world was a different world now. The drive that had been so tremendously lovely as she sped through it in a taxicab was a pathway in Mojave. She limped through the hideous, hateful, unpardonable length, and felt that it was a symbol of the life ahead of her. She had counted on escaping from the money limits of her home. She was merely transferring herself from one jail to another.

JACK KELLY WON THE SINGLE SCULLS

Brussels, Aug. 31.—Jack Kelly, Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia, single sculls champion of the United States, defeated J. Beresford, Jr., the British sculler, in the final of the Olympic single sculling race Saturday. Kelly's time was 7.35 and Beresford's 7.36.

Notwithstanding his hard singles event, Kelly doubled with Costello for the double sculls, the pair winning easily by five lengths from Italy, after taking the lead at the 1,000 metres.

The United States eight oared crew defeated the British eight in the final of the Olympic race for eight oared boats with coxswains. The winners covered the distance in six minutes, five seconds to the losers six minutes 5 4-5 seconds. The time was a new world's record for the 2,000 metres.

The eight oared event was the greatest of the day. The Leanders crew representing Great Britain, took a slight lead which increased to half a length at the 1,000 metres. Both crews were rowing 38 strokes a minute. Here the United States midshipmen increased their power, and after each crew had alternately taken the lead, spurted ahead 150 metres from the finish. The middies won by a half length.

The fans have been waiting for it—to have Peterboro and Belleville teams meet once more. Wednesday will see these two old rivals back into battle again when they meet on the local diamond. The Belleville team are out to win and are anxious to take a fall out of the Central League Champions. During the playing season each team won a game from the other. On May 24th, the G.T.R. were returned winners by 5-2 score here while on July 1st, the Petes took the long end of a 6-5 score after twelve innings of the scrappiest kind of baseball. The Solomon crew will be out to prove that they are the best team—so the fans can look forward to a real game. The locals will be led by Goyer and Mills will be on hand to receive the slants. Although local fans will like to see Peterboro go through the Ontario finals, they sure will feel a certain satisfaction if the Petes can be humbled. Be on hand, it's going to be a dandy.

DELORO, 7—PICTON, 7.

On Monday afternoon an interesting game of ball was played on the Agricultural Park between Picton and Deloro, it being one of the final games in the Trent Valley League, and resulted in an even break. A good crowd of fans from Picton and Deloro were present and they were very enthusiastic rooters.

At 2.30 the game began, with Leal of Deloro on the mound and Evans behind the bat, proving very effective. Stanley Croft of Picton was right there with the goods at all times and with a little more experience will make a firstclass pitcher. The weak spot in the Picton team is their fielders, who need a great deal of practice. On the whole the fans were satisfied.

Mr. Solomon, of Peterboro was umpire on bases and was most impartial in his judgment, as was Mr. Case, also of Peterboro, who umpired on balls and strikes.

The line-up was as follows:

Score by innings:

Deloro . . . . . 2 3 0 1 0 0 0 0 1—7
Picton . . . . . 1 1 2 0 0 0 1 0 2—7

Wedding Bells

O'BRIEN—FOLTZ.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Michael's Church by Rev. Father Killeen, when Hilda Veronica, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Foltz, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to John J. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander O'Brien, Peterboro, Ont. The bride, who, owing to the illness of her father, was given away by her uncle, Mr. Henry Logue, looked sweet and dainty in a handsome empire gown of white satin with picture hat of tulle and ostrich, carrying a bouquet of sweetheart roses. Her sister, Miss Bernice Foltz, acted as bridesmaid, looking very pretty in a frock of pale blue organdie with hat to match and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Fred O'Brien, of Peterboro.

During the signing of the register a beautiful solo was rendered by Mr. Harold Barrett. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a very dainty wedding breakfast was served. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome silver mesh bag, to the bridesmaid a bracelet, and the groomsman cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien left on the C.P.R. for Rochester and New York. The bride's travelling costume was of dark brown duvetyn with feather hat of brown and sand. Upon their return they will reside at Peterboro.

RATES OF ADVERTISING. Measurement, Agate, 14 lines to the inch. Display advertisements, 10c. per line. Reading advertisements, 15c. per line. Legal advertisements, 10c. per line first insertion, 5c. per line subsequent insertions. Preferred position, 25 per cent. advance upon usual contract rates. Minimum space 10 lines. Births, 50c. each insertion. Marriages, $1.00 each insertion. Deaths or funeral notices, either singly or combined, $1.00. In Memoriams not exceeding 10 lines, $1.00. Rates for condensed advertisements will be found elsewhere. Business cards by the year at low rates. Further information may be obtained at The Intelligencer business office.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES. Daily Edition—One year delivered in city, $5.20; one year, post office box or general delivery, $4.00; one year by mail to rural offices, $3.00; one year to U.S.A., $3.00. Weekly edition—One year by mail, $2.00; one year to U.S.A., $2.50; six months pro rata. All above subscriptions payable in advance or an additional amount of 20 per cent. will be added.

SOUND REASONING.

In announcing an increase in subscription to $2.00 per year, the Kincardine Review thus goes into "ancient history" in regard to relative values:

"When the present publisher of the Review bought the business, a year's subscription would buy a cord of wood two feet long; now we have to give the paper for three years for a cord of wood sixteen inches long. Since then all the products such as we buy directly or indirectly from hundreds of our subscribers have increased in the same ratio. The $1 we got from the farmers for the Review would buy 8 to 12 dozen eggs, from 6½ to 8 pounds of butter, 15 to 20 pounds of fresh beef or pork, 2 to 3 bushels of potatoes, 18 to 20 pounds of fowl, while now a year's subscription will buy us only a peck of potatoes, less than two dozen eggs, 3 or 4 pounds of beef or pork and about 2 pounds of bacon. Flour was in those days only 52 to 52.25 per hundred pounds; today it is over $7. We could add more to this list to make the comparison complete, but these should be sufficient to show any reader that he or she is still getting the best of the deal in an an exchange of commodities: A newspaper at the new price is still the cheapest article that can be purchased. today."

THE DEATH TOLL OF SPEED.

Some really startling figures have been presented by the National Safety Council of the United States, which is holding its annual scession at Atlantic City. They deal with the rapidly increasing toll of human lives, which, according to the General Secretary, S. J. Williams, is the price of the modern speed craze. The "motor menace," as he calls it, has become a problem demanding grave study by national and State law makers, and by all organizations having to do with public welfare.

Official statistics for the current year, according to the report of the Executive of the Safety Council, show that "three times as many people are killed by automobiles as are killed in all the factories, mines, railroads and other industries in America." During the last four months one person was killed by an automobile in the United States every thirty-five minutes. In that time the deaths from this cause were over twenty-five per cent. greater in number than during the similar period of the previous year.

The report adds, for the purpose of comparison, a British official statement dealing with the commercial development of the airplane. It shows that over 75,000 persons were carried upon aerial journeys in Great Britain last year with but one fatality.

According to the estimates prepared for the Council the terrible death toll from automobiles is due almost entirely to reckless driving and the craze for speed. Ninety-seven per cent. of the fatalities are ascribed to these two causes. But because the killings have increased in an even greater proportion than have the number of automobiles in use the Council believes the situation should be given immediate consideration by the automobile makers of the country, "unless they expect soon to be confronted by a great volume of hostile public opinion."

It must be clear that such a staggering death rate cannot continue without causing unusual action. Safety legislation can be tightened and strengthened, but legislation cannot do everything. The great need is for the development of a strong and effective sentiment among owners of automobiles themselves against the reckless driver and the speed fiend.

OTHER VIEWS

The Point of View
Toronto Daily Star

Charles Diamond, editor of the Catholic Herald, who has just completed a six months' sentence in Pentonville prison in England for publishing an article entitled "Killing, No Murder," relates some of his experiences. The prisoners held debates fortnightly and discussed the question of divorce. They voted against it, as too great facilities for divorce would be detrimental to the country. Mr. Diamond noted that prisoners serving terms for bigamy voted in the minority. He gave a lecture on journalism and found that the prisoners were almost unanimously of the opinion that the press gave too much publicity to proceedings in the criminal courts.

Secret Or Open?
Halifax Herald

Looking at home, can anyone suppose for a moment that Hon. F. B. McCurdy would be standing on the platform with him in Colchester, if the premier had "nailed high protection" above that platform? Mr. McCurdy has never been in favor of other than moderate protection—such protection as this country imperatively needs and both must and will have, whoever may be governing it.

The only question is as to whether it would be better to have open friends of such protection in charge of the government, or to entrust the administration to avowed or secret enemies of such protection, and therefore of necessity enemies of the country's interests if not the country itself.

More Provincial Police
Mail and Empire

We are glad to learn that the Ontario Government is considering the question of increasing the strength of the Provincial Police. Numerically the force is far short of what it ought to be. The thirty-five men who now compose it are, we believe, well qualified for the class of service they are called upon to render, but even the most efficient of them has not the ubiquity of the Wandering Jew, and cannot therefore be at two places hundreds of miles apart at the same time. Ontario is a big province. Though the portion of it under settlement is but a small part of the whole, there are points within that portion that are 500 miles apart. Raised to a strength of 100 the Provincial Police Force would still be small enough.

THE POET'S CORNER

THE BROOKSIDE
Richard Monckton Milnes.

I wandered by the brookside,
I wandered by the mill—
I could not hear the brook flow,
The noisy wheel was still;
There was no burr of grasshopper,
No chirp of any bird,
But the beating of my own heart
Was all the sound I heard.

I sat beneath the elm-tree,
I watched the long, long shade,
And as it grew still longer,
I did not feel afraid;
For I listened for a footfall,
I listened for a word—
But the beating of my own heart
Was the only sound I heard.

He came not—no, he came not—
The night came on alone;
The little stars sat one by one,
Each on his golden thone;
The evening air passed by my cheek
The leaves above were stirred—
But the beating of my own heart
Was all the sound I heard.

Fast silent tears were flowing,
When something stood behind—
A hand was on my shoulder,
I knew its touch was kind;
It drew me nearer—nearer—
We did not speak one word,
For the beating of our own hearts
Was all the sound we heard.

HIS DARK PAST

By MARY MORISON

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"And so," said Mrs. Trent, "we want your advice."

"Yes, Cousin Anne, we were sure you would know just how to handle it," chimed in Daisy.

Cousin Anne looked at them with a rather humorous expression in her beautiful gray eyes. "Let me see if I have it straight," she said, showing her concentration on the subject in hand by a most alluring frown. "There are two men—one named Tommy and one named James—both standing on their toes to marry Daisy here."

"Well, really, Cousin Anne," interrupted Daisy conscientiously, "James has never said anything as definite as that. It is just that he keeps coming here day after day and sends me all sorts of lovely things—"

Mrs. Trent broke in rather breathlessly: "Among them some French poems, which, of course, I wouldn't let her read!"

"Dear, dear, how dreadful of him!" asserted Anne Dunsany, a sternly repressed twinkle showing in her eyes. "What else does he do, Daisy?"

"It's more the way he looks at me than anything else," said Daisy. "His eyes are so, well, intent—they make me fairly squirm. And then the next minute I think he's laughing at me. Tommy says he knows there's something very queer about James, dropping down there in Glenbrook from nowhere that we know anything about and keeping a dead silence about his life before he came. It does look queer, doesn't it?"

"I can see how it would look queer to Glenbrook," replied Anne equivocally. "These silent, mysterious, fascinating men with intent looks in their eyes generally bear investigation."

"That's what Tommy says," smiled Daisy.

Anne looked at her young cousin in silence for a moment. Then she rose, picked up her very chic hat and placed it on her golden head with a most becoming tilt all her own.

"I'll be back before long," she said. "I'm going to have a look at the mysterious James house. An observant woman can learn almost anything about a man from his front door mat"—and waving her hand in farewell she disappeared down the garden path and out the big gates onto the road.

In spite of the difference of ten years in their ages and the difference of a world in their experiences of life, Anne Dunsany was very fond of her little cousin. By some freak of cousinship they looked almost enough alike to be sisters and Anne took a very deep and personal interest in everything that touched her.

"I could easily murder that James man in cold blood if he is playing with her," she mused as she approached a comfortable house set back from the street. She was just in time to see a motorcar dash through the gates and disappear in a cloud of dust up the road.

"That's 'James,'" mused Anne. "Now for his house!"

It was a nice house from the outside, Anne had to admit. The white pillars of its broad veranda gleamed in stately purity at all suspicious passersby as if denying their owner's possible blackness of reputation. The wicker chairs and tables, the magazines and books strewn around in pleasant disarray looked attractive.

"I wish I could see the inside," suddenly thought Anne. "He's out and I don't see any servants around—I'm going to explore!" and before she had time to reconsider she had hurried up the front walk, mounted the steps and entered the house.

She walked into a long, low room. The late afternoon sun came through the open windows and touched the rows of old books that reached up to the ceiling with a golden light. It was a most satisfactory room, and Anne sank down on a deep sofa to take it in. She picked up a little red bound volume from beside her—open, where its late reader had thrown it only a short while ago—and caught her breath. "Monsieur Beaucaire!" she murmured.

What memories the title brought back to her! It reminded her of a wonderful summer years ago, of long days spent in a small white sailboat on a bright, blue ocean and of evenings when a man with quizzical gray eyes had recited bits of "Monsieur Beaucaire" in the moonlight.

"It was one thousand years ago," said Anne Dunsany.

So absorbed was she in the sudden rush of memories that surged over her that she did not hear a motor drive up or a heavy footstep enter the room.

A man stood in the doorway, quite still as he caught sight of Anne. His face whitened a little and his mouth twisted into a quizzical little half smile, but his voice was quite steady as he said:

"Hello, Anne."

"Monsieur Beaucaire" dropped from Anne's grasp and lay unnoticed on the floor as she sprang from her seat. "Jimmy!" she exclaimed, "how on earth did you get here? Am I dreaming?" and then in a sudden realization: "Oh, you are James!"

"James to Daisy," answered the man, still looking at her from his place in the doorway, "but Jimmy to passed that girl just a little while ago on a corner a few blocks from here."

He went away, muttering.

"The real funny part of it is, though, that she struck my eye and I nearly ran over an ice wagon, because I was looking back at her."

Fred was unable to find Hilda among the guests assembled at the church. He asked the church ushers and they stated positively that Miss Caruthers had not arrived. So he got her address and went to her home.

Hilda had entered her room and was on the point of taking off the mud-ruined dress when her aunt called her. Hilda's parents had died within a year of each other shortly after Anne moved from the city, and she was living with her uncle and aunt.

"There's a young man here to see you on important business," said the aunt. "He wants you for bridesmaid at the wedding. He's the brother of the groom."

Hilda began to unfasten her dress.

"I won't change," she decided suddenly. "I'll just show them that I did have a good dress, even if it is ruined now."

When she saw Fred her feeling of anger returned, but the smile with which he greeted her made it impossible for her to harbor her wrath. So she smiled in return and said:

"You're to blame for this mud. Your old car did it, and that's the reason I'm not at the church now."

"Never mind," he returned. "Come along in the car, and I'll apologize on the way. They'll fix you up at the hotel."

But Fred did not take the shortest way. Instead he drove several blocks in the wrong direction. The truth is he was captivated by Hilda—well, you can't get around it. There is such a thing as love at first sight, and mud can't alter it.

At the hotel the bridal party waited in vain for the bridesmaid and best man.

Mrs. Moorehouse was all aflutter and was for telephoning the police and the hospitals to ascertain whether there had been an accident. The mother of the prospective groom was little more composed, while the two fathers held an excited conference and the young man who was to become a husband smoked black cigars and dug his finger nails into the palms of his hands.

For half an hour the bridal party waited, and the assemblage at the church grew restless, and some of it left. The tension at the hotel ended when Anne was called to the phone.

"This is Fred," said the voice on the wire. "Say, I forgot all about your wedding, I was so interested in your friend Hilda. You'll pardon me, but I couldn't help taking her for a ride, and we had a mishap. Oh, we didn't get hurt, but we got pretty well acquainted. We'll be right up to the hotel. Better get those clothes ready for Hilda, because she's going to be your attendant, all right; but what's more interesting to me—there's going to be a double wedding."

HISTORIC RELICS IN BOSTON

Painters' Arms and the Boston Stone Have Been Preserved in Building Erected in 1652.

Two mementoes of the colonial period, the Painters' arms and the Boston stone, are set in the wall of an old building in the north end of Boston, a historic quarter which has changed little with passing time. This building, erected in 1652 by Thomas Marshall, became, in 1692, the property of Thomas Child, the painter, who erected his arms over the doorway nine years later, testifying to a partnership in business between the painter and his wife, for the initials which embellish the carved board, "C. T. K., are interpreted as standing for "Child, Thomas and Katherine." The date, 1701, appears finely graven in wood, and showing the striking design which was conceived to advertise the talents of the "painter stainer," as Child was referred to. The Painters' arms has an artistic as well as a historic value.

Thomas Child and his wife were also responsible for the Boston stone. The round grinding stone was found in 1737 by Joseph Howe, who bought the site of the colonial paint shop, while he was cleaning up the yard. The stone was covered with paint, and a little inquiry proved conclusively that it was the means Thomas Child has used to grind his colors.

James Davis, who bought the property in 1835, set both the Boston stone and the Painters' arms into the wall of his new building. His heirs have the same regard for these relics that he had, and have seen to it that both stone and sign are protected as symbols of the industry which flourished on the site 200 years ago.

Natives of the Empire.

In the British Empire there are 62,000,000 white and 376,000,000 colored people. The 62,000,000 whites represent capital wealth amounting to £100,000,000,000 sterling, as against the £1,000,000,000 sterling possessed by the black, brown, and yellow people. The degree of illiteracy among the white people, according to Sir Henry Johnson, is probably not more than 15 per cent.; among the colored races it is nearly 90 per cent.

Beefeaters.

The warders of the Tower of London were first styled Beefeaters in the reign of Edward VI. The word was probably derived from the French buffeter, signifying literally "to eat beef." It was used in connection with the Yeomen of the Guard, originating at the coronation of Henry VII., 1485.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

While operating a binder on his farm near Atherly on Tuesday Mr. Thos. Healy was fatally kicked by one of his horses and died in the Orillia General Hospital on Wednesday night. The horses were not pulling well together and Mr. Healy got down to adjust the harness, coming too close to the heels of one of the horses, which kicked at him, inflicting injuries which resulted in his death. It was three hours before he was discovered.

EARLY RISERS

Rural dwellers who have been made indignant by slurring references by city folk to the 'farmer's morning nap' will appreciate this experience of an advertising man who motored through to the advertising convention in Indianapolis. A few miles outside Indianapolis he had bad luck. His car skidded into the ditch and he had to wait till daylight to get someone to pull him out. At 3.30 a.m. he went to a nearby farmhouse, knocked at the door and the farmer's wife answered the call. The advertising man asked: "Could I get your husband to pull my car out of the ditch?" "Well, that's too bad," she replied. "You should have been here before breakfast. He took the horses over half an hour ago and is down the road two miles there and plowin' by now."

CHASED "PEEPER"

A skulker, who has been making a nuisance of himself in the rear of the Hotel Dieu nurses home at Kingston had better keep away from that district or he will be nabbed and hung up on a pole for public gaze. On Thursday night about 10.30 o'clock, nurses who were in the act of retiring, noticed a man peeping into the sleeping apartments from the rear. He was on a ladder placed against the stone wall between two second storey windows. The young ladies were much frightened and summoned Dr. E. L. Stone, who resides next door. The doctor and a couple of gentlemen who were sitting chatting in his house, hurried into the nurses residence and through into the yard, but the "peeper" had made his escape. A call was sent to the police who visited the place.—Kingston Whig.

SHOT THE BULL

A bull ran amuck in the Kingston City Park early on Friday afternoon. The animal could not be captured and the police were notified, Constable Leslie Carke went out to the park to investigate, and afterwards Dr. William Nicholls, V.S., was summoned, and was called upon to shoot the bull as it was feared that he would attack some person. The bull was brought over to the city by a drover from Wolfe Island. Quite a number of boys were in the park at the time, returning from taking a 'dip' in the lake and they were warned to keep away from the bull. The latter pranced around the park doing all kinds of 'stunts' and it would have been quite a dangerous task for any person to attempt to corral him in the mood he was in. Dr. Nicholls shot the animal through the heart, causing instant death.

PLEASED TOURIST

A writer in the Toronto Globe who describes a recent tour of Eastern Ontario has the folowing to say about this vicinity: "Between Belleville and Kingston the highway deteriorated, but it was not too bad, except for a long detour east of Napanee over a road more suitable for cattle. Kingston ended the second day and stage of the journey. Between Toronto and Kingston the tourist is rewarded by frequent glimpses of the lake, by a superb view of the Bay of Quinte for nearly its whole length, by a lovely landscape, especially in a season of bountiful growth and by an acquaintance with Pickering, Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Newcastle, Port Hope, Cobourg, Grafton, Colborne, Brighton, Trenton and Napanee, to say nothing of the beautiful cities of Belleville and Kingston. Our intention had been to proceed to Ottawa, but we were warned against the roads east of Kingston which are in the making and so decided to work our way back to Toronto without turning on our tracks. So we plunged northward with only a motor map to guide us, our immediate objective being Bon Echo, a wonderfully picturesque lake resort, to which many tourists find their way, even from the United States, in the summer months. We passed through the villages of Cataraqui, Glenvale, Murvale, Harrowsmith, Colebrook, Moscow, Enterprise, Tamworth and Erinsville, over roads partly gravel, partly clay, and no worse than hundreds of miles in districts more thickly settled, more travelled and better able to afford improved highways."

FREIGHT INCREASING

The Grand Trunk is now enjoying the largest freight business on its main line within several months and as a result there is much activity in railway circles at Brockville. Approximately ninety trains are now being operated in and out of this terminal daily, the majority of them being freight trains. Some indication of the business being done on the road is given by the fact that from midnight Tuesday night to nine o'clock Wednesday morning 21 freight trains were despatched to Belleville, Montreal, or St. Alban's Vt. In addition to the freight trains which are being operated at the rate of about sixty a day, there are twenty-four passenger trains running in and out of Brockville over the G. T. R., and two way freight trains. Six switching engines are also on duty in the yards at Brockville.—Brockville Recorder.

THOUGHTLESS MOTORIST

Still the walls come in about glaring headlights, speeding and cut-outs. About the speeding there is occasionally something done. It is a human weakness at any rate. But where any man gets joy in listening to the roar of a cut-out or shining his headlights in the eyes of the other drivers is hard to imagine.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT

Three young ladies in a Ford runabout crashed into the fence at the Bell Telephone Company's new property on Walton street. About half of the fence was demolished and if the young ladies will complete the job it will greatly improve the appearance of that section of the street.—Port Hope Guide.

ENORMOUS OVERALLS

Overall manufacturers at Scranton Penn., have made to order a pair of overalls containing twenty-five yards who is nine feet four inches tall and weighs 540 pounds. The girth measurement is 106 inches and each of the hip pockets is big enough to take a watermelon.

CONVICTS RETAIN FREEDOM

No trace has been found of the two convicts, Griggs and Hilton, who escaped from the Portsmouth Penitentiary two weeks ago. Last week two men were arrested in the Muskoka district on the charge of stealing two horses. They were brought to Peterboro and were thought to be the escaped convicts, but no word was received at the Penitentiary regarding the men, and it is thought that the arrested men were not the convicts.

MEN ESCAPED

Two young women, Annie Pike and Annie Nolan, of Montreal, the latter formerly of Brockville, were arrested in Brockville on instructions from P. Belanger, superintendent of the Montreal police and four young men dressed in American army uniforms who accompanied the girlsthere on Tuesday and who are wanted by the Montreal police for theft, eluded arrest and departed for parts unknown.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mr. Richard Garratt, an aged resident of Wellington, was found dead on Saturday night last at the home of his son, Mr. Walter Garratt. Mr. Garratt was 87 years of age and had many friends.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Two foreigners employed at Point Ann were arrested Monday by Police Sergt. Naphin, charged with assaulting Harry Yanover, of Belleville. They were brought before Magistrate Masson Tuesday morning for trial. Yanover's face looked as if he had been attacked by a wildcat, hardly a spot not having been scratched deep. The names of the accused were given as John Slobedin and Wm. Potralo. They were remanded for trial, and were released on bonds.

MADE IN BELLEVILLE.

Great interest is being taken by local manufacturers in the Made-in-Belleville exhibit being arranged by the Chamber of Commerce for Belleville Fair next week. A large number of exhibits will be made showing the variety and excellence of goods made in this city.

WORLD PEACE WILL COME, SAYS SIR A. GEDDES

Montreal, Aug. 31.—"The appointment of a Canadian Minister to Washington is one of the important matters I am going to take up with the Premier on my visit to Ottawa," is a statement to The Herald by Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador at Washington.

"This is my first visit to Montreal since the war," the distinguished visitor said, "and I am here resting from my heavy duties at Washington and renewing friendships I made during the war. I hope to spend much time with Sir Arthur Currie, your distinguished Canadian leader in France," was the answer to a question as to the length of his visit and if it had any political significance.

Sir Auckland leaves today, Tuesday, for Ottawa, where he will spend a few days with His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, who is one of his warm personal friends, and before leaving for Washington he hopes to have the matter of a Canadian Minister to Washington assured.

In answer to a question on the balance of power in Europe, Sir Auckland stated that order would be brought out of the present chaos and the genuine world peace would soon be established.

Meth. Spirits May Be Made By Distillers

The Government Relinquishes Control of Supply of Denatured Alcohol.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—Under the amendments to Section 251 and Part X of the Inland Revenue Act, as passed at the last session of Parliament, the manufacture and supply of methylated spirits, or denatured alcohol, as it will be known in future, was placed in the hands of licensed distillers, in lieu of the Department of Customs and Inland Revenue. Tentative regulations for putting this new system into effect have been sent to all distillers who are licensed, as well as a copy of the approved specifications covering the quality of wood alcohol which must be used as a denaturant.

Subject to Competition.

As there has been a shortage in the quantity of denatured alcohol available for the industrial requirements of the Dominion of late, this change in the Federal policy toward the manufacture of this much-needed material in industry is of great importance to Canadians. Hitherto this alcohol has been made only in Ottawa and has been sold at a 15 per cent. advance on the cost of making it. By the new method the manufacture will be completed on the distillery premises, and the price be set by competition in the open market. The intention is to form a board consisting of members of the Scientific and Industrial Research Bureau and of the Department of Customs and Inland Revenue, to consider the authorization of new formulas from time to time for the production of other and cheaper classes of denatured alcohol for the benfit of Canadian industries.

Production Increase.

To show the importance to industrial Canada of this alcohol, it may be said that last year the Inland Revenue Department manufactured 643,700 gallons of proof ethyl alcohol, as compared with 319,800 gallons the year before. The production was 35 per cent. higher than in any previous year.

The Department of Inland Revenue will control the actual manufacture of the denatured alcohol for the purpose of insuring the quality of the denatured as well as the respective percentages employed in producing the different grades previously furnished, but the marketing of the goods will be entirely under the control of the distillers.

The licensed manufacturers may make shipment only to holders of permits to have in possession and use grade No. 1, consisting of 80 per cent. ethyl alcohol and 20 per cent. methyl alcohol, or grade No. 1 benzine, consisting of 90 per cent. ethyl alcohol, 9 per cent. methyl alcohol and 1 per cent. commercial benzine. Hospitals and universities holding permits to have grade No. 1 "special" in possession and use may receive denatured alcohol composed of 90 per cent. ethyl alcohol and 10 per cent. methyl alcohol. Grade No. 2, consisting of 70 per cent. ethyl and 30 per cent. methyl alcohol, may be shipped to anyone without restriction.

Motor Boat In Race With Death

The Mate of the Stranded Steamer Stricken With Appendicitis.

OGDENSBURG, N.Y., Aug. 31.—A thrilling race against death was enacted on the St. Lawrence river when a high powered motor boat plowed sixteen miles from Iroquois Point against the swift current in an effort to land First Mate Fred Rock of the steamer Phelan here in time to be operated upon for acute appendicitis. The trip was made in the record-breaking time of one hour and five minutes. An ambulance was in waiting at the state hospital dock to rush the stricken sailor to the hospital and fifteen minutes after he had reached there Dr. Madill started the operation. Rock, a man of sturdy physique, came through the ordeal in fine shape, and Tuesday his condition was said to be satisfactory, with every prospect of a rapid recovery.

Rock was stricken aboard the stranded steamer Phelan on Monday afternoon. He was in excruciating pain and a doctor was hastily summoned from Iroquois. The physician said that unless the sailor could be operated upon at once he would not live more than four hours. The swiftest power boat that could be found was commandeered for the trip to Ogdensburg, and accompanied by the doctor and the second mate, Rock was brought here as fast as the craft could be driven.

Fellow sailors of Mate Rock, who came up to the city to call on him expressed great satisfaction over the expected favorable outcome of his illness. Rock is a well known hockey player in Canada. His home is at Wiarton, Georgian Bay.

The steamer Phelan has been aground at Iroquois Point since the latter part of last week and wreckers are now at work on her.

RITCHIE'S

JUST NOW SCHOOL SUITS

For the Boys

Some interesting values for the prudent, thrifty mother in this special showing of Boys' School Suits.

100 TWEED SUITS 100

For Boys of 8 to 16 years

at $10.00

Under ordinary circumstances these Suits would cost you Dollars more. And a most interesting feature about this money saving offer is that the assortment of patterns is so varied that not more than a few will be found alike.

The materials are firm, durable wool and cotton and wool tweeds of smooth and rough finish. In light, medium and dark shades of grey, brown, blue, green and fawn. There are stripes, pin checks and fancy mixtures. The style is one of the favorites among young fellows just now, a three-button model with slash pockets, smart lapels and belt that may be fastened with buckle or button. All well tailored, with roomy bloomers. Sizes 26 to 34.

Suit Special $10.00

SCHOOL BLOOMERS

$3.50 Value
